American Legion Post Observes 18th Birthday

Commemorating the 18th birthday of the American Legion, the members of the local Post, with their wives and members of Legion Auxiliary, very fittingly celebrated the event at Kolb's hall on Wednesday evening, Mar. 17. Dinner was served to the group and the hall was beautifully decorated in green and white. Several of the members of the Legion acted as waiters, they being dressed as Irishmen and wearing red whiskers and wigs, and each smoking a pipe.

Following the dinner, "Bing" Eaton, acting as toastmaster, called on Mrs. Emma Mayer, John O'Hara and Paul Maroney for short talks. Under the direction of Miss Lucille Boomgard entertainment was furnished by the high school boys' quartet and the quintet.

Door prizes consisting of a rolling pin, a miniature telephone, a dog house and a horse collar were awarded Florence O'Hara, Ruth Schenk, Clarence Bahmiller and Elmer Mayer, respectively.

Dancing filled out the remainder of the evening and all reported a very enjoyable party.

The Waterloo Project

By Frank R. Coburn
Acting Project Manager
National Park Service

Editor's Note—This is the first of a series of articles prepared by Mr. Coburn, dealing with the objectives and possibilities of the Waterloo Project, located north and west of Chelsea.

Unknown to many people, this country has been passing through a form of revolution. The recent and present industrial unrest and demands of the workers for more money and shorter working hours is in itself a form of revolution. As in all movements of this kind, their demands are based upon a definite ambition or desire and it appears that their demand for shorter working hours is based upon a desire for more hours for recreation.

For some time the government has recognized this need and has planned, and is now building, recreational centers of a new type throughout the United States. One of the greatest problems is the necessity for healthful outdoor recreation for children residing in the large metropolitan centers and for whom such facilities cannot possibly be provided within or adjacent to the large cities in which they reside. The small stereotyped public park within the city limits, which is limited in its area due to the great cost involved in acquiring the property, soon becomes overcrowded and produces conditions comparable to the crowded conditions within the city where these children reside.

The Waterloo Project has been planned and is being built as a solution to this problem and because of its large area can and will broaden the scope of its activities to include recreational facilities not only for the children but also for the families and the public at large.

The construction of so-called organized camps, such as the one at Mill Lake and the one at Cassidy Lake, will meet the long felt need for outdoor camping facilities where social organizations similar to the Detroit Board of Education may send (Continued on next page)

Radio Stars to Appear Here Tuesday Night

The Chelsea Kiwanis club is sponsoring an after-Lenten entertainment and dance by Tim Doolittle and his ever popular Pine Center Gang of radio stars from station WJR, Tuesday evening, March 30, at the public school gymnasium. There are several added features this season, including Harold Keane, WJR Sunshine Boy, who is a member of the Three Aces; Rambling Bill Hurley, famous caller with the million dollar voice; Peggy, the Sweetheart of Pine Center, and many other stars from Pine Center.

SUNSHINE CHAPTER MEETS

The Sunshine chapter of the Ladies' Guild held their March meeting at the home of Mrs. M. H. McGaffigan on Thursday afternoon. About 60 members and guests were present. Mrs. M. W. McClure had charge of the devotional services. A short business meeting was held.

Mrs. H. M. Raymond of Grass Lake gave a most interesting and instructive paper on "Pottery and Porcelain." She brought several pieces of pottery and porcelain to display and gave the history and origin of several of the pieces. The program ended with a group of three songs, "Believe All Those Endearing Young Charms," "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," and "Auf Wiedersehn," sung by Peggy Bleeker with Miss Lucille Boomgard as accompanist.

A social hour followed the program and refreshments were served. The assisting hostesses were Mrs. C. W. Maroney, Mrs. J. E. Weber, Mrs. H. L. Knickerbocker and Mrs. C. D. Platt.

PROJECT OFFICE MOVED

The office of the Waterloo Project Administration, which has been located on the second floor of the Eppler building since the project was started, was moved on Monday to the Sylvan Estates club house which has been purchased by the government as a part of the project.

ENTERTAINS FOR GUEST

Miss Jane McGaffigan entertained a number of friends on Tuesday evening in honor of her guest, Miss Ann Marie Frimodig of Jackson. The evening was spent in playing games and visiting. Dainty refreshments were served.

