Huron League Band Festival

This year, Chelsea is the home of the annual Band Festival. Last year, you will remember, Dundee took the responsibility. Theirs was successful, but we hope that this year's crowd will exceed that of Dundee's and set a record. Under the guest directorship of Mr. Graham Overguard we believe this highly possible. As you probably know, Mr. Overguard is the director of bands at Wayne University. If you ever heard the Wayne Band, you will be able to interpret Mr. Overguard's musical ability.

The participants, namely Belleville, Dundee, Clinton, Milan, Chelsea and University High of Ann Arbor have been looking forward to the occasion as much as we have, and on Tuesday, May 2, at 8:00 p.m. will prove it to you. This festival, I might remind you, is next week and there is no admission fee.

54 Children Confirmed At St. Mary

Archbishop Edward Mooney administered the Sacrament of Confirmation to 54 children Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in St. Mary Church. The girls were beautifully attired in white dresses and veils; the boys wore white shirts with dark ties and dark trousers. The children marched in procession from the school. This was followed by the procession of the clergy, for which the Holy Name men formed a "Guard of Honor" from the Rectory to the Church. The altar was artistically decorated with lilies, ferns and red carnations.

In the sanctuary and assisting the Archbishop were: Reverend Thomas Carey of Ann Arbor, Reverend T. A. Kuran of Mercywood; Reverend L. Lavoy of Clinton; Reverend Donovan of Detroit; Reverend L. L. Dorr, Pastor, and six acolytes.

The music was rendered by the St. Mary girls' Gregorian choir.

Lansing—The capital circus is top-sy-turvy.

Sideshowers over the McKay bridge fee and state purchasing investigations, just to mention two stellar attractions, are stealing the spotlight from the legislative big tent.

The net result is confusion, and a number of legislative veterans have come to the conclusion that they should attend to four major problems—welfare, civil service, labor and the budget—and go home.

The death of Governor Fitzgerald, the advent of a new leader and the subsequent inquiries which have centered around the convention manipulators, Frank McKay and Edward Barnard, have all tended to impede action in the House and Senate.

The fourth month is drawing to a close, and comparatively little has been accomplished. This is not intended as sarcasm. Circumstances have been most unusual.

Party Purge

While headlines hint of a new sensation in connection with McKay and the Republican party, a group of legislators at Lansing is grimly determined to purge the party in Michigan of the growing suspicion that conventions have been controlled in recent years by big city bosses.

The fiery, crusading Elton R. Eaton of Plymouth, in Wayne county, led a band of young Republicans in the House to effect passage of a bill aimed at the clipping of Barnard's wings at Detroit. In the senate the bill encountered an unfriendly committee. A substitute bill was hurriedly introduced by Senator D. Hale Brake of Stanton.

With the McKay inquiry adding fuel to the flames, the Eaton-Brake allies are demanding a thorough "clean-up" of the party, once and for all. Apprehensive lest the party be accused of conducting a "whitewashing" investigation, James Thompson, chairman of the Republican state central committee, sent an invitation to At-

CONGREGATIONAL MEN TO MEET

The Men's Club of the Congregational Church will hold a banquet on May 10 to which all the men of the community are cordially invited. The speaker for the occasion will be Dr. Thomas Anderson, minister of the Brewster-Pilgrim Church in Detroit. Dr. Anderson has made a trip nearly every year for many years to the Holy Land through Europe. He has recently come to Detroit from Chicago where he was pastor to one of the great Congregational Churches of that city. While in Chicago he was also religious editor for the Chicago Herald and Examiner, one of the daily papers. Dr. Anderson is a fluent speaker of great ability, who can be heard in any room. Just before this occasion he will speak to the Central Lions Club in Chicago, and the day after goes to the Congregational State Conference of Ohio meeting at Toledo. He averages four or five addresses a week apart from his church duties. Seldom does a village like Chelsea get the opportunity of hearing such a dynamic speaker. His topic will be: "Where Do We Go From Here?"

OLIVET COLLEGE CHOIR PROGRAM

Next Friday afternoon, May 5th, the Olivet College Symphonic Choir, under the direction of Mr. Kenneth Newland, will present a program of choral music at the high school gymnasium. The program will begin at 2:15 p.m. and all high school students and townspeople are cordially invited to attend. There will be no admission charge.

The Olivet College Symphonic Choir is an organization of 38 mixed voices and ranks as one of the leading a cappella choirs in the state of Michigan. Its members will come to Chelsea after a concert tour of this part of the state and a broadcast over the N. B. C. network on Saturday, April 29th, from 1:30-2:15 p.m.

Later news from Olivet College says that the local concert may be on Thursday afternoon, May 4. The definite date will be in next week's paper.

RUMMAGE SALE

The Rummage Sale for the benefit of the Girl Scouts will be held May 4, 5, and 6. The proceeds from this sale are used for the Girl Scout Summer camp expense. Save your old clothes, dishes or furniture and bring them to the Vogel building on E. Middle St., just west of the Chelsea Standard on May 8. Anyone wishing to have contributions called for may call some member of the Scout committee—Mrs. Townsend, Mrs. Fletcher, Mrs. Albert Johnson, Mrs. Ed. Frymuth, Mrs. O'Hara, Mrs. Meserva, Mrs. Plankell.

Sylvan Theatre Buys Princess

On Thursday, April 20th, Ed. Weber sold his Princess to the Sylvan Theatre management and possession was given Monday, April 24.

