Lansing—That federal pump-priming for national recovery is also going to be vote-priming for Governor Frank Murphy in Michigan this fall is rather generally conceded today at the capital city.

Even republican hopefuls are looking a bit wistful, if not downright envious, at the forthcoming gush of millions from Washington, D. C.

Yes, the mad scramble is on for gifts from the Great White Father.

Michigan wants to get its share, as its taxes to the federal government have been more than double the funds it has obtained. Governor Murphy proclaims that he is going to "sit down" on the White House step until Michigan gets all the millions it can grab.

As we pointed out in this column one month ago, the federal spending campaign for 1938 will be no small factor in the forthcoming election. Let's look at the latest developments.

U. S. Funds for Bridge

At Port Huron where he surveyed the Blue Waters International bridge for the first time, Governor Murphy announced that federal funds for a bridge at the Straits of Mackinac was practically assured, that President Roosevelt was "enthusiastic" and that steps would be taken at once to set up a new straits bridge authority including a "nationally-known engineer" as its advisor.

Among the pet dreams of the tourist leaders in Michigan is a bridge at the Straits.

If federal money could be obtained at once to make possible the bridge undertaking, the state administration would have a nice bright red feather in its hat.

At present the resort business men all the way from Berrien county to Gogebic county are miffed at the governor's reform crusade which has halted a rich harvest of tourist nickels, dimes and quarters into slot machines. Many a resort (Continued on next page)

Largest Tax Sale Is Completed In County

The largest tax sale of delinquent taxes in the history of Washtenaw county has just been completed by County Treasurer Charles E. Crittenden and his staff of helpers.

Parcels numbering 28,662 were listed for sale by the Auditor General's department. Of these 16,607 parcels were withheld from the sale by the county treasurer because sufficient payments had been made or because of errors in the list of court orders. Of the parcels listed 468 were sold to individuals and 11,537 were bid to the State of Michigan.

The 28,662 parcels listed represent a tax value of $2,719,668.31; the tax value of parcels withheld was $1,387,526.03; cash received from parcels sold to individuals, $14,814.01; parcels bid to State total $598,072.86; amount paid to county treasurer before sale, $719,255.41.

No other county, with the exception of Wayne, has reported as many sales to individuals.

Any parcel sold to an individual or to the State may be redeemed by the owner or anyone financially interested any time before November 1, 1939 by payment to the county treasurer the amount for which the parcel was sold plus 1 per cent per month from May 1938 to time of redemption.

Any parcel bid to the State may still be purchased by anyone from the Auditor General before the expiration of the redemption period in November 1939, the same as if purchased here during the sale.

The intent of the law is to give the owner of property every possible opportunity to save his property from final sale and to keep it on the tax roll of the county.

Work on the 1939 tax sale, which will be held next May, will begin in September. Installment payments of taxes which have been placed on the ten year moratorium plan should be made before September 1 to avoid penalty and to avoid the delinquent tax being listed for sale next May.

Any past due installment which is not paid will be subject to sale at the following tax sale.

Am. Legion Carnival Opens Here Tonight

Herbert J. McKune Post No. 31 of The American Legion of Chelsea are again sponsoring a carnival, which opens this evening at the corner of West Middle and Wilkinson streets, and will continue through Friday and Saturday.

Under a new ruling set up by the State Highway Department, thoroughfares designated as trunk lines may no longer be closed off for carnivals and like events. The Legion has consequently made arrangements to hold this year's attractions on the West Middle street location.

The usual type of entertainment will be found on the grounds, these consisting of four riding devices, a ferris wheel, tilt-a-whirl, merry-go-round and a kiddies' ride. Concessions of every nature for the amusement of all will also be found on the lot, many of which will be operated by the Legion and the Auxiliary.

A very outstanding feature of the carnival and an added attraction will be a free act which will be presented each evening about 8:30 o'clock. This consists of a funny twisting and somersaulting act by the Steiner Trio, one of America's outstanding novelty bar acts. This act has been widely advertised previously as a laughable cyclone of furious fun. The Legion has, in obtaining this act, kept in mind that clean, humorous fun would be enjoyed to the utmost by the youngsters of the community, as well as the grown-ups. Two performances of the act will be given on Saturday, the first at four o'clock p. m. and the second at the time above mentioned.

The members of the Legion cordially invite everyone to attend the carnival daily, where they guarantee "Fun for All".

Anniversary Celebrated At Salem M. E. Church

The 85th anniversary of Salem Methodist Episcopal church last Sunday, July 3, was an all-around success. The morning service was well attended, and the pastor was assisted by Rev. A. Roedel of Denver, Colo.

About 340 dinner guests were served a delicious chicken dinner between the hours of 11:45 a. m. and 2:30 p. m.

A fine musical program was given in the afternoon, as follows:

Piano duet—Irene and Betty Winter.

Vocal solo—Donna Lou Kalmbach.

Vocal trio—Eunice, Wilma and Dean Schweinfurth.

Violin solo—Mrs. P. M. Broesamle.

Vocal solo—Walter A. Kalmbach.

Accordion solo—Dale Loveland.

Vocal duet—Rev. and Mrs. Salmon.

Piano solo—Harriet Heininger.

Two selections by Rev. Salmon on the Marimba.

Doris Burr gave a reading, Mrs. Militzer, a former Mistress of the paragon, brought a brief message; and the following ministers brought messages of good will:

Rev. Dukes of the First Congregational church, Jackson; Rev. Roedel of Denver, Colo.; Rev. Uhrig of the U. B. church, Waterloo; Rev. Fontaine of St. John's Evangelical church, Rogers Corners; Rev. Camburn of Stockbridge; Rev. Salmon of the Methodist church, Grass Lake; and a former minister, Rev. O. Ertel of Beaverdam, Ohio sent a congratulatory letter which was read by Mrs. P. H. Riemenschneider.

