Toledo Pipeline Will Pass Near Chelsea

Construction of a million-dollar pipeline from the Crystal oil field to Toledo, Ohio, large refining center, was started the past week by the Sinclair Pipe Line Corp. of Mt. Pleasant, in conjunction with the Standard Oil Company of Ohio.

Approximately 125 men have been employed to build the pipeline and the construction contractors expect to have the line ready for operation within 40 days. The 140-mile tube will provide the first direct outlet to the Ohio refining center for Michigan oil fields and is expected to bring Michigan oil in direct competition with mid-continent crude which at the present time is the major source of supply for large refineries located in Toledo.

It is expected the pipeline will pass through a short distance west of Chelsea. It will follow highways as far as possible, but in some places it will be necessary to go through farm land, and representatives have been in this neighborhood trying to secure the right-of-way.

Township Roads Will Be Relics In 6 Months

Six more months and the township road system will be a relic of a by-gone era in Michigan.

Funeral services for the township road, one of the oldest of Michigan institutions, will take place April 1, 1936. At that time county road commissions throughout the state will take over the last parcel of township road mileage remaining in the respective counties.

To accomplish the transition counties have been receiving an increased allocation from state highway revenues yearly. This year the amount is $3,600,000 and next year and annually thereafter it will be increased to $4,000,000.

The allocation which started at $3,000,000 in 1932 and has increased $600,000 every year was allocated by the Legislature on the basis of township road mileage in 1931. Most of the counties say that their allocation is sufficient to take care of the additional road burden although a few claim their funds are inadequate.

When the township road system is abolished there will be 77,610 miles of county roads in the state, according to figures furnished by Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner. This represents an increase of 60,317 miles over the mileage in 1931 when the county road commissions had jurisdiction over only 17,301 miles of highway.

The depression brought a death certificate for the township road system. Property values slumped and the township road became a tax burden which the people could not stand. The 1931 legislature wrote the death certificate when it enacted the McNitt plan directing the counties to absorb the township roads by 1936 by taking over 20 per cent of this mileage each year.

BUEHLER-NIXON WEDDING

A quiet wedding was solemnized October 19 at 7 o'clock at St. Andrews parsonage, Dexter, when Ida Lena Buehler was united in marriage to Homer Nixon. The bride, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Buehler of Lyndon, is a graduate of the Chelsea high school. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nixon of Dexter.

The ring ceremony was read by Rev. Albert Schoen, who was the officiating pastor at the wedding of the bride's parents thirty years ago. Their attendants were Ellen Buehler, daughter of the bride, and Miss Sarah Nixon, sister of the groom. The wedding gown was of handsome brown alpaca with accessories to match. Miss Nixon wore a beautiful dress of green silk crepe.

After the ceremony the wedding party journeyed to Michigan League at Ann Arbor, where a lovely three-course wedding supper was served, immediately after which the couple left on a honeymoon trip to the Upper Peninsula. They will be at home to their friends after November 1 on a farm in Lina township.

LAST WEEK FOR PAYING TAXES

Chester Miller, village treasurer, has received permission from the county treasurer to keep his books open the remainder of this week, and he will accept payment of taxes until Monday morning, when unpaid taxes will be returned to the county treasurer. Mr. Miller states that he has collected about $7800.00 of the total tax assessment of approximately $8000.00.

Make New Tuling for Ice Fishermen

With one exception, ice fishermen this winter will be restricted to the use of two single lines with single hook attached to each line instead of the five single lines which were legal last winter.

The exception is that in recognized small waters any number of hooks, attached to a single line, may be used for the taking of smelt.

The restriction was made by the State Conservation Commission at its October meeting. The Commission also voted that ice lines this winter must be held in the hand or under immediate control and may not be left unattended for any length of time. Last winter it was permissible to leave ice lines unattended for as long as two hours.

According to the Fisheries Division evidence is accumulating to indicate that the great northern pike is becoming more highly prized as a tourist attraction and that there is concern in many sections because the supply of these fish is not greater. It is believed that the reduction in number of ice lines and restriction in manner of their use will not only afford greater protection for gamefish, particularly the great northern pike, but facilitate law enforcement.

Federal Regulations Govern Duck Hunters

Here are some things for sportsmen to remember during the 30-day duck hunting season established by the United States Bureau of Biological Survey which opened in Michigan on Monday, October 21.

A federal duck stamp is required to shoot ducks, geese and brant. It is illegal to use live decoys. It is unlawful to shoot waterfowl over baited areas. It is illegal to use shotguns larger than 10 gauge. It is illegal to use repeating shotgun or automatic shotgun capable of holding more than three shells, two in the magazine and one in the chamber.

It is illegal to take waterfowl from blinds, boats or floating craft of any kind more than 100 feet from shore or emergent vegetation.

According to the Department of Conservation, hunting cannot legally begin before 8 o'clock in the morning and must stop at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, Eastern Standard Time.

The season opened October 21 on the following species of migratory gamebirds: Ducks, geese, brant, jack-snipe and snipe, remaining open to and including November 10. Wood duck, ruddy duck, bufflehead duck, Ross' geese or swan are protected.

Cushing Re-elected Auditors' Chairman

At a session of the county board of supervisors the past week, Lawrence C. Cushing was unanimously re-elected chairman of the board of county auditors, with the understanding that his proffered resignation will be considered when the board is better prepared to select a successor. He has held the office for the past ten years.

Elmer L. Brown was re-elected auditor for a two year term.

George P. Smith, county sealer of weights and measures, was re-elected without opposition.

In his annual report, Mr. Cushing stated that the county general expense for the past year was $101,041, a slight reduction from the year before.

Expenditures of the road commission's office for the year totaled $450,051.

Methods for administering local welfare to unemployed were discussed by the board, but no action was taken.

The board voted to spread a levy of one-half mill for a four-year period to settle past due bonds and interest in the River drainage district amounting to approximately $187,000, an obligation against the county which if not met, might hit up county funds.

The finance committee reported that an opportunity was available to settle the due bonds and interest for $115,000; and the use of $15,000 in the River district fund will reduce to $100,000 the amount needed from the tax levy.

Miss Pearl Halst was elected to serve as county public health nurse for the coming year; a position she has held for five years.

CHELSEA BOY HONORED

Of all the designs of hub caps an steering wheels for the new Hudson and Terraplane models the one accepted by the Hudson Motor Car Co. was one by Lawrence Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. He took courses in art and mechanical drawing in night school at Detroit.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Will you please state whether or not a cow sweats like horses do? Your answer will settle a dispute.

Ans.—Yes, cows do sweat, but perspiration in cattle is not so noticeable as it is in horses or other animals. In the case of horses the sweat glands are distributed widely over the skin, and the animal sweats freely all over the body. But the cattle sweat glands are less abundant and are most completely developed on the muzzle. Therefore a cow will sweat freely on the muzzle, but what sweat there is on the cow's body is very slight and is classed as insensible perspiration.

Ques.—Which state in the United States has the greatest number of counties, and which has the least number?

Ans.—Texas has the greatest number of counties, with 255. Delaware has the least number, with only three.

Ques.—How did the Indians make their canoes, and what kind of material did they use?

Ans.—The Indians had two or three ways to make canoes, depending upon its durability. Some used birch bark for covering, which was well suited for that purpose. Others used buffalo skins for covering. The most durable, however, were made by hollowing out birch logs with crude tools of hard stone or flint.

Ques.—Can you tell me how the great Chicago fire of 1871 was started?

