DEXTER—John C. Thompson has resigned his position with the Dexter Leader, and is in Toledo, this week, where he has started work for the Berdan Company—Leader.

PINCKNEY—This section got the tail end of the cyclone which did so much damage around Mason, Danville and Holt, Friday night, where many barns and other buildings were blown down. Here the farm of Wayne Allen, on what is known as the Michigan Livery farm near Highland Lake, was totally destroyed. The pool was also blown off the large barn on the Dexter-Pinckney farm on the Dexter-Pinckney road. A number of other wind damage losses are reported. A board caught by the storm was blown away through the side of the B. H. Carr, which she was a member. There was home in this village into the living Saturday morning at the home, Dr. Leeson officiating. Then the remains were taken to the White Chapel cemetery for burial beside her husband and daughter. At the chapel, Dr. C. B. Allen of the Metropolitan church, Detroit, officiated. She was a member of this church. At the grave was the Eastern Star service. Mrs. Winn's niece from Chicago and many friends from Detroit were at the services. Mrs. Winn will be remembered here at the home as friendly, kind and pleasant to everyone, and under all circumstances, at all times.

HOWELL—Thursday evening an airplane was forced down on the Cominsky farm on the townline. The plane was chartered from Elkhart field. The pilot was returning from the north and lost his way in the sand storm. In attempting to take off for Jackson the pilot was unable to clear some electric wires, and in order to avoid hitting them took an abbreviated nose dive. In the crash the pilot was unhurt but about $300 damage was done to the plane. The plane was taken to Elkhart Sunday. — Republican Press.

MASON—Striking without warning about nine o'clock Friday night, a cyclone swept into Ingham county from the west and within a few minutes a vast area was laid waste. The heaviest damage was in Mason and the townships of Delhi, Alameda and Vevay. The 100-foot smokestack atop the Mason school toppled and crashed through the roof. The third floor corridor on the south wing of the school was filled with bricks and large sections of the roof. The stage in the school auditorium was piled high with bricks and some of them even went down into the girls' locker room in the basement. Huge holes were made through the roof. Damage was $5000.00. The storm, accompanied by a blizzard of hail and a downpour of rain, bounded across the countryside with abandon. Every place the storm touched the ground it left desolation in its wake. The storm bounded like a rubber ball. That it was a real cyclone is evidenced by the explosions of some of the buildings. The low pressure area outside the buildings caused the walls, windows and roofs to give way under pressure from the normal atmosphere enclosed. While most of the wreckage was buried to the east, in some of the places the debris was blown north and south. — Ingham County News.

Money
Makers

EVERY one is not a money maker. And strange to say that very few of those who are only money makers ever accumulate a fortune. "Easy come easy go" is one of those world-old proverbs that epitomize truth in four words.

BUT EVERY one can accumulate money. It requires no genius. It does take time—it does mean self-denial—it always, ever means that the outgo must be less than the income—with the difference left in bank.

SHADOWS

By Arthur Carlton

A little bird flew by our window.
Where a sunbeam glistened in.
On the wall he saw his shadow
As he lighted on a limb.

Did not see the little stranger,
Did not even hear him sing;
But the beauty of his presence,
Sent a thrill of joy within.

Now we wish some bird-like shadow
Hovered near your window too;
That the incense of his presence
Be to you like evening dew.

Yet, we must not be forgetful
Through life's shadows, toil and pain,
We could never have the rainbows
If we did not have the rain.

METHODIST HOME

Wednesday, Mrs. Seibert and Mrs. Wynn of Detroit visited their friend, Mrs. Winn.

After a serious illness of several weeks, Mrs. Emma Winn passed away Thursday morning. She entered the Home, October 30, 1933 from Detroit.