Included was the full equipment, also the Sylvan took over the outstanding pictures on Mr. Weber's 1939 contracts, from Fox, M. G. M., Warner Brothers and Paramount.

This means that the Sylvan will now be in a position to play only the very finest of the releases made by the major film producers.

Mindful of the splendid goodwill that Mr. Weber has established over many years in Chelsea, the management took over his theatre, at the price Mr. Weber stipulated. This deal was consummated so that both parties were entirely satisfied. After the deal was closed, Mr. Wolverton, Mr. Bennett, and Mr. Weber attended the Tiger-Chicago 14-inning ball game in Detroit.

The Princess Theatre has been closed and Mr. Wolverton, has not yet made up his mind as to whether it will be operated or dismantled.

Mr. Weber also wishes to thank the people of Chelsea and vicinity for their patronage during the last 19 years.

He will make announcement in the near future concerning the new business he expects to enter.

District Legion Meets In Saline

Chelsea was well represented at a meeting of The American Legion and Auxiliary of the Second District which was held Sunday in Saline.

Many of the Legion Posts within the District took part in a parade which included the Washtenaw County Drum and Bugle Corps and the Clinton High School Band.

The business sessions of both organizations drew good crowds and considerable interest was shown at the meeting of the Legion when two candidates were introduced for the office of Department Commander, the election of Department officers will take place at the annual convention at Escanaba in August. Harold DeWitt, a member of Richard F. Smith Post No. 29 of Jackson was given the endorsement of the District by a majority of the Posts.

A banquet followed the afternoon meetings. Col. Basil D. Edwards, of the R. O. T. C. of Ann Arbor being the speaker of the evening. The Ford Orchestra, folk dancing, tap dancing, musical numbers and a patriotic pageant pertaining to the American Legion Poppy Day by members of the Saline school furnished the entertainment.

Those who attended the gathering from Chelsea included Mr. and Mrs. Lyle D. Christwell, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dumecheil, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. G. Kolb, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Barr, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Hinderer, Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Brock, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Eisele, Guy Weatherwax and Paul C. Maroney.

CAVAUGH LAKE ROAD TO BE BLACK-TOPPED

CELEBRATES 25th ANNIVERSARY

Miss Lettie Kaercher was hostess at a party on Sunday afternoon at her home on Madison St. celebrating the 25th wedding anniversary of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maltby of Ann Arbor. A social time was enjoyed after which a buffet lunch was served. The decorations were yellow daffodils. Attendees at the party were Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Ward of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. George Kaercher and family of Napoleon, Mr. and Mrs. J. Allyn Kaercher and family and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Romant and children of Ann Arbor. Mrs. Maltby is a former resident of Chelsea. On Saturday evening Ann Arbor neighbors and friends gave them a surprise at their home and a mock wedding featured the entertainment.

torney General Frank Murphy at Washington for action by G-men. Murphy is said to have smiled cryptically at the letter and remarked: "He is just two weeks late."

Department of justice agents have been sifting possible evidence of fraud in connection with the Blue Water bridge financing. While it is very doubtful whether anything worthy of grand jury consideration will be found, Murphy is reported to be hopeful that G-men will be able to substitute the charge which the New Deal governor made frequently last fall that gambling interests were leading contributors to the Fitzgerald campaign chest. Thomson invites an inquiry, pointing out that the committee has a treasury deficit of $43,000.

Messrs. Eaton and Brake have grabbed hold of the lion by the tail, or in language of the street, the party purge has become a "hot potato." Somebody's hands are sure to be burned.

Dunkel-Brown Feud

When Governor Luren D. Dickinson announced shortly after taking the oath of office that he would not be a candidate to succeed himself, party leaders immediately began to speculate on (1) whom would Dickinson appoint to be lieutenant governor? (2) who would be the Republican nominee for governor in 1940?

The governor let it be known that he would not select his successor as lieutenant governor during the legislative session, and probably would make no choice at all.

As for the 1940 nomination, capital observers began to survey the "cabinet" to weigh possibilities. Simultaneously, while the McKay sideshow was getting a full house, Auditor General Vernon J. Brown precipitated a counter-attraction with a disclosure about cancellation of state purchasing orders, involving many thousands of dollars, and substitute orders at higher prices.

State Treasurer Miller Dunkel, who with Brown and Thomas Read are responsible for state purchases, promptly branded Brown as a publicity seeker and declared openly that he (Brown) was courting the nomination in 1940. Dunkel said that the higher prices could be explained.

Thus, the first inter-cabinet feud has started.

The decision of Governor Dickinson to sign a bill appropriating $2,500,000 for public school tuitions comes as a relief to educators.

Grover C. Dillman, director of the state budget, recommended that this amount be authorized as an advance payment on the school's allocation of state money for the coming fiscal year. Dr. Eugene B. Elliot, superintendent of public instruction, reported that none of the financially distressed districts would have to close public schools. Rep. John P. Espie, chairman of the House ways and means committee, added encouragement to the picture by saying that the committee had agreed upon a $37,000,000 allocation for the schools and that it might not be necessary to deduct the $2,500,000 from that sum.

Dillman opined: "The state is very sound financially. Its net debt is only some $5 per capita, and only 12 states have a lower net debt and some states have a debt nearly 20 times as high as Michigan's. From a long-term point of view, the state government is sound financially, although it is seriously embarrassed as to immediate cash requirements."

Governor Dickinson indicated that the 1939-40 budget would be balanced despite the $2,500,000 payment this spring.