Huron Band Festival Will Be Held May 4

Plans have been completed to hold the second annual Huron League Band Festival at Belleville during National Music Week, on May 4. Already 174 players from the following school bands have entered: Dundee, Chelsea, University High, Belleville and Milan. Tecumseh will perhaps enter at a later date.

Professor Revelli, director of the University of Michigan band and nationally known for his band work, will be the guest conductor. Mr. Revelli was director of the famous Hobart, Indiana, high school band which entered in the national championship for four consecutive years.

Mr. Bird of the Belleville school band is president of the organization this year and will arrange the complete program. Last year the festival was held at Milan for the first time. The festival was organized last year under the direction of L. C. Burnor and Mr. Bird, who have had several years of experience in band work of this kind.

The school bands have until May 4 in order to prepare the numbers on the concert. On the afternoon of May 4 Professor Revelli will hold the final rehearsal and in the evening will direct five numbers on the program. The remaining five numbers will be directed by the band-directors from the schools entering. Mr. Revelli has twice met the directors at the University to give them final instructions in directing the numbers.

OUR NEIGHBORS

BROOKLYN—A farm wagon nearly 100 years old, hand made and with hand forged axles, was sold at the Curtis auction last week for $18. Fred Harris was the buyer. It was made at Ferrysburg, Ohio and was owned by the great grandfather of Mrs. Harry Bascom of this place. It was brought here by James Bettis who was at one time on the Fred McKinney farm and was sold at auction when he left to Newman Curtis. —Exponent.

SALINE—Rev. and Mrs. Roy J. Miller had a most unusual experience Monday afternoon as they were homebound after attending to some business matters in Ann Arbor. Driving along Fourth avenue they noticed a car they believed to be the one stolen from them here a week ago and upon inspecting it, were sure of it. They notified police and after proper identification were allowed to drive it home. The speedometer revealed that 1,900 miles had been registered since it disappeared but none of the contents were missing. A blanket, valued as a gift, a flashlight, some clerical books—all had been left in the car and even the keys. As more gas was in the tank than when the auto was taken it is supposed the thief planned to drive it more. Police, questioning residents of a nearby house, learned that the machine had been parked there after 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Rev. Miller is happy to again have his car and grateful that the contents were not disturbed, even though it was necessary to take it to a garage for checking up for minor faults. —Observer.

GRASS LAKE—The birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Chadey, Ann Arbor, Friday, makes great grandparents of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Crafts and Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Cooper. —News. Mrs. Chadey was formerly Miss Marian Crafts and a former Chelsea resident.

HOWELL—The February Howell public school attendance record was very high. The percentage of attendance was 92.4. The attendance of the school year so far has been 93.1 per cent, tardiness has been 48 per cent. The enrollment since the beginning of school, September 8, has decreased. The total number enrolled at that time was 1,081, the first six grades had 508, Junior high 270, and senior high 305. At the present time the total enrollment is 996, among which 464 are in the first six grades, 255 in Junior high, and 277 in Senior high. The total days attendance has been 105,585. —Republican-Press.

PARMA—Monday will be "moving day" for Jackson county officials as the new county building is "taken over," but the moving is expected to include several days before the various county offices are completely installed in the former Elks temple at the corner of Jackson and Wesley streets in Jackson. No Michigan county can boast a finer county building than Jackson when the remodeled building is placed into use. Although the initial cost of the ground and building amounted to more than $800,000, not counting fixtures of $110,000, Jackson county was able to buy the structure for $8,900 through the tireless efforts of Harry W. Helmer, chairman of the board of supervisors. In the face of tremendous opposition and ridicule, Mr. Helmer and his committee went on with the proposal until it was put through. Today it is almost impossible to find anything but commendation for the success of the venture. —News.

PLYMOUTH—A Plymouth grown watermelon, just as fresh as it was the day it was picked from the vines last fall, has been on display in the office of The Plymouth Mail during the present week. The melon was grown and picked by Joseph Merritt, of 1910 Lilley road. He placed it in his basement with other vegetables taken from his place and the other day when it was brought to The Mail office, it was just as fresh and as hard as it was the day he placed it in the basement. The melon has attracted considerable attention. —Mail.

