Parking Regulations To Be Uniform in State

Uniform regulations for parallel parking on all city or village streets on the state highway system will go into effect for the first time on September 29.

Section 27a of Act No. 189 of the recent session of the legislature bans angle parking within city limits. The Act does provide, however, that local authorities may by ordinance permit angle parking "upon highways other than state trunkline highways."

The Act has been signed by the Governor and will become effective on September 29, 1939.

State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wageningen joined with other safety and traffic leaders in welcoming this action by the legislature. He said that the elimination of angle parking on state trunkline highways within cities and villages would eliminate serious congestion problems and improve safety for motorists and pedestrians alike.

Parking conditions in Chelsea will be further congested as the result of this Act, as Main street is a part of the state trunkline system, being designated as M-92. Even with angle parking allowed on Main street there has been a lack of adequate parking space for some time, and if the state enforces the law here it will create a real problem for the village to face in making an effort to provide other parking facilities.

Farm Women of State To Gather at M. S. C.

Fourteen hobbies to pick from but plenty of time for rest and recreation are on the program that is expected to attract 750 farm women in all sections of the state for the annual Farm Women's Week at Michigan State College, July 23 to 28.

Women who attend will be able to stay out of a kitchen, get rest, recreation, entertainment and information in this annual midsummer event.

The hobbies offered an hour each morning include landscaping, literature, history, newswriting, entomology, vegetable gardening, horticulture, parliamentary usage, speech, foods and nutrition, home management and child development, clothing and home furnishings, recreation and nature study.

Somewhat in contrast, each afternoon in addition to other daily features there are to be seven clinics. These will answer specific problems of food, foot, clothing, home, poultry, child development and home furnishings.

Devotionals, rest periods, get acquainted sessions, meals, recreation and opportunity to attend the summer school play are other features of the program.

To wind up the events is Friday, July 28, designated by the college as the annual Farmers' Day when departments in the agricultural division and the Michigan Experiment Station undergo inspection of rural visitors. Phases of current experimental work and demonstrations of new methods and equipment are included.

Masons Hold Picnic at Huron River Park

Members of the Masonic orders and the O. E. S., with their families, held their annual picnic on Sunday at Dexter-Huron River park. A picnic dinner at one o'clock was followed by a baseball game between the Wolves and the Tigers, which was easily won by the Tigers. "Gus" Hilsinger proved to be a much better manager than "Windy" Belser who attempted to pilot the Wolves. It is reported that the score was about 12 to 6.

Harold Spaulding was in charge of the sports, and prizes were won as follows:

Nail Driving Contest—Mrs. Rha Alexander.
Peanut Carrying Contest—Mrs. Paul Belser.
Tug of War—Wolves and Tigers.
Women's Race—Mrs. J. E. Weinberg.
Guessing Game—Henry Wilson.
Older Girls' Race—Ruth Gracey.
Races for children.

Michigan Leads In Many Ways As A Vacation Paradise

By Gene Alleman

Lansing—Michigan owes most of its alluring appeal as an ideal vacation land to the simple geographical fact that it forms a peninsula.

Translated into less pedagogic language, Michigan is, verily, the "Lake State."

When J. Lee Barrett, of Detroit, manager of the Southeastern Michigan Tourist association, proposed that Michigan be known officially as the "Lake State" and that automobile license plates carry this advertising slogan, he probably felt that the word "peninsula" was too coldly scientific, being the cause rather than the effect, whereas the word "lake" conjured immediately a happy mental picture of outdoor enjoyment.

The dictionary defines a peninsula: "A piece of land almost surrounded by water and connected with the mainland by a neck called an isthmus."

Without getting sidetracked into an embarrassing discussion about what counties constitute the "neck," consider for a moment the following facts: Most of them, we venture to say, are unknown to the average native who looks at Michigan with complacent indifference just because it has become commonplace to him.

Michigan has more shore line than any other state in the Union.

Four of the Great Lakes—Superior, Michigan, Huron and Erie—create the two peninsulas.

There are 492 miles of frontage on Lake Superior, the largest body of fresh water in the world. Along Lake Michigan the coast line extends for 855 miles with harbors and inlets adding another 90 miles. Lake Huron borders the state from Mackinaw City to Port Huron, a distance of 455 miles, and there is another 107 miles of shore line from St. Ignace to Detroit. The Lake Erie shore line totals only 47 miles.

In addition to these waters of the Great Lakes, the St. Mary's river, connecting Lake Superior and Lake Huron, is 89 miles long; the St. Clair river and Lake St. Clair have a Michigan shore line of 85 miles, and the Detroit river between Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie stretches for 33 miles.

4,187 Named Lakes

And this is just the beginning, as the Showboat captain would say. Michigan has 4,187 named inland lakes, ranging in size from Houghton Lake with 18,950 acres and Torch Lake with 18,950 acres and Torch Lake with 18,950 acres and Torch Lake with 18,950 acres.

Fire Destroys Barns On Feldkamp Farm

A large barn, a feed barn, and a hen-house on the farm of G. Fred Feldkamp, Freedom township, were destroyed by fire about 8:30 Monday morning.

The blaze started near the top of the large barn and spread rapidly, but the Chelsea and Manchester fire department crews arrived in time to save the house.

Included in the loss, which is estimated at several thousand dollars, was a calf, a part of last year's wheat and this year's grain and hay. It is covered by insurance.

HINCHEY-WEINMANN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. John Hinchey of North Lake announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Dinah, to Alfred L. Weinmann, son of Mrs. Martha Weinmann of Chelsea. The ceremony was performed Thursday afternoon, July 13, at 2 o'clock at the home of Rev. F. H. Grabowski, who was the officiating clergyman.

The bride wore a dress of navy blue net with pink jacket and accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of Briarcliff roses and gypsophila. Miss Gladys Hinchey, who attended her sister as bridesmaid, was attired in powder blue with white accessories, and Better Times roses and gypsophila formed her corsage. Wilbur M. Hinderer, uncle of the groom, performed the duties of best man.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Weinmann left on a short motor trip. They will be at home to their friends at 633 South Main St.

