Daily programs are being arranged by R. E. Marshall, associate professor in horticulture at Michigan State College. He offers to send a detailed program showing the time of presentation of each subject to those fruit growers interested. Address the request to him at Horticulture Building, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Destroy Old Plates, Case Tells Drivers

Motorists purchasing their 1937 license plates at this time are cautioned by Leon D. Case, Secretary of State, to destroy their 1936 plates to prevent their possible mis-use by others.

It is pointed out that use of 1936 plates has been extended until Jan. 31, and that such plates, if thrown away intact, might be acquired by persons driving automobiles in the commission of illegal acts.

While a person might be able to prove his innocence of an offense charged to the driver of a car equipped with discarded 1936 plates, the possibility of much inconvenience and embarrassment still exists, Case reminds auto drivers.

VETERANS GET MANY JOBS

Veterans of Michigan received more than 10,000 jobs during 1936 through the National Reemployment Service, Major Howard Starret, State Reemployment Director, reported.

This was an increase of nearly 2,000 over 1935, according to a preliminary count.

Including the veterans' jobs, more than 160,000 persons received work through the National Reemployment Service last year. Of these, approximately 93,500 persons were sent to jobs with private industry and private contractors; while 66,678 were given jobs in Federal relief projects. Since Major Starret became director of the service in October, 1935, nearly 220,000 have been placed in all types of jobs.

Private industry and private contractor placements for 1936 nearly trebled the total for the preceding year, he said.

The National Reemployment Service is a division of the United States Employment Service which is affiliated with the U. S. Department of Labor. There is no charge for the service.

Tenacity of Purpose

Tenacity of purpose is characteristic of all men who have accomplished great things. They may lack their desirable traits, may have all sorts of peculiarities and weaknesses, but the quality of persistence, clear grit, is never absent from the man who does things. Drudgery can not disgust him, labor can not weary him, hardships can not discourage him; he will persist no matter what comes or goes, because persistence is part of his nature.

Ancient Rome's Tax Program

Imperial Rome of ancient days imposed a legacy tax of 5 per cent on sums over a certain amount left to other than near relatives. The introduction of this tax was partly due to the anxiety of Caesar Augustus to encourage matrimony. Only Roman citizens at first were subject to the inheritance tax until the whole empire was enfranchised to increase the revenue from this source.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Who holds the speed record for airplanes?

Ans.—Francesco Agello of Italy holds the record for seaplanes with a speed of 424 miles per hour, and Jimmy Wedell of the United States holds the record for an airplane (land plane) with a speed of 305 miles per hour. Later records have not as yet been made official.

Ques.—Why is President Roosevelt counted as the 32nd President of the United States when it is known that only 31 men have held that high office?

Ans.—This is because Grover Cleveland is counted twice. It must be remembered that Benjamin Harrison served one term in between Cleveland's two terms. When a President succeeds himself it is counted only as one. Otherwise a second term would count as two.

Ques.—What is the meaning of "bankrupt", and how did it originate?

Ans.—"Bankrupt" is taken from the Italian word "bank-rotta", which means literally a "broken bench", for it is recorded that in Florence, Italy, the money table (or bench) was broken when the money changer failed in business. Formerly none but a trader could be declared a bankrupt. Now the term and proceedings may be applied to non-traders as well as traders.

Ques.—What is the nationality of a child-born to American parents on the high seas or in a foreign country? Can he vote in the United States when he becomes of age?

Ans.—Children born of American parents on the high seas or on foreign soil automatically become American citizens under the Equal Nationality Act which was passed by the 73rd Congress. However, it has been ruled that the child or children must return to the United States and reside for five years before reaching the age of 18 in order to retain American citizenship without further legal proceedings.

Ques.—It is said that a man has invented the art of making shoes out of banana skins. Is that true?

Ans.—No. However, banana skins make good slippers.

Ques.—Why do radio stations persist in broadcasting phonograph records which they do under the belated phrase of "electrical transcription"?

Ans.—They resorted to this "fill-in" programs. (In printing and publishing they are called "fillers"). The practice has not met public favor, and many stations are discontinuing the policy.

Ques.—If a man has a twenty dollar United States gold certificate can he spend it anywhere he pleases or exchange it for a gold $20 coin?