Labor Mediation

Two of the major problems—civil service and labor—have had identical treatment in the legislature:

1. A drastic labor relations bill, calling for the Fitzgerald 10-day strike notice, was passed the house by Republican caucus agreement only to be thrown out by a senate labor committee.

2. A civil service bill, calling for reduced classifications so that less than one-half of all employees would be affected, was passed by the house only to be sidetracked in the senate. The senate labor committee, of which liberal Senator Harry Hittle of Lansing is chairman, has reported out a substitute bill. This measure would create a three-man labor mediation board to seek settlement of difficult ties between employer and employee in intrastate commerce. As nearly all of the major industries are subject to the Federal Wagner act, the state mediation board would affect chiefly the small industries which are now outside the C. I. O. field.

Since the United States Supreme court outlawed sit-down strikes, some legislators feel there is no pressing need for Michigan legislation. Senator Hittle, however, feels that the party cannot ignore labor and that it should woo workers by legalizing picketing, restricting court injunctions, and providing machinery for collective bargaining.

Civil Service Again

All existing eligible lists would be abolished by the Brake civil service bill which was reported out for consideration of the senate the other day.

This measure, a substitute for the house civil service bill, would require the civil service commission to conduct new examinations.

Exempt from civil service would be all professional people (even attorneys and nurses have had to take a civil service examination), persons in specialized occupations such as bank examiners, insurance actuaries, cashiers, sales tax auditors and so on; division heads, court employees, labor department deputies, attorney general employees and all unskilled workers.

Governor Dickinson has assured friends of civil service of fair play.

With separate bills passed by the house and senate, the final measure will be agreed upon in conference committee.

The Lansing sideshows, however, have taken much of the "heat" off labor and civil service. European headlines, too, are diverting the voter's attention from the legislative scene.

Trout Season Opens
Saturday, April 29

Lansing, April 22—The first contingent of Michigan's army of more than 100,000 fishermen will take to the streams Saturday morning, April 29, when the lid comes off on the 1939 trout season.

Estimates of the number of anglers on streams opening day are only approximate but a minimum figure is 25,000. Before the season is over, more than 100,000 fishermen will try their luck in Michigan waters.

Fee for the 1939 resident fishing license is $1. This license entitles the taker of all species of game fish except grayling. It is required of all persons over 17 years of age taking fish in any manner in inland waters.

Non-resident license fee is $2 and a special non-resident 10 day license may be obtained for $1. A non-resident license for the angler's wife is issued for an additional 50 cents.

Size and catch limits on the "Big Three" of troutdom, the brook, the brown and the rainbow remain the same as last year. No fish under seven inches in length may be retained. A total of 15 trout is the daily and possession limit.

Reports from the northern streams indicate that excellent fishing conditions will greet the anglers. An unusually cold spring has resulted in the snow and ice melting very slowly. Few serious floods, in consequence, threatened stream life. Spring freshets, in most cases, have resulted in little damage to cover in and along the streams. Many of the rivers are reported well within their banks with waters sufficiently clear to promise unusually good early fishing.

While many anglers will tempt the trout with assorted and varicolored flies, most popular lure on opening day will be perhaps the oldest of fish baits, the "Garden Hackle" or common angleworm. Few hatches of flies are to be expected on the still icy waters although warmer weather may bring a few. Worms and minnows will bring most trout to reel.

WATER INTO"Let it Rain—
I'll use the Telephone"

RAIN, snow or wind mean little to the woman who has a telephone in the house... for she can do her shopping and "run" many other errands without exposing herself to the danger of icy streets or soaking rain.

The telephone does more than save her trouble. It saves her time too... it shortens her working day, adds to her leisure.

And it's just as useful in social affairs. Chats with friends... bridge games or parties gotten up on a moment's notice... your telephone not only enables you to arrange them, but to be included in them.

Day and night... at little cost... the telephone gives you a combined protection, convenience and pleasure that nothing else can provide.

Question And Answer Dept.

Problem—What candidate for President of the United States fell short of 850,000 plurality of popular votes, did not receive a majority of the electoral college votes, but was seated as President, and how was it done? (Answer elsewhere in this department).

Ques.—What is the difference between the Mormon church and the Latter-Day Saint church?
Ans.—None. Mormon is the popular name for Latter-Day Saint.

Ques.—How is it possible for the moon to totally eclipse the sun when it is a fact that the moon is only a mere speck in size as compared to the sun?
Ans.—This is because the moon is so near to the earth (140,000 miles), as compared to the distance to the sun, which is 93,000,000 miles.

Ques.—What is a mermaid? Are there any real ones in the sea?
Ans.—There are no real mermaids. They are mythical beings supposed to exist in the sea, having the form of a woman above the waist and that of a fish below.

Ques.—Can you tell me what "meerschau" is, which is used in making high-priced pipes? And where does it come from?
Ans.—Chemically, "meerschau" is a form of magnesium silicate which is found in certain alluvial deposits in Asia Minor, Northern Africa, Greece, Moravia, Spain and New Mexico. The word "meerschau" is from the German, and literally means "sea foam." It was so called because it was thought by the early miners to resemble petrified sea foam.

Ques.—Will you answer in your good paper if there are any wild monkeys in the United States?
Ans.—There are no species of native-monkey north of the Rio Grande. Many species of monkeys inhabit Mexico, Central America and South America.

