Primary Election Will Be Held Next Tuesday

Michigan's primary election will be held next Tuesday, September 13. In addition to voting for State, County and Congressional candidates, voters of this county will be asked to pass on a proposal to construct a new courthouse in Ann Arbor.

Two Chelsea men are on the Democratic ticket: John P. Keusch is a candidate for the state legislature, and James C. Hendley is a candidate for circuit court commissioner.

Candidates seeking nomination in the primary election are as follows:

Democratic Ticket
Governor—Frank Murphy.
Lieutenant Governor—Leo J. Nowicki.
Representative in Congress—Walter C. Averill, Jr., Hubert N. Dukes.
State Senator—John Brown, Frank Fortino.
Representative in State Legislature—John P. Keusch, Miles E. Reid.
Prosecuting Attorney—Hubert Thompson.
Sheriff—John W. Rane.
County Clerk—Reade S. Pierce.
County Treasurer—Franklin E. Eby.

Republican Ticket
Governor—Frank D. Fitzgerald.
Lieutenant Governor—Loren D. Dickinson.
Representative in Congress—Earl G. Michener, F. T. Robinson, A. C. Gaston.
State Senator—George P. McCallum.
Representative in State Legislature—Joseph E. Warner.

Financial Muddle
There appears to be reasonable justification for the insistence of Republicans that a full and understandable statement of state finances be rendered.

One month ago when the governor issued his call for the special session, he intimated to the press that the additional burden on the treasury would be financed by additional taxes. Two weeks later he announced that the state finances had improved to the extent that new taxes would not be needed.

As legislators were drafting bills to appropriate $10,000,000 for welfare relief, Senator Prentiss Brown made a last-minute attempt at Washington to get $3,000,000 direct relief from the federal treasury, and it was explained that with this grant the Michigan special session would be called off. Brown did not succeed.

On August 1 the treasury deficit was said to exceed $10,000,000. However, when the legislature convened, Budget Director Smith informed the governor that it was slightly under $9,000,000.

It was all a bit confusing.

WHY WE NEED A NEW COURTHOUSE
The Courthouse contains the only complete records of title to your homes and farms, the birth dates of your children, the deaths of your near and dear; the disposition of their property to you; your rights to possession of your property under lien of mortgages, taxes, etc.; which children require assistance in livelihood as well as education; the census of our school children; and other records too valuable to risk the slightest chance of damage or destruction. To replace even a part of them would involve, it is estimated, thirty years of litigation at a cost far in excess of the total cost of a new Courthouse.

The building in which these vital records are now housed has been condemned by the State Fire Marshall. Were not the chairman of the county building committee a welder and did he not threaten to remove padlocks as fast as they were put on, the State Fire Marshall would have padlocked your county house over a year ago, and you would do so at any time—yet this building has its heating plant directly beneath your Register of Deeds office, wherein the records of your titles to property are kept. The third floor of the building is not used for offices because it is unsafe as a fire trap. The attic of your courthouse contains myriad large wooden beams set at all kinds of angles to support the roof and clock tower. Should a fire start from a short circuit or lightning in this area, the heavy clock machinery would plunge down directly through the tower to the first floor of your courthouse, bringing with it a quantity of large burning timbers.

On September 13, 1938 you will be asked to vote on a tax for a new fire-proof, plain office building, for your vital records, said tax being altogether 30 per cent of the cost of this building, which you will pay over a five year period at 6 per cent of the cost or only 23 1/2 cents per $1000 assessment per year. With this small payment you will have a safe place for these records and a new courthouse. Should this very necessary building construction be deferred for several years, it may well be necessary for you to pay three and one-third times as much as now, if not more.

FINDS OLD TOWNSHIP RECORD
While examining some old township records recently Supervisor Fred G. Brosamle found an invoice dated July 13, 1882 which listed a shipment of two cars of brick from A. Wagner of Dearborn, to be used in the construction of the Sylvan town hall. The invoice is well preserved, the paper being almost as white as new stock. The town hall was started in 1882 and completed the following year.

Lansing—Considering the possible dynamite that existed in calling a special session just before a fall election, Governor Frank Murphy emerged from the legislative fire with his eyebrows unscathed. And, in view of the Murphy eyebrows, that's something!

The senate Republicans did what was expected of them. They talked eloquently, protested vehemently the treasury deficit, and then authorized, like docile lambs, $10,000,000 for welfare relief. With watchful eyes on votes, Republican legislators could not afford to take an anti-relief attitude. Instead, they insisted that the unemployed could have been spared of anxiety (and the taxpayers of $10,000,000 additional expense) if the administration had not boosted payrolls some $9,000,000 in 18 months.

The administration countered with declarations that the treasury deficit, which on Sept. 1 was somewhere between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000, was due solely to the unforeseen extra cost of welfare relief which, in turn, was due to the business "recession".

Take your choice.

Washtenaw Gas Co. Figures In Merger

The Washtenaw Gas Co. of Ann Arbor, the Detroit City Gas Co., Grand Rapids Light Co., and Muskegon Gas Co. will merge into a new corporation, the Michigan Consolidated Gas Co., following the approval of the organization plan by the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission of Washington, D. C., according to an announcement made last week by Charles R. Henderson, president and general manager of the Washtenaw Gas Co.

