Michigan State Coach Speaks at Banquet

The annual football banquet, sponsored by the Chelsea Kiwanis club, was held Tuesday evening in the public school gymnasium. Supper was served by the senior class, assisted by Miss Josephine Gibson and the mothers of the seniors. Covers were laid for 180.

Supt. H. L. Bleeker had charge of the program, which opened with singing of America, invocation by Rev. F. D. Mumby, and community singing led by Paul F. Niehaus, with Mrs. Niehaus accompanying.

This was followed by presentation of letters by Coach Harold Spaulding to the following students: George Prinzling, Charles Syraff, Harold Grove, Frederick Belsler, Lavern Niehaus, John Fletcher, Jr., Charles Bahnmiller, Duane Rowe, Ted Brueckner, Harrie Bleeker, Jr., Kenneth Niehaus, Harley Prudden, Roland Spaulding, Wilfred Lane, James Daniels, David Stricker, Donald Koebe. Short talks were given by George Prinzling, captain of the 1936 football team, and Frederick Belsler, captain-elect for the 1937 football season.

Charles Bachman, head football coach of Michigan State College, gave the address of the evening, also showing movies of the game between Michigan State and the U. of M., in which the University was defeated by a score of 21 to 7.

Plans Made for Large Farmers' Week Crowd

With speakers scheduled from Canada and Texas and with enough unusual features to last throughout the week for the 25,000 expected to mix learning with variety and entertainment, the annual program for Farmers' Week at Michigan State College, February 1 to 5, is taking form.

Included among those who will address meetings during the week is the Hon. Duncan Marshall, minister of agriculture for the province of Ontario, Canada. He speaks Tuesday afternoon and again in the evening, February 2. Miss Mildred Horton, state home economics extension leader in Texas, speaks Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 3.

The team of oxen to be brought to the campus by Frank Martin, Battle Creek, is due for a new type of work. Harry Moxley in animal husbandry and Ralph W. Tenny, short course director and secretary of the week's program, intend to have the oxen hitched up to give some of the college coeds rides to classes, starting early enough to avoid tardiness.

Competitions help farmers feel at home at the college. So there will be something new in the program this year, sheep dog trials for Michigan flock owners. Another contest is to identify unsoundness in horses. Other competitions will pick winners in the colt development contest, swine feeding, lamb feeding and beef feeding, the potato show, the state seed show, turkey show, 4-H club potato, corn, bean and egg show, and a pulling contest featuring stallions.

The state's new agricultural commissioner, Burr Lincoln, will address the general meeting in demonstration hall Wednesday evening, and the new governor, Frank Murphy, will address the Thursday evening meeting in demonstration hall.

Relocating of US-12 Revived By Jackson Board of Commerce

During the past week the matter of relocating US-12 past Chelsea has been revived by the Jackson Board of Commerce. A large portion of the new highway was finished during the past summer, completing the 86-mile stretch between Ann Arbor and Jackson with the exception of five and one-half miles adjacent to Chelsea. Towns along the line are interested in seeing this part improved.

Chelsea has presented stiff opposition to the relocation of the new highway further from the village than the present thoroughfare. The village as a municipality, farmers whose land is needed for the right of way originally contemplated and the State Farmers' Union, through their former president, John Lenz, and present officers and membership, have manifested their disapproval in protests to the state highway department.

People of the village point to what they consider inevitable injury to Chelsea business concerns by relocation of the trunk line a mile farther south than the present route. Farmers whose property would be traversed by the new route, face serious property damage if original surveys are followed in completion of the highway improvement. The Farmers' Union, of which some of the farmers involved are members, is interested from the standpoint of discouraging the practice of cutting up farm properties by highway construction.

Reluctance of the state to pay prices which they consider exorbitant for needed land has prevented the construction of this missing link and no further improvement is contemplated by the state highway department during the current year unless a donation of land can be procured by some agencies outside the department. At least, that is the information given out at Lansing, and it remains to be seen if enough pressure can be brought to bear on the state highway commissioner to construct the "missing link" on the present right-of-way.

Chelsea Debate Team Defeats Brooklyn Hi

After a period of one hour and fifteen minutes of fiery comments emitted by each team on Thursday afternoon, Chelsea was given the decision over Brooklyn by Raymond V. Shoberg, critic judge and debate coach at University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Chelsea upheld the affirmative of the proposition, namely, "That all electric utilities should be governmentally owned and operated." The Brooklyn debating team upheld the negative.

This debate was the third of the preliminary debates in the Forensic high school contest held each year. Chelsea's squads have registered victories over Dexter and Brooklyn and have lost to St. Joseph's Academy at Adrian.

The next debate is scheduled to be held either the 27th, 28th or 29th of January with North Adams. The winning of this debate is vital as this victory is needed to enter the semi-finals. In the event they should lose, however, all has not been lost as the valuable experience received by the debaters and the knowledge acquired by the entire high school, is a victory in itself.

The teams participating in Thursday's debate were Stuart Dingle, Harrie Bleeker, Jr., and Eileen Adam for Chelsea, and Laura Peterson, James Cash and Charles Wright of Brooklyn.

Health Lectures Will Start On Tuesday

Beginning Tuesday, January 26, at 9:15 in the Chelsea high school, and at 8:00 p. m. at St. Mary's school, there will be held the first of a series of 12 lectures and demonstrations for girls of high school age. This is a program that Pearl M. Halst, County Nurse, is bringing into the county for all girls of that age throughout all the high schools.

These lectures are made possible through the appropriation made by the Social Security Act, which provides for child and maternal welfare. The State Department of Health, through whom these lectures are organized, has assigned Miss Grace Myers, R. N., to this county to give these 12 lectures. This course consists of lectures and demonstrations for the care of children from birth to school age and includes the bathing of the baby, communicable diseases, immunization of young children, feeding of babies and young children, etc. The lectures will be given at the local schools every Tuesday at the same hours for 12 consecutive weeks.

Home Talent Show To Be Given Next Week

The F. F. A. club of Chelsea is sponsoring the Prairie Farmer home talent show on January 28, 29, and 30, at 8 p. m.

Tryouts for the program will be held in the high school auditorium on Thursday and Friday, January 21 and 22 and evenings throughout the week under the direction of Miss Gladis Jones of Chicago.