Ques.—I would like to know the shape of the moon. Sometimes I see it as "round" and sometimes as a "crescent."
Ans.—The moon is shaped like a football. In its flight through space with the earth one end is always pointed at the earth. We never see the other end. Thus we see it as "round," and when the earth passes between the sun and moon it casts a shadow which makes the moon appear as a crescent.

Ques.—Do rattlesnakes lay eggs or are they young born?
Ans.—Strictly speaking neither is the case. The eggs of the rattlesnakes are retained in the body of the mother snake until the eggs are hatched. Then the young emerge and the shells disintegrate.

Ques.—Why is a certain kind of berry called strawberry?
Ans.—Originally this plant was so named because its runners resembled straws. Since that time it has been known as "strawberry."

Answer to problem—Rutherford B. Hayes in 1876. Because of a dispute the election was thrown into Congress, where a commission of 7 Republicans and 6 Democrats seated the candidate by a strict party vote.

Name Colin of Greek Origin
The name Colin has been so appropriated by the Scotch that it is a surprise to find that the name is not of Celtic origin but Greek. It means "victory." The reason is that Colin is really a short form of Nicholas, meaning "people's victory."

During the Time of Christ
There are no actual statistics on the population of the world during the time of Christ. Little of the world was known then. An estimate placed the number at 50,000,000 in the known world.

The famous painting "Washington Crossing the Delaware" was executed in Dusseldorf, Germany, in 1851 by the German-American artist, Emanuel Leutze. He used the Rhine for the Delaware and Germans for the American soldiers; says Collier's Weekly.

Hindu Temple on Southern Campus
There is a Hindu temple on the campus of Florida Southern college, overlooking Lake Hollingsworth at Lakeland. The temple is a memorial to the late Frederick B. Fisher, who was a Methodist bishop in India, and who brought it in pieces from Benares, India, to have it erected on the college grounds. Said to be the only imported Hindu temple in the United States, it is 25 feet high, 5 feet wide and 9 feet long, weighing about 10 tons. It is hand carved from red sandstone, painted pure white and surmounted by the Christian cross. A reflecting pool lies in front of the temple and a garden of meditation is beautifully landscaped.

Frequently automobiles coming out of a private road or driveway feel that they have undisputed right to enter the main thoroughfare. Recently, this question was sent to me: "Does a driver of a car entering a street or road from a private road or driveway have the right of way over all vehicles approaching on the street or road?"

No—decidedly not.
The driver should stop to see that the street or road is reasonably clear. The driver of a vehicle on the street or road may not know there is a private road or driveway there.

You are not in the line of traffic when you come on to a road from a private driveway, so until you are sure you can get into the line of traffic without an accident, wait—be alert—be careful.

IT'S SMART TO DRIVE CAREFULLY.

Children In Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield

The use of vulgar language in certain mixed groups seems to be quite common. Undue familiarity often drops the barriers of decency and prepares the way for this unfortunate practice.

Parents cannot be too careful in imparting and developing a sense of decency and propriety in their children. The young man or woman who has a natural distaste for vulgarity exercises a restraining influence over his or her companions. Questionable stories and phrases have no place in a home where there are young people.

The stamp of refinement is as priceless today as it was in the Victorian era.

Pilgrims, Puritans Were

Different in Early Days

During the sixteenth century the name Puritan was applied in England to all persons who urged a reform in the ritual of the Established church. There were different degrees of Puritanism. There were those who wished only to bring about a reform of the church liturgy; others desired to abolish the episcopacy, while some declared against all church authority.

The Pilgrims, as they styled themselves, who first formed a colony in Holland and, subsequently emigrated to America, were "Separatists," so called because they had separated themselves from the Church of England and wished to maintain a distinct organization. These formed the Plymouth colony, which settled in New England in 1620, relates Flora MacFarland in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

In 1628 another company of Puritans came out and formed the Massachusetts Bay colony. These claimed to be members of the Church of England, and to have no desire to separate from that body, but to be unable conscientiously to conform to the established ritual.

JUNIOR FARM BUREAU NEWS
Washtenaw Junior Farm Bureau held their Calf Drawing April 21, at the Lima Center Grange Hall. There was a crowd of over one hundred.

The evening was spent dancing and we were entertained by the Fritz family from Lansing. We enjoyed them very much.

The drawing took place at ten forty five. The lucky person was Lucille Colby from Ypsilanti. We gave her the choice of the calf or five dollars. We also gave away a door prize, which was a lamp won by Albert Ottman.

During intermission we served home made ice cream, cake and orange and chocolate drink.

The Fritz family were dressed in a regular old fashioned costume, with pantafoons and everything to go with it.

In behalf of the Junior Farm Bureau, I wish to thank Mr. English for letting us rent the Lima Center Grange Hall.

We all met April 25 at the North Lake Church hall. We were entertained by Mr. Sachwiler from M. S. C. East Lansing. He showed us pictures on soil conservation which were very interesting.

Our guests were Rev. H. Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Stoffer, Mr. Osler county agent, and George Savers.

In our business meeting we planned for a baseball team for the boys and a soft ball team for the girls. Orson Beaman is to be the boy's manager.

We had a contest on the calf drawing. We were divided into two side. Betty Hackett was the captain of one side and Beatrice Hawkins was captain of the other side. The points were added at the last meeting and Betty Hackett's side won. We decided that the losing side should entertain the winning side.

Custodians of the Standards
The National Bureau of Standards is the custodian of the standards which govern all weighing and measuring. These standards are adopted by the treasury department for use in the customhouse and were authorized by joint resolution of congress in 1836. Copies of these standards were subsequently furnished to the governors of the states.