A new pulpit Bible was also dedicated with fitting ceremonies.

The pastor and members of the church gratefully acknowledge the floral offerings by the children of the Michael Schenk family in memory of their parents; the beautiful basket of flowers presented by Mrs. Elvira Clark-Visel; the palms loaned by Bruce Plankell, who also furnished the tent for the day.

GRASS LAKE—Delegates from the Rumanian Orthodox churches of the United States and Canada to the number of 5,000 or more will assemble at the headquarters of the church near Grass Lake on Sunday of this week for a two days session. This is the first meeting of this proportion in the history of the church. It is probable that many of the delegates will remain at the headquarters here for several days. Headquarters for the session will be at the home of Bishop Polcarp at the former Gray Towers, just southwest of Grass Lake. Opportunity will be given the delegates to inspect the extensive properties purchased by the church.—News.

HOWELL—We have heard about and seen grass growing on our main street, but last Friday was the first time that bees swarmed on the main corners of the business district. Friday morning, about 9:30, a swarm of Italian bees flew into the business district from the west, apparently prepared to alight and swarm on the traffic light, but thinking better of their intentions, they chose the west corner of the awning cover of Strobel's grocery store. And there they filled the air with buzzes and bees, kept customers from passing on the sidewalk and entering the store while they fussed about. After awhile, Carl Welcker, properly garbed and protected, put them in a hive—and thus doth the busy bee.—County Press.

DEXTER—When Rev. A. A. Schoen, pastor of St. Andrews Evangelical church, entered the sanctuary for his morning service last Sunday the church was filled with members of the congregation who had come to celebrate the 45th anniversary of the pastor's ordination into the ministry. A brief anniversary service followed the sermon, entitled, "Why I Love the Church," which contained a history of the 45 years.—Leader.

MASON—Back in 1845 the heaviest taxpayer in Stockbridge township was John S. Herd. He owned 800 acres of land and was taxed for $22.84 for the support of the state, county, township and school. Oliver Ladu, with $10.83 levied against him on an improved 180 acres, was the second heaviest taxpayer. In 1845 the valuation of Stockbridge township was $42,445. Last year the township valuation was placed at $1,286,005. The total taxes levied in Stockbridge township in 1937 for state, county and township purposes were $620.45. The tax budget was as follows:

Township purposes	$129.60
School house	10.00
Library	42.44
Highways	77.53
County purposes	254.67
State tax	106.11
	$620.45

"The Eats Are Swell", Campers Say - Lots of Variety and Quantities

"Next in importance to the health and safety of our campers," Scout Camp Director James J. McLaughlin states, "we make sure that every boy gets plenty of wholesome and nourishing food."

A trained chef is in charge of the kitchen. Carefully balanced menus are followed and campers report "The eats are great." Despite the strenuous program of camp, many boys gain weight while at camp.

The Newkirk Scout Camp opened on Sunday, June 26, and will continue for a period of six weeks.

The camp is operated chiefly as a service station to the 54 troops in Washtenaw and Livingston counties but during the last week in July and the first week in August, a limited number of Cubs may attend the camp. Further information may be secured at the Council Office, 324 E. Huron St., Ann Arbor, Mich.

owner has paid his taxes and insurance with slot machine receipts contributed by outstate visitors. And, too, there is still grumbling over the professed inability of the four tourist associations to obtain an interview with the state executive at Lansing.

The Straits bridge offers an ideal truce.

Straits Traffic Mounts

Back of all the pre-campaign speech-making for actually the fall campaign has not yet begun—is a growing realization in Michigan that the proposal for a Straits bridge is supported by some rather convincing facts.

Take the following eye-openers: During the 15 years of ferry operation by the state highway department, traffic has increased from 10,000 vehicles in 1910 to nearly 275,000 last year. In five years the ferry fleet has been doubled. At the present rate of growth Michigan's motor vehicle is due to double within the next 15 years; the number of motor vehicles on public highways is due to increase 40 per cent.

Aerial photographs taken one year ago of the July Fourth traffic jam at the Straits shows a continuous line of waiting cars nearly ten miles long! Happy memories of Michigan as the nation's leading vacation land may depend upon the peak-load ferry service at the Straits. Yet, it is simply impractical to provide enough ferry boats to take care of holiday rushes.

Staggering Relief Load

George Granger, state relief administrator, raised some eyebrows the other day when he announced that approximately 75,000 of the 104,200 persons in Michigan now getting direct relief are unemployed.

No matter how times improve Michigan will have to care for 75,000 citizens who cannot work, Granger reminds.

The problem of unemployment relief is staggering enough, as many industrial centers find as they scrape resources for funds and implore aid from Lansing and Washington. Lansing itself has dipped into 1939 appropriations and special funds for $6,500,000 relief cash.

Taxpayers will hear more of the Michigan problem of unemployed and unemployables, as a referendum will be held in November on the state welfare act.

Deficit $10,000,000

One year ago the state legislature adjourned, leaving a $18,000,000 deficit in the governor's lap.

The generous law-makers, having done a little wealth distributing of their own, had the thoughtfulness to invest the governor with powers of a financial dictator. Harold Smith, budget director, was told to trim expenditures. The deficit has been reduced to about $10,000,000.

According to an Associated Press story from Washington, Michigan and Oklahoma are the only two states in 48 which are going further into the red. Only a half dozen states report budget deficits at all. Oklahoma reports $21,450,000; New York, $10,200,000 as compared with $94,428,496 in 1938; California, $7,600,000. Surplus states include Pennsylvania with $92,695,000; Indiana, $24,000,000; Illinois, $19,124,000; Minnesota, $1,250,000; Wisconsin, "pay-as-you-go"; and Ohio and Rhode Island where state laws require a balance.

Simultaneously with the spending program at Washington, you may expect to hear of an economy program at Lansing.