The two best amateurs in the show will receive a free trip to Chicago and broadcast over WLS some Saturday evening. Outstanding events will receive minor awards.

Those in charge state that all of the local talent available is needed to make this show a big success. All people who are interested are urged to attend the tryouts as they will enjoy meeting Miss Jones, and they will be helping the local school F. F. A. club. Impersonators, yodelers, singers, dancers and music, either old fashioned or classical or opera numbers, are needed for the show.

The F. F. A. boys played two games of basketball at Ypsil on January 18. The local team is as follows: Bob Gilbert and Raymond Ives, forwards; K. Niehaus, center; P. Bristle and E. McHenry, guards. The second teamers are N. Kent, J. Kastle, J. Alber, W. Beeman, M. McKernan, V. Hafley.

The following boys will be admitted as Green Hands, which is the first degree of Future Farmers of America, when they meet the requirements.

OUR NEIGHBORS

MILAN—A huge steam shovel and a large number of trucks started work early this week to dig a new channel for the Saline River. The work was started to divert the water from the present location to where the new bridge will be located and the new right of way for Wabash street will be constructed. With the arrival of the equipment, engineers of the State Highway Department also arrived in Milan to make the preliminary construction surveys for the new bridge. They expect to be here for several months.—Leader.

PLYMOUTH—Plans have been completed and contracts are expected to be signed within the current month for the construction of the first 600 foot, five-story unit of the Burroughs Adding Machine company to be erected on the site owned by the company located on Plymouth highway, just east of the city. The site includes 140 acres of land lying between the Plymouth road and the Pere Marquette tracks. Officials of the company advised The Plymouth Mail this week that unless there are unforeseen delays, the new building will be under way before the first of February. The new structure is of tremendous size, being 600 feet long, and five stories high. The tower will be 135 feet high. The top of the tower will be utilized for a large water storage tank. The elevator shaft will also be housed in the tower.—Mail.

GRASS LAKE—Bullfrogs and snakes in January. Doesn't seem possible, does it? Well the frogs and snakes have been out during the past few days as will be attested by many who have seen them. A young garden snake only a few inches long was found in the driveway of The News office Wednesday. Robins have also been seen during the past few weeks.—News.

NORTHVILLE—Frank A. Brown, 620 North Center street, and Bina Hayes, Royal Oak, formerly of Northville, broke a record of sorts here last Friday afternoon. Sometime before 2:35 o'clock the two friends met in front of Schrader's furniture store. Here, it is surmised, they exchanged greetings, spoke of old friends, remarked upon the changing times and concluded that things had come to a "pretty pass." It was not until 5:13 p. m. by the town clock that the two men parted to go their separate ways, not knowing that they had broken a street-talking endurance record in Northville, at least for Friday, January 8.—Record.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Can you tell me the origin of writing "Xmas" for the word Christmas?

Ans.—The origin of this is not known. However, there are several explanations on record. One of them is that the "X" is the symbol of the cross. But this is rather far-fetched, as the cross of the crucifixion was a Latin cross, whereas the letter "X" is the form of St. Andrew's cross. Another plausible theory is that the "X" in our alphabet resembles the Greek letter "chi," which is the first letter of the Greek word for Christ.

Ques.—What States of the Union lead in crude oil production?

Ans.—The three leading States in the quantity of crude oil production are Texas, California and Oklahoma, in the order named. These three States produce about four-fifths of all the oil in the United States.

Ques.—May I ask in your good paper what the religion of Siam is?

Ans.—Buddhism is the general religion. However, there are some Christians in that kingdom.

Ques.—Is it a fact that a person should not eat apples in the evening?

Ans.—No. This is a myth, notwithstanding that some people will say "look what happened to Adam when he ate an apple after Eve."

Ques.—How many Popes have there been at the head of the Roman Catholic Church?

Ans.—There is a difference of opinion among authorities as to the exact number of Popes. However, the Catholic Encyclopedia gives the number at 261 in lineal succession from St. Peter down to the present Pope.

Ques.—What is the origin of the letters "O. K.", as used to mean "all right"?

Ans.—This is a mooted question. Some say that "O. K." is an abbreviation of the corrupted words "Oll Korreked." But more reliable authority says O. K. is derived from the Indian Choctaw word "okel," which is pronounced like "O. K." and literally means "it is so."

Ques.—Why is it that mercury in the thermometers will not freeze?

Ans.—Mercury can and does begin to freeze at 38 degrees below zero (Fahrenheit).

Ques.—I would like to know why the word "radio" is used in broadcasting and receiving sounds, etc. Can you explain?

Ans.—"Radio" is a combining form of "ray," "radius," or "radiation." Hence, when it is applied specifically to radio communication, whether sending or receiving, it refers to the transmission or reception of signals by means of radiated electro-magnetic ether waves.

Ques.—Is it unlawful to make a watch charm from a United States coin?

Ans.—No. A person is permitted to melt, destroy or mutilate a United States coin. It is his property to do as he pleases with it. However, it would be unlawful if someone attempted to put the coin back into circulation if it had been defaced, punched or marred in any manner whatsoever, as it probably would be if it was made over into a watch charm.

Ques.—Can you answer who designed the Washington Monument, and when? Also why was it so called?

Ans.—Robert Mills of South Carolina, who was the United States architect, designed the Washington Monument in 1850. The monument was not constructed entirely in accordance with the original design, which included a pantheon 100 feet high and a huge statue of George Washington. It was designed and constructed in honor of the first President of the United States.

Ques.—Who was Simon Bolivar?

Ans.—Simon Bolivar was the leader in a series of revolutions which resulted in the independence from Spain of the countries now known as Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Panama and Bolivia. He later became dictator-president of Bolivia, which country was so named in his honor.

Ques.—On what day of the week was the Armistice signed which ended the World War?

Ans.—The Armistice was signed on Monday, Nov. 11, 1918.

TECUMSEH—Fire, believed to have started from an over-heated electrical switch, caused a loss estimated at $8,000 to the building and merchandise of the William Hayden Milling Company here, Sunday afternoon at 5:15 o'clock.—Herald.

Houses Remains of Hapsburgs—The crypt beneath the Church of the Capuchins, Vienna, houses the tombs of the remains of the Hapsburgs, by birth or by marriage, 137 of them.

