Articles of partnership association, limited, were executed and filed with the register of deeds on Tuesday, the 13th inst., by A. R. Welch, J. D. Watson and Fred S. Welch, on behalf of the Chelsea Manufacturing Co., Ltd., the capital stock of which is $200,000, fully paid. The company will make the Welch touring car and will have one completed before and exhibited at the automobile show in Chicago from February 14 to 20.

There have been 22 cars of hard coal received here since the end of the strike.

GEO. WACKENHUT of this place has been appointed as one of the senate committee clerks at Lansing.

Southern Michigan seems to have had the worst of the present cold spell. State reports the mercury from 12 to 20 degrees below zero, the roads blocked by immense drifts and business and travel suspended.

L. T. Freeman has purchased the J. D. Stimson & Son Grocery store in Ann Arbor on South State street. Mr. Freeman will conduct both the stores in Ann Arbor and Chelsea and will continue to make his home in Chelsea.

OUR NEIGHBORS

GRASS LAKE—Of much interest to dairymen and farmers of this vicinity is the announcement that the Dailley Creamery Company of Detroit will open a receiving station in Grass Lake, the same to be located in the old creamery building on the lake.

Workmen are now engaged in making the building ready for occupancy, installation of equipment, etc., and the plant will be ready to receive milk Jan. 15, it is stated.

It is interesting to note that the company will pay $1.80 straight for milk, no bonus, no surplus, and 4 cents a point over 8.5.

STOCKBRIDGE—Mr. and Mrs. L. Umstead, formerly of Chelsea, opened a meat market in this village last Saturday. The market is located one door east of the post office. The Umstead Market sells only home-killed meats which are butchered at the Umstead slaughter house at Grass Lake. Mr. Umstead has been in the wholesale and retail meat business all of his life.—Brief Sun.

PLYMOUTH—Talk about tough luck! Monday some 40 or more violators of Detroit traffic ordinances reached the Detroit House of Correction out west of Plymouth to serve anywhere from 10 to 30 or more days. Right at the same time these traffic violators were being unloaded at the front door, a switch engine was shoving into the prison yard seven cars loaded with coal! The prison officials were happy, the switching crew thought it was a great break for old timers out at the prison—well, it was a great day for everybody except the traffic law violators. Decked out in prison garb, with canvas gloves and coal shovels these traffic violators Tuesday morning started unloading coal.—Mail.

NORTHVILLE—A Lutheran minister in Northfield township stepped in the law department recently to have a sentence for a Salem man changed from two to seven years in the House of Correction, to five years of regular church attendance. The minister's client, the story goes, had been thrown out of a Salem beer garden. He took revenge of his bouncer by stealing the man's turkey. And so the judge said, "I'll be from two to seven years in the lookup for you."

And the minister said, "I'll be five years in regular church sentence for you." And so the preacher will see him in church.—Record.

BRIGHTON—Due to an increasing demand for pure manufactured ice the Brighton Ice Company has discontinued the harvesting of lake ice. Mr. Leith informs the Argus that his company has signed a long time contract with the Detroit City Ice and Fuel Co. They agree to supply the local company with pure manufactured ice in any amount required to take care of the Brighton area. The ice is now delivered to the Brighton ice storage plant by large refrigerated trucks.—Argus.

MASON—With an inch of rain falling on December 30 and the morning of December 31, the total rainfall for 1936 was given a boost to 27.65 inches, less than four inches short of the normal of 31.45 inches. The shortage was 3.78 inches. The record rains of September all but wiped out the deficiency caused by the summer drought. In fact, there have been a lot of drier years than 1936. Back in 1930 only 18.50 inches of rain was recorded. The rainfall in 1924 was 27.77 and in 1925 it was 27.72 inches. Back in 1894 it was dry. In that year only 19.43 inches of rain fell. Ing-ham's wettest year was 1883. A total of 48.44 inches of rain fell that year.—County News.

Tide Four Times a Day
Four times a day the waters change and at high and low tides there is a difference of 28 feet in the water levels about Nova Scotia. The receding tides leave ships in the harbor stranded high and dry on the sands, their entire hulls exposed. Later the incoming tides set these fishing and sailing vessels afloat once more as the waters make their 28-foot rise. These fascinating "rapid change" tides may be viewed a short distance from Digby, which overlooks the Digby basin. This is a sheet of water 20 miles long and 10 miles wide which forms an arm of the Bay of Fundy.

Speed of the Camel
A pack camel can travel, fully loaded, 25 miles a day. But the well-bred "trotting" camel, which is a beautiful white beast, slim and graceful, can cover 40 to 70 miles in that time.

Too Much Style
"It doan allus pay to put on too much style," said Uncle Eben; "de dog dat has a blue ribbon 'round his neck is de one dat's most likely to get stole in de hope of er reward."

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Why do books of fiction seem to be on the wane?
Ans.—Probably this is because of the greatly increased number of fishermen who supply fiction without charge.

Ques.—Will you kindly answer what a "hunky" is?
Ans.—"Hunky" is a new word and means a foreign-born laborer, usually one that is unskilled.