On Saturday evening a dinner in their honor was given at the home of the bride's parents for the immediate families.

The girl employees of the Federal Screw Works gave a pre-nuptial dinner for the bride-elect at the Regent, Jackson, and presented her with a gift.

CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

The 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Wilson was celebrated on Sunday with a dinner at the Whitmore Inn, Whitmore Lake. Those attending were Mrs. Charlotte Pond, daughters Elizabeth and Helen, Mrs. Louise Stray, Mrs. Alice Ressler and daughter Ellen, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Drake and son Roger, all of Cleveland. The guests brought the anniversary cake, which was decorated in white and silver.

Work On Program to Cure 'Swimmer's Itch'

Lansing—Officials of state agencies working on a program aimed at ridding Michigan's public bathing waters of "swimmer's itch" have handed out several simple, easy-to-use methods of prevention.

A vigorous rubdown with a rough bath towel immediately after coming out of the water is one way for bathers to head off the irritation. Washing with a strong soap shortly after swimming is another means. Applying a lotion containing oil before entering the water also tends to minimize the effect.

This advice came from officials of the department of conservation, who are working on the problem with representatives of the Michigan Department of Health, the State stream control commission and the University of Michigan biological station at Douglas Lake in Cheboygan county.

They said research had shown that some persons are immune to "swimmer's itch" and that only the lakes or streams containing extensive beds of snails of the type that carries the parasite are likely to cause trouble to bathers.

Complaints have gained in number in recent years, coming from lake residents and resort interests where certain beaches were found to contain some of the free-swimming larvae which, when they attach themselves to human skin, bore under the surface and die, causing an itching similar to that of a mosquito "bite."

State officials discounted the idea that the irritation arises from pollution of lake or stream water. Extensive experiments have demonstrated, they said, that pollution will exterminate the snails bearing the parasite, rather than give support to them.

They pointed out that beach owners can head off the difficulty if they call upon the state groups to inspect their lake property for evidence of the existence of the snails. The field party operating out of the Douglas Lake station is supplied with chemicals with which the water in the vicinity of public bathing beaches is treated to kill the free-swimming larvae and the snails which carry them. This unit also is on call for application of the chemical treatment process, which is not harmful to bathing facilities.

Plankell Funeral Home Completely Modernized

Extensive alterations which have been underway for the past three months at the Plankell funeral home are nearing completion, and the newly constructed portion is now ready for occupancy.

The front porch was removed from the house and a slumber room and office were added to the east side at the front. The new slumber room will provide privacy for the immediate family during funeral services.

Enlargement of the home increases the seating capacity considerably, it now being possible to comfortably seat more than 225 people, and the arrangement is more convenient in many ways. There are now three rooms in the funeral home, which can be used as slumber rooms; as the result of alterations which were made.

New equipment has been added, which completely air conditions the entire home. The exterior appearance, made into Colonial style, is very attractive.

Mr. and Mrs. Plankell invite their friends to call and inspect their modern funeral home, which is now so complete in every detail.

Children In Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield

No Harm Intended

A case was tried in a juvenile court which revealed that four girls broke into a lake cottage and stayed there several days at a time. The owner of the cottage seldom used it, but when he came back from the city one day he found the girls in possession. They were also using his wife's clothing and other personal belongings.

The girls came from good homes, were good students, and had never committed any previous misdemeanors. It was discovered, however, that they had no interesting task to perform during their long summer vacations. Their parents would not permit them to work. There were servants at home, therefore they were not obliged to perform household duties. The town in which they lived offered few amusements for girls of their age, except tennis, reading and some fancy work; the long summer days were devoid of amusement.

These girls came upon the cottage one day while on a hike. Without giving a thought concerning ownership, they made themselves at home. Each girl told her parents that the cottage belonged to a relative of one of the other girls and so they were allowed to go there at will. Keeping house held their interest. In time, they began to consider the cottage as their own and used it as such. When the case was explained, the owner withdrew his charges and made arrangements for the girls to continue using the cottage. The parents of these girls learned that while boys can find much to fill their vacations, girls often suffer from idleness.

America is now vacation bound. For the next few months thousands upon thousands of automobiles will cross the country in all directions. Here are a few tips to follow on your trip:

1. Watch the road. Watch the other fellow; but chiefly, watch yourself.
2. It's a lot better to take a little time being careful than to spend a lot of time being sorry.
3. Signal what you are going to do before you do it.
4. Stay on your side of the road.
5. Don't trust the other fellow, but check up on yourself first.
6. Your pleasure trip has no right to promote the other fellow's funeral trip.

IT'S SMART TO DRIVE CAREFULLY.

'Scientific' Baseball Is Yellow.

The astonished batter who sees yellow spots before his eyes will not be the victim of a hallucination. He will simply be looking at one of the latest examples of Twentieth century progress—the "scientific" baseball, which is bright, lemon-yellow in color. According to its sponsors, this new baseball has greater visibility when soaring through the air. Future "Caseys," they claim, will be in a better position to get the "first whack" instead of being "whacked" by speed balls. A yellow object moving through the air is more easily discerned than is a white object. The color also affords greater contrast with the ball-field background. Reports received by the Better Vision Institute state that the new baseball may be used in this season's games upon the agreement of the ball clubs.

Michigan Leads In Many Ways As A Vacation Paradise

Lake with 18,000 acres down to lakes of ten acres or less. Nine lakes are larger than 10,000 acres; ten lakes have areas from 5,000 to 10,000 acres. And then, in the wilderness of the north, are an estimated 1,000 additional unnamed lakes.

The shore line along the Great Lakes, together with the thousands of inland lakes, have made possible an outstanding system of state parks. How many? Guess again, for the total is 57, exclusive of approximately two million acres of state forest lands which have been made available to the public for camping. In an average year the state parks are visited by 9,000,000 people who come from all sections of the United States as well as Canada and Mexico.

Michigan's "White Fleet"

Michigan's "white fleet" at the Straits of Mackinac may be commonplace to you, but it is a source of great interest to tourists.

