The commencement address will be given by Prof. Howard McCluskey, University of Michigan, and the diplomas will be presented to the graduates by Supt. H. L. Bleeker and Principal Leah Hazard.

Class Night exercises were held last night when student orations and other numbers featured the program. Letters were presented to basketball, football and baseball players, an Honor Pin was given to the most representative Senior girl and the Michigan Plaque was given to the most representative Senior boy. The Honor Pin went to Jean Bleeker and the Plaque to Moritz Brueckner.

The Seniors will leave Detroit Thursday afternoon, June 11 for a boat trip to Niagara Falls, returning Saturday morning.

Local Scouts have been requested to file their applications for attendance at Scout Camp at Newkirk Reservation near Dexter, as early as possible in order that ample provision may be made for them.

The camp is open not only for the benefit of the individual Scouts but as a service to every patrol and troop in the two-county Council, according to Prof. H. M. Wight, chairman of the camping committee.

"The Scout Camp is one of the significant services provided by your Council," Scout Executive Walter MacPeck said yesterday. "A Scout often has a chance to spend more actual hours in Scouting experiences in a ten-day or two-week period in Camp than he spends all during the rest of the year at home. Camp thus becomes a concentrated Scout experience."

A staff of ten leaders under the direction of Scout Executive MacPeck will operate the camp. Certified Red Cross life savers will have charge of water craft activities and a trained, experienced chef will command the kitchen.

Each Wednesday evening and Sunday will be visitors days. A board of review will be held each Friday afternoon and a Court of Honor each Friday night. Scouts not enrolled in the camp will be able to participate in these and other events on the camp program.

Sea Scout Harry Bleeker of Chelsea will be a member of the camp staff.

Commencement exercises of the Eighth Grade of St. Mary's school will be held at 7:30 Sunday evening, June 7, at St. Mary church. Following is the program:

"Praise Ye the Father" (Charles Gounod)—Children's Choir.

Address and Conferring of Diplomas—Father John W. Nagle.

"Ave Maria" (A. H. Rosewig).—Joseph Lyons.

Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

"Holy God, We Praise Thy Name"—Recessional.

Members of the class are Audrey Kent, Lillian Honeck, Mary Carraher, Robert Roy, Vincent Hafner, Frances Hafner, Claire Stapish and Edward Ottoman.

NOAH-KNISELY WEDDING

The home of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Noah of North Lake was the scene of a very pretty wedding Sunday afternoon, when their daughter, Mildred E. was united in marriage to Holton Knisely, son of Mr. and Mrs. Holton Knisely of Jackson. The couple were attended by Irene Stoffer and Ellis Boyce. Rev. V. D. Longfield of Dexter officiated, using the double ring ceremony. Little Donna Noah, niece of the bride, was ring bearer.

A dainty three-course dinner was served by the bride's nieces, Dorothy, Ruth and Betty Boyce, to the immediate family. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Knisely will make their home with the bride's parents.

LARGE CROWD AT DANCE

About 500 people attended the dance at public school auditorium on Tuesday night, sponsored by the Kiwanis club. Tim Doolittle and His Pihe Center Gang proved very popular with the crowd, both for the dance music and the program of entertainment which they provided.

North Lake Church Will Celebrate Its 100th Anniversary

The North Lake M. E. church will observe the 100th anniversary of the founding of the society, on June 5, 6 and 7. Beginning at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening, June 5, Dr. William E. Harrison, Superintendent of the Ann Arbor District, will deliver an address. Special music will be in charge of J. T. McCurry and his pupils of Jackson.

At noon on Saturday, the North Lake school reunion will be held at the Henry Gilbert cottage on the north shore of the lake. In the afternoon the Ladies Aid Society will hold a bazaar and at 6:30 o'clock will serve supper. At 8 p. m. the Epworth League of Dexter and North Lake will present a one act play "The Color Line."

At 11:00 a. m. Sunday, June 7, Rev. A. T. Camburn, who was pastor at the beginning of the century, will preach. A pot luck dinner will be followed by a reminiscence meeting at 2:30 p. m. Mrs. E. W. McDaniels will give the history of the church.

The society was organized in 1836 by Charles Glenn, who came to North Lake from New York state in 1838. It was largely through his interest and efforts that the church was maintained during its early years. Two great grandsons of Charles Glenn are Dr. Harvey G. Pearce, pastor of East Grand Boulevard church, Detroit, and Webster H. Pearce, president of Northern State Normal College at Marquette, Mich.

The anniversary program will be in charge of Rev. Victor D. Longfield, pastor of the church. Everyone is invited to attend.

War Dead Honored With Fitting Service

Decoration Day was again very fittingly observed in Chelsea when about three hundred adults and children gathered at the public school auditorium Saturday morning in keeping with the tradition as ordered by General John Logan following the close of the Civil War.

Conrad Lehman, a Spanish American War veteran, acted as chairman and the program was opened with a prayer by Rev. Henry Lenz which was followed by the audience singing "America." Ransom S. Armstrong read Gen. Logan's Orders and Gerald Cook very ably recited Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. "In Flanders Fields" and the Response were given by Robert Roy and Vincent Hafner.

Roscoe O. Bonisteel of Ann Arbor delivered an impressive address, touching the connection between the deceased veterans of the Civil War and the living veterans of the World War who gave or were willing to give their lives that this country might be a better place in which to live. Mention was also made of the aims and ideals of The American Legion with reference to that part of the Legion's preamble, "To combat the atrocities of both the classes and the masses and to make right the master of might."

The local band, featuring Hazen Fuller with a cornet solo, rendered a musical number, "The Lost Chord." Rev. E. D. Mumby gave the benediction and a line of march formed and proceeded to the local cemetery where all graves of former soldiers were decorated with a bouquet of flowers which had been prepared by the Women's Relief Corps. A salute to the dead was fired by a squad of Legionnaires and "Taps" were sounded. Rev. P. H. Grabowski offered a prayer and the parade again formed and marched back to the business section of the village where they disbanded.

