Chelsea State Bank Pays Dividend To Stockholders Today

Letters mailed to stockholders of Chelsea State Bank today contain checks which signify the resumption of a dividend on the stock which is held by approximately 200 people in the community. The letter also gives the information that of the $55,000.00 preferred stock, most of which is held by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, $30,000.00 is being retired at this time, leaving only $25,000.00 of the preferred stock outstanding.

This information will be very gratifying to the people of the community as it proves the sound condition of this financial institution. The community has had uninterrupted banking service during the depression years, the two banks which were merged March 1, 1934 having been closed only during the compulsory period occasioned by the state and national banking holidays.

The $55,000.00 preferred stock was issued in November, 1934, as a part of the governmental policy of aiding bank credits throughout the country.
The satisfactory earnings of the bank during the past year made possible the reduction in this obligation and payment of the dividend, checks for which were mailed today.

The complete letter mailed to stockholders is as follows:

To Our Stockholders:
It is with a great deal of satisfaction that we are able to report to you that the merged bank is able to show a very satisfactory earning statement at the close of its first full year's operation as a consolidated bank.

It is especially gratifying to inform you at this time of the approval of the State Banking Department, and the Federal Reserve Bank to retire thirty thousand ($30,000) Dollars of the preferred stock, thus reducing the preferred capitalization to twenty-five thousand ($25,000) Dollars.

In addition to the retirement of the preferred stock your board of directors felt the financial position of your bank to be such as to warrant the payment of a dividend of $3.00 per share on the common stock. A check is herewith enclosed, representing said dividend on the number of shares standing in your name on the books of this bank.

The officers and directors appreciate your co-operation and trust that this spirit of loyalty may be continued.

A notice of the annual meeting of the stockholders is herewith enclosed and we trust that you will be able to attend.

Yours very truly,
P. G. Schaible, Pres.

FIRE DESTROYS RESIDENCE

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the residence on the Matthew Kusterer estate farm, south of Chelsea on the Manchester road, about 8:30 near the roof and consumed practically the entire building. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wahl, who occupied the residence, were able to save a portion of their household goods. The loss on the building is estimated at $8,000.00, partially covered by insurance.

Guild of the Congregational church

Continue Fight On Relocation of US-12

A group from Chelsea and vicinity were in Lansing on Friday where they met with V. E. Steinbaugh, deputy state highway commissioner and Secretary of State Orville Atwood and further protested the relocation of US-12 past Chelsea. The party included Herman Pierce, Alfred Lindauer, Albert Pielanier, Fred Kennedy, Supervisors Theo. H. Bahnmiller of Sylvan and Leigh Beach of Lima, and four representatives of the county road commission from Ann Arbor.

Through the efforts of Walter Nelson, attorney for the State Farmers' Union organization who was present at the meeting, Mr. Steinbaugh promised that a survey would be made of the present right-of-way and blueprints would be prepared, to give the old route an even chance in competition with the proposed relocation, and submit both plans to the Federal Road Bureau for their consideration.

Mr. Steinbaugh told the group that inasmuch as there is a shortage of funds for the purchase of right-of-ways that it is not likely that any immediate action will be taken on the matter of relocation.

A meeting was held at Sylvan town hall Monday evening of this week, when an organization was formed to continue the fight against relocation of the highway. Supervisor Leigh Beach of Lima acted as temporary chairman and led the discussion, which was mostly regarding the Lansing meeting, stressing the promise of Mr.
Steinbaugh that the state highway department would survey the old right-of-way and prepare estimates which will be presented to the Federal Bureau at the same time the relocation estimates are presented. Mr.
Hallenbeck of the county road commission was present and entered into the discussion.

The organization formed Monday evening will be known as the US-12 Highway Association, with Alfred Lindauer as president, representing the farmers; Theo. H. Bahnmiller, vice-president, representing the village of Chelsea, and Jas. Park as secretary-treasurer, representing the South Main St. district. The officers will confer with Walter Nelson and Associates, Detroit attorneys who represent the Farmers' Union, to formulate plans to carry on the work of bringing the matter up to proper authorities, and also to devise means of raising funds to fight the case.

Howard Spedding of Ann Arbor, Kiwanis Lieutenant Governor of the Sixth Michigan Division, attended the meeting of the local club Monday evening and conducted a school of instruction for incoming officers, directors and committeemen who will assume their new duties next week. E.
W. Eaton, who has been president of the club during the past year, gave his farewell address, expressing appreciation to club members and committees for their cooperation in conducting the affairs of the club. Bruce club.

PIPELINE WORKERS HERE

The second group of workers on the Simrail pipeline arrived in town the first of the past week. The company has opened a restaurant for the workers in the Merkel building on North Main street and their offices are located in rooms over the Chelsea Bakery.
Many of the workers are rooming in private homes in town. The majority of the workers are from the south and they felt the cold winter weather of the past week very much.

Eastern Concern Buys 'L' Building, Start Remodeling

Announcement has been made by R.
H. Rossman, receiver for the Union and Peoples National Bank of Jackson, that the "L" building, a part of the former Lewis Spring & Axle plant in Chelsea, has been sold to the Sterling Fiber Co. of Waltham, Mass.

According to representatives of the company making the purchase, who were in Chelsea this week, they plan to start remodeling operations and repair work on the building at once, and machinery will be arriving at the plant within the next two weeks.
They plan to start operations in the local plant about the first of February and will employ about 60 people. They will manufacture insulation material for automobile bodies, having listed among their customers the Fisher Body Co., Chrysler, Ford and other large manufacturers.

The local company will be a subsidiary of the eastern company and the name for the Chelsea concern will be announced later, according to company officials. Purchase of the local building, which is the largest of the group of buildings north of the railroad, was made so that some of their operations will be nearer the companies they supply.

It is planned to make the building modern in every respect, and activity in the plant which has been vacant for many years will be a welcome sight to Chelsea residents.

Six families, including some officials, will locate in Chelsea as the result of the factory location here.

