Four Injured In Auto Crash at Freer Road

A. Gilbert Clark, produce dealer of Ann Arbor, formerly of Chelsea, was severely injured and L. B. Lawrence of Chelsea suffered painful injuries when their automobiles collided at 5:30 Tuesday afternoon at the intersection of U.S. 12 and the Freer road, southeast of the village.

Lawrence was crossing the pavement from the south, and in attempting to avoid the collision, Clark swerved to the right and crashed into a telephone pole north of the road after the cars collided. The impact broke the telephone pole, and Clark was thrown from the machine, as were Mrs. Anne Scott and Miss Mary Koski of Chelsea, who were riding with him from Ann Arbor.

The occupants were brought by Gerald Leick to the office of a local physician, and Clark was later taken to St. Joseph's Mercy hospital, Ann Arbor, where his injuries were found to consist of a chipped vertebra at the neck, and several gashes about the head. Mrs. Scott suffered a strained back and Miss Koski a sprained right arm. They were taken to their home on Dewey Ave.

Mr. Lawrence, who has an injured chest and shoulder, returned immediately to his home on Jefferson St., where he is reported as resting comfortably.

The Clark machine was badly wrecked, and the Lawrence car was considerably damaged.

Trunk Line North Abandoned By State

Lansing, Oct. 9.—Steps are being taken by the state highway department toward the cancellation of 5.3 miles of trunk line highway in Washtenaw county which was determined in 1930 but never maintained by the state. At the same time 7.9 miles of county and township highway now maintained by the state will be determined as state trunk line.

The road officially determined but not maintained as a trunk line extends from the Livingston county line south to a point just north of Chelsea and was laid out as part of a new route from Lansing to Ann Arbor. To place this road in adequate condition, considerable construction would be necessary. Since the lack of state funds for construction makes the possibility of carrying out this plan very remote, the proposed route is being cancelled as a state trunk line.

The present M-92 from north of Chelsea to the Jackson county line, which has been maintained by the state as a temporary route will be determined as a state trunk line.

In explaining the change, State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagener stated, "When the McNitt mileage certification was made in 1931 those township roads on the newly determined routes were designated as state trunk lines and the counties did not receive credit for such roads. Consequently, they did not receive state funds for their upkeep. In some cases the township or county has kept these roads in repair, but complaints that no one was maintaining the road have been received by the state highway department in a considerable number of cases.

"We feel that, inasmuch as we have no plans for constructing these projects, we should move our determinations over to the present maintained road and give the counties credit for the McNitt mileage involved."

In Washtenaw county the previous determination took in 2.8 miles of township road which will become McNitt mileage following cancellation.

The Highway Advisory Board and the State Administrative Board have already given their approval to the proposed cancellations and determinations. The only step remaining is the sending of formal notices of cancellation and determination by Commissioner Van Wagener to Washtenaw county officials.

Many Western District Boy Scouts Ushering

Among the 875 Scouts and leaders, there were 13 Troop Scouts and leaders and 14 Sea Scouts and leaders from Chelsea, 15 Scouts and leaders from Manchester, 18 Scouts and leaders from Dexter, and 11 Scouts and leaders from the new Bridgewater troop, who ushered at the October 5 football game at the University of Michigan stadium.

This makes a total of 71 from the Western District, western half of Washtenaw county, according to a report compiled at the Council office of the Washtenaw-Livingston Scout Council.

Scouts will usher again at the October 12, November 2, November 16 and November 23 games.

HARVEST HOME FESTIVAL.

Discuss Location Of New Pavement At Mass Meeting

Approximately 100 farmers and business men attended a meeting at Sylvan town hall Tuesday evening to discuss methods whereby it might be possible to influence State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagener in the matter of the location of the new U.S. 12 super highway past Chelsea.

John Lentz of Maybee, state president of the Farmers' Union, and State Representative Redmond Burr of Ann Arbor were present at the meeting and pledged their cooperation with the community. Rep. Burr has been working on the proposition and has contacted Mr. Van Wagener and his aides a number of times, apparently to no avail.

