Potato Referendum To Be Held In August

The referendum on the proposed Potato Marketing Agreement for the 17 late potato producing states will be held either the second or third week in August, according to the latest information received by the Washtenaw County Agricultural Conservation Committee.

"The proposed marketing agreement," according to Harry M. Cole, secretary, Washtenaw County Agricultural Conservation Association, "prohibits the interstate shipment of cull potatoes. Cull potatoes are those grading below U. S. No. 2 or those which are less than 1½ inches in diameter. The agreement also provides that producers, through representatives on their area committees, can recommend to the Secretary of Agriculture that out-of-state potato shipments be further limited to still higher grades or larger sizes. Thus the program could limit interstate shipments to better quality potatoes, protecting consumers from inferior grades and restricting wastage and by-product use to those grades least desirable for table use."

"Last year's marketing agreement in Michigan," Mr. Cole added, "prohibited the shipment of culls less than 1½ inches in diameter. Later in the season the size was increased to include all No. 2 grades. The effect of these two regulations, particularly the latter, was to increase the farm value of Michigan potatoes about 20 cents a bushel."

"The quantity of potatoes consumed varies very little from year to year. But potato acreage and yield per acre fluctuates greatly. Consequently, when the volume of potatoes available for sale exceeds the quantity consumers will buy, the excess supply quickly depresses the market price. Statistics from 1922 to 1937 show that whenever the production of potatoes from the 17 late states exceeds 270 million bushels per year, the farm value dropped sharply. The marketing agreement, through prohibiting the interstate shipment of the inferior grades, would thus limit the volume of potatoes on the market, stabilizing the price for the producers, and assure the consumer of high grade potatoes."

Gundry Compiles Facts for State's Taxpayers

Lansing—Auditor General George T. Gundry has compiled for the tax-paying public, a list of pertinent facts regarding Michigan property that is delinquent for taxes and has been placed on the 10-year plan. Mr. Gundry pointed out that the fourth installment of 1932 and prior years and the second installment of 1933, '34 and '35 must be paid prior to September 1st of this year in order to avoid extra penalty and tax inasmuch as the law provides that property upon which current installments are not paid are to be offered for sale in May of 1939 for the unpaid balance of the installment.

Gundry reminded the tax-paying public that all moratorium payments are to be made only to the county treasurer of the county in which the property is located. Gundry reminded tax-payers of the last minute rush during the latter part of last August, and urged tax-payers to immediately contact their respective county treasurers.

He said that delay until the close of the payment period would mean unnecessary standing in line and would result in confusion and extra work in the county treasurer's office.

KIWANIS TEAM LOSES

The Chelsea Kiwanis softball team, which overwhelmingly defeated the South Lyon Kiwanis team in two games played recently, met more than their equal on Monday night when they were opposed by the Dexter Kiwanis at the Boy Scout camp near Dexter. The final score of the game was 8 to 5 in favor of the neighboring town. Guental and McLaughlin pitched for the local team and were just about overcome by the heat, which was the alibi of the local boys, in addition to poor base running which helped to contribute to the defeat.

Following the ball game the Chelsea club enjoyed the hospitality of the Boy Scouts, who served a sumptuous supper to the group and later put on a short program for the pleasure of their visitors.

Lansing—Michigan is beginning to catch up with New England in summer theaters.

Two playhouses are thriving this summer in the north Michigan tourist belt around Charlevoix and Mancelona. Keyed to the fact that summer residents want night entertainment as well as day-time outdoor sports, the Mancelona Playhouse near Charlevoix has presented two New York dramatic successes, "Double Door" and "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" while the Portage Point Players near Mancelona opened their season with "First Lady" by George Kaufman, being followed by "Yes, My Darling Daughter" by Mark Reed. Other plays at Portage Point are "Meet the Wife" by Lynn Starling and "Private Lives" by Noel Coward.

Whether it is a barn dance or a Broadway comedy, people crave the enjoyment of self expression and the vanity of recognition.

Summer theaters are a healthful development in our 300-million-dollar industry—the tourist business.

Festival Spirit

That Michigan is festival-minded has been long recognized.

Communities first sponsored festivals in thanksgiving for bountiful harvests. The "Blossom Time" and "National Cherry" festivals are two illustrations which prove the point. Rapidly they have grown to be tourist attractions of the first magnitude, appealing to the universal love of beauty.

Whether it be at Interlochen where band concerts are held or near Hartford where church musicians gather for summer institutes, you will find Michigan a bee-hive of festival activity during the summer season.

One of the most unique festivals, however, is the "Showboat" at Low.

Dog Show Will Be Held This Week Saturday

Arrangements have been completed for the dog show and parade which will be held Saturday, sponsored by Schneider & Kusterer. It is expected that a large number of children will bring their dogs for the event.

Prizes will be awarded to the biggest dog, homeliest dog, best costumed dog, dog with shortest tail, prettiest dog, smallest dog, best trick dog and the dog with the longest tail. All dogs must be on leash. Judges will be announced Saturday morning. All dogs will be awarded a can of Fard dog food.

Children are asked to take their dogs to Harper's vacant lot on West Middle street at 9 o'clock. At 10 o'clock the big parade will start. The children will lead their dogs from the Harper lot, east on Middle street to East street, south to Park, west to Main and north on Main, returning to the lot.

This will be a great day for the children of the community who have dogs to enter in the contest and parade, and the public is invited to view the event.

Car Titles Necessary for Purchase of Plates

In the preparation to serve the public before the August 31st deadline, Department of State officials are asking those who intend to purchase plates to locate their car titles before applying for plates.

It is necessary to have a car title before the Department can issue plates. Car owners are deprived of exercising their ordinary legal rights in connection with their motor cars, if they lack titles. They may not sell them, trade them or even give them away, without titles to prove their ownership.

If a title cannot be found, the owner must make application for a duplicate title. Care should be taken that the motor and serial numbers on the application correspond with those on the car, and the signature of the applicant are the same as those on the former application, as these items particularly are checked.

Application blanks for duplicate titles are available at all branch offices of the Department of State, or for those who do not live near a branch office, by writing directly to Leon D. Case, Secretary of State, Lansing, Michigan.

Duplicate titles cost $1.00, or the same as original titles. Every application for a duplicate title must be accompanied by a statement as to what happened to the original.

Your Michigan Motor Vehicle Certificate of Title is a valuable document. Keep it in a safe place!

Blacktop Surfacing Will Start Monday

Action was taken at the regular meeting of the common council on Monday evening to have surfacing work on several streets of the village started next Monday.

Although it has not been decided definitely how many of the streets will be surfaced this year, it is expected that the work will cover most of the most important thoroughfares in the village, and especially those which were first to receive a blackcoat application about four years ago.

Some of the streets are beginning to deteriorate and they will be covered with cut-back asphalt and pea gravel, which will make an excellent job of blacktopping, according to village authorities.

In addition to the blacktop surfacing of several of the streets, Railroad street will be given a coat of oil aggregate surfacing, east to the village limits.

Two carloads of road oil will arrive on Saturday to be used for the surfacing work.

C. B. Talbot of Detroit is the contractor who will have charge of all the street surfacing work, and the project will be supervised by W. J. Emmons of Ann Arbor. It is planned to spend about $8500.00 on the streets this year.

All streets in the village are dustless as the result of work completed last year; many of the streets, however, were given a seal coat only, and it is hoped that eventually all the streets will be coated with blacktop.

East Siders Accept Challenge for Game

Following publication last week of a challenge by the West Side business men, very little time was lost by the East Siders in procuring names of those who will support a softball game with the challengers.