Herbert J. McKune, Post No. 31, of The American Legion sponsored the program for the day.

Lansing Will Be Host to American Legion

Michigan's capital city is to be host to the 1936 state convention of the American Legion, according to advice received from convention headquarters at Lansing today. Determined to make this convention the most outstanding in the history of Michigan's Legion, members of the convention corporation are swinging into line with new ideas for entertainment of delegates and guests. The convention is to be held August 16, 17 and 18.

Arrangements have already been made with a Terre Haute, Ind. company for decorations which will be unique in beauty and originality and the parade committee has promised to have more bands and drum and bugle corps in line than have ever appeared at a Legion state convention in Michigan.

The committee on entertainment is considering a score of features which will be unusual. It is probable that there will be a sportsman's show, log rolling, contest, junior baseball, softball games between outstanding girls' teams, carnival and a colorful military ball.

The housing committee is making plans to accommodate several thousand visitors, with headquarters for men at the Olds hotel and for auxiliary members at the Roosevelt hotel.

For the Legionnaire who desires to use a house trailer instead of making hotel reservations, several sites are being leased, in addition to the municipal tourist camp, which is one of the most modern and best equipped in the state.

GRASS LAKE—Much black top paving in the vicinity of Grass Lake is in prospect for this summer, according to N. M. Davis, supervisor. In addition to the black-topping of the Waterloo road from the village north to the new pavement, the pavement will be continued through to Napoleon. This will eventually mean a north and south highway from the Ohio line through Grass Lake and to the northern part of the state. The Clear lake road is to be black-topped from US-12 through to Waterloo as will one-half mile from East avenue to the Norvell road.—News.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Why are some aviators called aces while others are not?
Ans.—An aviator in the French army during the World War who brought down five or more enemy planes within the French lines was given the name of "ace" in official communications. Therefore it was applied to any aviator of similar achievement, such as an American Ace, a British Ace, etc. Since that time it is generally applied to anyone who excels in any line.

Ques.—What nations are known as the A B C powers? And what do the letters stand for?
Ans.—"A B C" are the initials of Argentina, Brazil and Chili. In 1914 these three countries acted as mediators between the United States and Mexico, and have ever since cooperated for the preservation of peace.

Ques.—Will you please state the date and day of the week that the battle of Manila Bay was fought during the Spanish-American War?
Ans.—The battle of Manila Bay, under the direction of Commander Dewey (later made Admiral) was fought on Sunday, May 1, 1898, in which the entire Spanish fleet was sunk, and their forts at Manila destroyed.

Ques.—Where does the water from artesian wells come from? And what causes it to flow out of its own accord?
Ans.—The water comes originally from rain—rain that has soaked into the rock, gravel and sand stratum. The pressure of the earth will hold the water just as though it were in a pipe. When this stratum is exposed and relieved of pressure sometimes the "pipe" will burst and thus the water will flow out in a natural manner.

Ques.—Can you tell me what the wire in an electric light bulb is made of?
Ans.—The filaments of modern electric lamps is made of a metal called "tungsten", which is capable of standing heat for a long time without being spoiled. Tungsten is an extremely hard metal. It required years of scientific research to solve the problem of drawing it out into wire so that it could be used for lighting purposes.

Ques.—Occasionally I hear the remark that "he has a criminal face." Is there anything to this?
Ans.—No. There is nothing in anyone's features to indicate he has criminal tendencies. In the early days the great Italian criminologist Lombroso, held to the theory that certain features betrayed criminality. This view, however, did not stand the test of time and is no longer held.

Ques.—I am not much of a baseball fan, but would like to know if "pinch hitter" is a slang expression, and also just what it means?
Ans.—Pinch hitter is not slang, according to Webster's International Dictionary. However, it is baseball cant. Specifically it is a player, who is sent in to bat for another player in a pinch, or emergency, when a hit is particularly needed. The term now applies to all others in cases where an emergency has arisen, or as a gesture of strategy.

Ques.—What is a pomato?
Ans.—Pomato is a fragrant, succulent, tomato-like fruit produced by grafting tomato scions on potato plants. It is eaten raw or cooked. It is a comparatively recent development and the fruit was named "pomato."

Ques.—What causes laughter? And why do some things seem funny while others do not?
Ans.—The question of laughter has been debated back and forth for years and years and the answer is still unknown. Neither do we know why some things seem funny while others do not. This is just another one of the unsolved mysteries.

Ques.—Why do the savages listen with their ear to the ground?
Ans.—This is instinct with them. When one puts his ear to the ground he may hear marching men or running horses and rumbling wagons a long way off. During the World War the Allies' scientists developed this theory so that they could magnify the faint sounds transmitted thus thru the ground. They could detect troop movements and the like far behind the German lines.

THE RAINBOW

The calendar of time brought forth A great event one day, For though recorded on a page— Ten thousand miles away, The promise is indelible. And written on the sky, Put there by one whose name is Truth By one who cannot lie.

With every living creature, With you, a few or beast, My mercy and my watchful care Shall never, never cease. Seed time and harvest, heat and cold, With each succeeding year, A general devastating flood Shall never more appear.

My promise painted in the sky Of Heaven's immortal blue, Is made for all who dwell on earth, For you, and you and you.

—Arthur Carleton.

"252 miles to the gallon is how I figure it with Red Crown"

Mr. Lester Longbow, a prominent resident of Dozen Forks, R. R. 6, is known throughout the state for his untiring efforts in behalf of the Tall Stories Club.

"YA see, I was to be speaker o' the evening at the annual 'Grange' dinner over to Dozen Forks. I got all tided up, sorta late, and then found the dratted car was out o' gas—and Dozen Forks all o' four miles away.

"Well, my wife had an idea. 'Wait'll I get that little bottle o' gas I got from the Standard Oil Station to kill the gas with,' says she.

