Scout Executive Is Awarded Citation

Wallace Watt, retiring Boy Scout executive, was awarded the American Legion citizenship citation from the Erwin Priessner post of Ann Arbor, at ceremonies held Monday noon in the Boy Scout headquarters. The honor was accorded Mr. Watt in recognition of his meritorious work with the youth of the city and his wide influence and personal interest in the boys of Washtenaw and Livingston counties.

Representative leaders in the community attended the ceremonies and the presentation was made by Robert A. Campbell, mayor of Ann Arbor. Mr. Watt has been active in Scout work for 20 years and has been Scout executive of Washtenaw-Livingston county councils since April 1, 1928. A native of Vermont, he was a member of the Boy Scout troop at Barre, Vt., which is generally recognized as the first Boy Scout troop in this country.

He is a graduate of the University of Michigan, from which he received his master's degree. He served with the machine gun battalion during the World war, and was one of the group chosen to guard President Wilson and members of the peace commission in Paris from 1918 to 1919.

Michigan Gets Aid In Building Roads

Michigan will have a $3,827,292 share in the federal money granted for aid in building highways in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1935, according to the announcement of Secretary Henry A. Wallace, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

This highway aid marks the resumption of the old plan of helping the states build and maintain trunk line roads for the convenience of travelers from all over the country. The aid is given only when the states provide specified highway funds from their gasoline tax or from vehicle taxes.

Michigan ranks seventh in the amount of highway aid given by the government. The first 10 states, in order of sums apportioned are Texas, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, California, Ohio, Michigan, Missouri, Georgia, and Wisconsin.

Michigan citizens who have not traveled the roads of other states do not appreciate the extent and the excellent construction of the highways here, according to members of the Michigan State College staff who have occasion to drive long distances. Recent snow storms emphasized Michigan's ability to cope with highway problems when people returning from other states sighed with relief when they reached the State line and found the proper equipment clearing the roads at the proper time.

These highways are the avenues down which the tourists' dollars travel to Michigan pockets. Travelers remember the good roads on their journeys and are apt to avoid the bad spots on their return.

Will Award Contract for US-12 Relocation

Announcement has been made by the state highway department that bids on the first contract in connection with the relocation of US-12, which covers the grading and building of drainage structure for 7,840 miles of new highway in Leoni and Grass Lake townships, will be opened at the Roosevelt hotel in Lansing at 10 a. m. on January 18.

The relocation project is being financed by the federal government and eventually will extend from Jackson to Ann Arbor. The new road will be located north of the present US-12 in Jackson county and acquisition of the right-of-way was started several months ago. Surveying has been in progress for some time.

COLLISION CAUSES INJURIES

As John Frymuth, accompanied by G. L. Staffan, was driving to Blind Lake last Thursday afternoon, his automobile collided head-on with a car driven by Edward Wise of North Lake near the Eisenbeiser road. Both drivers, blinded by the storm, were traveling at low speed. Mr. Wise was the most seriously injured, suffering a broken leg, bruised arm and chest, and cuts about the face. He was taken to St. Joseph's Mercy hospital, Ann Arbor. Mr. Frymuth also received face cuts and bruises and his companion slight injuries.

Masonic Banquet Held Wednesday Evening At Gym

The annual banquet of Olive Lodge, No. 156, F. & A. M., held Wednesday evening in the public school gymnasium, was an enjoyable event. The hall was appropriately decorated with Masonic emblems.

Following the dinner, which was served by the Chelsea high school seniors, Rex Richards, chairman of the entertainment committee, opened the meeting by introducing Schuyler P. Foster as toastmaster of the evening, and the address of welcome was given by Donald J. Dancer, W. M. Past Masters of the lodge were called upon for short talks and several responded. Solos, "The Sunshine of Your Smile," and "I Need You, Dear," were rendered by George W. Atkinson, with Claude Isham as accompanist. "Reminiscences" by Ransom Armstrong brought out many amusing incidents. Mrs. A. A. Palmer, with Miss Virginia Barrus at the piano, rendered two solos, "Mifanwy," by Weatherly, and "Blue Are Her Eyes" by Wintler Watt.