In fact, the East Siders snapped at the challenge in such a hurry that Jerry Niehaus, managing director of the West Siders, left for a two weeks vacation in order to think over the matter and it has been suggested by the East Siders that he may be still in the hope that cooler weather is on the way.

East Siders who have accepted the challenge and are willing to meet the enemy at any stated time and place, are:

Hanker's Service Station, Mack's Service Station, Merkel Bros., Princess Theatre, Chelsea Recreation, Tuttle's Barber Shop, High School, Loeffler Market, Bob Hall, Schneider & Kusterer, Walworth & Strieter, Kroger's, A & P, Duerr's Market, Chelsea Bakery, Baxter's, Kolb's Restaurant, Grove Bros., Vogel & Wurster, Miller's Barber Shop, Walter F. GILL-MAYER WEDDING

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Marian E. Gill of Garwin and Walter C. Mayer, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mayer of Chelsea, which was solemnized Wednesday, July 20 in Angola, Ind.

The ring ceremony was performed at the Congregational parsonage, with Mr. and Mrs. Roland Pitts of Lansing as attendants. The bride was gown in blue with white accessories and carried Talisman roses. Following the ceremony the couple left for a week's tour of northern Michigan.

The bride has a position with the U. S. Treasury Department in Lansing. The groom, a graduate of Chelsea high school, is employed at the radio station of the Michigan State police, East Lansing.

Mr. and Mrs. Mayer will reside at 120 Woodlawn Ave., Lansing.

CELEBRATE 53RD ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Kent Walworth entertained at a family dinner on Sunday in honor of the 53rd wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Walworth. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. George Bacon and daughter Martha Ann and son Samuel of Ft. Wayne, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. George Walworth and daughter Mary Joan.

REPAIRING CHURCH

Extensive repairs are being made to the Congregational church during this month. A new roof is being placed on the auditorium. A new stairway will be put into the basement from the southwest corner of the Endeavor room. The interior will be redecorated and the exterior woodwork will be painted.

NOTICE

I will receive sealed bids for the painting of the Town Hall, between now and August 8, 1938.

Work must be completed on or before September 3, 1938.

Local men only need apply.

All bids will be examined and acted upon by the Township Board.

MORENO—The second annual Harvest Festival will be held on Thursday, August 4.—Observer.

PINKNEY—Saturday, John Lesser and his gang of house wreckers from Dexter started to tear down the old Potlach building on Howell St., a block north of the main four corners in the business section. According to old timers this is probably the oldest building in Pinkney and is rich in memories. It was built about 100 years ago by William R. Bertwhistle for a hotel and saloon. He was a great uncle of the editor and a carpenter by trade and built the building himself. The timbers are sawed from oak and the roof boards are two feet wide.—Dispatch.

MASON—A gasoline truck driven by Raymond Reynolds, employed by Harry Freeman, lost a pair of dual wheels while being driven Monday noon. The wheels rolled along ahead of the truck and one of them collided with a car driven by Mrs. Edith Kittle. The radiator, grill and a fender of Mrs. Kittle's car were damaged but Mrs. Kittle was unhurt. Mr. Reynolds piloted his truck to the side of the street and made a three-point landing. A pin holding the wheels on the axle had been sheared off.—County News.

SOUTH LYON—Floyd Tapp of South Lyon says that while some fishermen prefer to get an occasional big one, his idea of the sport is to catch them in quantities of 25, preferably blue gills. When we expressed disbelief that he could get that many any time he went out, he said he would prove it, and he did, for the following afternoon he appeared at the Herald office with his string—exactly 25 nice blue gills, caught at Island Lake. Floyd spurns the use of fish poles or bobbers. He uses a line with two hooks and worms for bait. He can tell by the feel of the line when the right time comes to give the correct jerk which sets the hook. Occasionally he pulls in two fish at a time.—Herald.

AND WHO IS MY NEIGHBOR?

(Saint Luke 10:29)

My next door neighbor is a friend, A friend of mine is he; Though viewpoint views may differ, We agree to disagree. The language which he speaks, perhaps

I may not understand, yet, When I knock upon his door He greets me with both hands; When he is sick, I come across And try to bring good cheer; Though he were born across the sea, No seas between us here; He may be Orthodox or Jew, Protestant, French or Greek, He is my neighbor, and as such On equal terms we meet.

Our hearts—they understand; A little gate in our back yard Swings both ways at a time, And through that gate our kindnesses And courtesies combine. Some day, by blessed example, And the power of love divine, His viewpoint view of things will change As love one day changed mine.

New Oat Is Being Developed for 1940

Although it will be 1940 before sufficient volume will be reached to see a new Michigan oat in commercial use, enough promise is found in a new selection of oat breeding to permit the farm crops department of Michigan State College to announce a new oat. It doesn't even have a name. Several years of effort are represented in development of the new strain which is a cross between the well-known Markon and Victory oats. E. E. Down, college plant breeder, has supervised the breeding from plant stocks given the college by the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Why was the new oat developed? The work was started in order to find a heavy yielder that would be immune to smut. In the search for this type of oat, this new cross was developed which satisfies the demand.

Another quality apparent in the new oat growing in college test plots is the stiffer straw lacking in the smut-free Markon parent. Test weights seem to run three to five pounds heavier to the bushel and the maturity is a little earlier than the usual midseason varieties grown in Michigan.

Production of the oats this year is expected to be about 200 bushels. This is to be distributed over the state among selected seed growers for increase in 1939. From the hundred acres planted to the new oat next year perhaps four to five thousand bushels will be available for distribution and use in 1940.

ell, August 3-6. Staged on the bend of a river within a stone's throw of Main Street, the Lowell entertainment attracts thousands of people for hundreds of miles. It recaptures the beauty and thrills of a Mississippi river show boat, brightly illuminated, as it docks at the landing and presents old-time minstrel entertainment, modernized only by the conveniences of radio amplifiers and spotlights.

Chester's "Showboat" in its second season this year, demonstrated again that people not only like to be entertained but are willing to help the other fellow's "home town", as many in the east were from neighboring communities.

Rivers' "Who's Who"

With more than 5,000 lakes inland, Michigan has to be blessed with many beautiful rivers.

The St. Joseph, our oldest river, once drained to the Kankakee and the Mississippi, while the Raisin and the Huron were once its headwaters.

The Grand river is the longest, its valley being the channel of a mighty glacial torrent.

The Muskegon has the longest and narrowest valley, 45 miles long, with only one stream of any importance entering from the south.

The AuSable, noted for trout, is the swiftest river in the southern peninsula with a fall of 669 feet.

The St. Clair is the only river in the world which flows from a lake and yet is building a delta. And the Detroit river, although the widest, 2,200 feet at Woodward Avenue in Detroit, is the youngest in the state.

World's Longest Esker

That Michigan possesses the longest "esker" in the world may be news to you. In fact, we'll confess we never heard of an "esker" until this summer.

In the good old days when ice glaciers covered Michigan, the melting ice formed rivers which flowed in tunnels in the ice. Gradually these tunnels became choked with gravel waste. When the ice finally melted away, long steep-sided sinuous ridges of "hog-backs", called eskers, were left as distinctive features of land topography.

The longest esker in the world extends from a few miles north of Lansing through Holt and Mason almost to Leslie. It is called the Mason "hog-back" or esker.

Michigan's "Hinge Line"

Again we can thank the ice glaciers for most of our 5,000 lakes which have contributed so much to Michigan's resort popularity.

The lakes are the remnants of larger glacial lakes. Many of them represent hunks of glacial ice which became detached from the main mass and were left buried in the land.

