Village Election Will Be Held On Monday

With only one ticket in the field, that of the Independent party, the annual village election will be held next Monday, March 14. The polls will be open from 7 o'clock a. m. to 6 o'clock p. m.

Candidates for the various offices are as follows:

President—Roy Harris.
Clerk—James J. Munro.
Treasurer—Milton J. Baxter.
Trustees for two years—Wilbur M. Hinderer, Jay S. Tuttle, and Albert E. Winans.
Assessor—Edwin Keusch.

Detailed financial statements, showing receipts and expenditures for the past year of the village and the Chelsea Electric and Water Department, will be found on other pages of this issue of The Standard.

The proposition of maintaining a free public library will be submitted to the voters at the Monday election, with the provision that if the measure carries, a tax of not to exceed one-half mill may be levied to support the library.

Last year in the State Legislature a bill was passed providing permanent State aid for libraries. This money can only be given to communities where a large local appropriation is made for public library service.

As things have been in the past the local library would have been ineligible for State aid. If the measure providing for maintenance of a public library passes next Monday this village will be eligible to apply for the State aid, which has been estimated at about $500 for a village of this size.

Kiwanis Bowlers Win In National Classic

Chelsea bowlers rolled their way into the prize winning list and cut themselves a slice of the $4,100 in prizes for the fourth week of the record-breaking $34,000 Red Crown Sweepstakes, according to announcement of high-scoring winners made Monday at Chicago headquarters of the nationwide event.

Kiwanis No. 2 team, rolling at the Chelsea bowling alleys, scored 2708 points to take second place in the Class E Division. Members of this team are P. G. Schaeble, Bruce Plankell, Paul Niehaus, Peter Boehm and Charles Cameron.

First team prize is $250 in each of the five classes set up by qualifying play. Second team prize in each class is $150 and third team prize $100. Members of fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh place teams in each class receive custom-bored mineralite balls.

With 232,856 bowlers competing on the 5-man teams in 1,532 cities and towns from coast to coast, the Red Crown Sweepstakes broke all records for the number of participants in any sports event in history.

The prizes are awarded to high scoring teams each week for six weeks with $9,400 additional in grand prizes going to the nineteen high totaling teams in each of the five classes.

McLAUGHLIN IN FLOOD AREA

Russell McLaughlin received a telegram on Monday from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. B. McLaughlin, stating that they had been in the flood area at Los Angeles, Calif. but had gone to Coolidge, Arizona. The message stated that conditions were very bad in the flooded sections of California. Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin have spent the winter in Texas, Mexico and California, and expect to arrive home in April.

Lansing—The astuteness of Michigan's state highway commissioner, Murray D. Van Wagoner, is evidenced again in the about face attitude recently taken at the White House regarding highway expenditures.

Two months ago President Roosevelt sent a message to Congress urging drastic curtailment of federal funds for highways—funds already allocated to match state road expenditures.

In the face of a budget storm, Van Wagoner rushed to Washington and entered a vigorous protest, terming the presidential request tantamount to diversion of motorist-paid taxes.

Headlines now carry the news that the White House is looking with favor on a gigantic road-building spree to build 66 super-highways, mostly on transcontinental routes. Eleven of these would traverse Michigan.

Just how the new highway program fits into the railroad financial picture is not easy to see—if it does. The tax-ridden railroads, near bankruptcy, are asking the I. C. C. to authorize a 15-per-cent rate increase.

Van Wagoner, president of the American Road Builders association, is already a national figure. Keep your eyes on "Pat".

More for Schools?

Michigan public schools received $38,083,986 from the state during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1937.

This sum was in addition to funds set aside for state schools.

For the present fiscal year the legislature authorized an increase of five million dollars. The budget director, Harold Smith, acting in behalf of the governor, trimmed this a bit.

State school aid seeks to equalize educational opportunity throughout Michigan.

Officers Elected By Rod and Gun Club

The Chelsea Rod and Gun Club held their annual meeting on Tuesday evening at Kolb's hall, electing the following officers for the ensuing year:

President—F. W. Merkel.
1st Vice Pres.—George W. Hart.
2nd Vice Pres.—Joseph C. Dreyer.
Secretary—David Beach.
Treasurer—Herbert G. Loeffler.

During the past year the club has done a considerable amount of work and money has been expended in the feeding of birds and game, also in improvements made in game covers in the surrounding area.

HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

The annual business meeting of the Fourth Quarterly Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church was held on Monday evening, March 7. The Ladies' Aid Society under the direction of Mrs. Herman Dancer, supervised and served an excellent pot-luck dinner at 6:45.

Following the dinner a brief devotional service was conducted by Dr. W. E. Harrison, who presided over the business session at the close of the devotional period.

Written reports from pastor, trustees, stewards, and the officers responsible for the Sunday school, Epworth League, Fellowship Club, Ladies' Aid, and Home and Foreign Mission Societies showed all departments in excellent condition.

Inasmuch as there are yet three months of activity, including the seasons of Lent, Easter, and Pentecost, the reports of necessity were incomplete. Officers for 1938-39 were elected. The new Conference Year opens July 1.

The annual conference will meet in Trinity church, Highland Park, on June 22. John Fischer is the lay delegate to the annual conference and P. M. Broesamle is the reserve delegate.

GUNDY CONDEMNNS ALARMISTS

Lansing—Auditor General George T. Gundry on Tuesday condemned what he termed "alarmists and propagandists," who he said were creating apprehension through untruthful statements regarding the forthcoming tax sale.

Gundry said, "Those taxpayers who hold receipts showing that they have paid the taxes that are due, can thank their alarmist friends for their lively interest and forget them. If a taxpayer's property is advertised as delinquent, that advertisement should mean exactly nothing if he holds paid tax receipts. All that has happened in such a case is that the public book-keeping got behind in the unprecedented tax rush of last fall, and the advertising lists were compiled, by necessity, before all of the payments could be entered on the record."

Gundry pointed out that no law on the statute books of the State of Michigan will maintain a cloud on the title to a parcel of land for tax reasons if a proper receipt is held.

Chelsea High Wins In District Tournament

Chelsea high school emerged victorious in the Class C district tournament which was played here on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights of last week.

On Thursday night the local boys defeated Michigan Center, 29 to 17, completely outclassing the visitors. On Friday night Chelsea easily defeated Dexter, 33 to 18.

Vandercook Lake defeated Grass Lake on Thursday night, with a score of 23 to 22, and on Friday night they won over East Jackson by a score of 32 to 28.

This brought Chelsea and Vandercook Lake together for the finals on Saturday night, and the local lads edged out the Lakers in one of the most thrilling games ever played on the local court. The final score was 19 to 17.

By virtue of their winning in the district tournament Chelsea now enters the regional tournament which starts tonight in Albion. They will play Lansing (St. Mary's) tonight in the Albion college gym at 7 o'clock. The winner of this game will play Olivet on Friday night at 7 o'clock.

Teams entered in the regional tournament are Chelsea, Olivet, Lansing (St. Mary's), Danville, Jackson (St. John's), and Reading. The winning team will go to the state tournament.

