Dearborn Man Killed In Crash On US-12

Robert Roe of Dearborn, about 30 years old, was instantly killed about 9:30 Friday night in an automobile accident on US-12 at the junction of the old and new pavements, three miles east of Chelsea. Roe was riding in a coupe driven by Louis W. Zimmerman, 25, traveling west, and as he reached the old narrow pavement Zimmerman swerved to the left but failed to swerve back to the right with the road.

The car left the pavement, crashing through a fence and overturned. Roe, thrown from the car and pinned under it, was dead when the wreckage was removed by passing motorists. Zimmerman was taken into custody on a drunken driver charge authorized by Assistant Prosecutor Franklin C. Forsythe.

Both Roe and Zimmerman, employed by Allied Steel and Conveyors, Detroit, had been at work for several days installing machinery for the Chelsea Spring Co. Zimmerman, who escaped with minor cuts and bruises, told sheriff's officers that he and Roe were returning to Chelsea from Ann Arbor when the accident occurred, on their second round trip of the evening, and that each time they had stopped in both places for drinks.

The body of Roe was brought to the Plankell funeral home and later taken to Dearborn.

Zimmerman pleaded guilty to a drunken driving charge in Justice Jay H. Payne's court Saturday afternoon and paid a fine of $100 and costs of $10. He also was placed on probation for one year, and his operator's license was revoked.

Boytown Minstrel Will Be Presented Tuesday

The boys at Boytown Camp, Mill Lake, look forward each camp season with much anxiety to their feature attraction, Boytown's Minstrel Show, which will be presented next Tuesday evening at their camp. The boys practice the new songs and dances during the year in order to present them at camp in the Minstrel Show. The citizens of Chelsea have encouraged the boys every season with large and enthusiastic audiences.

Excellent opportunity is provided in the Minstrel Show for the boys to display their talent for entertaining. The boys are taken from the department of Special Education of the Detroit public schools and range in age from 8 to 14. The citizens of Chelsea and the surrounding community have been so hospitable and cooperative that the boys are anxious to entertain them.

The Minstrel Show for 1939 promises to be the biggest show ever presented by the boys at their camp. The feature attraction will be Leroy Smith's 15-piece Swing Orchestra and the "Boytown Jitterbugs" with all of the latest steps in this new dance creation.

Don't fail to be present Tuesday night, August 15, at 8:00 o'clock for one hour of fun at Boytown Camp, Mill Lake. There is no admission charge for the performance.

Minimum Speed May Be Imposed In State

Possibility of minimum speed regulations on state trunkline highways loomed this week when State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner launched a study of the situation.

Condemning "snail drivers" as nearly as dangerous as speeders, the commissioner asked the state highway department's legal division to determine the extent of his authority to impose minimum speed regulations outside of municipalities. He asked the planning survey division to make a study of the danger caused by slow drivers on holiday-week-ends with the possibility of conducting experiments on a few trunkline-highways to determine how effective minimum regulations might be.

He also pointed out that minimum speed regulations are already in effect in other states.

LOCAL ALL STARS WIN

The Chelsea Church League All Stars defeated the Grass Lake All Stars, 4-3, in a game played there last Sunday. Dick Kijsey, pitcher for the local Congregational team, was on the mound for the local lads and allowed only five hits. Rolland Spaulding clouted a home run in the ninth inning to break the tie score and win the game.

State's Economy On Crippled Children Stirs Up Rumpus

By Gene Alleman

Lansing—Because heart throbs are involved, the state administration's handling of medical care for crippled and afflicted children was certain to stir up a rumpus.

And it did. Bent on economy, the 1939 legislature whacked the hospitalization budget to $800,000 from an expenditure total of $2,866,000 between March, 1938 to June, 1939. The maximum payable per day at any hospital was reduced from $4.50 to $3.50.

The University hospital at Ann Arbor has closed two children's units and has dismissed a staff of 50 members, officials explaining that the average cost per patient has been $4.43 a day. Not subsidized by state funds in any manner, this institution then announced that only emergency cases of medical treatment would be henceforth accepted.

The prospect of hundreds of crippled children being deprived of modern hospital care, just because of economy demands, is one of those things that inspires resolutions. The immediate reaction was just emotionally that: Governor Dickinson was spunked verbally. "Didn't he have a heart?" And so on.

"Home Rule" Test

Although a totalitarian government is expected to assume welfare functions of all kinds, Michigan did not attempt this particular responsibility until quite recently. With the support of Gov. Frank Murphy, the 1937 legislature created the Michigan Child Guidance Institute and passed an Act. Children's act whereby the state undertook to pay the cost of medical treatment for youngsters who, otherwise, would not receive any. In 16 months the state treasury was asked to honor $2,866,000 in bills.