Meaning of Abbreviation "Cir."—The abbreviation "cir." when placed before a date stands for the Latin word "circa," meaning "about." It is often used in connection with dates which cannot be fixed exactly.

SUGGESTIVE FOR RADIO

If I could write a poem expressive as I choose. Perhaps once in a score of lines it might be termed—Good News. I wrote one several months ago. And sent it to the Times. They courteously returned and claimed it. The rhythm didn't rhyme. Well, thought I, not abashed, I'll try just one time more, explaining why our radio has become almost a bore.

So much is printed nowadays of radio—great invention. The few lines I am writing here are all with kind intention.

We like a radio, yes indeed, if only we might find. A system high in ethic, musical, rich, sublime, But O, the rassy jazz we hear. It gets our humble ire. The sanctity of Christian home is scorched by pitiful fire.

A sermon? Yes, we sometimes hear. And after the Amen, We're switched into a theatre Where drums and violas blend, Hurray! Now for the dance. Come on, The minstrels, jokes and fun— This on a Sabbath afternoon Are samples just begun.

We've tried to change the dial to A something more refined, When to amazement we have found Some vendor on the line. I'm old—Some say Old Fogey. I'll own it—if I must— But listen—many others now Are fed up on such stuff.

—Arthur Carlton.

Three Legs Coat of Arms

The Isle of Man in the Irish sea is known everywhere for its Manx cets that have no tails, its romance celebrated by Scott in his "Feveril of the Peak," and for the "Arms" of the Isle, which consist of three legs. Folk lore students think that the early Manx sea robbers brought the coat of arms or legs back with them on one of their trips to the Mediterranean.

Europeans Explored Ohio

Ohio was explored by Europeans in the latter part of the Seventeenth century. It was the pioneer state of the old "Northwest Territory"—which embraced also what is now Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and the northeast corner of Minnesota. It was the battleground of the Indian tribes. The French explorers tried hard to get a foothold in this rich territory. They planted leaden plates at the mouths of the rivers and sought to back up these claims to sovereignty. John Bull later set himself up as master of all this region, says Pathfinder Magazine, and in 1774 the British parliament passed an act annexing Ohio to Canada.

Continue Winning

The C. H. S. Reserves triumphed over Roosevelt Friday night, 21-7. This victory adds to their string of straight victories, the total now being five altogether. Fletcher and Bahnmiller have been shifted to the first squad, Charlie playing a good share of the Belleville and Roosevelt, and Fletcher played his first game of the first string against Roosevelt. Myers has voluntarily taken a position as forward of the Reserves and the winning combination was not tampered with to any extent. Daniels, with 10 points and Haselschwerdt with 7, led the scoring parade for Chelsea. Blasey, with five points, topped the Roosevelt Reserves.

The Regulars are certainly getting the rotten breaks this season, having lost one overtime League game and two by a close margin of 18-8 and 19-17 respectively. The score by quarters of 4-6, 8-9, 10-13 show you the comparable scores at the various points of the game. Wins of Roosevelt scored a total of 10 points. If that many had been successfully guarded the game would have been won by Chelsea.

Chelsea meets Saline on Friday. This is a home game and if you can remember how exciting, how breath-taking, the game with Napoleon turned out to be, come and support Chelsea's Quintet!

Cooperation

The dictionary defines cooperation as the act of doing something together, to work together.

The problem of cooperating between students and faculty is one of the worst to try to remedy, but there is no reason that we cannot do something about it if we approach it in the correct manner.

If everyone in school would hold their temper and try to consider carefully the problems which are facing them we could learn to cooperate. Think of the appearance we would make as a group, and the much better time we could all enjoy if everyone would cooperate.

It's not easy, but nothing can be accomplished without a little effort. The real trouble with a lot of us is that we are afraid we might hurt ourselves a little. The student who refuses to cooperate with his teacher and classmates will find it difficult to hold a position in later life. No employer is going to pay a person who refuses to help him and his other employees. The sooner we find out how to "get along" with other people, the better it will be for everyone concerned.

Elementary News

Second Grade
Group 1 finished their work books and took them home on Monday. They represent a lot of work and we are very proud of them.

Mrs. Palmer, George Leigh's mother, spent Wednesday morning with us. We showed her how much we enjoyed our work.

Part of us are reading Progressive Book 2. We read the stories which are very interesting and then we make up questions on them. We like to do this.

Dr. Palmer called on us Wednesday afternoon. He was looking for boys and girls who appeared ill. We all were feeling so well, he didn't need to send anyone home.

Time for report cards has rolled around again. Quite a number of us have not been absent or tardy in these last seven weeks: Robert Daniels, Frances Hite, Thelma Hill, Patty Hopper, Richard Osborne, George L. Palmer, Robert Sidwell, Jack Winans, Leonard Woods, Dale Thomas.

We are reading Eskimo stories. We'd like to be Eskimo boys and girls. But how can we when there isn't any snow!

We have been writing some little verses. This first one is Bobby Sidwell's effort:

"I have to write a verse
When I really want to play,
And what is worse
I can't think what to say."

Bobby Daniels writes about "A Snow Man":

I saw a snow man, one day
And he looked at me so gay,
On his head I saw a dish pan,
And some black spots on his face.
His name was "Pete"
And he did not have any feet.

Third Grade
These children have been neither absent nor tardy since school started on August 31: Jack, Eldore, and Leroy. Shirley P. has not been absent.

Robert B. and Marion have had perfect attendance for the last thirteen weeks. For the past seven weeks Barbara E., Arthur, Bobby R., Charles, John, Betty Lou and Shirley S. had perfect attendance records.

On the term test in spelling the following pupils made no mistakes: Barbara E., Myra, Shirley P., June, Thora, Fred, Shirley S., and Barbara D. We are especially proud of Barbara Dickerson because she has been with us only a few weeks.

Some of the boys are making targets at which to throw snow balls when it snows again.

Fourth Grade

The new officers for the Golden Health club are: President: Earl Van Riper; vice-president, Flo-Ann Longworth; and secretary, Robert Novosa.

We received our January copy of the Junior Red Cross News.

We are glad Barbara Woods is back with us again.

During our Radio Hour, Phyllis Hopper has been reading chapters from the book called "The Road to Oz."

In Science we learned why some objects float and other objects sink. We tried some objects in a pan of water.