Am. Legion Sponsors Wolverine Boys' State

Democracy on parade in Michigan will be the Wolverine Boys' State Inc., a week's demonstration to youth of the workings of democratic government in America today, to be held June 16 to 25 at Michigan State College, East Lansing, under auspices of the American Legion, Department of Michigan.

From all parts of Michigan will come boys of the age of 16, 17 and 18 years. Each Legion post has received instructions on methods of co-operation.

"This state school in Americanism is entirely non-partisan," states Everett DeRyke, Milan, chairman, in a bulletin received here. "The boys will form their government and will consider practical problems without reference to any party without party and without any propaganda. The sole purpose of the Wolverine Boys' State next June is to enable the boy to grasp the meaning of some of the governmental tasks his parents are being asked to solve. It is a program of the development of leadership as well as the development of citizenship."

Boys' State was inaugurated in Illinois in 1935, and it has been officially endorsed as an essential part of the national program of Americanism by the American Legion.

At the Wolverine Boys' State the young citizens divide themselves into groups and become members of one or another mythical political party. Cities and counties are established, and a state government is organized. Nominations and elections are held in strict accordance with the laws governing the state in which the boys live, and by use of the established methods of voting.

The cost of week's institute at Michigan State College will be $12.50 per boy in addition to the cost of transportation to and from the college campus. Application blanks may be obtained by writing to Wolverine Boys' State, Inc., 602 Barlum Tower, Detroit, or secured from your nearest American Legion post.

GET FINAL PAYMENT ON GRANT

James Munro, village clerk, received a check from the federal government last week for final payment on the grant which was allowed by the government toward construction of the local sewage treatment works. This check, which was for $5,722.46, made the total grant $26,302.46, or 45 per cent of the total construction cost. At the regular council meeting on Monday evening final payment was made to the contractor, Carl D. Mitchell of Carpy, Ohio, who constructed the plant. Village officials state that the public is invited to inspect the sewage treatment works, which has been in operation for several months.

CHILD STUDY CLUB

Panama Cities Founded Several Centuries Ago

Cristobal, Canal Zone, Atlantic port of entry to that strip of leased territory across the narrow part of the republic of Panama, is the gateway to a scene that dates back through the centuries. Panama City and Colon are ancient and colorful, and Cristobal and Balboa are modern and military.

Panama City and Colon are not outgrowths of the building of the canal. They are cities founded four centuries ago, the terminals of a paved causeway built to carry the unrecorded riches of the conquistadores, with a legend of pirates, buccaneers, and the freebooters of the Spanish Main. A kaleidoscope of nations, they owe their atmosphere to a commerce originating in the fifteenth century. The parade of nations began with the Spaniards and negro-slaves, then came the French corsairs, the forty-niners, Hindus, Chinese, and Arabs. Descendants of these early merchants pass through the streets, displaying their wares in open shops that give the thoroughfares the atmosphere of an oriental bazaar.

Balboa and Cristobal contrast sharply with Panama City and Colon in all respects except natural tropic beauty. They are a result of the canal, with wharves, customs houses, drydocks, administration buildings, rows of houses and a note of military efficiency.

grant of $885,000,000 for distribution to states for general aid to elementary and secondary schools, chiefly in rural areas; construction of new school buildings; adult education programs; rural libraries and improvement of teacher training.

As the super-highway scheme, costing many billions, would benefit eleven routes in Michigan, the new federal school scheme would benefit schools in the state.

Call this state socialism? Well, write out your own ticket. We're on our way.

Socialism

Michigan audiences on the same night heard two socialist leaders—Norman Thomas in Lansing and Senator Robert LaFollette in Detroit—quote from reports of the Brookings Institution, the fact-finding organization at Washington, D. C.

Said Thomas: America in 1920 had the capacity to produce 19 to 20 per cent more national income. This increase in the national income would have meant a $2,000 or more a year for every wage-earner.

Said LaFollette: America in 1920 had $19,000,000,000 in savings, yet only $5,000,000,000 found its way as investments into work-producing enterprises. Public spending must supply the need.

The Brookings Institution crashed into front pages and legislative hearings several years ago when it recommended, after exhaustive studies, that what America needed was more production of goods, not less; lower prices of goods, not higher; and that the way to stimulate both consumption and production was to make a better product, increase wages of labor and lower prices for the consumer.

In Michigan, world's capital of automobiles, this is an old, old story. In fact, it is the history of the motor industry.

LaGuardia on Guard

Thomas and LaFollette both followed Mayor LaGuardia of New York City, one-time socialist congressman, who said that civil service was good only as long as its administration was good.

Recalling how boss rule in New York City had been overthrown by coalition civic forces, LaGuardia declared that government had become a science. "Taxpayers can't afford the luxury of incompetent government any more," he said.

And to speech-minded Governor Murphy who has journeyed frequently to the East and New England, LaGuardia added significantly: "The East greatly admires you."

It was William Allen White, Kansas editor, who boomed LaGuardia for the G. O. P. presidential nomination in 1940.

Consumer Awakening

At Washington the other day was Michigan's consumer leader, Mrs. Stuart Frazier, counsel of the newly established consumers bureau, state department of agriculture.

As head of the only state-consumer agency of its kind in the United States, Mrs. Frazier enjoyed the spotlight.

The occasion was a meeting of the Consumers' National Federation, organized to represent the interest of the consumer—the forgotten man—in today's tug-of-war between economic interests. Feeling that the nation, in its concern over production, has permitted exploitation of the consumer, the federation seeks repeal of so-called fair trade laws in 42 states and repeal of the federal Miller-Tydings law, father of the state laws. In a nutshell, the Miller-Tydings act permits manufacturers and retailers to fix prices, outlaw boss leaders.

According to the consumer groups, legislative tinkering of this type has increased the cost of living.

The Federal Trade Commission, investigating monopolistic practices, is expected to report soon that fair trade laws have increased prices. Michigan's fair trade law, passed by the legislature after a long battle, only affects gasoline dealers and bakers. A test of its constitutionality is now pending in the courts.

F. F. A.

The F. F. A. sponsors a rural election meeting March 10 at 8:00 o'clock in the high school study hall. The attraction of the program is a group of pictures pertaining to electricity and electric appliances. This demonstration is put on by Mr. Weatherby, rural electrician.

Varsity Club

Two boys, Paul Schneider and Cameron Bloom, who are to be new members of the Varsity club, were initiated last week. Each was presented with a brick which he was to carry around with him where ever he went for four days. If either is caught without his brick he will receive severe punishment.

The other officers elected are: Vice-president, Rolly White; recording secretary, Peggy Blecker; corresponding secretary, Jean Barkley; treasurer, Helen Lehman; program chairman, Mary Jane Bahnmiller; parliamentarian, Margaret Fleming; and reporter, Valerie Leeman.