The ferry service between the two peninsulas is the only one of its kind maintained by a state highway department. Five state-owned and one leased vessel are now operated at the Straits during the summer tourist season. In 1937 the state purchased a car-ferry of the Ann Arbor railroad and re-named it the "City of Cheboygan." Last year a Pere Marquette car-ferry was purchased, modernized and named the "City of Munising."

Automobile traffic has grown from 10,000 vehicles in 1923 when the state went into the ferry business to about 275,000 annually at this time. Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagener has stated that the saturation point has been reached in the number of boats that can be handled efficiently between present terminal docks.

Tonnage at Lake Ports

Because the lakes are open to traffic from March until late November and sometimes to mid-December, the port cities of Michigan unload supplies for the inland industrial centers and then load shipments of the finished products throughout most of the year.

The total value in 1938 of tonnage in Western Michigan harbors was close to a half billion dollars. Frankfort, car-ferry terminal of the Wabash-Ann Arbor railroad, led with $132,882,000. Muskegon, terminal for the Grand Trunk-Pennsylvania railroads, was next with $112,806,000. South Haven was the only port city to show a gain last year. Much of this was due to shipment of foreign and Canadian wood pulp for paper mills located at Kalamazoo.

At Detroit the heavy lake traffic prompted in 1936 the establishment of a marine post-office, the Q-F. Mook, which is operated on three eight-hour shifts and meets all ships passing up and down the Detroit river to receive and distribute mail.

Approximately 175 freight vessels ply the waters of the Great Lakes. Of these the Pittsburgh Steamship company operates a fleet of 79 ships in transport of ore, coal, and oil.

Leads in Fish

Being two peninsulas which are served by four of the Great Lakes, it is only natural that Michigan should lead all lake states in production of fish.

Michigan ranked first in 1938 with a catch of 28,984,000 pounds. Ohio was second, followed by Wisconsin, New York, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois and Minnesota.

At one time the whitefish harvest stood at the top in terms of dollars. Today it has fallen far below the lake trout which, last year, had a dollar yield of $1,521,000.

Commercial fishing once was a stable industry. Fishermen could not agree among themselves as to the need for conserving the natural fish supply. States did not intervene until in recent years. As the Marquette Mining Journal pointed out recently, "Fishermen, as a group, have not harvested their crop wisely. They have taken more fish than the lakes could stand and have used ruinous methods."

Commercial fishermen dispute the charge of depletion of fish life. They quote the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries that annual catches in the Great Lakes have varied but little during the past 25 years. The 1932-1938 catch in Lake Superior, in fact, was 81 per cent above the average for the past 25 years.

Michigan's fishing industry, being a leader among those in the lake states, now takes an interest in conservation measures. Fishermen at Frankfort, for example, recently proposed lengthening of the closed seasons for whitefish and trout.

Official Motto

Michigan's upper peninsula has been pronounced by experts to possess soil and climate ideal for the culture of choice potatoes.

Robert Pelletier, manager for the Upper Michigan Potato Farms, Ltd., ranch near Chassell, startled natives recently by declaring that there is actually more land in Michigan's upper peninsula ideally suited to potato growing than there is in the entire state of Maine.

Pelletier, a former Maine potato farmer, states that his firm eventually will have 10,000 acres under annual cultivation. Much of it today is idle cut-over land along the shores of Lake Superior.

Surprisingly enough also is the recent discovery that Upper Peninsula rutabagas are comparable in quality to the very best grown in the United States or Canada.

Do you know your Michigan? There is ample evidence everywhere that the peninsula state has been generously blessed by Nature. The official motto of Michigan expresses it well: "If you seek a delightful peninsula, look about you."

Question And Answer Dept.

Problem—How many men and women were born in this county during the last twelve months? (We'll tell you elsewhere in this department).

Ques.—Is Gerald Walker of the Chicago White Sox and Dixie Walker of the Detroit Tigers brothers or any relation?

Ans.—They are not related, except for going back many generations there is a slight connection.

Ques.—Can you tell me what a mohr is?

Ans.—A mohr is a West African gazelle having horns on which are eleven or twelve prominent rings. It is one of the species which produce bezoar. In general appearance it resembles a deer.

Ques.—Is the Mohammedan calendar the same as the Christian calendar?

Ans.—No. Beginning with January the number of days in each of the twelve months alternate. January 30 days, February 29 days, March 30 days, April 29 days, and so on to December with 29 days, but which has 30 every four years (leap year).

Ques.—What is the most western city in the United States?

Ans.—It is believed this distinction goes to Arcata, Calif., about 150 miles north of San Francisco. Arcata, with a population of 2,000, is about fifteen miles farther west than any other rival city on the Pacific coast.

Ques.—How fast does the wind blow before it is considered to be violent and dangerous?

Ans.—Ordinarily a fifty or sixty miles an hour wind is considered high and dangerous, and usually will do a good deal of damage. The fastest, however, ever measured by the United States Weather Bureau is 102 miles per hour.

Ques.—Is there any danger of the ordinary house lights circuit of electricity seriously injuring a person?

Ans.—Ordinarily there is no danger with the 110 or 120 volt circuit, except under most unusual circumstances. It depends on the way the current passes through the body, on how long it lasts, one's general health, etc. About the most this current will do, as a rule, will be to scare you.

Ques.—Will you please answer in your good paper what metal is the most valuable on the basis of the dollar?

Ans.—Radium is the most valuable metal by far of any metal known. The four leading metals and the value are as follows: Radium, $2,000,000 an ounce; iridium (used for fountain-pen tips) $250 an ounce; platinum, $100 an ounce; gold, $20 an ounce.

Answer to puzzle—No men and women were born—they were babies.

Ques.—Was Napoleon Bonaparte born on the same day of the week that he died? And also on the same day of the week he had his hardest battle? Ans.—Napoleon Bonaparte was born on Tuesday, August 15, 1769; died on May 5, 1821 (Saturday), and fought his hardest battle (Waterloo) on Sunday, June 18, 1815.

First Billion Appropriation The first annual appropriation of over $1,000,000,000 was for the fiscal year 1909.