The 1937 act, however, provided: "Counties, cities and other political subdivisions of the state are hereby authorized to appropriate moneys from their treasuries for the expenses of transportation, care and treatment of children resident in their several jurisdictions."

This provision of the law is being emphasized today when local governments once again are being asked to assume the major responsibility of proper care for crippled children.

Waterloo Project May Be Presented To State

A bill authorizing the National Parks service to transfer the Waterloo and Yankee Springs recreational demonstration areas to the Michigan State Conservation Department was approved by Congress just before the close of its session.

Under the terms of the bill, the terms and conditions of the lease of the recreational areas to the state may be fixed without restriction by the secretary of the interior, or, in other words, by the park service.

Officials of the conservation department have said that the state's attitude will depend upon what restrictions the National Park service will place on the deed or lease. Wayland Osgood, the secretary of the conservation commission, has pointed out that the state is limited in the amount of money available for maintenance and operation of park properties and that, necessarily, both the Waterloo and Yankee Springs enterprises would require considerable outlay.

However, it is probable that, if a suitable transfer is arranged, some money can be found to keep the projects operating as state parks.

Niagara Falls Will Be Depicted With Bubbles

A large Niagara Falls of soap bubbles on the big seventy foot stage is one of the scenes in B. Ward Beam's Musical Comedy success "Here's To You" which will be the feature night grandstand attraction at the Washenaw County Fair, Ann Arbor, for five nights starting Monday, August 28.

This scene has been used in one of the recent Ziegfeld Follies and is something entirely different than anything in scenic effects offered at any fair in this country. The falls itself is 22 feet wide and 9 feet high, and is operated by a special patented machine. The scene is the background for the big ballet number of the show in which twenty of Broadway's loveliest girls take part. This number takes up the whole of the big seventy foot back stage and the fifty foot fore stage that is being built especially for this spectacle.

The Falls will be lighted with a battery of multi-colored lights, these changing several times during the number. This is but one of the six big production numbers of the show.

East Siders Challenge West Side Gentlemen

A challenge is hereby issued by the business men who have their establishments on the east side of Main street, to the west side business men for a three-game series of softball, to be played at the athletic field on dates to be decided if the challenge is accepted.

If the challenge is accepted it is expected that new rules and regulations will be adopted which will make the series more successful and interesting than last year when so many other than business men were included in the line-ups. It is believed that what the people want for entertainment is the older gentlemen on the ball field, who with their varied forms of awkwardness provide much amusement for the spectators.

If there is any individual on the west side of Main street who feels equal to the task of leading the West Siders against the East Side champs, he is requested to see Nic Panarites, who feels that he can get together a team of "old boys" who will beat the socks off of any west side team in town.

June Auto Sales Tax Shows Sharp Increase

Sales tax collections on automobiles jumped 166 per cent in June, 1939, over the same month in 1938, Walter R. Reddy, managing director of the State Board of Tax Administration, announced this week. Figures for May, this year, compared with May, last year, show an increase of 120 per cent.

The sales tax on automobiles for June, 1939, gave the state an income of $116,030.80. May sales brought in $680,807.07. The total for both months in 1938 was only $578,751.43, Reddy said. This year's figures do not include the taxes on accessories and other items sold by automobile dealers, an additional amount estimated from $80,000 to $100,000 a month.

"There are two reasons for this gratifying increase," Reddy said. "Automobile sales have picked up considerably this year, but augmenting this normal increase is the new state law passed during the last session of this legislature to plug loopholes in the collection of sales taxes on automobiles."

"Under the new provisions the dealer must pay the tax to the secretary of state's office before he can secure a transfer of title. This curtails the very small percentage of dealers who in the past were attempting to avoid payment of the sales tax. Because of the present arrangements the salesman cannot make a satisfactory delivery of the car until the state has been paid its money."

"The new automobile sales tax law is probably the outstanding example of the present administration's program to increase the state revenue—not by adding new taxes—but by efficiently collecting those already existing."

Cooler Weather and Rains Help Fishing

Lansing—Periods of scattered rains and cooler weather brought on better fishing prospects, it is disclosed by reports on conditions in most sections of the state, according to the fish division of the department of conservation.

Sectional reports of the past week showed wide variance in results. The hot weather and dryness had caused trouble for anglers, although some good and even excellent catches were noted.

In the upper peninsula, bass and bluegills were the main attraction in the western part and near the Wisconsin border, while trout were slow in streams that continued at low level. Trolling for trout in Lake Superior in the western counties had receded, but off eastern shores was reported to be increasing in popularity with a good season in prospect.

Upper peninsula lakes were getting heavy crowds, and good luck was frequent, especially with pike in eastern waters. Some central counties said small streams would be helped by rains, although fishing was good on rivers there. On the Manistique lakes fly fishing for bass at night was increasing and bringing satisfactory catches.