The principal reason for the merger of the four concerns is the desire to comply with the provisions of the public utility holding company act, and is made by the parent company, the American Light and Traction Co. The principal office of the new company will be in Detroit.

This change will not alter the management of the Washtenaw Gas Co., which will be known as the Ann Arbor district of the Michigan Consolidated Gas Co., and will include all the territory now served by the Washtenaw firm.

A district board, composed of the present board members of the local company, will direct the district.

PINCKNEY—At the Pinckney board of commerce meeting held Monday night sufficient money was raised to assure the coming of the Detroit Die Set & Mfg. Co. of Detroit. Clara Reason, former Pinckneyite, is the president of this company and they are now located in the north end of Detroit where they make parts for the Chrysler Motor Co. and other auto plants. When running to capacity they employ about 18 men. On account of labor troubles and high taxes they wish to leave Detroit. Dispatch.

BROOKLYN—A flock of rare white herons, sometimes as many as 25, are seen frequently in the marshes and shallow waters of Raisin river. They have been reported near Jackson and it is said their home rookery is somewhere in Liberty township. They have been seen in shallow ponds near Vineyard lake recently. The birds feed on small fish, frogs and snails. They are shy and seldom let anyone approach for close observation. The old birds are blue in color, the young ones having the bright white plumage. They do not stay all winter, but migrate to southern swamps, returning after the ice has gone and their favorite foods are available in the spring. Exponent.

MASON—These are busy days at the H. W. Madison plant in Mason where bumper crops of cabbage and cucumbers are being delivered. On Wednesday there were more than 50 people employed at the plant receiving and sitting cabbage and taking care of the cucumbers being brought in from the fields. The last kraut from the 1937 cabbage crop has been packed. This year nearly all of the kraut made will be canned. The canning equipment will be utilized to full capacity. Last year the H. W. Madison company of Cleveland purchased the Wilson Packing company plants in Michigan. The Mason factory was included. County News.

Don't put on your brakes, when you have a blow-out, until you are under control. Then apply them gradually.

A blow-out, particularly on a front wheel and when you are driving at a high rate of speed, is one case in which jamming on the brakes might involve you in an accident that could be avoided by doing other things first. Grip the wheel firmly. Steer; don't think of anything but steering at first. Brake pressure comes second.

Fifty Counties Test

Use of Hybrid Corn

Corn growers in nearly 150 communities in fifty counties of Michigan will have an opportunity in field meetings to see and learn something about the performance of hybrid corn growing under their conditions, according to reports from the farm crops extension men at Michigan State College.

In 33 of these counties Smith-Hughes agricultural schools are co-operating in demonstrations of corn hybrids while in the remaining counties individual farmers have planted the plots.

In all demonstrations several different hybrids were planted. The choice of those used in each was based largely upon the results of experimental work that has been carried on by the plant breeders of the college.

When the corn in the various demonstrations is ready to be harvested the county agricultural agents and Smith-Hughes agriculture instructors will arrange for field meetings. At these meetings equal areas of each hybrid will be harvested, weighed and the good and poor qualities of each observed.

These demonstrations have been planted from the southern state line to Houghton county in the north and Gogebic in the most westerly part of the state. The interest in corn hybrids has been stimulated by a search for knowledge of the adaptability and value of different strains.

tough assignment of trying to make ends meet.

Consider his predicament over these actions:

1. Decision of administration to establish a higher minimum monthly wage for state employees than the basic level recommended by the civil service director. This will increase state payrolls approximately $1,000,000. Three thousand employees will benefit.

2. Decision to restore old age pensions to their level before the "economy" program. This will add $500,000.

Smith refused to approve the spending moves.

Gambling on Fall
The administration appears to be gambling (along with the rest of us) on the expectation that business will revive sharply this fall.

More sales will bring more sales tax money into the treasury.

Better business will lighten the unemployment load. It will remove thousands from the welfare list as well as from the federal government's Michigan army of 200,000 WPA workers.

In this $10,000,000 speculation are also these factors: (1) Smith's economy program, and (2) No European war. Stocks skidded one to five points in one day last week, due to WAR fears. You can imagine what might happen if Hitler plunged Europe into another World conflict.

It's a daring gamble at the very best.

Teachers' Plight
During the depression years teachers' salaries were cut to the bone. Wage readjustments are just now being made.

In the much-revised economy program, school state aid has been reduced $1,600,000. This is a 3.5 percent cut, far below the proportionate reduction in state expenses.

The actual appropriation reduction, however, is $7,000,000. It is over this that the educators are squawking loudly. Due to the Couzens inheritance tax receipts, the primary school fund jumped to around $21,000,000. This sum is earmarked irrevocably for schools.

Therefore, when the administration reduced the school aid by $1,600,000 it absorbed into the general fund around $7,000,000 which otherwise would have gone to the schools.

The teachers are probably lucky to get by with such a small cut in state aid, but they also can insist with obvious fairness that good accounting be given of the $7,000,000 "windfall".