And again the geologists bring us news that all the lake beaches north of a line extending from near Port Huron to Manistee are tilted upward like a trap door and that this line is called the "hinge line." The reason? Merely the action of the earth in seeking equilibrium from terrific pressure exerted by the ice glaciers which were from two to six miles thick.

The first effect of this land tilting was to spill waters of the great lakes back into the Erie basin through the St. Clair and Detroit rivers. Then the present Great Lakes came into existence.

Measurements of Michigan beaches show that North America is rising at the rate of one inch every ten years for each 100 miles north of the hinge line. In fact, according to Helen Martin, research geologist of the state department of conservation, from whose studies the above facts were obtained, the great lakes region may have earth shocks for many years to come, but they will not be serious enough to be disturbing.

Swimming for Family

The one sport that the whole family can enjoy together is swimming, according to G. Robert Mowerson, director of life saving and water safety, Washtenaw County Chapter American Red Cross. Whether its members are tall or short, heavy or light, thick or thin, the water equalizes things, distributes weight, removes inhibitions, cools the blood and leaves one better able to withstand the enervating temperatures of the midsummer season.

It has been very aptly put that "swimming is the great equalizer. Its only aristocrats are those who can keep their heads above water". Grandparents and the newest members of the family frolic together in the warm and shallow waters near the beach. Dad and the boys can be taking a distance swim, while mother and daughter can be using the diving board. Truly, swimming is the family sport.

Suppose one is a little overweight, they should worry, that extra weight will help support them in the water, and a little vigorous swimming tends to help reduce the swimmer. Too, floating is great fun because one can relax perfectly and rest one's ears and avoid dizziness on the bosom of the friendly water.

In the case of thin or anaemic children, the parents should take care that they are properly introduced into the water. They should enter it slowly, splashing water on themselves as they go. Rubbing the body is also a good method of acclimating the body to the water.

Family swims are great fun if taken intelligently—and how good the meal tastes following them.

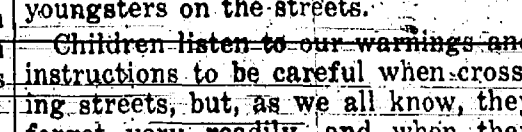

Final swimming instruction course will be held at Newport Beach Aug. 8 through Aug. 20, as follows:

1.00 to 2.00—Beginners and swimmers, ages 6 to 12 years.

2.00 to 3.00—Beginners and swimmers, ages 13 and up.

3.00 to 4.00—Advanced swimming, all ages.

4.00 to 6.00—Junior and senior life saving and water safety.

During these vacation days every driver of an automobile has an added responsibility—to watch out for those youngsters on the streets.

Children listen to our warnings and instructions to be careful when crossing streets, but, as we all know, they forget very readily, and when they are engaged in a spirited game of tag our words of caution are completely erased from their minds. That is why we motorists must learn to anticipate seeing a boy or girl dash suddenly across the street without a sideward glance.

We often become impatient and angry with youngsters for these thoughtless acts, but remember, theirs is a carefree life. We cannot expect them to keep serious thoughts in mind constantly.

Let's give the kids a break and be just a little more alert when we sit behind the wheel of our automobile. That is one way we can make life safer for our children.

Turkey Day At M. S. C. Is Set for August 11

Annual Turkey Day of Michigan State College when the state's hundreds of turkey growers have opportunity to gain new information on the rearing and fattening of the holiday birds is set for Thursday, August 11, at the college Lake City Experiment station.

College staff members have obtained a nationally known turkey authority for a portion of the day's program. He is Dr. W. A. Billings of the University of Minnesota.

Billings is a veterinary specialist who gained recognition for his system of raising turkeys on rotated pasture, using plots one week at a time.

At the experiment station visitors will see the 400 birds being raised in feeding trials in confinement.

Estimates place Michigan's 1938 turkey crop at nearly half a million birds, perhaps as many as have ever been hatched in the state, yet far from the number that residents will consume on Thanksgiving Day and Christmas and for festive boards in hotels and restaurants at other than holidays.

Veteran growers are feeding these birds from hatching time until market, instead of just fattening them up for a few days of special feeding. With corn, wheat and oats all plentiful, the best growers are already gaining size for their birds.

Staff members who will attend the program are O. E. Shear, F. N. Barrett and J. M. Moore. The station at Lake City also offers visitors information from dairy herd management, potato trials and irrigation experiments. A basket lunch at noon is scheduled.

More Certain, Most Certain Certain means fixed, settled, not to be doubted. Therefore, if a thing is certain it cannot be more so, and to say either more certain or most certain is incorrect.

Unless the drouth in this vicinity is broken very soon the farmers will be unable to do their usual amount of fall plowing. All of the growing crops are suffering for the want of rain and the pasture lands with the exception of low grounds are almost entirely dried up.

During the recent thunderstorm lightning struck and shattered a big tree in Fred Glenn's grove at North Lake.

In the outlet from the Twamley lake, known as the county ditch, there can be seen an oily substance that rises from the same spot all the time. Who doubts that oil is deposited in the earth there?

The D. T. A. A. & J. electric road are planning a limited through service. Three through cars will be run daily from Jackson to Detroit, stopping only at Grass Lake, Chelsea, Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, Wayne and Dearborn. The schedule between terminal points will be shortened by 45 minutes.

Seeds That Hold Power

According to seed experts, clover may be held 20 years, soy beans, two years; oats, three years; and corn and wheat, ten years each without losing power of germination.

CHILDREN IN COURT

Judge Malcolm Hatfield

Unwholesome Recreation When schools are closed during vacation time it is necessary for parents to exercise constant vigilance over their children if they want to keep them out of court.

Too many mothers and fathers permit minors to idle away their time in search of unsupervised amusement. Then, when a son or a daughter finds recreation in questionable places, and subsequently brings disgrace to the family, such parents all too often blame every one except themselves. To avoid all possibilities of a vacation ending in disaster, the wise parents should remain alert constantly, not relaxing their watchfulness even for a single hour.

Political Scandal

SENATOR SHEPPARD'S campaign expenditures committee, after hearing a report from an investigator, announced that the conduct of the Democratic senatorial primary campaign in Tennessee was scandalous and warned that the successful candidate was likely to face an election contest in the senate.

The shakedown of both federal and state employees, the buying of votes on a huge scale, the raising of funds by intimidation—all were being indulged in by the two rival candidates, according to the committee.

Those who are seeking the nomination are Sen. George L. Berry, Tom Stewart, J. Ridley Mitchell, Dr. John R. Neal and C. L. Powell. Stewart is supported by E. H. Crump, political boss of Memphis. Berry is backed by the state machine and Gov. Gordon Browning.

"The committee is of the opinion," its statement said, "that the evidence already before it with respect to assessments of federal employees by one group participating in the Democratic primary contest for United States senator and of state employees by the other group, points sharply toward an election contest in the United States senate regardless of which group's candidate triumphs."

Regardless of action that may be taken in the courts to punish those practicing illegal election methods and those exercising political pressure, there are indications that the senate may be called upon to consider the probability of excessive money being used in behalf of the victorious candidates.

Besides its pronouncement on Tennessee, the committee asked Postmaster General Farley to investigate the distribution of a "political circular" by the Farm Security Administration in South Dakota. The circular, it was said, was sent out under government frank to "aid the senatorial candidacy of former Gov. Tom Berry of South Dakota."

The committee also dispatched investigators to Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, North Dakota and California. It heard reports from its investigators already at work in Pennsylvania and Kentucky and sent them back for additional information.

It dismissed from consideration a charge that a recent statement by WPA Administrator Hopkins that 90 per cent of WPA workers would vote for the Roosevelt administration was coercive. The committee said the statement was in answer to a press question and was "in no way a dictation to workers."