The address of the evening, "Fraternity and Freedom" was given by Rev. F. D. Mumby, who said in part: "From time immemorial the Order of Free and Accepted Masons has pioneered in many lands, and the cause of human rights and human freedom has ever been held sacred in the heart of the true Mason."

"In days of tyranny and oppression when it was dangerous even to hold opinions contrary to those held by kings and lords; temporal and spiritual, this fraternity advocated the cause of freedom in medieval Europe, and later furnished the leadership which held the foundations of American liberty."

"The origins of Masonry are hidden in the mists of antiquity, but we believe that the plumbing proposition of those who fought their way to power and position of authority caused our ancient brethren to unite for mutual protection and to secure for themselves and their families blessings which overflowed into the life of the community and eventually permeated all forms of government. 'I believe it can truthfully be said that the percentage of men who have willingly received and pledged themselves to follow the principles of Masonry in any land is some indication of the measure of that nation's greatness in the life of the world today.'"

"Those who object to the secrecy and symbolism of our order should be reminded that in ancient times it was a matter of life and death in many instances, that those who claimed their aid and confidence be proven worthy by many tests."

"Operative Masonry in ancient times was composed of builders whose work has stood the test of time. We who work in modern times as speculative Masons should be just as faithful to the eternal principles in order that the temple of humanity may with equal splendor reflect the glory of the Great Architect of the Universe."

The program closed with a eulogy on "Home" and assembly singing of "Home, Sweet Home."

Dancing followed the banquet, with music by Klager's orchestra of Bridge-water.

Contests For All At Farmers Week

Farmers Week visitors at Michigan State College, January 28 to February 1, will have chances to obtain awards for degrees of skill in many lines of activities.

Strong men can enter the wood sawing and chopping contest and woodmen who are not so strong but who know their trees can display their knowledge in identifying samples of common Michigan woods. Women who can sing will be competing in the Grange choir singing contest along with their masculine choir mates, and the rural drama contest will permit full display of all degrees of ability as players for both men and women.

Men have monopolized the rifle shooting contest in previous years but there is no law to prevent homemakers from getting a little practice on the range where guns and shells are furnished to contestants who do not bring their own.

Horse traders will do well to tie up their pockets after the identification of unsoundness in horses has trained Michigan farmers to beat the traders at their own game. This is a new event this year as is the livestock judging contest for teams of three farmers from a county. For the livestock judging the counties will have to select their team before Farmers Week because only one team can enter from a county. The agricultural agents can help farmers in choosing teams.

Visitors who would rather watch than compete can get their cheering exercise at the horse pulling contests which will be held Wednesday and Thursday evenings. These events always prove popular with the crowds.

OUR NEIGHBORS

MASON—Records kept at the special weather observatory at the city disposal plant show that 1934 was the driest year since records were first begun at the East Lansing station back in 1863. During 1934 there was but 16.1 inches of rainfall recorded here against a normal rainfall of 31.43 inches. The past year was even drier than 1930 when but 18.5 inches fell. There were three months during the year when less than one inch of rain was recorded. In January there was a precipitation of .91. The next month was an all-time low of .16 of an inch. Again in July the rains failed and but .70 of an inch came. September and November were the only months of the year when the rainfall was normal. The September rains saved millions of dollars worth of Michigan crops.—County News.

BROOKLYN—Harvey Persons of Marine City, enroute to Brooklyn for a visit, skated over the Irish Hills from Clinton in last Friday's ice storm, which stopped the buses and almost all other traffic for a number of hours until the highways could be sanded. Being a somewhat resourceful young man, Persons was not long in deciding what to do to be on his way. He went into a Clinton hardware and bought a pair of skates. It is 12 miles from Clinton to Brooklyn, but he made it in good time. Once he was given a tow by an auto driver, but the car went so slow and uncertainly that he soon let go and proceeded on ahead.—Exponent.

MANCHESTER—The American Legion last Friday evening prepared a supper to be served in honor of several of the State officers who were to visit Emil Jacob post, but the icy condition of the roads made it impossible for the guests to attend. The Legion members did not receive word that their guests would not be present until after the supper had been prepared so various members went forth and rounded up a group of school boys and invited them to spend a social evening with them and to assist them in preventing the spoiling of the food and the boys did a very satisfactory job.—Enterprise.