Mr. Lentz was invited because of the fact that many farmers whose property would be ruined by a relocation of the highway are members of the Farmers' Union organization. He pledged his efforts in trying to prevent the relocation and stated that the state organization of 30,000 members would be in sympathy with the movement. The farmers and business men present at the meeting voted to stand back of the Farmers' Union in any course with which they choose to proceed.

Mr. Van Wagener was invited and urged by Mr. Burr and others to attend the meeting but declined the invitation, and pointed out in a letter to Mr. Burr that his plans to relocate the pavement would be carried through.

A number of farmers told of the damage the relocation would do to their farms, some of which would be divided into three parcels. This would ruin their property and practically eliminate any chance for sale of the farms at any future date. It would mean that their livestock in many cases would have to be driven across the super highway several times each day, which would be extremely dangerous.

It is hoped that, by the united effort of the community and the aid of the Farmers' Union that it will be possible to block the more for relocation and have the pavement built in the present right-of-way. The fact that the road is not being straightened from Ann Arbor to Lima Center makes the local argument more logical, it was pointed out Tuesday evening. The original plan of the state highway department was to build a straight road from Ann Arbor to Jackson, and this was the reason given for not following the curves which would bring the highway in its present location past the village.

Hunting Season Will Open Next Tuesday

More than 200,000 brown-clad hunters will move into the woods and fields of Lower Michigan on Tuesday, October 15, to open the upland hunting season.

Beginning on that date ring-necked pheasants, ruffed grouse, prairie chickens, sharp-tailed grouse, rails except coot, fox squirrels, woodcock and rabbits become legal game. The upland hunting seasons in the lower peninsula are:

Pheasants—Oct. 15 to Oct. 27, inclusive.
 Ruffed grouse—Oct. 15 to Oct. 27, inclusive.
 Prairie chickens—Oct. 15 to Oct. 27, inclusive.
 Sharp-tailed grouse—Oct. 15 to Oct. 27, inclusive.
 Fox squirrels—Oct. 15 to Oct. 24, inclusive.
 Rails, except coots—Oct. 15 to Nov. 19, inclusive.
 Woodcock—Oct. 15 to Oct. 27, inclusive.

The season on rabbits is staggered. North of the northline of Town 16 the season is open from Oct. 15 to Jan. 31, inclusive; south of that line, including all of Huron county, the season is open to and including January 1.

Season bag limits on several species of birds have been increased over last year by the 1935 legislature. Six pheasants may be shot during the open season this year, instead of four which was the season limit last year. The season limit on ruffed grouse is 25 and on prairie chickens and sharp-tailed combined, 25. Last year it was 10. Day and possession limits are the same as last year. Pheasants cannot legally be hunted this year before sunrise.

Open seasons in the upper peninsula on ruffed grouse, prairie chickens, sharp-tailed grouse, fox squirrels, rabbits, woodcock and rails except coot opened Oct. 1. Legal hunting of ducks, geese, brant, jacksnipe and coots is from Oct. 21 to Nov. 19, inclusive, in both the upper and lower peninsulas.

Project CCC Camps Definitely Abandoned

Official information has been received at the local Waterloo project office to the effect that the CCC camps within the project will be definitely abandoned. This order came from Federal CCC Director Fechner, Washington, D. C., and will result in the transfer of the established Portage Lake camp in Jackson county to some new location. The Mill Lake camp, five miles northwest of Chelsea, was occupied one day when an order came to abandon that camp.

According to information from the local project office, the order is the result of the decision to establish no new CCC camps where buildings had not been started. If buildings had been started on the two project campsites the camps would have been retained.

Improvements on the camp property will now proceed under WPA projects, and it is expected that local labor will be employed. It is stated by local officials that funds for the entire project have been tentatively approved in Washington. Each separate project which is to be undertaken must be submitted to Washington for approval before it can be started. It is planned to have work started within the next thirty days.

Editorial

The passage of time is apt to shed a mellowing glow over incidents and objects of the past, for memory is a lopsided affair and forgetfulness a blessed convenience. As a point of illustration, consider the lowly red flannel underwear. Our grandparents eulogize the crunch of country snow underfoot but neglect to remember the honking of southbound geese that was always the signal for mother to hustle her family into winter heavies which probably felt as though they had been compounded of a mixture of barley beads and Canada thistles.