When educators talk at Lansing, officials listen attentively. It is one "pressure group" that wields tremendous influence.

Uncertainty

Considering all and all, it's little wonder that much uncertainty prevails at Lansing.

Aside from the financial uncertainty, here are four others:

1. Will Republican chances in November be injured by the present Toyn Fitzgerald feud?

2. Will Murphy's chances for re-election be hurt greatly if President Roosevelt does not include Michigan in his pre-election speaking tours?

3. Will Former Governor Comstock run against Murphy?

4. Will the C. I. O. and A. F. of L. unite behind the Democratic ticket?

Four Guesses
It's interesting speculation. Here are our guesses:

1. Yes. And don't be surprised if newspapers report activity of a grand jury investigation.

2. Yes, (and no). The "if" seems far-fetched to us. Roosevelt will speak here in October.

3. Yes. Murphy will have opposition.

4. No. Michigan labor is already badly split. The C. I. O. and A. F. of L. wouldn't even march together in Detroit's Labor Day parade. In Genesee county (Flint) the AFL has endorsed a Republican candidate for governor.

However, your guesses are just as good as ours.

In summary, we predict a red-hot fight. And it is NOT going to be a walkaway for either ticket.

CROP FORECASTS COMING TO YOU FROM K20

DO YOU want profitable grain in 1939 and good clover or alfalfa in 1940? Then use fertilizer high in potash when seeding this fall. Potash increases yield, stiffens straw, and keeps the grain from lodging. It improves quality by plumping out the kernels and increasing test weight. To insure good growth of clover or alfalfa following grain, plenty of potash must still be available in the soil. A 2-ton yield of clover hay requires 3 times as much potash as is needed to produce 25 bushels of wheat; 4 tons of alfalfa needs more than 7 times as much. Use 200-400 lbs. of 3-12-12, 0-12-12, 0-20-20, or similar ratios per acre for fall seedings. Often the increased hay yields more than pay for the fertilizers used, leaving a better profit from the increased grain yields. Consult your county agent or experiment station about the plant-food needs of your soil. See your fertilizer dealer. You will be surprised how little extra it costs to apply enough potash to insure good yields and high quality.

Write us for further information and literature on fertilizing your crops.

CHILDREN IN COURT

Judge Malcolm Hatfield
Delinquent Children's Home.
Conditions

A cursory survey of the case histories of a gang of delinquent boys plainly reveals the fact that they came from broken up, crowded and unhygienic homes. It was found that the parents of these boys were not only drunkards and thieves, but that they were utterly unprepared to guide and direct their children.

The problem of inadequate parentage is frequently due to the lack of parental education and to general ignorance. In many instances, parents are largely responsible for their children's misconduct because of the examples they set for them in the home. When parents are unaware that children unconsciously imitate them, they are likely to give no thought to what they say or do in their presence.

Discovery in Athens
"I am the boundary stone of the agora," reads the inscription on a marker which helps determine the limits of the Athenian market place of the Sixth century B. C. Its height is approximately four feet and it is a foot thick and four inches wide. The personified inscription is cut with carefully made archaic letters across the top edge and down the right side. The white marble post was found standing erect in its original position, just under a road bed containing pottery of the Fifth century.

Question And Answer Dept.

Problem—As paradoxical as it may seem, there was a room full of women, and still there wasn't a single person in the room. How come? (Answer elsewhere in this department).

Ques.—What are the names of the Evening Star and the Morning Star?
Ans.—The Evening and the Morning Star are the same, and the name of this star is "Venus". If it is seen in the morning before sunrise it is known as the Morning Star, and if seen in the evening after sunset it is called the Evening Star.

Ques.—In playing bridge, if I have a hand that looks good for an opening bid of 1 no trump, and still hold a fair 5-card suit, should I bid one no-trump or bid one in the suit?
Ans.—Make an opening bid of one in the suit, while you really wish to play the hand at no trump. The purpose is to get legitimate signal bids from your partner if he has a helping hand. By this information you might get assurance that you could go to 1, 2 or 3 no trump—or even higher. The idea is, to play the combined hands at its fullest strength, whether it be in a suit or in no-trump.

Answer to problem—All of the women in the room were married.

Ques.—Will you please answer what the word "epidemic" means?
Ans.—"Epidemic" means the prevalence of a particular disease in a particular community at a given time—or it may be spread over a vast area.

Ques.—Recently I read in a newspaper where an outlaw was caught in a cul-de-sac. Can you tell me what kind of a sack that was?
Ans.—"Cul de sac" is the French term for a blind alley. We presume the writer was trying to be high-brow.

Ques.—Is the octopus classed as a fish? And are they good to eat?
Ans.—The octopus is a mollusk, and they are not eaten by the white race. The octopus is eaten extensively in the Mediterranean countries.

Ques.—How did the Amazon River get its name?

Ans.—In mythology "Amazon" was a member of a warlike band of women living near the river Thermodon. When South America was discovered, a warlike band of Indian women was found along its largest river, and which bore a close connection to the mythical Amazons near Thermodon. They were called Amazons, and hence the name of the river.