Her husband, Dr. Charles Winn of Detroit, passed away about two months before she entered the Home, and her only child, Miss Marion Winn, who was in the Detroit schools, passed away about one and a half years before she entered the Home. Mrs. Winn's youngest son, Dr. Charles Winn, was recently reported. The pool was also blown off the large barn on the Dexter-Pinckney farm on the Dexter-Pinckney road. A number of other wind damage losses are reported. A board caught by the storm was blown away through the side of the B. H. Carr, which she was a member. There was home in this village into the living Saturday morning at the home, Dr. Leeson officiating. Then the remains were taken to the White Chapel cemetery for burial beside her husband and daughter. At the chapel, Dr. C. B. Allen of the Metropolitan church, Detroit, officiated. She was a member of this church. At the grave was the Eastern Star service. Mrs. Winn's niece from Chicago and many friends from Detroit were at the services. To The Pioneer Woman

Lawrence
Hawthorne

One hundred years ago, or more, or less,
You braved the perils of a wilderness!
You faced the hardships of a bleak frontier—
Courageous, earnest, noble Pioneer!
It mattered not that your heroic hand
Broke trail across a rugged, unknown land;
It mattered not that danger and despair
And loneliness were waiting for you there;
It mattered not that you had left behind
The comforts you could never hope to find;
Your mother-heart was filled with faith and cheer,
And life was good, for those you loved were near.

Yours was the spirit humble, brave and free
That guided well a nation's destiny;
Yours was the fortitude and wholesome grace
That made a cabin joy's abiding place;
Yours was the charm and noble strength of soul
That ever sought a better, higher goal;
And you, who are our sons and daughters, pay
Our tribute of esteem to you today;
Rejoicing in that priceless heritage
That grows more glorious from age to age
We voice our veneration for you here,
Courageous, earnest, noble Pioneer!

Rev. and Mrs. Schwartzkopf of Calvary M. E. church, Flint, called on Arthur Carlton and wife Thursday.

On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Carlton of Highland Park visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carlton.

Genius Inherited

The fact that geniuses rarely have sons that are geniuses tends to prove that it is inherited, because all theories of human development agree that the better the environment the more likely it is to bring out any person's abilities, and a genius would be more likely than any father not a genius to furnish a stimulating environment for his son. Says a writer in the Detroit News, "Since many geniuses rise in poor environment and the son in question has failed to become a genius, even in this exceptional environment, it indicates that the father simply did not get his genius from his environment, whether good or bad, but must have got it from his inheritance. We know of no sources of genius other than heredity and environment, or else the two combined."

Presidential Succession

It was at the instance of Vice President Hendricks' death in November, 1885, that the Presidential succession act was passed in 1886. This act provided an order of succession of the cabinet officers in the event of the removal, death, resignation or disability of President and Vice President. John Sherman was president of the senate at that time. It is not likely that he would have taken the president's place. Perhaps congress would have taken some action, or one of the political parties. This situation has never arisen and there is no specific provision in the Constitution or in law to cover the point.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Saar Basin

The Saar basin lies north of Luxembourg, and contains about 735 square miles and 770,000 population (1920). Extensive coal fields occupy the middle of the valley between Saarlands to the northwest and the Saar river on the west. These mines, which came into German possession with the territory after the Franco-German war, produce annually more than 7,000,000 tons of high grade coal and employ 50,000 men.

Rathello Sense Defined

The sense of beauty, or the aesthetic sense, has been defined as the power for wise use and enjoyment of natural surroundings and the human body in the first place, and in the second, a similar power in the work of human creation—a noble building, a great picture, a refined piece of handicraft, poetry and music.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Please tell in your Question and Answer Department the names of the people who are in President Roosevelt's cabinet and the department of which each is the leader.

Ans.—Secretary of State, Cordell Hull; Attorney General, Homer Cummings; Secretary of Labor, George Perkins; Secretary of War, George Davis; Secretary of Navy, Claude Swanson; Secretary of Interior, Harold Ickes; Postmaster General, James Farley; Secretary of Commerce, Daniel Roper; Secretary of Agriculture, Henry Wallace; Secretary of Treasury, Henry Morgenthau.

Ques.—To settle an argument I am writing to ask you how the word "Eyre" is pronounced in speaking of the novel "Jane Eyre"?

Ans.—"Aye" is the correct way to pronounce this word. A circuit court or a court of circuit judges is called "aye," which also is pronounced "eye."

Ques.—Why was the election in Germany held on Sunday?

Ans.—All German elections are held on Sundays, or on national holidays. This is provided for in the German constitution as a means of getting out the largest vote possible.

Ques.—I would like to know who originated the saying, "First in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen"?

Ans.—These words were first used by Henry Lee in his eulogy of Washington shortly after the latter's death. Lee had written a resolution which was later introduced in the House of Representatives by John Marshall, who afterward became Chief Justice of the United States.

