Spring Election Will Be Held Next Monday

Voters of Michigan will go to the polls next Monday to cast their ballots in the biennial spring election when, in addition to electing township officials there is a state ticket to be voted upon as well as one county official.

On the state ticket there will be elected two Justices of the Supreme Court, two Regents of the University, Superintendent of Public Instruction, member of the State Board of Education, and two members of the State Board of Agriculture. In Washtenaw county the only contest is for the office of County School Commissioner, Miss Cora Haas, incumbent, being opposed by Julius W. Haas.

There will also be submitted to the electors two proposed amendments to the Constitution of this state. Proposal No. 1 is an amendment to provide for the non-partisan election, by the people, of Justices of the Supreme Court, Circuit Judges, Judges of Probate and Circuit Court Commissioners. Proposal No. 2: Shall the Constitution be amended so as to authorize the vesting in Circuit Court Commissioners with like judicial powers as are exercised by Justices of the Peace?

In the Sylvan township election Supervisor Fred G. Broesamle, Republican, is unopposed, and Robert A. Wheeler, Democratic clerk of the township, is unopposed. The complete ticket is as follows:

Republican:
Supervisor—Fred G. Broesamle.
Clerk—
Treasurer—Lula Bahnmiller.
Commissioner Highways—George Zeab.
Justice—William C. Pritchard.
Member Board of Review—Albert Winans.
Constables—Edward H. Chandler, Fred Bareis, Harry Prudden, Jay Weinberg.
Democratic:
Supervisor—
Clerk—Robert A. Wheeler.
Treasurer—Lula Sweeney.
Commissioner Highways—Fred Haffey.
Justice—Paul F. Niehaus.
Member Board of Review—Otto Hinderer.

Constables—Max Hoppe, William Schatz, Albert Yisig, Allen Page.

Lima township has only one ticket in the field, the Democratic incumbent being candidate for re-election, headed by Supervisor Leigh Beach.

In Sharon the Republican ticket, headed by Supervisor George F. Albers, is unopposed.

Voters of Lyndon township will choose their officers from two complete tickets. James Howlett, who served the township for many years as supervisor, refused to be a candidate this year, and Homer Stofer heads the Republican ticket, with Eugene McKernan at the head of the Democratic ticket.

Freedom township also has two complete tickets in the field, with Supervisor Edwin Schable, Republican, being opposed by Robert Schiller, Democrat.

Luren D. Dickinson Is Michigan's Real "Man of the Hour"

Lansing—Michigan's "man of the hour" is Luren D. Dickinson.

The new governor of the state took the oath of office at 8:20 a. m. Friday, March 17, under circumstances that were strangely similar to those under which Calvin Coolidge, tight-lipped economy-loving Vermont, assumed officially the obligations as President of the United States sixteen years ago.

The scene of both ceremonies was a farmhouse. Simplicity prevailed to an old-fashioned spartan degree.

"I am humbled by this new responsibility," the new executive said. And being governor was not going to make any difference in his creed of living; he said he would continue to teach his Sunday school class, health permitting; he would continue to decline invitations to social affairs on Sunday, which he and his wife always observed as the Sabbath, not a holiday.

The remarks were typical of the man's personal wholesomeness which is supported by a life-time of clean living.

Sternness in Morality

In matters of public morality, Governor Dickinson will be stern and yielding.

As vice-president of the National Anti-Saloon league and a prominent layman of the Methodist Episcopal church, he will countenance no compromise with gambling. In his inaugural address before the State Senate, Dickinson warned that America may invite the fate that befell ancient Greece and Rome if it tolerates corruption and immorality.

"The vehement outcry from every locality of our own state," he said, "are uttering vociferous demands that we purge our state of these gambling leeches, habits of our fairs, races, resorts and roadides."

Much as he favors home-rule responsibility, the governor will not tolerate.

Music Program Given By 7th and 8th Grades

Last Friday, March 24, the Seventh and Eighth grade music classes presented an original afternoon program for their parents and for members of the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth grades. The program was held in the kindergarten room, taking place at 3:45.