Ans.—No. Neither the gold certificate or the gold coin is legal tender in the United States and cannot be used legally as a medium of exchange. However, they will be redeemed at any bank or at the United States treasury in other government currency at the face value. Prosecution may follow if attempt is made to spend the gold or the certificate.

Ques.—What is the predominating religion of Rumania?

Ans.—The orthodox Greek Catholic church predominates in Rumania. Religious freedom is assured by the law of the government.

Ques.—I wish to ask you if all postmasters are required to take civil service examinations?

Ans.—No. Civil service is applicable to fourth-class postmasters only. A bill was drafted in 1933 to make first, second and third-class postmasters subject to civil service, but Congress failed to act upon it.

Ques.—In an argument A says that George Washington was born on Saturday, and B says he was born on Monday, and that he died on Saturday. Which is correct?

Ans.—Neither one is correct. George Washington was born on Friday, Feb. 22, 1732. A would have been correct if 1732 had not been a leap year. He died on Dec. 14, 1799, which date was on Saturday.

Ques.—What is the system used to forecast the weather?

Ans.—The system is too elaborate to give a clear understanding in this column. Briefly the most important rule is the reading of the barometers and what their action indicates. These rules have special reference to a "steady barometer", a "rising barometer" and a "falling barometer."

THE IMPROVEMENT OF THE HURON VALLEY

By Henry S. Curtis, Ph. D.

Some three years ago when I was placed in charge of the recreation survey of Washtenaw county, I was greatly impressed by the intensive use of every available resource for picnicking, camping and swimming along the Huron, as well as the amount of pleasure traffic that passed along its short drive. A little later with the opening of the Huron Dexter Park this use was greatly intensified, so that many areas were greatly overcrowded on week-ends.

A study of the crowds and automobile licenses showed that these crowds were not largely local crowds, but that the whole valley was pretty well represented. The Huron Valley is about one hundred twenty five miles long and from five to twenty miles wide. There are many cross roads leading down from the outer edges, and it takes only a few minutes in the family auto before the family that lives on the outmost edges of the valley is on the shore of the river. If there were a continuous park about a half mile-wide along the Huron from source to mouth, it would provide rather well for the recreation of all the people of the valley.

The preparation of a guide to the Valley of the Huron, perhaps plan or study of it is better, was begun by an Ann Arbor group, consisting mostly of professors at the University of Michigan, but was later taken over as a Federal project for the Federal Writers, a group that is also concerned with making a guide for the State of Michigan.

The Guide contains about one hundred pages with many pictures. It represents an intensive study of the geography, history, wild life and power developments of the valley, its fishing, nature study and recreational possibilities as well as many other features. It has a plan for the development of the river and its shores, which will doubtless require many years to carry out but which has already attracted a considerable state and national attention. Such plans will require time, but history shows that when such plans once get into the imagination of a particular group and they get to talking about them, that certain areas are left in wills or purchased by wealthy men to carry out the plan. If the towns of the valley will take an interest in its possibilities, the Valley of the Huron may be made one of the most attractive valleys in America. It probably may never have the appeal of the Hudson or the Rhine, but it has many attractive features that are known to only a few and there are many others such as beds of lotus and variegated lilies that might easily be developed.

Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti are planning to put the Guide into the senior and junior high schools for regular study. (It is said that there are many people in Buffalo who have never seen Niagara Falls, and most of us have only a slight knowledge of what lies in the Valley of the Huron, even though a number of the undertakings are of international interest. But after all the things with which we are most concerned are the things that lie next to us. It may be important for us to know about Spain and Russia, but they do not touch our lives very closely.)

The valley plan calls for the improvement of the channel, the extension of the drive, the improvement of wild life and fishing, the development of sanctuaries, parks and picnic grounds. Something more than two miles of the river shore from Dexter down to Scio has already been turned over to the County Road and Park Commission by the Detroit Edison Company for development as well as two other large areas down the river. Other plans for a sanctuary are now in process of development.

Not far from Chelsea is Four Mile Lake, where the State of Michigan owns about two hundred acres of land. The marshy area to the west with its many separate ponds is admirably suited for a wild life sanctuary, while the high grove at the east might be made into an attractive park.