METHODIST HOME

Mrs. Mary Milers Koober, a highly respected member of the Home, departed this life on Sunday morning, December 22, 1935. She was born in the township of Salem in Washtenaw county, July 26, 1860. She received a good primary education in the public schools of the county. She was first married to Charles Francis Wilkins, who died in 1894. By Mrs. Wilkins she had one son who also died in 1934. She was later married to John P. Koober, who died in 1928. She came to the Home September 29, 1932. Brief funeral services were held at the Home Tuesday morning, after which her remains were taken to her former home in Marion for interment. Mrs. W. H. Stewart of Clinton, a niece of the deceased, was present with her during her last illness.

Mrs. Edwin N. Brown returned Friday afternoon after a visit of several weeks in Chicago with her daughter and family.

The Home acknowledges gratefully a generous supply of cards for Christmas greetings which were received shortly before the holidays, a choice box for every member, the gift of Merriam Bible Class of Wesley church in Detroit.

Lewis Bernhart, who was recently injured in an auto accident, was discharged from the hospital and returned home Saturday evening, out of danger, but still showing numerous marks of the accident.

Mrs. Eliza Brown, formerly of Bay City, received word Monday of the sudden death of her only remaining brother, Reuben Barstow, whose home was in Bay City, but who was temporarily visiting with relatives in Detroit at the time of his death. Mrs. Brown started at once for Detroit, his wife, who was on a visit in New York, was likewise called home for the funeral.

Miss Rachael Knaggs' sisters Saturday evening, were her brother, Heyrick Knaggs of Gormfash, Mich., her nephew, Philip Knaggs of Lincoln Park, Mich.

Rev. John Bauman of Manchester visited the Home on Sunday afternoon at the communion service, and preached an excellent sermon on Love as the motivating force of Christianity and the outstanding need of the world.

A varied New Year's program was conducted at the Home on Tuesday evening at the close of which beautiful illustrated calendars were presented.

World Around a Sea
The average production for the year 1935 was 585 pounds of milk per cow per month. The cost for feed alone was $7.75 per 100 pounds of milk and the feed cost was a part of the expense of producing milk.

Plan New Programs For Radio Station

A greater service to the people of Michigan has been made possible from radio station WKAR by the Federal Communications Commission granting an increased number of daylight operating hours and of permission to change the frequency assignment. The change in frequency will not be made until after January 14, but the program changes will be made immediately. The new frequency will be 860 kilocycles.

Headlining the new programs, Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald will speak each Friday at 4:45 p. m. in this "Governor's Hour". Gov. Fitzgerald will discuss affairs of state government of interest to all the people of Michigan. The Department of State will broadcast messages in connection with the state-wide safety campaign with Orville Atwood, Secretary of State, as the first speaker on January 10. The State Department of Public Instruction will conduct a teachers' hour each Thursday. Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, State Supt., will open this series. The Michigan State Police will describe the work of the police both in criminal detection and in civil protection. The State Dept. of Agriculture and the State Highway Dept. will continue their broadcasts.

For those interested in education, the Michigan State College of the Air provides six courses by radio. Three broadcasts each week direct from the classroom will be made of the course Survey of English Literature. Spanish lessons will continue with Prof. J. D. Savin conducting the course. New courses include Rural Sociology, Farm Electrification, Planning and Remedial Farm Buildings, and Child Development. Information and enrollment blanks are now being sent to those who wish to pursue these courses.

Many other new features are added to the programs, both in education and in entertainment. The high schools of the state are being invited to participate with bands, orchestras, and glee clubs. A series of vocational guidance will begin on January 13, with Pres. R. S. Shaw of Michigan State College as the first speaker. An early morning program is to be given daily at 8:00 a. m. Special events, such as Farmers' week meetings, are being scheduled.

Dairymen Kept Busy In Avoiding Losses

Michigan dairymen are serious in their attempt to make their cows pay for their keep, as the records from the herd improvement associations show that more cows have been culled for low production than in previous years.

The average production for the year 1935 was 585 pounds of milk per cow per month. The cost for feed alone was $7.75 per 100 pounds of milk and the feed cost was a part of the expense of producing milk.

their daughters. Trades were made on several other bulls. When feed costs increase, it is frequently possible for the tester to suggest changes in the dairy ration which will save money for the herd owner. The changes may be in the substitution of one concentrate for a higher priced one or for an increase in legume forage and a decrease in grains. Changes made in rations during November saved $236 for members in Michigan.

Expect Traffic Jams At Women's Meetings

Several traffic cops will be needed around the Home Economics building at Michigan State College, Farmers Week, February 3-7, as space is limited and the program arranged carries an appeal to homemakers from the city as well as for farm women.

One of the talks which all rural housewives will want to hear will be given by Miss Margaret Hartnack, Grand Rapids, who will discuss "Lighting in the Home." Recent developments of power lines in rural districts has made the matter of the choice of electrical equipment one of the most interesting household subjects.

Dr. Mary Swartz Rose, professor of nutrition, Columbia University, appears on the home economics program and at the general meeting on Tuesday, February 4. All general meetings are held in the afternoon or evening. Dr. Rose is a well known writer and her talk will be enjoyed by those attending the home economics banquet Tuesday evening.

The skein of affairs in Ethiopia will be untangled in a talk by Dr. H. H. Kimbrell, M. S. C. Africa seems far away to most Americans but the situation there may enmesh Michigan citizens unless there is a general knowledge of the import of the moves and counter moves of European nations.

The commercial aspect of the week's program will appear in the talk given by Miss Winifred Gettemy on "Home Crafts." There are several ways in which women who are talented with the needle or in the kitchen arts can supplement the family income, and Miss Gettemy will tell which of the ways are most practical and of the experience some women have had in marketing homemade products.

The most artistic ways of decorating the interior of the house will be the subject discussed by Miss Evelyn Miller, Herron Art School, Indianapolis. She appears on the program on both Wednesday and Thursday. Artistic and efficient ways of decorating the body's interior will be shown by Miss Lou Brower, who demonstrates the preparation of food each morning. Miss Brower formerly was on the extension staff of Cornell University.

SLATS' DIARY

Sunday—I spent peacefully all the day and night at this season of the year. I felt like the good old days of a quiet life in the country.

Tuesday—I was dancing with Jane at a dance at Elmhurst house. I did not want to dance with her but I did not want to be it and the old girl was the girl's fall. It was not the mushy that was for me.