Sumner Oesterle and Felix Holbrook acted as station announcers. The program consisted of several numbers sung by the Seventh and Eighth grade girls' chorus, a group of selections by the girls' quartet, and a cornet solo by Raymond Parsons. Russell Scrippler and Garmyle Holbrook played a horn duet.

An original dramatic skit entitled "Music Haters" was presented, its cast including Helen Grabowski, Caroline Breitenwischer, Mary Woods, James Hembree, Ronald Gentner and George Beeman.

The committee which planned the entire program consisted of Ruth Oesterle, Mildred Slane, Doris Parsons and Evelyn Lehman. Ushers were Donald Knoll and Louis Policht; stage-hands included Carlton Christwell, James Collings, Charles Downer and Kenneth Platt.

Proclamation

Army Day will be observed, nationwide and throughout Michigan on Thursday, April 6. This is the twelfth year of the nation-wide recognition of the part our military forces have played in the upbuilding of our country.

The purpose of the observance is to focus public attention on the United States Army and its activities, to promote an intelligent understanding of the functions of the Army in peace as well as in war time emergencies, and to consider the problems of our national defense that peace for our nation may be maintained.

In the hope that we never shall be involved in another war, let us, by the observance of this anniversary, demonstrate our devotion to those who have sacrificed themselves that we may always enjoy the blessings that abound here as in no other land, and resolve that we shall strive to preserve for our posterity those same blessings which we hold so close to our hearts.

Given under my hand and the seal of the Village of Chelsea, this 30th day of March, Nineteen Hundred and Thirty-Nine.

Roy Harris, President.

FARMERS' CLUB MEETS

The March meeting of the Western Washtenaw Farmers' club was held on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Daniels, and dinner was served at 7 o'clock to 64 members and friends. The farmer members of the club were honor guests at the dinner and were seated at one table.

The business session was followed by the roll call, "What the Farm has Meant to Me", which brought out many interesting and amusing experiences. A group of songs was rendered by Miss Mattie Jean Benton of East Lansing. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. E. L. Benton. Mr. Benton, who is an expert on animal husbandry at Michigan State College, gave a talk on "Sheep, Wool and Wool Materials."

In closing, a group of songs were sung by the club, with Mrs. Geo. W. Walworth at the piano.

crato gambling. In fact, it is almost inconceivable that the question would ever have arisen in 1939 if he had possessed supreme executive powers.

Economy to be Emphasized

A man who has always lived simply, Governor Dickinson exemplifies the watchword of economy which Fitzgerald carried to the capital city.

It was noticeable that in the first legislative session, after the tragic loss of the party's leader, the House of Representatives voted almost unanimously to curtail the spending of the four tourist associations, reducing their appropriations from $25,000 to $20,000 a year. At the same hour the Senate aliced more than a million dollars from appropriations there, easily outdoing their colleagues in a staunch stand for economy.

Again Michigan's "Coolidge" may be well expected to hew closely to the economy line.

Home pressure groups, no matter what their interests may be, will be treated alike by the governor. His whole life has been "predicated on economy which will hold in all his official action."

Liquor Control

Although the new governor hates the liquor business, legalized as it is, yet he will probably take a realistic viewpoint on the course of wisdom for 1939.

The state treasury now receives on an average of eight million dollars revenue for the state's part in controlling the sale of liquor. In a year when an administration is struggling to overcome a big deficit and to balance the budget, thus putting its financial house in order, the loss of eight millions would be a major blow. The new governor is known to look with disfavor on the state's participation in the liquor business, even if nominally for the purpose of control. While he would not trade morality for money, it is believed that the pressing demand for economy will be given temporary preference at this time.

The governor took great delight, as one of his first acts, in signing a bill requiring temperance education in the public schools. Education of the evils of alcohol, together with strict enforcement of the present law, will likely form his 1939 policy on this question.

Canny Observer

Legislative leaders who know the new governor intimately agree that he possesses remarkable mental prowess for a man of nearly four score years.

His ability to handle detail work has always been apparent. He has a memory for names and faces that is distinctly above the ordinary. More than one veteran legislator 20 to 25 years his junior has declared: "Dickinson's mind is a lot keener than mine."