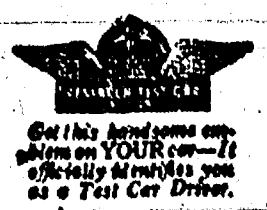

"I loved as how it was foolish, but we'd try it. So she brought out a little 2-ounce bottle and we dumped the Standard Red Crown in held into the gas tank. I started off, figuring maybe I'd make a hundred rod.

"But I got past the next farm—and the next—'n' 'fore I knew it there I was in front o' the Grange with the motor still runnin'. Figure it out for yourself...four miles worth o' distance on two ounces o' Red Crown. That's 252 miles to the gallon. That's mileage, mister!... Eh? ... Sure, the whole Grange is using Red Crown now."

We think Standard Red Crown is good, too; but we refuse to be taken in by Lester's vivid reports. It's not THAT good.

With "more live power per gallon," Standard Red Crown operates with less waste power per gallon. With it you can be sure of as long mileage per gallon as with any regular-priced gasoline you can buy—if not longer. But rather than make claims, Standard prefers to make it easy for motorists to find out the real facts about gasoline mileage for themselves.

NOW learn the TRUTH about Gasoline Mileage

DRIVE A "TEST CAR" IN THE WORLD'S GREATEST ROAD TEST $5000.00 in cash and hundreds of fine merchandise awarded for Test Car Drivers. Chance to discover new money-saving facts about motor fuel. No obligation. Standard furnishes all equipment for easy recording of mileage during 85 days' ordinary driving. Any car in the State is eligible. Get full details now from any Standard Oil Station or Dealer.

Be sure your car is safe to drive—then DRIVE SAFELY

Original Inca Capital

Was Founded 1020 A. D.
The original Inca capital of the ancient Inca empire, was founded about 1020 A. D. on its present site 11,000 feet above sea level at the foot of a deep valley. Here in the mountains of Peru the Quechua and Aymara Indians, who made up the empire, lived in a well-advanced state of civilization—raising foods and weaving textiles; engaging in agriculture on little terraced mountain farms that are the wonder of modern engineers; rearing cities with streets reputed to have been paved in silver, and with palaces flashing gold and precious stones; extending their territory until at the time the Spaniards arrived four centuries later, lured by the rumors of its fabulous wealth—the empire reached from Ecuador to Chile.

Present-day Cuzco, superimposed on the ruins of this ancient capital, has the architectural characteristics of medieval Spain but a population and culture largely Indian. Its streets, like no others in the world, are of mixed descent. Their lower walls are of stone cleverly fitted together by the Indians who built the capital; their upper walls, of stucco with wrought iron balconies and old Moorish doorways, are the work of the Spaniards who despoiled the gold-adorned temples and palaces and built a new city upon the ruins of the old.

Hair, Collective Noun
Hair, which means the mass of filamentous structures that grow on a body, especially on the head, is a collective noun and takes a singular verb. But hair has a plural which is used to designate several isolated hairs, as: "There are several hairs on your coat."

TERRAPLANE WINS IN SOUTH AMERICA RACE

Details of the Grand Circuit automobile race, 4,250 miles in length through Argentina and a part of Chile, are just becoming available. When it is realized that 113 cars started and only 26 finished, some idea of the country through which the race passed may be gathered.

The fact that one of the lowest priced American cars, a Terraplane, won the race is in itself remarkable, but when it is understood that this was the only Terraplane entered, the record is even more outstanding.

The race has been growing in importance for several years. Each year the circuit has increased in length, scope and number of participants, until last year the Andes mountains were crossed for the first time into Chile, making the race an international event. The race started in Buenos Aires and ended in the nearby city of La Plata.

Much of the course lies through heavy sand and soil roads. There is a great deal of clay, very slippery when wet and very dusty when dry. Ask for demonstration of the Terraplane at Jones Garage, Chelsea. Phone 138.

Dog Is Master of Smells

Sight Is Not Important
It came with something of a shock to people of the Occident to discover that their personal odors made it somewhat difficult at first for the more delicately sensitized orientals to remain near them.

It is a fact, asserts a writer in the Minneapolis Journal, that every one of us, whether of the Orient or Occident, has his own aroma, as distinct and personal as his carriage or countenance. The dog recognizes his master not entirely by his appearance, but by something else peculiar to him.
A biologist who has made something of a study of these facts, points out that we constantly exude products of metabolism and that in the composition of these products we all differ. Not only do we differ from one another, but in no individual are these results constant. No chemical laboratory is sufficiently equipped to distinguish such minute differences. The only experts on the subject, the biologist continues, are the dogs. With their highly developed olfactory organs, they are impelled to confirm their vision, when they see their masters, by making a searching investigation directed toward confirming their impression. Of their two senses, for complete knowledge, they prefer the sense of smell to that of sight.

Fish That Swallow Other Fish
Fish that swallow other fish sometimes aid scientists in obtaining rare specimens. In one instance, the stomach of a large catfish yielded the hitherto unknown infant stage of a great Caspian sturgeon.

Handshake Is an Ancient Gesture of Friendliness

The handshake is an outgrowth of the old custom of extending the right hand, the weapon hand, unarmed, as evidence of peaceful intentions. It is an instinctive gesture of friendliness, and it carries the same significance today. writes Helen Bartlett in the Chicago Tribune.

Your handshake expresses your personality and disposition quite as much as other actions or words. It should be warm, firm, friendly, and express pleasure and cordiality. I have said that the hand-clasp should be firm. To grasp a limp, characterless hand is repulsive. But neither should it be so firm as to be paralyzing. When the act is mastered, the hand clasp is strong and brief without exaggerated pumping.

It is a spontaneous gesture and there are no rules of etiquette which force one to extend his hand if it is contrary to his disposition. It is, of course, exceedingly rude to refuse to shake hands when another offers. Some persons are of a friendly nature and cordial disposition, and others are formal and reticent. The former shake hands far more often than do the latter, as you might expect.

Men always shake hands with each other when they are introduced or when two friends meet on the street. Women seldom do with men when they are introduced. When men and women who are friends meet, it is the privilege of the woman to proffer her hand first if she is so inclined, although, in the case of good friends, this gesture doubtless would be performed almost simultaneously. However, should a man offer his hand to a woman, she can do nothing but accept his friendly gesture without seeming curt and insulting.