Ques.—Will you kindly answer in your interesting paper just what becomes of the frogs in cold weather? Early in the Spring we can hear them in ponds, etc.

Ans.—Frogs usually sink to the bottom of a body of water and remain there until the sign of Spring when they will come to the surface. While lying dormant in mud or other places of hiding from its enemies at the bottom of the water, the breathing movements cease, the blood circulation in the skin being able to absorb sufficient oxygen to sustain life while the frog is in this inactive state.

Ques.—Can you tell me what is the difference between a groundhog and a woodchuck?

Ans.—There is no difference between a groundhog and a woodchuck. They are simply two different names for the same animal. "Woodchuck" is considered the more proper name, but "groundhog" is more commonly used.

Ques.—For good reasons I am anxious to know if a deserter in the United States army or navy loses his citizenship by the act? Can you answer in an early issue of your paper?

Ans.—Peace-time deserters do not lose their citizenship, but war-time deserters are no longer citizens of the United States.

Ques.—Who was it that said "We must hang together or we will all hang separately"?

Ans.—This famous saying (which you don't quote quite correctly) was made by Benjamin Franklin, when Hancock signed the Declaration of Independence he turned to Franklin and remarked: "We must now all hang together." To that Franklin replied: "That's right, Mr. Hancock, we must all hang together."

all hang together or—assuredly—we shall hang separately."

Ques.—What is the difference between a "de facto" government and a "de jure" government?

Ans.—One is a legally authorized government, while the other is not. A de jure government is the legally constituted authority. A de facto government usually comes into power after expelling forcibly or otherwise the legally constituted authorities from the seat of power and the public offices and establishing its officials in their place.

Ques.—How should 12 o'clock at night be written—a. m. or p. m.? And also how should 12 o'clock in the day time be written?

Ans.—For the purpose of avoiding the ambiguity that might arise from the use of the abbreviations "a. m." and "p. m." the proper way to write the 12 o'clock hours is "12 o'clock noon" and "12 o'clock mid-night."

Efficiency

Nothing inherent in the word efficiency appertains to morals or moral conduct. It merely denotes competency, ability to perform a definite function adequately, skillfulness. There is no reason why a given number, reliability, or other virtue could not be described as efficient. It is possible that excessive indulgence in any democratic principle might impair temporarily or permanently the efficiency of any man; in which event he would no longer be termed efficient.—Literary Digest.

Fish Lodge in Throat

A most peculiar incident occurs frequently in Asia. A native while in the act of drinking water will suddenly find that a small fish has become imbedded in his throat. Usually they are not more than four inches in length. One case, however, recorded was of a fish eight inches long.—Collier's Weekly.

Old Festival

At Aix en Provence, France, was celebrated the first Roman legion in Gaul. The church of Monte Sainte Victoire, near by, perpetuates a victory of Marius. Every April 24 there is a procession from Beauveingues to the mountain to light a bonfire.

Animals Correct Deformities
Zoologists assert that while deformities of structure happen frequently in wild animals they soon disappear, because their offspring tend more and more to lose them and so gradually return to the normal type.

First Grade
Douglas Hoppe's Circus is coming to Livville. He is making a tent. Gertrude Merkell made an animal wagon out of a box and some spoons. Many first graders will play in circus band. Each child will make his own instrument. We have made symbols, drums and violins now and are going to make our suits and hats too.

Second Grade
Mrs. Loeffler visited us last Thursday afternoon.
On Friday afternoon Second Grade competed with the Cooking School. Phyllis Hopper brought her little electric stove and we made cereal, cocoa and baked a pumpkin pie. It was lots of fun.

Fourth Grade
Miss Kern brought us a bouquet of colored baby breath from the Detroit Flower Show. She told us about the exhibits. One was especially interesting to us. The Holland exhibit consisted of plots of tulips, hyacinths and daffodils, with the canals, and a reproduction of a windmill which has stood in Holland for over 200 years. There is no one now in our Lazy Lane. All houses are arranged neatly in Tidy Town. We have made a necessary to begin a miscellaneous box collecting things left on the desk at night. These people are put in Lazy Lane too.