Crabapple Bogs Built by Man
Crabapple bogs require an acid peat soil. Crabapple bogs make ideal locations, provided they have level areas suitable for flooding, plus reservoirs of fresh water, facilities for draining and a good supply of sand. Contrary to popular belief, crabapple bogs are built by man, not by nature.

Ashes as Fertilizer
Hard coal ashes carry 0.1-0.15 per cent of phosphoric acid, small amounts of potash; so their fertilizing value is negligible. Wood ashes contain 2 per cent phosphoric and 4-6 potash. The latter has some small fertilizing value. Mixing either into clay is done for their sweetening effect.

POISE BEGINS WITH PROPER CARE OF FEET
By PATRICIA LINDSAY

YOU'VE seen them, perhaps you are one of them. Women smartly dressed limping along with tortured expressions on their faces, or surreptitiously slipping off their shoes for a few moments of foot ease! All their poise destroyed, all facial beauty sacrificed for shoes that are in fashion.

Ill fitting shoes are the chief offenders to foot health. It is appalling how few women have good feet, and rare is she with beautiful feet! Wrong lasts have deformed them, and constant constriction in leather since infancy has weakened their muscle tone.

Look at the shoe you are wearing. If it is run down badly at the heel, if the lining is worn through, the Slipping off your shoes for a few moments of foot ease destroys poise and sacrifices facial beauty.

Toe scuffed or the sides bulging it is a safe bet that you are not fitted correctly.

Your Shoe Tells The Story

To begin with, a good shoe has a straight inner line which keeps the big toe straight and prevents a bun-ion from forming. It should be wide enough to give your toes ample room for gripping when you walk, and the heel should allow good posture as well as comfort. Learn whether you should wear a long vamp shoe or a short vamp shoe. Choose a model with strong arch support and don't let style or color influence your purchase. Just any shoe which is pretty, is the wrong philosophy—in fact that is flirting with ruined health.

For general wear, I advocate a heel no higher than one and three-quarters inches. The pretties, with heels three inches or more, should be kept for times when you are not depending upon your feet to get you there! Or for dancing.

Ignorance of foot care is another offender to foot beauty. Regular treatments by a registered pediatrist, or a chiropodist, are strongly commended if you have the means, otherwise you must learn to exercise your feet at home, daily, and give them a pedicure at least once a week. Walk around bare footed or sandal shod, as frequently as possible, and whenever you can (without drawing attention) sit with your feet resting higher than your body. Up on a table or the back of a chair.

HINT-OF-THE-DAY

Importance of Sleep
There's much wisdom in the advice of Kitty Carlisle, lovely singing star of the stage and screen: "Enough sleep and not too much alcohol—and you can keep your face looking 18 right up to the day you are 35."

By way of taking her own medicine, Miss Carlisle averages nine hours sleep a night. She is equally religious in her exercise and has developed her own method for specific exercises.

"When I do an exercise that makes me sore, then I know I've hit the right muscles for that spot," she explains.

One of Miss Carlisle's favorite exercises is designed to benefit the arms and shoulders. You place one clenched fist in the palm of the other hand and then hold the hands at chest level, elbows out at either side. Push against resistance and force the hands first to one side, then to the other.

As for keeping the waistline slim and the tummy flat, here's the exercise recommended by this star: Lie on the back on the floor with hands braced at either side, and flop both feet back over the head. Keep the knees straight, legs together, and slowly lower the feet back over the head until the toes are on the floor. The trick is to lower the legs very slowly; and if you can do that you are not so rusty on exercise after all. Return to the original position and repeat the exercise three times.

HAROLD CHANNING WIRE

COPYRIGHT-HAROLD CHANNING WIRE W.N.U. SERVICE

"Yes," said Breck, "it's a Luger and holds a lot of shells and I've been a soldier, and now, Jack, is your father all right?"

The small hand shook convulsively. Words blurted out of his own accord. "Pap's dead! They killed him! They killed my pap! I seen 'em!" He stopped, startled. Contact was made. "Ranger," he cried, "I've been comin' to you. Them Tillsons killed him!"

"Yes, Jack," Breck said quietly, trying to soothe him by putting an arm about his shoulders. "But maybe you can tell me later."

The boy drew back. "No! I've been runnin' to get here, ever since I heard them coyotes a-howlin' for pap."

"All right then, Tell me. What did the Tillsons do?"

"Come arguin' about a fire. Blamed my pap for tellin' He talked back and they shot him!"

"Where are they now?"

"The nesters run 'em off to Sulphur—and they're goin' to burn 'em out!" Jack paused, looking up with puzzled face. "Is this tonight?"

"Yes, this is tonight."

"Then they're doin' it! Burnin' them Tillsons!"

Sierra sprang up. "Say!"

"Easy," Breck warned him. "Get Kern Peak on the phone."

Sierra strode off. The boy in Breck's arms was fast falling into a stupor of exhaustion. He lay with eyes closed, though with the terror of what he had been through stamped indelibly upon his old man's face. As sleep came, his voice trailed off faintly. "They left me watchin' pap. But them coyotes a-howlin' I run."

"Kern Peak line is dead," Sierra announced, returning from the telephone. "Wire's either cut or in a fire."

Breck leaped up. "Take this boy to Louise. Give me your horse and I'll ride to the ridge. Better tell Cook."