Fans of the Early Times Inlaid With Gold, Jewels

The utilitarian sticks of antique fans were ornamented as lavishly as were the mounts, being intricately carved, inlaid with gold, and sometimes set with jewels. Ivory was a favorite material, and the most expert craftsmen of the day were employed in decorating sticks to support silks painted by famous artists of the period, says a writer in the New York Times.

The designs were usually of the romantic type, then so prevalent in all forms of art. They represented elegant ladies and gentlemen at their games or flirting beside garden fountains. Landscapes were favored, too, as were architectural settings.

Filtrating ladies of an earlier day evolved a complete language of the fan, and such codes are still traditional in the Latin countries, where dark-eyed señoritas wield their fans in eloquent fashion, expressing volumes by the turn of a wrist. They peer over or around a fluted edge with inherited allure or retire in confusion behind the outspread folds.

To the women of Japan the fan is part of their costume. It was from Japan that the folded fan was introduced into the West. Women of all times, however, have appreciated its advantages. Queen Elizabeth listed twenty-seven fans in her "Inventory."

Remember the old days when we used to tuck the family automobile away for the winter? The idea of driving a car in cold weather was something to make us stand aghast. Very often we locked the machine up in a garage to hibernate all through the cold or icy weather.

Machines are now built to withstand the rigors of extreme cold weather, provided we take care of them. Winter driving, without question, is hard on any type of gasoline motor-driven vehicle. We who drive should realize this fact and treat our automobiles accordingly.

We should see that proper oil and proper lubricants are put into our machines. We should see that chains are used on slippery, icy, and snowy roads.

Treat the old car as you would treat an old friend. You will get back in service just what you give in care and consideration.

An American Parade of Progress

IN THE parade of American progress, there can be no resting on yesterday's laurels. To stand still is to fall behind, to drop out of the parade.

The automobile or radio of a few years ago, for example, would find no market today. Refrigerators, clothing, cameras, office equipment—in all industries the old models are constantly being rendered obsolete by improvements in style, value or performance.

Michigan's telephone service has kept pace with this great march of progress. There is little resemblance between the original service and that of today—as little as there is between the first "horseless carriages" and the splendid, efficient automobiles that Michigan is now supplying to the modern world.

The tremendous advance in telephone service was achieved by years of research in the famous Bell Laboratories; by the engineering skill of the Western Electric Company in producing dependable, standardized equipment; by the efficiency and loyalty of operating and administrative personnel. Thus, America's world supremacy in telephonic communication was won by tireless effort coordinated under this unchanging policy: To supply the best service, and the most, at the least possible cost.

That policy has stood behind your telephone for more than half a century. Year by year it has made the service swifter, more convenient, freer from error. It has brought the telephone within the reach of all—has made it a valuable factor in the domestic and industrial life of modern Michigan.

Sincere and thorough, the search for improvement must continue in order that the telephone shall maintain its well-deserved place in America's parade of progress.

Volley Ball

The volleyball contest closed last week, with the Cubs taking the championship. Rangers finished in second place, and Wolverines third, with the All-Stars bringing up the end. All the rural boys met Monday noon to organize basketball teams for noon. It was voted to keep the same teams as they had in volleyball ball, also the same schedule.

Tea Dance

The Journalism club entertained the faculty as its guests at the annual tea dance. The dance was held in the kindergarten room on Dec. 16, 1936.

The room was decorated with red and green. A Christmas tree and fireplace filled one corner of the room.

The table was laid with a lace table cloth, a silver tea service, dainty open-faced sandwiches spread with red and green spreads, macaroons, frosted Christmas cookies, flanked by red candles in poinsettia holders. A radio was installed to furnish music for the dancing.

Tea was poured by Miss Marian Ashfal, assisted by Miss Elsa Bareis.

"Ain't Them Elegant!"

The following is an excerpt of a conversation between two females attending C. H. S.:

"Which do you like the best, the button or the slip over?"

"Like the button kind. George told me his cost $8.25. Ain't that a lotta dough though, kid?"

"Yeah, it is, but Harold told me his was $8.75—he got a zipper."