How far the economies will go is something else.

With relief of unemployed and unemployables and an increased state deficit running side by side at the 1938 half-way mark, the tax problem again surges to the front. After all, the next session of the state legislature is only six months off.

Electric Fence Is Gaining In Usage

Electric fence is covering ground at a shocking rate in Michigan, if a preliminary survey by members of the agricultural engineering department at Michigan State College is an indication.

One manufacturer alone sold nearly 5,000 electric fence installations in 1937 in the state.

With this new type enclosure that facilitates use of pasture that otherwise might go to waste or be used inefficiently, D. G. Ebinger, rural electrification specialist at the college, sees several precautions which farmers can utilize.

Weeds, brush or other green growth touching the electrified wire can cause short circuits. Mowing or removing this growth once or twice a season is recommended.

Many have used old pieces of inner tube or rubber hose for insulating the wire. Weather conditions cause this rubber to check and crack. When water enters, more short circuits result. Porcelain insulators should be used, says Ebinger.

In confining stock for the first time within an electric fence the adjacent green growth should not be too enticing. Gentle training to give the livestock respect for the wire is best.

A few gentle nips on the nose are needed for animals to learn the lesson of the charged wire. Extremely dry weather may mean that an increased voltage is necessary, or a two wire circuit. Rain means reducing the charge to reduce danger.

Electric fence on some farms is completely paying for itself in a season, Ebinger finds. Installation at times cuts out 90 per cent of the cost of conventional fencing. Additional information is contained in "Electric Fencing," Michigan State College Agricultural Engineering Department Bulletin No. 28-776.

CHILDREN IN COURT

Judge Malcolm Hatfield

Ridiculing the Church and School
An unusual case was recently referred to the juvenile court, in which an adolescent girl displayed a pronounced hostility toward the church, school and public officials.

A careful investigation by an officer of the court revealed that the girl's parents had, on numerous occasions, in her presence, ridiculed the appearance of certain teachers, ministers and police officers. Her respect for these institutions, as well as for law and order, was greatly undermined, because she felt that religion was a racket, and that the average public official was a grating politician.

The wise parent upholds the church and upholds the school teacher in all she says, even though she may sometimes have made a somewhat hasty decision. It is far more satisfactory to discuss a grievance with a teacher privately, with thorough frankness, than to abuse her in the child's presence. Once children learn that the home, school and church stand united, they will think twice before breaking rules and regulations.

The "Dolmen Builders"

From 3,000 to 5,000 years ago there lived a race of people now often called "Dolmen Builders." Remains of their work have been found in Great Britain, France, Spain, Italy, Germany, Malta, Sardinia, northern Africa, and Asia. In southern England, near Salisbury, is Stonehenge. The Dolmen Builders appear to have been worshippers of the sun. Some of them were buried just outside the circle, or "cromlech," of Stonehenge. The Dolmen Builders lived in the late Stone age and in the Bronze age.

Snoring, Chronic Condition

Snoring, which results from disturbance in the breathing apparatus, is a chronic condition of at least 18,000,000 Americans. Among its many direct causes, says Collier's Weekly, the most unusual is the eating of certain foods that affect the membranes of the nose.

Irrespective of country, the Koran is never read in a Moslem temple in any language but Arabic, and the Jewish Roll of the Law, or the Biblical books of the Hexateuch, the Haglographa and the Prophets, is never read in a synagogue from anything but hand-lettered parchment, says Collier's Weekly.

was burned to the ground on Sunday afternoon.

A great many acres of cucumbers are being planted in Waterloo township this season for the sake of the seed which brings 20 cents per pound.

The present cool nights, together with the exceptionally backward spring, are greatly retarding the growth of the farmers' crops, especially corn.

The huckleberry crop in Freedom promises to be good; but the marshes are very wet.

Many Summer Tours To Thrill Children

Unless your memory is bad you'll still relish some of the most enjoyable excursions of your childhood, suggests Catherine G. Miller, director of the nursery school of Michigan State College.

So she points out some of the summer "extra occasions" which parents can devise for children.

Now that snow suits and galoshes are put away for a few weeks there is time to think about, and also to do, some of the trips. Not only do they add to the enjoyment of childhood and keep the boy or girl satisfied that his or her parents are about the best and most thoughtful, but they add to the growing store of knowledge.

For the city child of three years, Miss Miller suggests trips to a farm, to see a train or such things as a cement mixer. Sounds simple? Remember when you were a child and then you'll realize it's a good idea.

For the country three-year-old it's fun to see a train closeup or to go marketing. For the four-year-old of city or country Miss Miller suggests visiting a garage, a fire station, an airport or a shoemaker's shop.

Be alert to what's and why's that pop up during these little educational journeys, is the warning, but don't force conversation. Remember it's more fun for the child to make the discoveries than it is for the adult to show off his knowledge.

No Outlets to Sea
Paraguay and Bolivia are the only nations of the New world which have no outlet to the sea.

With the coming of summer, the number of bicycles in the streets have increased.

Because bicycle accidents have become quite numerous recently, a planned safety program is essential. City bike ordinances should be strictly enforced.

A few important rules bike riders should obey are:

1. Give hand signals before stopping or turning.
2. Keep close to the curb, on the right side of the road.
3. Equip your bicycle with a front white light and a rear reflecting red light.
4. Ride with both hands on the handlebars and never carry other passengers on your bike.
5. Obey all traffic laws and regulations.

M. S. C. Laboratory Finds How Foods Spoil

Newly expanded is the research food laboratory of Michigan State College where bacteriologists are finding out what makes foods spoil and what makes them keep well.

Through work under the direction of Dr. E. W. Fabian the information is passed along to many of the processors of Michigan's agricultural products. Makers and consumers of such delicacies as salad dressing, pickles, canned vegetables and fruits can thank the laboratory for adding to information.