Ques.—What was the Land of Promise as spoken of in the Bible?

Ans.—The Land of Promise was Canaan, which was promised to Abraham, according to the Bible.

Ques.—I would like to ask you who wrote "The Tales of a Wayside Inn"?

Ans.—The poems of the "Tales of a Wayside Inn" in various meters were written by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. The series include seven tales, chief among which is "Paul Revere's Ride".

"A butcher's boy sold an Electric Range to a friend of yours."

Mrs. X was curious—so she said to the butcher's boy:
"I see you going into Smith's every day and the package of meat you carry is always smaller than the one you bring here even tho' their family is the same size."
"Oh, they cook by electricity", replied the boy. "They say down at the shop that when a home buys an electric range they don't need as much meat in the oven to get the same amount of meat on the plates."
Electric cooking shrivels the meat bill—but not the meat!

Foreign News

Seldom had the world seen such furious shadow boxing.

In France, 100 motor busses burned up the roads, carrying troops to the frontier in a maneuver that made Frenchmen recall Gen. Joseph Simon Gallieni's taxicab roundup of 1914. Premier Edouard Daladier's cabinet, which a fortnight ago had shuddered at the idea of a longer work week, now condescended meekly. And Paris looked to England as a frightened child looks to its mother.

Back to London rushed German Ambassador Sir Neville Henderson. Back, too, rushed vacationing cabinet members. In the morning, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain walked his wife around St. James' park as if nothing had happened. But by afternoon his cabinet was immersed in gloom. Echoing puzzled Britain's thoughts, the isolationist Daily Mail cried: "The British public are disquieted. . . rumors of all sorts go round, but from official sources people hear nothing. It is time that the British public were frankly told what is happening."

Much would Mr. Chamberlain have paid to know what was happening. Cause of this international fussing was Reichsmarschall Adolf Hitler, who even then was doing some fussing of his own. Two days before, England's Sir John Simon had warned Germany to keep its hands off little Czechoslovakia, on pain of war with Great Britain. But Adolf Hitler answered this bluff with a new bluff, preparing to keep his 1,000,000 reserves under arms until mid-October. Flying from one frontier to the next, Dictator Hitler proudly surveyed the war machine that all Europe fears he will soon point at Czechoslovakia.

For more than a month, Britain's Viscount Runciman has struggled to arbitrate differences between Czechoslovakia and her 3,500,000 rebellious subjects, pro-Nazi Germans living in the Sudeten region which fronts Greater Germany. While Adolf Hitler's official newspapers whip up Nazi resentment against Czechoslovakia, Sudetens themselves have been doing their best to stir up trouble. Their leader, Konrad Henlein, has obeyed Herr Hitler by refusing all mediation efforts by Viscount Runciman or Czechoslovakia's government.

Since Germany would quite likely gobble up the Sudetens if given an opportunity, Great Britain has strongly protested Konrad Henlein's demand for autonomy. Last week, after sitting calmly through these protests, Sudetens pointed an admiring finger at England's autonomy arrangement with Ireland (Eire).

While Viscount Runciman blushed, they asked why a similar arrangement could not be made between Czechoslovakia and themselves.

After a week's bluffing, the end was not yet in sight. For his part, Fuehrer Hitler bluffed that he wanted (1) complete autonomy for Sudetens; (2) repudiation of Czech alliances with France, Russia, Poland; (3) Czech non-aggression pact with Germany; (4) Czech customs union with Germany. Though Europe was jittering badly, the disinterested observer could count noses and find Adolf Hitler forlornly friendless. Lined against him were France, Britain, Russia, Czechoslovakia. Silent, but presumably favoring the Czechs, were Rumania, Yugoslavia. Even his best friend, Benito Mussolini, warned he would not intervene in the Sudeten squabble.

4-H Club Boys Begin Conservation Study

From all over the state there are 150 boys in 4-H club work packing up for their entrance into the third annual 4-H conservation camp to be operated at Chatham in the Upper Peninsula, Sept. 12 to 17.

First meal in the camp is to be served Monday evening. From then on the boys, selected because they have evinced interest in this type of work, will delve into modern methods of forestry, wild life and game conservation, firearms, recreation and similar subjects.

No sick boys are to be enrolled. The program is to be strenuous enough to keep the healthiest active during the week, says A. G. Keitonen, state 4-H club leader and camp supervisor.

Tuesday the boys take a field trip to the United States forest experiment station at Dukes where Supt. J. R. Neetzel and his staff of the forest service will show how the north is being won back from its fire blackened and denuded condition. In the afternoon E. C. Sackrider and James Porter of Michigan State College present the agricultural side of conservation. Log sawing and chopping contests provide evening fun.