Bar Hits Labor Act

COMMITTEE reports received by the house of delegates of the American Bar association in session in Cleveland denounced the national labor relations act as "intensifying class antagonisms" and condemned "despotic tendencies" of governmental administrative tribunals.

The committee on labor, employment and social security in its report said the labor act is "the deliberate embodiment of a new social policy" in which the government "has departed from the traditional role of mediator and arbitrator."

tendencies" of the bureau, was assailed bitterly by Jerome N. Frank, SEC commissioner, who charged that it was defamatory.

Utilities to Be Heard

PRIVATE utilities are to be given a chance to present to the TVA investigation committee their case against the "yardstick" for electric power of the authority.

The committee said it had invited the Edison Electric Institute, representing the power industry in matters of policy and publicity, and the Electric Bond and Share company and Commonwealth and Southern corporation. The latter two are holding companies which have extensive holdings in the Southeast where the TVA is offering cheap power to municipalities and rural co-operatives.

Debt Payment Rumors

FROM a London correspondent comes the report that preliminary negotiations have begun for final settlement by Great Britain and France of their defaulted debts to the United States. It is asserted the discussions, started some weeks ago by Ambassador Kennedy and British Prime Minister Chamberlain, were carried forward in secret talks in Paris among Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Ambassador Bullitt, French Foreign Minister Bonnet and Finance Minister Marchandeau.

Both Britain and France, says the correspondent, have expressed willingness to conclude a final settlement on the basis of the principal and not the interest of the original debts, which aggregated $9,269,950,943—$5,195,730,763 contracted by Britain and $4,101,220,180 by France. But in the contemplated settlement Britain and France are asking for a reduction of the principal of the original debts, which, if granted, would serve as the foundation for arranging the payment.

Texas Picks a Yankee

TEXAS Democrats in their primary selected a Yankee to be the next governor of the state. W. Lee O'Daniel, born in Ohio and raised on a Kansas farm, received a clear majority over 11 other candidates for the nomination which is equivalent to election.

O'Daniel is a flour jobber. He campaigned with a hill-billy band and a platform that included the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule, ridicule of professional politicians, promise of a business administration and more liberal pensions for the aged. More important nationally was the fact that Rep. Maury Maverick, leader of a considerable bloc in congress, was defeated for re-nomination by Paul Kilday, a San Antonio attorney. Maverick is an enthusiastic New Dealer. Kilday says he will not be a rubber stamp.

Two other administration backers were defeated for re-nomination. They were Representatives W. D. MacFarlane and Morgan Sanders.

Disaster in Bogota

THIRTY-SEVEN persons were killed and 150 injured when a Colombian army plane crashed into a grandstand at Bogota and burst into flames. The stand was packed with spectators gathered to witness an aviation review and in the throng were the president and president-elect of Colombia and many foreign diplomats. These narrowly escaped death. The plane was heading an acrobatic parade, and after its wings struck the sides of the grandstand it nose-dived into the shrieking mass of men, women and children.

Mr. "Watts-His-Name" says

"She looked daggers at the ice man..."

Poor fellow. It wasn't his fault that the butter ran and the milk soured, for ice that melts is the real villain.

A new electric refrigerator is what this lady needs—a constant supply of cold and ice that never melts.

If every woman who is still "taking ice" in the old fashioned way could enjoy one of these beautiful new electric refrigerators for only one day, she would no sooner think of going back to the old ice box than her husband would trade his car for a horse and buggy.

Your appliance dealer will be only too glad to supply a refrigerator on trial if you'll supply the space in your kitchen.

Why Wait 'Til Something SERIOUS HAPPENS
Before You Drive Carefully!

Perhaps we should have put the question in this way: Why wait until something serious happens before you TRY to start driving carefully? We say "try"—because very often that man responsible for a serious accident becomes a nervous wreck behind the wheel of a motor car. But the fact does remain that unless you do drive carefully something serious WILL happen to you. It's inevitable—it's bound to come—it will get you—and you—and you—unless you DRIVE CAREFULLY! You can't go on being careless and lucky all your natural life! If you disregard traffic rules and regulations—if you take your own life into your hands—if you continue to endanger the lives of others—you will eventually pay the penalty. Traffic is too heavy today for anyone to escape. You've got to be alert—you've got to keep your eyes open—your mind wide awake at all times to get by these days. DRIVE CAREFULLY!

A. A. A. Crop Check Progressing Rapidly
Checking of Washtenaw county farm by representatives of the Washtenaw County Agricultural Conservation Association to determine the extent of cooperation with the 1938 program is about 40 per cent completed, according to Harry M. Cole, secretary of the county association.

Forty-two Washtenaw county farmers, selected by the county committee, have been visiting and inspecting farms since July 12.

Every farm in the county is to be visited to find out whether or not the farmer is interested in participating in the 1938 program. If the farmer wishes to participate in the program, the farm reporter will prepare a report of the farm. As payments to the farmers are based on the acreage diverted from soil-depleting crops to soil-conserving, and for carrying out approved soil-building practices, the farm reporter will obtain information verifying measurement records of various fields, secure a complete history of the crops and record a description of the use made of the land.

"Of the farmers contacted to date," Mr. Cole said, "about 90 per cent have indicated a desire to participate in the 1938 program. Last year about 72 per cent of Washtenaw county farmers were in the program. So, from all indications, 1938 participation will show considerable increase over 1937."

The 1939 program will soon be started with the announcement of the 1939 wheat allotments. These individual wheat acreage allotments should be available within the next 30 days.

"Farmers who intend to earn their maximum payments under the 1939 program must keep their planting of wheat within their 1939 allotments," Mr. Cole said.

Preliminary reports from several wheat producing counties in the state indicate that the farmers are taking considerable interest in the wheat crop insurance program and even though a number of counties have not as yet reported, the total wheat acreage covered by insurance for this year is over 14,400 acres.

Wheat insurance, which is part of the Agricultural Conservation Program, is being made available to farmers to protect them from losses due to such unavoidable causes as drought, flood, hail, wind, frost, winter-kill, insect infection and plant diseases over which the farmers have no control.

Applications for insuring 1939 wheat crops will be accepted until August 15, 1938.

Shotguns Used in World War
A comparatively large quantity of shotguns, fixed for attachment of bayonets were in the hands of the American expeditionary forces during the World war, but their use was very limited. They were normally used by guards.

The 1939 reunion will be held the last Sunday in July at the same place.

JOSEPH THALHAMMER
Joseph Thalhammer, 75, died Wednesday afternoon, July 27, at his home on Taylor street, after a long illness. He was born May 12, 1863 in Bavaria, Germany, the son of George and Ursula (Weber) Thalhammer, and came to the United States at the age of 27. Oct. 11, 1890 he married Mrs. Caroline Drude (nee Priebe) and they resided in Detroit before coming to Chelsea 18 years ago.

He is survived by the widow; a son, George, of Flint; three daughters, Mrs. John Oesterle, Mrs. Frank Dingle and Mrs. Alfred Faulkner, all of Chelsea; a stepdaughter, Mrs. William Schulz of Detroit; 18 grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at 2:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Staffan funeral home. Rev. A. A. Schoen of Dexter officiated and interment was in Vermont cemetery, Sylvan township.