Ans.—The great Chicago fire of 1871 first broke out in a barn owned by Patrick O'Leary. It is claimed that it started from a kerosene lamp or lantern kicked over by a cow which Mrs. O'Leary was milking. About three-fourths of the city was entirely wiped out.

Ques.—I would like to know why cadets at Annapolis navy yards of the United States are called "midshipmen"?

Ans.—The term "midshipmen" originated in the British navy about 250 years ago. The men who were going through a course of training to become officers were assigned quarters amidship on the lower deck, and therefore, they were called "midshipmen." This term has been applied to cadets ever since—even in the United States.

Ques.—On what day of the week was I born, and what is my "horoscope"?

Ans.—Oct. 29, 1897, was on Friday. Therefore, you are a Friday-born person. But Friday is not necessarily unlucky, as many people seem to think. We do not give individual horoscopes.

Ques.—Why is a certain church in New York called "The Little Church Around the Corner"?

Ans.—This church got its name from an incident that occurred in 1870. George Holland, an actor, died that year, and Joseph Jefferson (who since became a world-famous actor) asked Rev. William Sabine, pastor of the Church of Atonement (now extinct), to perform the funeral service for his friend, Holland. The pastor refused when he learned that Holland was an actor. But Rev. Sabine said to Jefferson: "There is a little church around the corner that will, perhaps, permit the service." Jefferson replied: "God bless that little church around the corner." Holland was buried from this church, which then became the center of religious life among members of the theatrical profession.

Ques.—Was Kit Carson an outlaw? When and where did he die?

Ans.—Christopher Carson, popularly known as "Kit Carson," was not an outlaw. He was a famous hunter, trapper, Indian scout and military officer. He spoke the Indian language fluently, and began his life of adventure when he was 17 years old. When he was 33 years old he became acquainted with Gen. John C. Fremont and was employed by him as a guide among the Indians, and was later appointed as an Indian agent by the United States. During the Civil War he was brevetted a brigadier-general of volunteers. He died at Ft. Lynn, Colo., in 1868.

Ques.—What part of speech is the word "cannot"? How is it parsed?

Ans.—While "cannot" is commonly written as one word it cannot be classed as one word according to the parts of speech. The word is a combination of a verb and adverb and must be so considered in parsing.

Prohistoric Giant Animal

The brontosaurus, prehistoric animal, attained a length of 60 feet, weighed 20 tons and had feet which left prints covering a square yard.

ACTS 3:1-16

Two men one day, Starting out for Church, Found a forlorn brother Sadly in the lurch, Crippled in his legs and feet, Sitting at a gate, Asking alms from passersby, Early until late.

Pity—tender pity, Moved by loving thought, They had been with Jesus, Knew the power he brought; Neither gold nor silver Had they to command, But the mention of That Name Electrified the man.

Starting up he leaped and walked, Went with them to prayer, Praise from his rejoicing heart, Sounding everywhere; All the people knew 'twas he, Who had asked for alms that day, At the gate called Beautiful, Through which they came to pray.

This Lesson: May I quickened be To sense its breadth and power, Through Jesus all my need must be Fulfilled each day and hour; And may we all as faithful be As Peter, as was John, That power and blessing come to all We lay our hands upon.

—By Arthur Carlton.

West Virginia, Ohio Boundary

The north bank of the Ohio river forms the boundary of Ohio. According to an old Colonial Treaty Virginia had jurisdiction to the north bank of the Ohio river, and when the states of Kentucky and West Virginia were formed this boundary line was continued.

Seeing in the Dark

No animal can see in absolute darkness, but the eyes of many of them are so adapted that they can see very well in a minimum of light. The average night is not very dark to an owl or cat.

Post-Laureate in England

There is no authentic record of the origin of the office of poet-laureate of England. According to Warton, there was a versifier regis, or King's poet, in the reign of Henry III. (1210-1272), and he was paid 100 shillings a year. Geoffrey Chaucer (1328-1400) assumed the title of poet-laureate, and in 1389 got a royal grant of a yearly allowance of wine.

THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1936

Why do we say The New Ford V-8 for 1936?

What is new about it?

Of course, the newest engine in the low-price car field is still the V-8 engine. Since Ford made it available to all car users (keeping it as economical as cars with fewer cylinders) the Ford V-8 has been the newest engine on the market, and remains the newest for 1936.

You may buy a car on minor "talking points"—some specially advertised feature—"with the car thrown in"—but, after all, it is the engine you buy when you buy a car. Hence we put the engine first.

Other new points about the car make a long list.

Its lines are much more beautiful. The hood is longer and sweeps forward over the distinctive new radiator grille, giving the car a length and grace that are instantly impressive. The fenders are larger, with a wide flare. Horns are concealed behind circular grilles beneath the headlamps. New steel wheels.

Ford upholstery—always of sterling quality and excellent taste—is rich and enduring. The appointments of the car have a new touch of refinement. There is no question about the increased beauty of the Ford V-8 for 1936.

In more practical matters, many improvements have been made—Steering is made easier by a new steering gear ratio. The cooling system circulates 5½ gallons of water through a new, larger radiator. Natural thermosiphon action is assisted by two centrifugal water pumps. New style hood louvers permit a rapid air-flow around the engine.

Easier, quieter shifting of Ford gears—The gear shift lever now travels a shorter distance.

The two qualities you want in brakes—Brakes that stop the car with ease and certainty. Ford Super-Safety Brakes of the long-tested, fool-proof, mechanical design.

Safety—as always—in the electrically welded genuine steel body. Safety Glass all around at no extra cost. Hundreds have written grateful letters because this glass has protected the safety of their families.

A car you can drive without strain all day, if you like, in city or country. Steady, holds the road, responds to the driver's touch like a well-trained horse. You don't have to "push" or "fight" the Ford V-8—driver and car easily get on terms of good understanding with each other.

An engine has much to do with the roominess of a car. Very much indeed. A long engine uses up car space. The compact V-8 engine permits much of the ordinary engine space to be used by passengers.

It really is a great car in every way, this 1936 Ford V-8—the finest, safest, most dependable Ford car ever built. Now on display by Ford dealers.

OUR NEIGHBORS

MASON—There may not be "gold in them thar hills" but at least there is silver in WPA jobs. That's the opinion of Jay Foote, employed on the Elm street WPA project. On Tuesday morning Mr. Foote was making the dirt fly when he saw a bright piece of metal. He brought his shovel to order arms and reached down to pick up the metal. He discovered it to be a United States half-dollar minted in 1817. The coin was found beneath a foot of gravel. It may have been lost by one of Mason's first settlers. After the finding of the coin WPA workers started to dig in earnest and now hopes are high that the boys will be out of the trenches by Christmas. —County News.

NORTHVILLE—Considerable perplexity was present in Northville yesterday morning when the Detroit Free Press announced that Northville's WPA "hot house" project had been approved. Dr. H. H. Burkart, president of the village, said that the sum announced bore a resemblance to the Boy Scout building expenditure, but that he had received no word regarding any WPA plans at all. —Record.

PLYMOUTH—As a clear, bright October sun sank into the west Sunday afternoon, nearly 5,000 people witnessed Bishop Michael Gallagher of the Michigan diocese of the Catholic church move into place the great granite cornerstone of the new mother house of the Felician Sisters that is being erected at the corner of Schoolcraft and Newburg roads two miles east of the city. —Mail.