From his long experience in public affairs, having been lieutenant governor so many years that he has become an "institution" to people in small towns and rural areas—in general, Michigan's middle class, Dickinson has acquired a canny sense of reacting to public opinion.

He may be expected to proceed cautiously. He has already indicated that it might be wise to concentrate legislative attention to four major problems: Civil service, labor relations, welfare and budget-balancing.

Children In Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield
Problem Parents

A well known judge always asks the following question before he starts the trial of a delinquent child in court: "Are this child's parents separated or divorced?"

This judge knows from years of experience that parents who are happily married are more unselfish, possess greater poise and are more interested in the social and civic activities of the community. He finds that the happily married parents are not usually skeptics or agnostics, but have a basic belief in God as the source of all moral concepts.

His observations lead him to believe that all dull children who appear in court are not inherently dull but became so through living with uninteresting parents and relatives. He believes that if such children were to be removed from their parents they would develop greater intelligence.

While this judge realizes that heredity limits mental growth, he is also convinced that most normal children could be more mentally alert if they were not chained to tedious parents.

Secondary Roads Will Be Improved This Year

Lansing—Contracts awarded so far this year by the state highway department indicate a banner year of improvement for Michigan secondary roads.

State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wageningen, in preparing to take bids on additional projects this week, announced that by June first more than 100 projects on secondary roads would be under way or completed since the end of 1938.

"We have pushed these programs for secondary projects in the last few months," the commissioner said, "because for several years now we have been forced to concentrate practically all new construction on the main roads included in the Federal Aid system."

The commissioner credited two separate programs with making extensive secondary road improvement possible this year. He said that contracts had been awarded on 55 projects under a PWA program and 29 contracts under the Federal Aid secondary programs.

Bids will be taken this week on three more PWA projects and on four more Federal Aid secondary projects. Additional projects under both programs will be bid in April and May. The PWA program totalling about $4,000,000 will be entirely under contract by June 1 according to present plans.

County roads are benefitting as well as secondary state highways. Of the 33 projects under the Federal Aid secondary program now under way or on which bids are taken this week, 26 are on county roads.

Extension Telephone saves Four Lives

BECAUSE Robert Wochholz had an extension telephone on the second floor of his home in Albion, his family is alive today! Here are excerpts from his tribute to the protection an extension telephone affords, published with his permission.

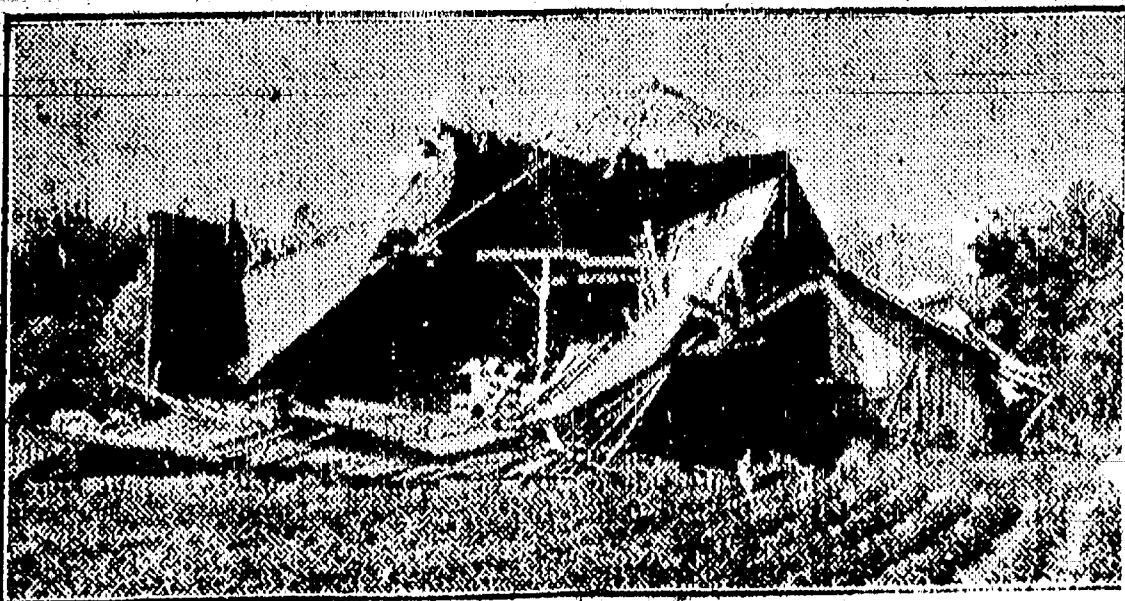

"In addition to the extension telephone having saved us many, many trips downstairs, it proved the best investment I ever made when, on the night of January 23, 1939, our house caught fire, trapping my wife, our two children, and a maid on the second floor.