You May Reply to These Serious Questions Before Easter and Be at Peace With Your Heart

Art thou weary, art thou languid, art thou sore distressed?
"Come to me," saith our Lord, "and coming be at rest."

Hath He marks to lead me to Him, If He be my guide?
"In His feet and hands are wound prints and His side."

Is there diadem, as monarch, that His brow adorns?
"Yes, a crown, in very surety, but of thorns."

If I find Him, if I follow, what his question here?
"Many a sorrow, many a labor, many a tear."

If I still hold closely to Him, what hath He at last?
"Sorrow vanquished, labor ended, Jordan passed."

If I ask Him to receive me, will he say me nay?
"Not till earth and not till heaven pass away."

Finding, following, keeping, struggling, is He sure to bless?
Saints, apostles, prophets, martyrs, answer—Yes.

—Selected from an old hymnal by Arthur Carlton.

I know some drivers who take extreme care of the condition of their automobiles. The slightest squeak, rattle or noise is carefully investigated even at the expense of time. They might be on a trip and have only the minimum time to complete their appointment, yet they will stop for minutes at a time to correct some insignificant little rattle that does not harm the efficiency of the automobile. Then, when they have discovered the rattle and have corrected it, they seem to forget all about the rights of others. They have no judgment as to speed and apparently lose all control of good driving sense. A safe driver is never a spectacular driver. He is considerate of the rights of others. He makes sure his car mechanism is properly adjusted, and also makes sure that his mental condition is such that he will appreciate what others expect him to do on the highways.

children for a definite period during the summer months, during which time they will be properly fed, trained, and supervised so that they may better fit themselves to be credible citizens of this United States.

The National Youth Administration Camp at Cassidy Lake, now under construction, is intended to solve the problem of boys between the ages of 18 and 21, boys who have in many cases had partial or complete high school education and wish to continue their studies through the freshman college credits without being a burden to their families or the community in which they reside. These boys, during their six-months' stay in the camp, act as apprentices to the carpenters, electricians, plumbers, and other craftsmen engaged in the construction of this camp. For these services the boys are paid sufficient money to enable them to pay for their own board and room while residing in the camp. Inasmuch as they are required to work only 56 hours per month to make them self-sustaining, there is ample time for them to pursue their high school and freshman college studies under the direction of competent instructors.

The western part of the Waterloo Project, centering around Big Portage Lake, has been designed as a public use recreational area, definite areas being assigned for the purpose of, auto trailer camping, adjacent areas for tent camping, and it is proposed to develop areas for family or group use in cabins of sufficient size for families or organized groups to spend from a few days to a week. All these groups are to be supplied with all the necessary sanitary facilities, such as shower baths, latrines, running water, and laundry facilities. Immediately adjacent there is to be a bath house, and an excellent bathing beach, as well as a boat house where boats may be rented for the purpose of fishing.

From both the east area covered by organized camps and the west area for public recreational purposes, a comprehensive trail system will connect these areas with the wildlife section to the north where, in the future, native species of wildlife may be viewed in their natural habitat, this feature being not only of educational value but also one which will promote hiking or long walks, a habit now being lost to the American people in this age of the automobile.

It is the intention of the National Park Service to restore, insofar as possible, this area to a primitive state, promoting the growth of the original natural cover of hardwoods and allowing the people who so wish to visit an area closely approaching its original natural state before the advent of man.

The Waterloo Project is being constructed under the direction of the National Park Service; the work in the field is being performed by men drawn from the WPA rolls. These men are all from Jackson and Washtenaw counties, and practically the entire amount of their earnings is being spent in these two counties. This is also true in the purchase of the materials for the construction of the camps and all other facilities, as an endeavor is made to place the orders with local dealers and merchants. The Waterloo Project is so situated that it is within a reasonably short distance from the metropolitan centers inhabited by approximately 3,000,000 people and it is apparent that any effort made to attract the general public to this area should result in direct benefits to the people and the merchants of Chelsea, Jackson, Waterloo and other adjacent communities.

The Seniors, who so excellently portrayed the parts, were Muriel Martin, Harriet Bleeker, Harley Prudden, Eileen Adams, Doris Rogers, Paul Pilemeier, Elsa Bareis, Ruth Umstead and George Prinzing. They had excellent cooperation from the rest of the Senior class who managed costumes and so forth. They were expertly directed by Miss Gibson and Miss Allen.