TAKE THE DETOURS OUT OF HOUSEKEEPING

Poultry Tour Begins In State August 6th

Poultrymen from many parts of the world will ride through Michigan during the six-day Wolverine post-congress poultry tour arranged August 6 as an aftermath of the seventh World's Poultry Congress in Cleveland, July 28 to August 7.

Highlight of the Michigan caravan itinerary is the stop at East Lansing for dedication of the regional poultry research laboratory of the federal government. The program for this is scheduled for Tuesday, August 8, it is announced by Dr. J. Holmes Martin, laboratory director.

On 60 acres of land provided by Michigan State College, the government has constructed buildings and purchased equipment costing nearly $200,000 to pursue the causes and possible treatments, cures or prevention of fowl paratyphoid. This malady is a common affliction in American poultry and seriously affects possible profits in this billion dollar industry of which Michigan's share is about 45 millions annually.

Inspection of the laboratory begins at 2 p. m. At 10 o'clock the visitors go to the college chemistry lecture room in Kedzie Hall. R. S. Shaw, president of the college, is to welcome those attending the ceremony. Dr. J. R. Mohler, chief of the federal bureau of animal industry, is to discuss the relation of research to agricultural progress. Coordination of the laboratory and the experiment station is to be depicted by V. R. Gardner, director of the Michigan Experiment Station.

First chicks were hatched in the laboratory April 8. A total of 7,000 since have been hatched and are in various phases of experimentation and control studies. The laboratory is designed primarily to serve 25 mid-west and northeastern states, including Michigan.

Initial mortality studies, Dr. Martin reports, give indication of a difference in susceptibility between various poultry breeding strains, proving the wisdom in laying out the laboratory to provide parallel studies and controls in both pathology and genetics.

Down the River!

The most famous of all river steamboat races was that between the R. E. Lee and the Natchez, run from New Orleans to St. Louis in 1870. The R. E. Lee arrived at St. Louis at 11:25 a. m. July 4, 3 days, 18 hours and 30 minutes out of New Orleans, a distance of 1,210 miles. The Natchez arrived some six hours later.

Cassidy Lake Events

Three Cassidy Lake men recently entered the Ann Arbor News novice tennis tournament. Eugene Fisher, counselor, was defeated in the first round by William Flessbee with set scores of 6-2, 4-6, 1-6. Guy Housen defeated David Leary of Cassidy by scores of 6-0, 6-1. Irwin Clark won his match by a default. Clark will play his second match Saturday.

Snickle-Fritz, a kitten recently captured by cabin 2-C, is rapidly becoming the pet of the project.

A much needed piano has been purchased by the canteen fund. The piano is in the Recreational building.

Two new sets of horse shoes have been purchased for the recreational department. An inter-project tournament is already under way.

Harold Ivans' Model T Ford is in the auto shop for repairs. He exceeded a speed of ten miles per hour and cracked a piston.

Albert Sylvester, commonly known as "Corp", had a bandage on his eye a few days after getting stung in it while working on the new industrial building.

A large barrel raft has been built and is now in use on Cassidy Lake.

The boys in the wood shop are making a custom built dog house; two layers of flooring and a layer of celotex, a glass window, and there are rumors of a double bunk.

Ernest Jensen is back on the job as wood shop supervisor after a week's leave at his home in the Upper Peninsula.

The machine and auto shop are now moving ahead under the new system of studying one half-day and working one half day. The boys seemed very willing but the supervisors were very late—almost a minute and a half.

Richard Herder and C. S. Waggoner, supervisor of the auto and machine shops, were glad to report that gas was going to be furnished for instruction in acetylene welding. This instruction has been started and the new boys really make the sparks fly.

A number of the boys are taking a course in recreational leadership under the tutelage of C. N. Van Houten, our athletic director. This course will help them in obtaining a position on municipal or city playgrounds.

The boys in the machine shop were seen moving very rapidly and with a great deal of purpose in their steps—the mouse was caught and killed.

The agriculture group went to the horse show in Jackson last Saturday. Robert Johnson won third place in the horse judging contest. The prize was a white ribbon and a case of pop.

We wonder where Herbert Nearing lost the bottoms of his trousers. Maybe it's just the warm weather.

Thomas Hawkins, the camp Isaac Walton, furnishes 1-B cabin with a nice mess of fish almost daily.

Donald McKinmy has left the project to go home and help his father, who is ill. He was in camp for about two months, and has been a friend to all of us. We wish him the best of luck.

The forestry group is clearing up the swamps, making a much better appearance of the project.

The agriculture department has recently purchased 250 more baby chicks, making a total of 1750 chickens on the project.

The Diesel club will go to Detroit Saturday and visit the Diesel factories. They will also visit the Hemphill Diesel school. Information has been received from a Diesel company, and the diagrams have been discussed and studied by the club at their recent meetings.

The Recreational building will be opened Friday, July 21. An orchestra has been hired to play for the dance. A short floor show will be given during intermission after refreshments have been served. Everyone is invited to come, and all consideration will be given the guests. Anyone wishing to see the project is requested to come early. Guides will be furnished to point out places of interest around the project. The dance starts at 9:00 p. m.

The Cassidy Lake boys defeated the staff in a thrilling game Friday afternoon, July 7, by a score of 25 to 16. The staff took the lead only once and that was after the starting team for the boys left the field. The staff team had the following players: W. Brown, L. Brown, Fisher, Bookwalter, Papes, Waggoner, Glas, Miller, Van Houten, Swiss, Taylor, Herder, and Spiesz. "Double play" Miller didn't get a chance to repeat his spectacular play of last week.

Saturday, July 8 the Cassidy Lake boys played the Marshall N. Y. A. Project at Marshall. They were defeated in both ends of a double header by the scores of 3 to 1 and 6 to 2. The following boys made the trip: Kotyuk, Mallette, Martel, Gillesse, Melton, Sims, Louch, Satterlee, Sylvester, Rosa, Brown, Mayhew, and Larson. Accompanying the team were the following counselors: D. L. Miller, W. A. Glas, C. N. Van Houten, and G. A. Bookwalter.