"After calling the fire department over the extension telephone... they crawled onto the porch roof and were taken down by the firemen.

"... If it had not been for our extension telephone upstairs, it would have been virtually impossible for my wife to summon the fire department."

The low cost of an extension telephone... 2 to 3 cents a day... places its protection and convenience within reach of every family. A small connection charge applies. For complete information, call the Telephone Business Office.

Bill Would Safeguard Beauty of Highways

Michigan's growing investment in scenic state highways would be safeguarded against commercial exploitation of billboards and signs under provisions of Senate Bill 147, now pending at Lansing.

The measure, modeled after a California law, was introduced Feb. 27 by Senator Joseph Baldwin, Republican of Albion.

While Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner, was attending the annual meeting of the American Road Builders' association in Seattle this month, he conferred with the California highway commissioner. This conference resulted in a number of amendments being suggested by Van Wagoner to the Michigan bill. These changes were approved by Senator Baldwin on March 20, and the revised bill is now before the senate state affairs committee of which Senator Earl Munshaw, Grand Rapids, is chairman.

"This bill would not deprive an outdoor advertising employee of one day's employment," states Senator Baldwin. "It seeks sensible regulation of commercial advertising structures on state trunkline roads in the interest of public safety and in protection of our scenic resources. Administration and enforcement of the act would be the responsibility of the highway commissioner and the state police commissioner, respectively. "A feature of the bill, as amended by Commissioner Van Wagoner," said Senator Baldwin, "is a provision for creation of scenic zones on designated tourist highways in which no billboards would be permitted outside cities and villages."

"The Massachusetts Supreme court, in upholding a billboard law, ruled that the scenery of the state was an asset owned by the people as a whole and that values along a highway were obviously created by that highway, such rights thus belonging to the public which created the highway and used it."

Providing sufficient public support is given within the next three weeks, observers at Lansing report that Senate Bill 147 has an excellent chance of passage. A public hearing will be held soon at which interested persons may testify.

MILK BILLS ON DISPLAY

The Farmers' Union has on display in the Chelsea State Bank the two milk bills, 118 and 48, which are before the legislature at the present time. The producing and consuming public are urged to read these bills and if they so desire, sign the petition for No. 48, which is being supported by the producers. Prompt action is necessary in this matter.

HOLD RELIGIOUS SERVICE

The members of the local Kiwanis club went to church in their own hall Monday night. The occasion was the annual religious service. Under the direction of the program committee, Rev. Fred Mumby was instructed to organize a worship service.

The service much resembled Sunday morning worship—at one of the churches. A trio of high school young ladies, Joan Walworth, Janis Dancer, and Eunice Hart, acted as the choir. Margaret Harper was pianist. After a hymn, and prayer by Rev. Mumby, the Old Testament lesson was read by Rev. H. Addis Leeson and the New Testament lesson by Rev. Ray Barber. The trio sang two special numbers.

Rev. Fred Mumby preached the sermon on the text, "The stone which the builders rejected has become the chief corner stone." "The two most important stones in a building are the corner stone and the key stone which supports the arch. No community, society or nation can hope to continue unless it is founded upon the chief corner stone which is Jesus Christ."

The Kiwanians in a body will make their annual visit to the church at the Good Friday service. One of the important matters in the Kiwanis program is called "Spiritual Aims" and under this action comes co-operation with the churches.

Resolution

Whereas we, as a nation seldom have been faced by greater potential dangers to our peace and security than now, because of disturbed international affairs and jealousies abroad, and by the continuing hint of activities by subversive forces within our borders, and

Whereas a proper and adequate national defense, which should include an adequate army efficiently trained and well equipped, will serve to command the respect of the world and to restrain any tendency toward aggression against us, and

Whereas, our American Armies, from the time of the nation's birth, have served well both in war and in peace and therefore deserve the tribute of the entire nation.