Fifth Grade
Those who have not been absent during the third period are: Eugene Aldrich, Carlton Chiswell, Jane Chiswell, Joan Chiswell, Mary Chiswell, Constance Coburn, Doris Collins, Robert Eaton, Joseph Hale, Eleanor Harper, Betty Holderman, Dorothy Knickerbocker, William Langowski, Ruth Oesterle, Louis Policht, Sathie Riemschneider, Bessie Rudd, Ruth Siane, Eugene Townsend, Philip Vogel, Barbara White and Mary Woods.

Thursday, in Art, each of us made a picture (free hand paper cutting) of the way we thought the lords' castle looked in the Middle Ages. We are studying this in our History just now.

Our next study is about the manor farms, the pages, the squire and the knights of the Middle Ages.

On Friday we gave the little play which we wrote from our dramatizations in History last week.

Philip Vogel is to give the report on the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Bernardini Molinari.

Sixth Grade
We have had a lot of news reports about Martin Johnson. We enjoy it very much. We are sorry that Mr. Martin Johnson has died. Mr. Johnson was one who wrote a story in our Elson reader. Some of the people in our grade were going to hear Mr. Johnson talk in Ann Arbor on March 16, 1937. We are putting pictures of the Johnsons on the bulletin board.

Miss Canfield got a letter from the Kellogg Bird Sanctuary. It said that they would be very glad to take the hawk if we didn't want to keep him.

We have a new cage for the hawk. We are going to take it to the assembly room for the high school students to study. Miss Canfield got some white mice from the Natural Science Building in Ann Arbor. But our hawk doesn't seem to like them. She tried half an hour to get him to eat them.

We have our hawk in our new cage and we hope he will like it. Daniel S. and K. R. Platt caught some field mice for our hawk. He brought them to school and they were still alive. We have them in a dark place so they will not get so frightened. Thank you, boys. We put some chicken house powder on the hawk before we put him in the new cage. Winfield Schenk discovered the lice.

Janet May brought a plant. It is a very pretty plant. Thank you, Janet.

Improving Michigan Roadsides
II. WHAT IS BEING DONE

A few years ago a landscape division was established in the state highway department with a trained landscape forester in charge. Under him are five divisional foresters and in each county at least one crew of men are working. In addition to this a few counties have their own forester. Such activities are in line with recommendations of the American Association of State Highway Officials already mentioned.

The highway department is planting thousands of trees. Michigan spends approximately $250,000 annually for roadside maintenance including expenditures of federal agencies. For new construction jobs there is included in appropriations an estimate to cover the cost of roadside improvement.

Such estimates include tree trimming, transplanting of trees which should be saved, and the planting of additional trees and shrubs. This roadside effort for new construction has amounted to $150,000 making a total expenditure of about $400,000 in a year or approximately one per cent of the total highway funds. Surely this amount is not too much and certainly not out of proportion.

Barren Effect Less
Since its existence the landscape division of the highway department has made rapid strides for in Michigan, the barren effect seen on state highways in other states is disappearing.

In Michigan when a highway is to be constructed no "clearing crew" is sent out to clean off everything first, as is still done in some states. Instead a landscape engineer goes over the route stipulating which trees and shrubs shall be saved on the roadsides and removes from the new widened roadbeds materials worth saving. Transplanting is accomplished in natural groups along the roadside so that when paving is completed some of the landscaping is already done.

Triangles at road intersections are being planted, roadside springs are walled in and planted and highway maintenance stations are landscaped. Evergreen seedlings are being planted to act as snow breaks to eliminate the use of wooden fences. Timber strips are being purchased and recently attractive tourist stations have been built and picnic recesses provided which have met with ready use.

Perhaps More Needed
Whether this effort is adequate in comparison with the total problem is a subject open to controversy. Surely no one can argue but what a start is being made in the right direction. As time goes on even this much roadside improvement will become more and more increasingly noticeable.

But on the one hand tax revenues are apt to make Michigan more than now a true haven of beauty, to replace some of its original landscape, to remove the scars of highway progress.

Perhaps the movement in Michigan has not reached the stage of equal importance with construction and maintenance recommended by the Highway Research Board but this is the step in the right direction keeping pace with other factors making Michigan's appearance to travelers less desirable.

Those are important questions and many answers will be found in discussions to follow.

City of Antwerp Recalls
Story of Painter Rubens
In the last years of the Sixteenth century the Jesuits of Antwerp had a little lad whose parents had called him Peter Paul after the saints, on whose day he was born. In 1577, times a writer in the Los Angeles Times. His father John, a lawyer and magistrate of the city, having been under suspicion as a Calvinist, had fled to Germany with the mother of the boy where, becoming involved in an intrigue with Anna, the second wife of William the Silent, he suffered imprisonment and banishment and later death at Cologne.

The mother and boy returned to the old home in the Place de Meir, while the boy attended school on what is now Rue Otto Venus, after the painter Venus. He also learned painting from Van Noort, who taught in the Rue du Jardin. Then he traveled over Europe and painted for royalty and nobility everywhere till on his mother's death he built him a palace in what became Rue Rubens, for this is the story of Rubens, to see whom and learn of whom the world now looks to Antwerp, nearly 300 years after his death.

Pronouncing "Phi Beta Kappa"
The popular pronunciation of the name of the American society, whose members are taken from upper-class college students of high standing, is fai beta kapa, ai as in aisle, e as in they, first and third a's as in final, second e as in cap. This pronunciation seems to be a transitional hybrid, a compromise between the so-called English pronunciation formerly taught in American schools and the pronunciation now taught. In the English system, Beta is pronounced bits, i as in police. In the pronunciation now taught, the full name is pronounced fi beta kapa, i as in police, e as in they, first and third a's as in final, second a as in father. The members of the society themselves are not in agreement upon the pronunciation to be favored. Some prefer to carry the classroom pronunciation into general usage; some cling to the older style, and some are content with the popular hybrid. Literary Digest.

Sacred Fish
An English traveler in the East in the seventeenth century says that sacred fish were to be seen throughout the East. "Fish confined in the courtyard of a mosque, with rings of gold, silver and copper through their muzzles, not for ornament," he says, "but, as I was informed, as a token of their being consecrated. No one dared touch them, such a sacrilege being supposed to draw after it the vengeance of the saint to whom they were consecrated."