Ques.—Can you tell me in your good paper how many stones were used to build the Great Pyramid of Egypt?
Ans.—According to British archaeologists there are 2,300,000 stones in the Great Pyramid in Egypt.

Ques.—Who is the king of Algeria?
Ans.—Algeria has no king. The country is a French colony, and French is the official language.

Ques.—Do high foreheads indicate great intelligence?
Ans.—No; it is a myth. This theory became deeply rooted in the minds of many people because of the low foreheads of the man-like apes.

Ques.—Can you tell me why the Leaning Tower of Pisa, Italy, was built to lean like it does?
Ans.—Originally the Leaning Tower of Pisa was built plumb, but its height and weight was too great for the size of its foundation and it gradually began to sag. The Tower is now leaning more than 16 feet out of plumb and is still sinking—slowly but surely. American methods are being considered to straighten the building and give it a foundation that will last for all time, like our own Washington Monument was jacked up and straightened some fifty years ago when it was discovered to be leaning one inch out of plumb because the foundation had settled a little on one side.

Ques.—Will you answer in your Questions and Answers what were the vice-presidents during President Wilson's administration?
Ans.—The Vice-President during both terms of President Wilson's administration was Thomas Marshall of Indiana.

Ques.—Has the United States any law against loaning money to foreign countries?
Ans.—Yes; to any and all countries that are in default of their war debt to the United States. Senator Hiram Johnson of California sponsored the bill to make it illegal to sell in this country new issues of securities to any defaulting country. It also provided that outright loans or gifts could not be made by this Government or its people.

Ques.—How are icebergs formed?
Ans.—Icebergs are fragments of Polar ice sheets which have broken away from the original mass, except that some are formed by the breaking off of huge fragments of glaciers which have descended to the sea. About eight-ninths of all icebergs are below the surface of the water. In other words, if an iceberg is one-quarter mile high, two miles of it is deep into the ocean.

Ques.—Does the monarchic Vatican City carry on commercial activities with other countries? Who are the diplomatic representatives from the United States?
Ans.—Vatican City, while an independent State, with the Pope as Ruler, carries on no commercial activities with any country. Therefore they have no diplomatic relations with the United States nor with any other nation. The Papal State government is purely spiritual beyond the confines of its domain.

Ques.—Will you please tell me on what day of the week I was born? The date was April 1, 1893.
Ans.—You were born on Sunday. That was the day of the week of April 1, 1893.

Ques.—What is the gasoline consumption by automobiles in the United States per year?
Ans.—There is no way of knowing exactly, as the consumption of gasoline is increasing. However, in 1936 the approximate amount of gasoline consumed by automobiles was fifteen billion gallons.

Ques.—Is the Socialist party and the Communist party the same?
Ans.—No. Not any more than you would consider the Democrats and the Republicans the same.

SOMEBODY CARES

Sombody knows when your heart aches,
And everything seems to go wrong,
Sombody knows when the shadows
Neel chasing away with song!
Sombody knows when you're lonely,
Tired, discouraged and blue,
Sombody wants you to know Him,
And know that He dearly loves you.

Sombody cares when you're tempted,
And your mind grows daisy and dim,
Sombody cares when you're weakest
And farthest away from Him!
Sombody gives when you're fallen,
You are not lost from His sight,
Sombody waits for your coming,
And He'll drive the clouds from your sight.

Sombody loves you when weary,
Sombody loves you when strong,
Always is waiting to help you,
He watches you—one of the strong
Needing His friendship so holy,
Needing His watch care so true;
His name? We call His name Jesus,
He loves every one, He loves you.

—From Victorious Songs.
—Arthur Carlton.

Many a youngster who would not think of stealing a ride on the tail-board of a truck will hitch his sled to a car in order to enjoy a thrilling free ride. That's one of the winter hazards drivers must think about during the next month or two.

It is a great temptation to be big-hearted and let the kids have their fun, but think what it means when you suddenly decide to turn a corner and the sled on which the youngsters are riding slideswipes another car going in the opposite direction. Serious injury or death may be the result.

If you really love children you will discourage this practice. Make it a habit to look back now and then to see that you haven't picked up a couple of joy riders.

Children are care-free, ambitious, and daring. You must protect them.

RESERVES WIN AS REGULARS LOSE

The squad of C. H. S. continued true to form Friday night as the C. H. S. Reserves defeated Belleville 22-15. This victory of the second squad added to the string of victories over Manchester, U. High and Napoleon. Daniels captured scoring honors with eight points, Dingle and Fletcher being in close second with six points each. This victory of the second team makes four victories in succession. Let's hope they continue! One reason for their victories is their comparative height over their opponents.

That same height in the possession of the regulars' opponents has been a major factor in the defeats suffered by the Chelsea Regulars in the past. A fast forward, Early, however, accounted 15 points in the Napoleon game. He was short. Also a quick-shooting guard, Dolph, accounted 4 baskets in the first quarter, thereby giving Belleville a lead which she maintained the entire contest.

A great deal of scoring was not evident on the part of the Chelsea five and the final score was 26-10 in favor of Belleville.