Africans Hunt Elephant for His Meat and Tusks

The African natives hunt the elephant for his meat as well as his tusks. Their method is to lay pits in the elephant paths in the forest, but while these are sometimes effective the animal is more frequently intelligent enough to avoid the traps.

Big and clumsy as they appear the elephant's feet are peculiarly sensitive, and even the best camouflaged pit will not deceive the older animals. They have no special keenness of vision and, as a matter of fact, are much less gifted that way than man.

Another method employed by the natives is to set poisoned spears in the path of the animals so that they will fall and pierce them when a trailing vine root is touched. The poison is a vegetable one peculiar to Africa and very powerful, but does not affect the meat. The portion immediately around the spear wound is cut out and thrown away; the rest of the meat is taken to the village to make a feast. What is left over after the feast is preserved by drying in the sun.

The "Black Mass"

What was known as satanism, diabolism, or the black mass, was the practice by organizations in the middle centuries in Europe of a form of worship which was the opposite of the Christian worship. In that the devil was held as the supreme being and orgies of the most violent and obscene description took place in his honor. During the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries there was in Europe also an outbreak of rovingism and lollapops, connected with the religious feasts and holidays. In France, the Feast of the Ass was a travesty of the Nativity and the flight of the Holy Family to Egypt. Services were held in some of the churches in which a ribald congregation and mock priest conducted a litany in which the responses consisted of a series of "brays" by the "worshippers." The affair became so scandalous to decency that it was prohibited by law about 1500.

Owls and Hawks Ravenous

Owls and hawks tear their prey apart, then swallow it in large chunks, bones, fur, feathers and all. When the meat has been digested they get rid of the bones and other unwanted parts by coughing them up as pellets. These pellets are always rolled up with the bones and sharp bits wrapped up in the skin with the fur inside. It is possible to learn much about the birds' feeding habits through an examination of these pellets. The large Snowy or Arctic owl usually chooses one particular straw stack for his winter domicile and numerous pellets will be found atop this. One of these, strangely enough, yielded the skull of a least weasel, a tiny furry animal not known to be in that region at all. Detroit News.

The Fattest Man

The fattest man ever known was probably Daniel Lambert, who died in 1809 in England at the age of forty. His name was used by nineteenth century writers as a symbol of great size. His weight was 730 pounds and his waist line was 8 feet 6 inches. Pedro Cardozo, who was exhibited as the world's fattest man of recent years, died in Argentina. He weighed 633 pounds and measured 7 feet 5 inches around the waist.

Gathering Happiness

Happiness is like manna. It is to be gathered in the grain and enjoyed every day; it will not keep; it cannot be accumulated; nor need we go out of ourselves, nor into remote places to gather it, since it has rained down from heaven at our very doors, or rather within them.

C. H. S. Graduates

Class of 1936

FAREWELL!

The time is drawing near when we as Seniors of Chelsea High School of the Class 1936 must make our final farewell to this house of knowledge. The time has come when we must step into the background and make room for a newer and younger group. We only hope that they will be as proud of this position as we were.

It has been our aim to set an example of honor, truthfulness, loyalty and courtesy to our classmates throughout our Senior year.

Feeling very regretful of leaving we are somewhat comforted by the thought that this is only a chapter of our lives closed, but probably the most wonderful, most eventful one. However, the present is here and the future lies before us. Fearlessly we face it with all its trials and tribulations. We will bear our burdens bravely—proud and unafraid.

—The Seniors.

SCHOOL NEWS

Junior-Senior Reception

On behalf of the Seniors, I wish to thank the Juniors and all of those who helped us spend such a glorious evening at the Junior-Senior Reception.

The color scheme and the decorations were calculated to make a group of jolly tars right at home. The dining room, decorated to resemble a boat, was very appropriate to a Chelsea social affair. How eagerly we Seniors reached for the menus, which listed the Bounding Main Course, consisting of Pirate Pleasures (with High Seas—onions), Sailors' Solace, Devil Fish, Deep Sea Delight, Pickled Sea-weed, and a puff of the Sail. Measurates, it was a grand spread.

The program pleased us all and is one that we will never forget. Eileen Adam acted as toastmistress, in place of Paul Pilemeier, who was unable to assume that position because of illness. First came a song, "Classmates Stand Together," then a toast to the Seniors by Harry Bleeker; a response, Jean Dancer; song; a recitation by Miss Gibson; toast to the faculty, Marion Ashfall; response, Miss Hazard; violin solo, Mr. Hargreaves; remarks, Mr. Bleeker. Then the Juniors gave us some personal histories of Seniors that satirized good-naturedly the activities of certain members of our class.

After the deck was cleared there was dancing and much merry-making and, all in all, it was a great reception—and we again wish to thank the Juniors for.

Sixth Grade

Robert Trinkle visited our school May 27-28. We all like visitors.

Several of the sixth grade pupils have completed the bird study leaflets of the Goldfinch and the Ruby Throated Hummingbird.

We are now studying the Red Shoulder Hawk. The latest birds that have been seen this week are the Sandpiper, the Ruby Throated Hummingbird and the Goldfinch.

The people who have not been about or tardy this year are Lawrence Dietle and Bud Wolf. Neither has Gerald Hoover been absent, but he has been tardy just once.

Our geranium has budded and is now in bloom. It is a very pretty color.

Earl Grieb cut a cocoon open which he thought was empty. He found a moth in it. Cutting it open made the moth emerge too soon. This moth is crippled but it laid some eggs. The wings are the same size as when it emerged. Bessie Shinnberry's moth is crippled too. The cocoon was not dampened in the winter.

Some of the boys and girls are doing very fine work in spreading moths.

In reading we are studying a new unit called "Boys and Girls of Other Lands." It helps us with our geography.

Edwin Gaunt had a birthday this week.