MORENCI—Maurice Keith Addleman, a member of the Senior class of Blissfield high school, died Sunday morning in Biixy hospital, Adrian, as a result of an injury suffered in the Hudson-Blissfield football game at Blissfield, Friday afternoon. Keith was playing guard and suffered a broken neck about two minutes after the game started. He was carried off the field by Coach Matt Lunn and members of the team. As it was then apparent his injuries were serious, he was taken to the office of Dr. E. C. Pearce of Blissfield and from there to Biixy hospital. —Observer.

HOWELL—The County Road Commission is reconstructing two important bridges this fall; the big iron bridge over the Huron river north of Hamburg, and the narrow bridge near the entrance to the Hi Land Lake sub-division south and west of Phiney. The long steel bridge over the Huron north of Hamburg village was constructed in 1895, developed a weakness in the steel floor stringers, and although the buttments and span steel were strong enough for present day loads, the five-inch floor stringers were not considered safe for the weights now carried by motor trucks. —Republican-Press.

BROOKLYN—There is no milk war in the Irish Hills but it looked that way this week when a big truck and trailer loaded with milk for a Detroit bread company left the highway, plunging down the steepest embankment of the hills just west of Cap Horn's restaurant. The driver, and his assistant escaped, but the truck caught fire and burned. The accident was caused by the bursting of a front tire. —Exponent.

MAGIC CHEF WILL COOK YOUR DINNER
WHILE YOU ARE AWAY

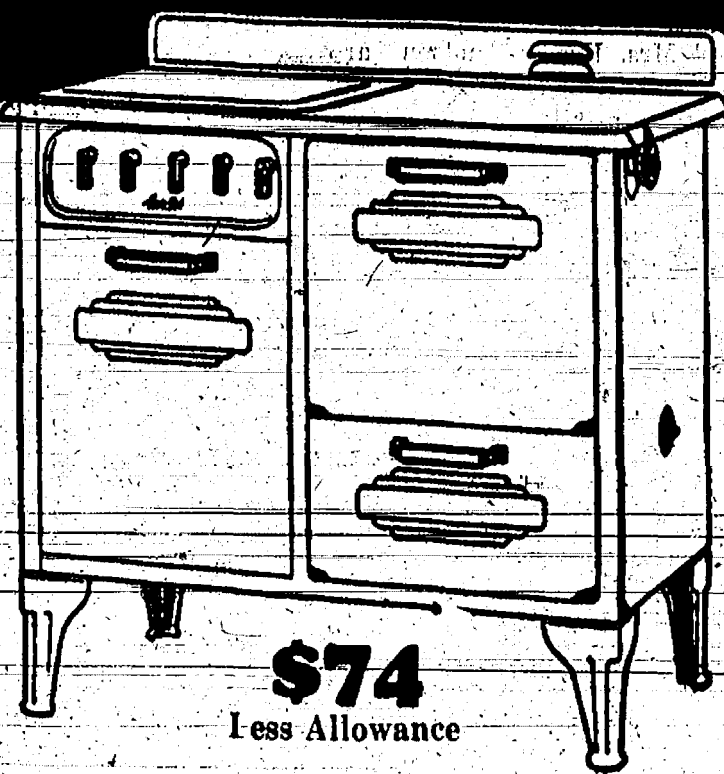

No woman wants to be tied down at home with "cooking troubles." Indeed not, and why should she? Today's housewife can cook entire meals while she is miles away from home, and return to find them ready to serve.

Magic Chef is the answer. The Red Wheel Oven Regulator does the oven-watching. Thick insulation holds the heat in, keeps the kitchen cooler.

Magic Chef saves time and work in many other ways. Non-clog top burners light themselves, give sizzling hot fire or gentle heat. High burner tray catches boil-overs. Grid-pan broiler drains away fats, prevents smoking. Numerous other features.

And Magic Chef beauty of design and lustrous porcelain finish bring new style and charm into sleepy, drab kitchens.

Modernize your kitchen—begin with the gas range. See the many models of Magic Chef gas ranges in all sizes and prices on display in our showroom.

...but, after all is said and done, it's the cigarette itself that counts

...the question is,
does it suit you?

Now, when it comes to a cigarette that will suit you... you want to think whether it's mild, you want to think about the taste

That Chesterfields are milder and taste better is no accident...

The farmer who grows the tobacco, the warehouseman who sells it at auction to the highest bidder, every man who knows about leaf tobacco will tell you that it takes mild, ripe tobaccos to make a good cigarette.

In making Chesterfields we use mild ripe home-grown and Turkish tobaccos.

Chelsea Beaten By Block Punt, 12 to 7

Dundee handed Chelsea its second League defeat against one victory during a home game last Friday. Again a blocked punt gave Chelsea the defeat for the ball had been recovered on Chelsea's nine yard line, an end run by Davis followed on the next play.

Chelsea came second in every department except in passing. This was true on first downs especially—Chelsea having four and Dundee ten. This week, however, Chelsea played without a great number of penalties inflicted upon it. Only an off-side and fifteen-yard penalty was charged against the purple and gold.

In the first half Chelsea had much the better of it, during which they set stage for their lone touchdown in the first period.

The second period opened with Chelsea's ball on Dundee's 35 after a nine yard run by Novess. Hart punted a fifty yard spiral to Dundee's twenty-eight. Tisch then recovered a fumble on the twenty-seven for Chelsea. On the next play Hart contributed a fine bit of open field running with beautiful blocking, to score. The suddenness left the Dundee rooters quite dumbfounded. Moritz Brueckner kicked good and the score stood Chelsea 7, Dundee 0.

Chelsea kicked off and Dundee staged a touchdown march from their own thirty yard stripe. Only a tackle from behind by Hart after a forty yard pass held Dundee from scoring via passes. Eckel, however, took it over in two plays, from the ten-yard marker. Prinzing crashed through to block the try for extra point. The half soon ended—Chelsea 7, Dundee 6.

On the first play in the second half Novess returned to the forty-two. Then Hart's kick was blocked, and an end run by Dundee sent same team in the lead. The attempt for extra point failed. Dundee 12, Chelsea 7.

And there she stayed! The rest of the game was a see-saw battle with fumbles, missed laterals, and intercepted passes occurring with startling rapidity.

When the gun sounded, Chelsea had the ball on their own eighteen yard line.

These two teams were very evenly matched and everyone knew breaks would cause one team to win, the other to lose. So it happened, and Chelsea lost a close, interesting game.

Next Friday, October 25, Roosevelt invades Chelsea territory for a stiff battle.

Farewell, Chelsea has a swell team, and a better one in sight!

Operetta Real Success

Who ever thought that Chelsea high school would ever have in their midst real honest-to-goodness Swiss folk?

So well were the parts portrayed by the cast that the audience were very much impressed, easily imagining themselves a part of the gay, colorful scene.

Remarkable talent was shown by the entire cast.

Trini Schultz, portrayed by Lois Palmer, and her girl friend, Frieda, by Peggy Blecker, were cleverly acted. They were especially appreciated for their singing and dancing ability.

A better mayor could not have been found than Robert Schwartz. He was almost perfect in the roll of Mayor Shultz. His most outstanding characteristic, however, was the Swiss brogue.

George Winans and Paul Schneider played their parts very well as Eric and Johann Von Bimmer, cheese merchants in their village.

Maynard Osterle, as Jimmie Sheriff was the young American, who had come to the quaint little village of Uppendown.

Hans Schmidt! The boy with the clumsy feet! This character was portrayed by Donald Cook, who added a clever touch of humor to the script.

The chorus and dancers certainly did their parts to make the operetta a success.