Editorial

Courtesy
Although courtesy is a very important thing in social gatherings and other places where people gather, it and boosting from the crowd for athletic teams. If the supporters for one side cheer just for their side, and hiss and yell when the other side cheers, that is a show of poor sportsmanship. When one side cheers for their team, wait until they are through cheering, so as to give them an even chance to yell for their team. This should be especially followed by home teams, where usually there is more of an attendance than the visiting team has. I believe this is one of the most important phases of courtesy, and believe everyone will agree with me that this should be followed through-out athletic battles.

DANCES

In the midst of classes this last week a bomb was burst! We were to come back at 12:00 for dancing! The school was trying out a new Victrola with an electric amplifier. Could it be heard over the shush-shush of dancing feet? It was a huge success. When can we do it again, Mr. Blesseker?

Only next time don't let the "Dutch Church" act go on—boys setting on one-half of the gymnasium and girls standing in the hall.

How about giving the boys a break and asking them to dance, gals?

Dicky Stanley has moved to Flint.
We hope that Robert Freysinger, who is in the hospital, will soon be with us again.

Second Grade, Jan. 4-6, 1937

Wednesday was Dolly day in the second grade. So many lovely dolls! Most of them were brand new; just came Christmas day. Two of them we helped to name. Some day we are going to give a party for them.

Bragdon Barlow brought his little puppy, Cocoa, to school. Cocoa is white and spotted with brown so he is well named. We all liked him.

Monday we all changed our seats. On Tuesday morning most of us found it difficult to remember where we belonged, and went back to our old seats. Soon we'll be "at home" again.

We are going to find out something about the children (in the) who live in the cold, snowy north lands. Olga lived in Norway. Lasse-Lapp and Lappe-Lise lived in Lapland and Mamma are the Eskimo twins who live on the very edge of the great white world where the snow never melts.

Miss Canfield brought in a big hawk for us to see. His wing spread was 58 inches. We measured it. His bill looked strong and cruel. We appreciate Miss Canfield's bringing him over to us.

We have been weighed and measured again. All of us have grown since last fall. We are a good healthy crowd.

Paul A. Schaible has been ill all the week. We miss him and hope he will soon be back.

Fourth Grade News

Every morning we have a ten-minute radio program. The station is CPS; three pupils take part each time.

Mary Koch and Nancy Every are drawing a scene of Norway on the board.

We hope Barbara Woods will be back with us soon.

We have started long division in arithmetic.
Our chart in spelling is making us work hard. We want to get A to help our class. If twenty-five pupils have a perfect score we'll get a gold star.

Fifth Grade News

We are sorry to lose Ruth Cooper who has moved to Jackson.

In history we are studying the middle ages and we have enjoyed dramatizing the ceremonies of the lords and vassals of that age. Friday we wrote a little playlet from the dramatization. We will give the little play on Friday. Dorothy Knickerbocker and Barbara White have charge of the costumes. Eugene Townsend is director. Sumner Osterlie is his assistant. Robert Eaton is the lord who is also king. Clifford Myers is the vassal. Elaine Schmidt is the queen. Joe Hale the priest. Richard Rahnmiller the lance man. Mary Christwell, Constance Coburn, Philip Vogel and Louis Polick are witnesses. Jane Christwell, announcer. All the rest of the girls and boys in the grade are the guests. These stories are from our new history text books which we are enjoying very much this year.

Our arithmetic-hockey game this week between the Red Wings and the Black Hawks resulted in a final victory for the Red Wings. Virginia Miller and Ruth Osterlie were the captains with Virginia's team in the lead all the week.

We are glad that some of our weekly readers are printing articles against the use of toy guns and we hope the mothers will co-operate with us against their use also and not allow their girls and boys to bring these guns to school.

Sixth Grade News

We have made a geography map putting in the crops raised in the different regions of the United States. The people in charge of the maps were: Virginia Barr, Marian Eisele, and Lawrence Dietle.

In history we have been working on a time line map and chart of the colonies, also a history report.

We wish to thank Miss Canfield for bringing in the rough legged hawk from her room and telling us some very interesting facts about it. We also wish to thank Donna May McKune for bringing the hawk to Miss Canfield.

In music we are planning to give an operetta. It is going to be very good. We are all going to enjoy working hard on it. Come and see it.

We have an American rough legged hawk in our room. It is harmless to poultry. Good books about hawks tell us that he eats field mice, moles and insects. Mr. Fred Sletz caught it in a trap while he was trying to catch crows. There aren't very many of them around here. They are found only in the winter in this state. They are usually found around Hudson Bay. Dick S. Luther K. and Donald K. are going to make a cage for the hawk because the one we have now is too small. We hope we will get the cage soon. We are glad he has offered to make a cage.

K. R. Platt is back to school with us again after a week's illness.

In the back of the room we had a chart that shows the boys that want to play basketball and baseball. Every Friday Miss Canfield put O after the people's names that have failed and can not play the next week.

James B. and Gamly H. can't play this week.

In geography we have been studying about the Cape to Cairo route. We have another map which we are going to make into a rainfall map. We put in the arrows showing the winds.

We have a new boy in our room. His name is George Freysinger.

We handed in our geography note books on farm life last Monday.