Bananas Give More Food
The banana gives more food per acre than any other plant, more calories per pound than any other fresh fruit and, in some large species, produces more food per single fruit than any other member of the vegetable kingdom, says Collier's.

Weekly. Huge bananas grown in East Africa and Cochinchina are two feet long, as thick as a man's arm and contain sufficient food to make an adequate meal for three men.

Tall Tales

As told to: FRANK E. HAGAN
ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Pale as Paste

His personal physician, Doctor Ramsey, once concocted a sickening substance of unparalleled strength, asserts Harry W. Ewert of the Chicago Board of Trade weighing department.

"Doc kept the ingredients of his great invention secret," Ewert says. "But I can tell you it was composed partly of a mixture of parboiled fishhooks, mustard plasters and worn out Scotch pocketbooks."

"My friend's only difficulty was in obtaining capital necessary for its manufacture in bulk. So he decided to demonstrate its holding qualities."

"The doctor wheeled out his small stunt plane one day and hired an aviator to fly it. He dropped a small line, approximately the dimensions of a human hair, from the plane and grabbed hold of it. Then he clung tight while the aviator made a perfect takeoff."

"Doctor Ramsey rode through the air with the greatest ease for more than two hours, dangling from the hairline, which of course, was fastened to the plane by the sickening liquid."

"When they alighted it was necessary to burn away three and three-quarter inches of the plane's surface with an acetylene torch in order to detach the hair."

"The doc was pale as paste after his adventure but the demonstration proved a boon to everyone, including the manufacturer who sold doc a new plane."

MADDER-ROBERTS WEDDING

St. Mary church was the scene of a pretty wedding which was solemnized Saturday morning at 9 o'clock when Miss Mary Ellen Madden, daughter of Mrs. Ellen Madden of Chelsea, became the bride of Harold Roberts of Detroit.

The nuptial high mass was read by Rev. Fr. Lawrence Dorr and during the offertory Mrs. J. Vincent Burg sang "Ave Maria." The attendants were Miss Helen Swikowski of Ypsilanti and the groom's brother, Bernard Roberts of Detroit.

The bride wore a gown of Dubonnet velvet, with matching hat and veil worn off the face, and sandals of the same shade. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow rose buds and pink sweet peas. Miss Swikowski was attired in blue broadcloth, with a metallic hat and sandals, while tulleman roses and sweet peas formed her bouquet.

Following the ceremony, the wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's aunts, Misses Etta and Mary Dealy, on the Waterford road. The table, centered with a wedding cake, was decorated with sweet peas and lighted with yellow and white tapers.

Out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Don Peebles, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lidke, Ivan Egbert, Mrs. John Polzen and daughter, Mary Rita, of Ypsilanti, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wheatley, Mr. and Mrs. M. Business men find it good business to take inventory of stock around the first of the year. Maybe all of us should take inventory of ourselves and our driving habits as the new year begins.

An all time record for automobile accidents and deaths will probably be set in 1936. Some communities will show reductions, others will show large increases. It's to be regretted that this will be true in spite of all the safety work that is being done.

We must resolve within ourselves to do better. It's the human factor in automobile driving that causes the accidents. A smart driver, because of his driving skill, can usually get out of difficult situations without an accident. The safe driver just does not get into difficult situations in the first place. That's the difference.

Be a safe driver!

Once 'Twas Said Tobacco
"Stayeth Growing Fatter"

No advertisement of recent times is more extravagant with its praise of tobacco's merits than was a certain Scotch physician, Dr. William Barclay, back in 1611, according to a Cambridge, Mass., United Press correspondent.

The good doctor's laudatory words concerning the weed were discovered in a monograph titled "Nepenthes or the Virtues of Tobacco," by Alfred C. Potter, for forty-eight years Harvard University's librarian.

Wrote Dr. Barclay:
"It (tobacco) preserveth from the toothach; it cureth the migraine, the colic, the cough, the cold; it stayeth growing fatter; it is the antidote of Hypochondriack melancholie, it prepareth the stomacke for meat; it maketh a clear voice, it clearth the sight; it comforteth nerves. . . . And in a few words it is the Princess of physical plants."

The cinchona tree which yields quinine is a native of South America, but 97 per cent of the world's supply comes from Java.

Highway Reciprocity Board Bill Introduced

Creation of a Michigan highway reciprocity board as set up in a bill introduced in the legislature last week by Senator William Palmer of Flint, majority floor leader, will be an advanced step in improving one of Michigan's front-ranking industries, advocates of the measure maintain.

Similar laws in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois permit a free flow of traffic between these states and in order that Michigan's extensive trucking industry may successfully continue to function on an equal footing with those of nearby states, reciprocal agreements pertaining to interstate operation of commercial vehicles should be in the making, Senator Palmer and those supporting the measure advocate.

Palmer's bill would create a reciprocity board consisting of the Secretary of State, the State Highway Commissioner and the chairman of the Michigan Public Utilities Commission. This board would be empowered to enter into reciprocal agreements with authorities of other states concerning the operation and regulation of trucks, automobiles, busses and all other automotive equipment traveling the public highways. Backers of the bill are attempting to rush the measure through both houses of the legislature in order that immediate working arrangements can be made with nearby states.

"Michigan is one of the leaders in the trucking industry and this law will have a vital effect upon the operations of everyone interested in highway transportation," Don B. Smith, manager of the Michigan Trucking Association declared in announcing his organization's support of the proposed law. "With a large percentage of Michigan trucking companies operating in interstate traffic it is essential that Michigan be in a position to negotiate for reciprocal agreements," he said.

SWEETHEART MEMORIES

by Lawrence Hawthorne

Tonight I sat before the fire
And listened to the radio—
A program the announcer called
"The songs of twenty years ago"
And as the music filled the room
With long-forgotten melodies,
I lived the days of youth once more
In happy, wistful memories.

I saw my sweetheart as she sang
Those tender songs when they were new,
I heard her whispering again
That every loving word was true.
And oh, how beautiful she was!
How graceful and how sweet her charm!
In joyous retrospect, I took
That little darling in my arms.

The program ended . . . Still I sat,
Enjoying happy thoughts of her,
With whom I sang those fond refrains
When love's young dreams began to stir.
And then a nestling hand sought mine
In just the way it used to do,
And someone said, "For twenty years
My heart has sung those songs to you."