A committee of four, Helen Grawski, Margaret Knapp, Luther Kusser and Robert Strieter went to Dr. Seger's office to get information about Mr. Gay's lion farm in California. Mr. Strieter brought a pot of tulips and Margaret painted the flower pot green to match our others. We are watching them grow and hoping they will blossom.

We have geraniums for our new window decorations.
We are studying about birds, and Luther brought some helpful booklets, cards and pictures. Our bird chart is being filled and our tree has many kinds of birds.

We have added four new license plates to our chart. We need only one more before our second chart will be completed.

Mrs. L. Scripser visited our room last week.
There have been ten days in this month that we have had perfect attendance.

Sixth Grade
This printed below is our late news: Donald Walz has made up his news correctly.
On the 14th of March Junior Miller's mother visited the sixth grade. The A class in geography have finished the British Empire. They are starting the possession of France. We are keeping a record of spring birds.

Doris Ashfal and Barbara Carpenter have helped us decorate the room with pictures of spring. Now the room looks much brighter.

Edith Hale, Ruth Vethan and Donald Parsons have had birthdays. The girls and boys are playing baseball. The girls have greatly improved with the help of this teamwork of the whole class.

We are studying about Ancient Greeks in History. In our reader we have a story of Pandora's Box, Achilles Famous Leader, of the Greeks, and the Wandering of Ulysses.

This week's news:
We are all glad to have Lois Palmer back with us. She has been down South. Lois brought Miss Canfield a box of candy from Lexington, Kentucky. It was decorated artistically.

The girls and boys have been bringing small branches and twigs from different trees and shrubs.

Juniors Hold Election
A short time ago the Junior Class held a meeting to elect the Editor-in-Chief and Business Manager of their annual for the coming year. To the former position Margaret Williams was elected and to the latter, Frederick Strieter.

The purpose of this early election is so that the Juniors may have experience along with the Seniors in doing this sort of work.

Senior Play

Don't forget the Senior play this week, April 4 and 5. The Seniors promise you a very good entertainment if you come and see this mysterious farce. Remember to come and see "Seven Keys to Baldpate." I hear there are lots of revolvers and action in the play. That ought to prove interesting. You can purchase tickets from the Seniors.

Junior Play

"Big Hearted Herbert" by Sophia Kerr and Anna Steese Richardson, is the play that has been chosen to be presented by the Junior Class on May 10. An attractive cast has been selected with Alton Koengster and Jane Belsler playing leading parts. This was given a short time ago as a moving picture starring Guy Kibbee, so it is bound to be good. Practice begins this week.

Siezer Says

CAESAR LISTENS
The best joke of the week is "Report Cards." Several passed out.

1st, veteran: Did you ever eat any Forameat?
2nd ditto: No, I always remember the fate of poor Dugan when he was in the war. He was eating some horse meat in France when someone said "Whoa!" and he choked to death.

General: Who was that man that went over the top 10 minutes ahead of the main attack?
Captain: Private Wagner, sir, he always was a preliminary fighter.

Helen: It's absurd for this man to charge you ten dollars for towing us three miles.
Willie: That's all right, he's earning it—I have my brakes on.

He was in Chem. Lab. and the Prof. was explaining certain reactions to him:
This liquid turns blue if your unknown is basic, and it turns red if the unknown is acid.
Sorry, but I'm color blind, apologized the student. Have you got anything with a bell on it?

Caller: Is your mother engaged?
Little boy: I think she's married.

Nobody likes a rag chewer—look at the moth.
I am what I'm supposed to be and that's that.

Goom Bye!

An Eddy-Torial

As this is being written, eddies—eddies of flying paper flitter before my eyes. They fly higher and higher, loop and zoom, perform all manner of contortions, and finally fall lifeless to the floor. What strange spell is it that possesses these mere scraps, and causes them to disport themselves thus? Can it be that the boy in your corner of study hall, who is lavishing so much care on some unseen thing (unseen, at least, to the instructor in charge of study hall) is fashioning one of these bewitched objects? Whack! One has ended its career squarely upon my pate. Swish! Another lands in the aisle. I suspect that I am being besieged, but a glance around study hall reveals nothing amiss. I now have an opportunity to examine one of the creatures first hand. Why, it is nothing but a piece of paper, folded so that two fins project from a similar keel. I grasp it by the keel and forcibly launch it. It flies. So there is really no life in all this flying paper! It is the students around me who are behind the gambols of these slips of paper. The study hall instructor gazes out the window. A sudden flurry of flying paper results. The bell rings. A veritable deluge descends. The students sit out. The bottles of the dead airplanes clutter the floor. The study hall looks quite as though a battle had been waged. This is one war that does not require peace conferences to prevent. Why not let our paper live a decent, sensible life in our note books?