Wise Men of Room 22

What Would Happen If

Mr. Cameron didn't have to speak to W. Birch in study hall 6th hour.
Stuart D. didn't sit with Joan W. before the bell rings every day.
Audrey P. didn't get "A" in Geometry.
Rena S. didn't talk out loud in class.
Alex really made Catherine B. stay eight hours.
John A.'s face didn't get red.
Jean M. didn't write notes every hour.
Malcolm N. didn't keep tabs on E. Hart.

Calendar of Events

March 10—Basketball tournament at Albion.
March 24-25—Senior play.

Introducing Mr. "WATTS"—HIS-NAME, the most powerful man on earth—

Press a button and he lifts tons—digs tunnels—lights cities—and cigars.
Plug him in and he cooks the meals—shaves the master—does the washing and ironing—sweeps the floor—runs the radio—and the movies.

Without him Sonja Heinle couldn't cut ice on the screen nor could you make ice cubes in your kitchen.

He's on call all day—all night—all year—yet his salary is less than any other service that comes into your life or goes out of your checkbook.

Chelsea Takes District Basketball Trophy

In the State District play-offs Chelsea took the trophy with flying colors. In the first game between Chelsea and Michigan Center, Chelsea won by the score of 29-17, with Alber as high point man, with 7, Wheeler and Niehaus 6 each, and Koebbe and Tiesch followed with 5 each.

In the Dexter-Chelsea game Chelsea won again, 33-18. The Reserves started, and Schneider was high point man with 7 and Policht had 6.

In the final game of the tournament Chelsea won the trophy by nosing out Vandercook Lake. With two minutes to play and Vandercook leading 17-15, Tiesch sunk a long shot from the center of the floor and Koebbe sunk the winning basket with seconds to go, making the score 19-17 in favor of Chelsea. Tiesch, with 7 points, was high-point man in this game.

The trophy was presented to Mr. Cameron by Mr. Blecker and Mr. Cameron in turn presented it to the players.

High point man during the whole tournament was Tiesch with 18 points. Other high point men were Niehaus with 12, Alber 11, and Koebbe and Wheeler 9 each.

Gossip

Quite a few of the students have complained about the uncomplimentary remarks in this column; so, when asked of their opinion about it these were the replies of:

Ruby May—It slams too many people.

Dave S.—It's alright if it is the truth—but most of it isn't.

Betty F.—I don't like the "slams" they give some of us kids; otherwise it's okay.

Kelly S.—I don't mind it if it isn't too ridiculous.

Ruth L.—It sure must take a lot of brains to think up those smart things.

Rolly W.—Sometimes the truth hurts.

Mary Jane R.—Why don't they pick on some of the other kids. They just use the same ones all the time.

Charles B.—I don't care what they put in it.

Joan W.—Oh it's okay if they don't get too nasty about it. Some of the kids use it just to get back at others.

Mr. Cameron—I refuse to commit myself. I don't read it.

New Cheer Leader?

All year Chelsea High has been searching in vain for a cheer-leader. Taking pity on us at last, Rolly White volunteered to lead us in a few lusty yells at the district tournament last week-end. Good work Rolly! We hope he sees this, and consents to become our permanent cheer leader.

Raw or Cooked?

There once were cannibals three,
They never seemed to agree;
Said one to another, by his side,
"Will you all have yo's baked or fried?"
"I'll have mine broiled," the other said.
"But I prefer mine raw instead."
"I'll take mine fried," said another.
"Ah! smash yo face, you silly brot-her!"
"Oh ya, take that you silly rat."
And back and forth the natives spat.

Until the three on the ground did lay,
And the meat got up and ran away.

The moral of this story is—
Eat the meat the way it is.

LAUGHS

Teacher to Dr.'s son—If you do not behave I will have to ask your father to come and see me.
Dr.'s son—Better not, 'cause dad charges $3.00 a visit.

A yokel is the way people talk to each other in the Alps.

Alex—Do you carry "B" eliminators?

Clerk—No sir, but we have roach powder and some fly swatters.

Stranger—So you are the postmaster, storekeeper, justice of the peace, and constable of this town?

Native—Yes sir, you might say I'm the Mussolini of Buckeye Corner.

The engineers have a swell method of testing their liquor. They connect 20,000 volts across a pint. If the current jumps across it, the product is poor.

If the current causes a precipitation of lye, tin, arsenic, iron slag and olum the whiskey is fair.

If the liquor chases the currents back to the generator, then they've got good whiskey.

In Mr. Wallis' Biology class—

Mr. Wallis—Can you give me a definition of a worm?

Wm. Birch—Sure. It's a caterpillar that's been playing strip poker and lost.

The teacher was explaining to a class of small children the meaning of the word "collision." "A collision," said she, "is when two things come together unexpectedly. Now can anyone give me an example of a collision?"
"Twins," said the class idiot.

War Caused by Bucket

Wars are often caused by the most insignificant events. In countries like India, for instance, it needs merely some tactless act to send a searing flame through the country. The Indian mutiny was precipitated by the belief that pig's grease was rubbed on the cartridges that Mosley sepoys had to bite. But in the past, even in Europe, wars have been caused by sheer hot-headedness. Sweden once fought Poland because the king of Sweden found that he was given two etceteras after his name while the king of Poland had three. Turkey once sent an army to Venice because someone at the court made a joke about their ambassador's beard, and six hundred years ago a conflict which devastated half Europe began because a bucket was stolen from a public well at Bologna.

CHILDREN IN COURT

Judge Malcolm Hatfield

A cursory survey of the case histories of a gang of delinquent boys plainly reveals the fact that they came from broken, crowded, and unhygienic homes. It was found that the parents of these boys were not only drunkards and thieves, but that they were utterly unprepared to guide and direct their children.

The problem of inadequate parentage is frequently due to the lack of parental education and to general ignorance. In many instances parents are largely responsible for their children's misconduct because of the examples they set for them in the home. When parents are unaware that children unconsciously imitate them, they are likely to give no thought to what they say or do in the child's presence.

KEEP ON KEEPIN' ON

If the day looks kinder gloomy,
And your chances kinder slim,
If the situation's puzzlin'
And the prospect's awful grim;
If perplexities keep pressin'
Till hope is nearly gone,
Just bristle up and grit your teeth,
And keep on keepin' on.

Frettin' never wins a fight,
And fumin' never pays;
There ain't no use in broodin'
In these pessimistic ways;
Smile just kinder cheerfully,
Though hope is nearly gone,
And bristle up and grit your teeth,
And keep on keepin' on.

There ain't no use in growlin'
And grumblin' all the time,
When music's ringin' everywhere
And everything's a rhyme;
Just keep on smilin' cheerfully,
If hope is nearly gone,
And bristle up and grit your teeth,
And keep on keepin' on.

The Name Doris

The name Doris is of Greek origin. Two authorities agree on it. But when it comes to the meaning of the name, these same authorities disagree widely and strangely. For one says that Doris means "a sacrificial knife" and the other that it means "of the sea." No reason is given for the first meaning. The second is explained by the fact that in Greek mythology Doris was a sea goddess, daughter of Oceanus and Tethys and mother of the sea nymphs.