MILAN—Plans are under way for the establishing of a free lending library in Milan. Headquarters have been provided in the village hall and the village council has appointed a library commission. The commission has investigated the sources from which books may be obtained. Indications are that the library will be opened late in January. A librarian will be in charge during the time that the rooms are open. A well balanced library of novels, biography, history and travel as well as reference books of all kinds is being planned.—Leader.

NORTHVILLE—James Lin, son of Lin Sen, president of China, was a visitor last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Zebornick at 19912 Farmington road in West Point Park. Mr. Lin, who is studying at Columbia University in New York City, was accompanied by a classmate, John Kluge. He is majoring in economics and intends to return to China and take up politics. He is especially interested in mass production and American efficiency, he said.—Record.

TECUMSEH—With the turning of the new year business also took a decided upturn at the Quaker Oats Company's plant here. Yesterday the company shipped several car loads of its products, the total freight bill amounting to $950.—Herald.

LOVING THE LITTLE CHAP

I'm glad I loved the little chap while he was here on earth.
For now that he has gone away, I realize his worth.

I'm glad that I was good to him
And did not chide him when
He asked for stories I had told him,
Time and time again.

I'm glad that I was never
Too much occupied to play,
And romp about the yard with him,
Now that he's gone away.

His little face, his happy smile,
In dreams at night I see—
I'm glad I loved the little chap,
While he was here with me.

I seem at times to feel his wee hand,
Snuggling close to mine;
I hear once more his cheery voice,
And see his glad eyes shine.

I listen for his foot-steps,
And at night alone I wait,
Just as I did when he would come
To meet me at the gate.

The little hat and jacket,
Which at play he always wore,
Are there just as he left them,
Hanging by the kitchen door.

I hope that he is happy,
In that summer land above—
I'm glad I loved the little chap,
While he was mine to love.

I'm glad I was permitted
For a little while to share
The little chap's companionship,
And give him tender care.

I'm glad he never came to me,
Heartbroken, for relief,
But that I took him in my arms,
And soothed his childish grief.

I'm glad the prayer he whispered
Every evening at my knee,
Was one his rosy, lipping lips
Repeated after me.

And now that God has taken him,
It comforts me to know
That I was always good to him,
While he was here below.

Slumber Song
by Lawrence Hawthorne

I like my sleep! I don't know what
Is better than a downy cot;
If I could have my way, I'd stay
In bed until the close of day—
And then I'd gladly slumber on Until another day was gone!
I never yet have counted sheep
To put my weary self to sleep;
No sooner do I hit the hay
Than all my cares have flown away,
And slumber's comforting embrace
Has made my couch a trysting-place
For peaceful rest and restful peace!
And though my moring may increase,
With accent loud and cadence deep,
Oh, how I do enjoy my sleep!

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Who were the Gauls and in what part of the world did they live in?

Ans.—The Gauls were the most numerous branch of the original Celts. In ancient times they occupied that part of the country situated between the Rhine and the Alps. The Gauls people were first brought into history about 497 B. C., when they crossed the Alps and defeated the Romans. Three years later the Gauls again defeated the Roman army and burned part of Rome and thus planted their authority far toward the East.

Ques.—Why was the national capital moved from Philadelphia to Washington?

Ans.—When the United States was in its infancy the Federalists, a political party led by Washington, Pickens, Adams, Hamilton, etc., were in power. To get certain laws enacted by Congress the Federalists had to consent to southern members of Congress to have the National capital located on the banks of the Potomac. Washington was agreed upon as the site, which was favorable to the Anti-Federalists, who voted with the Federalists on some of their wanted measures.

Ques.—I wish to know what is a henpecked husband. Can you tell me?

Ans.—As a rule it's a man whose nerves are in his wife's name.

Ques.—Can you tell me when and where Rhode Island Red chickens come from?

Ans.—Rhode Island Reds were first developed in southeastern Rhode Island and the adjoining part of Massachusetts about 1854. They were first developed by crossing red Malay fowls with reddish-colored Shanghais.