Miss Boongaard, the teachers, students, La Rue Wolf, and all Junior Hi's are to be congratulated on their talent and ability to make their operetta "Green Cheese" a huge success.

F. F. A. News

Project reports for the Chapter are on the average better than last year. Vincent lives, with a potato project, harvested 250 bushels to the acre, and Alton Koengeter, 130 bushels of potatoes on a tract slightly over a half acre of black loam. E. McIlenny had one acre of clay loam, getting 185 bushels of potatoes.

At the Institute, our adviser, Mr. Lyons, gave a talk in the agriculture department on "Young Timber."

cup won by the livestock judging team consisting of Vincent Ives, Lynn Dancer, Allen Boesman and Wayne Harvey. This cup was given as an award by the Milan Chamber of Commerce in competition with Smith Hughes agriculture classes throughout Washtenaw county.

Editorial

By Mary Gilbert

What is the attraction that is drawing the students' attention as they go to and from the school building? At the present it appears to be an addition to our playgrounds. Our imagination immediately suggests a tennis court. No matter what this new project may be, if it is to better the recreation conditions, it will surely be appreciated by the student body. Let our imagination keep busy and let us watch closely!

Continuation of the Institute News

Mrs. Steiner and Mrs. Dancer enjoyed most the discussion and demonstrations of Rhythm and Physical Education classes in the later elementary grades. The discussion was led by Dr. Kuyen of the University of Michigan and the demonstration by Miss Ryan of Mt. Pleasant Normal College with pupils from the Detroit schools.

The talk given by Mr. Austin, a Michigan State Professor, interested Miss Fauver and Miss Canfield very much. The title of the talk was "Teacher Personality and Child Guidance." He gave a list of the things that boys and girls like about teachers.

Miss Boongaard had the very good fortune of hearing the Central high school choir of Detroit. They did an A Cappella and five folk songs in an excellent manner. She also heard Dr. Mattern and Dr. Smith, two members of a panel.

Miss Boongaard and Miss Yager witnessed the demonstration of finger painting. The purpose of finger painting is to give the child a better way of expressing his feelings. The child is able to put his whole feeling into the painting. There are very few systems that excel this one in this respect.

Miss Kern heard a talk given by Prof. Heaton. He discussed the rural and city schools of fifty years ago and compared them with those of today.

Mr. Lyons attended the agriculture section of the Teachers' Institute. He heard a talk by E. E. Gallup of East Lansing. Two speeches, "History of the Washtenaw County Agriculture Association", and "Young Timber", were given by Mr. Lyons.

Caesar Says

Abe: "You remember when you cured my rheumatism, a couple of years ago and told me to avoid moisture?"

Doc: "Yes, that's right."

Abe: "Well, when can I take a bath?"

And following that we have—

Hart: "Did you fill your date last night?"

Woods: "Sure did, she ate up everything in sight."

And here's the answer to many a person's question—

"How'd you learn to smoke?"

"Oh, just picked it up."

Here's to the Freshman—

Senior: "Have you read 'What a Freshman Should Know'?"

Freshman: "No, how many volumes are there?"

Did you know Columbus was a farmer? Yes he was, he plowed the seas and planted his foot on American soil.

Mr. Lyons: "Don't you think you've been sitting there long enough?"

Paul Koch: "Don't think, just sit."

Girls, don't never go out with a magician, he may turn into a side road.

Read my spice, follow my advice.

Until next week, I'll excuse myself.

Hold Farewell Party

A large group of Juniors met in the kindergarten room October 15 to bid farewell to their loyal classmate, Ted Mauch. The first part of the evening was devoted to a scavenger hunt.

Awards were given to group three, namely Ben Alger, George Prinzing, George Goodell, Kenneth Niehaus and Robert Gilbert, and group four, made up of Ruth Umstead, Marian Ashfall, Elsa Rarais, Bernadine Wheeler and Virginia Liebeck.

Refreshments were served upon the return of the party from the scavenger hunt, followed by dancing and the singing of several favorite songs. Ted was then presented with a gift by the class president in behalf of the Junior class. "Auld Lang Syne" was sung, a yell "Yea Ted" was led by Ben Alger, and the party ended.

Those who have been neither absent nor tardy during the seven weeks of school are: Audrey White, June Vail, Shirley Schenk, Shirley Platt, Clara Miller, Barbara Eaton, Jane Downer, Charles Slane, George Slane, Edwin Lantis, Marion Dietle, Robert Breitenwischer.

Barbara Eaton's mother came to see us Friday afternoon. We enjoy visitors.

Arthur Paul brought us some lovely Michigan holly.

Marion Dietle brought a Chinese totem to school. It makes weird music but we like to march to it.

We are learning about different kinds of seeds. Some have sails, some have feathery wings, others are carried away by animals.

Fourth Grade

The following pupils have been in perfect attendance during the first seven weeks of school—Eugene Aldrich, Richard Bahnmiller, Willard Carlson, Doris Collins, Ruth Cooper, Robert Eaton, Ronald Gentner, Joseph Hale, Eva Harris, Betty Holdeman, Mary Koch, Virginia Miller, Walter Osterle, Raymond Parsons, Louis Policht, Esther, Riemschneider, Elaine Schmidt, Mildred Slane, Ruth Slane and Barbara White.

Doris Collins' mother and Bob Eaton's mother and Miss Ackerson, the third and fourth grade teacher in Manchester, were visitors in our room last week. Miss Ackerson drew two pictures for us, one a fall scene and the other a Halloween picture with owls, witch goblins, harvest moon and a jack-o-lantern. "Thank you, Miss Ackerson!" We know we shall enjoy these pictures every day.

Joseph has drawn us a picture of a ship which we think very good.

We have small jack-o-lanterns above our boards and Halloween pictures around the room.

Felix Holbrook hasn't missed one word in spelling since the beginning of school.

Friday when we had our visitors we had a review of the Belgian Congo. There were fourteen topics assigned and each topic was explained by individuals who wanted to tell about that part. We also had a committee who have planned a scene of Belgian Congo in the sand table. We are now ready to begin our study of Eskimos of the far north in our geography work.

Doris Collins drew us a pretty Halloween picture. Mary Koch drew one too.

Jane, Jean and Carlton Chriswell and Elaine Schmidt brought some pretty bouquets of Michigan holly. We have plans in mind now for our use of it. We hope we can tell you about them next week.

We are disappointed to again report six people in our list of untidy housekeepers.

Some of the resolutions which our Girls' and Boys' Council have adopted are as follows:

To learn to study.

To dodge no duties.

To get into the game.

To be busy, not "buzzy."

To work hard and play hard.

To be courteous at home as well as at school.

To be prompt, punctual and persistent.

We are interested in canals and dams in connection with our geography work at present.

We expect special reports on Boulder-Dam, Muscle Shoals, Panama Canal and Suez Canal.

Richard Schenk made a very interesting drawing of Norris Dam.

We begin a long division review at the beginning of our new period. After that our new unit is fractions. To master addition, subtraction, multiplication and division of fractions is our goal.

We think it will be very interesting.

Sixth Grade

This week we are preparing for a History test.

Lots of us are sorry that we have white marks on our department chart. Junior Miller and Leonard Spiegelberg are on the committee for taking care of the windows this week.

Norman Niehaus is Miss Canfield's new helper for after school.

Our clock has stopped for almost a week. Now it is ten minutes slow.

We wish to thank Edwin for bringing us pictures of the Ethiopian and Italian war.