The plowmen plowed upon my back, They made long their furrows, Let them be put to shame and turned backward; all that hate Zion,

Let them be as grass upon the housetops; Which withereth, before it growth up Where with the reaper filleth not his hand.

Nor he that bindeth sheaves, his bosom, Neither do they that go by say, The blessing of the Lord be upon you, We bless you in the name of the Lord;

Blessed is every one that feareth the Lord, That walketh in his ways, For thou shalt eat the labor of thy hands, Happy shalt thou be, and it shall be well with thee.

Thy wife shall be a fruitful vine, In the innermost parts of thy house; Thy children like olive plants Round about thy table.

Behold, thus shall the man be blest that feareth the Lord, The Lord shall bless thee out of Zion, And thou shalt see the good of Jerusalem all the days of thy life, Yes, thou shalt see thy children's children.

Soap Unknown to Ancients Soap is one of the cultural achievements peculiar to our present civilization. It was unknown to the ancients, having made its appearance first in Europe about a thousand years ago. It is somewhat surprising that its invention should have escaped the Greeks and Romans, since it can be made so simply from materials present in every kitchen.

This is an example of a ballad written by a member of Miss Powke's English Literature class. A ballad has a four-line stanza with four accents in the first and third lines and three accents in the second and fourth. The second and fourth stanzas always rhyme, while the first and third may or may not. There are some variations of this meter. The narrative itself is simple and direct, frequently being only the incident which makes the climax of a story. The Knighting of Sir Francis Drake (By Ruthann Foster) Oh, there's many and many a ballad sung, But never is a tale told more, Than that of bold Sir Francis Drake As he landed on merry England's shore. The brave and gallant ship, the Judith Having heaved the wild ocean wide, At the sunset's late glowing leave, Came in on the evening tide. With precious treasures laden Of gold and silver too, She anchored in the peaceful harbor, A haven that was her due. Anchored in the harbor beside old England's shore, The treasures safely stowed away, Merriment reigned throughout the vessel's crew, Elizabeth, the queen, was to visit them that day. Termites Menace Entomologists have listed termites, "white ants," as among the foremost of man's insect enemies. Fifty-six species of them occur in the United States, where, with the destruction of forests, they have encroached upon man's abode to cause incalculable loss by devouring the cellulose which is their principal food. These so-called "white ants" are not true ants, although they look like ants and live in colonies made up of different forms of castles. In these nests of colonies both wingless and winged mature individuals are produced. "Printed at Government Expense" The distinction, "Not printed at government expense," used over a speech of a member of congress, means that the member has himself paid for the printing of the speech. When a member has speeches printed for his own use these are printed at his own expense. WINTER RANGE

By ALAN LE MAY

WNU SERVICE

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Kentucky Jones, veteran cowboy, attends the inquest in the little town of Waterman, into the death of John Mason, banker and financial manager of the district, which is supposed to have been accidental. Jean, daughter of Campo Ragland, who was the driver of the truck which carried the horse and rider to the scene of the accident, is brought to the inquest to testify.

CHAPTER II—The verdict in the case of the death of John Mason is returned. It is a verdict of accidental death. The coroner, Sheriff Hopper, is disappointed. He wishes to investigate the case, but the coroner, who is a friend of the coroner, refuses to work with him. The coroner, who is a friend of the coroner, refuses to work with him.

CHAPTER III—Bob Elliot, with a shadow of a smile, drives his car on the Bar Hook range. Lee Bishop, Ragland's ranch boss, expostulates, and Bill McCord, Elliot's former partner, who is a friend of the coroner, refuses to work with him. The coroner, who is a friend of the coroner, refuses to work with him.

CHAPTER IV—Reporting Elliot's turning his back on the Bar Hook range, Bishop and Jones are infuriated by Ragland's indifference. Bishop urges Kentucky to try to influence Jean to testify. Bishop, who is a friend of the coroner, refuses to work with him.

CHAPTER V—Sheriff Hopper, investigating the case, is disappointed. He wishes to investigate the case, but the coroner, who is a friend of the coroner, refuses to work with him. The coroner, who is a friend of the coroner, refuses to work with him.