Bob Fisher, a former schoolmate whom we all know and like, visited us Monday morning for a short time. He now goes to school in a little town near Port Huron.

School days are over so the Sixth Grade won't be able to visit you any more in the paper. We have enjoyed the chance, and we will see you next September.

The Basques Speak Most Difficult of Languages

What is the most difficult language in the world to master? Prof. Watson Kirk Connell, of Wesley college, Winnipeg, Canada, has studied the problem for years and asserts that the language of the 300,000 Basques, who live in the Pyrenees mountains, between France and Spain, is the hardest to learn. More than that, he says its origin is unknown, learned professors having tried for decades to relate Basque to Hebrew, Japanese, Celtic, Arabic and other tongues, but without success.

Professor Connell, acquainted with 55 languages, asserts that Basque has such a complicated grammar that only the natives can handle it correctly. The Basques do not merely button their words up the back like other people do," he says. "They also have prefixes and suffixes and infixes, and exceptions are more numerous than rules. By the time a word gets out, nobody can recognize it, not even its own mother."

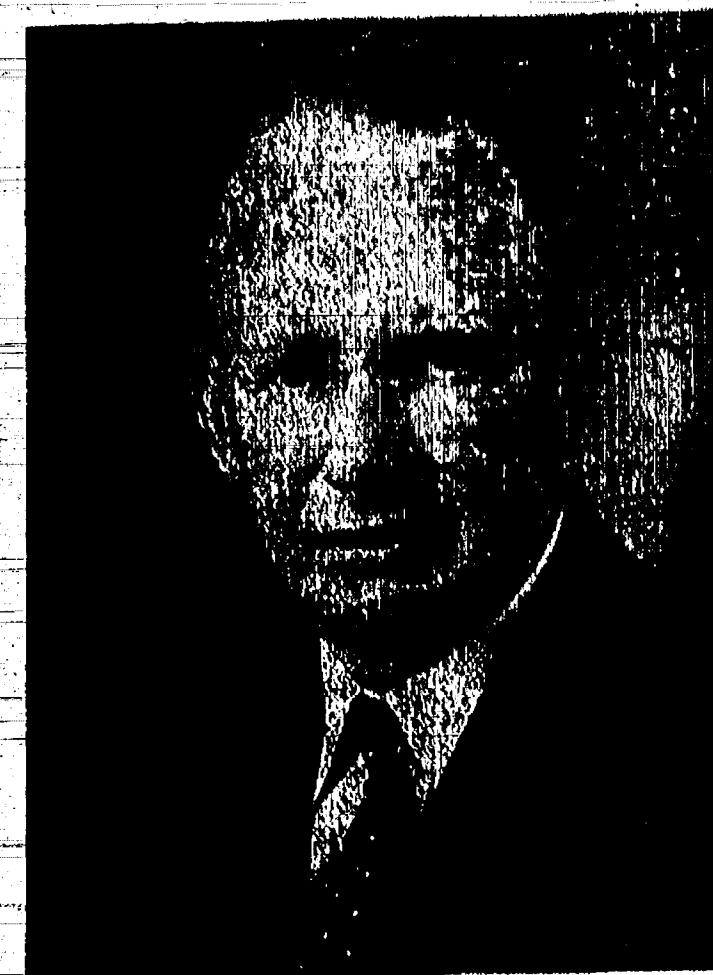

In fact, the Basques are as much a mystery as the language they speak. They are a distinct ethnic group, rugged mountaineers, with customs, folklore and folk songs peculiarly their own.

Early Day Travel

On June 27, 1527, Panfilo de Narvaez sailed from Spain under orders to explore and subdue Florida, then believed to be rich in gold and other treasure. Landing at Tampa Bay in April, 1528, with 400 men, he struggled overland to the mouth of the Appalachicola, where, in September, the survivors built five frail barges and in three attempts to reach the east coast of Mexico. All perished except Alvar Nunez Cabeza de Vaca and three companions, who made their way inland and, after indescribable suffering, emerged in 1536 on the Pacific in northern Mexico. The story of their eight-year journey is one of the most dramatic chapters of the early history of travel and communication in America.

Greatest Greek Epigrammatist
The greatest Greek epigrammatist was Simplicius. The principal Roman epigrammatists were Martial and Juvenal. Boileau-Despreaux, Voltaire, Shakespeare, Pope and Oscar Wilde were among the most brilliant of the ages.

Wrought Iron
Wrought iron is the purest form of iron commonly known to arts and industries, containing about one-half of 1 per cent of carbon. It is made directly from ore, or by purifying (puddling) cast iron in a furnace or reductor.

Herbs Used to Change Taste
Peppermint, pennyroyal and spearmint, among the species of the horticultural genus Labiate, are used extensively in medicine to cover the taste of drugs with their pungent, agreeable flavor. Peppermint is also a great favorite for candy flavoring.

Pasta Came
The word "pasta," used of goma, is derived from the Italian word "pasta," meaning food; suggested by the soft plastic material used to imitate the real gem.

Four-Eyed Fish Inhabits Rivers of South America

Eyeight in fishes generally is excellent, as anglers well know, and it involves many interesting peculiarities. The oddest one, perhaps, belongs to the four-eyed fish, a big minnow—the largest, in fact, of the minnow family and occasionally reaching the size of a moderate brook trout—which inhabits the rivers of eastern South and Central America. It is a surface-swimmer like its cousin the gumbusia, the favorite "tropical" in aquariums, and seems to be quite as comfortable out of water as within it. Thus it spends much of its daily life in the air, scrambling over soft stream banks or on mud-flats where it finds certain insects, various small crustaceans, and bits of carrion to its taste. Whether this habit brought about the double vision the fish possesses, or whether, having such eyes, its ancestor learned to take advantage of the opportunity, are questions for theorists to worry over. At any rate, says a writer in the Montreal Herald, this singularity in structure, making the rather large and protruding eyes doubly useful, enables this fish to swim with its face just out of water, one half of the eye watching whatever may interest or threaten it from above while the other half gives it notice of an enemy beneath the surface.