Therefore, Be It Resolved, that these organizations go on record as urging the upbuilding of our national defense forces to the point where they will be adequate to the country's needs.

Be It Also Resolved, that these organizations commend to their members and to all citizens the patriotic observance of Thursday, April 6, as Army Day, to bring those matters to the attention of our people for the purpose of arousing an intense love of country, and to show honor to those who have served in the American Army, both past and present.

HAROLD CHANNING WIRE

COPYRIGHT-HAROLD CHANNING WIRE W.N.U. SERVICE

"Irene," he asked, "did Tillson give any names? Or places, or people?"

"She turned imploring eyes to him. 'Must I think?'"

"Enough to remember what you were talking about. Was any mountain or meadow brought up?"

Irene counted on her fingers. "I slept well last night and remarked on it. He said something about sleeping too. Then we talked some more. Then he bragged about knowing so much. He said it would look at the sky tonight over—is there a sleeping mountain?"

"Sleeping Beauty," Breck urged.

Irene shook her head with a little scowl. "I really don't know. Where are you going?"

Breck had untied Kit. Now he said quickly, "Promise me you'll say nothing about this."

"Have I told you something?"

"Perhaps. Promise me."

"I'll not talk," Irene promised.

He strode on to the telephone, dropped Kit's reins, and rang headquarters. Cook answered.

"Dad," Breck asked, "Slim there? No, don't call him. Tell him to take the trail and meet me half-way. I've got some letters that must go out."

"It's sort of late in the afternoon," Cook began.

"They're important!" Breck cut in. "He could not trust the wire. Too much chance of his word being intercepted from one of the patrol instruments."

A pause told that his meaning had gotten across.

"All right," Cook finished briefly and hung up.

Breck strapped on his gun and put an ax in the saddle scabbard.

The whole thing might be a false clue; yet he read Art Tillson. The boy would boast to make himself big before Irene. After all, he had told nothing she could understand.

Sleeping Beauty mountain came into sight as he topped a rise in the trail some distance beyond Rock House. It rose on the eastern rim of the range, a high, barren crest sculptured in the form of a woman reclining. The peak was above timberline, but the wooded lower slope offered dangerous fire country.

South of the mountain were the Pot-holes, and putting these conditions together, Breck formed tentative plans. They could be completed when he met Sierra Slim.

As he rode, his body grew tense, for that was the mood of the forest, and he strained to catch all sounds beyond the limit of his vision. Kit, too, listened, and it was he who stopped abruptly without command when they were still an hour from the summit.

Breck rose in his stirrups, motionless until there came a faint thud ahead. Then he wheeled suddenly from the trail, hitting off in a lane of trunks, he sat waiting with his eyes upon a patch of light where that other rider must pass.

CHAPTER XX

In a short time the sharp ring of shoes on rock that had first warned him, came again, then broke into the rapid thud of a horse running up the dim path. Kit raised his head. Instantly Breck gripped his nostrils, silencing him.

The sound approached in a reckless rush, with no attempt by the rider to move quietly. In a flash the other animal appeared in the lane where Breck watched, and glimpsing it he relaxed in his saddle. It was Sierra's patch horse; at the same time the lank figure was unmistakable.

Whirling Kit, Breck called, "Slim!"

Sierra halted. "You, pardner? Come ahead."

Breck moved back to the trail and stopped at the other man's side. "What's up?" he asked. "Running from someone?"

"Not any," Sierra grinned. "I was makin' that runkus so's you could hear me. Thought you'd be about this far."

Without going into details as to the source of his information, Breck told what he had learned. "The best way I can figure it," he finished, "is for me to go up Sleeping Beauty and lay for the firebug, while you watch the trail where the Tillsons will come out of Sulphur Creek. I have a hunch where that is."