In succeeding days the boys go to the Casino game refuge, see Pictured Rocks on Lake Superior, hear about birds, first aid and the use of firearms and see Sergeant Sullivan of the State Police put on a special feature program. The Marquette state fish hatchery is another stopping place, winding up Friday with fly and bait casting demonstrations. The campers pack up Saturday morning for their trips home.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Barbara SENTRY, seeking to sober up her escort, Johnnie Boyer, on the way home from a party, saw him, and at the same time the attention of a policeman, whom the boy knocks down. As he arrests him, Professor Bruce of Harvard comes to the rescue. Barbara SENTRY, on the way she sees Barbara's father driving from the direction of his home at 12:45, he is in the club. Next morning, when Barbara is in the line her mother about her adventure, an urgent phone call comes from Mr. SENTRY's office after his departure.

CHAPTER II—Arriving home in the late afternoon, SENTRY reports his wife has been robbed and a Miss Wines, former temporary employee, killed. The evening papers, including the story, and SENTRY's wife, Nell Ray, young partner at the hospital where she works, go off to dinner at Gus Loran's, SENTRY's partner, with Mrs. Loran's brother, Jimmy Endle, Mr. and Mrs. SENTRY, call on old Mrs. SENTRY, who advises her not to talk, but to refer reporters to her father.

CHAPTER III—Phil SENTRY, son at Yale, and disturbed at Miss Wines' absence from her room for three days during August, goes home to help SENTRY investigate. He finds evidence against him—that the robbery was a fake, the safe opened by one who knew the combination, changed since Miss Wines' employment there—that a back door key, a duplicate of SENTRY's, was found in the girl's purse, and that SENTRY, too, had been away those three days in August. Bruce calls and SENTRY could have done it, because of the discrepancy of time between the slaying and their seeing SENTRY on the way.

CHAPTER IV—Phil, showing the police over the house, finds his strong box forced open and his keys, which only he and his father knew of, gone. Meanwhile, the police find the stolen money burned in the furnace. SENTRY sees her husband, who wears his innocence and tells her he had known of the robbery and murder the night before, but failed to call the police, and came home at 12:30. Both Phil and his mother are doubtful of SENTRY's innocence, but keep silent, protecting each other, and especially Barbara.

CHAPTER V—Mary, taking it bitterly, quarrels with Nell Ray, and hysterically runs away with Jimmy Endle to the Caribbean. SENTRY, who Barbara has been meeting at her grandmother's, tries to use influence to keep the family out of the papers, and everyone shields SENTRY on the verge of a breakdown. Old Mrs. SENTRY plans to see her son, but collapses at the fall gates, and dies two days before the trial opens.

CHAPTER VI—Barbara alone misses the trial, because of a nervous laryngitis. Miss Randall, from the office, tells that Miss Wines always asked SENTRY for a key to a clerk from a New Jersey resort, where SENTRY and Miss Wines registered there in August, but with different names. Barbara, failing to identify any of the photographs, presents a letter from her daughter, asking her dislike of SENTRY, and SENTRY's invitation to dinner. Court adjourns on the prospect of SENTRY himself taking the stand.

Q. So you were nervous about robbery, decided to testify, and then you were nervous about a nervous man? A. I have lively imagination, a lot of imaginary fears.

Q. Do they affect your actions? A. I sometimes do shameful things, make bad mistakes, through fear.

Q. Did you ever take on extra help last summer? A. Yes.

Q. Stenographers? A. Yes.

Q. On your way to New York? A. Yes.

Q. Who was with you? A. Yes.

Q. How many? A. One.

Q. What was her name? A. Miss Wines.

Q. A good stenographer? A. Fair.

Q. Pretty? A. Attractive.

Q. Eloquent? A. Not at all.

Q. Ever see her outside of office hours while she worked for you? A. No.

Q. Did you see her at all afterwards?

Q. After she worked for you? A. Yes.

Q. How often? A. Twice.

Q. Did you go anywhere last August?

Q. Where? A. I spent two nights at hotel in New York.

Q. Under your own name? A. No.

Q. Alone? A. No.

Q. Who was with you? A. A woman.

Q. Who was she? A. I don't know.

Q. Know her name? A. She said her first name was Endle.

Q. There was laughter in the court. Judge Stanton warned the spectators that if there were further interruption the court room would be cleared.

Q. Was she Miss Wines? A. No.

Q. You met her where? A. On the Boston-New York boat.

Q. On your way to New York? A. Yes.

Q. Why did she not stay in New York with you? A. I was afraid we might meet someone who knew her.

Q. Who suggested your meeting in New Jersey? A. I did.

Q. Why New Jersey? A. Because her home was in that state. I did not want to travel with her across a state line.

Q. Did she resemble Miss Wines? A. About the same size and coloring; yes, rather. But she was older.

Q. Did she know your father? A. No.

Q. Did you arrange to meet again? A. No.

Q. Why not? A. I didn't want any possible further contact between us.

Q. And did you ever on any other occasion wrong Mrs. SENTRY? A. Yes.

Q. With Miss Wines? A. No.

Q. Now Mr. SENTRY, you said you saw Miss Wines twice after she left the employ of SENTRY and Loran? A. Yes.

Q. Take the first occasion. Where did you see her? A. In my office.

Q. At what time of day? A. In the afternoon.

Q. Under what circumstances? A. Miss Randall came in to say that Miss Wines had asked to see Mr. Loran. Mr. Loran was not in. Miss Randall suggested that I see her.