WASKIEWICZ GETS DEGREE

Local friends of Leon Waskiewicz, who was a member of the Chelsea high school faculty in 1934 and 1935, will be interested in the fact that he graduated from the University of Michigan in June. The following paragraph from a letter received by a local friend of Mr. Waskiewicz tells of his activities since leaving Chelsea: "After I left Chelsea in the spring of 1936, I returned to Ann Arbor, completed the work for the master's degree that summer, and in the fall of that year became a member of the English faculty of the University high school. In the spring of 1937, following a competitive examination in which doctoral candidates from various departments of the University participated, I was lucky enough to win one of the Rackham Predoctoral Fellowships, which carried with it a stipend of one thousand dollars. This appointment forced me from all teaching duties and enabled me to devote full time to the work leading to the Ph. D. degree. My fellowship was renewed in the spring of 1938, and the end of my labors came last June when I was awarded the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in Education. The title of my doctoral dissertation was "Organized Labor and Public Education in Michigan from 1880 to 1938." At the present time I am a summer instructor in the School of Education of the University of Michigan."

Our Neighbors

NORTHVILLE—Dr. E. B. Cavell, Jr., village health officer, reported Wednesday noon that two rabid dogs, one from Novi and one from Beck road near Northville, had been found. Four persons are having to take the Pasteur treatment because they handled the dogs. "Persons should be warned against ramming their hands down a dog's throat because they think the dog has a bone in its throat. This is one of the first symptoms of rabies—the dog's jaws and throat become paralyzed. If a dog is choking on a bone, he'll paw and fight at it until he gets it out," explained Dr. Cavell.—Record.

BRIGHTON—Through the efforts of A. W. Sheffer of the Ben Hur farm and James Dougherty of the Ponda Lake Inn, both of whom have the best interests of Brighton and its neighboring communities at heart, the Ben Hur farm, just north and east of town, has been selected as the site for the training camp of Bob Pastor, who will contest the world's heavyweight championship title with Joe Louis, its present owner, at Briggs Stadium, Detroit, on the date of September 21.—Argus.

MASON—Attorneys for the Michigan Bell Telephone company arrived in Mason Thursday to close the deal for the purchase of a lot on Park St. The telephone company plans to begin construction of an office building Sept. 1. The building will be equipped for dial service. As soon as an agreement on toll can be worked out between the Mason lines and the Aurelius and Vaux Telephone company, Mason is to have a dial system. It is believed that the agreement between the two companies will do away with the present system whereunder Mason and Aurelius subscribers get connections toll-free.—County News.

DUNDEE—The A. V. Oil and Gas Company, owners of a number of oil wells in the western part of the township, shot another well on Monday. It is situated on the Roy and Glyndee farm on the Lenawee road. The well promises to be the heaviest producer of all and may produce from 400 to 500 barrels a day. It is down to 2200 feet and is in the Trenton rock formation from which the long-lived oil wells come. Officials of the company said that the oil has twice spouted 95 feet in the air and that the natural gas pressure is the heaviest of any yet found in the Roe farm wells. A charge of 200 quarts of nitroglycerine was lowered into the hole but because of oil seeping into the shaft it was found impossible to set it off by electrical contact. A trip was made to the Ohio office of the "shooting" company for a "go devil" to be dropped down the shaft to discharge the nitro. After the shooting, the oil flowed 100 feet over the top of the derrick, continuing for over three hours.—Reporter.

PLYMOUTH—Announcement was made yesterday of the purchase of the factory of the National Window Shade company and site by the Wall Wire Products Company, a newly organized Michigan corporation with a capital stock of $150,000 preferred and $100,000 common. The company expects to employ over 100 workers when the plant is placed in operation sometime in September.—Mail.

Hard on Sheep

The tariff question, puzzling to many Americans today, was an issue in a political campaign in 1826, and one candidate wrote of it: "The people knew little about it, but what they had heard was decidedly against it. One old fellow said he had never seen one, but he believed it was hard on sheep."

Sneezing Custom

The origin of "God bless you" or a similar benediction after sneezing is obscure. The Romans believed that sneezing expelled evil spirits and, therefore, used the expression, "Good luck to you." There is an old legend that before the time of Jacob men sneezed once and died. Jacob interceded with the Lord in their behalf and the favor was granted, provided that after every sneeze a prayer or benediction, "God bless you," be said.

Dr. K. M. Broesamle Writes from Honolulu

Dr. K. M. Broesamle, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Broesamle of Chelsea, who is a dentist with the U. S. Navy and has been stationed on the Atlantic coast, recently was transferred to the Pacific coast. He is now on the U. S. S. Honolulu, and made the trip through the Panama Canal with the fleet.

The following letter to his parents was written from Honolulu where they visited last week:

Honolulu, T. H., July 12, 1939.

Dear Mother and Father:

Our stay is half over now and it is going to pass all too soon. This is a beautiful place and anything you read about it cannot half describe it. There is so much entertainment for us and so many things to see that I can't get to do near all of it.

They had a big welcome for us Sunday when we were coming in. Many small boats came out to see us and escort us in. They presented us with many flowers. There were about 10,000 people on the dock and two bands that played our own and Hawaiian music. We have never had such a reception.

Tonight we were invited out to a Luau which is an old ceremonial feast. It is started the day before. They did a hole in the ground, build a fire in it and start cooking a couple of young pigs. Then the next day, the pigs are taken out, also the fire. Hot stones are put back in the hole, the pig cut up and put back in along with fish and sweet potatoes. This is then covered over with wet palm or other leaves and the cooking or steaming continues in this fashion. Then there is a ceremony at the opening of the pit. The food is placed on the ground. There were various other kinds of foods too and we had to eat it with our fingers. The dessert was a kind of coconut, also fresh pineapple cut up in chunks. The pig was delicious but I did not care for anything else except the pineapple. A Hawaiian band played during this and Hawaiian girls danced the primitive Hula. This was all by the light of torches.

Of course the swimming is the best here of anywhere in the world. The hotels are beautiful. We have a room donated to us to change our clothes in that costs $30.00 a day. There are many tourists and so everything is quite expensive. Otherwise except for the climate it is just like the United States.