Sierra wagged his head thoughtfully. "That might be the way to do it. Looks like the Tillson outfit is figurin' to use Quakin' Asp trail down the valley. But you and me had better stick together. Jud won't move till the fire's big and all us rangers is onto it. Looks like our play is to pick up the gentleman on Sleepin' Beauty first and see the color of his eyes. We might make him tell something. How about it?"

"I guess you're right," agreed Breck.

"That's a big country over there," Sierra added. "One man alone could hardly watch it. Now let's do a little figurin'. A good place for fire is on the southwest side of the mountain. The nesters are just south of that. Wouldn't you say whoever's doin' the job would strike for the Pot-holes afterwards?"

"I thought so," said Breck. "They wouldn't want to meet me coming from Rock House, nor you and Cook from headquarters. That leaves their way open to the south."

Abruptly Slim wheeled his horse. "Then let's move. It's gettin' dark and too shut up in here."

They went on, riding at a walk into the canyon mouth. "This will do," Sierra said at last. "I'll climb up to the left bank, you take the right. Don't go far on top—just set there and watch."

Breck turned Kit up the slope, moved for a time in the blackness of trees, but emerged again into starlight when he reached the backbone. There he halted in the shadow of a pine snag with his face toward Sleeping Beauty. From this position the crest lost its human form, and his gaze swept over a high, dark mass of woods, broken only by the line of rock upon which he waited.

He glanced at his watch. Nine-thirty. Full night had come. It seemed if a fire were to be started, now was the time. As minutes passed and no flare shot through the black slope, he began to doubt his judgment. Kit grew restless and struck the rock with his forefeet.

"Easy boy," Breck soothed him. "You're not the only one."

Almost as he spoke, a yellow point of light came before his eyes. For an instant it failed to arouse him. At second nothing. Then abruptly he knew it was the fire, far up hidden in the pines. Silence of the forest lay unbroken. He sat listening. There was no sound of flame. It was perhaps five minutes that he waited.

The clatter burst suddenly; someone was riding down the backbone, leaping a sure-footed horse over the rubble of rock. Breck remained behind his snag until the figure was within gun range, the moving Kit only a step, shouted, "Halt there! Hands up!"

Speed of approach was not slackened. A spurt of flame darted toward him. He answered with three shots from the Luger, aimed high; a fourth he put close to the man's side. A sharp oath burst out.

"The hatch!" Breck ordered.

Now the rider was plainly visible up the ridge. He had obeyed, bringing his horse to a stand. Breck advanced, saying again, "Hands up there."

Response was slow. Breck was within a few feet when at last two arms started up. Suddenly in the movement one was flung out. A heavy gun grazed Breck's cheek. He dodged and the next instant swung a left-handed blow against the fellow's jaw. The man toppled from his saddle. His horse, freed, plunged on down the ridge.

It was done in a minute. Breck leaped to the ground and with the Luger in his prisoner's face, ordered him to his feet. Then with a length of the rope, he bound his arms. Neither spoke.

From across the canyon came sounds of a horse scrambling downward. For a time the animal was lost in the bottom, but present burst through a brush patch.

"All right, Slim," Breck called.

"Over here."

Sierra rode up. "By the kiss of Judas!" he exclaimed, bending down to look at the prisoner.

"Do you know this fellow?" Breck asked.

"Hell yes! Worked trail for us one year. Got himself fired for stealin' dynamite and sellin' it. After that he turned nester. Hard to tell what he is now." Sierra shifted in his saddle. "Tillson pay you right well for this job, Cowan?"

The man looked up shullenly from a black-bearded face, but said nothing.

Breck swung to his horse. "We'd better hit that fire, Slim, before it gets away from us."

"Right, pardner," Sierra jerked a thumb toward the one afoot. "Bring him along. I he don't run fast enough, drag him."

They climbed the ridge, with Breck leading his captive on a rope. The fire was in brush, yet had not had time to eat far, and they circled it at once, Breck chopping a line with his ax, Sierra shoveling earth onto the flames. In half an hour it could be left to burn itself out.

PINCKNEY—Arthur VanSickle, 67, died at his home at Hi-Land Lake on Thursday. He was born in Brantford, Canada, and lived in Detroit for many years where he was a builder and engaged in the real estate business.