Ques.—Was Kit Carson an outlaw? In what time did he live and how did he die?

Ans.—No. Kit Carson was a noted hunter, trapper and Indian scout. He was born in 1809; was an officer in both the Mexican and Civil Wars. His real name was Christopher Carson. He died at Ft. Lynn in 1868.

Ques.—Will you kindly answer in your paper if the Prince of Wales speaks the Welsh language?

Ans.—No. The Prince of Wales knows nothing about Welsh. The title "Prince of Wales" is merely a matter of history and tradition, and has no significance.

Ques.—Does the mole eat vegetable matter such as seeds planted in the garden, or corn, peas and potatoes planted in the fields?

Ans.—The ordinary field mole does not eat vegetable matter. He lives entirely on a diet of earth-worms, grubs, caterpillars and various insects.

Ques.—In what year was the Washington monument built?

Ans.—The actual time consumed in building the Washington monument was thirty-seven years. Work was stopped on it for several years for lack of funds. The building of this memorial of George Washington was begun in 1850, and in 1885 the monument was completed.

Ques.—What nationality was Oliver Wendell Holmes, and when did he die?

Ans.—Oliver Wendell Holmes was an American. Besides being a famous poet and essayist, he was a noted physician. He died in Boston, Mass., October 7, 1894.

Ques.—What caused the great Chicago fire in 1871 when nearly the whole city was destroyed?

Ans.—The Chicago fire of 1871 had its origin in a barn where a cow kicked over a kerosene lantern while Mrs. O'Leary, the cow's owner, was milking.

Ques.—When a locomotive goes around a sharp curve how can the outside wheels and the inside wheels keep even when the inside wheels do not travel as far as the outside wheels. The wheels, you know, are made fast to the axle.

Ans.—When a locomotive rounds a curve, the outside wheels will slightly slide in order to keep pace with the inside wheels. It is so slight that it is scarcely perceptible. However, an observer can see how the outside rail is worn, which has been caused by the sliding.

Ques.—Will you please tell me what is the "fusing point"? Will iron fuse before gold will?

Ans.—The "fusing point" is the degree of heat at which any substance begins to melt or liquify, and it varies in the different substances. Gold will melt before iron does. The fusing point of iron is 2,732 degrees above zero, and gold fuses at 2,282 degrees above zero.

Ques.—Death Rate High

In uncivilized parts of the world, where superstition, disease, want and dirt exist, some live in four-score years, some less, but the majority die before they are five years old.

Ques.—Eskimos Have Good Eyes

Eskimos of the Labrador coast are frequently so accurate with their 80-foot dog whips that they can snap the head of a dozing muskox while riding along on a komatik sled.

Rainbow Shades in Sky

Are Not Always Genuine

Rainbow-colored streaks in the sky are not always rainbows. Opalescent patches of various sizes and shapes, tinted with all the rainbow's hues but bearing no physical relation to the true rainbow, are occasionally seen, usually late in the fall, high up in the sky near the sun, according to a representative of the United States weather bureau.

This rare celestial phenomenon, it is explained, is caused by interference from minute drops of water in the clouds to light waves traveling earthward from the sun. These droplets act on the light in such a way as to cause the crests of some parts of a wave of light to get ahead of the crests of others. When the crest and the trough of a wave reach a certain point at the same time the light is dimmed. When two crests come along together the light is intensified. This diffraction of light waves gives the sky bright patches of color, especially red and green, that are sometimes mistaken for rainbows.

The trireflex cloud effect produced when light is forced to pass through the tiny raindrops is the same as that of the colored corona often seen near the sun or moon, but of much larger radius and more brilliant in color, owing to the extraordinarily minute size of the drops and the thinness of the silky, gauzy clouds. Anyone is lucky to see this gorgeous spectacle once in a lifetime, though a watchful observer may see one or more such displays almost every year.

Seeing Stars in Daytime

Stars are not visible during the day because the superior light of the sun and its reflected rays from objects on the earth is so strong as to obliterate the tiny rays from stars so that they make no impression on the retina of the eye. At the bottom of a shaft or very tall chimney where no light enters and the direct rays of sunlight are cut off, the retina registers the rays from the stars and hence they become visible.