Tomorrow I am taking an airplane flight in one of these big Navy flying boats that recently came out here. I have met some friends and they have helped show me around. I met a lady the other day who bought the George Barth farm. She and her husband, who is in the Army, got it a couple of years ago. Their son is taking care of it. The name is Major P. S. Holmes and I think the son lives across the street from you and stays with the Shutes.

We leave here Saturday for Portland, Oregon and finally back to Long Beach, Calif. It can't come too soon even though this has been very enjoyable and I have seen many new places. You would love a boat trip out here. I hope to get stationed out here some time and then you can visit us.

Hope that you are well and happy.

With love,
Kenneth.

Fishing Results Are Showing Improvement

Lansing—Bass and pan fishermen are having their inning these days while trout enthusiasts in some sections are biding their time awaiting better conditions. It is indicated in latest reports on state-wide fishing results filed with the fish division of the department of conservation.

In the past week district supervisors in most sections described the catches of bass, bluegills and sunfish in terms of "good," "very good" or "getting better every day." General opinion was that the bass and pan fish season was continuing to meet expectations.

News from trout streams and lakes told of adverse water and weather conditions in some areas. This was more true of Upper Peninsula counties, where reports from the western part attributed slow trout fishing to high water, although the few fishermen who did venture out into the heat were getting fair catches.

Trout in the Lower Peninsula were taken in fair-to-good quantities in the northeast section where the stream levels were normal, but the heat worked against trout fishing in most of the cut-over section. Only "very good" prospects were on trout in Newago and Lake counties.

"Bass fishing has held up marvelously" was one report, and another experience was of "the best bass fishing in years." Pike was said to be improving rapidly, with the Upper Peninsula central and eastern sections reporting good catches, while most parts of the lower peninsula saw fair pike fishing. Bluegills and sunfish completed the group giving satisfactory catches. High winds kept fishermen off some of the larger lakes in the upper state regions, but the pan fish haul was large in most of the lakes fished.

Early evening and after-dark fishing brought the most results in pan fish. Bluegills were said to be taking to flies during the hour before dark, while worms and bait held their attractions during daytime angling.

Horse Sense

Ulysses, famed Grecian warrior in the battle with the Trojans, at first didn't want to go to war, according to legend. "Extending madness," he put on a fisherman's hat, yoked horses and started to plow up the ground. His trick was uncovered when he turned the horses aside as he saw his infant son lying on the ground in front of the plow.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Beautiful young Kay Forrest has been employed by Christine Maynard, photographer, to pose for a series of pictures, the background of which will be the exclusive Cathedral Gardens, famous Southern resort. Unknown to them, one Jeff Butler, mean, unscrupulous swamp angel, has led a friend to spy on the two women. Kay, of necessity, is constantly on edge while posing for the camera studies.

CHAPTER II—Kay frequently stays with Mrs. Ruth Hamilton, her son Barney, of whom Kay is very fond, and her daughter Margaret. Mrs. Hamilton is a remarkable woman, conceived the idea of the Gardens following the death of her husband. One night, after a local dance, Kirk Reynolds, a near-dwelling gambler of Beverly, a resort town, and Kay, go for a ride. Kirk's car collides with that of Harvey Jackson and during the ensuing argument Kirk whips out a gun and kills the young, popular engineer.

CHAPTER III—Kay is completely stunned by the tragedy. Kirk threatens to drag her into the thing if she tells even her father. Terror-stricken, she agrees to remain silent. However, the next time she goes out with Barney, he realizes something is wrong. She tries to reassure him, but tells him nothing.

She nodded, but the little lump in her throat made speech impossible. Barney plunged ahead, hoping to arouse her. He gestured boyishly toward the radiance which was bathing the country-side.

"Our best—and most guaranteed sunset. Positively genuine, or your money refunded. Service free to tourists and patrons of Cathedral Gardens. Particularly interesting on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Ladies' Day Tuesday. Get Kay, isn't there some way I can help?"

It was sudden. Abrupt. Devastatingly kind—this change from banter to sympathy. Kay's defenses crumbled. Her voice broke and she said, "Oh, Barney."

He drove with one hand, holding her arm with the other.

"Is it as bad as that, Chicka?" She tried to talk, but the words would not come. Unconsciously, she moved closer to him, so that her body touched his. Then she spoke, without taking a tear-dimmed eye from the road. She said, simply, "I love you, Barney."

His face lighted. He clamped on the brakes and stopped the car. But when his arms reached for her, she moved away. The eyes which she turned upon him were filled with tragedy, and she said, "No. Not that. I just wanted you to know."

Puzzled, perturbed, he drove on, though very, very slowly. His voice was almost a whisper.

"I love you, too, Kay. But you've known that for a long time, haven't you?" And she answered, "Yes."

Two big cars whirled by them, creating dust-clouds on the gravel road. Dusk was settling over the country-side like a benediction. The air was fragrant with the fine, clean odor of pine.

Barney wanted to help. He knew he must do something anything to shock her out of this emotional depression.

He said gently, "Will you marry me, Kay?"

The effect was startling. Her eyes widened and she turned in her seat. She cried, "Oh! Barney—please don't."

The car had stopped, and night enfolds them.

"Why?" he asked.

"You mustn't..."

He held one of her hands between both of his. "But you're wrong, honey. I must. In fact..." and he tried to laugh. "In fact, I should have asked you long ago."

She said, then, "I wish you had."

He saw only the top of her head heard only the ghost of her voice.

"I'm married, Barney."

He was shocked. "You're what?"

"I'm married."

"But Kay..." For the first time he was beginning to understand that life was not always kindly. "I just don't get it."

She shook her head helplessly. "Neither do I."

She clung to him. "Please try to understand, Barney."

He said, "I'll try, honey. But it doesn't make sense. It isn't you—or me." His face was serious; older than she had ever seen it. Maturity seemed to have collided with him. "How long have you been married?"

"A few hours."

"To whom?"

She looked away. "Kirk Reynolds."

"Good Lord! You mean—when I passed you this morning you were on your way to be married?"

"Yes."

"Why didn't you tell me?"

"I—I didn't know. Then."

His hand tightened on her arm. "This is all screwy, honey. What do you mean, you didn't know?"