Doris is also the name of a small mountainous district of Greece and of a genus of mollusks. So it may likewise be a Greek word for a sacrificial knife. But as a name, it would seem that "of the sea" is the more logical meaning.

Sorghum, "Long Sweetening"

Sorghum-making and sorghum itself are characteristic of the South. During the Civil war, when sugar was scarce, it was used as sweetening. It is known throughout the South as "long sweetening."

1938 Spring Hats Will Be 'Saner'—Or Will They?

Spring stylists are getting more level-headed about hats, so they say. This collection proves them both right and wrong. You can draw your own conclusions about the little feathered bonnet worn above Rita Johnson of the movies. The skyscraping quill is bright blue.

Rita changes to a tight-fitting little number that's given added height by a colorful bouquet of spring flowers. The soft veil adds "luxury." Nice, we'd say.

But wait a minute. What's this? Betty Furness, also of the movies, dons a "nose-length" veil sprinkled with sequin flowers, fastened on the top of her head with a handmade rose in cerise. This isn't a spring hat, really. It's for formal dinner wear, which makes us breathe easier.

Here comes Betty Furness in something less startling and more springlike. John Fredericks designed this number, a dusty pink hat with a black suede band around the edge. The crown is high and a soft veil covers the face. What's your verdict? Are 1938 hats better or worse?

Snakes Do Not "Dance"

When a snake sways to the trills of an Indian snake charmer's flute it isn't "dancing"; it is in deadly earnest. The snake has no respect whatsoever for music sways only to aim a blow at the charmer, who, too, is swaying. The only reason India's snake charmers, indeed, most charmers, don't succumb to the attacks of their "pets" is because the snakes' fangs have been removed. It's a rare snake "tamer" who plays around with a creature capable of doing much harm.

Spelling "Coconut"

The people of Trinidad spell coconut without an "n"—that is, coco-nut. The original derivation comes from the Spanish word "coco," applied to a monkey's face, the three eyes on the nut giving it the appearance of a monkey's face, the lower eye seeming to resemble a mouth.

The coconut tree, bare to within a few feet of the tassel-like top, is one of the most beautiful in the West Indies. The trade winds keep it always waving.

VARIETY OF WEATHER

Chelsea has experienced several varieties of weather during the past week. On Friday afternoon it snowed, then it turned to hail and sleet. About four o'clock Saturday morning there was a thunder storm, accompanied by heavy rainfall which froze as fast as it fell. During the storm the fire whistle started to blow, having been shorted by lightning. There are reports that a few people who heard the fire whistle got up and dressed and went to see where the fire was.

On Saturday there was the usual bad weather, rain, fog, wind, and what not. Sunday was the first nice sunny Sunday in weeks. The sunshine did not end with Sunday, but lasted for several days. The ice has about disappeared and everyone hopes we have seen our last ice for this season.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—James Lambert tries to vain to dislodge a beautiful foster-daughter, Leonora, from marrying Don Mason, young rolling stone, whom he likes but of whom he disapproves according to the conventional business-man standards. He tells her, "Unless a house is founded upon a rock, it will not survive." Leonora suspects the influence of her half-brother, Ned, always jealous of the girl since the day his father brought her home from the death of her mother, abandoned by her Italian baritone-lover. Don arrives in the midst of the argument, and Lambert realizes the frank understanding between the two.

CHAPTER II—Sitting up late into the night, Lambert reviews the whole story of Nora as a child, at boarding school, studying music abroad, meeting Don on the train trip. In the morning he delivers his ultimatum, to give Don a job with Ned for a year's show-down. When Nora suggests the possibility of running away with Don, Lambert threatens disinheritance. Don agrees to the job, but before a month is over, his nerves are jumpy, he cannot sleep at night, he is too tired to go out much with Nora, and he tells her that he feels like a prisoner. Nora soothes him with her music. He falls asleep and his face is more peaceful than it has been in many weeks.

CHAPTER III—Nora grows quieter, and broods over Don's complaint to her father of Ned's spying on him, and decides that rather than see Don's spirit broken, she will run away. She urges her father to put an end to the little experiment. James Lambert is obdurate and angry. Lambert tells her that if Don quits she will quit with him, but he will be brought with her. He adds that if she tries to her bargain it will be useless to come to him for help. Later Don and Nora discuss the situation. Don promises to buck up and take life more calmly. "We'll stick it out," he says.

CHAPTER IV—With the coming of spring, Don is full of unrest and wanderlust, and decides to leave home. He tells his father that he is going to see a man in the city, and he gives her money. A car passes at that moment, flashes headlights and moves on. A terrific heat wave ushers in the summer, and Nora refuses to go to the country with her father. Ned, meanwhile, intimates to his father about Don's evenings away from home, but Lambert refuses to listen. Meanwhile, Don broods over the decision of his morale.

CHAPTER V—At the height of the heat wave, when Don is finding everything insupportable, Ned speaks of having the goods on him, having seen him give a girl money. When Ned scores at the true story of the episode, Don knocks him down, and is through. He calls Nora, who insists on running away with him to get married, realizing it is her job to restore Don's faith in himself. Her father, who is a father, is met with complete silence.

CHAPTER VI—Don and Nora go to Maine and settle down in the studio of Carl Venable, a famous artist-friend of Don's, whose daughter he saved from drowning. Nora writes her father. There is no answer, except her baggage, containing her entire wardrobe, and $2,000 hidden in a gold mesh bag.

CHAPTER VII—After a tranquil summer, which partly restores Don's health, Don and Nora accept the Venable's invitation to go to Cape for the winter. Nora realizes she is to have a baby, but says nothing to change their plans. She is also reluctant to go to her father. At the dock, Nora, feeling that her father is there, waves good-by.

CHAPTER VIII—Ned, reading of the Venable's sailing, goes to see his father, and has a talk with Martha, the old housekeeper, who betrays Lambert's subterfuge which is breaking his own heart and Nora's. Ned finds his father in Nora's old room, and when he offers to buy her old baby, she asserts it is not his to sell, but belongs to his daughter. After Ned's departure, Lambert reads Nora's letter again, and wonders if she saw him on the pier.

CHAPTER IX—Nora's first son is born in England, while Don is successfully writing "Letters from Cape" for a London editor, and selling them in America with Venable's illustrations. Assigned finally to Cape Town, Don comes down with typhoid, followed by the baby, and Mrs. Venable writes Carl's drawing, leaving his last gift to Nora, a baby-grand piano.

CHAPTER X—Don's work suffers from his depression to keep going, and a manuscript is returned. Nora goes over it, re-writing it, and writes to the London editor in perfect honesty. Don recovers, and a woman of the streets who has helped nurse him, gives Nora a farewell gift of a valuable Kimberley diamond. Back again in Maine, they decide to buy an old barn not far from the Venable studio, and gradually make it a home.

"It will be a palace to me, any way—my shining palace. That's what we'll call it, thanks to your inspiration, Mr. Moore. If ever you're tempted to read the modern poets, look up Millay and perhaps you'll understand."