Faculty Defeat Kiwanis

Our teachers defeated the Kiwanis in the donkey basketball game with a score of 14 to 13.
The game started with Mr. Bleecker on Clara Bow, Mr. Johnson on Mae West, Mr. Lyons on Will Rogers, and Mr. Waskiewicz on Mahatma Gandhi. Members of our senior class substituted for the faculty.
At different intervals during the game the players changed donkeys. After the first change the riders were off the donkeys so much more than they were on that your reporter lost all record of the changes.
During the third quarter Miss Fowles, Miss Barrus, Miss George and Miss Bollero acted as water girls. It was Mr. Lyons' fate to get Lazy Bones in one quarter but he stood on the donkey's back and prevented the opponents from scoring.

One player nearly lost his shirt when he tumbled over his donkey while trying to remount.
After the game the eighth grade boys escorted the donkeys to their quarters.

Poetry Corner

During the course of the last week and a half, Miss Fowles has made two assignments to write poems, to her American Literature classes. The results were surprising, and because of these results we are going to run these poems in the Hi-Light in the poetry corner as long as there remain poems to put in.

The American Literature classes have about finished their study of Poetry, and most recently have been studying the Twentieth Century poets and all of the methods which they have studied have been used in the poems. Most of them are, however, in the style of the later poets, and we ask that you remember that some of the poems which will follow will be blank verse, free verse, using the new style of rhythm and rhyme. The poems which you will find in the Poetry Corner will be on two subjects. One of them will describe a certain type of person, the other will describe a place.

We hope you enjoy them!

Midday in Hongkong

Chinese hurrying!
Chinese scurrying!
With their wares, here and there!
Chinese coolies running!
Chinese babies sunning!
In the crowded street
Almost beneath your feet!
Chinese priests walking,
Chinese women talking
About the noonday meal
Mortifying with zeal!
Chinese chopsticks clicking!
Chinese men flicking
Away the flies while they eat
In the crowded street
Almost beneath your feet!
Chinese wagons awaying,
Chinese maidens praying,
To Buddha where he sits apart.
Chinese children sprawling,
Chinese junkies crawling
Up the narrow canal to the dock
At the end of the crowded street
Almost beneath your feet.
Chinese clogs clattering!
Chinese merchants chattering!
Chinese hurrying!
Chinese scurrying!
It's midday in Hongkong!

—Jane Belsler.

The Desert Town

I surveyed the seaside town
From a high hill behind it.
How drear and barren it looked,
With its flat-roofed houses.
From where I sat it looked as if
I might use the roof.
As stepping stones to the sea
So close were the houses to each other.
That no space could be used for a lawn.
No buildings were of wood, all of cement.
The inhabitants very well harmonized with their town.
Wearing their long white robes,
Some slightly trailing as they walked
Through the narrow streets.
Their heads were covered with white headresses,
And they wore white sandals on their feet.
Yes, the town was barren and homely.
But the dark blue of the ocean
And the lighter fleecy white clouds,
Was pretty with the whiteness of the town.
And the occasional domes set against the blue.

Yes, the town was barren and homely.

But the blues and the white were pretty.

—Jean Dancer.

Pirates

The pirate bold, so I am told,
Quite often went to sea,
To do much harm to everyone,
And give no sympathy.
Sometimes they'd kidnap women,
Sometimes they'd search for gold,
And always they would treat
The merchants very, very cold.

They'd fly the Jolly Roger,
When they were out at sea,
But when they came again to shore
My, how nice they'd be!

They'd sit around and smoke a pipe
To get a revered name,
For a lovely personality
Helped cover up their game.

—Vera Koselka.