Web-Perfecting Press

A web-perfecting press is a printing press which uses rolls of paper, in contrast to flat sheets of paper and from which roll paper is fed into the press in web form, and printed upon and perfected, or in other words, both sides of the web are printed on and the printed product is then folded ready for use or delivery. The outstanding example of this kind of press in the modern newspaper press.

Caesar Says

Greetings! I've turned over a new leaf (or rather I've torn it off) and have resolved to tell better jokes.

My memory looks back to those holiday meals but of all the holidays where chicken, duck, etc. are served I like Easter the best because you can only use Easter eggs once.

I had a friend who wanted a German dachshund for Christmas. When asked why she wanted a dachshund rather than another kind of a dog she replied, "Why they're popular. Haven't you heard over the radio where they are always saying 'Get a long little dachshund'?"

You've heard the saying "silly goose" and I bet you've wondered where it came from. Here's the answer: Ornithologists say that the wild geese keeps the same mate for her entire life, hence the phrase "silly goose." So it goes.

Let me tell you about a man who tried to commit suicide. This man took two poison pills, a pistol, and a rope. He went to a river and tied the rope on a branch stretching over the river. He slipped the noose around his neck, took the pills in his mouth, and shot off the gun which cut the rope so he fell in the water. The water choked him so that he spit out the pills and the crazy fool would have drowned had he not been able to swim.

In conclusion I now take great pleasure to present my greatest respect to the Hollywood star who ever had the whitest teeth—Rin-Tin-Tin, the dog star of stars.

Wait a minute, I have an ideal watch for developments next week. Let me say adieu.

Caruso, Junior

"So you don't think I'm good enough for opera, huh? Well, I'll show you. I wanted to sing a better class of music, the finest possible—and I'm going to sing in the opera. I'll work! I'll work and I'll stick to it until I do. I'll sing for somebody that knows their business. I know you, you're just saying all you are just to try to get me singing 'silly songs' on a silly soap program. You just think I'm good and you want to get me on your old soap hour before the Metropolitan scouts here me in audition. You're just a business man out to make money and hopping on poor people like me that's honest in wanting to get places. Yeah, you're merely taking advantage of me—that's what."

"That's not what," calmly replied Mr. Dawson amid the tumult of good Irish temper. "On the contrary to your own thought, Johnny, I think you're pretty terrible. There's no hope for you except that I can turn you out a good dummy of someone. It works, usually."

"Me a dummy! Me a dummy!"

"That's right, Johnny. It's really quite simple. I teach you what to say, what to hear, how to sing, talk, walk and sit—usually like someone else—then I use what little originality my subject possesses—add that and I've another radio star for my collection. They always manage to last through a winter series at the least. Some surprise me and go way beyond my fondest hopes—but mostly, they are lost unless I'm there to coach them. That's what I intend to do with you."

"What if I refuse to be made—?"

"Aw Johnny," coaxed Janet, "you won't, will you?"

"Well, maybe not," answered our hero uncomfortably, melting for the present before Janet. Then hardening once more he spoke very precisely to Mr. Dawson:

"So you're going to make me into a mimic, huh? I'm going to end my music career singing over a radio for a soap manufacturer, and what's more I'm going to be a mimic—I'll last at least a winter season! That's your story. Now you listen to mine."

I'm not singing on anybody's radio, on anybody's soap ad and I won't last a season 'cuz I won't be there—and I'm a good enough mimic without your supervision. I won't be told what to do 'cuz I've got my own mind made up. I'm mad, see, good and mad—I'm so mad, in fact, that just before I leave this place I'd love giving you a good exhibition of your idea of singing. Then maybe you'll know. Here you—turning fiercely to Janet—"play this and play it with some feeling—real jazzy rhythm please—and listen, you—" meaning Mr. Dawson, "you're going to get a dose of your own medicine."

So Johnny, his hair flaming, his brown eyes a sparkle with anger—thought of the night Dennis O'Malley had sung in the movie he went into to the very song he'd sung while Janet played. Johnny sang, sang and sang, thinking how contemptible it was, how hateful to sing like that when there was "Pagliacci!"