A Visitor's Embarrassment

Don't you think a visitor is terribly embarrassed, when upon entering a class room he is greeted by a volley of "How! How!" or other unpleasant noises. In the first place, he feels self-conscious because he is intruding upon a class, and in the second place the noises cause him to feel that there is something wrong with his appearance.

Please resolve to make this visitor feel he is welcome and he will appreciate this little act of courtesy.

"I fear," the struggling dentist said, "that I'm a total loss. I've built a lot of bridges, but folks just don't come across."

Rabbits' Prayer

Deliver us From setter, hound, pointer, Plect-in-the-chase

May we ever be found. May hawk and eagle

Stay aloft remote. Lead from us

The weasel and the dog. Keep us good rabbits,

Safe from the hunters' eye, But make us mink or sable

When we DYE.

If you want to bring smiles and laughter

To all the folks you meet, Just carry a bag with a dozen eggs

And slip and fall on the street.

"I hope you're starting to get ready for Easter at your house."

"Yes. My mother has opened two more charge accounts uptown."

THE GRAVESTONES OF YESTERDAY'S FORESTS

They are tall in their glory, Those trees which stand alone, The gravestones of the forests, Which man have cut to the bone.

The forests are now naught in comparison To their size of those years ago, And are composed of transplanting By our fathers of a few decades or so.

So now those trees which still stand Are gravestones of those long cut away, To keep in memory those towering masters, Once standing in vast array.

Elementary News

Kindergarten

George Miller is back. He has been absent a long, long time. We are so happy to have him back.

We are making Easter things. We have made Easter rabbits, Easter eggs, and bright Easter baskets.

We hear Joyce Umstead is getting better slowly and will be so happy to have her back. Happy Easter, Joyce.

We are looking forward to having Margaret Mary back after Easter. Happy Easter to you, Margaret.

Spring is here. We are looking for signs of it. Many of us have seen robins.

First Grade

Junior Niehaus went to Ann Arbor last Monday night to hear and see Mrs. Johnson's lecture and movie. He told us many interesting things. He saw monkeys, flying snakes, climbing fish, bears, birds' nest soup, water vines, the orang outang and a monkey that looked like Jimmy Durante.

Mr. Bleeker sent new pencils to our post office. The pencils came from New York. They are named Child-land pencils. We thank Mr. Bleeker.

Vernon Cook brought a large Easter egg. We weighed it. It weighed one pound. We served it at Allen Ray's birthday party.

Mrs. Krantz served cup cakes decorated with white bunnies in a green nest, pop corn and cookies. Allen Ray and Junior were helpers. Everyone had a good time at the party.

The kindergarten gave us each a shamrock to wear on St. Patrick's day. We thank them.

Douglas Vogel read us a story, "Wee Woman", which we dramatized. Merle Leach read a story about Don and the Birds. George Woods is reading "Billy Boy Seeks His Fortune." The story is exciting.

Second Grade

In the last month, Dale Collins, Alice Cushman, Frances Hale, Thelma Hill, Marceline Hinderer, Douglas Hoppe, Ray Knickerbocker, Loren Munro, Richard Osborne, Paul Schable, Robert Sidwell and Dale Thomas have had a perfect attendance.

Today, Friday, we had a spell down. Marceline Hinderer spelled a lot of words after every one else had missed one.

Jack Winans has been busy this week entertaining the ear ache. We are sorry for him and hope he'll be able to come back next week.

Dorothy Van de Grey's birthday came on Thursday of this week. She is eight years old.

Fourth Grade

We're glad that spring has come. Flo Ann Longworth and Philip Tompkins brought us some pussy willows.

Our radio program is now each morning on Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

We wrote descriptions during our language class. We liked to hear the different endings for the story which was started in our book. Phyllis Hopper wrote the best ending.

Alton Guenther, Philip Tompkins, and Eva Geddes drew character posters for our club Friday.

Fifth Grade

Our Citizenship class on Wednesday proved quite interesting. We discussed qualities which make good citizens. Among them were self control, responsibility, effort, fair play and courtesy.

We now have the Victrola which Miss Dancer let us take all repaired and in good working order—thanks to our mechanics.

We have our room all cleaned now. In other words our spring house cleaning is all done—thanks to Mrs. Robbins, with William's and Walter's help.