Those from away who attended the funeral were: Mrs. Allen Jackson, Mrs. James Van Holder and daughter, Mrs. Thomas Millington, Mrs. Norbert McKeown, Mrs. John O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Klein and William Klein of Flint; Mr. and Mrs. Otto Klein, Mr. and Mrs. Allen, Mrs. A. Blanga, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Acha, Mrs. August Zemans and son Rheinhold, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Priebe and son Walter, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Boekle, Glenn Eaton and Ida Schulz of Detroit.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Barbara Sentry, seeking to sober up her escort, Johnnie Boyd, on the way home from a party, slaps him, and attracts the attention of a policeman, whom the boy knocks down. As he arrests him, Professor Brace of Harvard comes on the scene and drives Barbara home. On the way they see Barbara's father driving from the direction of his office at 12:45, but when he gets home he tells his wife it is 11:15 and that he's been playing bridge at the club. Next morning, while Barbara is telling her mother about her adventure, an urgent phone call comes from Mr. Sentry's office after his departure.

CHAPTER II—Arriving home in the late afternoon, Sentry reports his office has been robbed and a Miss Wins, former temporary employee, killed. The evening papers luridly describe the crime. Mary, elder daughter, in love with Neil Ray, young interne at the hospital where she works, goes off to dinner at Gus Loran's. Sentry's partner, with Miss Loran's brother, Jimmy Ende, Mr. and Mrs. Sentry, call on old Mrs. Sentry, and Barbara, alone, receives Dan Fisher, reporter, who advises her not to talk, but to refer reporters to her father.

There was celebrating that must be done, and Phil did it. What had happened in Boston was forgotten for that evening, but it must have stayed disturbingly in the back of his mind, since though it was three or four o'clock in the morning before he went to bed, he woke soon after ten, and remembered, and opened his door to get the Sunday morning paper in the hall outside.

He read it, read every line in it that concerned Miss Wins. There were only two things really new in the story of the murder. The autopsy had revealed a probable motive for the crime, and the town where Agnes Wins was killed had been fixed. A night watchman in a warehouse nearby had heard the shot. He had thought at the time that it was a truck back-firing, probably two or three streets away, because the sound was muffled; but now he was convinced that it was in fact a shot which he had heard. He was sure of the time, having finished his one o'clock rounds just before. Probably five or ten minutes past one, he thought.

Phil was relieved to see that that blaze of publicity which yesterday had focused on his family and on that of Mr. Loran had somewhat abated now. Yet he knew so vividly how they would each react to this ugly experience. His father would be concerned about the effect on the business; his mother would resent the offense to her personal dignity. Mary, like so many persons completely egocentric, would feel personally wronged as though the world had conspired to make her ridiculous and unhappy. Barbara, Phil smiled, thinking of Barbara, would keep her head high, make a joke out of the whole thing, try to make them laugh.

He thought of telephoning them some word of reassurance, but the telephone was unsatisfactory. He felt vaguely that they might need him; that there might be something he could do. And also, an intangible uneasiness oppressed him. There was something in the tone of the newspaper stories that suggested the writers knew more than they wrote. Phil was young enough to want to be assured that everything was all right; he was old enough to want to help and comfort if he could.

He decided to go home for a day or two to surprise them. He dressed, packed his bag, had breakfast, and took a train for Boston. If he had sent word ahead, old Eli would have met him; but since Phil did not do so, there was no one at the station. A taxi would have taken him quickly home, but as though he had himself been guilty of some misdemeanor, he was suddenly reluctant to face them all. To put off the hour of that encounter, he walked over to Trinity Place and waited for a suburban train that would deposit him near his home. He remembered that his grandmother, old Mrs. Sentry, always came out for Sunday dinner and stayed through the afternoon and for supper, and he was glad she would be there. She was always sensible and shrewd.

The train arrived and he got aboard, and after the short run alighted. It was dusk when, bag in hand, he set out to walk to his home, his feet lagging miserably. Then a car pulled in at the curb beside him, and someone called in a laughing tone: "Carry your bag, Mister Taxi, Mister?"

It was Linda Dane. There had been comradeship between them, a real affection, since they were children. He tossed his bag into the rumble, climbed in beside her.

"Hullo, Lin," he said, gripping her hand. "Gosh, I'm glad to see you!"

hope they get whoever did it and just—just skin him alive. But it's a shame you all have to be dragged into it!" She touched his hand. "Never mind. It won't last long. I'll take you home. How's Joe?"

"Fine," Phil told her. "Saw him yesterday."

"Wasn't it wonderful that you won't the game must have been just thrilling!" She turned into his street. "Drive around a while, can you?" he asked. "I don't want to go in yet."

She looked at him quickly. "Phil? Are you in a jam?" She laughed softly. "Is it something disgraceful? Shouldn't I be seen with you?"

"Oh, no. I just want to—"

They passed his home without stopping and went on. "Where shall I drive?" she asked.

"Around the park, James!" he told her, grinning; and he asked, "Lin, how are they all taking it?"

She hesitated. "Pretty hard, I'm afraid."

"How's Barb?"

"I was with her when she first saw the papers. She was scared, Phil. But she's trying to—keep them cheered up now."

"Sure! She would!"

"I went home with her. She hoped you would come."

"I thought I'd better," he said. "You and Barb and I will have to stick together. We always have, haven't we?"

"Always have," she agreed. "Three Musketeers."

"You always were the level-headed one. I'm glad I ran into you now. I'll be needing you, Lin."

"I'll be around. But I've got to take you home, now, Phil. I'm due for supper."

"Right! Sorry if I've made you late. I was sort of scared to go in. As if it were my fault."

"Everybody's that way. When anything happens, you always want to say 'I didn't do it.'"

He chuckled, clasped her hand where it lay on the wheel. "You're a good kid, Lin," he said, a little surprised at himself, wondering why he said this, glad he had said it.

"You used to call me a brat!"

"You used to be one," he retorted. "But you're outgrowing it. I've had my eye on you. Oh, you play around with the crowd, and you can be the life of the party and all that; but I've noticed you keep your head, too. When the ocean waves dash high, you're the stern and rock-bound coast. You'll do to take along!"

She looked straight ahead, smiling faintly. "You need someone to take along, Phil," she said gently. "You're not a very steady craft, yourself, when high seas are running."

"I know. A good time is apt to go to my head. You've brought me down to earth more than once."

She chuckled. "Both feet on the ground?"

"Funny," he reflected, "that you and I have never been—sentimental about each other. I kid around with other girls; and probably you have your moments too. But we don't get that way. I wonder why."

"I wonder," she echoed, eyes on the road.

"We're just darned good friends. But whenever I've got anything on my mind, I like to talk it over with you."

"Me too," she agreed, and swung into the drive in front of his house. "Here we are, Phil." She stopped the car and looked at him, waiting for him to get out; and he looked at her, and hesitated, and after a moment she laughed softly and asked, "Is this what you're thinking?" And leaned toward him.

He kissed her. "Thanks, Lin," he said. "That helps a lot. I read going in."

"Poor Phil. Keep your chin up," she bade him. "And—come see me, 'bye!'"

She drove away, and he carried his bag up the steps and—since the door was always locked—rang. Oscar and Nellie were out on Sunday evenings, so it was Barbara who came to the door.

"Phil!" she cried.

She caught him and kissed him. He felt her tremble and held her and whispered:

"Hey, Barb! You're shaking!"

"Oh, I'm so darned glad you've come, Phil," she murmured. "To-day's been awful!"

Mrs. Sentry called from the dining room, "Is that you, Phil?" He winked at Barbara reassuringly, and went in.

His mother said, "We're just sitting down." She looked at his father searchingly. Phil saw that his father was almost haggard; thought these last two days must have been a strain. "We didn't expect you," his mother added. "Is anything wrong, Phil?"

"Gosh, no," he protested. "I saw the papers, thought you might need me."

"Isn't it exciting, Phil?" Barbara cried.