To her surprise the notary quoted without hesitation: "Come and see my shining palace built upon the sand." Well, this future home of yours is surely built upon the sand; and I have no doubt you'll make it shine surpassingly. Yes! I love the poets, Mrs. Mason, though as a rule my taste in poetry is as old-fashioned as I am myself. But I've heard Miss Millay read her own verses, and that makes a difference. Let me know when the larch string is out and I'll pay my respects to the Royal Family!"

"We'll bid you to dine some evening in the banquet hall!" smiled Nora as they turned away.

"And who," said Don, when they stood in the sunlight outside the hideous frame building which housed the notary's small office, "who would suspect that aged patriarch of reading the moderns?"

"I would," retorted Leonora. "He's no moss-back, Don. He's a perfect example of what they used to call a scholar and a gentleman. But he'll never know how superbly that quotation fits our case. Father told me once, back in the days when he was fighting the thought of our marriage, that to survive, a house must be built upon a rock.

"Safe upon the solid rock the ugly houses stand; Come and see my shining palace built upon the sand!"

"Don't you see what I mean?" "I see that you don't regard me as possessing the comfortable stability of a rock, my dear!"

"You possess it in the essentials," replied Nora soberly, "which is all that matters; and you've got the lovely changing quality of the sand, as well. When I was a small girl, Dad took me to the sea one summer. I used to sit four hours on the beach, Don, and with a wee tin shovel lift off layer after layer of damp sand; and every layer was different from the one before—like beautiful fabrics woven in varying patterns. It used to fascinate me because I never knew what the next layer would be; and it's the same with you, dear. Just as I'm sure I know you inside out, up springs some quality I hadn't dreamed of! Who wants an ugly house to live in year after year, Don, if one can have a palace for an enchanted interval?"

"I wish you wouldn't say such things on a public street, Nora," complained her husband. "It might shock these repressed, undemonstrative natives of the state of Maine to see a man embrace his wife under a telephone pole! Come on now, let's beard the village carpenter in his den. There's no time to spare if we're to see the beginnings of this home you've set your heart on before we sail for Naples on November tenth."

"Oh, let's not think about November tenth!" Don felt a pang at the protest in Nora's voice. "I want to forget such things as boats and railroads and suitcases for a little while. We've got four months before we have to leave, Don. We can do a lot. And it won't be so hard to go away if our home's in order (or even disorder!), waiting to welcome us again next spring."

Don said, as they turned down a side street: "Would you rather not go to Italy this year, Nora?"

"We must," she answered. "I promised Constance. Their villa seems so big and lonely without Ven. And it's such a wonderful chance for you, Don. You can fare forth gathering material to write about, and know that the boys and I are safe and comfortable. Of course we'll go; but it will be so wonderful to know we're coming back! And when Father finds we're really living somewhere—somewhere civilized, I mean (you know his feeling about Europe!), he may come to see us. I—I am sure he will."

Tom Littlefield, a weatherbeaten but vigorous man of sixty odd, was in his shop; a neat white building at the rear of his comfortable dwelling-house. "He makes me think of a tree at timberline," Don said later. "The sort I've seen in the Colorado Rockies, gnarled by the wind, you know, but strong and sturdy."

The man's face brightened at sight of Leonora. It brightened still more when she disclosed their plans. Don, content to stand aside and watch them, saw at a glance that they understood each other, this strangely assorted pair. "I see," the carpenter kept saying. "I see." And when she had finished, "What I'd advise, Miss Mason, is to measure up the place and make a sketch of where you want partitions. I'll run you down in the Ford right now, and we'll look it over. And I'll be on hand at seven sharp tomorrow mornin' ready to begin."

"I'm not a union man, though I've nothing at all against those that are. But I've been my own master too long now to be willing to take orders. If I want to quit at noon and go fishin' off the point, I quit. If I feel like workin' till seven at night to finish somethin' I set out to do, I work. And I work honest. No one ever complained of a house built by Tom Littlefield. Let's go."

Then, and then only did Don speak. He said, with discretion learned of marriage: "But we'll have to know something about the cost, Mr. Littlefield. This wife of mine has a prejudice against running bills."

The carpenter raised a rugged, protesting hand.

"That'll be all right. You're honest folks, and I'm not worryin' about my pay. This little lady has got to be made comfortable. When the job's done, pay what you can, and the balance whenever it comes handy. I been doin' business that way for forty years (so long's I know the folks I deal with), and I never lost a copper. Now let's not waste any more time." Nor did they! It was astonishing how fast the work progressed. For as wholeheartedly as he had ever embarked on an adventure, Don threw himself into the making of Nora's home. Day by day, early and late, he worked beside the carpenter. Nora worked too, at any task she could lay hands on. Even small Donald carried out rubbish with solemn pride in the thought that he was "helping build our house."

Sometimes the old carpenter would disagree with Nora. The size of the living room disturbed him. "It's too big," he protested. "It won't be snug and cozy like a sittin' room should be. It's big as a ball room!"

"It is a ball room," retorted Nora, "and as for its being cozy—you wait and see! A baby-grand piano takes up space, you know; and—Oh, don't fuss any more," she pleaded. "I want it big. I've lived in band-boxes for six years."

"Well," sighed the old builder with a dubious shake of his gray head, "it's your house; but remember I warned you."

Don would pause in his hammering when these discussions raged. Sometimes he'd say over his shoulder: "Oh, let her alone, Mr. Littlefield. She's on the war path!" And the grizzled product of the "wild New England shore" would wink solemnly, pick up his tools, and continue to do exactly as Nora said.

They concentrated on the living room at first; and when the partitions were in place and the wide casement windows finished, it was Leonora who tackled builders' paper to the walls of one end, while a mason from the Port constructed a chimney at the other; and Don and Tom Littlefield moved their work bench into one of the box stalls that was destined to become a kitchenette.

"And what I don't understand," grumbled the old man good-naturedly, "is why anyone in their senses should want a sittin' room big enough to accommodate a trolley line, and a kitchen so small you can't eat breakfast there cold mornin's. 'Taint sensible, if you ask me."

"But I didn't ask you," retorted Nora while he grinned at her impudence. "It's not suitable for a Royal Family to eat in the kitchen, Mr. Littlefield; and besides, those next two stalls are to be the banquet hall."

"What do you think this old barn is?" he questioned sternly. "Wind-sor Castle? The Royal Family! Whoever heard of such a thing?" But he kept right on obeying orders; and one day astonished Nora by inquiring where "the royal bed-chamber" was to be—upstairs or down?

Overhearing the question, Don collapsed with mirth. A royal bed-chamber seemed so foreign to this sturdy old builder with the New England twang in his voice, and the New England sense of humor (so often mistaken for something quite the opposite) lurking in the depths of his blue eyes.

The weeks passed rapidly. Mid-August was there before they knew it; but Tom Littlefield continued to arrive at seven o'clock, and not once had he been tempted to "quit at noon."