When he finished just enough behind Janet to fit into these new modern trends of vocalizing the room was perfectly quiet. Mr. Dawson, sitting on a small portion of the chair, jumped up and Janet kept looking at Johnny in such a funny way that he began to wonder what was so terribly wrong. Then Janet's whole countenance burst into a ring of smiles and she said to Johnny:

"Oh Johnny, it was simply grand."

Mr. Dawson asked Johnny then:

"And you're still going to sing opera—after that?"

"Why certainly!" replied Johnny, "that was merely to show you how your jazz sounds and how it'd sound if I sang it on your old soap ad. Now you know how terrible I'd be."

"Terrible, Johnny!" exclaimed Janet, "you're marvelous!"

"Johnny, I never thought you had it in you," agreed Mr. Dawson, "we haven't got a youngster anywhere near radio that can sing like you did. Boy, you've really got something there. Now go back to that piano and do that over again—and do it with feeling, not hate. Stand in that curve, lean on the piano, and sing to Janet—put all you've got into it."

"Huh?" asked Johnny vaguely.

"You heard," answered Mr. Dawson, while Johnny stumbled to the piano. So Johnny repeated his performance, only on a love song, and when he'd finished Janet sat, not saying a word. Mr. Dawson was awestricken.

"Well?" asked Johnny.

"I'll say it was well done, Johnny. Go on upstairs, Janet, and tell Celia to pack your things and mine are still in the hallway. Johnny, you go home, grab your pajamas, etc. and come on back. We're leaving for New York. I'm going to make you into a singer yet, Caruso. You're not going to hide any longer behind false pretense—you're the best prospect for a rival of that O'Malley fake I ever had and the soap ad can go hang. We'll show 'em—"

"And I'm going to play for Johnny in his debut—or I'll know the reason why," put in Janet.

"I'll say you are," answered Johnny. "You're really the reason for all this, aren't you? If I hadn't met you—"

"Maybe," she smiled back.

(THE END)

To the VOTERS of Washtenaw County

At the request of friends and also because of my personal desires in the matter, I am announcing myself as a candidate for nomination for Circuit Judge on the Republican ticket.

I was born in this county fifty-one years ago and have lived here all my life. I have practiced law in the county for twenty-six years, and during that time have been connected with much of the more important business transacted in the local courts. I have served two terms as Prosecuting Attorney and also some time as County Auditor. If elected to this office, I will give to the people the very best service of which I am capable, and will have in mind at all times that the court should be conducted on the basis of justice and equality for all, and with favors to none.

Your support at the primary election on March 4th will be greatly appreciated.

MIRROR BECOMES AN ORACLE AND ANSWERS QUESTIONS

YOU WRITE WORDS ON MIRROR, AND REMOVE CHALK WITH SILK HANDKERCHIEF.

PERSON BREATHES ON MIRROR FOR ANSWER TO QUESTION.

Take a piece of hard french chalk and write on a mirror the words, "yes" and "no." Write each word at opposite ends of the mirror, and with a silk handkerchief lightly wipe the chalk off so nothing is seen on the mirror. After the question has been asked, you judge whether the answer should be yes or no. Then instruct the person to breathe on the mirror where you have written the word that answers the question, and the word will become visible. It can then be wiped off and another question answered.

Laird Is Candidate for Circuit Judge

William M. Laird, City Attorney of Ann Arbor, has announced his candidacy for election as Circuit Judge for Washtenaw County in the coming election to be held March 4, 1935.

Mr. Laird will run against Judge George W. Sample who has served the last eighteen years and is seeking reelection for his fourth term of six years.

The new candidate for Circuit Judge is not unknown to the people of Chelsea and Washtenaw County, as he has served in various public offices in the past and has taken an active part in all matters of public interest. Mr. Laird's experience in the practice of law has been so broad and varied that there is no question as to his qualification to hold the office.

WILLIAM M. LAIRD

which he seeks. During the past twenty years he has served the citizens of this county for two terms as Circuit Court Commissioner, from 1916 to 1920, and also, as Prosecuting Attorney for a period of four years from 1922 to 1926.