Q. Never mind what Miss Randall said. The District Attorney might object to your telling us that. But as a result of something Miss Randall said to you, and of your reply, what happened? A. Miss Wines came into my office.

Q. Did she ask for something? A. She wanted money.

Q. How much? A. A hundred dollars.

Q. Why that exact amount? A. She

Q. No, you had better not tell what she said. Do you know of your own knowledge, and not because of anything she said, why Miss Wines wanted the money? A. No.

Q. Was it a consequence of anything you had done? A. No.

Q. Where was Mr. Loran that afternoon? A. He was out of town.

Q. Refused Dead Girl Help.

Q. As a result of what Miss Wines told you Mr. SENTRY did you give her any money? A. No.

Q. Or advice? A. I went into the reception room to speak to Miss Wines. She was sitting at a desk. She had been with me perhaps five minutes.

Q. She came to you for money and you refused her? A. Yes.

Q. Why? A. I was afraid of being involved.

Q. Afraid? A. Yes.

Q. You went away? A. She was crying. I went into the reception room.

Q. Yes, I decided to make it look like a robbery.

Q. What did you do? A. Took the money.

Q. You had gloves on? A. Yes, the night was cool.

Q. Did you see her? A. I turned off the light and went downstairs.

Q. Did you take the package for which you had come back to the office? A. No, I took it with me.

Q. When you got downstairs, did you notice anything about the car? A. It was gone.

Q. What did you do? A. I supposed it had been stolen. I walked to the corner at random, and then I saw my car.

Q. Did you see it? A. Yes, it was just around the corner, half a block from where I had left it. I parked the wrong way of a one-way street.

Q. What did you do? A. Got in and drove home.

Q. What did you do there? A. Put up the car. I threw the pistol in the river back and down cellar and burned the money in the furnace.

Q. Did you go to bed?

Q. Did you go to bed?

Q. Did you go to bed?

Q. That state like a hypnosis, in which Mrs. SENTRY had found herself so much of the time since the trial began, persisted during Mr. SENTRY's direct testimony.

Q. When at adjournment Mr. SENTRY left the stand, his eyes met his and she smiled at him firmly as he was led away. Then she and Phil went out together, slowly, surrendering themselves to be a passive part of the sluggish stream of spectators which banked at the door and trickled through, and dispersed along the marble corridors.

Q. She clung to Phil's arm, and they came down to the limousine, and many eyes pinned them and whistled as they drove away.

Q. They rode in silence for a while, till at last Phil mopped his brow and looked at her and asked miserably, "Want to talk, mother?"

Q. No, said Phil.

Q. He said with a jealous loyalty: "I don't believe he ever looked at any woman in his life but you. No matter what he says."

Q. But she did not answer him. After a while he asked huskily, "Mother, did you know what he was going to say? I mean, about the night she was killed?"

Q. She remembered with a pitiless clarity that day she first saw Arthur after his arrest. She said, "He told me, yes. Told me he went there and found her dead. And she added, quickly, 'He didn't know then that his shot had killed her.'"

Q. Phil cried, "Why didn't you tell me?"

Q. "It couldn't have done any good, Phil, to tell you."

Q. "But it was an accident!"

Q. "Yes," she added, unable to check the word in time. "If they believe him."

Q. "Why, they've got to haven't they? It all fits. He pounded his fist on his knee. 'It's rotten enough, but at least he's not a murderer.' She said nothing, and he spoke half to himself, 'I've never seen him except with you; never—' asked him any questions. Did he tell Mr. Flood all this?"

Q. She said wearily: "I think not. I think Mr. Falkran and Mr. Hare both advised him to answer no questions, say nothing at all, after he was arrested."

Q. When at last they came home, Barbara as they came in looked at her mother and then at Phil, searchingly, and Mrs. SENTRY said quickly: "He was fine, Barbara!"

Q. Linda cried, "There, Barb! I told you he would be. She's been worrying so!"

Q. Mrs. SENTRY thought how little Barbara seemed, and how young, and so terribly hurt. This, too, Arthur had done; yet—suddenly today she could not hate him. She said again to Barbara: "Yes, he was fine! I was never so proud of him."

Q. She saw Phil watch her wonderingly; and she said calmly: "Lunch must be ready, Linda, you stay!"

Q. While they were at table—Barbara had a tray in her room—Mr. Falkran telephoned, spoke with Mrs. SENTRY.

Q. "He's going to see Mr. SENTRY first," he reported, "then come out to consult with me. He feels that Mr. SENTRY made an excellent witness, that the jury was impressed."

Q. "Of course," Linda agreed.

Q. After lunch, Mrs. SENTRY suggested, "Linda, take Phil away for the afternoon, will you? Take him for a long drive." She smiled. "He needs fresh air, fresh ideas, needs you!" And she added suddenly, apologetically: "Don't if you'd rather not!"

"I Was Afraid of Being Involved."

