ception in the church parlors.

Rev. Barber began his ministry in

The Waterloo Project

By Frank H. Coburn
Acting Project Manager
National Park Service

Camp Architecture
The previous articles of this series
have told of the purposes of the Waterloo Project and of the features which determine the type of work to be done in any given area. The architecture of organized camps will be given special attention in this article.

The recent and increased interest in organized camps calls for careful study in the design of the buildings to be used. All buildings should be of such character as to harmonize with the surrounding landscape in every way possible. The ideal camp environment to be found in Michigan is being given particular attention by camp authorities in all parts of the country. The Waterloo Project, which is a part of the Recreational Demonstration Program of the National Park Service, plays a leading part in studying the styles of architecture
most adaptable to camps. The camps considered for the Waterloo Project will be of various designs which will allow a study of the type most appropriate for Michigan.

The use for which a camp is planned will determine to a great extent its final appearance. The two camps now being built on the project are for different purposes. The one at Mill Lake is primarily for recreational use by children while the one at Cassidy Lake is for a combination of recreational and educational activities for young men between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one. However, as explained last week, this difference does not change the general arrangement of camp buildings. Each camp will consist primarily of sleeping quarters and recreational areas supplemented by the necessary administrative and service facilities. A camp of an educational nature such as is planned at Cassidy Lake requires, in addition to the recreational equipment, the construction of such buildings as a library, a craft shop for vocational training, and a building containing special provisions for instructors.

A recreational camp is generally planned for summer use only, although a few buildings will be equipped with heating plants for week-end
use during the winter. An educational camp must be so built as to be usable the year round, and this calls for the installation of heating equip-

The Local Tax Problem

The taxing of vacant factory property has long been an issue before local administrative bodies. Delinquent taxes have accumulated over a period of years to where they exceed the valuation of the property, thereby prohibiting its sale and the establisment of industries in sites ideally located in Chelsea.

At the present time a group of Detroit business men wish to purchase the property known as the Foundry building for the establishment of a plant which will employ considerable local labor. They will come into Chelsea in preference to other locations if something will be done to clear away
the taxes.

The local units, more definitely the Village Council, the School Board and the Township Board, have found a way to legally overcome this obstacle.
It is simply a method whereby each of these units will pay into the County
Treasurer's office the amount of taxes due them, and receiving back the same money in return to their individual treasuries. It is purely a matter of bookkeeping which is necessitated to clear the records at Ann Arbor. All the remaining taxes which are due aside from those to the local bodies will be paid by the purchasers
before any of the local units are required to make payment.

Petitions which were circulated as a means of ascertaining the attitude of local business men prove beyond a doubt that they are wholeheartedly in favor of this method of establishing an industry in Chelsea. Many benefits will be derived, but most important, it will give employment to local labor and reduce the welfare pension problem. Secondly, it will again put property on the active tax roll which has been dormant for a period of eleven years and from which all income or any prospect of income has been lost.

By lifting these taxes it will be like the veritable lifting of a quarantine
and allow Chelsea the full enjoyment of her industrial facilities.

Kiwanis Club Favors Health Department

At the last Kiwanis club meeting, held Monday evening, E. W. Eaton told of the aid being given numerous Michigan counties for public health purposes. Federal funds in the amount of $22,000.00 have been allotted this year in addition to large sums contributed by foundations interested in organized public health programs.
Washtenaw county has not received any of the Federal funds because it has not a properly organized health department.

In order to get the County Board of Supervisors to consider the advantage of establishing an organized health department the Kiwanis club
passed the following resolution:

Whereas, the public health of the community, particularly in relation to communicable diseases, can be controlled to a considerable extent by the application of sound public health measures; and,

Whereas, experienced personnel is becoming increasingly necessary to carry out public health measures;

and,

Whereas, federal, state and other funds can be obtained for public health activities in the county; now, therefore,

Be It Resolved that the Washtenaw County Board of Supervisors be requested at its April, 1937 session to appoint a committee for the purpose of studying the public health needs of the county, and to investigate the possibility of establishing a county health department; and, further, that the committee be instructed to report its findings at the June session of the Board.

Children in County Will Be Immunized

An immunization program for this county has been prepared by Pearl M.
Hais, county nurse, for the week beginning April 12. To appreciate the importance of immunization against the diseases of diphtheria and small-pox, it is necessary only to look over the records of this state regarding the number of deaths due to these diseases. In a ten year period the deaths from diphtheria decreased from 558 to 58, and from smallpox
from 22 to none.

There are still many children in Washtenaw county who have not been protected against either of these dreaded diseases; enough of them to make possible an epidemic should either disease be allowed to get a start here. Children who showed positive reactions to the Schick test last year should be given toxoid this year.
Children who had toxoid injected at least six months ago should have a Schick test now. Children six months old and older who have never been protected against diphtheria should have toxoid. Children over fifteen years of age will be given a Schick test before toxoid. Vaccinations will be given to all children who were never vaccinated against smallpox.