One typical fact ascertained by the college staff is that a small quantity of lactic acid can be substituted for vinegar or acetic acid. This improves the flavor of pickles and relishes and makes them keep better.

Then in spicing foods, Dr. Fabian's staff has learned that spices often hasten spoilage rather than preserve foods. Even the average housewife can use this fact this summer. The warning is to use sterile spices in making summer preserves.

Graduate assistants comprise those who work in the laboratory. Those who have worked with food preservation problems in the past few months or are now engaged in the work include Robert G. Switzer and Robert Thompson, Lansing; Dan Richardson, Royal Oak; Catherine Krehl, Detroit; E. A. Johnson, East Lansing; Norman Little, Sault Ste. Marie; Vance Kennedy, Imlay City; Donald Swayze, Saginaw; and C. K. Wadsworth, Bangor, Maine.

Michigan Bell Taxes Show Sharp Increase

Total tax bills of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company for 1937 amounted to $5,066,000, an increase of 14 1/2 per cent, or $637,000, over the previous year, it was revealed at Lansing Thursday, June 30, by Frank L. Hall, the company's tax attorney, when he handed a check for $1,413,954.90 to State Auditor General George T. Gundry. The check represented one-half of the $2,827,909.80 the Michigan Bell will pay into the state primary school fund, the other half to be paid before November 1.

The Michigan Bell Company's 1937 tax bill is divided as follows: To the State of Michigan, property tax, $2,828,000; other taxes to the state, $255,000; to the Federal Government, $1,948,000; to others, principally municipalities, on property that is not at present used in operation of the telephone business, $35,000.

The company's state property taxes constitute the largest payment by any public utility into the primary school fund, from which it will be returned to the 83 counties of the state in proportion to their school population, thus going directly into local school channels.

This tax bill amounted to $8.02 per telephone. The net operating revenue from one-third of the company's 681,614 telephones was required to meet the bill. The taxes amounted to $556.00 per employee, were equal to 40 per cent of the operating payroll, and accounted for more than 18 per cent of the company's total expenses.

Under the Michigan law, telephone companies, and telegraph railway, express and car-loading companies pay taxes to the state, in lieu of local taxes, on property and plant used and useful in conducting their businesses, such taxes being placed in the primary school fund.

Hints To Swimmers

In an effort to decrease the number of early season drownings the American Red Cross recommends that the following suggestions be adhered to:

1. Don't try to swim too far the first time in the water. So many persons figure that they can swim as far the first day of the season as they did the latter part of last season. They forget the matter of conditioning and water temperature and before they know it they're out away from land and too exhausted to get back. If there is no help available they drown.
2. Don't swim alone under any conditions. Even the best swimmers go down. If you want to test your endurance have someone go along beside you in a boat.
3. Don't go swimming for at least two hours after meals. Many people claim that they go in immediately after eating, with no ill effects, but all we can say to them is that they have been very lucky and should be more cautious in the future.
4. Don't stay in the water for too long periods of time, in the early season, for you get cold easily and lay yourself open to cramps and to summer colds.
5. Select a place to swim that is adequately protected with properly trained guards.
6. Don't dive into unknown waters. If you must go swimming in a strange place always wade in or jump into shallow water feet first.
7. Increase your swims a little every day until you get in good condition. Strive to perfect your swimming form. And always exercise your best judgment.

July 26th Deadline Set for Filing Petitions

Candidates for the nomination for the offices of Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Representatives in Congress, State Senator, Representative to the State Legislature and County officials on the Democratic and Republican tickets must file their nomination petitions not later than 5:00 p. m., Eastern Standard Time, Tuesday, July 26, according to Act 351 of the Michigan Public Acts of 1925. Candidates also will be nominated to fill the vacancies in the office of Circuit Judge in the seventh, seventeenth and thirty-second Judicial Circuits. In districts comprising more than one county, the candidates must file their petitions with the Secretary of State, and in single county districts, candidates file their petitions with the county clerk.

The minimum number of petitioners whose names must be signed to petitions of candidates for the office of Governor and Lieutenant Governor is prescribed by the election laws, as being equal to not less than one per cent of the vote polled in the last preceding November election for the office of Secretary of State, by the party of the candidate filing the petitions. However, petitions must not bear more than four times the number of names, the minimum provided by law.

Further provisions on this point are that petitions must be signed by at least one hundred residents in each of at least twenty counties of the state, and no more than twenty-five per cent of the minimum required number of signatures being those of voters residing in any one county. These latter provisions apply to candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor only. Democratic candidates for these two offices must file petitions bearing at least 8,486 names; Republican candidates must file their petitions bearing at least 8,068 names.

Name Colette French-Latin

The name Colette or Coletta is of French-Latin origin and means "a necklace" or "a small collar." The name may also be a contraction of Nicolette, a feminine diminutive of the Greek Nicholas, meaning "victorious," or "victory of the people." In that case, Nicolette and Colette would mean "victorious little one." St. Colette was a member of the third order of St. Francis, who told her in a vision to institute the reform of that order. At the council of Constance her advice was instrumental in healing the Great Schism by the election of Martin V as pope.

Question And Answer Dept.

Problem—What is the proper way to pronounce the capital of Kentucky—Looie-ville or Lewis-ville? (Answer elsewhere in this department).

Ques.—Why does the pupil of your eye get smaller when you go out of doors after you have been for awhile in the dark?

Ans.—This is a device of Nature to adjust the amount of light that enters the eye so that the retina will not be damaged by too strong a light. It is exactly the same thing that you do with the diaphragm back of the lens of a camera. When the light is strong you use a smaller diaphragm in order not to over-expose the film.

Ques.—I would like to know if birds have to change the motion of their wings to dart around hither and thither with lightning-like rapidity?