He was half an hour in climbing the backbone above Temple Meadow, but when he reached the crest, he halted for only a moment. Far below, the whole Sulphur Flat was afire, though actual flames were hidden by an intermediate canyon wall. The sky was red for miles above the lower part of Sulphur Creek. Breck wheeled and crashed down, letting his swift descent pass the word to those below.

Animals were already being saddled when he burst into camp. Sierra Slim had brought up Kit, while Cook packed a mule nearby. He rode to join them, plunging across the space that a few minutes earlier had held a laughing, dancing throng.

"Fire's in the Sulphur country," he told Dad Cook. "I guess the boy knew what he was talking about. Nesters have lighted the whole bottom."

Cook nodded, throwing his lasso rope over the mule. Breck caught it, made the loop, and passed one end back under the animal's belly. A plan had been seething in his mind ever since he had left the ridge; suddenly now it became clear.

"Cook," he asked, "is there any way the Tillsons can climb out of their hole to the north?"

"No, Kern Peak blocks them."

"That means with the fire driving them up, they've got to come out somewhere to the south and east of Sulphur Creek?"

Cook came from his side of the mule. "All right, son, what's on your mind?"

"I've got the Tillsons' back door spotted," Breck declared. "They can't climb to it before daylight—too rough—and by that time Slim and I can be there if we go ahead."

"Then go," Cook ordered. "I'll make up a crew here and meet you at Indian Rock. Slim knows where that is."

Sierra had vanished in the crowd, leaving Kit tied to a stump. Breck exchanged horses and was swinging into his saddle when Senator Sutherland rushed to him.

"Here, my boy, here," he cried, puffing with excitement. "A fire is at Great stuff! Everyone going? Never saw a mountain blaze first-hand. You wait now till I get my horse!" He dashed on.

"Oh, Gordon!" Again Breck wrenched from mounting. Irene was running toward him. "Gordon, you'll saddle for me? Is it a real fire? I don't know where my horse is."

He lowered his foot to the ground. "You won't need your horse. You're not going."

"Absurd! Why am I not?"

Breck waved a gloved hand toward Temple's cabin. "Because a man is in there badly hurt. You made a drunken maniac out of Tillson. Now how big are you? Someone has got to keep him up till the doctor gets here tomorrow. He'll get over the gunshot, but he's the sort that goes straight to the devil when a woman takes his pride. Talk to him, Irene. He'll do anything to explain himself. For God's sake that's one thing you can do."

He swung to his saddle before she could reply, and hoped some bit of comprehension would move her to a decent act. Art might be his enemy, yet he had come to have something of Louise Temple's sympathetic understanding of him.

He found Sierra roping up a fresh horse and gave his plan. The mountaineer listened, said nothing, and in a few minutes they rode together out past the clearing, where in the light of fresh logs more than twenty men were getting tools for the fire. Among them Breck saw Louise.

"Are you going?" he asked, halting at her side.

"Why not? You'll need all of us."

A swift admiration filled him. He was proud of her. Little thoroughbred! Love welled in his heart. Then fear. But he knew she would scorn his thought of danger. Tom Temple bobbed over with a shovel and ax. "Be right with you, Ranger!"

Breck saluted and loped on to overtake Sierra. His veins tingled. There was something military about this night move—like shock troops breaking into action.

He led, knowing the route to the spot where he had once seen Jud and Hep vanish down Sulphur Creek. He pushed Kit at a run. It would be almost daylight anyway by the time he and Slim could cover the range from Temple's camp to the broken country.

They left the blazing government trail at the spur where Breck had come down before, climbed it, and came at last to the brink that dropped a thousand feet into cliffs and falls and unmapped gorges. Firelight flooded the lower level. Roar of the blaze rose faintly.

Breck halted. "You see we've come to sort of a blind trail, Slim. It dips over the ridge and crosses the head of Sulphur Canyon. That's where we go down. I don't know how far."

Sierra kicked his foot out of one stirrup. "I'd say we leave the cayuses here and walk."

Breck agreed, pulled from the trail and tied his horse. Then together they walked on. The canyon was not far. It plunged away steeply, with the stream cutting a sharp-banked gorge through the rock. Their path skirted the brink for two hundred yards, then curved around a brush clump. In another turn it ended against a blank wall.

To the left was the mountain face; on the right a sheer drop to the stream. Breck looked down at white water dashing through boulders.

"What do you make of it?" he asked.

Sierra did not answer. His head was tilted sidewise, attention centered above and behind them. "Hear that?"

Breck listened, yet heard only the waterfall and roar of fire further on.

"Nothing, Slim."

"Maybe not. How about your trail?"

"We've slipped up somewhere."

"I thought so. It turns to the right back here."

Breck faced about dubiously. To the right meant a straight drop into the gorge. Sierra took a few steps and halted. Suddenly he motioned with his hand. Before them a narrow rock bridge spanned the chasm from rim to rim.

Sierra stepped back behind a boulder and put his pistol on its flat top. "Pardner," he said softly, "this looks like our place."

Breck stood with his gaze sweeping up the granite barricade of Kern Peak. No chance of escape up there. He was satisfied. For Jud and Hep it was this way out or none. His hands tightened. A name flashed through his thoughts. Jim Cotter.

Dawn came swiftly. With it a new sound broke the rumble of the falls. Breck met Sierra's eyes and his question was acknowledged with a look. "Horses were climbing along the far rim of the gorge, having difficulty in words where night still lingered. One stumbled; its shoes clattered.