"They're made by Colton Knitting Mills. The knit is just like Mr. Johnson's, except the letter is purple instead of brown."

"All in all they're O. K. I think the girls should get sweaters like them."

All these excerpts are not from one conversation but the trend is such as to lead us to believe that the sweaters are highly satisfactory. The staff wishes to thank those responsible for the material of this article.

Editorial

This being the first week of the New Year, don't you think it would be an excellent idea to make a few resolutions regarding school and school activities and keep them?

We should all resolve to treat our fellow schoolmates and teachers with more respect than we have previously. We should not try to see how little work we can get away with but see how much we really can get out of the remainder of the year.

It might also be a good idea to make a resolution to pick all the paper off the floor and give it to Mr. Wastepaper Basket and not to those many rows of desks in study hall.

How would it seem to you not to hear all the booing and hissing which goes on during every assembly and at every game? If we could decide to cut this out and be good sports at all times while watching a game or while playing we would appear to be and be a very cooperative group.

Just three were absent this morning. We hope none of them are sick. Murray brought us a picture of our new governor, Frank Murphy.

All the plants in the grade building were brought for safe keeping to our room during vacation. Mr. Gentner took care of them. We appreciate it and all of them were looking so nice this morning.

This month we are going to learn about children who live in the very cold countries: Norway, Russia and Eskimo land. Not many of us would like to change places with them.

Third Grade

We enjoyed the Christmas party very much. Our vacation was merry. Most of us are glad to be back in school.

Leroy had a nice time at his grandmother's house in Rockford, Ohio. Arthur spent ten happy days in Indiana. Robert B. was in Marshall two days. Barbara E. stayed home to see that Peanuts, the cat, and Curly, the dog, had a Merry Christmas.

ARE YOU A FAULT FINDER?

Very emphatically, if not indignantly, you answer, No! Well we hope you are not. Why should you be, when you have so little ground for being a grumbler?

Well, to test the matter, keep an account against yourself every day for a month. Keep a debit and a credit account, and then sum the matter at the end of the month, and convince yourself how many days in the month you got along without finding fault with anybody, or anything.

If the month is not satisfactory, try it a second month, and so continue from month to month until you can make what you will consider a satisfactory report.

Surely, there can be no objection to an investigation of this kind, and may such a testing prove to your complete satisfaction that you are not a grumbler.

HOWELL—The Howell City Council has purchased a tractor snow plow for use in clearing the sidewalks of the city. The new equipment is of the same nature as used in Lansing and consists of an International tractor with snow plow attachment.

The same tractor may be used for other purposes and the plow equipment will clear a path on the walks 4½ feet wide.—Republican-Press.

HOWELL—While hunting in the Haller woods in Genoa township Sunday, a rattlesnake was encountered by three Howell young men, Eli Woodard, Ted Briggs and Lyle Montague. The reptile, which had probably been lured from whatever home rattlesnakes have during the winter by the balmy, spring-like weather, was shot by Mr. Woodard.

It had four rattles and to anyone who is inclined to believe this is a story of the traditional "fish" variety, we refer you to Deputy Loren Bassett who says he will vouch for the story as he saw the snake (after it was dead).—Republican-Press.

BROOKLYN—An air mail letter from Louisa Palmer to her father, A. H. Palmer, said, on account of the shipping strike the Hawaiian Islands passed a Christmas without a single Christmas tree as a ship load of them was held up at Vancouver. She also stated that a Japanese ship from the coast was bringing 15,000 bags of mail that had accumulated at San Francisco and Los Angeles, being the largest consignment of mail ever brought in one ship.—Exponent.

"Coal Trees" trees that have remained complete through the ages which turned them into coal, are one of nature's strangest sights. Oddity in Washington
One of Washington's real oddities is the Cuban Urn, presented to President Coolidge in 1923 by Cuba for erection in Washington. The unusual urn was sculptured from fragments of a marble column that had been erected in the city of Habana as a memorial to victims of the battleship Maine, blown up in the harbor there. The column was later demolished by a hurricane in 1926. The urn stands in a garden near a driveway along the Potomac.