CHAPTER VI—Ragland continues his refusal to take action against Elliot. Jones seeks to trace the ownership of a gun found on Jack Sanders, which he is confident has a hearing on the mystery. Jean tells him her share in the Bar Hook range, and giving him a free hand in any controversy with Elliot. He warns Elliot that the Bar Hook will defend its rights, but Elliot makes light of the threat.

CHAPTER VII—In a gun fight with riders of the Bar Hook range, young Bar Hook cowboy, is killed, and Billy Peterson his partner, badly wounded. Ragland countermands the order. Kentucky and Jean are drawn closer by the tragedy, and he still feels the girl is concealing something. He is unable to understand McCord's avowed deadly animosity toward Bishop.

CHAPTER VIII—Jones finds proof that Jean had concealed direct evidence connected with Mason's death, and his faith in her is shaken. Ragland, whom he had known as the "old man," says he sold the weapon to a Bar Hook cowboy, Joe St. Marie. Jones and Bishop go to the Bar Hook ranch, saying nothing of his leaving. Feeling himself on the right track at the Bar Hook, he goes out in pursuit, and overtake St. Marie.

CHAPTER IX—The cowboy convinces Kentucky he can throw no light on the tragedy, and Jones allows him to get away. Returning to the ranch, he finds Lee Bishop has gone to the McCord. Knowing Bishop would be given fair play by the "33" riders, he goes out at once. He accuses him, and while riding with him, the foreman is shot from ambush. Jones carries him to shelter.

"What if he's shot?" Lee demanded. "What you don't know is, he's been gathering up stuff against you—tracing guns, and the like of that. In a pinch he'll turn on you, Campo will! But believe in that girl. She believes in you; and she'll stand by you."

"The pinch will come quick, now," Kentucky said. "But she'll not be with me, Lee."

Lee Bishop said in a guttural hoarse whisper, "She'd jerk the heart out of her, if you needed it. She's got a faith in you that you don't have for her."

"Faith?" Kentucky repeated savagely. "If she'd trusted me only half way, only quarter way, you and I wouldn't be sitting here tonight."

Lee Bishop looked at Kentucky a long time, and his mind seemed to be turning vague. "You ain't liked, Kentucky," he said at last in a weak voice. "You can beat this game yet. You can't beat it, Kentucky—assured him. Lee, I'll beat it in spite of her."

Lee Bishop said in a quiet voice, "You—you couldn't go against that girl, Kentucky."

CHAPTER X—Kentucky had agreed with Jean Ragland that to take Lee Bishop to the Bar Hook camp was a shorter and more convenient pack and Kentucky had seized upon the opportunity to re-lease Jean from the mournful procession and send her home.

CHAPTER XI—Kentucky told me that he knew. "Kentucky Jones said," Bishop told me that he knew. "Kentucky Jones said," Bishop told me that he knew.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Kentucky Jones, veteran cowboy, attends the inquest in the little town of Waterman, into the death of John Mason, banker and financial manager of the district, which is supposed to have been accidental. Jean, daughter of Campo Ragland, who was the driver of the truck which carried the horse and rider to the scene of the accident, is brought to the inquest to testify.

CHAPTER II—The verdict in the case of the death of John Mason is returned. It is a verdict of accidental death. The coroner, Sheriff Hopper, is disappointed. He wishes to investigate the case, but the coroner, who is a friend of the coroner, refuses to work with him. The coroner, who is a friend of the coroner, refuses to work with him.

CHAPTER III—Bob Elliot, with a shadow of a smile, drives his car on the Bar Hook range. Lee Bishop, Ragland's ranch boss, expostulates, and Bill McCord, Elliot's former partner, who is a friend of the coroner, refuses to work with him. The coroner, who is a friend of the coroner, refuses to work with him.

CHAPTER IV—Reporting Elliot's turning his back on the Bar Hook range, Bishop and Jones are infuriated by Ragland's indifference. Bishop urges Kentucky to try to influence Jean to testify. Bishop, who is a friend of the coroner, refuses to work with him.

CHAPTER V—Sheriff Hopper, investigating the case, is disappointed. He wishes to investigate the case, but the coroner, who is a friend of the coroner, refuses to work with him. The coroner, who is a friend of the coroner, refuses to work with him.