About 15 years ago he bought what was known as the George Reeves farm and started the Hi-Land Lake summer resort. Some 40 cottages were built there in the years when lake property was booming. Dispatch.

Asparagus Since Roman Times Asparagus has been known and prized as food from earliest Roman times.

Band and Orchestra

(Received too late for "Hi-Light")

The school orchestra has a new method of practice now and it is much more progressive than the former way. We work out each section separately. This gives us a chance to find the difficulties and "iron them out." The massed orchestra has seen an immense improvement.

The band has been coming right along too, even though it is forfeiting part of its time for the orchestra. There have been several promotions in different sections because some members of the band consider it important to practice. You'll probably be hearing us soon.

Now that the dance orchestra is being put into use, some of the people who formerly thought of it as a "half-pint" organization have changed their mind. We played for one matinee dance so far and have an eager future.

Question And Answer Dept.

Problem—John takes a strip of paper exactly one foot long to make a rule in 1-4 inches. His only guide is a small 1-inch rule. With the use of this inch rule he marks off the 1-4 inches. How many marks will he have made when he gets to the end? (Answer elsewhere in this department.)

Ques.—As a devout Quaker, did William Penn own slaves?

Ans.—Yes. William Penn was the owner of Negro slaves at the time of his death.

Ques.—How could Theodore Roosevelt be President of the United States when he was under the minimum age limit of 45 years when he took the office the first time?

Ans.—According to the Constitution a man must be 45 years old to be eligible for election as President of the United States. But there is no such restriction on the Vice-President. Theodore Roosevelt was Vice-President to McKinley, and when the latter was shot, Theodore ascended to the presidency, being only 43 years old at that time. When he was elected President three years later he was, of course, over the minimum age limit.

Answer to problem—John made 47 marks to make his rule in 1-4 inches. The last 48th quarter finished the rule and therefore not necessary to make that final mark.

Ques.—Does the Prince of Wales speak Welsh? And is he a Welshman?

Ans.—No. "The Prince of Wales" is a mythical title created to appease the Welsh people. No Prince of Wales has ever been a Welshman.

Ques.—What is meant by the political expression—"right" and "left," as applied to parties? Does Communism or Socialism figure in them?

Ans.—The "right" are the conservatives and the "left" are the liberals. The Democrats lean to the liberal and the Republicans lean to the conservative. The terms originated from the custom common in many European countries because the conservatives were seated to the right of the speaker, while the liberals and radicals were seated to the left of the speaker. Communists, Socialists and radicals are classed as "liberal," but "leftists" are not necessarily Communists, Socialists or Radicals.

Ques.—I would like to know why "lb." is used as the abbreviation of "pound." Thank you.

Ans.—"Lb." is the abbreviation of "libra," the Latin word which means "pound."

Ques.—I was born June 4, 1897. What day of the week was that?

Ans.—June 4, 1897, was on Friday. We trust you are not superstitious.

Ques.—I wish to ask what was the day of the week that Admiral Dewey won his brilliant victory at Manila?

Ans.—Sunday. The date was May 1, 1898.

Ques.—Do Negroes observe any holiday that is peculiar to their own race?

Ans.—Yes, but the dates vary according to the State in which they live. Their holiday is known as Emancipation Day.

Great Auks Were in Demand As the race of great auks dwindled down to a few hundred birds, museums over the world realized that it was only a matter of time until the bird became extinct and they offered enormous prices for specimens. This only speeded up the work of extinction.

Patented a Sewing Machine Thomas Saint of England patented a sewing machine in 1780. It was similar to the modern chain stitch machine, and was intended for use on leather. It was never used to any extent.

Safetygrams BY FRED W. BRAUN The Safety Man

The more difficult and hazardous the job, the safer it will be done. When roads are slippery, when sleet freezes on the windshield, when the weather is foggy and vision is poor, America's automobile drivers are noted for their caution and safe driving. Why? It is because the need for safety—not so much for others but for themselves—is so apparent that everyone exercises the utmost care. Self-preservation!

Why can't we exercise the same caution during clear weather and when roads are good?

It brings to mind the oft repeated statement: When driving an automobile, only you are responsible. The safety of others depends upon your actions. It is a definite personal responsibility.

It's smart to drive carefully!