Lillian Allhouse spent Saturday and Sunday at Lake Michigan. She was about ten miles from South Haven.

LIMA CENTER SCHOOL NEWS.

Our school is learning the songs for our festival. The fourth grade think it is fun to learn the larger songs.

We are having a citizenship contest in our school. There are two sides in the contest. If a person is not a good citizen they get a red mark for the day. If a person has done a good deed he gets a yellow mark for that day, which takes a red mark off from their side. The side which has the most red marks must give the other side a Halloween party. Those that receive but one red mark during the month get on the Honor Roll. Those on the Honor Roll now are as follows:

Robert Gross, Duane, Luick, Joan Pierce, Veryl Steinaway, Roland Ewald, Marilyn Schooley, Richard Heiber, Barbara Luick, Dick Schanz, Reta Gross, Pauline Schiller, Jimmie Ewald, Margaret Heiber, Leon Koch, Edna Steinaway, Gene Ewald, Helen Bartok, Lawrence Koch, Oramel Schiller, Harold Hanselman, Daniel Ewald, Robert Schanz, and Ruth Gracey.

Leon Koch and Edna Steinaway are making our Citizenship Code. It is in the form of a wheel. Each spoke is a citizenship point. It has eight spokes. We expect to have it completed by Friday.

We are very much pleased to get our Health Charts. The health class is making very much use of them.

The eighth grade are on their sixth drill in their Arithmetic drill book. Our health class have their health problems written up as far as they have gone. The third and fourth grade have made a health and table. It is divided into two parts: "Crooked Town" and "Happy Town." Crooked Town is very unhealthful and Happy Town is very healthful. The beginners are getting to write their name fairly well.

Signed: Edna Steinaway.

Sowing and Reaping

WHEN a garden lover plants his garden, he confidently expects a reward of beauty from the seeds which he sows. When he plants a pumpkin, he does not look for thistles, but expects to see, in due time, tall spikes of shining blue. As he carefully cultivates the seedlings, enriching the soil and keeping it free from weeds, he is expecting to reap a bountiful reward. But how differently we are apt to regard our sowing and reaping in the mental realm! Both the law and the gospel proclaim that whatever a man sows that shall he also reap; but the world, generally speaking, interprets this law as applying to wrongdoing, forgetting that it also applies to the sure and certain reward for right doing.

We read in the book of Job (1:8), "They that plow iniquity, and sow wickedness, reap the same;" and we also read in Proverbs (11:18), "To him that soweth righteousness shall be a sure reward." Why does man-kind in general believe in the justice which exacts penalty for wrongdoing, and fail to understand the justice which rewards righteousness? Fear of the penalty attached to wrongdoing does not make a man good; but the joyous recognition of God as a just God, and the glad acceptance of the fact that obedience to God brings a sure reward, help one to obey God, not because of the reward, but because such obedience brings one nearer to God, the source of all good, and results in an improved sense of health, happiness, and harmony.

The Apostle Paul tells us that "the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance;" and he adds, "Against such there is no law" (Gal. 5:22, 23). We may sometimes seem to toil laboriously to cultivate "the fruit of the Spirit," but we need to remember that nothing can hinder its growth, and that nothing can withhold its power, for it destroys hate and envy, intolerance, hurry, haste, and waste.

Sometimes a wrong mental attitude of self-depreciation or self-condemnation would hinder us from claiming the divine law of reaping where we have sown. Self-condemnation would tempt us to think of our mistakes and failures, and to forget the efforts we have made to advance towards good. A false sense of self-worth blights "the fruit of the Spirit," so that we drop with discouragement instead of abiding with confidence and courage, peace and serenity, which are the sure fruitage of trust in infinite good. If the Apostle Paul had spent his time in condemning himself for his misdeeds in persecuting the Christians, he would never have accomplished what he did. He knew that his ministry in Christ was far bigger and greater than any personal sense of triumph or failure; and he said (Phil. 3:13, 14), "Forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

There is a sure reward for right thinking and acting, but often, through a misunderstanding of the nature of God as divine Principle, the reward is not claimed. We are apt to think of law and justice as relating to penalty, forgetting that divine law is both wise and loving, relating only to good. The teachings of Christian Science reveal God as Principle, undeviating, changeless Principle, Love; and as this idea dawns upon our thought we begin to understand the law which governs right thinking and acting.

In "Miscellaneous Writings" (p. 331) Mary Baker Eddy makes it clear that if we are "abiding in Truth, the warmth and sunlight of prayer and praise and understanding will ripen the fruits of Spirit, and goodness will have its springtime of freedom and gladness." Freedom and gladness belong to goodness.

they are the natural results of the activity of good. When we break the bonds of sinful thinking, we must expect freedom, because obedience to divine law brings freedom. We need the "warmth and sunlight of prayer and praise and understanding." As we watch and pray, and give thanks to divine Love for the good which we already possess, and as we endeavor, each day, to gain more understanding of God, the source of all good, we shall understand the divine law of sowing and reaping—and expect it to operate in our experience. —The Christian Science Monitor.

Furry-Day, Annual Festival
Its Origin Is Unknown

Furry-day is a fête-day observed annually, and only in the town of Heston, near the extreme tip of Cornwall, England. The origin of the festival and the origin of the name are both lost in antiquity, says Literary Digest. Local legend connects the festival with the name of the town. It is said that a huge granite block, lying within the town up to 150 years ago, formerly lay at the door of hell; that Satan carrying it away for some diabolical purpose encountered St. Michael, and that, fleeing from the victorious saint, he dropped the stone in his haste. Thereafter the day of the struggle has been commemorated annually, with Michael as the patron saint of the town.

The celebration is observed by a morris-dance called variously the faddy-dance, fade-dance, or furry-dance. Usually the name furry may be a corruption from fair, or from the second line of a verse in the tune always sung during the dance:

Robin Hood and Little John,
They both are gone to the fair, O.
And we will to the merry greenwood,
To see what they do there, O,
And for to chase, O,
To chase the buck and doe,
With Hal-an-tow,
Jolly fumble, O.

Formerly, the entire village took part in the dance, and anyone failing to observe the fête, if detected, was ridden on a rail and dumped into the river. The dancers walked two and two during the first half of each verse of the tune; at the second half the first man turned the second lady and the second man turned the first lady. All doors in the village were left open and at their will, the dancers might traverse any house and garden. The day was always closed by a ball.

Several Indian Tribes

Once Owned Part of Ohio
It cannot be determined definitely just how long it has been since Indians inhabited Ohio, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Early in October, 1817, a treaty between the United States commissioners (Gov. Cass of the territory of Michigan and Gen. Duncan McArthur of Ohio) and the Indians who had possession of lands in the northwestern corner of the state, was concluded at Fort Meigs. The cessation made by the Indians on this occasion nearly extinguished their title to the state.

One of the earliest tribes which inhabited Ohio was the Erie, or Cat tribe. They dwelt in the region south of the lake, to which they have given their name, and their country extended probably half way down the state.

The tribes living within the present boundaries of the state at the time the white settlement commenced were the Iroquois, who inhabited northeastern Ohio; the Wyandots, the entire northwestern part of the state; the Delaware, most of the region east of the Scioto; between the Scioto and Miami rivers were the Shawnees, while beyond lay the lands of the Miami, which extended westward into Indiana. Various other tribes had occasional residence in the state—a remnant of the Mohicans who had united themselves with the Delaware, a few bands of the Seneca and Tuscarawas, and a single band of Ottawas.