We have been reading from a book called "Our World Today," in geography class.

Depression Aids In Fight On Pollution

Lansing, Jan. 13—The depression may have retarded or halted progress in other fields, but it paved the way for unprecedented achievements against water pollution in Michigan.

Federal allowances of funds to towns and cities that otherwise would have been financially unable to build sewage treatment plants together with the stimulus provided by the Michigan Stream Control commission, resulted in a general public awakening and activity in curbing the pollution of public waters.

In his report to the state legislature for the past biennium, Secretary Milton P. Adams of the state stream control commission, shows that since Jan. 1, 1935, sewage treatment plants were completed and in operation or substantially completed in 29 different towns and construction has been started in nearly a dozen others.

"Most of these projects have been made financially possible to municipalities at this time through the aid and assistance of the federal public works administration, a few of the smaller ones by the WPA and its predecessor agencies and two new projects were financed independently by the municipalities concerned," Adams asserted. "Without this federal aid, most of them would not have been undertaken for years, due to local debt limitations and the general financial conditions of municipalities imposed by the depression."

"Michigan, as a result of the stimulus afforded by federal aid, is surely whipping the problem of municipal sewage by means of local sewage treatment plants; the problem of industrial waste pollution presents problems that require a different approach and varied methods of handling, however. Eventually, satisfactory methods of curbing this type of pollution we feel sure, will be applied. Wastes from sugar-beet, chemical, paper, canneries, milk and tanning plants, and the oil fields that are now contaminating public waters and destroying aquatic life as well as providing a source of public annoyance and unnecessary loss are to be controlled and we are devoting as much attention to that phase of the general problem as the commission's limited resources permit."

Adams said that new municipal treatment plants have been completed or are substantially completed at Charlevoix, Charlotte, East Tawas, Paw Paw, Tawas City, Alma, Bessemer, Owasco, St. Ignace, Gladstone, Milford, Sparta, Whitehall, Ann Arbor, Battle Creek, Jackson, Baraga, Grand Haven, Howell, Ludington, Monroe, Muskegon, Pentwater, Dexter and Greenville. Additions and improvements to existing plants are being completed at Fremont, Holland, Cadillac, Romeo and Durand.

Plants have been started at Lansing, Spring Lake, Chelsea, South Lyon, Cass City, Quincy and Gaylord. The $20,000,000 Detroit project made possible by a $9,000,000 federal FWA grant in August of 1935 is well under way, Adams said. The remaining length of 15-foot Detroit river intercepting sewer from downtown Detroit to the sewage plant site at Jefferson avenue and the Rouge river is either completed or under contract. It is expected that bids for the plant construction and its equipment will be sought early in 1937.

When completed and in operation this plant will be able to serve nearly 60 per cent of the urban population of Michigan, including Highland Park, Hamtramck and several Grosse Pointe communities. It will make possible a clean Wayne county shoreline from Macomb county line down to the River Rouge. Federal assistance is being sought by Wayne county officials that will make possible the remainder of the Detroit river clean-up, thereby satisfying after many years the federal government's treaty obligations with Canada and the requirements of its state stream control commission in Michigan waters as well.

Legal proceedings are instituted by the office of the attorney general against Michigan municipalities or other pollution sources only when conferences between the interested parties do not result in satisfactory agreements as to a course of action.

The commission has authorized the attorney general to commence suit in federal district court at South Bend against three Indiana municipalities,

South Bend, Mishawaka and Elkhart to prevent their continued pollution of the St. Joseph river, Adams said.

THE STATE MUTUAL MAKES FINE SHOW

Every member of the State Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Michigan should be pleased to learn that his company received a very distinct honor at the national convention of mutual insurance companies held at Philadelphia Oct. 12 to 15.

The hundreds of farm mutual fire insurance companies of the United States made exhibits of their advertising literature, publications on fire prevention and educational matter about their respective companies. Upon these exhibits fifteen awards were given by the convention. It is a real compliment to the management of the State Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Michigan that of the 15 awards 7 were given to this successful and progressive institution.

The year 1936 has been one of the most successful years in the history of this big company. Over a million dollars in new business has been placed on its records each month since April. While the fire losses of the company have been greater than in 1935, owing to its splendid financial position it has not been necessary to increase the assessment rate.

Through the able management of Wilbur V. Burras, president, and H. K. Fisk, secretary, this company has acquired the distinction of being the largest farm mutual fire insurance company in the state.

Two features in particular in the management of this company should commend it to every farm property owner. First, careful selection of risks by its agents, and second, a thorough inspection of every piece of property insured. This keeps the losses down to the minimum and enables the company to maintain a low assessment rate.

The French army still pays striking tribute to the memory of La Tour d'Auvergne, who was killed in action in 1800. The name of this "first grenadier of France" has never been struck from the roll of the army and today, as during the past, says Collier's Weekly, it is still called at every parade of his company and answered by an officer who replies: "Died on the field of honor."