From behind the rock, Breck leveled his gun on a black opening between two giant trunks that stood like gate posts at the opposite end of the bridge. Sound of approach came nearer. The riders would first pass through a hollow where trees grew thick.

Abruptly a horse thrust its white face between the two trunks. A came on. Another followed.

"Pardner!"

"I see," Breck whispered. "He steadied his aim over the flat rock top."

Breck sprang up.

"Then two didn't live to hit bottom!" Sierra flung out. "Come on!"

But Breck ran to the bridge, knelt and peered over. Only white water, foaming through jagged rocks of the gorge, met his eyes. He stared at it, drawn tense by a vision of Hep Tillson's treacherous face. The man who had killed Jim Cotter was dead!

"Pardner!"

Breck sprang up. Sparks were eating the cloth of his shirt. A red wave curled over the opposite ridge.

"We've got to move," Sierra shouted. "Cook will be needing us bad!"

CHAPTER XXIII

Cook did need them. They climbed a ridge east of Sulphur and looked across to a small round meadow halfway up Kern Peak's flank. Fire had already swept two hundred yards, then curved around a brush clump. In another turn it ended against a blank wall.

To the left was the mountain face; on the right a sheer drop to the stream. Breck looked down at white water dashing through boulders.

"What do you make of it?" he asked.

Golf Courses of The Detroit Area

(By Henry S. Curtis, Executive Secretary, Huron Clinton Parkway Comm.)

The amazing difference between the recreational facilities publicly provided and the ability of the public to provide is shown nowhere more clearly than in the case of the golf courses of which there are something over a hundred in this area, mostly in Oakland County.

The area of these courses varies from fifty acres for some of the nine hole courses to more than three hundred acres for some of the thirty six hole courses. On the Oakland map they are usually represented as quarter sections of 160 acres. The total area of the hundred courses is probably not less than 15,000 acres, as contrasted to the 411 acres of the state parks. The average cost of the ground was probably not less than $200 an acre and may have been as high as three or four hundred, representing an initial outlay of from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 with club buildings that probably cost two or three millions more. This may not be more than the community can afford, but it makes a striking contrast to the state parks which were all given in the first place and have had little spent on improvements since they have been taken over by the state.

I understand that in some clubs the expense of joining was run as high as $300 with annual dues in the different clubs running from $50 to $200. Altogether the average expense of maintenance of these clubs must run close to $20,000 each or $2,000,000 for the hundred. These clubs probably do not reach much over one per cent of the population of the area, but they are spending on this one per cent nearly one hundred times as much as society is spending on the hundred per cent for whom the State parks are provided.

The time was when the same differences prevailed in education, and private schools, such as Eton or Rugby or Groton might spend a hundred times as much on the training of each pupil, as society was spending on the education of each child in the public schools. To day's best public schools are quite comparable to the best private schools. Our best city playgrounds are quite as good as anything furnished to the children of the rich; but the difference between the facilities furnished at these golf courses and those furnished in the state parks is far too great. Such differences lead to revolutions.

The golf courses which have developed from popular demand and must be self supporting or go under, offer some useful lessons to the cause of public recreation. In the first place nearly all golf courses have a professional who knows golf as play grounds have a play leader. Would it be going too far to suggest that some of our larger state parks should have a recreation director or that there should be some requirement of training or knowledge on the part of the Superintendent?

Most of the golf clubs have club buildings that serve as social and civic centers for their members. In the Kent County park system at least two such buildings are provided. There are four or five in the metropolitan system of Toledo. At the new beaches around New York there are fine buildings are provided. There are four or five in the metropolitan system of Toledo. At the new beaches around New York there are fine buildings, which offer soft drinks, lunches, and regular meals with an opportunity for dancing. Such buildings should pay expenses at the larger parks.

There is a movement just now for winter sports that is world wide. State Parks at Graveling and Ludington are being opened for this purpose. There should be at least one in this area. The Huron Hills Golf Club took the initiative in opening its club house and grounds to the public last winter for a two dollar fee. They offered tobogganing, skiing, skating on their tennis courts, and ping pong and shuffle board on the inside. It was so successful that they are making yet larger preparations for this winter. The Pleasant Valley Golf Club is offering similar provisions for the coming winter.

This seems to me a move in the right direction. It is a shame to see these fine club houses and grounds unused for eight months of the year. Perhaps the Conservation Department might maintain some of them for the public during certain months when they are idle.

Peace—With What?

PEACE is defined as "a state of quiet or tranquillity; freedom from disturbance or agitation; calm; repose."

Generally speaking, humanity knows not where to find true tranquillity, nor with what to make a compact in order to be free from disturbance. It perplexedly views the spectacle of men and nations that have little or no peace, even after making great sacrifices to obtain it. Many gaze uncomprehendingly upon the settled peace of the reformer who has perhaps provoked storms of hate and opposition, but who nevertheless is himself serene, because he is in agreement with Truth and good.

With what then shall we seek to be in agreement? Here is indeed the vital question, for our choice will result either in gaining spiritual peace or in experiencing the lack of it. We seek a basis for peace, should we not turn to the Bible, the acknowledged storehouse of true wisdom? If we accept its inspired teachings, which reveal God, good, and being, shall we not find our peace in reflecting Him?