"I didn't. It happened suddenly."

"But why? Surely, you're not in love with him."

"You know I'm not." She tried to be brave. "Listen, Barney... try to believe me."

"I'll try."

"I had to marry him—"

"Had to?"

"No! Don't misunderstand. Oh, please..."

"It's something I can't explain. That's why I told you first that I love you. It sort of gave me courage to tell you the rest. I married Kirk because I had to..."

"Because there were reasons which I can't explain to you. Ever."

He said, "Things like this can't happen, honey."

"They have happened. And I need your help more than you can understand. I need to know that you care for me, that you're going to keep on caring for me. And that you won't torture me with questions I can't answer."

"Why can't you answer them?"

"Because I'm afraid."

His jaw was set grimly. "O' what?"

"That's what I can't explain. Don't you see that I'm telling the truth—that I didn't do this thing because I wanted to?"

She was suddenly more womanly. "If there was any other reason, Barney, I wouldn't be leaving Beverly tonight, would I?"

"I suppose not..."

"His face flushed. 'You're not going to live with him?'"

"Of course not."

He laughed shortly. "This wasn't the Barney she had known for a year and a half..."

"...and she knew that she had changed, too. Two youngsters faced with ugly fact, grappling with a problem which was too big for them. He said, 'There was a reason of course.'"

"Yes. And you'd know—if I could only tell you—that I couldn't do anything else."

"Can't you trust me?"

"Yes... But I still can't tell you."

She felt his muscles grow taut. "I'm not a child, Kay."

"That isn't it. It's something."

Oh, Barney! I can't explain. I couldn't even tell my father. He asked everything you are asking."

"What did he say?"

"He was hurt... but he understood. He was shocked. But he was kindly—and brave."

"What do you mean, brave?"

A faint, pitiful little smile flickered across her lips. "I gave him the job of telling Mother, and Andy. That isn't going to be very pleasant."

Barney spoke slowly.

"You don't love Kirk Reynolds, yet you married him today. You married him because you are afraid of something. You are running away from Beverly because you don't want to face gossip."

Which means that you know the marriage won't be kept secret. You couldn't tell your father the truth and you can't tell me. Have I got it right?"

"Yes."

"I think I'll have a chat with Kirk Reynolds."

"No!" She was terrified. "Promise me you won't do that."

"Why not?"

"It would only make matters worse."

"What can I do, then?"

"Just what Dad is doing. You can be my friend. You can, perhaps, try to make me think that you believe whatever I have done is right. You can let me talk..."

"...and you can help me to forget the whole thing."

"But if you're married to him—"

"I'm not, though. We simply went through a ceremony."

"That sort of marriage can be annulled."

"Dad said that. But this marriage can't be."

"Why?"

"Because the same thing that frightened me into marrying Kirk would prevent that."

"Will you ever tell me the whole truth?"

"I—I don't know."

"In other words," he said seriously, "you're giving me a job to do. Something pretty rotten has happened to you. It has played hell with your nerves. I'm to snap you out of it if I can."

"Yes."

"You'd like me to forget that this cuts pretty deep. You'd like me to be the clown again..."

"...to kid along as I've always done... to make rather an ass of myself. Right?"

"You make it sound silly."

"I don't mean to. I'm trying to make you see that I understand how you feel. And it would help if I could get you laughing again, wouldn't it?"

She asked, "Could you?"

"I don't know. But I can try."

"Then try, please." She caught one of his hands. "But oh! Barney, if you're being very, very funny some time and I suddenly start crying... you won't misunderstand?"

"No," he said, "I won't. Not even if I start crying, too."

He started the car and moved on through the night. They did not talk, but again she moved so close that her body touched his. There was something so reassuring in this brief contact, something so fine in the stern expression of his boyish face.

At home they crossed the veranda and entered the big living-room. Mrs. Hamilton greeted them from the chair under the reading-lamp.

"Nice day?" she inquired.

Kay said, "Yes, ma'am."

"Upstairs, you," Barney was smiling gallantly. "And make it snappy."

Barney waited at the foot of the stairway until the girl's slender ankles had disappeared. Then he walked toward his mother's chair. She rose to meet him, instinctively knowing that all was not as it should be.

He put his hands on his mother's shoulders and looked down into her eyes.

"Tough sledding," he said.

"What's wrong, Son?"

"Kay's in a jam. I'll tell you about it before she comes down."

He passed his hands over his face, his eyes closed, his mouth set in a grimace.

"What's wrong, Son?"

"Kay's in a jam. I'll tell you about it before she comes down."

ingly practical way.

Thereafter she had been many things to many persons. Cash girl, Seventh Avenue dress model, customers' party girl, manicurist, student at a beauty school—and finally a full-fledged and rather expert beautician. And in the course of her travels she acquired an interesting sophistication, a certain exotic beauty, a husky voice and the protective friendship of Kirk Reynolds. Kirk and Babe were excellent friends.

As a matter of fact, Babe Henkel was very deeply in love with Mr. Reynolds. She admired his virtues and his vices; she adored him for what he was—no matter what. She had come to Beverly to relieve his boredom; she did not permit soggy sentiment to intrude upon their friendship.

This afternoon she had been busy, but the last customer had departed when the telephone rang. It was Kirk; his words close-clipped as usual, his tone authoritative.

"Busy?"

"No."

"Come up."

Babe inspected herself in the mirror. She saw a woman slightly above medium height; well and firmly rounded. Her face was oval and framed by sleek black hair brushed tightly against her head. Her eyebrows were combed, her mouth wide but well shaped; an interesting mouth with a frame of scarlet lips. She closed and locked the door, walked up to the second floor—not unconscious of admiring masculine glances—and knocked on the door of Kirk's room.

He passively accepted the kiss she bestowed upon him. He said, "Sit down, Babe."

She settled her figure into a chair opposite.

"What's on your mind, Kirk?"

"Plenty. Can you take it?"

Two tiny, vertical lines appeared briefly on her forehead. She said, "Let's have it."

He said, "I'm married."

Dark lashes, lashes which were heavy with mascara, rose swiftly from black eyes.

"You're kidding..."

"No."