Trace Origin of Bricks to as Far as 1500 B. C.

Bricklayers boast that our bricks are the first perfectly proportioned bricks in the world, but they are wrong. "The perfect brick" existed at least 1,500 years before Christ, as has been revealed by excavations at Mohenjo-Daro in India, says the Washington Post.

Made by an ancient race which inhabited India long before the Aryans overran the country in 1500 B. C., these bricks were almost exactly like those we use today. The ancients knew how to construct houses of two or more stories with them, too.

Knowing nothing of iron or steel, these people made their utensils and implements of copper.

Most surprising of all, however, is the fact this ancient race used the decimal system in their weights and measures. This is proved by the discovery of a beam scale and a pile of stone weights made in multiples of two and five.

Use of Word "Presently"

The use of this adverb in the sense of immediately, at once, is now classed by the dictionary as archaic. That is, the term in this sense is antiquated and though still found, is going out of use in literary English. Formerly, until roughly the end of the seventeenth century, the sense was in general use. Shakespeare wrote ("Two Gentlemen of Verona," act 4, sc. 4): "Go presently and take this ring with thee," meaning immediately, as the context shows. And Fielding unmistakably used it in this sense in "Tom Jones" (1749) in describing a poor woman who "no sooner looked at the serjeant than she presently recognized him." From this earlier use, occurring from the early part of the fifteenth century, the sense gradually became weakened, probably during the seventeenth century, to its ordinary modern use of by and by, after a little time, shortly. The use of the word in its earlier sense occurs so rarely nowadays as to baffle the reader, to give him a feeling of ambiguity. Literary Digest.

Paganini's Shoe

Paganini, the famous Italian violinist of the early part of the last century, once met a servant girl, Nicette, whose lover had been drawn in the conscription. They had planned to marry, but had no money with which to pay for a substitute. Learning of her trouble, Paganini fashioned a musical instrument from a wooden shoe, and announced a concert at which he promised to play "alternate selections upon the violin and a shoe." A huge audience responded. The entire proceeds he handed over to Nicette. After paying 1,500 francs for a substitute for her lover, she had several hundred francs left. That their marriage might be speedily and happily consummated, Paganini also gave her the shoe which she was able to sell for a goodly sum.

Great Navigator, Explorer

Abel Janssoon Tasman, died 1639, at fifty-six, having achieved a reputation as the greatest of Dutch navigators and one of the greatest explorers. But he made some big mistakes. He couldn't find a continent. Sent out in 1642 to explore Australia, he sailed completely around it and never sighted it once! Later, as the significance of his error was realized, geographers knew for the first time that Australia was not a part of the Antarctic continent. No man did more in charting the Pacific's shores and islands. He carried on commerce with Japan for the Dutch more than two centuries before the voyage of Commodore Matthew Perry, who often is credited with opening Japan's ports to other nations.

Use of Italics in Bible

In almost all literature, italics are used for emphasis or to give words a special meaning. But in the Bible they are used merely to designate words that have been added to make complete sense out of the literal translation from the Greek and Hebrew. "Windfall" Is Regarded

Good Luck to Peasants
In the year 1000, William, Duke of Normandy, led his forces into England. His cousin, Edward the Confessor, king of England, had died, and the opportunity of adding to his dominion could not be overlooked by the ambitious young William.

In the battle of Hastings, Harold, the other contestant for the throne, was killed. Thus William became ruler of England. He set about remodeling the laws of the land and succeeded in putting into effect many excellent ideas.

From this time dates our expression of a "windfall." In reference to a piece of good luck, notes a writer in the Washington Star. Under the laws of William, it was a criminal offense to cut down timber in the forests. The poor people, therefore, were allowed to pick up for their fires only the branches which had been brought down by the wind. A windstorm, bringing a "windfall," was always welcomed by the peasants as good luck, and in this sense we use the phrase.

Tall Tales

As told to FRANK E. HAGAN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

VERMONT is noted for its maple syrup but it ought to be noted also for its dairy products—that is, if Uncle Joe Stokes' cow had ever become well-known outside of the little town in the Green Mountains where he lived.

She was a mighty fine cow, but Uncle Joe had a lot of trouble with her one time or another. Always wandering off somewhere, she was—just chock-full of curiosity.

One day when the door of Uncle Joe's ice house was open, she strolled into it, and when the wind blew the door shut she was trapped. He didn't find her for three days, and when he did he had to put on fur mittens to milk her. Then, blamed if she didn't give nothing but ice cream!

Uncle Joe's family was getting tired of nothing but ice cream for dessert, when finally the cow seemed to thaw out a bit.

But the next day she wandered over to a nearby quarry. When the men blasted out a big slab of the stone the explosion shook her up so that for the next week she didn't give anything but butter.

But the butter it was—cool and firm and hard. Then a hot spell came and Uncle Joe was afraid the butter might spoil. So he took it down to a shady nook and put it on a big stone. Up, up, went the thermometer that day, and Uncle Joe began to worry about his butter. Finally he went down to look at it.

"Well, sir," says Uncle Joe, "I found that that stone had melted and run away. But the butter was all right."

The Romance of Your Name

A Savage?

WHEN Captain Newport sailed up the James River for the first time he found upon its shores the "gentle savages" to welcome him. We still have the "Savages" with us after 300 years; but not the dusky sons of the unknown forests.

English parish registers of Somerset county record a number of Savages during the reign of Queen Elizabeth.

First English Settlers

Had Use of Cosmetics

Shakespeare was the greatest inspiration to the drama of any one person who ever lived. It was in his era that women made their appearance as participants in drama, and they employed cosmetics to enhance their natural charms as well as to facilitate characterization.

There is no doubt that the ladies of the stage were the first to appear in public with make-up, writes Elsie Madison in the Los Angeles Times. It was they who developed skill in using it and their persistence gradually brought their professional sisters to imitate them.

The Puritans struck a vicious blow at artificial beauty props and almost annihilated the practice of using them in this country, although records show that the first English settlers here did bring supplies of such things with them. It was the idea of the Puritan fathers that cosmetics were identified with the exaltation of the flesh and the negligence of the soul.