Ans.—No. Birds, insects, etc. control their bodies while suspended in the air much the same as we do when we are in contact with the earth. The action of their wings keep them suspended in the air. They can fly upside down, go fast or slow, or even stop without increasing or lessening the speed vibration of their wings.

Answer to problem—Neither one. The proper way to pronounce the capital of Kentucky is "Frank-fort", with the accent on the first syllable.

Ques.—We read in the papers about Hitler's "Anschluss". What does that word mean?

Ans.—"Anschluss" means "union" or "united".

Ques.—What is the religion of the Egyptians?

Ans.—Idol worship is the religion of the Egyptians. They believe that life is a sacred thing. That all that produced and all that ended life is sacred. Hence death is sacred, too. The Egyptian lives in the contemplation of death. His coffin is made in his lifetime; his ancestors were embalmed. Their sovereign's tomb was built to last for, not centuries, but thousands of years. Their various idols represent their various gods through which they worship.

Ques.—Where, when and by whom were the first settlers of Pennsylvania?

Ans.—Pennsylvania was first settled in 1638 by the Swedes, who located in the vicinity of what later became known as Chester.

Ques.—What are the requirements for a person to be eligible for the presidency of the United States?

Ans.—For a person to be eligible to become President of the United States, he must be a natural-born citizen of this nation, a resident of this country for fourteen years, and must be 35 years old or over. If you meet these requirements you may toss your hat in the ring.

Ques.—I wish to ask you what the initials "I. N. R. I.", which was placed over the head of Jesus at the crucifixion, mean?

Ans.—Those are the initials of the Latin term "Iesus (Jesus) Nazarenus Rex Iudaeorum (Judas)", which, translated into English, means Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews.

Ques.—Was James Whitcomb Riley

an American poet? If so, where was his home?

Ans.—James Whitcomb Riley was an American poet. He died at his home in Richmond, Ind., in 1916 at the age of 64 years.

IF FLOWERS OF EARTH

If flowers of earth so beautify Green fields and meadows fair, Transfigure photograph through dew And springtime balmy air, What must ethereal meadows In gorgeous beauty be, Where sweet aromas ever flow In purest harmony?

The beauty of our fairest flowers Is only for a day; A sting, a chilly blast, a frost, And beauty fades away. O may we prize the perfume sweet Of Sharon's choicest flower, And ever here by faith inhale From Heaven's most perfumed bower.

Mr. "Watts-His-Name" says

"She looked daggers at the ice man..."

Poor fellow. It wasn't his fault that the butter ran and the milk soured, for ice that melts is the real villain.

A new electric refrigerator is what this lady needs—a constant supply of cold and ice that never melts.

If every woman who is still "taking ice" in the old fashioned way could enjoy one of these beautiful new electric refrigerators for only one day, she would no sooner think of going back to the old ice box than her husband would trade his car for a horse and buggy.

Your appliance dealer will be only too glad to supply a refrigerator on trial if you'll supply the space in your kitchen.

Auto Accidents in Michigan During 1937

SOMEONE INJURED
EVERY 17 MINUTES
... You May Be Next!

Does that frighten you? We hope it does. That's plain, blunt and cruel, isn't it? But almost every accident is the result of someone's carelessness. Are you the guilty one?

No—a thousand times no—you say. The careless driver seldom admits his fault because careless drivers are not always aware of the fact that they are endangering the lives of pedestrians and other motorists. They don't all know the law and because they have been driving for years they feel that any mishap must be the other fellow's fault. Long experience in driving does not make a good driver. Give us the one who is not too cocksure of his ability to avoid an accident. Give us the driver who will be courteous. Give us the careful driver of little experience who respects life and property.

LIBRARY NEWS

A good book answers the need for relaxation during the summer months and it is this service that your Public Library is furnishing its patrons.

Periodically throughout the summer, lists of new books will be brought to you through this column—books that you will find helpful for pastime and information.

During the month of June the circulation passed the 800 mark—449 books being issued to adults and 374 for juvenile use.

If you enjoyed the work of Hervey Allen in his "Anthony Adverse" and wish to taste his versatility of style, delve into the pages of his late book, "Action at Aquila." From veterans who lived through the conflicts of the Civil War, Mr. Allen has gathered authentic material for his background. Against these facts he paints a most fascinating tale of war and romance—the vivid conflict mellowed by the human interest that trickles through its pages. It involves both the older and younger generations.

Following is the new group that you may find on your Public Library shelves:

Adult
Forty Years for Labrador—Greenfell.

Murder on Safari—Huxley.
Powder Smoke—Gregory.
My America—Adamic.

Fighting Caravans—Grey.
Acts of Black Night—Knight.
Rich Girl, Poor Girl—Baldwin.

Case of Substitute Face—Gardner.
How to Win Friends and Influence People—Carnegie.

How to Estimate Your Driving Costs
Computed by Standard Oil Company (Ind.)

First cut out the scale along the dotted line and place it on the map of a round trip, starting and ending with the "starting point" on the wheel nearest your home. Then swing the scale around until its edge touches the place you wish to visit.

From the figures on the scale you can determine the number of miles, gallons of gas, and cost of the trip.

"Oh—Mr. Mulgrew. Won't you come up? I was expecting Dale. Is—did he send me a message?"

"No, he didn't," Pink ascended the steps and glanced about uncertainly. "I want to talk to you a minute. You see, Miss Lee, I don't know you so very good. But you always struck me as being pretty square. Of course, I'm wise to you and the kid. I'm the first one he spilled it to. You're pretty strong for him, too. I'm wondering just how much you'd do for him if he was in a jam."

"Is Dale in trouble? Oh, please tell me what it is, Pink!"

"I'm afraid he is. The kid's got to try and kill me when he finds I come here. But somebody's got to do something for him and you're the only one I know who can bring him around."

"You can tell me, Pink. There is nothing in the world I wouldn't do for Dale."