Mrs. Sentry said sharply, "Barbara! Don't talk like a shop girl!"

Barbara hesitated; she said almost pleadingly: "I'm sorry, mother! I'm just trying to—be the comic relief or something. We're all so gloomy. Can't we be a little cheerful, please?"

"It's hardly a time for cheerfulness," her mother retorted.

Phil, beginning to eat, said hurriedly: "I've only seen the papers. Is there anything that isn't in them?"

Mrs. Sentry answered him. "No, Phil. At least, nothing that we know. Of course the police are doing everything they can. Inspector Irons was here this afternoon to see your father. Something about the key, wasn't it, Arthur?"

Mr. Sentry nodded. "She had a key to the back door, Phil," he explained. "They found it in his pocketbook. The Inspector wanted to know whether I gave it to her, but I couldn't help him. I suppose she stole it while she was working for us."

Mary asked suspiciously, "Phil, why did you come home?"

"Oh, I'm just celebrating," he assured her. "That was some game, yesterday! The best I ever saw. I'm still hoarse from it."

"You look as though you had celebrated all night!"

He grimaced in an irritated fashion. "Since you took up nursing you're keen on symptoms! No wonder doctors' families always have something the matter with them, with someone like you around."

There was a moment's silence, and then Mr. Sentry asked quietly, "Sure there's nothing wrong, Phil?"

"No, father. I just felt like seeing you all."

And Grandmother Sentry demanded, "Why shouldn't he come home if he wants to, Arthur?"

Mr. Sentry said, "Well, after all, college is his job right now. The doorbell rang, and Barbara went to answer it. 'But of course we're glad to see you, Phil!'"

There were voices in the hall. They watched the door. Then Barbara came back, pale as paper in her eyes. "Father, it's Inspector Irons," she said in low tones. "He—"

The Inspector, without waiting, came in past her, and a second man followed him. Mr. Sentry stood up, looking to the back of his chair. The second man stopped at his elbow.

Mr. Sentry said, "Good evening, Inspector."

The Inspector said, "Mr. Sentry, I'll ask you to come along with me."

Phil stared at his father, felt his own cheeks stiffen. Mr. Sentry looked his lips. "Where to, Inspector?" he asked, in a hoarse voice. "After all, it's Sunday evening."

The Inspector hesitated uncomfortably. "I'd rather talk about it at Headquarters," he said. "That will be easier, all around."

Then the other man touched Mr. Sentry's arm.

For a moment after the man in plain clothes touched Mr. Sentry's arm, the room was still as ice. Then Mr. Sentry nodded, almost with relief; and he said quietly to Mrs. Sentry, "I'll have to go. Ellet. To Phil: 'You can take mother in town when she's ready.'"

Phil nodded, and looked toward old Mrs. Sentry, and he uttered a low ejaculation. Her head had dropped forward, her chin was resting on her chest, and her eyes were closed. At his exclamation, Mary went quickly toward the older woman, and Mrs. Sentry without moving said, "Barbara, get my smelling salts!" Barbara darted up the stairs.

Inspector Irons spoke to Mr. Sentry; they moved away. Mrs. Sentry tried to follow; but she seemed to stumble, and stopped. Only Phil went with his father out into the hall, and standing in the open doorway, he saw Mr. Sentry get into the police car, into the rear seat. Inspector Irons sat on one side of him, the man in plain clothes on the other. There were policemen in uniform in front, and Phil moved like a soldier, to the rear of the car, projecting above the roof. He thought in a dull way that his father must be crowded in the narrow seat; since the Inspector was a big man, and so was his companion. The car drove away.

When Phil went back into the house, into the dining-room, old Mrs. Sentry was herself again. He asked, "All right, grandmother?"

"All right! Of course I'm all right," she said sharply. "I was all right all the time. I just did it to give you all something to think about. You were standing around like a lot of statues, scared silly!"

"Your color's come back," Phil commented.

"It was never gone," she insisted. "Mrs. Sentry rose, and she said in a low tone, thinking of the servants, 'Come into the living-room.'"

They followed her quietly, not speaking, not daring to speak. The others sat down, but Phil remained standing. His cheeks were still stiff; his lips felt thick, and clumsy. Yet—here were four of them, two women, his sisters, his mother, his grandmother! He was the only man; he must do something, say something.

He said, groping: "How about a rubber of bridge? You don't want to go home yet, do you, grandmother?"

Old Mrs. Sentry said sharply: "Don't be an idiot, Phil! Don't try to stick your head in the sand. All our heads. Face the fact! They think your father killed that girl!"

Barbara gasped, looking from one to another, her eyes beseeching them to deny this. Mrs. Sentry made an indignant sound; and Phil cried. Mrs. Sentry said sharply, "Barbara! Don't talk like a shop girl!"

Barbara hesitated; she said almost pleadingly: "I'm sorry, mother! I'm just trying to—be the comic relief or something. We're all so gloomy. Can't we be a little cheerful, please?"

"All right! Of course I'm all right," she said sharply. "I was all right all the time. I just did it to give you all something to think about. You were standing around like a lot of statues, scared silly!"

"Your color's come back," Phil commented.

"It was never gone," she insisted. "Mrs. Sentry rose, and she said in a low tone, thinking of the servants, 'Come into the living-room.'"

They followed her quietly, not speaking, not daring to speak. The others sat down, but Phil remained standing. His cheeks were still stiff; his lips felt thick, and clumsy. Yet—here were four of them, two women, his sisters, his mother, his grandmother! He was the only man; he must do something, say something.

He said, groping: "How about a rubber of bridge? You don't want to go home yet, do you, grandmother?"

Old Mrs. Sentry said sharply: "Don't be an idiot, Phil! Don't try to stick your head in the sand. All our heads. Face the fact! They think your father killed that girl!"

Barbara gasped, looking from one to another, her eyes beseeching them to deny this. Mrs. Sentry made an indignant sound; and Phil cried. Mrs. Sentry said sharply, "Barbara! Don't talk like a shop girl!"

Barbara hesitated; she said almost pleadingly: "I'm sorry, mother! I'm just trying to—be the comic relief or something. We're all so gloomy. Can't we be a little cheerful, please?"

"It's hardly a time for cheerfulness," her mother retorted.

Phil, beginning to eat, said hurriedly: "I've only seen the papers. Is there anything that isn't in them?"

Mrs. Sentry answered him. "No, Phil. At least, nothing that we know. Of course the police are doing everything they can. Inspector Irons was here this afternoon to see your father. Something about the key, wasn't it, Arthur?"

Mr. Sentry nodded. "She had a key to the back door, Phil," he explained. "They found it in his pocketbook. The Inspector wanted to know whether I gave it to her, but I couldn't help him. I suppose she stole it while she was working for us."

Mary asked suspiciously, "Phil, why did you come home?"

"Oh, I'm just celebrating," he assured her. "That was some game, yesterday! The best I ever saw. I'm still hoarse from it."

"You look as though you had celebrated all night!"

He grimaced in an irritated fashion. "Since you took up nursing you're keen on symptoms! No wonder doctors' families always have something the matter with them, with someone like you around."

There was a moment's silence, and then Mr. Sentry asked quietly, "Sure there's nothing wrong, Phil?"

"No, father. I just felt like seeing you all."

And Grandmother Sentry demanded, "Why shouldn't he come home if he wants to, Arthur?"

Mr. Sentry said, "Well, after all, college is his job right now. The doorbell rang, and Barbara went to answer it. 'But of course we're glad to see you, Phil!'"