Don arose early in those days; tipped about the shack getting a light breakfast, and sometimes left before Nora was awake. Later she followed with the children and a picnic lunch; the baby took his nap in an old packing box, oblivious to the sound of hammer and saw; while small Donald sat on a nail keg and handed things to his father as requested, forgetting in this absorbing interest that he'd intended tunneling to Italy that season.

It was Leonora who suggested moving in.

It was Leonora who suggested moving in. "It'll save the long walk night and morning, Don. It'll save time; and it can't be much more inconvenient than the shack is now. The living room—" "Ball room," corrected the builder dryly. "Is a airy finished. The fireplace burns like a breeze; and there's a sink in the kitchen even if there's no water running into it."

"And speaking of water," observed Don, "the report on this well water is Q. K. Nora. It came this morning. Why shouldn't we move?"

Thus there came a day when with the aid of two Portland movers (hired by Jim Perkins as they passed through town), Nora's beautiful piano stood on the spot planned for it; and Don said: "Christen the ballroom, Nora. Play something appropriate. 'On with the dance, let joy be unconfined.'"

So, seated upon an upturned box, Nora played; and looking up as the haunting strains of "The Beautiful Blue Danube" died away, beheld the entire working force, apparently hypnotized.

Old Tom Littlefield stood in the doorway, staring straight ahead through a window that faced the sea. One of the Portland movers (perched on a barrel) appeared to have gone into a sort of trance; while the other was wiping suspicious moisture from his eyes, and Jim Perkins stood before the fireplace, arms folded, head sunk forward, lost to the world.

Don, as the music ceased, didn't look up at all. His wife suspected that he was in the same plight as the second Portland man. Even the children remained quiet; and at last the mover seated on a barrel said: "I remember that tune. Seems as if my wife must have played it when we was goin' together."

"That's queer," the other man observed, shamefacedly thrusting his handkerchief into a pocket, "but darned if I wasn't thinkin' that very thing! Kind o' kind o' brings things back, don't it?"

The carpenter's blue eyes twinkled at this confession. "It sure does," he admitted. "I donno as I ever heard that piece before, but it did somethin' to me. If you want the truth, Miss Mason, I wasn't here at all. I was 'seelin' Nelly home' after a church supper forty years back. Your better lock up that piano and keep it locked if you want this downstairs finished by November first."

Nora laughed, and Jim Perkins, finding his voice at last, exploded: "Well, I'll tell the world you can play, Miss Mason! I never heard nuthin' like it except over the radio, and if you ask me, you've got that feller named Hoffmann beat to a frazzle!"

Leonora arose from the packing box to acknowledge his honest tribute with a curtsy while Don suggested: "Give them some more, Nora, before they leave," and for twenty minutes Nora played to as appreciative an audience as any Portland men would accept only the minutest payment for their services.

"It wasn't nothin'," declared the older man as they arose to go. "Nothin' at all; and the music was pay enough anyhow. Wasn't it, Joe?" "Joe," still dazed, assented with a mute nod. They departed munching Nora's molasses cookies, and Don told her (when Tom Littlefield had returned to the box stall which he was converting into the north end of a "banquet hall"), with their souls refreshed.

And next morning, as if Fate were really trying to make up for past unkindnesses, Don received a note from the editor of an American weekly, to whom he had sent one of his "Letters from Cape Town." The article, it seemed, had filled a long-waited want. Check for American magazine rights was "herewith enclosed," and they would be glad to run the entire series during the coming year.

The check, compared with those received from England for the same material, was almost dazzling; and they both appeared to go a little mad. Nora rushed to the piano, while Don, to the exceeding joy of his small sons, proceeded to dance the Highland Fling.

When the music ceased and he dropped breathlessly into the red-lacquered chair, Tom Littlefield, who had arrived during the commotion, inquired if he should call the doctor, "or are you comin' out o' that conception fit all right alone?"

In answer Don tossed him the incredible check. "That's yours, Mr. Littlefield. You can blame that innocent strip of paper for this vaudeville act of mine which was put on merely to celebrate the fact that, for the time being, anyhow, the dark cloud of financial worry has vanished from the horizon. We're sane again now, and I'll get back to the shingling if that's what you want."

Not until the last possible moment did they leave the place. Never had they left any place with such regret. The weather had been almost miraculously perfect for that time of year, a full long remembered by the natives. Tom Littlefield, possessed of minute directions from Leonora, planned to go on with the work when other jobs were scarce.

"It'll be a real life-saver to me, Miss Mason," he assured her. "There ain't much doin' here come wintertime, and I get restless. I'll be more'n glad to keep an eye on the place and do a day's work now and then; and when you come back next spring things'll be ship-shape. I declare, I—I'm downright sorry to see you go."

Loam Is a Sell
A loam is a sell having a mixture of the different grades of sand, silt, and clay in such proportions that the characteristics of no one grade predominate. It is mellow with a somewhat gritty feel, yet fairly smooth and slightly plastic.

Question And Answer Dept.

Problem—A man sent his son to a bank to get a five-dollar bill changed into exactly 250 pieces—pennies, nickels and dimes. How many of each denomination did the young man bring back? (Answer elsewhere in this column.)

Ques.—Why was Maximilian, the emperor of Mexico, shot instead of being treated like other prisoners of war?

Ans.—Maximilian was set up as emperor of Mexico in 1864 when there was unrest and a high feeling generally for a republic. A year later Maximilian issued a proclamation that all persons who should offer resistance to his government shall be shot. In 1867 he was captured by the republic army and was not shown the mercy usually accorded to prisoners of war. He and two of his generals were executed before a firing squad.

Ques.—Why did Madam Melba, the operatic singer of other days, take an assumed name? What was her real name and where was she born?

Ans.—Madam Melba's real name was Nellie Mitchell. In the days of yore it was quite popular among most actresses and operatic singers to take a "stage name". Accordingly she chose "Nellie Melba", in honor of the city in which she was born—Melbourne, Australia.

Ques.—Is Obadiah one of the books of the Bible?

Ans.—Obadiah is the fourth of the lesser prophets, whose book contains only one chapter and 21 verses. His prophecies consist of denunciations against the Edomites for helping to plunder Jerusalem when that city was captured by a heathen foe. Toward the latter part of the book are predictions of the future glory in store for the Jews. It is thought that the book was written between 588 and 538 B. C.

Ques.—When and where was Moses born?

Ans.—It is not known for sure. However, it is generally believed that Moses was born at Heliopolis, Egypt, about 1600 B. C., as his birth occurred at the time the Hebrew people were resident in Egypt, where they were oppressed under the laws of Pharaoh.

Ques.—Has President Roosevelt recovered from his infantile paralysis? If not, how can he get around?

Ans.—The President has not recovered. He gets around with the use of a cane and with the assistance of his eldest son James.

Answer to problem—The reader who submitted this problem says "it can't be done", and that the nearest to it is 205 pennies, 29 nickels and 15 dimes, which makes $5 with 249 pieces. How about it, readers?

Ques.—How did the word "bulldoze" originate?

Ans.—About 50 years ago cattle-stealing was very prevalent in the State of Louisiana. A law was enacted against it carrying a punishment with a bull whip, and a dozen lashes was called a "dole", hence we get "bulldoze".