True Armament and Disarmament

MUCH is said and written these days about armament and disarmament. Right-thinking individuals the world over favor peace and conclude that war is not the best way to accomplish a constructive settlement. In spite of the yearning for peace and righteousness there seems to be a constant clamor by lawless bodies for larger armies and navies. The argument is that nations must continue to protect their rights through a means that is itself wrong—a paradoxical presentment often promulgated through false propaganda.

What then can peace-loving individuals do to correct this faulty? Every Christian knows that the solution to all problems can be obtained through an understanding of the Bible, particularly of the teachings of Christ Jesus.

In the Scriptures in the command (Matthew 22:39), "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Could one love his neighbor as himself and hate or wish to harm him? Could one love his neighbor as himself and continually fear and distrust him? Could one love and distrust occupy thought together with love and if so, could there possibly be a desire to attack or harm one another? Of course the answer to these questions is forever.

Not the solution, then, is to arm ourselves with love and to disarm every phase of error that would oppose love.

In Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, Mary Baker Eddy writes (p. 29): "Christians must take heed. They must grapple with sin in themselves and in others, and continue this warfare until they have banished their course." The only battle possible, then, is in individual human consciousness, where suggestions of hate and distrust of our fellow men are to be replaced with love and confidence. Paul says: "The weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strong holds" (II Cor. 10:4).

We must grapple with sin in ourselves and in others—must know that sin belongs not to any child of God. Each one needs to know that hatred, envy, greed, and malice are not from God; hence are not expressed by God's man. We must know that there is no law to govern these false suggestions, and that they lose their seeming power when denied entrance into our thought. We must know that sin cannot govern or control our feelings or our actions. To separate the being claims of sin from our thought of our neighbor will enable us to love him as God's child, and will thus also help to destroy hatred and distrust in his own consciousness.

Nations are comprised of individuals; therefore the thinking of individuals constitutes the thinking of the nations. Since every individual desires peace and that there be no war, whence does the present war come?

Some camels, though, have two humps. These are the animals which are known as Bactrian camels (because they came originally from Bactria, now part of Afghanistan). The single humped animal is the Arabian camel. A dromedary is a camel, too, but a species noted for its speed. It can bear its rider 100 miles a day. The hump or humps consist of fat from which a camel derives nourishment when it must go hungry and thirsty in the desert. After a lean time, the camel's hump is noticeably smaller. Fear not, we say.

Drury Lane Theater
The famous London Drury Lane theater dates back to 1663, when the first theater of this name was opened on the site of a riding ground, at that time an aristocratic quarter of the town. It was called the Theater Royal and the first play produced was Beau and Fletcher's "The Humorous Lover." Nell Gwynne made her first appearance there two years later. The first bottling of beer took place in 1672 and was succeeded in 1674 by a theater designed by Sir Christopher Wren; this lasted until 1791 when it was torn down. The third one burned down in 1809 and the fourth and present theater was opened in 1812. Drury Lane's history is practically the history of the English stage for the past three centuries and is connected with such names as Mrs. Siddons, Garrick, Kemble, Keate, Sheridan and Macready. John Howard Payne played Norval there in "Douglas" in 1815 and may have been one of the first American actors to play there; he never married.

arise? Through a false sense of patriotism, a wave of propaganda may go forth leading some to believe that they have been unjustly treated, and that they must shoulder arms and kill their fellow men in order to settle the difficulty and protect their government and their personal property.

At the base of this misinformation will often be found a sense of greed claiming to influence groups who think they may gain something by stirring up strife between nations. Certainly this lie and its effects can be neutralized by the consecrated effort of Christians to eliminate from individual consciousness the belief in hatred and to replace it with love.

At our present stage of thinking it may not be feasible to dispense with navies, but there should be no rivalry between nations as to this method of armament. Good will does not exploit fighting equipment or ability. If we are to exemplify the Scriptural "Love thy neighbor as thyself," competition, rivalry, hate must cease, and love must be established in individual human consciousness in order that disarmament may be accomplished on a sound basis. —The Christian Science Monitor.

TECUMSAH—As the year 1935 drew its end and the dawn of a new year appeared, heads of Tecumseh's industrial firms were optimistic today about the outlook for 1936. R. W. Erick, president of the Tecumseh Products Company, declared that his firm has the brightest future in its history. The company is now employing about 200 persons, but this number, he said, will be stepped up gradually until peak production is reached in late February. At that time, he said, some 400 persons will be on the payroll, which he estimated would amount to $275,000 during 1936. —Herald.

MORENO—A WPA traffic survey has been planned for Lenawee county, including 14 other stations gathering similar information throughout the state. This work will be begun about the first of January, and information pertaining to the number of cars and weight of trucks will be obtained. The main station will be situated at the intersection of M-52 and the Ogden road. Other stations will be located at the intersection of US-112 and US-223; US-127 at the Ohio line; M-54 and M-52 at Adrian; M-50 and M-52; and M-52 north of Tecumseh. WPA "white collar" employees will be given work for one year on this project. —Observer.

HOWELL—Friday, December 20, 1935, E. J. Drewry, received of the First National Bank of Howell, Michigan, announced the release of a third dividend of 25 per cent to all depositors who have proved their claims. The total amount of this dividend amounts to $92,499.32 and brings the total amount paid to depositors to 85 per cent of their claims. A 50 per cent dividend was paid when the bank opened. Later a 10 per cent, and now the 25 per cent, release makes a total of 85 per cent paid. —Republican Press.

JACKSON—Mayor W. W. Wright will step out of municipal employment December 31 and on January 1 will assume a federal job—assistant to the supervisor of a district census committee under the Department of Commerce Bureau of Census. Forty-eight enumerators will canvass this congressional district. William C. Starling, of Monroe, is the supervisor. —Evening Star.

The Term "Honey-moon"
Harold Malcolm Krebs, supervising geologist of the California state department of agriculture, traces the term "honey-moon" to ancient Babylon. "It was the custom of Babylonians to smear honey on the bricks over the door of the house of newlyweds," he says. "For 28 days after the marriage, the aroma of the honey clung to the house, and the newlyweds were supposed thereby to acquire a sweetness which tempered the remainder of their lives. With the 28 days constituting the length of the four phases of the moon, the period was called 'honey-moon'."