Clinics are being held as in previous years for parents who cannot pay a doctor's fee, and for children served at the clinic at a fee of 25c is charged for each vaccination, inoculation and Schick test, which goes to the doctors who give so generously of their time.
However, no child was ever turned away because he did not have the money.

Clinics will be held at 9 a. m., as follows:

- April 12—Saline school.
- April 13—Milan school.
- April 14—Manchester school.
- April 15—Chelsea school.
- April 16—Dexter school.
- April 17—Ann Arbor city hall laboratory, 9 a. m. to 10:30 a. m.

an over heated stove.

OUR NEIGHBORS

HOLLY—Wm. E. Canfield has sold his farm of 74 acres at Taylor Lake, including the log cabin, to Gordon Stirling of Detroit. Mr. Canfield had made his farm property one of the beauty spots of the district, specializing in the raising of many varieties of choice flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Canfield are well known in this community. This is one of the largest real estate transactions that has been made in recent years in this vicinity. J. D. Tobin, local real estate dealer, made the sale. Herald. Mr. and Mrs. Canfield were former Chelsea residents.

WAYNE—A wire from Philadelphia informed the family of Jack Enot early this week that the latter was in the Pennsylvania city in a state bordering on nervous collapse as the result of being forced to drive a stranger, at the point of a gun from Dearborn to Philadelphia. A sister, Ruth, left immediately for Pennsylvania to accompany her brother home. According to available information young Enot was driving to Detroit last Saturday night when at Telegraph Road a man forced his way into the car, flourished a gun and compelled Enot to drive where directed.—County Review.

HOWELL—A doe weighing about 100 pounds was found caught in the fence on the John Merrill farm in Deerfield township, Monday, by Mr. Merrill. The animal was dead but the body was still warm. The county conservation officer, H. W. Barrow, was called and brought the deer to the Walworth market where it was dressed and will be donated to deserving families by the department. The deer was undoubtedly one of the large herd on the deer refuge in that township.—Republican-Press.

JERUSALEM SCHOOL NEWS

The school month of March closed for the Jerusalem school on Thursday, March 25. There was no school Good Friday. The percentage of attendance for the month was 90.4. Those neither absent nor tardy during the month were: Arlene and Wilma Koenigter, Robert and Doris Trinkle, June and Lois Schlosser, Arthur Schiller, Joyce Eisenman. We did not have school March 5, because the teacher attended a teachers' meeting at Ypsilanti.

We all got some candy from our teacher for Easter. The teacher also received gifts and cards from the pupils.

The second grade have made several interesting pictures for seatwork in which they followed directions well. They made a book which contains spring pictures. They have a booklet made which has animals in it that are in the zoo. The book is named "Going to the Zoo." They copied the stories about the picture below it and read them. The fourth grade have been reading stories in an extra seatwork book. The stories are about nature. The fifth grade also have been reading stories in an extra seatwork book. Then they answer questions about it. This is preparing for the spring reading test.

We have been adding pictures to our History scrapbook. Everyone is interested and contributes pictures and clippings.

The fourth grade have just finished about Switzerland in their Geography. The fifth grade are tracing and coloring pictures about the United States for their Geography notebook. They are reviewing the U. S. The seventh grade are studying Australia.

For health work the seventh grade have made two good plays, one about colds, the other about skin diseases. The rest of the grades looked for appropriate pictures and wrote imaginative stories about them for health. They have written poems also. We have added plays, pictures, poems and stories to our health scrap book. We will study about smallpox and diphtheria now in preparation for the clinic to be held in Chelsea, April 15.

We have made a bird chart and a wild flower chart. On the bird chart we have listed several birds we have seen. The second grade are reading nature stories. They have drawn pictures of birds and other animals and learned their habits. We have all studied birds. We have learned many interesting things from our science books.

The beginners illustrated a farm in the sand box in connection with their reading. The second grade put scenes of Holland in the sand box. The second grade have also written stories about Holland. The 4th and 5th grade made good poems about Holland. The seventh grade made a new cover for the Holland book. Many children found pictures. All those things were added to the book, which we add to every year.

For art we made many Easter cards, posters, and booklets. We made greeting cards for our parents. We have drawn and colored birds and other pictures pertaining to nature study.

We know all of our festival songs and our dances from memory and have attended the first rehearsal at Chelsea on March 22. Those who expect to do the dance "Oxmanden" and sing are: Joyce Hoffman, Jane and Lois Schlosser and Arlene Koenigter, and "The Thread Follows the Needle," Wilma Koenigter. We all enjoyed it very much. We also are learning more records every week. We have our music scrapbook nearly complete. We are finding many interesting things.

We have a new Winston simplified dictionary. We find it easy to look up words in it. We have a new map of Michigan on the bulletin board.—Contributed by 4th, 5th, 7th grades.