"Well then, Miss Lee, I'm a lot older than you. It's a queer world any way you want to look at it. Did you ever stop to figure that when a guy climbs through the ropes, he—well, he don't have such a hell of a lot to say about it. He goes to his corner and waits for the gang. Sometimes, just sometimes, I say, this match is fixed ahead of time. Wonder if you get that?"

"You mean," Lee hazarded in a low voice, "that something happened to Dale. Something that wasn't his fault at all?"

"Yeah. His bout was fixed. That's it."

"I think I know what you're trying to tell me, Pink," Lee said after a little. "I'm thinking of Dale. Nothing else matters."

"You mean it, Miss Lee? You mean you stick by what you said—about doing anything for the kid?"

"Yes, Pink. Anything."

"Gawd! Excuse me, Miss Lee. You're actin' awful white about it. I know what sent the kid down."

"That's a tough one," Mulgrew admitted morosely.

for the count today. He was thinking about you. What it was going to do to you. I know that, same as if he'd told me."

"What can we do, Pink? You and I?" Lee asked soberly.

"That's a tough one," Mulgrew admitted morosely. "I can't drag the dominie into this so much. You see, he told me the whole thing a long time ago. You gotta take my word for it he had his reasons for never tellin' the kid. Until today."

"You see—well the kid is tellin' the dominie all about his new job. When he gets around to sayin' the name of the boss . . ."

"Never mind, Pink. I can guess."

"You're one ahead of me all the time. Can you beat that one? Twenty years and never a word of the guy, like I said. Worse'n a story book."

"Where is Dale?"

"Can't say for sure. He walked out. I tried to stop him. It woulda meant a fight. I didn't have the heart to smear him. Maybe I should, at that."

"But suppose he doesn't come back? Pink, he told me all about his mother. I know as well as you do what this is doing to him. We must help him! We must find him! And you don't know where he is."

"Maybe I don't. But it don't stop me from havin' a good guess. If you say you want him, I'll dig him out. That's a promise, Miss Lee."

"Oh, is it? Pink? I'll wait. Until tomorrow. You won't fail me!"

"Not a chance. Not a chance."

CHAPTER XIV

Dale pushed on. His torturing reflections did not drive him as far afield as Pink suspected. He made his way out over a road that passed a woodland patch not far from the town limit. It was dark among the trees. Gratefully dark. There was nearness of rain in the unreasonable warmth.

Dale vaulted a fence and stumbled through the crackling underbrush, heedless of briars that caught and tore at his knees in passing. When he found himself in a small clearing, safe from the prying gleam of hurrying car lamps, he flung himself to the ground under a tree.

Alone at last with his seething thoughts.

So far, there had been only the wild urge to escape. From everything. Everybody. A vague realization that he must give battle to life, reach a decision of sort. But his brain refused to function. He crouched alone in a mad upside-down world. Hands clenched in anguish. Host to a stormy panorama of distorted images.

Through it all, over it all, the name he had been unable to force from his lips, back there in the study. How long ago. That was the memory his battered consciousness desired most of all to crush. Even as his fingers tried to mutilate the tangible evidence—and failed.

Elaine. Elaine.

Her face watching him through all this nightmare. It would not be blotted out. No matter how he beat at it with his bare heart.

That hurrying maddening procession, twinging past his staring eyes. Where was the end?

A host of puzzling shadows forging by. Taking shape at last. Those were puns streaming from bobbing lance tips. Clearer. The half-forgotten game of dreams. Old guests of the Table Round. Men-at-arms astride their phantom charges. Bearings in confused masses of color. A pageant without voice or hoofbeat. Heralds with mute trumpets.

And ever present in the motley of mail, a lone rider. Coming out again, hidden behind arms that bore no device. Blank.

The shield argent.

Dale's arm was upflung across his face to shut away the picture. He rolled over and pressed his eyes deep among the dead leaves. Sobs broke from him.

"Elaine."

When that first storm had spent itself, the boy who had been Dale Farwell roused and stared dully at his surroundings. At the trees looming darkly on all sides. It was the same world he had seen slip from beneath his feet. He still was in it, if no longer of it.

For the moment his mind refused to recognize the present or future. He must go back a little, reconstruct his chaos. Adjust himself to a perspective of some sort. Slowly, matters began to right themselves in his numb brain. It came back to him how his father—

That was it. He had no father. But he did! He was the son of Ward Kelsey. That should have been his name, too. No right to that other of which he had been so proud. Who was Jonathan Farwell? Only his mother's husband. A man who had been kind to him for her sake. Had he?

This man of God. Who stood up on each Sunday and told people how to be good. Live righteous lives, hate sin. And he let me live this life. He lived it, too. Why? Why? All these years giving himself to the task of saving souls. What about his own soul? What about . . .

The Lady Lee.

No use to push that out of his mind any longer. The thing that mattered most of all. He groaned softly to himself.

She was waiting for him now—somewhere in this soft darkness. He had promised. His last words had told her that nothing could ever keep them apart. How could he ever tell her? He couldn't. Never to see her again . . .

What would they tell her when she called the parsonage? What would he say in the message he must send before he went away from all this? That he had made a mistake? That she must try to forget? To have to hurt her so. No right even to look at her. Never to hold her close . . .

The warm perfume of her hair . . . He couldn't stand this. If only he could start on that trip to the wilderness. Bury himself forever. Another dream shattered. He never wanted to see that man. Hear his name. Didn't dare see him.

There were other wildernesses. He would find them. Only ask to be forgotten. No riding out with colors now.

The clouds lowered. Rain drops rattled sharply on the leaves, drummed sullenly, died with reluctant drippings. A few pale stars struggled out to watch the dim form huddled close to its protecting tree.

Dale rose painfully to his feet. Blundered on. Deeper into the woods.