The Danish-American Park

The Rebild National park of Denmark is a gift of the Americans of Danish ancestry to their homeland. The park is in the nature of a memorial center dedicated to the friendship existing between the two countries. Each year since 1912, when it was formally opened to the public, the park has been the scene of impressive ceremonies on Independence day. Twelve miles south of the seaport Aalborg, it is situated in the widest part of the Jutland peninsula and includes within its boundaries one of the country's largest and most beautiful heather moors. It was in 1904 that a group of American citizens of Danish birth purchased a tract of the Rebild hills with the object of making it the first national park of its kind in the world. In 1900 the acreage was turned over to the Danish government and dedicated as a Danish-American park.

Much Wood Used

Few persons realize the quantity of wood that they use during their lifetime—in house construction, furniture, magazines, newspapers, books, boxes, matches, pencils, writing and wrapping paper, motorcars, sporting goods and a thousand other articles. From the wood in his cradle to the wood in his coffin, the average individual's consumption is equivalent to at least 800 trees. —Columbia Weekly.

Medical Men Loved Music

Perhaps the most famous of medical men who have loved music was Bill Roth, close friend of Johannes Brahms, and one of the greatest surgical pathologists in medical history, says Hygeia, the Health Magazine. His home in Vienna was the scene of frequent musical evenings, and many of Brahms' finest string quartets, vocal and piano duets were first heard there.

Most Predilect of Native Stock

The great majority of child prodigies in American stock, a survey of gifted children at Boston University Graduate school has revealed. The survey showed that if the parents of the talented children are not native born they usually are English, Scotch, Jewish or German.

The Sabbatical Year

In the Old Testament the sabbatical year is described as a year of rest, either for the priests or for the soil. In modern times it refers to a year's leave given to clergymen and teachers for travel, study or rest. The term implies that such a year comes at the end of six years of service, but it is now used in a broader sense for a leave of absence after any number of years of service.

The use of academic hoods dates from a period far earlier than the Middle Ages. In Europe, in Asia they go back more than 1,000 years.

Swedes Among the First Business Men in World

Sweden is one of the great nations of the world, asserts a writer in the Boston Globe. The Swedes have dwelt there for 5,000 years and were among the world's first business men. They claim to have been in America 500 years before Columbus, and it will be recalled that they settled one of our first 13 states.

They claim to have founded the Russian empire and in discovery were first through the Northeast Passage. They were the first nation to recognize the independence of the United States and there never has been any political misunderstanding between us.

Commercial men remember that the Swedish Copper Mountain Mining company at Falun is the oldest existing industrial organization in the world, as its records go back to the year 1325.

Sweden gave us John Ericsson, Alfred Nobel, Linnaeus, Scheele and many others who were first and greatest in their respective spheres.

Pronunciation of "Moscow"

The correct pronunciation of this name is Mosk'oo, first o as in not, second o as in go, says Literary Digest. With one exception, all of the dictionaries, pronouncing gazettes, and word-books agree on this pronunciation. The one exception follows the German pronunciation, mos'koo, as an outgrowth. The Russian name is Moskva. To determine American preference, letters were sent to the postmasters of the 12 cities and towns of this name in the United States. Of the 11 who replied, nine said, "second o in go." One of these replied "my informant 'toot' people say mos'koo, and I've pronounced it the same as Mosk'oo, Russia, rhyming with the word 'go.' The postmasters of Moscow, Idaho, and of Moscow, Mich., favored mos'koo. One of these wrote: "Rhyming with 'go,' some as Russian city." Without exception, official and unofficial Russian authorities in Washington to whom the question was put verbally, agreed in favor of Mosk'oo.

WINTER RANGE

"Campy was overlooking a couple of things," said Kentucky. "It's true that you can show I was broke by Mason. But what about all those other cows that Mason had to close down on? To those men Mason's decisions meant salvation or ruin—exactly as to me. He could not carry us all. In digging up a reason for me to kill Mason, Campy only dug up a motive that forty or fifty rimrock cowmen would owe to."

"I see what you're driving at," said Hopper. "Maybe Mason did have such an enemy, or six of them, or fifty; the fifty of them wouldn't have no barbecue at the Bar Hook the day Mason was killed."

"So I gathered," Kentucky admitted. "But here in mind this—if any one of the fifty had been there, he might have gunned down Mason. There's been a awful lot of wearing of guns in the Harrock the past ten, twelve months, what with riders hoping for a chance to shoot a coyote, or a rabbit—with a 45 slug! Cowmen's minds can work that way only about so long before something boils over and busts."

"Yes," Hopper admitted. "I was looking for it all right, but when it came to killing Mason—"

"It was a right ambitious victim," Kentucky agreed. "But there were big reasons for killing him, too. When you build up pressure like that you can figure on an explosion. But it was the gun smoke in the history, and the pressure of the bad times, that wiped out John Mason—and incidentally Jack Sanders."

"And Jim Humphreys and Leo Bishop," the sheriff put in.

"That's partly true," Kentucky allowed. "The killing of Humphreys and Bishop sure do make up an angle of this thing. It took two things to kill off Humphreys and Bishop—the smoke feeling between the brands between Mason's death, and Mason's death itself. Humphreys and Bishop were killed in the weirdest of one-sided range struggle that has ever been seen on this or any other range."

"The sheriff said slowly, 'Mason's death comes first. But don't you ever think of this—five forgotten—the funny look of this so-called range war. Everybody knows you've swamped Campy's range; and Campy's hardly raised his hand against it. I'll tell you plain, Elliot, if it turns out that Bishop and Humphreys were killed in the kind of slaughter it looks like, I'll—'

"Jim Elliot finished. 'I didn't come here to talk about range rights,' he said. 'but if you want a showdown on that, I'm ready any time. As long as there's honest cattle on the rim, or on the Bar Hook, no brand has ever been any harder against another brand than the Bar Hook has borne down on the 88. If Campy's pulled in his horns, maybe it's because he knows the rights of the 88 are going to be backed up for a change.'

Campy Ragland spoke for the first time. 'Right!' he said bitterly. 'Right!'

Sheriff Floyd Hopper said angrily. 'You're a funny one, Elliot, to bring in talk about rights!'

"You said yourself," Elliot answered. "The Bar Hook has folded up."

"They all turned their eyes to Campy Ragland; but the boss of the Bar Hook was rolling a cigarette with slow, methodical care, and he did not contribute any observations."

Sheriff Floyd Hopper swung restively in his seat. "I can't understand it," he said. "I can't understand it."

"You'll understand it now," said Kentucky Jones. "I can tell you exactly why Elliot has thought he could shove his head all over Bar Hook range in full peace and comfort."

Bob Elliot said, "If the idea is to sit here half the—"

"Let him alone, Bob," Hopper snapped.

Kentucky Jones looked Elliot over with a cool unfriendly eye. "I'll tell you another little thing that happened the day Mason was killed," he said. "Bob Elliot and Campy Ragland were riding the Bar Hook Pan range; and it happened that they met on that ride."

"Where did you get that?" Hopper put in.

"Pretty," Kentucky said, "from Elliot himself."

Elliot said, "I'll be d—d if—"

"Will you be still!" said Sheriff Hopper. "What then, Jones?"

"Elliot was armed; Campy Ragland was not. It seems to be a kind of custom with the 88 to take advantage of a situation like that—as Leo Bishop and I found out one day in a little conversation we had with Bill McCord. Naturally I wasn't there when Ragland and Elliot met; but I can tell you that what happened was this—Elliot says Ragland saw a cussing out as you couldn't expect any man to stand for, or put up with."