BEGINNING THE EASTER NEW YEAR

I sometimes put my thoughts in verse And try to have them rhyme; For poetry's not my line, But after all, if I can get Attention in this way—

And rattle down a truth I find, That comes no other way, I'll try and do the best I can, Orthography may fail,

But truth, though on the scaffold now, Will harbor with full sail. All things whatever you would wish That man should do by you, Your praiseworthy endeavor make To do by others too.

If you dispense the vinegar, The wormwood, and the gall, The seed you sow will be the crop, You'll gather in the Fall.

And brother—sister, jot this down— Down in your heart to stay: In love—in pity—kindly thought, This is the Easter way.

—Arthur Carlton.

Istanbul, Turkish City,

Founded by Constantine

Two years after Constantine founded the city once called Constantinople, he made it the seat of the Roman Empire in the east and officially named it New Rome to indicate its political position. But it was popularly called Constantinople to perpetuate the fame of its founder. After the capture of the city in 1453 by the Turks it became the capital of the Ottoman empire. Constantinople is really a collection of towns and villages lying on both sides of the Golden Horn and along the Bosphorus. There are four general sections, however, consisting of Eyup, Istanbul (the Greek section south of the Horn on the site of old Byzantium), Galata (the chief business center and seaport on the Horn) and Scutari.

Foreigners have always called the entire city Constantinople, while the Turks called it Istanbul, a name which outsiders applied to the typically Turkish section, which is bounded on the west by the Sea of Marmora, on the east by the Golden Horn, and on the south by the ancient city walls. The name Istanbul is the Turkish form of Constantinople. It is derived from the Greek and literally means "into the city." It is pronounced E-stan-bul, the first and last syllables accented, the heavy accent on the last syllable.

ment in each building. All buildings used for habitation are insulated against extremes of temperature with fire resistant wall board.

The sleeping cabins are designed and equipped to house from four to eight persons, each including a counselor or instructor. Ample ventilation and light must be provided. A combination washhouse and latrine, generally with showers, is built to serve each separate group of cabins. These have hot and cold water, flush water closets, wash troughs, and showers designed to meet the needs of the particular age group using the camp. Adjacent to each cabin group in the recreational camps is a small lodge to be used for a general meeting place for the campers. of that group. This unit lodge will include an outdoor sheltered kitchen for use by week-end or overnight campers.

The administrative group comprises the following buildings: a kitchen and dining hall of sufficient size to serve all persons in the camp; an infirmary for first aid treatment and temporary hospitalization; a combination laundry, latrine, washhouse, and shower room; a boathouse near the shore for the storage and repair of water craft; a warehouse for the storage of camp food and supplies; supervisors' quarters where the caretaker or camp supervisor may live and where camp visitors may be entertained; an office for the handling of camp business; sleeping quarters for the facilitating personnel such as cooks, etc.; and a garage for official cars.

When completed the exterior of the buildings will present a rustic appearance. This effect will be obtained by the use of rough sawn boards on the side walls and hand split cedar shakes on the roofs. In many cases split field stone found on the project is used for chimneys and fireplaces. The camps are being designed to be as inconspicuous as possible in order to match the natural beauty which is being redeveloped throughout the entire area.

The next article will discuss the application of engineering to the work being done on the project.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—My wife has been nursing a grouch for nearly a month. What should I do?

Ans.—You might try a doctor and see if you will get over it!

Ques.—When a new Congress meets who calls the House of Representatives to order?

Ans.—The old clerk legally continues in office until his successor is elected. He therefore calls the new House to order and presides as clerk until the Speaker and other officers are elected.

Ques.—Does the guinea fowl belong to the chicken family? What country are they native to?

Ans.—The guinea fowl belongs to the turkey family. They are native to West Africa in a wild state. They were brought to the West Indies where they ran wild; but later were domesticated. It was here they got the name of guinea. They may now be found in all parts of the United States, where they are kept partly because of their inclination to defend the common barnyard fowls against their enemies.

Ques.—Should a person use "despicable" or "despicable"? Thank you.

Ans.—Both words are correct when referring to something as deserving of contempt. However, "despicable" may be used in a broader sense—that is, when referring to something low, base or worthless.

Ques.—Does the liquor business produce revenue of any consequence to the United States?

Ans.—Yes. Uncle Sam gets about $350,000,000 in liquor and beer taxes.

Ques.—Can you tell me what is the difference between capital and durable goods, if any?

Ans.—There is a distinction between the two, but not very great. Capital goods are usually such things as office buildings, factories, apartment houses or machinery for production, etc. Durable goods are automobiles, locomotives, refrigerators, furnaces, steel rails, ships, airplanes, etc.

Ques.—Most of my aluminum ware have holes. Can they be soldered?

Ans.—No. Aluminum cannot be soldered. Drive a nail into a block of wood or something stationary and solid. Then place the hole directly over the head of the nail and then tap lightly with a hammer until the hole is closed. This usually does the trick but may not work so well if the hole is too big to close in the process.