"Go forward"

THE divine command voiced by the prophet Moses when the children of Israel were halted by the seemingly impassable waters of the Red Sea, on their way out of the land of bondage, still has power to compel obedience and to put to flight doubt, hesitation, and indecision. The command was "Speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward: to go backward meant slavery and submission to hard taskmasters; to go forward demanded courage and faith in a power unknown to the material senses. Speaking of Moses as a leader, Mary Baker Eddy writes (Scriptures, p. 100): "Moses advanced a nation to the worship of God in Spirit instead of matter, and illustrated the grand human qualities of being bestowed by immortal Mind."

Along the journey of individual spiritual progress, the encouraging command to go forward can still be heard by those who may be trembling in the valley of decision. To awake from the bondage of enslaving conditions is one step towards spiritual freedom, and to demonstrate the way out of such conditions demands a continual going forward. The Apostle Paul, comparing his spiritual progress to a race in which the athlete keeps his eyes continually on the goal, said, "This one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. Like many of us today, Paul had much to regret, but he wasted no time in looking backward. The spiritual light which had awakened him on the road to Damascus blotted out the mistakes of the past, and he went forward in obedience to the heavenly vision.

The understanding that man is spiritual and not material brings hope and encouragement to those who are struggling against sickness and sin—discord of every kind. In order to advance spiritually we need to understand "the grand human capacities of being," and allow no thought of fear to prevent us from claiming and proving our spiritual dominion. Through the application of the teachings of Christian Science we begin to prove, little by little, that man is the image and likeness of God, and that he has dominion over all the earth.

Various wrong conditions of thought attempt to impede our progress, but we can overcome them through the power of Truth. Among these are fear and self-pity. We may fear that we are unable to work out our problems. We may fear the past or the future. Like the Israelites of old we may believe that an impassable sea stops our progress. But there is always a way through the troubled waters if we are obedient and take the first step in denying fear and obeying the divine command to "go forward."

Self-pity may argue that our problem is more than we can bear, that no one else has such a hard road to travel. Perhaps custom, tradition, love-of-ease, may whisper, "It had been better for us to serve the Egyptians, than that we should die in the wilderness."

Discouraging thoughts are false suggestions of mortal mind, which try to prevent our spiritual progress, and they can be overcome through the understanding of the illness of God, good, and the consequent powerlessness of evil.

In "The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellany" (p. 232) Mrs. Eddy writes, "The right way wins the right of way, even the way of Truth and Love whereby all our debts are paid, mankind blessed, and God glorified." Every spiritually progressive step glorifies God and blesses mankind; and that which benefits one must benefit others also. We can confer no greater benefit on those around us than to prove our own individual spiritual dominion.

The knowledge of such dominion includes recognition of our neighbor's rights, and there can be no friction where there is loving obedience to divine Principle; but the kingdom of God must first be established in our own thinking if we are to be of help to our neighbor. The right way is the way not of self-will, but of obedience to divine Principle. The right way is the way Love points out; and though to material sense it may seem clouded and uncertain, this way is always clear to spiritual sense.

To those who have tasted the joys of spiritual victory, there can be no turning back. To go forward is the only way.—The Christian Science Monitor.

An American Parade of Progress

IN THE parade of American progress, there can be no resting on yesterday's laurels. To stand still is to fall behind, to drop out of the parade.

The automobile or radio of a few years ago, for example, would find no market today. Refrigerators, clothing, cameras, office equipment—in all industries the old models are constantly being rendered obsolete by improvements in style, value or performance.

Michigan's telephone service has kept pace with this great march of progress. There is little resemblance between the original service and that of today—as little as there is between the first "horseless carriages" and the splendid, efficient automobiles that Michigan is now supplying to the modern world.

The tremendous advance in telephone service was achieved by years of research in the famous Bell Laboratories; by the engineering skill of the Western Electric Company in producing dependable, standardized equipment; by the efficiency and loyalty of operating and administrative personnel. Thus, America's world supremacy in telephonic communication was won by tireless effort coordinated under "this unchanging policy: To supply the best service, and the most, at the least possible cost."

That policy has stood behind your telephone for more than half a century. Year by year it has made the service swifter, more convenient, free from error. It has brought the telephone within the reach of all—has made it a valuable factor in the domestic and industrial life of modern Michigan.