Pink Mulgrew stood watch alone in his kitchen until the first streaks of dawn tinged the east and Albert Hickman arrived with a clink of milk bottles. Pink had passed the hours tipped back in a chair, heels resting on the table as he sat staring at the wall and lighting one cigarette after the other.

He had gone several times to the back porch to peer into the darkness and to listen. Then into the parlor, only to hear that monotonous pacing overhead.

When the clock chimed four, Pink flipped a half-smoked cigarette into the sink, rose and bathed his face in cold water. "I'll be goin' nuts myself if this thing keeps up much longer," he grumbled, smoothing back his hair with wet hands.

A moment later, he rapped hesitatingly on the knob and peered cautiously into the room.

The light still burned. Jonathan Farwell, his face drawn and haggard and suddenly old, turned to face his visitor.

Dale had not come back, were his first words.

"Not yet, Dominie."

"I have lost him too," Farwell offered in a curiously flat voice. "Gone." The finality stirred Mulgrew to action.

"Talk sense," he countered roughly. "You know that kid's no quitter. Any more'n you. Sit down. Tell yourself together."

With unexpected docility the minister sank to a seat on the bed.

"He'll come back," the little man insisted. "You been carryin' this around ever since he was born. The kid got it all in one package. What do you expect? He's had to go out by himself and work it out. Same as you've been doin'. When he gets here, he'll be fixed to talk. Then you and him can get together."

"Why should he come to me? I drove him away. My punishment is almost greater than I can bear. Pinckney, I tried to carry it alone. Did I do wrong? Did I?"

"Listen, Dominie. I can't tell you. I reckon I'd have done the same as you. You wasn't sure. I mean you never had it in black and white. You know what I'm tryin' to say."

"What else was there to believe?" Farwell persisted. "There never was anything else to believe. God forgive me, I hoped the man was dead. Now he comes out of the past."

"One of them things. That's all." "If there was any doubt," was the bitter retort, "why did that man hide himself all these years? Why did he not find me? Why? There is no answer. To anything in life."

Pink came nearer. He stood looking down at the crumpled figure.

"Dominie," he began slowly, "ain't very good at sayin' things. But ain't you sorta runnin' out on yourself tonight? And on the kid? You know . . ."

Pink hesitated, then summed up: "I always let you handle the church end. But here's how all this hits me. If God's all you figure, why's He lettin' our kid sit in a crooked game? No, sir. The kid's a square shooter. You can't tell me no different. Dope it out for yourself."

Nine o'clock found the parsonage enveloped in silence.

Jonathan Farwell still lay across his bed where Mulgrew had left him several hours before. Exhausted by the storm that had swept his heart and brain, sleep at last had claimed the minister. Pink was in the living room where he had stretched himself on the couch to wait Dale's coming.

The chiming of the clock brought him to his feet, staring and rubbing his eyes.

A distinct uneasiness possessed him when he realized that his watch had been kept in vain. Dale had not returned. Satisfied by the quiet overhead that Farwell must be resting, Pink stole softly to his kitchen to brew a pot of coffee.

As he swallowed a hasty breakfast he was formulating a plan of action. He had promised Miss Lee to find the kid and he must make his effort at once. Maybe he should leave a note for the dominie. Not a bad idea, that. It would save making explanations before he started out.

While Pink still was struggling with a reassuring message, he swore audibly at the sound of the door bell. Muttering to himself, he hurried to answer it before his employer should be roused. It might be some word from the kid.

The man standing on the porch was a stranger. Pink decided in one hasty appraisal that the caller had nothing to do with the day's main business.

"Well?" was his ungracious greeting.

"I would like to see Dr. Farwell, if I may."

"Sorry. Not today."

"You mean he is not at home?"

"He can't see nobody."

"I trust he is not ill. My business is rather urgent, I believe."

Before Pink could repeat his refusal, a voice spoke from within the hall.

"Just a moment, Pinckney. Who is it?"

Jonathan Farwell came slowly down the stairs and crossed to the front door.

"Good morning," he began calmly. "Did you wish to see me?"

"Dr. Farwell?"

"Yes. Come in."

Pink fell back reluctantly and allowed the visitor to enter. Eyed him uneasily as he walked into the parlor, followed by the minister.

The atmosphere of the front room was charged with sudden tenseness as the two men faced each other. The stranger broke the silence. He spoke bluntly.

"We have never met, Doctor Farwell."

"No. It was a colorless word. But I am not surprised to see you now."

"Then you know I'm Wade Kelsey."

The name had no sooner left the speaker's lips than the door leading to the dining room was closed abruptly. By an unseen hand. The unexpected sound recalled Farwell to the duties of host.

"Will you be seated?"

"Thank you. We can talk here?"

"If you feel it necessary."

"We are alone, I mean?"

Jonathan Farwell walked to the hall door. He closed it and came back to the nearest chair, dropping wearily to its cushioned seat. A few brief hours had aged him perceptibly. His shoulders sagged. The white face was pinched and drawn.

"Perhaps this is more difficult than I realized." A slight hesitancy marked Kelsey's attempt. Sudden sympathy filled him. This man was suffering. He was ill. "Can you understand what brings me here?" he ventured. "I suppose you know that I have met Dale."

"He told me so. He is gone."

"Gone? I don't quite understand. Isn't he out at the university?"

"He came here. To tell me about you."

WATERLOO CIRCUIT
U. B. CHURCH

Rev. R. E. Uhrig, Pastor

The U. B. church of Waterloo will celebrate its 64th year of dedication with special services, this Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

It is very unusual that a church building stands the test of a half century and more in its original dedication. Thus the church in Waterloo stands as it was originally dedicated by its founders.

The United Brethren denomination is the second oldest in Jackson county. There were formally six points to the old Jackson Circuit of which the Waterloo church was a part.

The following program will be rendered at the morning services, beginning at 10 a. m.:

Doxology—Congregation.
Invocation—Pastor.