Excellent catches of bass and bluegills were reported in lakes just south of the Straits, and trout fishing was good, although spotty. The tier of counties at the Manistique level offered good pan fishing and bass and pike were striking in some quarters. Trout had fallen off but the improved weather increased catches.

North of Grand Rapids and Muskegon the improvement in lake fishing was noticeable. Southern counties likewise predicted better lake catches, with reports telling of limits being taken in bass and bluegills.

GRASS LAKE—Miss Helen McCall recently made a remarkable catch consisting of a tackle box which besides the usual fisherman's collection of baits, also had a two pound black bass inside. Upon investigating, it was found that a few days before this Rev. H. J. Salmon had caught a black bass and being afraid that it would flop out of the boat, threw it in his tackle box. No sooner had he done this than the fish gave a mighty flop and threw himself, tackle box and all in the lake. He easily was able to identify his box and let Helen keep the fish for returning the equipment. News.

His living quarters will be at the estate of Joseph Schlack, Newland and Eight-Mile roads, three and a half miles from the village. The bridge paths around Northville will be used by Louis for road work. The grandstand at the fairgrounds offers seating facilities for spectators from Northville and the outlying Detroit area to watch the training in process. Children In Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield

A Bootlegger Father

During the depression, a crippled and unemployed father made and sold "white mule" rather than see his home foreclosed and his family forced to accept charity. For a period of six months his income approximated twenty dollars a week. However, as soon as he was able to secure normal work he immediately gave up his unethical practice, because he did not want his children to be branded as having a bootlegger for a father.

Five years later, his sixteen-year-old son defiantly threatened his father that unless he ceased complaining about the boy remaining away from home at all hours of the night, he would report his father's former bootlegging activities to the police. Fortunately, the parent possessed the courage of his convictions and did not hesitate to frankly confess his own guilt to the authorities so that he could receive assistance in disciplining his son. When the judge observed the crippled father's sincerity, he remarked, "This court realizes that under certain conditions an individual is likely to do many things that he would not ordinarily do. While I do not admire the weakness you once displayed, I do respect the motive which prompted you to make this confession for the sake of your son. In admitting your error you have definitely proven that you hold your child's welfare above your own."

Nervous Parents Are Responsible for Having Nervous Children

"He is queer and nervous, Your Honor," a mother concluded as she sought to get her son released from a delinquency charge. "I should think he would be," the judge replied, "when you constantly remind him of the fact. But, the boy is no more nervous than you are."

It has long been a recognized fact that nervous parents usually beget nervous children. A mother who constantly worries herself and coddles a child, both physically and mentally, makes children believe that they are really nervous and delicate.

The average case of nerves will soon be cured if parents will reason with a child and remove the cause for his fear. Other cases have been cured after parents gave their children more independence of thought and action.

usual by criticism, pointed out that no afflicted child should suffer if each county does its job.

Auditor General Vernon J. Brown commended a movement in Flint by the Charles Stewart Mott foundation, cooperating with city and local medical societies, to open a clinic for treatment of indigent children. He said: "Much of the work that has been done in the past by the state can be done more economically locally."

What Cost Crime?

Social welfare workers are fond of quoting figures on the cost of courts, jails and mental hospitals.

Since all these agencies deal with the effect of behavior deviations, rather than the cause, the net result is to make the expense of preventive agencies seem small by comparison. After all, a tax dollar is a tax dollar, regardless how it is spent.

Here is the social welfare side of the story:

$3 jails, 1937-38	$1,165,216
Prisons and prisoners, 1936-37	3,001,500
Circuit judges, state police, etc.	1,267,316
State mental hospitals, patients	6,798,041
Handling juvenile delinquents, local and state	1,100,000
	$13,332,073

During the past three years, Michigan with a population of 5,079,400 for 1937 (state department of health) committed through its courts a total of 7,507 persons to state prisons. Of the 1,311 inmates in prisons Dec. 31, 1938, just 47 per cent were first-timers. Twenty per cent of prison population is Negro; 37 per cent of all prisoners are between 15 and 24 years of age. And yet, here is a golden lining in this dark picture: Commitments to prisons declined from 3,759 in 1931 to 2,726 in 1938.

Just when you are duly appalled, the social worker clinches the case with this appeal, which comes from the Michigan Child Guidance Institute at Ann Arbor: "Unless boards of supervisors and other local agencies take advantage of their authority (quoted above) many maladjusted children in urgent need of hospitalization will fail to receive adequate treatment. This will mean that instead of paying $100 or $200 for treatment in time, taxpayers will ultimately have to pay many times $100 to put such cases in jail, in prison or in the mental hospitals."