Prehistoric Shavers of Metal; Copies of Flint

The early Egyptian razors were of metal, and it is plain that they were close copies of the older flint ones. In the Early Dynastic period (about 3000 B. C.), there was used a rectangular razor with four bevelled edges. An older form, found in Late Predynastic times, gives the appearance of a broad, double-edged knife with a short tang. Most such razors seem to have been sharpened only on one side; for example, the specimen found in the tomb of Queen Hetep-heres.

In Europe, at a date comparatively not much later, states a writer in Pathfinder Magazine, razors had a long blade with slightly concave sides, and a strange indentation at the lower end. The most reasonable explanation of this indentation is that it was used to allow the forefinger to feel the skin while one shaved. In Western Bohemia, about this time, the blade was broad and double-edged, with an openwork handle cast in one piece with it. During the Late Bronze and Early Iron Age (about 1000 B. C.), the razor, in Upper Italy at least, again assumed the rectangular outline.

The early British razors were shaped like a maple leaf. There was a tang projecting from the base of the blade to take the handle, and often it was continued downwards by a nubbins along its face.

Most Annoying Garden Weed

Purslane is probably the most pestiferous garden weed. Its thick succulent stems store up such a supply of water that they manage to maintain life for many hours after being separated from their roots, and will soon develop new ones at the spot where they are thrown.

Helgoland, Germany
Helgoland, Germany, takes its name, Holyland, from having been a center of Christian activity in the seventh century, but it later fell into evil ways as a haven for pirate bands that ravaged the Hanseatic merchant traffic of the North Sea.

To this Hamburg put a stop, joining the island to the neighboring Schleswig, whence it passed to Denmark and finally to England about the beginning of the last century. The trading of Helgoland to Germany for the island of Zanzibar off the African coast brought on a storm of popular protest in both countries. In England, the transaction was explained as the wish of Queen Victoria to grant a favor to her nephew, the young Emperor William.

"Subs" for Orchestra Players

The unique custom of excusing orchestral players from attending rehearsals if they sent other musicians to take their places existed in London up to about fifty years ago, says Collier's Weekly, when it met a sudden death under a withering fire of vituperation by a famous foreign conductor. He had called four rehearsals for an important concert and they had been attended by four different groups of substitutes.

Beetles of all kinds have many strange ways of defeating their enemies, one of the most effective being that of the bombardier beetle. As it retreats, it discharges a "smoke screen" which baffles the most persistent foe.

Valued most when needed most

TELEPHONE SERVICE has become so efficient, so easily used, that it draws no particular attention to itself. But its value is sharply emphasized whenever a home is threatened by one of the three great domestic emergencies:

Call the police! No home is safe from the lawless prowler, intent on theft or violence. But the telephone is his enemy; its mere presence in the house creates an added risk for him. The prowler knows this. He knows how quickly it can spread the alarm, flash out the call that brings the police swiftly to the scene.

I smell smoke! After a fire breaks out, time is priceless. Every moment's delay increases the damage and danger. There is always a point beyond which control is impossible, and destruction complete. But almost any fire can be extinguished with trifling loss—if taken in time.

Get the doctor! Amid the panic caused by sudden illness or injury, one thought leaps to mind. The man needed now, above all others, is the doctor. The interval before he comes is one of anxious waiting—a dread period which the telephone can shorten. One call secures prompt advice on first-aid, and hastens the welcome arrival of the doctor.

In emergencies, even seconds are important. And the more important they become, the greater the value of the telephone in protecting property, relieving anxiety and saving human lives.

The motion of the ferris wheel was stopped at 1/100 second at f.8. The exposure of the still locomotive wheel was 1/10 second at f.16. The wheel of the barrow was taken at f.8, exposure 1/25 second, after a long study of lights and shadows and much changing of camera position.

"The world is a wheel."

WHIRLS—man's first invention—make photographic subjects of absorbing interest. There is a lot of fun in making a hobby of wheel pictures.

There are so many kinds of wheels—wagon wheels, spinning wheels, automobile wheels, locomotive wheels, water wheels, steering wheels, cog wheels and the thousand and one other sorts and sizes used in machinery. And every one of them, when pictured in a photograph, tells some kind of story of human interest.

Wheels tell you tales of speed and power; they are witnesses to man's inventiveness and ingenuity; from the wheels of the ox-cart to the landing wheels of an airplane, they symbolize the history of man's progress; new wheels tell of life and activity; old wheels, broken and abandoned, spell obsolescence, decay and the end of things. What a stimulus to philosophical reflection are pictures of wheels!

Wheels to photograph may be found everywhere—in junk heaps and farmyards, in streets, in factories, in your own home. Photographically, their many patterns and the shadows of their patterns offer a variety of fascinating studies. Wheels are easy to photograph. You can be leisurely in your preparations, unless, of course, they are wheels on a moving vehicle. As still subjects, you have an opportunity to use time exposures on them if needed, not forgetting a small stop opening for sharp detail, particularly for shadows. Wheels provide subjects for striking angle shots, especially when they form a part of masses of machinery in factory or engine room.

Pictures of wheels call for close-ups. They should fill the viewfinder. Often when the impression of size and strength is desirable, the print may be trimmed so that the wheel crowds the picture space to the limit.

When wheels are in revolution, don't think you should always use a fast shutter speed. Blurred spokes in the photograph will give the sense of motion just as they do to the eye.

Try some pictures of this intriguing subject; and may the wheel of fortune favor you.

Tea, Coffee as Beverage.Traced Back to 350 A. D.

The use of tea among the Chinese, from whom it has extended to all parts of the world, cannot be traced with certainty any further back than to 350 A. D. or approximately that time. This use did not become general in China until about the ninth century. Tea was introduced into Europe by the Dutch in 1610, says a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

How long coffee has been used in Arabia, its native country, is not certainly known. It was introduced into Egypt in the sixteenth century. The first coffee house in Europe was established in Constantinople in 1551. The first person to make it known to Western Europe seems to have been Leonard Rauwolf, a German physician, a great traveler. Once introduced, the use of this beverage spread rapidly. Coffee houses sprang up in all the chief cities. The first one in London was opened by a Greek in Newman's Court, Cornhill, in 1652; the first one in France was opened in Marseilles in 1671; the first in Paris in the following year.