Ques.—Is it true that there is a certain kind of tree in South America on which bread grows?

Ans.—There is no natural tree or plant that produces processed food. However, there are trees cultivated in the West Indies and the South Sea Islands that produce a globular fruit which is about the size of a child's head and is used extensively for food. It is baked, stewed, roasted or fried in palm oil. When baked, it looks very much like wheat bread, being sliced and eaten in the same manner we eat bread. It's called "breadfruit".

SLATS' DIARY

Sunday—Jake was in S. S. this a. m. the 1st time for several Sundays, and kept a marking on a peach of paper. The teacher at him what he is doing and he said he was drawing a picture of God. The teacher said no boddie knows how God looks and Jake said Well they will when he gets this pitcher drawn.

Monday—Don't know for sure whether I will marry June or not. Her Pa hassent got much money and I herd a man say its just as esey to love a ritch girl as a pure l. But finding a ritch l as purty and sweet as June isent going to be no esey thing to do I xpect.

Rotation of the Earth
In one year, or 365 1/4 days, the earth actually rotates 366 1/4 times

No illness is taken less seriously nor neglected so often as the common cold. Strange, too, when one considers how many serious illnesses are often directly attributable to a cold. At the very first sign of a cold, proper care should be taken.

1. Eat sensibly. Include plenty of milk, fresh fruits, and vegetables in your diet.
2. Get sufficient rest.
3. Keep the kidneys and bowels in good working order.
4. Drink at least six glasses of water a day.
5. Keep your feet dry—wear your rubbers.
6. Keep away from persons with a cold.

GERTRUDE STEIN DROVE AN AMBULANCE

PERHAPS your brother or your father went over to France with the A. E. F. and saw a rattling old French ambulance jolting over the shell-torn roads with two women on the driver's seat. One, a husky, healthy woman with hair clipped short and heavy masculine shoes, was Gertrude Stein; the other, tall and angular and more feminine, was her secretary, Alice B. Toklas.

Gertrude Stein was born in Allegheny, Pa., in 1872. Much of her childhood, until she was five years old, was spent in Europe. Then her family moved to California, and she was raised in San Francisco and Oakland. After attending Radcliffe college, she went to medical school at Johns Hopkins. She settled in Paris in 1905, and the world may have lost a great surgeon as she abandoned the scalpel to carve out a career as an author.

She paid to have her first book printed, because no publisher would accept it. Wide recognition came to her with the publication of her book, "The Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas," in which she uses her secretary's life story as a means of praising her own accomplishments. There she asserts that her book, "The Making of Americans," is the greatest ever written. Her motto, "A rose is a rose is a rose," or this one from her play, "Four Saints in Three Acts" (there were actually many more saints and there were four acts), "If a magpie in the sky on the sky cannot cry if the pigeon on the grass alas can alas and to pass the pigeon on the grass alas and the magpie in the sky on the sky and to try to try alas on the grass alas the pigeon on the grass and alas" have made many critics think that the strain of ambulance driving may have been too much for her.

Changes in United States Capitol
In 1864 congress transformed the old house wing of the Capitol into Statuary hall. On December 2, 1893, a patriotic crowd assembled to witness the placing of Thomas Crawford's Statue of Freedom on the top of the dome. When the field battery fired the national salute at noon the Capitol was complete in its main lines. Subsequently minor renovations were made to permit the introduction of steam heating (1869); elevators (1874); fireproofing (1881); electric lighting (1882); modern drainage system (1893); and air conditioning (1937).

Westminster Abbey's Towers
The Westminster abbey's towers rest on the site of towers built by King Edward the Confessor, and parts of the latter exist underneath the present building. The abbey bells hang in the northwest tower, but in the Middle Ages the bellry was a massive detached building which stood on the site of the London Guildhall. It had walls of immense thickness and above it rose a tall spire. It was demolished in the Eighteenth century.

The Paul Bunyan Legend
The Paul Bunyan legend is said to have begun in the Fapineau rebellion in Canada in 1837, when a "mighty-muscled, bellicose, bearded giant named Paul Bunyan raged among the Queen's troops like Samson among the Philistines."

America of Present Day
Harks Back to W. Indies
It may seem illogical to say that America of today had its origin in the West Indies. But such is a fact, asserts a writer in the Chicago Tribune, and that is why many people visit the islands of the Caribbean.
It is easy to picture the buccaniers and their victims, and the wild debauchery in which the loot was spent. Those bearded pirates were the gunner of their period and they didn't bother much about "Hands up!" or "Don't move or I'll shoot!" They began to shoot as soon as they got into range. Hundreds of millions of gold were collected by these freebooters, and much of it is buried somewhere between the tropic of Cancer and the equator.
Mention of the West Indies brings to mind a flood of recollections—pictures of Columbus, the discoverer; Don De Leon, who loved Porto Rico so much that he sought the fountain of youth so that he might grow young again to enjoy all the longer its beauties; De Soto, who built the old fort which stands in Havana and who sleeps in the bottom of the Mississippi river, which he discovered; Cortez, who found a splintered civilization in Mexico and wrecked it for the sake of gold; Balboa, the stowaway, who discovered the Pacific ocean; Pizarro, who spent a dozen or more years in his efforts to reach Peru so that he might rob the Incas of their vast wealth; Morgan, who sacked and burned Panama after his men had obtained its treasures; Drake, the privateer, who was just a pirate with a new name; Raleigh, who popularized tobacco and the potato; Josephine, the little girl from Martinique who became the wife of Napoleon and thus the empress of France.

Fogs, Mists, Are Clouds

Fogs, or mists, are really clouds close to or in contact with the ground. The conditions necessary are the presence of dust-and-water-vapor in the atmosphere and the falling of the temperature of the air below a certain point. When this happens each particle of dust receives a coating of moisture, and mist is formed. This is white. In its early stages mist easily dissolves if the temperature rises slightly. If there is smoke about, each drop of moisture acquires a covering of oily film. This hinders evaporation and also gives the mist, now fog, its dark color and unpleasant flavor." Extensive fogs also occur where currents of air of different temperatures meet. This, says London Answers Magazine, is the reason why the region around Newfoundland is the foggiest in the world. There the air warmed by the Gulf Stream meets the cold Labrador current.

First Color of French Flag

While it is not usual to associate red with the French monarchy, it was really the first color of the king's flag, called the oriflamme. It is only because red was also adopted by the English king that the French gave it up for blue. It was under the blue flag that Huguenots came to America first as loyal subjects of the king of France. However, the red flag was preserved on the galleys of the Mediterranean fleet where terrible suffering was endured by the unhappy men who could not understand the injustice of the king.

Many Kinds of Sponges, Suitable for All Uses

There are more than eighty varieties of usable sponges, and thousands of useless ones. The kind used in the bath is known as wool. Another sort, called velvet, is used to wash automobiles, and in Holland cows just before they are milked. The reef sponge is used in gas masks and in hospitals, and shipped in enormous quantities to Japan. Englishmen use this variety after shaving. The grass sponge is the cheapest grade. The hard head is used by tailors and potters, and the yellow sponge by painters.