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—I understand the earth is divided into five different ages. Can you state what these ages are and the length of time each had, and whether the combined totals mark the age of the earth?

Ans.—Scientists have divided the earth into five different ages. The first period is known as the Archeozoic Age which is estimated at eighteen million years. (Before that the earth was a solid mass of molten lava, and there is no way of estimating how long this condition of the earth had been in existence). Then in the order named follow the other periods and their estimated length of time in years: Proterozoic Age, eighteen million years; Paleozoic Age, twenty-four million years; Mesozoic Age, nine million years; Cenozoic Age (the present one), three million years. The total being seventy-two million years, the approximate age of the earth.

Ques.—Do pineapples grow on trees or grow on vines like pumpkins and melons grow?

Ans.—Neither way. Pineapples grow from plants in a manner not a great deal unlike cabbage—grows. Leaves spring up from the roots, and in the midst of them a short flower-stem is thrown up, bearing a single flower and therefore a single fruit. The leaves are long and slender, being one to two inches wide, and their length will average from twelve to eighteen inches.

Ques.—Do bats build their nests in hiding places? I have never seen one, and am rather curious to know how they can be so successful.

Ans.—Bats do not build nests, as they do not lay eggs. When bats are born they cling between the folds of the wings of the parent and are thus carried about by the mother in her nightly excursions in quest of bugs and insects on which the mother lives and feeds her young.

Ques.—Did the Gypsies originate in Egypt? Or what country speaks their language?

Ans.—It is not known conclusively just where the Gypsies came from. Most ethnologists concur in the belief that they are the descendants of some obscure Hindu tribe; that they separated in small bands and scattered over the face of the earth. Their language is known as "Romany," because they call themselves "Roma."

Ques.—Where is Mount Sinai, where the Laws of Moses were received?

Ans.—Mount Sinai is located on the northwest cliffs of Jebel Musa in the mountains of Sinai Peninsula. While Mount Sinai answers the conditions better than any other mountain this place is in dispute as to the actual spot where the Laws of Moses (the Book of the Covenant) were received.

Ques.—What cities in the United States have over a million population? Also which are the five largest cities of the world and their rank?

Ans.—Cities in the United States with a population over a million, according to 1930 census, are: New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Los Angeles. The five largest cities of the world are: London, 8,202,818; New York, 6,981,015; Tokyo (Japan), 5,818,000; Chicago, 4,000,340; Berlin (Germany), 4,250,000. The five are taken from 1932 census.

Ques.—Why are divorces and remarriages so common among the movie stars?

Ans.—There are various reasons for this, which are good, bad and indifferent. Probably one contributing factor is that the high-powered acting attenuates infatuation, which is so entirely different from the realities of life. However, we do not know the inner secrets of their affairs.

Ques.—How and where did the expression "Peeping Tom" originate?

Ans.—This had its origin in Coventry, England, where the town-folk were unmercifully oppressed with taxes in the year 1040. A. D. Lady Godiva, a Saxon, and according to legend, was the wife of the Earl of Mercia and Lord of Coventry, made an impassioned appeal to him to relieve the people of the unjust taxes. He agreed on condition that to prove her sincerity she ride naked on horseback through the streets of the town. When she did it every person in the town retreated to their homes and drew down the window shades. Tom Willoughby, a tailor, was the only soul in the town mean enough to peep at her from a window as she passed by. He was stricken blind, and after that he was known as "Peeping Tom."

Rhode Island's Capital
Rhode Island in its early days had almost as many capitals as it had towns, as the general assembly met in circuit, first in one town and then in another. Finally, notes a writer in the Philadelphia Inquirer, with the growth of the assembly the meeting places were reduced to two places, Providence and Newport, as the cities which could take care of so many extra people. For many years these two capitals were retained with the legislature, opening its annual session in May at Newport, and after a few days adjourning for a more extended one at Providence, which began the following January. Since 1900 the legislature has met at Providence and the state's constitution was amended as to discontinue with the Newport session.

I AIN'T DEAD YET

Arthur Carlton

I've knocked around anazin',
In this world of storm and calm,
And I've had some hard fought battles,
But I've kept a plodding on,
And my spirits just as cheery,
As it ever was, you bet,
O, I've had my tribulations,
But I ain't dead yet.

I've seen a heap of changes,
In the country 'round about,
An' my old time friends and neighbors
Is most all a dyin' out.
But I guess I'm tough and hearty,
And the time for me ain't set,
I've seen my friends a leavin',
But I ain't dead yet.

But sometimes I git to thinkin',
As I'm settin' by myself,
That there's a reason for it,
Why I ain't laid on the shelf.
There might be some little service
That the world would never get
If I was taken from it—
So I ain't dead yet.

And so I'll keep a hustlin',
With all the might I got,
And I'll plant a few more posies,
In the old world's garden spot.
And tho' I'm old and foggy,
I won't sit down and fret,
But I'll show the folks around here
That I ain't dead yet.

And when I get up yonder,
Where eternal flowers bloom,
And stand among the thousands
All around the great white throne,
Then I'll say to those around me,
Even tho' we haven't met,
"Why, this beats all creation,
For I ain't dead yet."

Health Items

(Osteopathy for Influenza and Pneumonia)

During the early days of Osteopathy considerable publicity was given the treatment because of the startling results obtained in the treatment of those conditions called "Incurable." The success obtained in these diseases fades into insignificance when compared with the success achieved in the treatment of Colds, Bronchitis, Influenza and Pneumonia.

A number of years ago, during the world-wide scourge, it was estimated that at least Ten Million people died of Influenza and Pneumonia. A Health Commissioner of a large Eastern City reported a death rate of 27% and a larger Mid-Western City lost 14%. These same Cities reported a 83% loss from Pneumonia.

During the same epidemic almost 2500 Osteopathic Physicians in Canada and the United States, reported on over 110,000 cases of Influenza. There was no doubt regarding the diagnosis of these cases. Only 1% of those patients with Influenza died under Osteopathic treatment. In Pneumonia 10% died.