Finding Happiness

Big pleasures and great happiness are but many little ones bound together as a loaf is many crumbs in an aggregate. True happiness is the art of finding joy and satisfaction in the little privileges of life. A quiet hour in the sun, instead of a far-away journey; a little outing in the nearby woods, instead of long trips away; an hour with a friend instead of an extended visit to relatives; a few pages of a book instead of hours of reading at a time; a flash of sunset, a single beautiful flower, a passing smile, a kindly word, a little thoughtfulness here and there as the day slips by—these are the crumbs of happiness. Do not despise them, lest when the evening finds you, you be hungry and disconsolate and unhappy. Sir Launfal, after traveling the world over in search of the precious cup, found it; you will recall, in the hands of a needy beggar at his own gate.—Writer Unknown.

Desert Bred

By E. P. O'BRYAN

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

YOU would have thought, to hear a Pop-Travis talk, that by merely looking at a young animal he could tell within the fraction of a second, or thereabouts, just how fast it would run a couple of years hence.

He told me of his ambitions, of his emperishable hopes, and how they finally had to come to rest in that long slender body that was Starlight's.

"I took Desert Lady and bred her to Imperishable hopes, and how they figured it was a good combination. Desert Lady was fast in her time—but light. She couldn't carry any weight to speak of. And Thistle-down was too heavy. One of the fastest desert horses ever on a track, but he carried too much flesh to compete with the best."

"Listen, Pop," I said. "You can't win on these modern tracks with desert horses. You're getting too old to go on fooling around with these jack-rabbits. Why don't you get wise to yourself and spend a few thousand for some decent blue-grass stock? If you're going to stay in the game, go into it right. I've known you for nearly twenty years and you're always messed around with desert stock. Sort of a second money winner—when you do win. Why, come to think of it, you've never owned a horse that took first money—have you?"

—Pop shook his head.

I paid twelve thousand for Bellshire. He was a grand horse. I had counted on him to win the Derby. In fact, I was so sure of it I had laid my last dollar on his nose.

At post time I was as nervous as a mouse in a den of cats. You get that way when you're shooting high. The horse we had to beat, as everyone knew, was Gray Shoes. She was plenty fast.

Then, suddenly, we heard the stroke of hoofs against the dirt and they were off.

For a moment I couldn't identify Bellshire in that unbroken line. The important thing was that he was off with the rest.

Suddenly the voice of the crowd lifted.

"Bellshire! Bellshire!"

I saw then what had happened. Bellshire and Gray Shoes had taken the lead, with Bellshire pulling slowly away from her, his powerful thrust carrying him forward rapidly, so that Gray Shoes' neck, which at first had been obscured by the stallion's hind quarters, seemed to lengthen gradually.

By the time Bellshire was leading into the first turn the others were strung out behind him like a train of box cars. Only Gray Shoes seemed to be giving him any competition. This was as it should be. It was in the carls for Bellshire to win.

But suddenly my heart missed a beat, for something was looming up like a house on fire. It was another horse coming out of the dust—and coming wide. The shape took form so quickly that it sort of took your breath away. Was it Gray Shoes? No—no—that it popped out of the dust it turned blacker than the ace of spades.

"St. Arlight!" The crowd cried it in a single voice. St. Arlight, a long shot—a very long shot indeed—moving up to give my Bellshire competition.

The crowd went crazy—bughouse. Men threw their hats in the air and started yelling warwhoops. The women, too.

Then out of the corner of my eye I saw Pop Travis going berserk. St. Arlight! Starlight! All he had done was give that desert jack-rabbit a fancy title. He'd just used a period between the "St." and "A." In Starlight. And I hadn't guessed. In a couple of years one does forget things.

The desert seemed to breathe power into those driving platoon. He came on like an evil wind. His muscles rippled as his hoofs rapped out a challenge to the swift. Stamina gleamed beneath that black coat.

Bellshire took one sidewise look at this black menace and slipped into high gear. They came down the home stretch together, cheek to jaw, wither to wither, their nostrils cups of living flame.

I think that as long as I live I shall never see another race like that one. They were as nearly matched, these two, as twin hurricanes blowing out of the Caribbean. Though half a century or so of royal breeding lay back of him Bellshire could no more shake off that black wild than he could fly, and he was doing everything but that. As they thundered under the wire thirty thousand people leaped to their feet and thirty thousand throats screamed as one.

St. Arlight by a nose!

When Pop found me, the old coat had real tears in his laughing eyes. "It's all right," he said, his voice quaking with deep emotion. "It's just that the desert bred had to win sooner or later and I'm plumb sorry, son. I had to beat one o' your plugs."

Pop is with me now. He owns half my string.

A GOOD CURE FOR UNHAPPINESS IS TO BE UNHAPPY

She had fallen in love with a college professor. For five years their hopeless passion had been devouring them both, and the misery of it had taken all the taste out of her life.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

ONE of the simplest ways to help cure unhappiness is to be unhappy.

This sounds like sheer nonsense, but it has a profound spiritual truth beneath it. It has beneath it the truth that has made saints at once the least fortunate and the happiest persons who ever lived.

Sometimes, when life is going all wrong, when debt and anxiety and work and discouragement are piling up like mountains all about you, it is a bracing and healthful thing to ask yourself why you expect ever to be happy in this twisted world, anyway, and whether you are not wasting your time in attempting to achieve felicity in a scheme that is as obviously all crooked.

Once grasping this point of view firmly you find that a great many things are left you, and some of them are good things. You have service, sleep, books, meals, prayer, and if you really have not drawn yourself from anxieties—you have peace of mind.

In straining after that chimera "happiness" we humans live a way of making ourselves completely unhappy. Ambition is one of the keenest agonies the heart can know, because it is almost always accompanied by the misery of jealousy, and passes by so much that is good while struggling to reach that which looks better. No goal is as satisfying as the road to that goal. Among the wretched women of the world are those whose husbands have risen from poverty to wealth. Wealth usually costs them their husband's affection; bigger things so monopolize his time that he has small leisure for the old affectionate companionship he and his wife once knew.

The minute that an unhappy woman puts herself completely out of the picture, acknowledges temporary defeat, admits that things aren't going the way she wants them to go and does not seem likely to change, the minute she resolves not to want anything again, not to complain, but to quietly live for the happiness of others, that moment her spirit begins to rise toward a new kind of joy in living, a real kind, and in that moment all the tangible things that affect her, her associates, her environment, her very health and her looks begin to move a little nearer to her ideals.