Attempts to make peace with human personalities as such, or with suffering material conditions and temporal pressures, bring only confusion. Since Truth, Life, and Love alone are enduring, there can be intelligent expectancy of peace only through conscious agreement with divine Principle. This would be peace which springs from human temporizing, is as temporary and unsatisfying as its illusive foundation. Enduring peace is built upon an enduring basis.

The decisions of world politics cannot prevent the individual from experiencing peace through his adherence to Truth. Nothing can stop one from loving and being loved, from being grateful to God for His goodness, and from helping others to be happy by his expression of God's goodness. Mary Baker Eddy says in Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, (p. 264), "Spiritual living and blessedness are the only evidences, by which we can recognize true existence and feel the unspeakable peace which comes from an all-absorbing spiritual love."

Neither in matters nor in false material sense, nor in human policy, is peace to be found. That which denies the power and presence of God can never contribute to one's conscious at-onement with spiritual good. The material and temporal, which are opposed to spiritual harmony, do not constitute reality. Spiritual sense discerns the universality of God, the nothingness of matter, and the powerlessness of physical sense to interfere with divine facts. When one is at peace with God, whatever seems to oppose one's manifestation of good is neutralized by the fact that good is true, and that its supposititious opposite is untrue.

Christ Jesus expressed more goodlikeness than any other who has ever walked the earth, and he therefore was more conscious of peace than any other. He knew that spiritual peace was one of the greatest blessings he could leave to men, for he said, before parting from his beloved disciples (John 14:27), "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."

He spoke more than once of peace as being the result of following in his footsteps. Hate and misunderstanding might beset the path of his faithful followers, but their peace, founded upon the rock, Christ, would remain undisturbed. Such peace is bigger than circumstances, and circumstances do not change it.

All who acknowledge Christ Jesus as Master and Way-shower can find the peace which he found in himself in the daily demonstration of Truth and Love. As Paul declared (I Corinthians 3:11), "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid; which is Jesus Christ."—The Christian Science Monitor.

Mining Industry Lingo
Makes Use of Odd Terms

The mining industry has a language in many respects peculiar to itself. For example, cites a writer in the Chicago Tribune, a passenger elevator in mining lingo is a "cage." They are usually little more than cages, often consisting of a platform with a metal framework around it to which a cable and steady guide lines are attached. The term elevator is usually applied to an endless belt for elevating crushed ore.

A "blow" is an outcropping, or a point where a mineral vein reaches the surface of the ground. A blind vein is one which has no outcrop.

A "cradle" is a box on rockers used for washing gold bearing gravel. Use of a compass in surveying is often termed "dialling" by miners. The small locomotive used for switching cars in mines receives the name "dinky," probably derived from the donkeys which they replaced in this operation.

A "dolly" to a miner is not something for children to play with. It is a tool for sharpening drill bits. A "dog" is a spike used for fastening rails to ties or ladders to timbers.

The surface of a mine is known as "grass roots." A "race" is a watercourse used for sluicing or washing ore, or for turning a water wheel. A tail race is a ditch or trough for disposing of the "tailings" or refuse from a reduction mill.

The opening through which the ventilating current passes out of a mine is known as the "upcast." A "sump" is a pit at the bottom of a mine to collect drainage water. A "stull" is a timber prop supporting an excavation.

"Country rock" is the rock lying next to an ore deposit. A mass of country rock lying in the mineral vein is known variously as a horse or a rider.

SOUVENIR BOTTLE FOR RAILROAD

According to the book, American Glass, "one famous old bottle displays a horse drawing on rails a four-wheeled cart loaded with bales of cotton and lumps of coal. It signified the completion of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in 1830. The design was impressed on a panel lengthwise of the bottle and the legend, 'Success to the Railroad,' was shown on the margin of the panel."

Habits of Frogs and Toads

Most frogs and toads lay eggs in water, but in France and southern Europe the midwife toad lays her eggs on the ground, where they are deposited in a long string consisting of as many as 50. While laying she is attended by her mate, who watches the whole proceeding, and when she has completed her task he takes possession of them. He arranges them round his hind legs and joins. The eggs are bright yellow, and when first laid are perfectly round, but they soon become oval or flattened.

Indians Favored Their Dogs

The Indian's domestic animals were the dog and the horse and he liked them both. But strangely enough, while he provided food and shelter for his dog he provided neither of these for his horse. Despite the fact the dog was more or less a companion and the horse practically a necessary asset for transportation, the redskin let the bigger animal look out for itself. In summer the horse could eat grass and foliage, but in winter the animal usually got pretty thin—and cold, while the dog stayed warm inside the wigwam and fat on the food its master furnished.

WORK AT NYA CASSIDY LAKE PROJECT

"LEARN WHILE YOU EARN" is the slogan of 200 unemployed young men, 18-21 years old, who work and live at Cassidy Lake, near Chelsea (Mich.), a Resident Work Project of the National Youth Administration. Some of them are shown here engaged in three fundamental types of work which is aiding them to increase their employability. In the Upper Left, two youths put the finishing touches to the wooden filing cabinets they have constructed for the Chelsea Board of Education, a co-sponsor of the project. The young man working on the metal lathe is doing an assigned shop problem designed to improve his chances of getting a steady job. Directly above, a correspondence class in U. S. history works on essays which will be graded by Extension Division instructors at the U. of M. The combination of these three types of work—the manufacture of worth-while products for which a youth is paid, the exploratory experience by which a youth determines his individual niche in industry, and the academic instruction for the youth who has never gone to college—in the means by which Cassidy Lake gives unemployed, inexperienced youth something to offer when they apply for a job.