Sincere and thorough, the search for improvement must continue in order that the telephone shall maintain its well-deserved place in America's parade of progress.

Ques.—I wish to ask you if a religion of Rukhains Here.

Ans.—The orthodox church predominates. Religious freedom is assured of the government.

Ques.—I wish to ask you if a postmaster are required to take civil service examinations?

Ans.—No. Civil service is applicable to fourth-class postmasters only. A bill was drafted in 1933 to make first, second and third-class postmasters subject to civil service, but Congress failed to act upon it.

Ques.—In an argument A says that George Washington was born on Saturday, and B says he was born on Monday, and that he died on Saturday. Which is correct?

Ans.—Neither one is correct. George Washington was born on Friday, Feb. 22, 1732. A would have been correct if 1732 had not been a leap year. He died on Dec. 14, 1799, which date was on Saturday.

Ques.—What is the system used to forecast the weather?

Ans.—The system is too elaborate to give a clear understanding in this column. Briefly the most important rule is the reading of the barometers and what their action indicates. These rules have special reference to a "steady barometer," a "rising barometer" and a "falling barometer."

Fans of the Early Times Inlaid With Gold, Jewels

The utilitarian sticks of antique fans were ornamented as lavishly as were the mounts, being intricately carved, inlaid with gold, and sometimes set with jewels. Ivory was a favorite material, and the most expert craftsmen of the day were employed in decorating sticks to support silks painted by famous artists of the period, says a writer in the New York Times.

The designs were usually of the romantic type, then so prevalent in all forms of art. They represented elegant ladies and gentlemen at their games or flirting beside garden fountains. Landscapes were favored, too, as were architectural settings.

Flirtatious ladies of an earlier day evolved a complete language of the fan, and such codes are still traditional in the Latin countries, where dark-eyed señoritas wield their fans in eloquent fashion, expressing volumes by the turn of a wrist. They peer over or around a fluted edge with inherited allure or retire in confusion behind the outspread folds.

To the women of Japan the fan is part of their costume. It was from Japan that the folded fan was introduced into the West. Women of all times, however, have appreciated its advantages. Queen Elizabeth listed twenty-seven fans in her "Inventory."

Yellow Fever Germs

In 1888, when people still thought that yellow fever germs flew or drifted about in the air, an epidemic of this disease took place in Jacksonville, Florida. In the belief that the microbes could be killed by concussion, writes M. B. Johnson, Jacksonville, Florida, in Collier's Weekly, cannons were fired for several days in the principal streets to the delight and profit of the glaziers.

Amount of Rainbow Seen

The amount of a rainbow seen at any time depends upon the height of the sun, being low when the sun is high and high when the sun is low. On high mountains or from balloons, when the sun is very low, completely circular rainbows are observed. Lunar rainbows, formed by the light of the moon and appearing as luminous arcs with very faint colors, are occasionally seen.

"Coal Trees"

"Coal trees," trees that have remained complete through the ages which turned them into coal, are one of nature's strangest sights. They are found in mines, standing in their normal position and as perfectly formed as the day they reached maturity, except that their roots, trunks, branches and even their leaves have been converted into black, gleaming coal. Collier's Weekly.

Horse Flies Killed Cattle

In early Ohio horse flies travel in such enormous swarms that they could actually kill cattle by sucking the beasts dry of blood.

Africa's Largest Rivers

The four largest rivers of Africa are the Nile, the Congo, the Niger and the Zambesi.

Sleeping on One Leg Is

Way Heron Gets His Rest
Birds have funny ways of resting. The heron, for instance, sleeps while standing on one leg. The other leg is drawn up and tucked among its breast feathers, while its head is buried in its back.

Starlings do their exercises before they retire. They congregate near their resting place, then fly round and round, the whole flock turning, twisting and dipping like one bird, as if obeying orders.

Swallows like to rest on telegraph wires and other thin supports. Why don't they fall off? Because there are muscles in their claws which automatically lock their foothold and keep them safe.

Duck and geese, notes a writer in Pearson's Weekly, often sleep on the water, now and then paddling for a moment—in their sleep—to prevent themselves drifting to the shore, where their natural enemies, the foxes, might lurk.