Public Health News

Lansing, January.—Increasing pneumonia deaths caused Dr. C. C. Slemmons, state health commissioner, this week to martial the services of his department to aid physicians in the diagnosis and control of this disease. Serum treatment of lobar pneumonia has proved so effective, he revealed, that a measure providing for the statewide free distribution of antipneumonia serum to physicians has been included in the budget to be submitted to the legislature.

"Time is an all-important factor in the diagnosis and treatment of lobar pneumonia," declared the commissioner. "The laboratories of this department at Lansing, Grand Rapids and Houghton are providing free diagnostic service for physicians both day and night, reporting by telephone or telegraph within two hours after specimens reach the laboratory. Diagnostic sera will also be provided for other laboratories in the state doing pneumotyping."

Lobar pneumonia is definitely a communicable disease, Dr. Slemmons stated, and patients should be isolated and cases reported to the Michigan department of health. Although there are as many as 32 kinds of pneumonia, the commissioner explained, types I and II constitute 60 per cent of all cases and both of these respond to serum treatment. To be effective, antipneumonia serum must be given early, and be specifically for the definite type of pneumonia.

Experiments with antipneumonia serum produced in the state laboratories have shown that many cases of lobar type I pneumonia can be cured through the early administration of this serum. Present high cost of such treatment has hindered its wide application, however, and the department laboratories are experimenting with a less expensive and more potent product. Additional funds will be needed to make this available to physicians throughout the state.

Pneumonia deaths from all forms increased more than eight per cent in 1936 over the 1935 toll and 32 per cent in the past five years, said Dr. Slemmons. This is typical of the general increase throughout the nation. Both Chicago and New York have dangerous increases.

Present reports do not indicate any such pandemic conditions as occurred in 1918, and 1920, Dr. Slemmons declared, but he warned that all measures for pneumonia and influenza control should be strengthened. Pneumonia is usually secondary to a cold, influenza or measles, he said, and a physician should be called upon the first suspicion of fever.

Royal Wrestlers

France's king, Francis I, twenty-six, and England's monarch, Henry VIII, twenty-nine, met in 1520 upon the "Field of the Cloth of Gold," between Guines and Ardes, for the most expressive wrestling match ever held. A gorgeous palace was especially erected for the occasion and furnished with gold dishes, gilt furniture and rarest ornaments. The most beautiful women and distinguished men gathered in magnificent dress. More than 2,200 sheep and other viands in similar proportions were prepared for the feasting that followed. Altogether $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 was spent upon a bout at which nothing was at stake and entrance was free. Neither of the kings was a good wrestler.

IMPROVING MICHIGAN ROADSIDES

Insufficient attention to roadsides is a natural aftermath of the race for vitally necessary highway development.

Lack of interest in roadside improvement is also a natural result of focusing attention on one problem, more highways and highways to keep pace with motor car development.

To follow up now and improve and remove the scars of a hectic decade or two and curb tendencies following in the wake of the past period of rushing to provide highways, is only common sense, especially in:

"Mich-saw-ye-gan," the Indians named it, "Country of the Lakes," a state almost surrounded by fresh water and counting 5,000 small inland lakes within its boundaries. "Tis said of Michigan, 'every laboring man has his favorite lake for fishing and hunting'."

But it is not only the citizens of the state who appreciate the beauty and health of the blue waters of Michigan. From far and wide tourists and vacationists flock to this summer paradise in ever increasing numbers. Now the tourist business has run far ahead of all but one other industry in the state.

Tourists Spend $275,000,000
On the most conservative estimate the tourists leave $275,000,000 in Michigan annually. Thus the beauty of the state has become one of its greatest commercial assets. Seventy-eight per cent of highway travel in this state is recreational. A factor worthy of the utmost attention.

The more unadorned and the more native the state remains the greater the lure and the more satisfaction in living in Michigan. Various agencies are at work on the problem but what concerns us is what we see as this 78 per cent of the travel moves over our highways and along the roadsides.

Roadside improvement is out of its swaddling clothes and is recognized by leading governmental agencies. The U. S. Department of Agriculture has emphasized the importance of roadside improvement by distribution of a publication dealing exclusively with the subject.

In this publication the statement is made by R. E. Royall, senior highway engineer, division of information, U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, "Roadside improvement is rapidly coming to be recognized as one of the necessary elements of highway construction." The recognition is also evident in the warning by the same authority, "Modern highway design is a problem of balancing the fundamental elements of construction in economic relationship."

Must Have Control
The joint committee of the American association of State Highway Officials and the Highway Research Board makes pertinent recommendations relating to roadside improvement among which are:

"Every road building agency should include a person competent to design and carry out our roadside development work. His work should be considered an essential part of the design, construction and maintenance."

"Absolute control of the highway right-of-way and all its appurtenances should be vested in the highway authority."

The Bureau of Public Roads has for some years been favorably inclined toward improvement of the roadsides. In 1928 federal legislation was amended to permit expenditures for planting and the National Industrial Recovery Act made provision for roadside improvement.

Next time we shall see what is being done in Michigan towards the improvement of roadsides and later what is necessary finally to bring effective results.