Q. And spoke to Miss Randall, leaving Miss Wines alone in my office.

Q. Did you ever after she left you employ give her any money? A. No.

Q. Did she offer that day any reason why you personally should give her money? A. Only that she needed it.

Q. No attempt to blackmail you then on the matter? A. She asked, but she did not insist.

Q. By the way, you had a duplicate key to the back door? A. Yes.

Q. Where was it that day? A. In the side-drawer of my desk.

Q. When you went into the reception room that day, what did you discuss with Miss Randall? A. I asked her to get rid of Miss Wines.

Q. Did she? A. She went into my office.

Q. Down the main stairs? A. Down the back stairs.

Q. On that occasion you did not see Miss Wines again? A. No.

Q. When you came back to your office, did you see her? A. I did, half an hour after she left.

Q. Did you notice anything unusual? A. The side drawer of my desk was open.

Q. The one in which you kept the duplicate key? A. Yes.

Q. Had you left it open? A. Perhaps. I do not know.

Q. Did you know whether or not the key was gone? A. No.

Q. And was this before or after you began to carry a revolver in the car? A. Before.

Q. How long before? A. A week or more.

Q. How long before Miss Wines was killed? A. About three weeks.

Q. Was Mr. Loran in town after that day and before Miss Wines was killed? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether Miss Wines saw him? A. I do not.

Q. Now, on a certain Thursday evening, did you go to the club where you had dinner after your club? A. Yes, every Thursday evening.

Q. I am referring to the evening Miss Wines was killed. A. Yes.

Q. Tell what time did you play on that occasion? A. Phil about ten thirty.

Q. Did you leave the club when? A. Eleven o'clock or a little after.

Q. In your car? A. Yes.

Q. With the revolver in the dash look-out? A. Yes.

Q. You went where? A. I started home, got almost there, then went back to my office.

Q. Why? A. Mrs. SENTRY had arranged that day to have a package delivered at the office from Mr. Loran. A. Yes.

Q. What was in it? A. A drip coffee pot.

Q. What was to be done with it? A. Mrs. SENTRY had asked me to bring it home.

Q. Was it in the car? A. I forgot it.

Q. Did you look when I left the office, only to look when I left the office?

Q. And you went back to your office?

Q. To get it? A. Yes.

Q. You got there when? A. Some time between eleven thirty and twelve.

Q. Stopped where? A. At the curb by the back door.

Q. Did you lock the car? A. I left the key in the lock.

Q. And went immediately upstairs? A. No, I unlocked the door and started up, and I thought I heard voices.

Q. Voices? A. A voice.

Q. A woman's or a man's? A. A man's.

Q. And what? A. I listened, but the sound was not repeated. I was nervous, came out and looked for a policeman. I saw none, decided it was my imagination.

Q. Admits killing.

Q. So you went up, took the revolver out of the car and went quietly upstairs?

Q. Suddenly braver, Mrs. SENTRY? A. Pleading, game, like a fool kid. I didn't think there was anyone there.

Q. Took the revolver and went upstairs?

Q. How far upstairs? A. To the third floor.

Q. Was anyone there? A. Yes.

Q. It was dark.

Q. You had no light? A. There is no light on the third floor.

Q. The stairs are familiar. I've been using them for thirty years.

Q. Is there a door at the head of the stairs? A. Yes.

Q. And what did you do? A. Opened the door, stepped through it.

Q. And did anything happen? A. Someone jumped against me.

Q. Man or woman? A. A man.

Q. What then? A. The impact knocked me against the wall. It felled me so that the gun went off.

Q. Had you cocked it? A. Yes.

Q. And it went off. Then what? A. The man who had bumped me ran down the back stairs.

Q. You saw him? A. I heard him.

Q. What did you do? A. I turned on the light.

Q. Where? A. In my office.

Q. You went into the office? A. I stood in the doorway and reached the switch.

Q. Did that light the hall? A. Yes, enough.

Q. Did you see anything? A. I saw a woman lying on the hall floor.

Q. And you did what? A. Turned on the hall light to look at her.

Q. To see who she was? A. To see how badly she was hurt.

Q. Did you see who it was? A. It was Miss Wines.

Q. What did you do? A. I started to telephone the police.

Q. And did you? A. I realized that I might be blamed.

Q. In other words, you were afraid?

Q. And you did not telephone? A. No. When I went into the office, I saw that the safe was open. There is a money drawer in it, and this drawer had been taken out and was on my desk. The money was still in it. About three hundred dollars.

Q. Yes? A. I realized that no one would believe there had been a robbery there unless the money was taken.

Q. Yes? A. I decided to make it look like a robbery.

Q. What did you do? A. Took the money.

Q. You had gloves on? A. Yes, the night was cool.

Q. Did you see her? A. I turned off the light and went downstairs.

Q. Did you take the package for which you had come back to the office? A. No, I took it with me.

Q. When you got downstairs, did you notice anything about the car? A. It was gone.

Q. What did you do? A. I supposed it had been stolen. I walked to the corner at random, and then I saw my car.

open as long as possible. Meanwhile you can consult Mr. SENTRY, or I will.

"Perhaps you had better."

"Very well. And after you decide."

"Exactly."

She had a grateful interval before Falkran came. When he arrived, they went into the library, were there alone.