Milk, Casein, Cheese

Milk consists of about 90 per cent water, the remainder being made up of from 1 to 8 per cent casein, sugar and some mineral elements. The casein itself is an albumin, in the same class with the white of an egg, which can be extracted in the form of a tasteless, odorless white powder composed of carbon, hydrogen, nitrogen, sulphur and phosphorus. In addition it contains about 15 of the essential animal acids, the forms to which proteins access in order to be absorbed as are reduced by the digestive process. Largely because of this casein is about equivalent to lean meat in food value. It supplies the infant with the necessary proteins for nutrition. Cheese is a modified form of casein. When treated with formaldehyde casein is converted to a hard, noninflammable material which has considerable use in industry.

Oddity in Washington

One of Washington's real oddities is the Cuban Urn presented to President Coolidge in 1928 by Cuba for erection in Washington. The unusual urn was sculptured from fragments of a marble column that had been erected in the city of Havana as a memorial to victims of the battleship Maine, blown up in the harbor there. The column was later demolished by a hurricane in 1928. The urn stands in a garden near a driveway along the Potomac.

Tell the Bees
In savage countries and in many country districts of England and the world over, the bees are held to be members of the household. A death in the family must always be "told to the Bees,"—otherwise they will be offended and desert their hives, taking away with them the luck of the house. When a wedding occurs the bees expect their hives to be decorated with white ribbon or rosettes. When treated with this consideration the bees are supposed never to sting members of the household. Other superstitions about bees are that one should never shout at them, but tell them important news in whispers; one should not quarrel near a hive, lest the bees fight, too, and destroy one another. Nor will bees sting half-wits, even when disturbed.—Tit-Bits Magazine.

AN ABUSED AMUSEMENT IS A HARD MASTER

The cheerful little meal and then more cards until six o'clock when Olive went home for an hour's sleep; an abstracted dinner, and a change of costume for the evening game.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THE anxious face of a handsome young woman looked out from the morning papers a few weeks ago; her photograph was taken in a jail; she had just been sentenced for passing bad checks.

She is the daughter of a distinguished professional man; she had an interesting childhood of travel and unusual contacts; she made a good marriage. It was only when they had been married for several months that her young doctor husband made his first mild protest against her passion for cards.

All this woman wants to do in this life is play cards. Contract bridge is her one interest; she is happy only when she can play it day and night. Her home—the beautiful little country home with a garden that was her father's wedding gift to her—meant nothing to her. Her husband meant nothing; she would not have children. Disorder, dirt, debt, these were the only conditions the husband knew in the three years they were together. Olive never did anything but play bridge.

She slept late every morning; the maid hurried in her coffee at ten at eleven she was dressed and ready for the day. She went then to the house of some friend, and they and two others of their sort played a rubber before lunch. Then the cheerful little meal—the sort of meal that women love—and then more cards until six o'clock, when Olive went home dreamily for an hour's sleep; an abstracted dinner, and a change of costume for the evening game. The only tragedy she ever knew was when she could not get up a good game. Some sort of game always was possible; sometimes she even coaxed her husband into playing.

After two years of this they rented the house and went to a boarding-house, and Olive went on playing bridge. She took lessons in bridge; she read articles about bridge. When her husband asked for a divorce his plea was that his wife had no other interest in life but the game. He got his divorce, and Olive got $150 a month.

She lived in a small room, she skimped meals; she went on playing bridge. But save as she would, and gamble—a she would, she couldn't make ends meet, so she got a job. The job was in a cafeteria, as cashier, and a few weeks ago Olive cashed a check for an old patron, took a tracing of the signature, and presently forged it on a check for $160. Now she will spend two years in jail. Her mother died of grief; she was in the county when the sentence was pronounced; went home crushed and heart-broken, and never left her bed again.

It seems incredible that a mere game, an amusement intended to fill an idle hour now and then, could so take possession of a handsome, well-born and well-educated woman; but this is a true story, and not the only one of its kind. There is a certain fever bred of card playing, of gambling of any sort, that takes possession of apparently sensible folk sometimes, and carries them far away from their moorings, blinding them to all other considerations. No drug ever has its victims in a crueler grip than cards. And women, who have more leisure, and who do everything with swifter force than men, are often natural gamblers. Middle-aged, idle, perhaps bored with the dull routine of respectable middle-class existence, they find a tremendous excitement in card playing, and the more they have of it the more they want it.