Sixth Grade

About 20 of us went to Ann Arbor to see "The Depth of Borneo," by Mrs. Martin Johnson. Dick S. is writing a report of "The Martin Johnson Lecture." He is also drawing pictures.

In language we are on sheet 20. We are going to have another test over the first 12 sheets because only four were satisfied with their marks.

Dick S. is going to make a bird clock for our grade. On it we put each month the names of the birds, which come to our town, and the names of the people who brought the names of the birds.

Some of us went to the Senior play rehearsal Wednesday, March 17. The name of it was "Fast Colors". It was very good.

We won't have school Good Friday afternoon.

John Stone brought two live mice and Bud Slane brought two dead mice for Oscar.

The girls clean the hawk cage at least twice a week or oftener. They just cleaned it again Monday.

We are making book reports in reading about Youthful Patriots in the Colonial days.

Step up, brother, TO THE HEAD OF THE CLASS!

SOMEONE has to set the pace—why shouldn't it be you? You've got what it takes to own the bellwether car of the year—and this Buick is what it takes to make you leading citizen!

Look at it! The clean, lean, lithe lines tell of power to make your heart beat faster.

Sit in it! It sets you up like extra money in the bank, just to feel this solid, stable, steady, fine-steel mass beneath you!

Touch the treadle! You loose the power of an engine that knows no equal, size for size, anywhere in the world!

What'll this handsome traveler do? Bless you, anything you ask, but the big thing is: what'll it do to you? It'll put you at the head of the class—out front in smart style, out front as a smart buyer!

For with all the power of its oil-cushioned valve-in-head straight-eight engine—with all its size and roominess and smartness and firm, safe roadability—it carries the lowest price tag ever hung on a Buick to put it easily within your reach.

Step in to see your nearest Buick dealer and step up to the head of the class before summer starts.

LOWEST PRICE EVER ON A BUICK 4-DOOR SEDAN!

Today's price for a Buick 4-door sedan is the lowest in all Buick history—and you get longer wheelbase, greater power, valve-in-head thrust—straight-eight smoothness—roomier body—safely glass all around—bigger luggage compartment—and immeasurably greater performance, comfort and style! See your dealer for low delivered prices, and see what a big Buick really is, compared to the average size outside the lowest price field.

Ready—If Disaster Strikes

"The message must get through". Again this spirit guided the telephone companies and telephone people during the recent heavy floods. Again emergency found the Bell System prepared.

From warehouses and factories of the Western Electric Company... manufacturing and supply department of the Bell System... great quantities of telephone material were rushed to the Ohio and Mississippi valleys. Wherever it was used, it was familiar to all workers, and scientifically correct. It was Bell System equipment!

And from wherever they gathered for the emergency... volunteer operators from Michigan assisting operators in Ohio; linemen from Illinois working shoulder to shoulder with crews from Tennessee... all workers spoke the common language of a job thoroughly understood. In emergencies, when telephone service is hard to maintain, is when that service is needed most. But the successful meeting of this and other emergencies cannot be laid entirely to the forethought, the engineering experience, or the manufacturing facilities of this unified telephone system. It results, also, from the devotion of every telephone man and woman to the job. Trained to meet the unexpected, it is all in the day's work to them. They stick to their tasks. "The message must get through".

Trout Season Will Open On April 24th

The working man will have 20 Sundays and a holiday to spend on his favorite northern streams during the four and a half month trout fishing season which opens Saturday, April 24th.

There will be more if the official observance of two holidays, which fall on Sunday this year, is extended to Monday. Memorial day, May 30, and the Fourth of July, both come on a Sunday this year.

Although much dissatisfaction was evident last season over the opening date of trout fishing there seems slight possibility of a change this spring. The season opens, as provided by law, on the last Saturday of April. Any changes would have to be made by the legislature and would have to be given immediate effect.

Should the season be changed back to May 1 or later, authorities point out, it doubtless would result in much confusion since the fishing law digests for 1937 specify April 24 as the opening date and many non-residents have planned trips into Michigan for that date. A change also would create a law enforcement problem, since many doubtless would insist on opening the season April 24 according to the fishing law digests.