The attorney professed confidence. "I have just come from Mr. SENTRY," he said. "He made an excellent witness this morning. I timed things so that we could adjourn as soon as he was done, in order to allow his evidence to make a maximum impression on the jury's mind over Sunday. Mrs. SENTRY, the State lost, this morning, all the ground it had gained. They must begin again from the beginning now."

"Yes."

"You may take my word for it," he assured her, watching her, sensing something new under her rigid calm. "You see, they expected him to make a complete denial; but Mr. SENTRY told the jury what actually happened, and the truth fitted the pattern of the evidence the State had presented in every detail. Their case, so far as first degree murder is concerned, is destroyed."

She did not speak. After a moment he went on: "Of course, I appreciate your feelings this morning. I know quite well that Mr. SENTRY did not appear in an admirable light."

Still she said nothing, and he spoke almost hurriedly. "He will face cross-examination on Monday. That will be distressing. The State will emphasize the unpleasant aspects of his testimony. Yet you must be there."

After a silent moment, when her head bowed, he took this as assent and rose to go; but he made one more demand. "You will see Mr. SENTRY tomorrow, no doubt?" he suggested.

Panic did for a moment flicker in her eyes. "Must I?"

He said gently, "If I were District Attorney, when you took the stand, my first question on cross-examination would be: 'Mrs. SENTRY, have you visited your husband in his cell since you heard his direct testimony?'"

She stared at him, still sitting motionless. Then she cried desperately: "Yes, yes, I will go! I will go!"

You've seen such a rock of strength, I don't want to impose on you."

"Of course I will," Linda declared, and when they were gone, Mrs. SENTRY was deeply relieved to be left thus for a while alone.

Presently the doorbell rang. Dean Hare, Mrs. SENTRY greeted him composedly, said, "Well, Dean?"

"How are you?" he asked in a low tone.

"All right."

"You were wonderful!"

"Why not?"

He said ruefully: "I didn't know what was coming. Ellen, Falkran didn't take me into his confidence."

She made no comment, and he said at last, "It had an effect on the jury."

"Mr. Falkran thought so."

He watched her as though he hoped, by adding some word, she might make it possible for him to say more; but she dreaded any sign of sympathy, gave him no opening, asked instead, "Had you some business? Mr. Falkran is coming presently."

He said reluctantly: "Well, yes. Yes, I'm afraid I have. Mr. Loran called me. He resented Falkran's bringing him into this."

"Oh!" She conceded, "Oh, yes, I suppose he would."

Hare explained, "He wants to dissolve his partnership with Mr. SENTRY."

"Does he?"

"He has named a figure," Hare told her, "based on what he believes the business—real estate, accounts receivable, contracts, cash, good will—is worth. He offers to buy Mr. SENTRY's interest, or to sell his own, on the basis of that figure. The decision is up to you."

"Suppose I wish neither to buy or sell."

"He will take court action to force a dissolution."

"Can he do that? Force it?"

"Certainly," he added. "That of course might involve the sacrifice of many assets."

"What do you advise?"

The lawyer made a doubtful gesture. "You can hardly run the business yourself." And he suggested: "Suppose I ask Mr. Loran to make his offer in writing, to let it stand open as long as possible. Meanwhile you can consult Mr. SENTRY, or I will."

"Perhaps you had better."

"Very well. And after you decide."

"Exactly."

She had a grateful interval before Falkran came. When he arrived, they went into the library, were there alone.

The attorney professed confidence. "I have just come from Mr. SENTRY," he said. "He made an excellent witness this morning. I timed things so that we could adjourn as soon as he was done, in order to allow his evidence to make a maximum impression on the jury's mind over Sunday. Mrs. SENTRY, the State lost, this morning, all the ground it had gained. They must begin again from the beginning now."

"Yes."

"You may take my word for it," he assured her, watching her, sensing something new under her rigid calm. "You see, they expected him to make a complete denial; but Mr. SENTRY told the jury what actually happened, and the truth fitted the pattern of the evidence the State had presented in every detail. Their case, so far as first degree murder is concerned, is destroyed."

She did not speak. After a moment he went on: "Of course, I appreciate your feelings this morning. I know quite well that Mr. SENTRY did not appear in an admirable light."

Still she said nothing, and he spoke almost hurriedly. "He will face cross-examination on Monday. That will be distressing. The State will emphasize the unpleasant aspects of his testimony. Yet you must be there."

Aviation
Once a captain in the Russian czar's guards, Alexander P. de Seversky came to the U. S. when he found himself an exile, established a name for himself designing speed planes. His latest ship, a low-wing, single-motored military pursuit plane, which Aviatix Jacqueline Cochran hoped to fly in this year's Bendix races.
To test his new ship, Seversky flew from New York to Los Angeles in 10 hours, 3 minutes, 7 seconds, bettering by almost 1 1/2 hours the mark set in 1932 by Roscoe Turner.
Carrying a remarkable load of fuel in its wing-to-wing tanks, the ship can cruise 3,000 miles; would be a logical convoy for new U. S. "flying fortresses" that cruise 5,000 miles.