Ques.—How did Alexander Hamilton die?

Ans.—Political differences with Aaron Burr precipitated a duel with the latter and took place on July 11, 1804. Hamilton died the following day from the effects of the wound he received.

Ques.—What is a "gnu"?

Ans.—A "gnu" is a kind of antelope found in small herds in South Africa. They belong to the ruminating animals. The hind quarters and tail resemble a horse. The flesh is edible and considered a delicacy. They can be domesticated if caught young.

Ques.—Why is a pistol sometimes referred to as a "gat"? Can you answer me that?

Ans.—About 1800 Richard Jordan Gatling invented the revolving battery gun possible to fire 1,200 shots per minute. It was adopted by the United States in 1866 and was known as the "Gatling gun." Now any of the rapid firing guns is referred to as a "gat," a short form of Gatling.

Ques.—I would like to ask you if Faneuil hall in Boston is still in existence and why it was called by that name?

Ans.—Faneuil hall in Boston was built by Peter Faneuil in 1742. The building was destroyed by fire in 1761 but rebuilt by public taxation in 1763 and then used as a theater in 1775. The Sons of Liberty used it as their meeting place. It was remodeled in 1805 and one story added, but retained its name as Faneuil hall in honor of the original builder, Peter Faneuil. The hall is affectionately called the "Cradle of Liberty."

Ques.—Where is the River Rye?

Ans.—It is a small stream in the northern part of England.

4-H Clubs Will Aid State in Conservation

If many of the 40,000 boys and girls enrolled in 1937 4-H club work in Michigan have their will, the state is to get a substantial contribution this year in its effort to conserve and increase natural resources and wild life.

As a new project in this type of work the boys and girls in clubs in 83 counties are to be enrolled in 4-H ranger stations, fire prevention, soil conservation and 4-H pheasant propagation projects. The program is not entirely new but is greatly expanded this year, says A. G. Kettunen, state club leader, and Michigan will be one of 25 states conducting such work.

Sixty activities in conservation also are available to club members enrolled primarily in other 4-H club projects.

The conservation projects have been prepared with the aid of the Michigan State Department of Conservation, with the specific aid of C. A. Paquin and D. M. Rochester, P. A. Herbert and W. Ira Bull of the forestry department of Michigan State College are supervising some of the work.

In the forest fire study, T. E. Daw of the state department of conservation has assisted in outlining suitable club work.

Unpolluted water and green forests are necessary first to increase or even retain Michigan's supply of fish and game. P. J. Hoffmaster, state director of conservation, offers the problem as a challenge to the rural youth of the state. Club agents, county agricultural agents and service clubs are cooperating in the movement.

In the second annual 4-H conservation camp to be held Sept. 18 to 17, probably at the Pigeon River forestry headquarters near Vanderbilt, some of the work in forestry clubs is to be summarized.

On school lands a ranger club can plant as many as 2,500 seedlings supplied from state forest nurseries. Soil conservation will obtain the cooperation of James Porter, college soils specialist, and of E. C. Sackrider and G. A. Thorpe, Benton Harbor, soils conservation service. Pheasant propagation will include construction of coops and pens, and hatching, brooding and providing feed. Fire prevention studies will include field work in studying danger of fire, fire fighting and the mapping of burned over areas.

Telephone Co. to Give Time-of-Day Service

Telephone time-of-day service, which has been supplied here and in Detroit and Grand Rapids by the Michigan Bell Telephone Company for many years, is to be extended to all of the company's exchanges throughout Michigan on April 10, according to C. S. Schaefer, manager in this area for the company.

Of late years, in the greater number of the cities and towns of the state, there has been no place people could call to ascertain the time, and officials of the Michigan Bell Company believe that extension of the service throughout its territory will be an appreciated addition to the service the company supplies.

Extension of time service to all its exchanges is one of the many things the Michigan Bell Company has been doing for the purpose of broadening and improving telephone service in the interests of the public, Mr. Schaefer states.

Engineers of the Michigan Bell Company anticipate there will be a daily average of upwards of 130,000 calls for the time-of-day after the state-wide inauguration of the service. In Detroit an average of 26,000 time calls is reported daily, with 14,000 daily in Grand Rapids. It has been found that the busiest hour for time calls is between seven and eight o'clock in the morning, and that that hour Monday morning usually is the very heaviest of the week.

Eleven o'clock until noon appears to be the second busiest hour of the day, perhaps because of many folks making lunch and other noon appointments.

Another busy period is that from around four until 5:30, when many people begin thinking about getting home or not getting home to dinner, or about getting dinner ready for the homecomers.

And so, beginning with April 10, whoever in any Michigan Bell Telephone exchange has access to a telephone, whether on farm or in city, in mansion or hotel—rich man or poor, child or adult, or what-not—will be able to obtain the time-of-day merely by calling "Central." For the paid "clockwatchers" of the Michigan Bell Company will be ready and willing, every second of the day and every day of the year, to announce the time, upon request, supplying a dependable time service that most of Michigan's cities long have been without.