There were voices in the hall. They watched the door. Then Barbara came back, pale as paper in her eyes. "Father, it's Inspector Irons," she said in low tones. "He—"

The Inspector, without waiting, came in past her, and a second man followed him. Mr. Sentry stood up, looking to the back of his chair. The second man stopped at his elbow.

Mr. Sentry said, "Good evening, Inspector."

The Inspector said, "Mr. Sentry, I'll ask you to come along with me."

Phil stared at his father, felt his own cheeks stiffen. Mr. Sentry looked his lips. "Where to, Inspector?" he asked, in a hoarse voice. "After all, it's Sunday evening."

The Inspector hesitated uncomfortably. "I'd rather talk about it at Headquarters," he said. "That will be easier, all around."

Then the other man touched Mr. Sentry's arm.

For a moment after the man in plain clothes touched Mr. Sentry's arm, the room was still as ice. Then Mr. Sentry nodded, almost with relief; and he said quietly to Mrs. Sentry, "I'll have to go. Ellet. To Phil: 'You can take mother in town when she's ready.'"

man at the window! she whispered. Phil raced through the hall, and Professor Brace followed him. When they opened the front door, they faced two men. Something exploded, glaringly, in their faces, and Phil uttered an angry cry, and one of the young men said:

"It's all right, Mr. Sentry! Just a flashlight. We got word of Mr. Sentry's arrest. We're supposed to ask whether you have anything to say, or perhaps your mother—"

Professor Brace, very still, looked at Phil. Phil demanded hoarsely: "Arrest? Who said so?"

"Inspector Irons."

"It's not true!"

"I'm afraid it is," said the reporter. "He's been booked for murder. And he urged: 'Better take it easy, Mr. Sentry. I know how you feel, but there'll be a lot of newspaper men around here in another ten minutes. If you want to say anything—'"

"I've a notion to knock your block off!"

The other grinned sympathetically. "I know. Don't blame you. It's tough, all right. But keep your head, if you're wise." He looked at Professor Brace. "Are you their lawyer?" he asked.

"I'm Professor Brace of the Harvard Business School. But I'm afraid it's too early for the family to have anything to say to reporters."

Phil looked at him in surprise, then, gratefully. The reporter nodded. "Sure," he agreed. "That's sensible. Be polite, but don't talk. And—take a friendly tip from me. Don't get mad and lose your heads. Don't say anything you'll be sorry for. And—don't take a crack at reporters. We're just doing our job."

He added: "Another thing that will save you some trouble, change your telephone number; get an unlisted number. Then no one can call the house except your friends."

Phil nodded grudgingly. "Thanks," he said. "What's your name?"

"Fisher. Dan Fisher. Anytime you can give me a break on the story, I'd appreciate it, of course."

Old Mrs. Sentry called from the living-room, "Phil, who's that?"

"A reporter, grandmother!"

"Well, bring him in here. I want to talk to him."

Phil hesitated; he heard his mother's whispered protest, heard the older woman say, "I suppose he can tell us what we want to know."

She called again, "Phil!"

Then Barbara came into the hall, herself, and the invitation.

"Mr. Fisher, my grandmother wants to see you, please. And it was she who made the introductions in the living-room. 'Mr. Fisher was here the other night. Mother was here and he knows Joe Dane.' As though these were credentials."

Her mother nodded lightly, and old Mrs. Sentry said, "I heard you say Mr. Sentry had been arrested."

Fisher said quietly, "I don't know that he's been booked yet, but they're holding him."

"They think he killed this girl?"

The young man hesitated, and she insisted: "Speak up! We're adults!"

"Yes," he admitted. "I believe they do."

"Why? They must have some reason?"

Fisher nodded. "I can tell you what little I know, if you want."

He said: "Well, you see, the robbery was a fake. Whoever opened the safe knew the combination—or else was an expert safe-cracker. The combination had been changed since Miss Wins worked in the office. Only Mr. Sentry and his partner and Miss Randall knew it. There wasn't enough money in the safe, ever, to make it worth the trouble of opening, not for a professional."

"So the girl didn't come there to rob the safe. She came to meet someone. A man brought her; drove her in town, let her out at a corner four or five blocks away at about eleven o'clock. A policeman saw him do it, and the man parked there and talked to the cop while he waited for her. He stayed there till half-past twelve and then decided she had made a fool of him. He told the cop she had promised to be back at twelve."

MORTGAGE SALE

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of money secured by a mortgage dated the 18th day of June, A. D. 1937, executed by Julius J. Mayer and Maud Mayer, husband and wife, of Ann Arbor, Michigan, to Ann Arbor Savings and Commercial Bank, Michigan Banking Corporation, which said mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in Liber 212 of Mortgages - on page 285 at 9:45 A. M. on June 19th, 1937.

And Whereas, by the terms of said mortgage, it is provided that in case default is made in the payment of any installment of principal or of interest, taxes, assessments or insurance or any part thereof on any day thereon the same is made payable, and should the same remain due and unpaid for the space of thirty days, the principal sum of said mortgage, together with all interest, taxes, assessments and insurance, shall at the option of the mortgagee become and be due and payable forthwith, and default having been made in the payment of the interest provided in said mortgage, the mortgagee has continued for more than thirty days, the said mortgagee hereby exercises its option to declare the principal sum of said mortgage and all arrearages of interest and taxes due and payable.

And Whereas, the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage is the sum of $200.00 principal and interest in the amount of $155.05 and the further sum of thirty-five dollars as an attorney fee stipulated for in said mortgage and the whole amount claimed to be unpaid on said mortgage is the sum of $200.00 principal and interest in the amount of $155.05, and no part of the sum of $200.00 principal and interest having been paid, the mortgagee is at law to recover the debt now remaining secured by said mortgage, any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the said power of sale, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises herein described, at public auction, to the highest bidder at the south end of the courthouse of the city of Ann Arbor, in the County of Washtenaw, on the 21st day of October, A. D. 1938, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at which said day, which said premises are described in said mortgage as all that certain piece or parcel of land situated in the city of Ann Arbor, County of Washtenaw, and State of Michigan, to-wit:

Ford Opens Model Soy Bean Plant

THIS DEMONSTRATION soy bean plant, recently opened by the Ford Motor Company at Saline, Mich., is proving to be a center of interest for farmers within a radius of 200 miles. The old Schuyler grist mill at the left, situated on U. S. 112 just west of Saline, has been converted into a cleaning and storage plant. The new building at the right houses flaking and extraction equipment. Seven hundred farmers in the area have 22,588 acres seeded to soy beans advanced by the company, while the company has another 15,624 acres under contract. Total crop is expected to exceed 300,000 bushels. At left below, the cleaning machine. At right, the still where the solvent used to extract the oil from the bean flakes is driven off, leaving the oil to be used in paint manufacture and as a foundry core-binder.

SLATS' DIARY

Sunday—The weather is off hot so last evening the family got to discussing going to S. S. and church or sleeping late in the cool of the a. m. So we took a ride on the 7. And Ant Emmy and Ma voted for church and I and Unkel Hen and Pa voted vs. it. The returns was a 3 to 2 for sleeping late and so 5 leading citizens were absent from services.

Monday—We all felt kinda guilty about not attending church I expect so we got to talking about it at dinner this noon. Ma and Ant Emmy said it was off and Pa said well why didn't you 2 attend then. Ma replied and said they didn't want to be contrary and it was off hot any ways. The apologetic were accepted.

Tuesday—No boddie was home at are house for dinner and I went to the restaurant to eat. I seen chicken crockets on the Wm. of fare and ordered same. Fowl ball the waiter yelled back to the cook and before I got I started to get up and ketch it. Guess that were a laps of memory or self control or some thing. But it wasn't my fault. The waiter was the reason of it.