That was all. Curt. Abrupt. Cruel, even.

Miss Henkel's eyes were steady. Dangerous. Her voice matched Kirk's in coldness. She asked, "When?"

"This afternoon."

"Who to?"

"Kay Forrest."

Babe said, "You're a fine louse."

"You think so?"

"I know it."

"Smart girl, ain't you?"

She stared at him. "So what does this make me?" she inquired.

"Anything you want."

"I'm expected to take it sitting down?"

"I don't particularly care."

She was thinking aloud. "So you did kill Harvey Jackson?"

He spoke acidly. "Pipe down on that."

"She was with you that night."

"What of it?"

"Plenty. Now get this, Kirk, and get it straight. I don't give a hang what you do with other women, but when you throw the harpoon into me, I get sore."

"So what?"

"So plenty. I know why you married this girl. And there are some things I'm not standing for. This is one of them."

"You're not threatening me, I hope."

"Take it any way you want. Where is she now?"

"None of your business. It just happens I don't mind telling you that she went out to the Gardens with that Hamilton kid."

"Making you look sappy, eh?"

Her voice cut into him.

He shrugged. "If that doesn't suit you—"

"It suits me all right. What doesn't suit me is that you didn't tell me what you had up your sleeve."

"Since when did I start shooting off my mouth to you? Now grab this, Babe, I'm in a tough spot, and you might as well know it."

"Okay."

"In this State," he said flatly, "a wife cannot be made to testify against her husband."

She said, "You did kill him, didn't you?"

"I'm telling you for the last time. Lay off that! I'm not talking to anybody, see, not even you."

"I'd like to help..."

"Then keep your trap closed. I'm saying nothing. Let the saps talk if they want. But don't you join in the chorus." He looked up at her. "And don't go soft on me."

"I won't. I've played around with you a pretty long time, you know."

"Yeah, I know. You're on the level—and I'm glad you're not doing a run-out. Though if you feel that way—go to it."

She said, "I don't though. It's just that this marriage of yours ain't easy to swallow all of a sudden. Also, whether you like it or not, I don't enjoy the idea of you being in a jam."

He took her hand with what was for him, a great demonstration of affection. "You're not so bad yourself, Babe. So snap out of it."

"I will." She waved and went out the door.

"So he ditches me for a country kid." Her fists clenched. "Well, he can't get away with it."

CHAPTER VI

The Lotus Gardens were nearing completion. It was understood that they would be ready for the public as soon as the azalea season had passed its peak. More reclaimed swamp, greater and more bewildering beauty. More tourists. Business men were delighted, non-business persons didn't quite know how to accept it... and godly souls who lived in the very rural districts considered it a disgrace. Country preachers declaimed against this imported iniquity from the pulpits of cross-roads churches, hands were held high in horror, the name of the Devil was bandied freely and with unctious. And—town and country alike—the people pointed unwaveringly at what had occurred since the completion of Ruth Hamilton's scheme to beautify ugly swampland and at the same time earn a fair income for herself and her two children.

There had been, for instance, the murder of Harvey Jackson on a lonely country road.

The Harvey Jackson Mystery. It was called that at supper-tables, at club-meetings, at church socials. It was thus dubbed in front-yard conversations and at gathering places like the Fair Play Store and the Bon Ton Pool Room. It was denounced as a shame and disgrace, and the public inquired frequently and vehemently why Gabe Dixon didn't do something about it.

Mr. Dixon was Solicitor of the Seventh Judicial Circuit, of which Beauregard County was

True Independence

WHEN Paul said (Acts 22:28), "I was free born," he spoke of his freedom as a Roman citizen—freedom that was his because of his father's citizenship. But, although the great Christian warrior valued highly the heritage of liberty that was his right as a Roman citizen, he knew well that genuine freedom is not a matter of race, color, or creed, but of individual spiritual living and demonstration of the power of God in human affairs. He said in Romans (8:21), "The creature itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God."

Materiality is bondage. Spiritual freedom is won in individual experience by putting off the old or carnal concept of man, and putting on the new or spiritual idea of man and the universe. Jesus reasoned with Nicodemus on the problem of spiritual independence when the ruler of the Jews came to him by night in a questioning attitude. The Master said: "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." Nicodemus revealed his material-mindedness in the query, "How can a man be born when he is old? can he enter the second time into his mother's womb, and be born?" Then Jesus replied, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God" (John 3:3, 4, 5).

Jesus was speaking of the new birth, the salvation of mankind through spiritual living. The aim of the Nazarene's glorious ministry was to prove for all time that spiritual regeneration is a present possibility. All can, and indeed eventually must, overcome any being-in-man as material. A material concept of existence, manifested in sin, sickness, poverty, death, gives place to the truth of being, accepted and utilized.

The world is greatly in need of enlightenment as to what constitutes genuine freedom. Independence is not so much a condition of environment as of thought. When Paul and Silas were in prison, bound with chains, they sang songs of praise to God. Their thoughts were not bound, although bands held them and prison walls were around them. Nothing could deprive them of their true freedom—their residing in God's goodness. The natural result of their conscious spiritual freedom was release from prison.

The belief that man is material, that he lives in matter and finally dies out of matter, is a binding, limiting belief. It is not the truth

Pacific Trees Famous

The trees of Oregon have been used not only in the construction of great edifices and in the building of ships, but in counsels of war, in treaties, in judicial proceedings, in courtships, in death; they even have been used as safety deposit vaults. Romance attaches to the ornamental and orchard trees, brought to Oregon by the saga-making pioneers in covered-wagon days. Science has been interested in Oregon's age-old trees, prehistoric giants, submerged beneath the waters of lakes and rivers; the fossilized trees of primordial forests.

Petrified Trees

Petrified trees are numerous throughout Oregon, being found in the Columbia river gorge, along the John Day, the Deschutes and the Ochoco rivers. The fossil remains of a ginkgo, popular as a temple tree in northern China, have been found near Tanner creek, which empties into the Columbia gorge. Within a few miles of the town of Prineville, is a petrified forest of giant sequoia trees that, according to some scientists, were overthrown by a cataclysm of nature in bygone ages.