CHAPTER VI—Ragland continues his refusal to take action against Elliot. Jones seeks to trace the ownership of a gun found on Jack Sanders, which he is confident has a hearing on the mystery. Jean tells him her share in the Bar Hook range, and giving him a free hand in any controversy with Elliot. He warns Elliot that the Bar Hook will defend its rights, but Elliot makes light of the threat.

CHAPTER VII—In a gun fight with riders of the Bar Hook range, young Bar Hook cowboy, is killed, and Billy Peterson his partner, badly wounded. Ragland countermands the order. Kentucky and Jean are drawn closer by the tragedy, and he still feels the girl is concealing something. He is unable to understand McCord's avowed deadly animosity toward Bishop.

CHAPTER VIII—Jones finds proof that Jean had concealed direct evidence connected with Mason's death, and his faith in her is shaken. Ragland, whom he had known as the "old man," says he sold the weapon to a Bar Hook cowboy, Joe St. Marie. Jones and Bishop go to the Bar Hook ranch, saying nothing of his leaving. Feeling himself on the right track at the Bar Hook, he goes out in pursuit, and overtake St. Marie.

CHAPTER IX—The cowboy convinces Kentucky he can throw no light on the tragedy, and Jones allows him to get away. Returning to the ranch, he finds Lee Bishop has gone to the McCord. Knowing Bishop would be given fair play by the "33" riders, he goes out at once. He accuses him, and while riding with him, the foreman is shot from ambush. Jones carries him to shelter.

"What if he's shot?" Lee demanded. "What you don't know is, he's been gathering up stuff against you—tracing guns, and the like of that. In a pinch he'll turn on you, Campo will! But believe in that girl. She believes in you; and she'll stand by you."

"The pinch will come quick, now," Kentucky said. "But she'll not be with me, Lee."

Lee Bishop said in a guttural hoarse whisper, "She'd jerk the heart out of her, if you needed it. She's got a faith in you that you don't have for her."

"Faith?" Kentucky repeated savagely. "If she'd trusted me only half way, only quarter way, you and I wouldn't be sitting here tonight."

Lee Bishop looked at Kentucky a long time, and his mind seemed to be turning vague. "You ain't liked, Kentucky," he said at last in a weak voice. "You can beat this game yet. You can't beat it, Kentucky—assured him. Lee, I'll beat it in spite of her."

Lee Bishop said in a quiet voice, "You—you couldn't go against that girl, Kentucky."

CHAPTER XLII—Kentucky told me that he knew. "Kentucky Jones said," Bishop told me that he knew. "Kentucky Jones said," Bishop told me that he knew.

CHAPTER XLIII—Kentucky told me that he knew. "Kentucky Jones said," Bishop told me that he knew. "Kentucky Jones said," Bishop told me that he knew.

Egyptians Foresaw Life on Earth to Hereafter

How the ancient Egyptians visualized the projection of the normal activities of life on earth to the hereafter is illustrated in a collection of wooden model groups of people and equipment, buried in graves of the old kingdom (2500 B. C.) and the middle kingdom (2000 B. C.) on exhibition in the hall of Egyptian archeology at Field Museum of Natural History.

Mediterranean Sea of Ages. There is only one sea that has been contemporary with all history—the Mediterranean. The Pacific and the Atlantic have been known to us for less than a thousand years, but the Mediterranean has been "the Great Sea" from the unremembered past.

Teeth Tell Home State. Human teeth are a pretty good geographical index. If a person has large, broad teeth, hard as flint, he is almost certain to be a Texan.

Boarded Wrong Ships. When the American revolution broke out Britain's admiralty offered a large money reward and three years' exemption from service to any of her seamen who embarked on board an American ship and made themselves masters of her.

Army of Grubs. The grubs, or little maggots, of the "Army worm fly," have one of the queerest habits in nature. Less than a quarter of an inch long when fully grown, they travel in a column several feet long and an inch or two wide.

Oxygen. Oxygen occurs, not in larger percentage, but in greatest weight per cubic foot of air, at the lowest level, and decreases with increase of height.

Out of the nearly 200,000,000 pairs produced annually in the United States, says Pathfinder Magazine, only about 75,000,000 pairs are men's.