Meat Drying Once Required

High Pressure Treatment
Meat drying in the early days was a high pressure operation, according to Col. E. N. Wentworth, director of Armour's live stock bureau. Following the slaughter, or the hunt, the meat was piled in skins and taken to camp. There was no chance for either hunter or camp follower to rest. The knives were sharpened and the meat cut into thin, flat strips which were hung in trees when available, or on poles out of reach of the dogs, or in the top of the hut or tepee where the heat of the fire would help the meat to dry rapidly. When properly prepared, the meat was in transparent strips which were very hard and inflexible. Sometimes it was transported in this form, or again it was powdered by beating with stone or wooden mallets, mixed with dried fruits and vegetables to form pemmican, and in this powdered condition transported in skin sacks or bladders. Pemmican was the principal food of the native races in North America whenever the tribes were on the move. It was also a winter food in regions where it was difficult to freeze meats at the time of the hunt, which, on this continent, extended from points in the northwest territory of Canada southward.

Damascus May Have Been Founded by Kin of Noah

Damascus in Syria has been regarded as the oldest city in the world, its foundation having been attributed by the Jewish historian Josephus to the great-grandson of Noah. Evidence in the fourteenth chapter of Genesis indicates that the place was of importance in the time of Abraham, or at least 2000 B. C.

It is difficult to list other old cities in the order of their foundation, observes a writer in the Detroit News. Bagdad, on a site which has been occupied since very early times and preserving the name which it has held for at least 4,000 years, did not become a city of first rank until the Arabian town was founded in the eighth century A. D., on the site of the ancient Babylonian city.

Peking (now Peiping) in China stands on the site of one of the oldest cities of the world. The earliest city of which there is authentic record there was Ch'li, the capital of Yen, most northerly of the feudal states which acknowledged the authority of the Chou Dynasty in the twelfth century B. C.

The city of Cairo in Egypt is near the site of the ancient Memphis, one of the world's first cities to be established.

Ancient Legends Account for Eclipse in Odd Ways

Whether or not we believe that an eclipse is a portent of evil, the ancient races invariably linked it with disaster. In mythology an evil dragon was said to be lurking in the heavens and that he made periodical attempts to swallow the sun or the moon. In the Norse legends the sun and the moon were driven across the heavens by charioteers, with huge wolves ever in pursuit. The ancient Greeks held that the sun must always be provided with a chariot and horses to keep it safe, and once a year a chariot and four horses were thrown into the sunlit sea as an offering.

Among many races, an eclipse of the sun signified that the giver of light and life had been caught by an evil monster. The only thing to save the sun from being devoured was to frighten away the monster by making noises. The Chinese used to chant choruses and bang gongs. In Greenland the natives climbed on to the roofs of their huts and banged kettles and pans to make as much noise as possible.

The oldest eclipse in history is believed to have been noted in China, 2183 B. C., relates a writer in Pearson's Weekly. Two mandarins who practiced astronomy were put to death by the Emperor for having failed to give due warning of the phenomenon. The eclipse of Nineveh in 763 B. C. is believed to have been foretold by the prophet Amos when he said: "And it shall come to pass in that day that I will cause the sun to go down at noon, and I will darken the Earth in the cle day."

FARMERS' WEEK PLANS

MADE FOR FEB. 1-5

Annual "Open House" of Scientific Agriculture At Michigan State College to Offer Longer Vacation Ahead For Farmers

A longer "look ahead" for a more permanent Michigan agriculture takes the spotlight of the 22nd annual Farmers' Week program Feb. 1 to 5 at Michigan State college in plans announced by Dean E. L. Anthony and R. W. Tenny, chairman and secretary of the annual college open house for farmers and their families.

Featured speaker of the five-day program is the Honorable Duncan Marshall, minister of agriculture of the Province of Ontario, Canada. He appears in the general program Tuesday afternoon in the college gymnasium. But throughout the week there will be veritable short courses in all phases of rural education and more systematic production of crops and livestock as well as entertainment and special features.

An ox team in their prime, trucked from Battle Creek, will try to show up the pulling powers of farm boys on wide but bare backed drafters and smartly dressed R. O. T. C. students on well saddled riding horses. Although the program packs each day with available information, the two main evening programs, Wednesday and Thursday, are expected to draw most of the attendances those those evenings to Demonstration hall on the campus.

George Wellington, senior agricultural student from Springfield, will be ringmaster of the annual student Little International livestock show in which students bathe, clip and trim college livestock, train them and then compete for showmanship honors Thursday afternoon of the week's program.

Association meetings will draw many groups together for their annual meetings and elections, starting out with dairy breed meetings in the morning and the annual dairymen's banquet the evening of the first day and terminating Friday with the annual conference of the Michigan State Grange and finals in the state rural drama contest.

Sausage of Middle Ages Made Tasty With Spices

The development of modern sausage took place mainly in Italy and the Germanic countries. These peoples had a real flair for the blending of flavors and developed techniques far in advance of other countries, according to an authority. The warm climate of Italy led largely to the preparation of dry sausages preserved with salt and the more-virile spices, such as pepper and garlic. Scarcely a city of any importance exists in Italy which does not have a type of sausage named after it—Milano, Bologna, Romano, Genoa, Salami, etc.

