Traffic Is Paralyzed By Slippery Highways

Chelsen, as well as most of Michigan, was visited by a rain and sleet storm last Friday afternoon and evening. Motor traffic was brought to Chelsea restaurants ran out of food and nearly all of the rooming houses in town were full, the McKune house having to turn people away. Many motorists left their cars in local garages and took the midnight train to Jackson, Battle Creek and Chicago. The local telephone office reported that their husiness was unusually that their business was unusually heavy. The average day toll calls are from 54 to 56 and on Friday from 8:80 p. m. to midnight they handled 148 toll calls and local calls were unusually heavy. J. E. Weber reported that he had the largest crowd at a Friday night show in many weeks, many of the stranded people attending his show.

US-12 at the end of South Main street looked like a crowded city thoroughfare as it was lined on both sides of the highway with trucks, cars and buses, the drivers of which had given up all thoughts of travelling on the ley roads. Although many cars slid into the ditches and wreckers were kept busy pulling them back onto the road, no injurios were reported.

Ques.-I would like to ask you what was the Holy Roman Empire? Also what was the extent of it, and who were the rulers

Ans.—The Holy Roman Empire was founded in 800 A. D. It consisted of the territory of France, Germany, Spain to the Ebro, a portion of Italy, several islands of the Mediterranean sea and the greater portion of Panonia. Charlemange was the only ruler. Ques .- What causes tears, and where do they come from?

Ans. The larchrymal gland is continually secreting tears which are carried by narrow ducts to the upper surface of the eyeball, whence they flow down over the eye, finally being collected at the inner corner of the eye and passing into the nose. Under circumstances such as emotion, a blow, irritation, cold winds, etc., the tear fluid is secreted faster than it can escape through lachrymal puntures, and so it flows over lids and down the cheeks.

Ans.—In "Pickwith Papers," by Charles Dickens, a drinking young doctor-tries to establish a practice at Bristol, England, but without success. Another one of Dicken's characters, Sam Weller, calls the doctor "Mr. Sawbones." Since this, the term is sometimes applied derisively to doctors who have a "shady" reputation.

Ques .- To settle an argument will you kindly state whether a whale is an animal or fish? Thank you.

Ans.—It is neither. A whale is a mammal. It cannot breathe under water. It always comes to the surface for air, and then it takes in oxygen enough to last it for an hour or more before it finds it necessary to come_to_the_surface again, -

Quesi-Will you please tell me how a porcupine shoots his quills? Can

Ans.-Porcupines cannot shoot their quills. Their quills are used as weapons of defense, and they are very rarely on the offensive. When they are mad guills will stick out in all directions. The guills are infinitely shapper than needles so that when their enemy comes in contact with them they penetrate into the hide or skin of the enemy and easily pulls out of the porcupine, leaving the quills hard fast into its enemy. For that reason they cannot be conquered n combat with other animals unless ttacked without warning.