The slang appellation "Hunyak" is not usually applied to emigrants from northern Europe. They are generally termed Polacks, Dutchmen, or Swedes (or Squareheads), with a supreme disregard of actual nationality. So, also, says Literary Digest, Hunyak is applied indifferently to emigrants from the Balkan States—Hungarians, Serbs, Bulgars, Turks, or Greeks.

MAY SPEAR NOXIOUS FISH

Practically every county in Michigan has one or more streams or portions of streams in which spring spearing for noxious fish is permitted by law—without artificial light.

Sportsmen who would like to take a whiff at this type of sport would do well to consult their county conservation officers to learn which stream waters are legally open. The officers first admonition probably would be to keep away from trout streams, since all are closed to spring spearing and to be sure to have a fishing license.

Spearing for non-game fish became legal March 1 and continues legal to and including May 15.

JEALOUSY THE PITFALL OF THE MARRIED THIRTIES

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

WHEN women speak of jealousy in marriage they usually think of that rather flattering and exciting condition of affairs when the adoring male smashes china and grinds his teeth while muttering: "You shan't dance with him again, you provoking little beauty, or I'll break every bone in your exquisite body!"

This is the jealousy of movies and novels. Many a wife of a quiet, reasonable, unjealous husband secretly wishes that something of this sort would break the calm of her domestic security. It might be rather fun to be married to a jealous brute for a while.

"He's insanely jealous!" reiterates the idiot girl in "June Moon" complacently. The audience suspects by this time that the man is completely done with her, but she goes on with her placid repetition. "He's insanely jealous!"

Women rather like to think their men are jealous; jealous in that exciting, dramatic way that is a tacit way of saying: "All the other men admire my wife. But not one of them can get her away from me!"

But this isn't real jealousy. This, like so many of the other things we take seriously when we are young and in love, is only one more mask held up before the delectable face of Mother Nature. It is one more maneuver to make men and women attractive to each other. Courtship is full of these little deceptions; his sweetheart's stammer will enchant a man, her business inefficiencies amuse him, her tardiness seems to him just an indication that she is no more than a delightful baby. But in a wife, stammering and extravagance and tardiness somehow lose their charm.

And so with jealousy. A piquant sauce for the engagement, it proves much too hot a seasoning for the everyday fare of matrimony. It becomes tiresome, stupid, cumbersome, a continual annoyance—an unnecessary trial added to the real problems of life. The wives of jealous men carry a double burden—they have to give up much that would be pleasant and valuable in their lives; friendships, contacts, responsibilities, opportunities for self-expression and development must all be sacrificed. "Because you know how Harold is," it makes him perfectly WRETCHED to have me interested in anything but him."

But the husbands of jealous women have an even harder time. Women are more often jealous than men; they have more imagination when they are jealous, and they have more time to think about it. The result—or rather one result of this state of affairs—is the shoal of letters I receive from completely wretched wives.

Completely wretched because jealousy is really an insidious poison, actually affecting the body, causing a total upset of the digestive and eliminative functions and a sort of furry of the brain. Women, seized by a jealous rage, temporarily go mad. They watch, listen, search for evidence in a sort of silent fury; everything the most innocent man does or says is construed into a damaging admission. The woman loses all her charm, all serenity, all reason. She defeats her own ends by making herself homely, dull, unattractive.

Even worse than this occasional burst of sex-jealousy is that more subtle form the green-eyed monster takes when a wife becomes jealous of her husband's life. Not of any other woman, particularly, not of his mother or sister or old-sweet-heart friend; but of everything.

This phase usually comes along in the thirties. A woman's life is full of physiological and psychological crises, and this is one of them. Having had everything her own way for thirty-five years, she feels a sudden lull in her affairs, and when she realizes that that lull has not come to her husband she resents the situation, and acute and sometimes fatal jealousy is the result.

Her household is running smoothly, her children are in schools, her life is bounded by a comfortable home, a car, a club, buying heavy clothes in autumn, light clothes in spring, making club reports and hospital calls, selecting Christmas presents and ordering dinners, growing older every minute—good heavens, how boring it all is! Her friends are all doing the same thing. There's no escape; the joy and glamour and excitement of life are over, and she is just that nice Mrs. Harold Baker whose little girls are finishing grammar school.