Wednesday—Jake called on Flisy last evening and said she told him not to let her Pa see him kissing her. Jake said he wasn't kissing her at the time and didn't see what she was talking about. Jake would win the grand prize for dunniness in a school for feeble-minded.

Thursday—Got one on Jane that will hold her for a while. Her ma took her to a vacation hotel and Jane rushed up to the clerk and said Can you give us a room and bath. James Ma says the clerk look perplexed as he replied Well maybe you better take your own bath. Jane dont really mean every thing she says.

Friday—Ma said she were a going to open a acct. at the bank. Pa look surprised and said What with and Ma said it were to be like the acct. at the grocery store. With are a mean for the banks getting lotsa business and fetching on good times and ending the depression and etc.

Saturday—Mister Gillen was over to visit Pa this evening and they was on the subject of hard times. Mister Gillen said he found it difficult to meet expenses but Pa said he didn't. He met them every where he sed. I suppose Pa ment bills keep on coming to him.

Old Bavarian Custom
In Bavaria travelers see ornamental paintings on the outside walls of houses. These are almost invariably of a religious nature. This is a custom inherited from the peasants of ancient times who used such decorations as testimony of their religious faith and to ward off evil spirits. Similar paintings decorate the furniture and doors.

Chelsea Standard vs. Macks
Chelsea Standard came from behind to defeat Macks on Thursday evening, 6 to 5.

Macks got off to a lead, scoring one run in the first on a walk and singles by Scott and W. LaSavage, and two in the second on a hit batsman and singles by Holbrook, P. Novess, Alber and Winans.

Standard scored one run in the first on a walk and singles by Montgomery, Hulce, Hoover and Schneider, and one in the third on two walks and an out at first. Then went into the lead in the fourth when an error, Dvorak's double and Montgomery's single netted three runs.

In the fifth two walks and a fly ball gave Macks another run. Their fifth run came in the seventh on S. LaSavage's single and an out at first.

Standard scored the deciding run in the sixth on a double by Dvorak and a single by Walz.

Daniels vs. Macks
Daniels clinched first place in the standings by defeating Macks on Monday evening, 7 to 2.

Daniels scored two runs in the first on three errors, a hit batsman and singles by Hilland and Dancer, three runs in the third on an error, triples by Schiller and L. Novess, and J. Lyons' single, and two in the fifth on two walks, an error and a fielder's choice.

Macks scored one run in the third on a walk, a fielder's choice and D. Foster's single, and one in the fourth on a walk and two errors.

Merkel vs. Spaulding
Merkels defeated Spaulding, Tuesday evening, 3 to 1.

Merkels got off to a lead in the first when singles by Buchler, Likey and Dvorak accounted for one run. The Spaulding tied the score in the fifth when Eder walked and Spaulding singled him home with their only run.

Merkels scored the two deciding runs in the sixth on singles by Buchler, Likey and Smith.

Each manager is asked to have the players of his team contribute 10c or more to help defray the umpiring expenses. This money should be deposited with E. Hulce or J. Lyons as soon as possible.

Yorkshire Mechanics Are Named for Their Trades

The word "cobber," Australian for "boon companion," did not originate with the Australians, although the sense given to it belongs to the people who live under the Southern Cross.

In England, states a writer in Literary Digest, cobber is Yorkshire dialect—a corruption of cobbler. In Yorkshire, men are frequently called by their trade, particularly when the surname is unknown, or the person referred to is better known by his given name. So Butcher Tom and Cobber Dick are terms in common use when referring to the butcher or the cobbler. But cobber also has other meanings—"a great lie," the greatness being derived from cob as used in northern England, Ireland, and Scotland for "the top of a summit of anything, as a mountain or a hill"; also, "a leader, chief, or master." This word has yet another significance. Used as a verb, "to cob or with" means "to cotton to," that is, "to take a liking to any one." Thus, in Suffolk, England, persons who take to each other are said to cob together, and it is probably to this association that the Australian cobber owes its origin.

Poor Sense of Humor
Jud Tunkins says a man who laughs at his troubles usually has a poor sense of humor.

Question And Answer Dept.

Problem—Can you select a single figure between 1 and 10, which, when multiplied by any other single figure, will equal the sum total of the figure selected when the result is added together? Answer elsewhere in this column.

Ques.—Can you answer if cattle are native to America? If not, when were they introduced into this country?

Ans.—It is believed that cattle are native to Egypt, as Egyptian monuments constructed more than 2,000 years before the Christian era show crude carvings of cattle. They were first introduced into America by the Spaniards in A. D. 1525, about six years after the discovery of Mexico by Cortez.

Ques.—Are the Roman Catholic priests the only religious people that practice celibacy?

Ans.—No. The Greek Church, the Egyptians and the Buddhists observe this custom. Besides these, there are several minor religious orders that are pledged to celibacy.

Ques.—When did the last signer of the Declaration of Independence die? And what was his name?

Ans.—Charles Carroll of Maryland, who died in Baltimore, Md., on Wednesday, Nov. 14, 1832, at the age of 95 years, was the last surviving signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Answer to Problem—The figure 9 does the trick. For example, two times nine are 18—the 1 and 8 equals the 9, and so on multiplied by any single figure.

Ques.—Is the game of chess an American game?

Ans.—No. The game originated in India, whence it was brought by way of Persia and Arabia to Europe. The game was made popular in America by Benjamin Franklin, who was an expert player, and wrote in its favor.

Ques.—Why is a certain kind of locust called the "seventeen-year" locust?

Ans.—When the larvae of the seventeen-year locust falls to the ground it burrows deep into the surface and reappears again in seventeen years.

Ques.—What is "communism" which we hear so much talk against over the radio, in the newspapers, etc.?

Ans.—Briefly Communism is the theory of government and social order according to which all property is held as a common trust, and the profits derived from all labors are devoted to the general good. This theory involves the abolition of all private property and transferred to the State, which assumes full responsibility of providing work for every individual able and willing to work and dividing the profits with them.

Ques.—Are the Creoles of Negro blood?

Ans.—No. Creole is the name given to the descendants of French and Spaniards born in tropical America and the West Indies. It has been widened to include the descendants of all Europeans born in the West Indies and the tropics.

Ques.—Who originated the Curfew bell? And at what hour was the bell rung?

Ans.—William the Conqueror introduced the Curfew bell. At 8:00 o'clock in the evening it was the signal for all lights and fires to be extinguished, lest severe penalties were inflicted.

Time Savers Are Aid To Young Mothers

Tips for saving time are usually welcomed by young mothers if the ideas are not donated by mothers-in-law.

So Evalyn Bergstrand, instructor in home management and child development at Michigan State College, has devised a few suggestions useful to young mothers anxious to take some of the worries out of homemaking.

Use as many knit and crepe materials as possible to avoid ironing, is one of her ideas.

Time is saved if the baby's washing can be done every other or third day instead of every day. This says Miss Bergstrand, has one drawback in that a greater supply of clothing is necessary.

If the baby gets his codliver oil and orange juice while he is undressed just before a bath, there is a considerable saving in time because clothes are not stained with the feedings.

Some mothers have discovered that in preparing vegetables, fruits and other foods they save time if they do it while bottles are being sterilized. In some households larger amounts of sliced foods are prepared and canned for later use in sterile jars using proper methods.

Perhaps a larger tray will mean one trip for a meal instead of several. A basket for the baby's toys might help in carrying them from one room to another.

A removable gate which can be attached at a stairway or doorway means less watching during the days when creeping is in style. An outdoor play pen is another timesaver in permitting mothers to spend their time more efficiently in getting household chores out of the way.