Will Improve Hunting Conditions in This Area

Lansing—Plans to improve hunting conditions in the farm-game area of Michigan are now being completed and within a month many of them will be placed in operation, Harry D. Ruhl, chief of the Game Division of the department of conservation announced this week.

Ruhl's announcement followed recent action of the Conservation Commission which appropriated $50,000 from the game protection fund to improve small game hunting.

In outlining the department's plans to better hunting conditions and to improve relations between sportsmen and farmers, Ruhl said, that the following constituted the general objectives of the program:

1. Organization of all state-sponsored farm-game improvement projects into a single comprehensive program.

2. Promotion of more active cooperation between landowners, sportsmen and other agencies interested in farm game problems. Increased cooperation with Williamston Plan cooperative hunting exchanges where such are deemed desirable.

3. Expansion of department of conservation services to advise and assist groups and individual landowners interested in maintaining or increasing farm game, fur bearers or desirable wildlife species.

4. Exploration, testing and application of new methods of servicing farm wildlife and those who use or enjoy its presence.

5. Employment of additional men necessary to carry on properly the expanded farm-game program.

In announcing this program, the commission stated that it recognizes the necessity for a program designed to improve conditions in the intensively-hunted farm-game areas of southern Michigan where hunting pressure seems to increase annually.

The commission also stated its believe that ultimate improvement of hunting conditions in predominantly agricultural areas lies in a greater degree of cooperation between sportsmen, landowners and various public agencies concerned with agriculture and recreation.

The program will be administered by the game division of the department of conservation and the staff will be augmented immediately to handle the increased work.

The services of the farm-game management staff will be available to any interested public or private agency, such as landowners, sportsmen's groups, county agents, Smith-Hughes teachers, 4-H club leaders, the National Youth Administration, State Grange, women's clubs and educational institutions.

In commenting on the new program Harry D. Ruhl, chief of the game division, stated that the operations of the state game farm, the establishment and operation of wildlife sanctuaries and farmer-hunter cooperative hunting areas, as well as the various game demonstrations and investigations already under way, are all aimed toward the improvement of hunting conditions in southern Michigan.

"The $50,000 appropriation makes it possible to expand this program so as better to meet present-day needs and improve small-game hunting conditions in lower Michigan," Ruhl said.

Collectivism

Collectivism is a theory of economic and social organization in which all productive capital would belong to the community, and the share of each individual would be determined by the value or social utility of his contribution to the social income. Collectivism is practically synonymous with the generally accepted concept of socialism.

Takes Gasoline From Water
Gasoline can be removed from water by pouring the mixture into a 200-mesh sieve. Owing to the difference in surface tension, the gasoline passes through while the water is retained.

Each month we have an electrical and this month a water bill due. If you owe more than the present month you must pay all of the present bill and 10% of back bill by the 20th of this month to get your 15% discount!

Reduce the Electric Bill

by Paying on or Before That Date

Electrical current in a wire behaves the same way water does in a garden hose. A short hose conveys water to the nozzle with the pressure practically undiminished. Lengthening the hose reduces the pressure, due to friction in the hose. Adding extra outlets or nozzles reduces the pressure at all the nozzles, but especially at the ones farthest away. A wire too small is like a pipe too small. Current, like the water, only gets through with great effort, and your lights get dim!

Petrified Forests
Petrified forests are found all over the world. Most of the trees were blown down by the wind or shaken down by an earthquake before being buried and fossilized. Some, however, have been found standing with their roots in bedrock. In Yellowstone National Park petrified trees rear gaunt, limbless trunks 20 to 40 feet in the air. One of the largest is 20 feet in diameter. At one place in the park a petrified forest is imposed upon another to the depth of 2,000 feet.

Haiti, Means "High Land"
The island of Haiti was so called by the natives because the word means "high land."

Jefferson Letter in Museum
A letter written by Thomas Jefferson, third President of the United States, when he was eighty years old, is displayed in the Museum of the City of New York. In the same collection is an eight-page letter written by Abigail Adams in London in 1786, when she was there with her husband, President John Adams. At that time he was minister to England.

Definitions of "Dollars"
Joe Tunkins says one reason finance is so hard to understand is that the word "dollars" may have millions of definitions, ranging from ham and eggs to the equipment of an army.

Dig Up Ancient History
Workmen digging a sewer in a suburb of Auckland, New Zealand, brought to light the unwritten history of a region whose written annals date back less than 200 years. They found the trunk of a kauri pine two feet in diameter. Scientists think that many centuries ago the country around Auckland was heavily wooded and that the forest was buried by lava and ashes from nearby volcanic cones. The craters have been grass-covered for ages.