Profoundly discontent, she looks at her partner, that pleasant young Harold Baker that she met at Rhoda's fifteen years ago, and perceives, to her resentment, that he is just reaching the point when life is all pleasant and satisfying to him. The business that was for so many years a question of hard work and humiliations, is running more smoothly; Baker is one of our best men, Baker is the man for the promotion. The children, who used to cause such anxious consultations, whose coughs and measles and bumps and naughtiness broke into so many plans by day and so many hours of sleep by night, are friendly little craft sailing their own waters now.

He plays good bridge, his golf at least provides endless hours of companionship with his kind in the open air, he goes on business trips, hunting, fishing week-ends. He goes to stag dinners at the club. Healthy and interested and busy, in his rosiest, most invigorated mood, he comes down to a pale, fretted wife at breakfast. He's going to lunch with Smith and clinch that order, he's going up with Jones to look at that new club site; they'll get a bite of dinner at the club. He has a ha-ha over the day's comic strip; he approves of the stock market; he has a little flirtation with his younger daughter, who ends it with an, "I love you, Dad!" that sends him away humming.

His wife looks on at all this with a jaundiced eye. Stag dinners and lodge meetings and golf games and bridge clubs indeed!

"You've grown away from me, Harold," she presently finds opportunity to say to him tremblingly. "Oh, yes you have; don't deny it! You never want to do anything with me any more. You've always got plans of your own. I'm at home with the children, cooking and making beds—"

This goes on for a long time. It makes the man uncomfortable; he knows it isn't fair somehow, but he doesn't know what to do about it. It makes the woman even more miserable than she was, and, having manufactured the situation, she proceeds to enlarge upon it until she feels like an actual martyr because she is self-centered and jealous, and her husband happens to be a normal human being who has earned his freedom, earned his recreations and satisfactions, and is enjoying them.

The answer is that we women have to adjust ourselves to the changing conditions of our lives, once in about every ten years. We have to examine our own souls severely, in the light of truth and common sense, and ask ourselves if we are behaving like women or like fools. We have to put gold into the bank of life before we can begin to draw upon it. No use, at thirty-three, to long to be the bride of twenty-three again, or the girl of thirteen, or the toddling baby of three. We have to go on!

What is that gold? Well, to some of us it seems more precious than ever the younger coin did. It is the gold of a ripely developed character, in the years that are the very bloom of womanhood. It is the gold of a life that sings: sings over garden work or the writing of poetry; sings over picnics with the dear brown, long-legged children who are growing up so fast; sings in contact with other lives—a mother's, a sister's, a friend's, a neighbor's, and takes its part in helping them.

Any woman with the usual equipment of a child or two and a car and good neighbors, can become so busy that she will listen but abstractedly to her husband's planning; happy to be included when she is included, secretly a little grateful when she is left free for her own all-important activities.

Why admit to a man that you want more of his time and interest than it is natural for him to give you? Why have so little pride? Why acknowledge that your happiness depends upon someone else, that you are not equal to solving the problem that each one of us must eventually meet alone?

Residential Wiring for Today's Needs

With the rapid development of electrical equipment and appliances for home use, the term "electrical living" has come into common use. Today, electricity is truly a servant. It operates the air conditioning system, the heating unit, the cooling unit, supplies heat for the hot water heater, the kitchen range, numerous small heating appliances, operates the refrigerator, the dish washer, the garbage disposal unit and all laundry equipment, including washer, ironer and dryer.

Today's period in electrical history finds the development of electrical home appliances far ahead of home wiring. Modern equipment makes demand for current that present types of home wiring are inadequate to supply. In 1910 the usual connected load was only 3 KW while today the modern electrical home has a 30 KW connected load.

Galapagos Islands Were Discovered by Spanish

The Galapagos Islands were first discovered by a Spanish expedition, blown off its course from Panama to Peru and during the heyday of the Spanish main they served as rendezvous for pirates who preyed on the ships transporting the treasure of the Incas, and who between times did a bit of looting themselves in the rich cities along the west coast of South America. Tales of buried treasure on the islands have come down through the centuries and these would seem to be borne out by the finding of two caches of silver bars and pieces of eight there some years ago, says a writer in the New York Herald-Tribune.