In 1931 Mr. Laird was appointed City Attorney of Ann Arbor by Judge Newkirk, then mayor of that city, and again in 1933 by Mayor Robert Campbell. On the occasion of each appointment, the members of the common council were unanimous in their approval of such appointment regardless of their political affiliations.

During the years that Mr. Laird has been engaged in the practice of law, and especially while serving in public offices, he has built up an enviable record for fairness and impartiality. He has always insisted that the law should be administered in a just and humane manner without regard for color, creed, wealth or social position.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORY

The Spy Plot That Failed

IT WAS during the early days of the World war, that a rough-looking man, who posed as a Belgian, began to frequent one of the branches of the Carnegie library in Pittsburgh.

He was poorly dressed, wore a scraggly beard and seemed to have all of the time in the world.

Usually he went to the reference department of the library, and spent hours in reading books that had reference to America. He paid particular attention to the maps and one night was seen to be tracing some of these from one of the geographical works in the library.

Miss Frances Langitt, the assistant librarian, noticed the man, and her suspicions were aroused.

So while the fellow spent around the shelves the young woman did a little spying on her own account.

Night after night she sat there with a green shade over her eyes, apparently engrossed in her work, but in reality keeping tabs upon the Belgian who was not a Belgian.

One night she watched him replace a book on the shelf, and when he had departed she hastened over to that part of the library and obtained possession of this particular book.

It contained a coastwise map, and gave evidence of having been traced. Before the next day had dawned the patriotic young woman had informed the Department of Justice of her suspicions of the man who had been visiting the library.

Operative Henry—that will have to be his name for the purpose of this article—was placed on the case at once.

He traced the man and found that he was a stranger in the city.

He located the house where he had a room and discovered he was going by the name of Jacob Harmon.

The fellow must have sensed the fact that he was being followed, because he ceased his visits to the library.

About the same time an undersized man with a decidedly German accent began to frequent the library.

When interrogated he gave the name of Emil Mayer.

This man pursued pretty nearly the same tactics as the other, but on the surface there did not seem to be any connection between the two.

One day he was followed to his room, and later in his absence a search was made of his effects.

There was nothing absolutely criminal, but the detectives did find a number of papers and tracings.

In themselves they seemed meaningless, but if it were possible to put them together they might have meant much.

At all events, the work of shadowing Harmon and Mayer continued without interruption.

Two and two were put together and the conclusion of the authorities was that the library had been made the rendezvous of German spies for nearly a year.

Of course it goes without saying that there was nothing in the library that was not open to the public at any time.

But the conviction grew that Harmon and Mayer were doing the preliminary work, which was afterwards verified by bolder and more audacious men who stole into navy yards and laid the foundations for destroying munition plants.

Operative Henry had several conversations with Miss Langitt and he compared this with the reports which were brought in as a result of the shadowing of the two Germans.

Up to this point they had never been found together.

In the meantime an attempt was made to learn something of the previous history of the two men.

One of them it was learned had been visiting a number of the seacoast towns in New England and it was also alleged that he had not complied with the alien enemy registration laws.

The United States agents started to follow the two men and then for the first time they joined one another in a little back room in the northwestern part of Pittsburgh.

They sat at a table and produced a coastwise map which they began to study.

That was the signal for the detectives.

The suspects were arrested and in twenty-four hours had been placed in a detention camp.

What became of them no one will tell.

The mystery has gone into that limbo which is the repository of so many war secrets but to this day there are persons in Pittsburgh who are satisfied that the timely discovery of the librarian cut off the connection between these men and the German war office.

Rattlesnake Island
Helle Isle, in Michigan, at one time was known as Rattlesnake Island because of the abundance of reptiles on it, says a writer in the Detroit Free Press. Hogs, immune to snake bite because of their outer layer of fat which prevents the venom from reaching the blood stream, were turned loose on the island and quickly rid it of snakes. However, the hogs became wild, the island became known as Hog Island, and when Detroit acquired it in 1870 for park purposes, hunters had to kill the dangerous hogs.