Most pleasures grow into vices if we give them free play. Perhaps that is why some of the sternest Puritan sects prohibited them even in their innocent forms. Races, roulette, dancing, eating, driving, card playing, drinking all can be safe enough enjoyments. But they rarely are. Most of us drink and eat too much, and destroy our lives too soon, as a penalty. Thousands of men spend their lives, and millions of dollars are wasted, in trying to teach human beings to be temperate; the doctors go on preaching, books are written, the example of suffering and death is always before us, but we never learn.

For example, Europe has legally banished the roulette wheel. "On the races," they say in France, "a man loses his own money. On the wheel he loses his firm's money." So roulette, discredited and disgraced, was banished to the south, and set up formally in the tiny principality of Monaco. The Prince permitted it there.

But I don't like Monte Carlo. The air there is positively sickening to me; it is poisoned with human misery.

The residents there are not permitted to gamble. Oh, no, the authorities see to that. Once past the careful inspection and identification at the door you find a dream of amusement and interest inside; a musical entertainment, vaudeville, refreshments, deep restful chairs, deep carpets, soft lights.

"Oh, why can't I live always be like this, Tom?" I heard one young woman say excitedly, as she and a man came in. "I could sit here forever, listening to the music and watching the types, and drinking cool things."

Beyond this introductory stage of luxury and beauty are the great saloons where the tables are. Just the familiar green cloth with the number painted on it, and the spinning bowl of the wheel in which the little ivory ball sings and sings and clinks itself silent. Groups of motionless persons packed about the tables; the heads go forward; discs click against the croupiers' knees. How quickly, how impersonally they draw it toward them, the precious money that means meals and shoes and freedom for the anxious-faced men and women who watch. A little, very little, is pushed back. The croupiers never comment; they never say, "Ah, too bad!" or "Better luck." They know that the losers will vanish into the darkness and despair of the world's lowest slums and drears; they know that the winners will come back and back until they lose. The proprietors of a roulette wheel can't lose, no matter what they do. They are gambling on the weakness of human nature, and human nature doesn't change.

All over the world schools, clinics, lectures, teachers, mothers, clubs and associations are trying to build up morality—trying to better the average of human goodness by only the hundredth part of a hundredth part here and there. The gambling tables are on the other side; they are creating misery and moral breakdown, year after year.

"Why, but you're warned," they argue reasonably. "You know what thinking people have decided about gambling. You know it's illegal in well governed communities. You don't have to play."

My little woman who had thought she could live in a Casino was waiting in a chair by the door when I came by three hours later. She was a sick-looking girl then; white-faced and tense. Tom was "arranging something with the cashier." I asked her if she had won.

"At first we did," she said in that voice one comes to know in Monte Carlo. Tom came to talk to her; they conferred. "Yes, Papa will, Papa'll send it," I heard her say, quickly and nervously. "We can cable him."

Their evening's amusement had cost them seventy-two hundred dollars. Yet they had started in modestly enough with a stake of one hundred francs, about five dollars then, apiece.

No wonder the Casino can supply refreshments, music, chairs. Couldn't any merchant in the world insure you that, if you were like to hand him a profit of seven thousand dollars for four hours of it?

Because I used to know her mother when Olive, whose story starts this article, was a dear little dark-eyed girl, I went to see Olive in jail the other day. She was playing solitaire bridge; she said there wasn't a woman in the place who could play a decent game of bridge. She spoke of Monte Carlo; said that she wished she could go there; she was confident that she could pick up any amount in no time. There's no cure for her. But there might be a hint in her story for certain other young wives.

Antarctic Regions Colder
The Antarctic regions are colder and less accessible than the Arctic. Because of the closer arrangement of the continents, the action of the Gulf stream on the one side and the Japan current on the other, and from the fact that the earth is in perihelion during the winter season in the northern hemisphere and in aphelion during the winter of the southern, the Arctic seas are more free from ice, which in the Antarctic constitutes an all but impenetrable barrier.

Transfusions Long in Use