Practically the same treatment is used by all Osteopathic Physicians. Vaccines and serums were not used but particular attention was given to the elimination of toxin resulting from the disease. The Osteopathic Physician depends upon the natural defensive mechanism of the body to bring about the desired results.

If neglected a simple "head cold" may terminate fatally.

Any reader desiring information regarding Osteopathy may obtain such information, with obligation, by writing to Osteopathic Items, P. O. Box 331, Chelsea, Michigan.

Python, World's Largest Snake; Anaconda, Second

The largest snake in the world is the python. The anaconda is second and the boa third.

Fantastic stories are told about these great serpents swallowing oxen and tigers. Such feats are impossible. A python might possibly kill them by crushing them in its mighty folds, but the largest animal it could dispose of at a meal is a dog or a goat.

The noted python of Asia, India, China, and the Malay Archipelago, which sometimes exceeds 30 feet in length, is the largest of the pythons. Its color is light yellowish-brown with squarish black markings. Savage in disposition, inhabiting low-lying and hot regions, it grows slowly and probably lives to a great age. Pythons hang motionless from trees by their prehensile tails, or lurk in grass or water for their unsuspecting victims, which consist chiefly of birds, rodents, and other small animals. They are greatly dreaded by the natives of the regions they inhabit.

The python lays from 50 to 100 eggs, around which the female coils her great body for two months before they are hatched. —Tit-Bits Magazine.

The New Way to Food Conservation and Savings Throughout the Home---

Years ago, the cost of producing electricity was much greater than now. Then this country had fuel supplies in great profusion, and fuel was cheap. It was more expensive to cook electrically than with fuel. In the last decade or two, improvements in the electric art have brought the cost of electricity to its present extremely low level, while fuel supplies have diminished and increased in cost. Today, the unfavorable comparison between operating costs no longer exists; you can cook electrically for only one cent a meal per person. But the greatest savings are secured by the conservation of food. A roast cooked electrically weighs much more than one cooked by any old-fashioned method. When you cook electrically, there is no soot, no fumes to stain walls and draperies, no re-decorating expense.

A Message of APPRECIATION to Our Community

It is with the utmost sincerity that the officers and directors of Chelsea State Bank extend thanks and appreciation to the people of the community who have expressed their faith in our banking institution through their continued patronage and expressions of good-will in other ways.

The fact that we have been able to resume payment of dividends on the stock in our bank has been made possible only as the result of the faith placed in us, which has made possible a volume of business which shows very satisfactory returns for the efforts we have put forth to serve our community with every banking service.

People of the community who are interested in having a sound bank in their midst will rejoice in the fact that the institution has reached a point where there should be no question in the mind of anyone as to its soundness, which insures a continuance of a service which has been uninterrupted even during the trying times of the past few years, when many communities of the state and nation have suffered materially because of the lack of banking facilities.

The State Banking Department and the Federal Reserve Bank have given us permission to retire more than one-half the preferred stock held by the latter institution, which is conclusive evidence that our bank rates very highly with the state and national banking departments.

We believe we have made an enviable record in the field of banking in the past, and we will make every effort to even better serve the banking needs of our community.

Bedlington Terrier Is Smart, Scrappy, Loyal. Contrary to popular belief the Bedlington terrier is not the result of a misalliance between a sheep and a sheep dog. The story is that the Bedlington terrier is a cross between the Dandie Dinmont terrier and the otterhound. He combines the latter's love of water and scenting ability with the former's gameness, intelligence and loyalty, writes R. B. Taynton in the Washington Post.

Where he gets his scrappy disposition and fierce jealousy, both utterly belied by his lamblike appearance, is unknown. The Bedlington terrier is a longer legged dog than most terriers, only slightly smaller than the alderdale. Unlike most dogs, his breed standard calls for a flat-sided, narrow-chested dog, but one that gives an impression of muscular strength. Most show Bedlingtons are blue, but many, tan and liver colored are also admitted. All should have pale topknots.

It is the pale, silky topknot, inherited from its Dandie forbears, that gives the Bedlington its sheeplike air. This is further enhanced by the smooth, long jaw formation and thin, sparsely clad tail.

WOULD PROTECT BANKING FIELD IN RURAL AREAS

American Bankers Association Announces Purpose to Combat Return of Excessive Number of Banks

CITES LAX CHARTER POLICIES IN THE PAST

Finds a Chief Cause of Bank Failures Was Too Many Banks—Existing Sound Banks Serving Communities Well

NEW YORK. — Existing sound banks, especially the small banks in the rural districts which are serving their communities well, should be protected from any return of the over-banked local conditions caused by former lax chartering policies, which were mainly to blame for the unfavorable failure record of the past, says the Economic Policy Commission of the American Bankers Association. This is brought out in a report covering an investigation by the commission of bank failures and public policies in chartering banks.

"The Commission's study gives an impressive revelation of how great a part mistaken public policies in the chartering of banks played in creating the unsound banking structure which finally collapsed with the Bank Holiday in March 1933," Robert V. Fleming, president of the association, says in a foreword.

"Over-production of banks, literally by thousands, over many years in the face of insistent warnings not only from bankers and others who recognized the danger, but even more so from the mounting records of bank failures themselves, is clearly shown to have constituted as a whole one of the greatest single economic errors in the history of the Nation."

A Recurrence Feared

He refers to fears of a recurrence of over-banking recently expressed by Federal banking authorities, to the powers given the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation by the provision of the Banking Act of 1935 over the admission of banks to membership in the insurance fund, to strengthened state laws and to the policies now being followed by both national and state supervisory authorities, aimed at safeguarding the nation against over-banking.

"But sound laws and conscientious officials are not of themselves always sufficient safeguard in any field of our complex national life unless they have the active support of public opinion," he adds. "It is the purpose of the American Bankers Association to aid in marshaling public opinion in support of both national and state supervisory authorities in their efforts to strengthen and protect the banking structure."

The Economic Policy Commission summarizes its findings in part as follows:

"The facts show a distinct causal relationship between the over-chartering of banks and the abnormal bank failure conditions that prevailed from 1920 to the bank holiday in 1933. It is desirable that studies be made on the basis of experience to develop standards governing the number of banks or the volume of bank capital which can be successfully operated."