Rhodesian Man
The name Rhodesian man is applied to men whose existence is inferred from a skeleton unearthed at Broken Hill mine, Northern Rhodesia, in 1921. These men are believed to have been contemporary with Neanderthal man, but with somewhat smaller brain capacity. The individual found was 5 feet 10 inches in height. Many of its facial features were gorilla-like, but its teeth were distinctively human.

"Good-Bye, Daddy"
Lawrence Hawthorne

Seems like Daddy never is at home!
He goes to his office every day.
An' he jus' gets back at dinner-time.
Then he hastes hurry right away!
Says he hastes work again tonight.
Or he's got a meetin' at the club.
Or his bowlin' team has got a game.
An' the captain says he'll hafta sub.

Even if he plans t' stay right here—
Even then, he hasn't got a chance!
Mother makes 'im take 'er to a show.
Or somebuddy else's house t' dance.
Or they've been invited to a feed.
Or the Bridge Club has a party due.
Daddy fusses lots an' tries t' pike,
But he hastes go—an' like it, too!

I think Daddy wants t' be with me!
I jus' bet he'd rather play my games.
Than t' get dressed-up most every night.
An' be meetin' folks with funny names!
I jus' bet, if he could have his way,
He'd be home a lot more than he is—
But it looks like everybuddy's plans Work out best when they are spoilt by his.

Boy Scout News

Local Scouts have been requested to file their applications for attendance at Scout camp at Newkirk Reservation, near Dexter, as early as possible in order that ample provision may be made for them.

The camp is operated not only for the benefit of the individual Scouts, but as a service to every patrol and troop in the two-county council, according to Ernest M. Chapelle, chairman of the camping committee.

"The Scout camp is one of the significant features provided by our council," Scout Executive Walter MacPeck said yesterday. "A Scout often has a chance of spending more actual hours in Scouting experiences in a ten-day or two-week period in camp than he spends all during the rest of the year at home. Camp thus becomes a concentrated Scout experience."

A staff of ten leaders under the direction of Scout Executive MacPeck will operate the camp. Certified Red Cross life savers will have charge of the watercraft activities and a trained, experienced chef will command the kitchen.

Each Wednesday evening and Sunday will be visitors' days. A board of review will be held each Friday afternoon and a Court of Honor each Friday evening. Scouts not attending the camp will be able to participate in these and other events on the camp program.

After spending half the night celebrating a birthday party, two young men left in separate cars for home. They drove different routes but as they lived in the same neighborhood, they eventually had to cross the route somewhere. It so happened that while driving at a reckless rate of speed, they collided at one of the intersections. Both of them got out and were about to engage in a heated argument about driving while drunk when suddenly they recognized one another.

This driving while under the influence of liquor is a subject that comes up frequently in safety discussions and to me there is only one sound piece of advice to eliminate this type of accident. Here it is: If you must drink, don't drive. If you must drive, don't drink.

Naming Indian Children
The Indian children were not named, as were white children—that is, by their parents—but their cognomens were chosen by a council of squaws. At the annual green corn festival all the papooses born within the year were named, the chief announcing the names during the festivities. Although new names could be tacked on, the original name could not be changed.

Ananias

Ananias was a follower of the apostles and a member of the first Christian community of Jerusalem.

The Bible says that these early men "sold a piece of land and conspired with his wife Sapphira to keep back part of the price instead of contributing it all to the common fund and taking an equal chance with the others. For their falsehood and hypocrisy both were miraculously punished by Peter with sudden death."

WOMEN WHO POISON THEMSELVES

Every time he goes out of the house she calls after him spitefully: "All right, go to your Jane!"

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

IF A bottle of slow poison stood in the medicine closet of her home, no woman would go there hourly and take a spoonful of it.

But there is another kind of poison, more dreadful in its effects, that thousands of women keep on tap and take regularly. It is the poison called jealousy. And jealousy and insanity are first cousins.

One woman I knew was not particularly fond of her husband until another woman wanted him. Then she writhed, whispered, loathed with all the symptoms of a disordered mind. She set traps for him.

She tried to bribe his office nurse to spy on him, she bored every one she knew with hysterical outbursts of rage. When the other woman was mentioned she became actually sinister; she knew it for a fact that Marian cheated at cards, she knew it for a fact that Marian wasn't straight, she knew everything disagreeable that could be imagined about Marian. Some one happened to speak of Marian's child.

"Ha, she's defective, you know!" said the discarded wife, with a laugh. "The poor little thing! I never heard of her!" The husband was mentioned. "I hear John's wearing corsets and having his face lifted," the jealous wife screamed rather than said, with peals of laughter.

And this was a quiet, apparently pleasant woman, who never before had shown any signs of the volcano that was ready to burst forth at the first touch of jealousy.

In the old days, when home and church influences took care of children's morals, girls and jealousy is rather a feminine characteristic—girls grew up conscious that it was a pitfall, and determined to fight it.

"Look out, my girls," writes the father in "Little Women," from a Civil War camp, "I want each one of you to fight her bosom enemy."