In Germany, the cooler climate and the use of caves led to the development of fresh and cooked sausages, most of them being adapted to frying. These varieties included brat wurst, liver sausage, blood sausage, head cheese and Berliner sausage (a ham sausage). In addition, the Germans made many varieties of summer sausage (that is, a sausage made in winter to be consumed during the summer).

The Germans and Scandinavians were more partial to the milder spices than the Italians, but the rapid spread of the desire for sausage and its convenience for trade during the Middle Ages led to a further competition for trade with the spice countries.

The motivating impulse in Columbus' discovery of America was the short route to the spice countries of the Indies, while Magellan's passage south of Cape Horn, and Hendrick Hudson's search for the northwest passage alike were stimulated by the desire for a shorter trade route to the spicy orient than the land route through Asia Minor or the water route around Africa.

Extinct Dodo Was About Size of Well Known Swan

Most famous of the extinct birds was the dodo. Its chief characteristics seem to have been extreme clumsiness and a touching confidence in the kindness of man and its fellow-creatures. European settlers and the animals they imported had exterminated it in Mauritius by 1681. The dodo was about the size of a swan, and Portuguese sailors spoke of Mauritius as the Island of Swans.

At one time this bird had made its home in South Africa, and the carcass of the rare bird is exhibited at the Natural History Museum, says the New York Times. Anything less swanlike, however, it would be difficult to imagine; its Latin name, "Didus ineptus," is appropriate, for it seems to have been singularly inept.

Its huge bill ended in a large horny hook. Its plumage was multicolored, and its short legs were quite out of proportion to its enormous, clumsy body. The curly tail at the end of its stumpy tail lent the final touch to its absurd appearance. With its usual optimism, it laid one large egg in a heap of grass.

Gondolas Were in Use in Sixteenth Century Days

Gondolas are first mentioned in an Eleventh century document, and by the Sixteenth century competition among their owners in Venice had become so fierce that the city had to set up a code of fair practices. Instead of being allowed to attract passengers by the bright colors on their boats, the gondoliers were summarily ordered to paint everything black and black the gondolas have remained to this day, observes a writer in the Los Angeles Times.

The second feature of gondolas, the peculiar raised prow of iron, has a double purpose. It serves to help balance the weight of the gondoller in the stern, and it also prevents his trying to pass under bridges too low to let the little cabin of the vessel pass.

Even though Venice is built on 117 small islands and even though one ordinarily thinks of getting about it by water, it is possible to explore the city on foot. It has about 400 bridges, and many of the canals are lined with streets. The main complaint of the explorer on foot is that he is forever coming to a blank wall or a canal, but he is compensated by the fact that the shops are to be found on these streets.

Did Not Take Oath

There is no record of Clinton or Calhoun taking an oath of office in beginning their second term as Vice-President.

Samuel Meredith, First U. S. Treasurer, Wealthy

Samuel Meredith was the first treasurer of the United States. Here is what a biographical encyclopedia says about him:

Samuel Meredith was among the first to espouse the cause of the Revolution, in which he served and suffered and acquitted himself with credit at the battles of Trenton and Princeton, and was one of those who enjoyed the confidence of Washington.

"He served for a time in the legislature of Pennsylvania, was a delegate from that state to the Continental Congress in 1787-88, and on the organization of the federal government he was appointed by President Washington treasurer of the United States, continuing in that office until 1801, when he resigned.

"He owned a large estate in Wayne county, and died at Belmont, his seat, in 1817. He and his brother-in-law, General Clymer, gave 10,000 pounds in silver to carry on the war. On being appointed treasurer of the United States he loaned the government $25,000. His father also loaned large sums to the government to carry on the war.

"A statue of Samuel Meredith by F. Barnicoat stands at Pleasant Mount, Pa."

"I'd like to buy a telephone call"

WHEN you call a telephone number on the other side of town you are making an important purchase. You say in effect:

"Give me the use of miles of wire, of cables under the street, a section of switchboard and all the other equipment needed in the central office. I shall need one kind of current to carry my voice and another to ring the bells that signal the other party. I may need the services of an operator or two. I want all your equipment to be in perfect working order so that my call is clear and goes through without interruption. I would like this all arranged to connect me with my party instantly—and at a cost of a few cents."

Telephone people are asked to do this millions of times a day and find nothing unusual in the request. But to do it at the price you pay for telephone service—in fact, to do it at all—has taken many years of the most skillful and unremitting research, engineering and organization.

Telephone service in the United States is the most efficient, dependable and economical in the entire world.

The Naturalness of Happiness

THE desire for complete happiness is deep-rooted, happiness being one of humanity's greatest needs. Regardless of race or class or creed, mortals unite in hoping that somewhere, some day, perfect happiness will be reached. The history of mankind records what strange means the human family has resorted to in the attempt to satisfy this need, and history also shows how incomplete the results have been. Probably this is mainly due to the way in which the search was undertaken, for it is of no use to look for something where it cannot be found, and far too often selfish motives and an entire disregard of the Golden Rule have been behind this search for happiness.