"Such a study would embrace the question whether banking facilities can best be supplied to the rural districts by small unit banks or by branches from banks of substantial capital in larger centers. Existing sound banks, which are serving their communities well, should be protected from any return of the over-banked local conditions caused in the past by lax chartering policies."

Banking Officials Queried. "An inquiry among state bank commissioners shows a preponderant opinion against increasing materially the number of banks, coupled with the fact that present laws give them sufficient discretion to prevent a repetition of the grave errors of the past."

"Under present abnormal conditions, with the Federal Government extensively exercising loaning powers in competition with the banks, and with industry itself so largely supplied with funds as to render it to a great degree independent of normal bank borrowing, the banking structure even with its present reduced numbers, finds it difficult to support its existing capital in investment and operating personnel."

"These are new factors, intensifying the need for highly prudent and restrictive chartering policies. We urge the retirement of the Federal Government from the banking business as rapidly as the return of normal business conditions warrant."

Conference on Banking. NEW YORK. — An eastern states conference on banking, service will be held by the American Bankers Association in Philadelphia January 23 and 24 as a part of the organization's nationwide program on banking development, it has been announced.

Robert V. Fleming, president of the association, will preside over the meetings. It is stated that this conference will be the first of several to be held in various parts of the country presenting a program the details of which are now in the course of preparation.

The general topic of the conference will embrace the managerial, legislative and operative problems confronted by all classes of banks. An outstanding phase of the meetings will be the development of plans for promoting a general better public understanding in regard to bank functions and policies.

Most of the Presidents

Picked From Legal Body

The lawyers easily outnumber all the other professions and trades in the Presidential chair, although not all of those who had been admitted to the bar had ever practiced to a great extent.

Twenty-one of the 31 men who have held the office have been attorneys—John Adams, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, John Quincy Adams, Jackson, Van Buren, Tyler, Polk, Fillmore, Pierce, Buchanan, Lincoln, Hayes, Garfield, Cleveland, Benjamin Harrison, McKinley, Taft, Wilson, Coolidge and President Roosevelt.

Washington was a planter and a farmer. He had been trained as a surveyor. Zachary Taylor was also a farmer, a Louisiana cotton planter, but a good deal of his life had been spent as a professional soldier. William Henry Harrison was a land owner, a soldier and a politician.

Fillmore, in early life, was apprenticed as a wool carder, but later took to law. Andrew Johnson was a tailor until he began a career of 40 years in public office by being elected an alderman.

Grant had served in the army, sold real estate, farmed and clerked in a store before the Civil war. He entered the publishing business after his Presidency, and failed disastrously.

President Arthur had taught school and followed a political career. Theodore Roosevelt's working years were almost entirely spent in politics and political office. Harding was in the newspaper business for nearly forty years. Woodrow Wilson, though a lawyer, spent the greater part of his life as a teacher, and Herbert Hoover was an engineer.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Ocean's Greatest Depth

Is More Than Six Miles

The greatest depression in the ocean is in the vast gulf called the Mindanao Deep, off the Philippines. Here, in latitude 9 degrees 41 minutes 18 seconds north and longitude 126 degrees 50 minutes 15 seconds east, the Pacific descends to 35,400 feet—more than six miles.

This gives a range of more than 11½ miles between the bottom of the ocean and the top of the land—Mount Everest, in the Himalayas, 29,141 feet above sea level.

The bottom to the Mindanao Deep was discovered in recent years by the United States navy. Previously the greatest depth known was 32,644 feet, also in the Pacific, 145 miles southeast of Tokyo. This depth was measured by a Japanese naval survey in 1924. A series of deeps extends along the Pacific not far from the elevations of the Asiatic coast. Adjustments between these diverse levels have been held responsible for such disasters as the great Japanese earthquake of several years ago.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

No Duels in England

Duels are not fought in England, writes a correspondent in Pearson's London Weekly, because people are too sensible, and perhaps too law abiding. If anyone wants to fight a duel he must go abroad to some country where the laws either allow the practice or wink at it. In a duel the person challenged has the choice of weapons, and some Englishmen have, on occasion, chosen fists, which has disconcerted their opponents.

Dingo Similar to Collie

The dingo is about the size and has something of the appearance of the collie. The color varies between reddish brown and black, with frequently white feet and tip of tail. The muzzle is pointed and the ears rather short and broad. The jaws are remarkable for their tremendous power, which enables the animal completely to tear away the flesh gripped in its bite and thus kill its prey largely by shock.

Reason for Jack Horner Story

Horner was the messenger whom the abbot of Glastonbury sent to Henry VIII with the deeds of certain manors involved in the dissolution of monasteries. Horner obsequiously handed the parcel to the royal spoliator, but first of all managed to abstract the deeds of the manor of Wells, a "plum," indeed, and the abbot was afterward punished on the charge that he had withheld them.

Newton's Start Inauspicious

Few men ever changed the face of a civilization more in a single lifetime than did Newton with his mathematics; yet as an infant, it is said, he was one of the most miserable specimens of babyhood ever seen.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORY

The Gentleman From Paris

IT ALL came about from engaging a caretaker without looking into his antecedents.

Dr. and Mrs. Jerome Depland—the last named being an Italian countess—had a winter home in Minneapolis.

They were in the habit of going south for winter, and left the Western home in charge of a venerable servant.

One year when they returned to Minneapolis they discovered that the servant had disappeared, and with him many of the precious possessions of the family.

These included a rare watch that had once been the property of Cardinal Richelieu, and a grape cluster design in pearls, diamonds and platinum, the work of the peerless artist, Benvenuto Cellini.

It was felt instinctively that the stolen goods had been taken to New York, so Doctor Depland called upon George B. Dougherty, a clever detective of that city, who had made a reputation by solving more than one perplexing case.

His first inquiry concerned the venerable caretaker.

The victims were sure that he was all right; they feared, in fact, that he might have met with foul play.

As a proof of the man's good name, they exhibited a sheaf of letters of recommendation he had brought with him when he applied for the job. Dougherty investigated and found that all the letters had been forged.