It's an old-fashioned phrase; our children wouldn't know what we were talking about if we reminded them to fight their bosom enemies; no one ever has told them that with in each one of us lie the powers that can destroy our very souls.

Sex jealousy is perhaps the most poignantly painful and destructive of all; it is the only sort of jealousy men ever seem to feel. It is the tragedy of its agonies that it destroys in those who give away to it all natural attractiveness.

It is curable. A jealous woman may emerge from this fiery trial all the stronger and finer for it, but very few mothers seriously analyze their children's characters in these days, and try to strengthen what is good in them, and weed out what is bad, so that many wives come to the test completely unfitted for what is a real spiritual crisis.

Ruth, for example, is thirty-three. She was married nine years ago and has two boys, both in school. She was always a trifle heavy, and she has settled now into something like stockiness; she was always somewhat unimaginative, and she is managing this affair with a complete lack of imagination.

Walter has fallen in love with the woman in his office, Jane Deane. Jane is twenty-eight, divorced, and extremely plain at first view. But hers is one of those faces that presently seem almost beautiful, in spite of a homely big mouth, prominent teeth, straight dark hair, and low skin. Jane has magnificent gray black-lashed eyes, a lovely voice, and a delightful disposition.

Ruth discovered the affair six months ago; she immediately collapsed. She put up no fight. She lay for days weeping on her bed; her face grew dark with anger and swollen with tears; she would not come to meals. To her little boys she said between sobs that Daddy didn't love them any more; he was in love with Mrs. Deane; he was going away to leave them. Once an extremely pretty woman, Ruth lost all semblance of good looks; she stopped going; she went nowhere; she put on seventeen pounds.

She stubbornly refuses Walter a divorce, and she continues to make his life wretched at home. Every time he goes out of the house she calls after him spitefully: "All right, go to your Jane!" In short, she has taken the path best calculated to wreck what might be salvaged in their marriage, and to make Walter dislike her.

Now, this situation of a husband—perhaps a good and faithful husband, being strongly attracted to another woman—is one that many married women have had to face in the past thirty years, and one that will recur from time to time in the years to come. Society doesn't censure him now as once it did, and the law, instead of holding him firmly to his marriage vows, amiably condones divorce. A few weeks in an amusing and pleasant western city and he is free; responsible any more for the woman and children by whom he has been loved as husband and father for so many years.

Whatever the woman does under the circumstances, she loses. This is one of the times when she can't win. If she holds him he is restless and resentful. If she lets him go her life is too often ruined by the bitterness, the disillusionment, the loneliness, the general disturbance of the whole current of her days.

Our social scheme today permits the man to feel himself acting quite honorably when he leaves the woman of whom he is tired and goes to the new love; and his discarded wife is only setting herself against the current when she protests.

But all the same she doesn't have to let him go if she doesn't want to. Nine times out of ten the smarter thing, the thing that makes for happiness in the end, is NOT to let him go. Ruth may know in her heart that Walter is making a fool of himself; that what he feels for Jane won't last; that Jane couldn't make him a good wife, or any man a good wife.

Ruth's course, if she wants to handle the whole thing intelligently, is to make home pleasanter than ever; to be always serene and patient; to bide her time. Her course is to make herself charming; not for Walter, for he won't see her at all for awhile, but on general principles. Her course is to keep herself busy, and work inside the house and out that interests her; that lifts her a little bit above the narrow circle of home. Ruth attracted Walter once against all comers; the most sacred hours of life are those associated with her; whether he marries Jane or doesn't the hour is going to come when he sees Ruth in the old light.

And then in a few years we have the very ordinary spectacle of a husband pretending that his passion for Jane was just warm friendship, forgetting completely that he asked Ruth to set him free, restored to the home circle and to his wife's affections.

But the wife has to get rid of the last shred of jealousy before she can succeed in this sort of campaign. She has to see the other woman's viewpoint to realize that all of us, all our lives long, are getting humiliating jolts and shocks; to say to herself that what happens to so many other women may well happen to her. She has to abandon all hope of recriminations and reproaches, until the heat of the affair has long died away, and treat it as she would a fever. Such a wife can be reasonably sure of a successful ending; and what else matters? And when the skies are clear again she will have to refrain from triumph; this defection in her husband is no more serious than her own defects as a wife; if he has failed her signally in one way, she has failed him in a score of others. She has kept his life dull when it might have been exciting; she has slumped into disorder and inefficiency when the other woman has been always fresh and attractive.

Not that it is always Ruth's fault; this trial comes to even the most efficient, capable and loving of wives. Propinquity or chance will drag a man's affections from their legitimate anchor as long as men are men, as long as the other woman is the other woman. The law that sends a fatal germ into one mouth and spares a thousand others, that takes away one woman's only child while leaving another woman a safe and happy nursery of half a dozen children, that gives one little sister curly hair and another a talent for the violin, that burns one house and leaves its fellow standing, operates in this matter, too. Your husband may be one of the men who simply isn't going to be faithful; that may be your slice of the trouble of life.