"In that right, Campy?" the sheriff demanded.

Campy Ragland gave a grunt which terly. "And you end up with nothing more to the point than a cheap brawl. You've wasted enough words to—"

"Not one single word," Kentucky contradicted him. "I had to go all over that so that you would understand what I'm going to happen—what I hope is going to happen now. Campy! Hold this range hog here when he comes to—put a gun on him if you need to."

"All right."

Jones caught Hopper's arm and dragged the sheriff after him to the door.

"What are you going to do? You've got the case worse scattered out now than—"

"Then we'll try to tie it together again. Here's where we tackle Bill McCord! It's the turn, it's the break, you hear me? I've got to run a bluff. Are you backing me or not?"

"I'm backing you."

"Give me the gun that killed Sanders."

Floyd Hopper obeyed; and Kentucky Jones stuck it in his waistband. "Come on!"

Three pairs of eyes turned upon Kentucky Jones and Floyd Hopper as they came into the kitchen. In the room from which they had come, all four men had been armed; and so accustomed had they become to the sagging gun belts as standard equipment in the last few days that here it was Ted Baylor and Bill McCord, who were unarmed, who looked unusual and suspicious now. Floyd Hopper was flushed and sharp-eyed; but though it was to Hopper the eyes of the three waiting men turned, it was Kentucky Jones who spoke, his face as unpleasantly cold and ugly as ice on broken rock.

"He showed Bill McCord the gun that had been in Sanders' hand as Leo Bishop found him dead."

"I don't suppose," he said to McCord, "you ever saw this gun before?"

Bill McCord seemed to consider for a long moment. "Maybe I have," he said at last; "and maybe I haven't."

"Would you care to say where it was when you saw it last?"

A humorless grin twisted one side of McCord's face. "You go to h—l," he answered.

Kentucky Jones eyed him sorrowfully. "Is that final?" he said.

"You bet your life it's final!"

"I'm sorry for this," Kentucky said. "I swear to heaven, I believe there's going to be an injustice done. I was afraid of this. But this McCord is a man who means what he says, Floyd. If he won't talk he won't talk. I guess there's nothing to do but follow up what Elliot says—don't it look that way to you?"

Floyd Hopper had no more idea of what Jones was talking about than did McCord. But he was a poker player, and a good one; and he had been in office for a long time. "It sure looks that way," he said.

Kentucky Jones said, "You're under arrest, McCord."

For a moment no one spoke. A hard gleam came into Bill McCord's eyes. "Who says so?" he demanded.

"Once more the sheriff, completely in the dark as he was, backed Kentucky's play gamely. 'I say so,' he told McCord."

"Personally," said Kentucky. "I don't think you're guilty, Bill. I'll admit I was kind of hoping that we had closed in on bigger game. Still, I suppose we ought to be glad that we can hang this on anybody at all. I guess we better tell you that anything you say will be used against you, McCord."

Bill McCord spat into the wood box. "What am I charged with?" he demanded.

"The murder of Lee Bishop," said Kentucky.

McCord's face hardened, but he went back to the making of his cigarette. "In the first place," he said, "I wasn't anywhere near it. And in the second place it wasn't no murder. Leo Bishop was killed in a fair stand-up fight."

"That he is plumb useless," said Kentucky contemptuously. "Because I was with Leo Bishop when he was killed, and Leo Bishop was killed by a man hidden in the rocks three hundred yards away; and the slug that killed him was poured into him after he was down and helpless, and I was carrying him to cover. And my story is covered by the nature of Bishop's wounds. Fair fight, h—l! That's murder—you hear me?"

McCord stared at Jones, his face unimpaired. At last he shook his head, puzzled. "I take all that to be free-hand lying. If you was with Bishop, you'd know that I wasn't there."

"He was shot from cover, I told you," Kentucky said. "I didn't see his killer. I could never have named you as the man—if Bob Elliot hadn't lost his gun."

"Elliot? Him lose his gun?" McCord repeated incredulously. "That's a hot one!"

Kentucky Jones shrugged. "I heard different," he said significantly. "That's a lie, he decided. 'That's a lie from the ground up! Nothing me nor Elliot had anything to do with any of this.'"

"So be it," said Kentucky. "Floyd, bring in Elliot. On horse—! I'll bring him myself." He flashed a malignant grin at McCord, and went out.

Behind him Hopper said to his deputy, "Watch this guy, Willie! He followed Kentucky Jones."

Kentucky and the sheriff paused for a whispered conference beyond the door.

"By G—d, Jones," said the sheriff, "I believe that guy knows something."

"Of course he knows something," Kentucky said irritably.

"But he got through the loop on you," Hopper said. "He's too cool and tough to stampee. You've played your ace, and never told a trick. What are you going to do now?"

"Lead the Jack," said Kentucky, unperturbed. As he moved on to the room where Campy was holding Bob Elliot, he no longer believed that he could lose.

A discussion was beginning in the little room where Campy was presiding over the now conscious Elliot. Jean and Campy did not appear to be sitting up in a chair. He leaned forward, his hands gripping the arms, and glowered at Ragland with eyes that seemed not quite able to focus accurately. "Put down that gun," he was saying. "There's no d—n—!" He checked as Kentucky and the sheriff appeared.

"Tell him," Kentucky whispered along to Hopper, "he's under arrest."

"You're under arrest, Elliot," said the sheriff.

"Tell him," Kentucky prompted.

"McCord has spilled the beans," he said. "McCord has spilled the beans," the sheriff repeated to Elliot with convincing emphasis.

Bob Elliot stared at them vaguely for a full quarter of a minute. "I don't know what you're talking about," he said finally.

Kentucky nudged Hopper, but this time the sheriff did not wait for his whispered instructions. "For the first time, Hopper seemed ready to go forward under his own power. 'You're charged with murder, Elliot,' he said. 'McCord has told it all.'"

Elliot stared at the sheriff for a long moment more. "I'll talk to McCord," he said at last, his voice harsh. "Let me talk to McCord."

"I should say not," said the sheriff.

"I should say yes," said Kentucky Jones. "McCord's in the kitchen, Elliot. Just step this way."

He pushed the sheriff ahead of him. Bob Elliot followed. Campy trailed along; but Jean stayed where she was.

"Here's your friend, McCord," said Kentucky. "Look him over and ask yourself what you've been depending on all this time."

In the doorway Bob Elliot stood, swaying on his legs like a drunken man. The muscles about his mouth twitched, and his eyes were red in a bloodless face.

"Look each other over," said Kentucky Jones. "A fine pair to draw to—or to build a hanging around."

Bill McCord cried out, "Bob, what the h—l you been telling these—?"

"What the devil you talking about?" said Elliot.

Kentucky Jones offered Elliot the butt of the gun that had killed Sanders. "Here's your gun, Elliot. They've matched it with the bullets that killed Zack."

A light flared up in Bob Elliot's eyes and he turned on Bill McCord. "McCord says this is my gun," he exploded. "he lies!"

"Ask Ted Baylor," Kentucky said. "Ted told the gentlemen where you lost saw this gun—after you won it at craps from Joe St. Marie."

Ted Baylor grinned at the gun again, and he hesitated. Kentucky Jones waited, balanced in suspense. He believed that one of the two—McCord or Elliot—would break under the one inat straw that Baylor might perhaps provide. But he had not talked to Ted Baylor—had found no chance to talk to him—and he did not know what this man would say.