This satisfied him that the man was a crook, and, from the character of the robbery, he was convinced that the caretaker worked with confederates.

His first move was to make a tour of the pawnshops of New York.

After that he visited many of the dealers in antiques.

On the second day of the search he was fortunate enough to come across the famous Richelieu watch in a shop on Sixth avenue.

The dealer pretended to be very much shocked when he was told that he had purchased stolen goods, and, in reparation, said he was willing to do all in his power to bring the thief to justice.

He stated that the man had told him his name was "Mr. Coates," and that he had picked up this antique and others in the Rue Madame, that street of famous antique shops in the French capital.

It had been "picked up" truly enough, but not in the manner nor in the place suggested by the clever crook.

The dealer was able to give a very good description of the man who had sold him the watch.

He said that he was of medium build, smooth shaven, of an olive complexion and with dark eyes.

The rogues' gallery was consulted, and the detective found several men by the name of Coates, but none of them answered the description of the gentleman who seemed to be so familiar with the Rue Madame.

Dougherty now turned his attention to the second-hand stores, and, by great good luck, he located a dealer who had purchased the grape cluster design made by Benvenuto Cellini.

This man was able to give him a clue regarding the whereabouts of the elusive "Mr. Coates."

He said he had gone West, and thought he was living in Wisconsin. It did not take Dougherty long to get to Milwaukee, and there, with the aid of the police, he located the man for whom he had been searching so long.

He was existing in a hall bedroom, and, having spent all of his money, was on the lookout for a fresh job. The detective, in short, had struck him at the psychological moment.

Dougherty played his part cautiously. He might have arrested him on suspicion, but he did not propose to do anything like that.

What he wanted was real evidence. At their second meeting he began to talk about antiques and said that he had a customer who was anxious to get some rare Seventeenth century works of art, that he was willing to pay a big price for the right kind of articles.

The so-called "Mr. Coates" swallowed the bait line, hook and sinker and offered to take the detective to a place in New York where he could get the watch once owned by the great French cardinal.

The rest of it was detail. It was proved that the fellow was the confederate of the caretaker who had robbed the Western home of Doctor Depland, and after the usual formalities, he was placed on trial and promptly convicted.

He was given a long sentence, during which it is to be presumed that he had ample opportunity for improving his knowledge of the French language and French antiques.

Magellan Straits
The Straits of Magellan are more than 300 miles long, measured by the ship channel, which must be followed. Penguins are seen in great numbers along the route; seals and whales are plentiful and the albatross is sometimes encountered. Mt. Sarmiento, 7,330 feet high, covered for 6,000 feet with snow and glaciers, is one of its greatest sights. The straits are at the tip of South America.

Smokes 150 pounds of meat

IT'S THE VERY SAME SMOKE

You Get from the Smoke House

Wright's Condensed Smoke is exactly what the name indicates—condensed smoke from choice hickory wood—real smoke with nothing at all added. But it's better than smoke house smoke because it is never contaminated by dust, ashes or soot. And it penetrates the meat deeper and more evenly, insuring better flavor and keeping qualities. Skip-pers and insects never bother meat smoked with

Wright's Condensed Smoke

The smoke house process takes DAYS and requires no end of watching and tending. The Wright's Smoke method is a matter of MINUTES only—no waiting, no trouble, no fire danger.

QUICKLY APPLIED—SAVES TIME AND MEAT

Wright's Smoke is quickly and easily applied with a cloth or brush. Simply "paint" the meat with the Smoke and the job is done. The usual meat shrinkage of 10 to 20 per cent due to the smoke-house heat, is prevented when Wright's Smoke is used. This saving more than pays for Wright's Smoke.

GIVES A MOST DELICIOUS FLAVOR

Not only hams and bacon but mutton, dried beef, sausages, tongues and spare parts can be smoked with Wright's Smoke. The Wright flavor is famous—Clean, delicate, delicious. Warranted pure, wholesome and absolutely harmless. Try it—THIS YEAR!

Of Thousands of Bugs,
300 Are Man's Enemies

It might be hastily concluded that insects are the earth's deadliest wild animals, and that a relentless battle should be fought for their complete extermination.

This denunciation of insects, fortunately, cannot be extended indefinitely. Albert S. Henshaw in the Scientific American, for to our astonishment we soon realize that our list is disappointingly short and that, after investigation, man's convicted enemies in the insect world amount to only about 300 species.

When we realize, too, that at the present time over 500,000 species of insects have been classified, and that thousands of unclassified specimens are accumulating in museums, universities, and in the pockets of entomologists, we find we cannot justly condemn a whole class because of an extremely small number of disreputable members.

Suppose insects do destroy 10 per cent of our crops? What of it? What a small fee they exact, when we consider that without the aid of insect pollination we would have practically no crops at all!

It is very likely that man, in the future as in the past, will continue to keep in abeyance those of them which are injurious to his health and well-being, and at the same time direct the activities of others to the common good.

Few Men Have Knack to "Never Forget a Face"

The fellow who smirks as he says, "You know I never forget a face," is self-deluded. How can he know that he never forgets a face? He remembers those he remembers but that does not prove he forgets none.

His delusion that he has a perfect memory for faces can be explained in part as the consequence of an imperfect memory. He sees faces that look vaguely familiar. He has met those people but he doesn't know where. He doesn't remember who they are, how they earn their living, what happened when he met them. Because he has forgotten almost everything except the faces he concludes he has an infallible memory for faces. A little candid introspection would teach him that what he has, instead, is a well-developed capacity for forgetting, says the Chicago Tribune. He remembers people's faces a little better than he remembers other, and possibly more important, things about them.

His delusion is nourished by the fact that every so often he meets people whom he remembers but who have forgotten him. The probable explanation of this phenomenon is not flattering. It means only that other people's faces and characters are more memorable than his. They have a quality which makes them hard to forget. His face is the kind which is difficult to remember.

Exploring Earth's Crust
Aids in Geological Work

Within recent years there have been developed a number of geophysical methods for exploring the earth's crust. They are by no means complete in themselves, but are quite valuable as refinements for the geologic methods.