An Island After a Sudden Shower

Bright flashes the parakeets' brilliant hue
Mid the sombre green of shady trees,
Tinkling, the fountain flings its crystal tears
And catches them again in its basin at ease.
The gold spattered shade drifts across
The newly drenched grass, offering a cool rest
For the weary travelers that pass.
Spice-laden zephyrs come from the far sunny sea
Bringing wondrous messages of romance
To maidens dressed in white simplicity.
—Ruth Ann Foster.

The Heart of the Community

THE yellow moon drops below the horizon. One by one the houses darken as silence settles over the countryside. It is a time of rest, of slumber.

But there is one building where rest does not enter, where the windows never darken; for the work of the telephone exchange, like the work of a sleeper's heart, must go on by night no less than by day.

Here trained operators, alert and skilful, sit at the junction of many wires. Here are linked all who would speak across the miles of darkness. . . . Somewhere an anxious mother is awakened by a childish, fretful cry. . . . Somewhere furtive footsteps betray the presence of a prowler. . . . Somewhere, in a cellar, smouldering rags send warning smoke drifting through a home. . . . At some lonely crossing two cars crash and overturn.

In these emergencies, help is as close as the nearest telephone. Over a waiting wire speeds the call for aid—for the doctor, police, fire department, an ambulance. If that wire were not waiting, there would be heavier penalties of grief and loss; help, at times, would arrive after help had ceased to be of use. Faithfully rendering a vital service both night and day, the telephone exchange plays a part which makes it, in a sense that is very real, the heart of the community.

Donkey Basketball Provides Amusement

Donkey basketball is a great game! This was demonstrated at the public school gymnasium on Friday and Saturday nights when heated contests between the East Side and West Side business men on Friday night and on Saturday the Faculty team, opposed the Kiwanians. Of course, the donkeys of the Oklahoma Donkey Athletic Association played no small part in the games.

More than 800 people witnessed the exhibition of knock down and drag out basketball and from all reports really received their money's worth. Although there were no broken bones, some of the older men who participated in the game were extremely lame for a few days. Some shirts were relegated to the rag bag following the games and some of the players regretted the fact that they had not worn suspenders instead of the flimsy belts which supported their trousers. Although the donkeys were not unruly it was a scrappy game from the players' standpoint.

The West Side business men took the East Siders into camp Friday night to the tune of 21 to 19, and on Saturday night the Faculty received the decision over Kiwanians, 14 to 18. There was some talk on the part of the Kiwanians to protest this score, but on second thought they decided that one game was enough.

Net proceeds from the exhibition amounted to about $65.00 for the High School Athletic Association. The school wishes to extend their appreciation to the business men who cooperated in making the performance a success and to the large crowds in attendance.

ATTENDS RABBIT SHOW

Floyd E. Gentner attended the rabbit show and convention of Michigan
Rabbit Breeders' Association at East
Lansing on Saturday. The rabbit show was larger in number of rabbits shown than in the last two years.
There were 205 rabbits entered by about 75 or 80 exhibitors. Rabbits being shown were from Ohio, Indiana,
Illinois, New York and Pennsylvania, as well as from Michigan. The demand for good breeding stock is increasing and there is a greater desire for meat rabbits than can be supplied at the present time. The State Association, through its officers and Prof. Card are requesting the Michigan State College to conduct a short course in rabbit breeding this year. Further information will be available from Mr. Gentner at a later date. Mr. Gentner's entry of rabbits won as follows: First on Ermine Rex
Senior Doe; third on Standard Chin-

Chinchilla Senior Buck.

HONOR JUNIOR SEITZ

A group of seniors of Chelsea high a progressive dinner party as a sur-

the class, on the occasion of his 18th

first gathered at the home of Miss Zypha Shaver, where cocktail was served as the first course of the dinner, and buncos was played, prizes going to Shirley Carpenter, Charles Punariens and Richard Sowers. The home of Miss Helen Hindelang was the next place visited and here a shop suzy dinner was served. The guests then went to the home of Miss Carpenter for the dessert course of ice cream and cake. Two birthday cakes were prominent features, one in silver and white, the other in pink and white, with pink candles. Games furnished diversion for the remainder of