Although named by the Spanish discoverers as the Archipelago de Colon, the islands have long been known by their popular appellation, Galapagos, the Spanish word for the great land tortoises which were found there in large numbers and which, until they recently became almost extinct, served as the principal food supply. The group consists of twelve principal islands from a few miles to fifty or sixty miles apart, of which Albemarle or Isabela—each island has an English and a Spanish name—is about the size of Long Island. Their combined area is about equal to that of the State of Delaware.

Several of them are without fresh water springs and on these the indigenous animal life supports itself solely on the vegetable kingdom which catches and holds the moisture from a short rainy season or from the occasional clouds which envelop the summits. The islands are exactly on the equator but lie in the path of a current from the Antarctic so that at times the air is quite chilly.

Pilgrimage of Gypsies, Blessing of the Horses

At Les Saintes Maries de la Mer, near Arles in southern France, there is held a semi-annual festival known as the Pilgrimage of the Gypsies and the Blessing of the Horses. To it come caravans of gypsies from all over Europe, along with tourists from all over the world. The festival serves to call attention to this race of widely known but little understood perpetual wanderers, writes Frederick Babcock in the Chicago Tribune.

In Europe these nomads belong to the horse-and-buggy age. On both continents they cling to their time worn way of life, complete freedom from all responsibilities and from being tied down in any way. About a million in number, they are extremely vague about their origin, when first recently defined research. Most experts are agreed that before the time of Alexander the Great, the gypsies lived in India. They were the same race as the Jats or Zots—hailing from the mouth of the Indus, in the western part of that country. The Sudras, as they were then called, were considered untouchables by the high caste Hindus who conquered India. Subsequently, Alexander, on his expedition to southeastern Persia, probably brought back large numbers of these untouchables, who must have made valuable slaves because of their knowledge of working iron, a new and rare art in those times.

Jacks-of-all-Trades

There is a mixed bag of Jacks: some good, some bad; some wise, some foolish; some respected, some reviled, but all true-born Englishmen, says a writer in Tit-Bits Magazine. There are Jack Spratt and Jack Straw; Jack Pool and Jack Brag; Jack-a-dandy and Jack-anapes; Jack-in-the-green and Jack-in-office; Jack Frost and Jack-tar; Jackass and Jackdaw; Jack-the-giant-killer and little Jack Horner; Jack-a-lanter and Jack-amend-all; cheap Jack and Jack-in-the-box. They eat Jack-pudding served with Jack-sauce; they put their money on the Jack at cards; they hear Jack-of-the-clockhouse strike the hours; they use a Jack-towel, and wear Jack-boots; to ward off Yellow Jack they drink deeply from Black Jack. And they live together in the House that Jack built—every man-Jack of them!

The Praying Mantids

The praying mantis is a peculiar looking insect and always attracts attention. Their name, however, belies their character, for instead of having their front legs folded in supplication, they are eagerly awaiting some hapless insect to come near enough that they may seize and devour it. They are very voracious and for this reason are beneficial, eating many harmful insects. The egg mass is shaped like a short-broad cornucopia, the eggs being protected by a brownish substance like dried foam.

Peculiarity of Owls

Owls see objects with both eyes at once. Their eyes are set fast in their sockets, which means that they have to turn their entire heads in the direction they want to see. Only walks around an owl, and the bird desires to watch its head will turn clear around with the utmost ease until it looks directly backward. If a person goes far, the owl will follow as far as possible, then turn its head so quickly that one does not notice it.

Early Breeds of Dogs

Among the twenty-four breeds of dogs that claim origin prior to the Christian era are: The Great Pyrenees and the Newfoundland, 1800 B. C.; the Cardigan Welsh corgi and the Pembroke Welsh corgi, 1300 B. C. and 1200 B. C. respectively; the samoyede, 1000 B. C.; the Japanese, the Mexican hairless, the Rottweiler, and the St. Bernard, 500 B. C.; and the beagle, the English foxhound, and the harrier, 400 B. C. Then some twenty-eight more breeds started prior to the sixteenth century A. D., which marked the start of modern development in pure bred dogs.—Chicago Tribune.

The Modoc Indians

A tribe of Indians called the Modocs was an Indian tribe formerly ranging about North Carolina. In 1872, after firing on the United States forces, they retreated to the neighboring lava beds, and there defended themselves till June, 1873. Their chief, Captain Jack, and three others were hanged.