Sponge fishermen locate their prey through a "water glass," which is an inverted bucket with glass bottom that smooths out the ripples when it is held on top of the water. The fishermen pull the sponges out of the sea with a pronged staff. When taken from the mud, the sponges are put in kvaals, where they are kept until the flesh decomposes, when it is beaten out with sticks.

At Nassau the sponges are taken to storehouses, where they are sorted and graded, trimmed and pressed. Some are dyed and perfumed. When royal persons visit Nassau they are given rose-scented pink sponges.

There is a place in the Bahamas called the Mud, unromantically and libelously named, for the water is clear as crystal. It is from the Mud that the sponges come.

This image shows a vertical strip of a document, likely a page from a book or a folder. The right side of the strip is dominated by a dark, heavily textured vertical band, which appears to be the binding or gutter of the document. This band has a mottled, almost wood-grain-like appearance with various shades of black and dark grey. To the left of this dark band is a lighter, off-white or light grey area. This lighter area shows faint, horizontal lines, suggesting it might be a ruled page. There are also some small, dark specks and minor imperfections scattered across the lighter surface. The overall image has a high-contrast, grainy quality, typical of a scanned document or a photograph of a physical object.

Golden Poppy, Columbine*Popular State Blossoms

In California, the golden poppy is cherished to represent the sunny state. There are many legends told about this satiny-petaled coral flower.

One of the tales, observed a writer in the Detroit News, goes back to days when the Indian tribes occupied California. It seems that there was a great cold wave which destroyed all the Indians except one brave and his squaw. Cold and hungry, they called upon the Great Spirit. He sent the "fire flower" or golden poppy in answer to their prayers. It drove away the evil spirit of the cold and frost, and brought warmth and plenty to the land.

Colorado's flower is the Rocky Mountain columbine. It was chosen by the people of the state because of its colors. The white represents the snowy ranges of the mountains, and the yellow, the gold that first attracted people to Colorado in 1858.

The mountain laurel was selected as the state flower of Connecticut because of the "beauty of its blossoms and foliage, the latter remaining a glossy green throughout the year, its sturdy and abundant growth in the state, and its general popularity." Pennsylvania also has the mountain laurel as her flower.

The delicate peach blossom symbolizes Delaware. It was chosen because of the supremacy of the state in peach-growing. When the trees are in bloom the avenues from the northern to the southern border of the state appear as if they were waves of white blossoms.

Indian's Conception of the Twenty-Third Psalm

The Indian's conception of the Twenty-Third Psalm, given by an authority in the Indianapolis News follows: "The Great Father above is a Shepherd Chief. I am His and with Him I want not. He throws out to me a rope, and the name of the rope is love, and He draws me, and He draws me, and He draws me to where the grass is green and the water not dangerous, and I eat, and lie down satisfied. Sometimes my heart is very weak and faints me, but He lifts it up again and draws me into a good road. His name is Wonderful. Some time, it may be very soon, it may be longer, it may be a long, long time. He will draw me into a place between mountains. It is dark there, but I'll draw back there, I'll be afraid not, for it is there between these mountains that the Shepherd Chief will meet me, and the hunger I have felt in my heart all through this life will be satisfied. Sometimes He makes the love rope into a whip but afterward He gives me a staff to lean on. He spreads a table before me with all kinds of food. He puts His hand upon my head and all the tired is gone. My cup He fills till it runs over. What I tell you is true. I lie not. These roads that are away ahead will stay with me all through this life, and afterward I will go to live in the Big Teepee and sit down with the Shepherd Chief forever."

The Name Marcus

The name Marcus is a slight shortening of the Latin Marcus, meaning "martial" or "warlike." It may have been derived from Mars, the god of war. Mars is an ancient name which probably meant "a hammer." That meaning fits in well with "martial." Marcus Aurelius, Roman consul of the second century, wrote the immortal "Meditations," called the finest product of Stoic philosophy. Other bearers of this name in ancient times, according to an authority in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, were Cato, Roman statesman (not the poet); Cicero, greatest orator of Rome; Marcellus, Roman general, five times consul; Trajan, emperor of Rome; Martial, Latin poet and epigrammatist (double war-like names for a man of peace); Quintilian, Roman rhetorician; Regulus, Roman consul general; and Varro, Roman consul general, and Varro, who wrote over 600 books on many subjects.

Daisy, or Marguerite

Daisy is called Marguerite by the Germans and French. Many of the famous women of history whose name contained Marguerite, used the Daisy as their flower. The Welsh derivation means "trembling star." The Scotch derivation was known as Gowan which refers also to the Bell or English Daisy. Eye. The German Meadow Pearl is similar to the popular daisy of our fields. From Germany originated the term "he loves me, he loves me not," and the flower was known as a measure of love, states a writer in the Rural New Yorker. Germans state that "if the last petal which is removed determines the situation unsatisfactorily the young man involved is at liberty to determine otherwise." The daisy was worn by early English royalty on days of festive occasion.

Porky Can Keep Quills Soft

In peaceful mood, the porcupine keeps its quills soft, can be fondled. Aroused, it flexes certain muscles and stiffens the quills. Only two animals attack porcupines under normal conditions. The fisher, a marten, steals up when a "porky" is sleeping, painlessly lifts its throat. The bear circles Mr. Quills until he gets dizzy, falls on his back. Then the bear pounces on him in safety.

Use of Dolls Dates Far

Back Into Earliest Days

The use of dolls—as playthings, ornaments, and symbols of religion and mysticism—dates back to antiquity. Historians have failed to unearth any period in which there were no dolls. Early Oriental mythology abounds with stories of gayly-decorated figures used in religious rites, observes a writer in the Detroit News.

In the Orange Free State in Africa a girl receives a doll when she reaches maturity and keeps it until she has a child of her own. Egyptians throw a life-size doll in the Nile when it rises each year. Chinese mothers hang a doll in front of the house when a child is born. In the village that they are ready and willing to take a husband. In Japan the annual Feast of the Dolls is a gay and impressive ceremony in which hundreds of thousands of children and grown-ups participate.

Psychologists say dolls are useful, not only to amuse, but to educate and to develop imagination and the parental instinct in children. Dolls, they say, are helpful to little boys as well as girls, and any boy under six years old need not fear being called a sissy if he loves and plays with dolls.

Dolls of cave-dwellers were crudely fashioned of mud, stones or bits of wood. Archaeologists have found them in the earliest primitive dwellings, often lying by the side of the remains of children. Through the centuries dolls have taken better form. European craftsmen of the Middle Ages developed great skill in making dolls from wax. Later dolls were made of plaster, easily breakable.

Plunker, Plunker Vote —

A plunker or plunker vote is a vote given to one or more candidates with the idea of improving their chance of election, through voting for less than the possible number. For example, if you vote for one when you could have voted for nine, you increase his chances at the expense of all the others, but only to the extent of one vote.