Jesus pointed to the virtue essential to blessedness or true happiness when he gave his followers the Beatitudes in the Sermon on the Mount (Matthew 5:1-12). No one has ever met with more opposition than our Master did, and yet he was able to say to his disciples at a time when the antagonism of the world seemed to be most acute (John 15:11): "These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full. Jesus was in no danger of losing his joy, because he knew it was born of God, that is, it had its basis in divine principle. That which comes from God, good, and which is held by an individual as a spiritual possession, can never be wrested from him.

In proportion as it is accepted—that happiness is the result of goodness will happiness be secure to be indestructible and permanent.

As one holds thought constantly throughout the busy day to the source of all goodness, to God, who is Love, true happiness shines in every deed of unselfed love, and opens vistas of happiness which before were obscured.

Human experiences of themselves do not hold happiness, and they cannot bring permanent satisfaction to humanity. As one's thought becomes less self-centered and more eager to help others, one's concept of happiness naturally changes. A childish, immature thinker might find great pleasure in a merry-go-round, whereas a more mature thinker would not spend time and thought for his own amusement on such a thing. Childish things may be entirely legitimate at certain stages of mental growth, but a progressive searcher for truth, with a developing sense of true values, will gladly let the false go, that he may lay hold to a greater extent on spiritual ideas, which are forever present awaiting recognition.

Paul did not condemn innocent pleasures, but he saw himself outgrowing them as he gained more true selfhood. "When I was a child," he wrote to the people of Corinth (1 Corinthians 13:11), "I spoke as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child; but when I became a man, I put away childish things." While a mortal is thinking childish thoughts he will require childish amusements, but as he grows up mentally and spiritually he will demand higher manifestations of good.

Mary Baker Eddy tells us of that which detours mankind from laying hold of this natural right—happiness—in "Miscellaneous Writings" (p. 118), where she writes, "Self-ignorance, self-will, self-righteousness, just, covetousness, envy, revenge, are foes to grace, peace, and progress; they must be not manifestly and overtly, or they will uproot all happiness." Sometimes it is well to take a mental inventory and courageously review the situation if we are not manifesting the joy and happiness which should so naturally be felt in everyday life. In the passage quoted we have a good measuring line with which to find out what it is that may be preventing our fullness of joy.

Happiness is not dependent on money, persons, or circumstances; it is born of God. True happiness is seeing good, feeling good, rejoicing in good, exalting good, and using it in dealing with others. Those who are unceasingly rejoicing could bring forth nothing but joy, and how natural this happiness seems to be!

Papyrus Favored in East

Long Ahead of Parchment
Some 1,700 years ago, a Pharaoh ordered a boycott against Pergamum in Asia Minor, says "The Pleasures of Publishing." The chief thing Pergamum was not able to obtain because of that boycott was papyrus. That seemed a great loss to them at the time, and it was as much of a loss to them as being deprived entirely of paper would be to us. But as things turned out, it was a great blessing to humanity, for necessity being the mother of invention, the ingenious souls of Pergamum turned to and developed and devised parchment. The important thing was this: The papyrus which they had previously been using was probably the most fragile and impermanent material man has ever used as a writing material, while the parchment which they introduced proved to be the best, the most permanent, the most indestructible, and all in all the most satisfactory writing surface ever discovered.

Parchment is usually made of sheepskin or lambskin. And vellum which most people think of as being synonymous with parchment, differs in that it is customarily of calfskin. One of the oldest Biblical texts we have is done on antelope skin; had it been done on papyrus, it would probably have come to us in fragments, if at all.

Typewriter Postage Stamps

A typewriter once turned out bona fide postage stamps. It was not just a mere stunt; it was a necessity. This only recorded occasion when the pounding of a typewriter gained recognition in philately was in Uganda, now part of Kenya and Uganda, British colony and protectorate.

This was in 1895 and these typewritten stamps are listed as the first stamps of the district. This kind of postal paper was used about two years. The final design was a little more elaborate, for Uganda was then spelled out across the bottom with "V. 98. R." across the top. This signified the year and Victoria Regina. The value mark was in the center of the stamp.

"III" Instead of "IV"

Among clockmakers there is a tradition that about 1370 a clockmaker named Henry de Vick made a clock for Charles V of France, who was popularly known as Charles the Wise. The monarch examined the clock very closely when it was submitted for his approval and was unable to find any flaw in the workmanship. Finally, anxious to find some fault, he complained that the clockmaker made an error in the numbers on the dial and that the IV should be III. He was ordered to correct the "error," and de Vick changed the IV to III on the dial, and ever since "has been customary to use that form on clocks.

Ford Adds New Light Stake Unit

NEWEST in the line of Ford V-8 commercial cars is the 112-inch stake shown above. It was designed to fill a widespread demand among farmers and business men for a light weight unit of this type. As it is, it utilizes the 112-inch commercial car chassis, and provides a load space 80 inches long, 62 inches high. Removal of the stakes converts it into a platform unit. Its floor is protected by steel strips and a steel rubrail. The cab is of welded all-steel construction with a steel roof. The unit is available with either the improved 85 horsepower V-8 engine for heavy jobs or the new 60 horsepower V-8 engine for light duty. It is fitted with the new Ford "easy-action" safety brakes.