VISIT YPSILANTI LODGE

Donald J. Dancer, A. H. Schumacher,
Robert L. Novess, Peter Kinney,
Paul P. Helsor and Clarence W. Maronney, members of Olive Lodge No.
156, F. and A. M., were visitors at Phoenix Lodge No. 13, Ypsilanti, on Saturday evening, where they attended a banquet and witnessed the exemplification of the Master Mason's degree by St. Andrew's Highland Degree team of Detroit. This team is composed of native Scotchmen, who were attired in their country's garb and used their musical instruments.
The candidate was a Scotchman and World War veteran. The Scotch dialect was used throughout the work, which was a very interesting and novel affair. Following the banquet, which was attended by about 325, a splendid program was rendered, a feature of which was an entertainer, recently from Hollywood, who as an imitator would be hard to equal.
Scotch songs, music, and short talks by the Scotchmen and others concluded the program. It was an evening well spent and profitable to all.

TRUE
DETECTIVE STORY
by Vance Wynn
© Public LedgerThe Flaw in a Perfect Case

WHEN William Harrison, of Gloucestershire, England, disappeared and no knowledge could be obtained of his whereabouts, everybody in that part of the country came to the conclusion that he had met with foul play.

He had gone away on a rent-collecting tour, and it was known that he was sure to have a large sum of money in his possession.

A month went by and still there was no trace of the missing man.

The sole topic of discussion in those parts revolved around the query: "What has become of William Harrison?"

It was during one of these discussions that John Perry came to the front and amazed the authorities with a remarkable story.

He said that his brother, Richard Perry, had disappeared mysteriously for his money, and that the result of the crime was his enrichment to the extent of £130.

John and Richard Perry lived with their mother in a little house on the outskirts of the village.

John was not mentally strong; indeed, there were some who regarded him as half-witted.

Richard was physically and mentally strong, but his reputation for integrity was not good.

He had been caught in some questionable transactions, and it was limited that he would not hesitate at murder for the sake of money.

The magistrate of the district sent for John Perry, and the fellow repeated his story.

He was examined at length, but stuck to his original statement. The only addition he made to it was that he and his mother were present when Richard had assaulted and robbed Richard Harrison.

He was unable to say what had become of the body because he had run away while the robbery was in progress.

The two men and the woman were placed on trial and were inadequately defended.

They were given the impression that if they pleaded guilty to robbery their lives would be spared.

But at the next term of court, Sir Robert Tyde placed them on trial for murder.

They were at a terrible disadvantage because by confessing to robbery they had admitted that they were potential murderers.

In addition to this there was a mass of circumstantial evidence against John.

There was only one flaw in what might be regarded as an otherwise perfect case, and that was the failure of the authorities to find the body.

Sir Charles Parker, who presided at the first trial, had refused to accept the indictment for murder because of this flaw, and it was that which had caused a change in the indictment to robbery.

But the second judge was not so lenient of the old English law.

He took the ground that Harrison's disappearance after six months was proof positive that he had been killed.

So the family was convicted and executed.

Soon after the execution one of the residents of Gloucestershire received an anonymous letter hinting that William Harrison was still alive.

Then came another story that he was in Turkey. All of these rumors were treated as mere gossip until three years later when the door of the local inn was opened and William Harrison entered the room.

He said that after he had collected the rents, as usual, he was beset by a gang of thieves, and the cash taken from him.

But the toughs did not stop at mere robbery.

They took him to a wayside inn and invited him to take a drink upon the success of their enterprise.

He took it and in a little while became unconscious.

They had given him drugged liquor. After this a gang had carried him about a village.

When he recovered consciousness he found that he was on his way to the key.

He had lived there for two years.

When he was asked why he had not communicated with his friends, he said that he feared that they would not believe his story, and as he was unable to make good the money that had been stolen from him he had delayed his return as long as possible.

Since that time—over two centuries ago—no man has been tried for murder in England without first proving the murder.

Saxby's Gale

Saxby's Gale is the name given to a violent storm, which occurred on October 4, 1859, on the coast of New Brunswick, Maine and Nova Scotia.

It was accompanied by a tide of extraordinary height. The storm, which apparently came up from the West Indies and caused heavy rains in eastern United States, was called Saxby's Gale because a Lieutenant Saxby of the British navy had announced a year previously that a great storm and high tide would occur on October 5. The prediction had been based on the supposed influence of the moon, but it was entirely indefinite as to the place where the storm would occur.