Don't try to dodge it when it comes. Face it as you would sickness, poverty, war, with spirit and courage. Remember in the matter of your husband's affection, no woman takes anything away from you. You lost it before she found it. Only honesty and sweetness and sheer fineness of character can get it back.

The Newfoundland Dog
Early records show the Newfoundland dog was once classified as a spaniel, suggesting that they may have originated in Spain. Also there are some data giving the middle of the eighteenth century as about the time they were imported in England. But the real credit for their development belongs to Newfoundland, who pays tribute to her favorite by using its photograph on her postage stamps.

Skunks of Bear Family
Skunks are members of the bear family. Except for their smell, they have practically no other defense against natural enemies. They make a stand only in the last extremity. Skunk farms exist in this country and England. Unscrupulous dealers sometimes sell the pelts as sable or black fox. The skunk destroys more harmful insects than all other mammals together.

The Wake

The custom of keeping watch over a corpse or holding a funeral watch is observed as a feast held on the occasion of a death. The neighbors of the deceased assemble, and spend the night in the room with the corpse, chatting and telling stories. The conversation on such occasions naturally turns to a large extent to the virtues of the departed. Among the lower classes, wakes are still very prevalent; beggars have their own wakes. A wake is quite an expensive ceremony to a poor, struggling workman or tradesman, but he feels he would lose caste without holding it.—Spectator (November 30, 1889).

Variety of Names Given to the Popular Ladybird

In Spain the name "St. Anthony's little pig" is given to the ladybird, that brightly colored and spotted little beetle loved by children all over the world. People of all ages everywhere consider it a sign of good luck for a ladybird to settle on their hands or clothes, and they take care not to disturb it until it flies away of its own accord.

The affection felt for the ladybird is shown by the numerous pet names by which it is known in various countries: "St. Michael's little chicken," in Piedmont; "Lucia," short for Santa Lucia, in Italy generally; "Little Animal of our Lord," in Holland; "Cushcow" or "Lady-cow," in Yorkshire.

And in nearly every country the ladybird's name is connected with religion, states a writer in Pearson's Weekly. The English "lady" stands for Our Lady; the French name is "Bete a Bon Dieu"; Spain, Russia and Bulgaria all talk of "God's cow," and the Serbians of "God's sheep."

These are a few of the colloquial names given to one of the 2,000 species of the ladybird. In England alone, there are over forty kinds of ladybirds that feed on other insects and their grubs. They possess most un ladylike appetites and they eat huge quantities of green-fly and insects which prey on fruits, flowers and trees - particularly fir, pines and junipers. One species of ladybird, for instance, devours scale insects and so protects apple trees and ash.

Owls Lure Songsters

In Italy it is the practice of professional bird snarers to carry owls with them during their catching operations. The owls are especially trained and are said to attract the songbirds by their presence.

Center of Earth Is Not Molten, Scientist Says In spite of its terrifically high temperature (more than 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit) the middle of the earth is not molten, as men once thought it was. It is prevented from melting because of the tremendous pressure, which at the center amounts to the unimaginable figure of 47 million pounds per square inch. The earth is made up of three concentric parts, like a baseball, according to a writer in the Kansas City Star's Science Service. At the center, corresponding to the rubber core of the baseball, is a core having the density of iron and probably actually composed of iron or iron-nickel. This enormous mass of metal is plastic rather than rigid, and it is non-magnetic, so that it has no influence on terrestrial magnetic fields. Next, in position comparable to the baseball's string winding, is an intermediate layer composed mainly of magnesium and silica in a chemical combination known to petrologists as olivine rock. Although this rock makes up the bulk of the planet's substance, very little of it is found at the surface. Finally, there is a relatively thin outer layer or crust, corresponding to the horseshoe cover on the ball. This crust is itself double, consisting mainly of granite on the outside, underlaid with basalt.

Brain Waves It is a standing joke to call a flash of inspiration a brain wave. But, science tells us, brain waves are no joke—but a fact. Actually we get all our ideas through electrical waves produced in the brain. The size of the brain has nothing to do with the production of brain waves, and, strangely enough, these waves are most frequent when we are sitting down with our eyes closed. The same applies to animals, according to a writer in Pearson's "London Weekly." The ordinary household tabby, when lazing in front of the fire, is a small power house of brain waves, which radiate at a frequency of about ten per second. Heavy thinking, in a human being, will stop brain waves automatically, and opening the eyes has the same effect, because the action of the large optic nerve absorbs the electricity that would otherwise cause brain waves. In the case of cats, rabbits and monkeys, movement is the main cause of cutting off this mysterious radiation.

Male, Female Reindeer Antlers Reindeer are the only deer of which both sexes bear antlers. Stags that have shed their antlers fight with hoots and teeth.