Origin of "Chalice"

"Chalice," from the Latin "calix," refers to a cup or a bowl, especially the cup used in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. This term, originally signifying a common drinking vessel now usually is applied to a communion cup. From wood or other cheap material in early times, chalices came to be made of glass, agate, silver and gold, with engraving, enamel and different kinds of costly decoration. Some of them have great historic interest and value, and are preserved in church treasuries and museums of Europe. It generally is held that a chalice must have a knob or ball in the middle of the stem or foot which supports the bowl. This is intended to secure the hold of the person who hands it to the communicant. It has a cover which may be the paten or dish for the consecrated bread.

First American Postal Law

On November 5, 1639, the general court of the colony of Massachusetts Bay, "for preventing the miscarriage of letters," ordered that "Richard Fairbanks his house in Boston is the place appointed for all letters which are brought from beyond the seas, or are to be sent thither, are to be brought unto; & he is to take care that they be delivered according to their directions." With this, the first American postal law, began the evolution of the United States postal system.

Believed in "Cramp" Rings

From the Fifteenth to the Twentieth century, England believed in the efficacy of cramp rings—finger rings that would prevent cramps after they had been blessed by the king. Faith in these rings increased so rapidly that the blessing was no longer needed, and millions were sold for other ailments such as rheumatism, epilepsy and dts. As late as 1912, "Genuine Anti-Rheumatic Rings" were advertised in English farm magazines.—Collier's Weekly.

Volga Longest

The Volga river is the longest in Europe, 2,900 miles long and draining an area more than twice the size of Texas; and passes the doors of the mightiest cities in Russia—Nishni-Novgorod, Kazan, Saratov, Samara, Perm, Ulanovsk and the ancient town of Astrakhan.

Use Parts of Cow in Plane

The cow does not fly, but John Wilcox, chief inspector of the Boeing airplane company, lists many parts of its anatomy which do. The casing in milk makes a strong glue, and tangle glue is used extensively in the construction of wing ribs, panels of plywood in the airplane cabin, and so on. Hot glue is made of cow's hoofs. The hair is used for chair padding and sound deadening. Hides are made into seat covers and straps and into the fine hide glue which are used in wooden propeller manufacture. Finally, the goldbeaters' skin for dirigibles is made of its entrails. Certainly the cow makes praiseworthy contributions to aerial navigation.—Scientific American.

VERMONT is noted for its maple syrup but it ought to be noted also for its dairy products—that is, if Uncle Joe Stokes' cow had ever become well-known outside of the little town in the Green Mountains where he lived.

She was a mighty fine cow, but Uncle Joe had a lot of trouble with her one time or another. Always wandering off somewhere, she was—just chock-full of curiosity.

One day when the door of Uncle Joe's ice house was open, she strolled into it, and when the wind blew the door shut she was trapped. He didn't find her for three days, and when he did he had to put on fur mittens to milk her. Then, blamed if she didn't give nothing but ice cream!

Uncle Joe's family was getting tired of nothing but ice cream for dessert, when finally the cow seemed to thaw out a bit.

But the next day she wandered over to a nearby quarry. When the men blasted out a big slab of the stone the explosion shook her up so that for the next week she didn't give anything but butter.

But the butter it was—cool and firm and hard. Then a hot spell came and Uncle Joe was afraid the butter might spoil. So he took it down to a shady nook and put it on a big stone. Up, up, went the thermometer that day, and Uncle Joe began to worry about his butter. Finally he went down to look at it.

"Well, sir," says Uncle Joe, "I found that that stone had melted and run away. But the butter was all right."

An Aim in Life

A WRITER once said, "An aim in life is the only fortune worth finding; and it is not to be found in foreign lands, but in the heart itself." The trend of education lies more and more toward establishing "in the heart itself" higher aims and motives for living. It is to the advantage of society that wrongdoers are being taught repentance and reformation, and are in many cases being given extended opportunities to develop their talents and usefulness. Education that promotes temperance, honesty, gentleness, reciprocity, is an asset, for as higher, nobler aims are firmly planted and unfurled within the heart of each world citizen, so will community, national, and international relations be measurably improved. Righteous aims are to be esteemed above money and jewels, for the fortunes they bring are indestructible and of inestimable worth. Certain Bible characters had aims in life, holy and commendable. Who, after reading of Daniel's spiritual insight and ability to subdue lions, has not felt a greater desire to know Daniel's God, who "delivered and rescued"? Daniel did not claim to be unique. He realized his rescue on the basis of innocence before God and his harmlessness before Darius, his king. Previously, when called upon to interpret the dream of king Nebuchadnezzar, he said (Daniel 2:30), "This secret is not revealed to me for any wisdom that I have more than any living. Who that has studied the life of Moses, his meekness, courage, spirituality, has not experienced a keener incentive to live according to God's plan? And surely those who read the words and works of the master Christian, long to go and do likewise, even though they do not fully perceive the spiritual import of the message. To attain moral excellence is a worthy aim for anyone.

In "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" Mary Baker Eddy has given the world this viewpoint: "One's aim, a point beyond faith, should be to find the footsteps of Truth; the way to health and holiness." And a few pages farther on she tells how this may be accomplished: "Mortals must gravitate toward their affections and aims grow spiritual—they must near the broader interpretations of being, and gain some proper sense of the infinite, in order that sin and mortality may be put off" (pp. 241, 265).

Jesus urged all to love God supremely and to regard their neighbor with loving-kindness. It is quite true that if we did this, there would be no temptation to break the Ten Commandments; that is, we should live purely and honestly, existing with success temptations to kill, steal, bear false witness, covet, or commit adultery. We should honor the Father-Mother God, and keep every day holy unto him.

Aspirations and motives to live rightly are natural and normal to children who have been correctly taught. Often a child is so cognizant of love and goodness as to be protected from harm. He is often so conscious of expressing loving-kindness that he is totally unaware of another's evil thoughts. Parents may easily establish in their children an aim in life that incorporates fellowship, generosity, industry, thoughtfulness, and is expressed in daily occupation.