About two years ago a woman named Margaret Baker wrote me that her life was in ruins and that she wanted to end it. She had been married then for seventeen years to a man who had long ceased to thrill her, and whom she said she had ceased to love. They had two boys of fifteen and eleven, and a quite small girl. They lived in a college city, owned their small home, had a car, and to outward seeming, were just one more plain little American family among a million. Margaret's neighbors all seemed happy enough, but she was racked with despair. She had fallen in love with a certain college professor; for five years their hopeless passion had been devouring them both, and the misery of it had taken all the taste out of her life.

Arnold couldn't give up his wife and delicate child; Margaret couldn't desert Paul—little Paul, Peter and Janet. But how she suffered! She grew thin; there was a dazed look in her eyes as she went about her household duties; automatically she moved through all the usual events of life; underneath it was all bewilderment and pain.

The college town being about fifty miles away from where I live, I wrote her and asked her to come to see me. She came, bringing an exquisite little daughter. She said she liked Paul well enough. She said she had perfect health. And she said she wanted to die because she was so utterly miserable.

After quite a long talk she was persuaded to do three things: First—to go home and have a long talk with Paul, in which both would agree to forget the past and begin again. This was most fortunately made easier because the other man and his family had moved away some months earlier, and were living in Kansas. Second—to try to get her system into shape by giving up everything that upset her nerves; she was an excessive user of both cigarettes and coffee; she promised to cut the former down to a reasonable number, and try a coffee substitute. The third requirement was to accept unhappiness.

Instead of fretting, she was to say to herself in depressed moments: "Other women perhaps are happy. I am not and I cannot be. But I can see that Paul and the children are happy, and relieve my mother's anxieties about me by forgetting my own unhappiness completely. Why should I be happy?"

Millions of women just as wise and good as I are actually hungry. Millions of women have no homes, no beds, no one to help them. For all my unhappiness I am warm and my children are healthy and happy. My husband, despite the wall that has grown between us, is yet a good man and a kind man. Let me be unhappy. What does it matter? If what I have means nothing to me, and what I cannot have means everything, why care but myself, and if I never show that I care, who will ever know but myself?

This woman went home to try the new plan of being unhappy. The result was so remarkable that if I detailed it here it would sound like one of my own stories, which at ways have to have happy endings. They always have troubled beginnings and happy endings because trouble is the one sure thing we all manage to bring into our lives, and yet with God's grace there is always a way out to happiness.

Suffice it to say of Margaret Baker that if she had found it hard to be happy, she found it absolutely impossible to be unhappy. In spite of herself the mere joy of living, her pride in her children, her sense of security and importance in being their mother, and the wife of a good man, would be revealed. Having accepted misery as her lot, she suddenly and strangely became accustomed to "expatiate upon it in the old fashion to her intimates. It did sound too ridiculous, with all she had to go on moaning about a man who belonged to someone else.

Her new, gentle, considerate attitude toward Paul melted the ice of bitterness that he had felt for five years; somehow it touched her oddly to see with what eagerness, with what clumsiness, he tried to help her bury the unhappy past. Her newly adjusted nerves and intelligently handled diet problem contributed to the general rebirth of the Baker family.

If you think you can't possibly be happy, try the effect of a cheerful, self-forgetting, serving unhappiness. The result is sometimes very surprising.

Earl's Coronet Sold

The poet, Tennyson, says somewhere, "Kind hearts are more than coronets, and simple faith than Norman blood," from which it might be gathered that a coronet ranked high in his estimation. One wonders what the great Victorian would have written had he lived to record that an earl's coronet had been picked up for a few pounds in a second-hand shop in Dublin, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

In fact that has been the tragic history of the coronet of the earls of Westmeath. A real genuine honest-to-goodness silver-gilt coronet with cloth-of-gold tassel and ermine base, it reposes in more suitable surroundings amid the tattered tabards and old heraldic devices of the office of Ulster king of arms in Dublin castle. It is on exhibition there for all to see who may visit that quaint and unique place. It is accompanied by a card notice which says: "Earl's coronet, lent by an army officer."

The officer found the coronet in Dublin, and at once purchased it for $20. Himself an expert in heraldry and an officer in Ulster's department, he at once realized its value, and resolved to get it from the melting pot to which it would inevitably have gone had it fallen into other hands. It will, no doubt, soon find its way back to the Westmeath family, where it rightly belongs.

It is believed that during the sale of the late earl's property the coronet was accidentally included in a lot of miscellaneous articles by a servant who did not realize its importance and thus fell into the hands of a dealer in that kind of property.

Worship of All Nature

Once Prevalled in Peru
Religion of the Indians in the highlands of Peru is a strange mixture of Christian teachings and the weird superstitions handed down through uncounted generations, states a writer in the New York World-Telegram. In the days before the Inca Empire was established the gods were almost unlimited in number—even the family had its god. Among popular objects worshipped were trees, stones, rivers, mountains, flowers and animals. The animals were selected for certain outstanding characteristics—the condor, largest of all flying birds and one indigenous to the Andes, was revered because of its size; the fox, for its cunning; the jaguar, for its strength.

Rocks, caves and lakes also were worshipped because it was the belief of the Indians that from such places their ancestors had sprung. In fact, one legend has it that the first Inca, Manco Capac, made figures of clay representing the different natives he desired to gather into his empire; that he painted them with the clothes they wore to wear, and told them the localities in which the various natives they represented were to spring up. Then he sent them down below and they later sprang into the world—some from waterfalls, others from caves and trees, thus endowing such objects with the qualities of a god.

Deception Powerful
"Deception is powerful," said Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "because men when they discover that they have been led into error are likely to be too proud to admit it."

Azerbaijan lies in the south-eastern area of the Caucasus region of the Soviet Union and is therefore part of Europe, but the people are for the most part of Asiatic origin. The population of this small, but important, Soviet republic, part of the Caucasian federation which also includes Georgia, Abkhazia and other smaller autonomous regions, is only two-and-a-half million. Its capital is Baku, one of the greatest oil producing centers in the world. A million and a half of the people of Azerbaijan are Turks who speak Azerbanijanli; the rest are Tats, Lezgians, Tatars, Assyrians, Greeks and Russians.