"I guess you can remember when I saw this gun last, yourself, Bob," said Ted Baylor at last.

"You're crazy," said Elliot.

"I won that gun from Joe St. Marie, in a crap game, one night last fall," Ted Baylor said. "But I didn't have it an hour before I sold it to you, Bob, for two dollars and a half—and the band for a hat."

Bob Elliot said anxiously. "You were so d—n drunk that night you don't remember what you did?"

"So that's what you relied on?" said Kentucky Jones. "You thought Baylor was so drunk that the gun could never be traced?"

"I never saw that gun before in my life," said Elliot.

"It was a good idea of yours," said Kentucky. "To throw Bill McCord to the wolves. And it worked good enough so that we'll hang McCord all right; but—"

Bill McCord took a step toward Elliot, his face contorted. "You dirty sneak! So that's your game, is it? He's saying craps upon Sheriff Hopper. 'He's lied to you,' he almost shouted. 'He's lied to you like he lied to me! I know he was crazy to get Bishop killed, and I tried to pick a fight with Bishop for that reason. But he never went through. He told me he killed Bishop himself in fair fight. If I'd known he laid for him on the rim and plugged him with a rifle, without fight, I'd have walked out on him the minute that I knew it!'

Bob Elliot's voice rose violently. "You fool, will you shut your d—n mouth before—"

"I suppose," said Kentucky to Bill McCord, "you didn't even know that Bob Elliot killed Mason."

"No, I never."

"What did you suppose he wanted? Bishop killed for? You didn't know he hired you to kill Bishop because Bishop saw him at the Bar Hook the day Mason died?"

Bob Elliot began, "Bill, don't you let these—"

"You d—n streak of yellow," Bill McCord snarled at him. "I see it now! I don't wonder you down your d—n gun! If I'd known when you killed Leo Bishop that you lay off and plugged him with a rifle—"

"It's a d—n lie!" said Bob Elliot again.

"Is it?" McCord snarled at him. "I suppose it's a lie that you strapped on that gun and rode after Mason, that day when he laughed in your face—"

"By G—d, McCord," Elliot shouted. "Put it off on me, will you? McCord shouted back at him. 'I thought only be you killed Mason, when you told me you know he was killed with Campy's rifle. Why, you dirty state-winder—'

Bob Elliot's voice broke into something almost like a squeal. "You d—d—!" Suddenly he turned, lurched crazily at the door behind him, and was gone from the room.

Willie Helmer cried, "Shall I get him? Shall I get him?"

"McCord," roared Sheriff Hopper, "is this true?"

"Sure it's true!" McCord frothed. "I can see it now—and I can prove it to him every step of the way! Hang me in his place, will he? Why, that—"

Suddenly Bill McCord's face changed as if it had been struck with a whip. He whirled like a cat, snatched at the holstered gun of Willie Helmer; and though Helmer seized McCord's arm as the gun came out, McCord wrenched free. In that instant Jean, in the next room, screamed, "Kentucky, look out!" And Bob Elliot's first shot spoke from the door.

The next moment was one of those which witnesses afterward describe confidently, so that it is difficult to know the truth.

Kentucky Jones shouted, "Jean, get out of line!" and though he fired in the direction of Bob Elliot, he seemed to fire at the floor. Elliot dropped to one knee. Kentucky instantly fired again, his second shot smashing Bill McCord's gun wrist, so that McCord was spun half about. Almost in accord with Kentucky's second shot Bob Elliot fired again. Kentucky Jones stopped sideways as he once more fired on Bob Elliot. This time Bob went forward onto his face; and his gun, slipping from his relaxed hand, landed half way across the floor toward Kentucky Jones. Then gun and man lay still, and the room was still, heavy with the peculiar unforgettable smell of smokeless powder.

happened here," he told her. "This thing is true; nobody in the world has ever been as game, and as brave, and as true as you've been, through all this long stampede. There isn't your equal any place, and never has been, you hear me? And not a man of us here, or anywhere, is fit to saddle your bronc."

Presently, as he held her, the shuddering jerk of her breathing subsided, and she was quiet in his arms. "It's been so lonely, so terrible, for so long," she whispered at last. "Hold me tight, Kentucky; don't let me go."

"No," he answered, "not ever any more."

[THE END]

CHAPTER XIII

"Kentucky," said Sheriff Hopper, "what's happened here?"

The debris had been cleared away by now. Elliot, not as seriously hurt as under the circumstances, he might himself have wished, was sitting in a cot, as was Bill McCord; and Floyd Hopper was four miles up in the air.

"You don't need to watch Bill McCord so close," Kentucky said; "he's ready to tell you enough to convict Elliot before any Wolf Bench jury, without any more trouble. Your case was clinched the minute you found out that Sanders was killed with the gun that was found in his hand. It's been plain all along that Sanders was killed because he witnessed the killing of Mason; and you've heard McCord identify the gun that killed Sanders."

"But look here," Hopper insisted. "Up to the time that you got Elliot and McCord crossed up, you hadn't even talked to Ted Baylor."

"I didn't have time to get hold of him," Kentucky explained. "In the little time after I found out from St. Marie that the gun had passed through Baylor's hands. But then that wasn't necessary, hardly. Elliot had to have full information before he dared to flood the Bar Hook range. And he couldn't have got all those cattle on the move as quick as he did unless he had started working them the next morning after Mason was killed. He could hardly have got such information so quick—unless he had killed Mason himself."

"But you didn't know how many hands that gun passed through besides Ted Baylor. Ted Baylor might have passed it to or from anybody. You couldn't count on him to name the gun as Elliot's gun."

"Sure not. But that didn't matter. It's McCord's identification that counts. Of course, it might have been that the gun had wound up at the Bar Hook, and that Elliot walked in and borrowed it, the same as he did Campy's rifle. In that case, of course, there wouldn't have been any tangible evidence against Elliot, and we'd have lost out all around. But I figured that the killer would have shot quick with his own gun, in Zack's case; and then shoved the same gun into Zack's hand. He would have been in a hurry to get out of there about then."

"But how did you know that the gun in Sanders' hand wasn't Zack's own gun? Now there's that was the turning point of the whole thing."

"You didn't see that that wasn't Zack's gun?"

"Can I know every gun in the rimrock? How could any man guess it wasn't his?"

"You mean you thought Zack rode all over Wolf Bench carrying that gun in his hand?"

"In his hand? What you driving at?"

"He would have had to carry it in his hand. Sanders had no gun belt," Kentucky reminded him. "And there wasn't even wearing boots. And there wasn't a single pocket in his clothes that that gun would go in."

Within an hour after the showdown which had thrown Elliot into the sheriff's hands, Hopper had forgotten his gratification over the solution in his alarm over the storm which he was sure would follow. Tomorrow word of the charge against Elliot would have swept the rimrock. Already Floyd Hopper could see himself facing the mob which he now supposed would wish to take the law into their own hands—mobs made difficult by the unpopularity of the play. I thought I could hold that over him, and bluff him off. Instead—it only meant Leo's death. Kentucky, Kentucky, it's my fault he's dead. I ever blame could be placed in this world, that blame is on me!"

"Poor child," he said. "Poor child!

Jones, "You baited him into that, voice!"

"I was counting on his temper," Kentucky said. "Lord, I thought it would never break!"

Moppy's voice rose angrily. "If you got me out here to make fools of us all—"

"Shut up," Kentucky snapped at him. "We've got work to do."

"You've talked all around and about, and over the bush," Hopper said bit-