They are based upon the fact that while light cannot penetrate the ground and enable us to see what is below us, the rocks are easily penetrated by other radiations, such as sound and electrical and magnetic forces.

These methods are especially valuable in prospecting for oil or sulphur, writes Thomas M. Beck in the Chicago Tribune, because of the peculiar manner in which these two materials occur. Oil, being a liquid, occurs in paying quantities only where it is bottled up, geologically speaking. That is, it is nearly always found in layers of porous sandstone, along with salt water, lying between layers of nonporous limestone which keep it from leaking away. Since these layers are slanting, and since oil is heavier than water, the oil collects in pools in the uppermost part of the sandstone layer, which may be an anticline (an inverted V-shaped fold) or a fault.

Body Dies by Organs
The human body dies, not quite by inches, but at least by organs, according to a heart specialist. The first organ to die after the heart stops pumping blood around the body is the brain. This happens in from eight to ten minutes, so that stoppage of the heart for about that long kills the brain and makes the victim a complete or partial idiot, even if the heart later starts up again. Next to die is the muscle of the heart itself, which happens in from ten to twenty minutes after the blood stops circulating. This marks the time within which victims of heart failure may be revived. Hearts which have stopped for more than twenty minutes are likely to themselves to be dead and impossible to start.

An Ancient English Law
Up to 1827 in England a man accused of a felony could not be brought to trial without his consent because conviction usually meant not only death and the forfeiture of all his property but lifelong poverty and degradation for his family as well, writes J. M. Hicks, Oakland, Calif., in Collier's Weekly. Hence, both the guilty and those who were afraid of an unfair conviction refused trials—and often died by torture inflicted to secure a confession.

Robins Winter in U. S.
Robins winter in the southern states and in northern Mexico. They are to be seen in flocks in winter through in the Gulf states and are often killed in great numbers there as they are in very good condition in the winter season. The migratory instinct is not so strong in this bird as in some others, and it often remains in sheltered places all winter. Its attachment to familiar spots is very strong.

Quicksand Doesn't Pull
It is commonly believed that a person trapped in quicksand is sucked downward to his doom. However, there is no force other than gravity and his own efforts to escape that cause him to sink and suffocate. When a man caught in quicksand tries to pull his leg out the movement is hindered by a suction produced by the pulling and which forces the other leg to sink deeper.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Home

It is safe to say that there are few people to whom the thought of home is not dear. It stands for companionship, affection, shelter, a place where one can throw off the cares of the world and pursue one's own bent unhindered. It provides opportunity for mutual consideration, unselfishness, and reciprocal respect for the feelings and opinions of others perhaps afforded in no other way.

A home is indeed a sacred trust. There is probably nothing in our human experience whose influence is more formative. The right home at the right time can do a great deal to offset inimical outside influences. Its training can help to plant integrity and uprightness in the youthful heart. Indeed, there are not many who can shake off in after life the effects of a godly childhood home.

Moreover, the atmosphere of a beautiful home is felt far beyond its own immediate precincts. People are naturally drawn to a household where happiness and harmony reign. Having entered it, they can go their way with new inspiration, mentally refreshed and encouraged, and thus better equipped to deal with their own individual problems. Such a home may truly become as "the abode of a great rock in a weary land."

Dear as home associations are, however, to those who can constantly share them, they are perhaps still more dear to those who are compelled to pass much or most of their time away from such companionships. Today business conditions apparently demand that a vast number of individuals shall spend many months of the year away from home. Not alone is this the case, but the occupation of many necessitates constant travel, a continual moving from place to place which forbids any settled-down plan for protracted periods of time. Such a mode of living may tend to become somewhat unsettling, and may even engender a false sense of freedom from certain responsibilities.

No matter what a person's earthly location may be, he who has grasped the fact of his spiritual at-onement with God knows that in reality he is always at home, dwelling in "the secret place of the most High," constantly enfolded by the Father's love and care. Furthermore, he realizes that this same love and care also surrounds those who are dear to him, even though many leagues may lie between them, for there can be no actual separation when thought is at one with the understanding of spiritual reality.

Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, has expressed this thought most beautifully in one of her much loved hymns, where in speaking of the ever-presence of Infinite Love she writes (Poems, p. 4):

"His habitation high is here, and His arm encircles me, and mine, and all."

It is impossible to estimate the number of people to whom these lines have brought surcease from anxious thought, replacing any troubled sense with reassurance and comfort, when time and space have seemed to separate them from those dear to them. The same arm of tender, omnipotent care enfolding all! Surely such confidence, with its promise of no division, no severance, its assurance of but the one household of God held in His tender care, is worth striving for and attaining!

The effect of realizing that man as the spiritual idea or child of God is always at home in divine consciousness, cannot be overestimated. It supplies a new standard for ethics and morals. It provides a plumb line for righteous thinking and living by which each suggestion or situation can be appraised. It is an impressive defense against temptation. Moreover, this realization of true method engenders genuine self-respect, supplies peace and balance, and imparts a consciousness of dominion over material conditions which can be gained in no other way. The assurance that "His habitation high is here, and mine," and that every moment we can mentally abide in this secret place of Love's dwelling and there know the true sense of home, heals all feelings of loneliness or isolation. —The Christian Science Monitor.

Composite City
Stockholm has been described as a composite of Scottish lake scenery, of the bay of Naples, and of the islands of the Aegean. It is built on peninsulas and islands, and hundreds of boats and small steamers ply its waterways, taking its residents to and from their island homes.

Proportion of Inhabited Land
There is no agreement on the part of scientists in regard to the exact proportion of the earth that is inhabitable. Forty per cent of the land area is estimated to be desert. The polar regions comprise nearly seven million square miles.

Many Islands in Georgian Bay
Georgian bay is an extension of Lake Huron; it is about 120 by 50 miles in area, and dotted with more than 80,000 islands, the largest of which is Grand Manitoulin. The bay is an indentation in the coast of Ontario and is entered by a channel 20 miles wide.

Athletes and Art
The cult of the Greeks for gymnastic exercises and the consequent custom of honoring victors with statues or busts in sanctuaries afforded opportunity for representing the human form undraped and necessitated study of the nude, which led the art of Greek sculpture to its perfection.