More mature students, also, may guard and guide their thinking in accordance with Truth and Love. One who welcomes and appropriates even faint desires for better living, cherishes them secretly in his heart and strives openly to practice them, finds his life becoming productive, progressive. Consecration to Truth is a character builder, promoting the welfare of the individual and thus elevating world conditions. Swift thoughts and aims, like the house built on the sand, fall eventually, even if for a time they seem clamorous and insistent. The Bible gives us firm foundations for our individual building. —The Christian Science Monitor.

Huge Statues on Easter Island

Easter Island, some 45 square miles in area and 2,000 miles off the South American coast, has long intrigued archeologists who have fruitfully attempted to solve the origin of the hundreds of huge stone statues with which the area is literally covered. Some are upright, imbedded in the sand and have not been polished. They vary in size from a few feet to almost forty feet in height. They show evidence of a high degree of art, but science has not yet discovered how they were chiseled or who were the sculptors, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The population of the island, a few hundred of the Polynesian type, has no knowledge of either as it has been established that those now native to the island are not even of the same race as those who fashioned the statues, no doubt in their own image.

Sense of Smell in Fishes

The sense of smell is highly developed in fishes and it is probably mainly through this sense that they locate their food. Scientists, however, have not been able to determine accurately the relative perceptive powers of the sense organs. "From what is known at present," wrote the United States bureau of fisheries to an inquirer, "it is believed that the sense of smell, along with that of touch, plays a greater role in the life of a fish, as far as obtaining its food is concerned, than that of sight. The sense of sight in fishes seems to be limited more to the perception of changing lights and shadows, since a fish will snap more quickly at a moving object than a fish which is stationary. There is a common but erroneous notion that a fish smells with its gills. The nose is the seat of the smelling sense in all fishes.

Drenching Sheep Cuts Worm Loss

Parasitic fleas eliminate all possibility of Michigan flock owners realizing any profit as their share in the state's ten million dollar sheep and wool industry, warns the animal husbandry department at Michigan State College in advocating drenching of sheep and lambs at monthly intervals this summer to prevent infestation by stomach and tape worms.

When lambs go to market, those which have not been drenched for protection against worms weigh but two thirds as much as healthy lambs. The underweight animals command usually but two thirds the price per pound. Yet costs of drenching are less than half a cent for a mature animal and lambs can be treated for a fourth of a cent.

Treatment is comparatively simple. A soda pop bottle is most commonly used although some sheep men use a syringe. One ounce of copper sulphate and one ounce of nicotine sulphate are mixed in three quarts of warm water. Of this three quart solution adult sheep receive four ounces. 75 pound lambs should get three ounces, 50 pound lambs get two ounces and 25 pound lambs one ounce. The sheep is backed into a corner and the operator straddles the neck of the animal, holding the nose no higher than the level of the eyes, the mouth is worked up and down in the bottle of the sheep so that the solution is swallowed slowly.

Although sheep on dry lot feeding should be kept off feed for 12 to 18 hours before treating, this is not necessary for sheep on pasture, but all sheep should have access to water at all times before and after treatment.

Public Confidence

Challenging a recently published statement that there is an "apparent loss of public confidence in banks," William A. Boyd of Ithaca, N. Y., asks why, if this were true, bank deposits are constantly increasing. "I maintain that any banking institution which has continued to serve its community since the trying days of 1929 must be enjoying the respect and confidence of that community, and I am sure that the very large majority of banking institutions which have come through this depression have never had to regain public confidence," he says.

Trust Institutions

A directory of trust institutions published by the Trust Division, American Bankers Association, lists 2,853 institutions having aggregate capital funds of $4,416,000,000 and total resources of $35,443,000,000. It shows a total of 6,848 men and women engaged in this phase of bank work. The trust institutions comprise 1,355 state-chartered trust companies and banks and 1,497 national banks with trust departments located in 1,844 cities and towns.

Tall Tales

As told to: FRANK E. HAGAN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Clothes and the Man

WHEN Walter Howey and Frank Carson, widely known newspaper executives, "teamed" on the Chicago Herald and Examiner years ago, their after-business adventures made history. At five minutes past three one morning they strolled happily on Randolph street, having been persuaded to participate in a game of chance and profiting handsomely thereby.

At Clark street a ragged stranger approached. Instantly, Howey pocketed $20 from his roll and shoved it to the derelict. "This is yours," cried Howey. "Just remove your clothes. Cross the street and touch the county building." The unfortunate hesitated. He was lost.

Stepping gingerly, he removed all but b. v. d.'s, appraised the apparently deserted streets, and weakened. Howey pressed the money into his hand. "Take it," said the editor. "All you gotta do is touch the building."

As the victim, grabbing the $20, reached the county building, Carson yelled for the police. One of Chicago's finest appeared magically. "Catch him," screamed Carson, pointing. "That fellow's crazy!"

Nine seconds later the naked man, clutching $20 tightly, turned a corner in advance of the policeman, firing wildly. "Think of it," gasped Carson. "More money than he's seen in months, but naked. And not even a pawnshop open."

This sequel, heard infrequently, is when Carson arrived home an hour later his apartment was jammed. A complete outfit of clothing was missing. Costlier garments were untouched.

WHEN BANK CROOKS SHOW PREFERENCES

The American Bankers Association reports that non-member banks suffer twice the percentage of burglaries and hold-up robberies as compared with members. Member banks display a sign showing that they receive the protection of the association's detective agents, who cause the arrest of from 150 to 400 bank crooks every year, the organization, which is a non-profit body says.

"Professional criminals often boast of having sense enough to dodge the far-reaching system of man hunting available to members, so long as there are other banks without this protection," it says. "They recognize that once on the record of the Association's Protective Department, they must pay for every crime with which they can be identified. Detainer warrants have followed them from place to place; that penal servitude for one crime would not expiate other offenses."