Special duet—Miss Leona Moeckel and Miss Wilma Runciman.
Reading of the Scripture.

Special number by the Ladies' Quartet.

Prayer—By the pastor.
Vocal solo—Miss Annabelle Vicary.

Address—"Church and its Influence"—Prof. Gorton Reithmiller, of Highland Park high school.

Violin solo—Mrs. Orson Beeman.
Founder's Day offering.

Benediction.
The general public is invited. Come! Join in the service with us. We appreciate your presence.

Robert Morris Financial Aid in Washington's Time

Robert Morris, called the "financier of the (American) Revolution," was born in England, January 31, 1734, but came to the Colonies when he was just a boy and began to build a considerable fortune.

A member of the Continental congress, he was reluctant at first to sign the Declaration of Independence. After he had changed his mind, writes Leslie Hartley in the Washington Star, his financial aid proved invaluable, and without his help Washington's soldiers at Valley Forge and at the battles of Princeton and Trenton would have found it almost impossible to survive.

An optimist and a born promoter, Morris possessed an uncanny ability to secure loans which served the Continental army well throughout the war. When Washington was forming his cabinet he requested Morris to serve as secretary of the treasury, but the latter declined, naming Alexander Hamilton in his stead. He served in congress, however, as one of the first two senators from Pennsylvania.

It was the irony of fate that the affairs of the "King of American financiers" should become so involved that he was thrown into prison for his debts, to be released only under the bankruptcy act. He died a few years later, a broken-hearted old man.

Belong to Channel Islands

The states of Jersey belong to the Channel islands, situated off the northwest coast of France. The Channel islands are the only portions of the dukedom of Normandy belonging to the crown of England, to which they have been attached since the Conquest.

Second Largest Lake

For its altitude, Lake Tahoe in California, is the second largest lake in the world—only surpassed by Titicaca in the South American Andes. Twenty-two miles long by 12 miles wide, more than a mile above sea level in the tall Sierra, its depth in at least one part is more than 1,600 feet. Yet it isn't size alone for which Tahoe is noted. It is the combination of royal blue water and deep green pine, and the startling climb of frosty peaks, jumping to a quick 9,000 feet to inclose the lake on all sides.

Gourd That Grows Disfrags

The Luffa is a gourd which when ripe has a thin paper shell filled with a network of strong fibers, which are used for dishcloths, or sponges in bathing, hence the name of vegetable sponge or dishrag gourd. The bottle gourd is Lagenaria, which has sweet-scented white flowers, followed by the curious hard-shelled fruit. The calabash gourd, whose fruits are used to make bowls and dippers, is also a Lagenaria. This is not the tropical calabash, which is the hard-shelled fruit of a tree belonging to the Bigonia, or trumpet vine family; the smooth, woody, globular fruits measure a foot or more in diameter. They are used to make various domestic utensils.

Diviners Credited With Finding Water With Twig

Many a farm has been saved from ruin by the aid of a man holding in his hands a bent hazel twig or even a thin bar of metal, asserts a writer in Pearson's London Weekly.

Water courses are continually changing. A farm that was well supplied with water a few years ago may today be facing perpetual drought. It is then that the diviner is called in. He walks slowly over the ground; the stick held bent into a bow in his hands.

Suddenly the rod twitches like a live thing, almost jumping from the hand of its holder.

"There's your water," says the diviner. "He also tells you how far down you will have to dig. Boring machinery is obtained, and sure enough, at the depth forecast by the diviner, the precious liquid is struck.

Scientists are baffled by the diviners. Science can find no adequate explanation of their powers, powers which no instrument can imitate. Various theories have been put forward from time to time, but none of them satisfactory.

Magic, telepathy, some sixth sense... what is the answer to the riddle?

Muskrat Builds Home He Can Live In, Also Eat

One of the rarest kinds of homes is one that can be eaten as well as lived in. The muskrat sometimes builds such a home in the form of the familiar house of flags which is so often seen in marshes.

Most often these houses are made of the flag plant which produces the well-known cat-tail. The leaves, stems, and roots are used in constructing the dwelling. These parts of the plant also form the main items in the muskrat's diet, especially when the plant is green. But when the rats become hard pressed for food, dried cat-tails are eaten too. And this is the time their homes come in handy, for they write Clarence Taube in the Detroit News.

Under close examination the muskrat house reveals itself as being quite an elaborate construction. Their conical shapes vary in size, ranging from 4 to 8 feet in diameter at the base and from only 2 or 3 feet in height to as high as 5 feet. From their broad bases they usually taper to a much smaller circumference at the top.

Above the water line over the base, living room is provided for. Entrance is made from below the water surface, each house usually having several entrances.

No matter how severe a spell of cold weather may suddenly strike, the house rat is not frozen out of a supply of food. When a hard winter comes a muskrat colony can begin eating its dwelling and grow fat on this diet.

Latin Values Important When Speaking Chinese

In pronouncing Chinese names the important thing to remember is that all vowels in the ordinary spellings have their Latin values and not their English values, that is, a, e, i, o, u are pronounced as, eh, ee, oa, oo. There is a u with two dots on top (German umlaut), but that never gets printed in newspapers, being spelled like ordinary u, which is of course confusing to the reader, according to a Chinese authority in the New York Times.

Once in a while a Chinese spells his name according to English values, as in the case of T. V. Soong, but T. V. "Soong" (English values) rhymes perfectly with H. H. "Kung" (Latin values).

The Chinese make an important distinction between aspirated and unaspirated consonants: k and k', ch and ch', p and p'. But Americans can ignore this distinction; since they cannot make it, and especially since this distinction is usually ignored in newspaper spellings. Unaspirated ch in Chiang Kai-shek is very much like j, while aspirated ch in Chen is pronounced like the regular ch, as in church.