In case you're still statistically minded, Michigan taxpayers pay the following per capita costs: Jails, $196.78; prisons, $890.86, and mental hospitals, $320.21.

Prosecutors Pledge Action

A recent survey of crimes committed by minors was conducted by Michigan State police, and the result, according to Lieut. Harold F. Mulbar, disclosed "shocking figures."

In an appeal to prosecuting attorneys in annual conference at Mackinac Island, the police officer said: "The major part of crime in Michigan today is perpetrated by young men. They must have an outlet for excess energy, and boys' clubs and other boys' movements will go far to curb delinquency and direct their steps in the right path."

Oscar G. Olander, state police commissioner, proposes that community organizations in towns up to 4,000 population take the initiative in forming boys' clubs.

As juvenile delinquency is usually linked with liquor, Orrin A. DeMass, chairman of the state liquor control commission, put his finger on a vital point when he scolded the home officials: "The people of Michigan, wet or dry, are not going to continue to see 16 and 17 year old youngsters staggering out of these roadhouse dance halls that line our highways, blind drunk, driving 60 miles an hour, killing perhaps your mother or mine."

And again, as it often works out, home rule responsibility can check these abuses. Mr. DeMass reminded: "Local communities are prone to put the responsibility of such places in the lap of the commission, but don't forget that each one of those local communities issue dance hall permits which, if revoked, would put them out of business."

Sheriff on the Spot

That the local sheriff is directly responsible for law enforcement—not the prosecuting attorney, by the way, or other local officials—was a legal point where the late Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald sought refuge during the post-inauguration controversy over slot machines and other forms of gambling.

His successor, Gov. Luren D. Dickinson, made the same distinction when he instructed state police to investigate reported rioting in an automobile industrial center and to notify him if local officials were dodging their responsibility.

Prosecuting attorneys say that the remedy for disreputable liquor dives is to put the sheriff on the spot. Said William J. Miller, prosecutor of Delta county: "Call in your sheriff and other police agencies and tell them to clean house." A majority of the county prosecutors agreed that Miller's suggestion was sound. (And to this might be added one additional ingredient: Newspaper publicity. It was the latter, more than anything else, that restored the anti-gambling ban in Michigan this year.)

The prosecutors agreed that saloon

keepers, who sell liquor to minors, should be prosecuted for contributing to delinquency instead of letting the state commission deal out punishment in form of a revoked license. And yet sheriffs and prosecutors can go no farther than public opinion support them. To that extent, the ultimate responsibility rests with the men and women who go to the polls and who, during the other days between elections, are expected to exhibit some interest in good government through support of local officials.

Baby Otter, Badger and

Other Animals Like Play

Most playful of all wild creatures are otters, for even when full grown they cannot resist anything in the shape of a ball that floats. Baby badgers romp together, puffing out their fur until they look like black and white balls, then bouncing round and round on their short stiffened legs. A favorite game is for one to mount a fallen tree, and its companions to try to pull it down, relates Oliver G. Pike, F. Z. S., in London Tit-Bits Magazine.

Young polecats play a similar game, but are far more graceful. As they prance around, their slender backs are arched, and they look most attractive in their rich dark brown glossy fur. Badgers, polecats, stoats, and weasels have very little method in their play, unlike the organized games of the otter.

I doubt if anyone has ever detected play among fish, or seen lizards or snakes indulging in games. All these are cold blooded and are only active when the temperature is warm enough to give them an interest in life.

The play of foxes will often turn to tragedy so far as the farmer is concerned, for if they get among fowls they will kill one for food, then, like puppies, chase everything that moves. If the birds had the sense to keep still the fox might pass them by, but he will slaughter them by the dozen while they continue to run.

Question And Answer Dept.

Problem—If I lost $10 on a horse race, paid $2 to get into the race track grounds, and a race track tout asked me for $5, how much was I out? (Answer elsewhere in this department).

Ques.—What is a sombrero?
Ans.—"Sombrero" is Spanish for a kind of broad-brimmed hat, usually of felt, and very common in Mexico. It is worn extensively in the southwestern part of the United States by ranchers and cowboys.

Ques.—In what year did Halley's Comet appear to the earth, and will it ever appear again?
Ans.—Halley's Comet, the greatest of all comets known, made its appearance to the earth in May, 1910. It shot away into infinite space at the rate of 5,000 miles a second, traveling in a regular orbit which happens to encircle the earth. It will be visible here again in May, 1986. Its appearance here before 1910 was in May, 1834.

Ques.—When and where did civilization on earth begin?
Ans.—This is not known definitely. It is well founded that it reaches back far into remote antiquity—probably millions of not billions of years. As late as 5000 B. C., extensive excavations were made by the Greeks in Crete that revealed at that time of a prehistoric civilization existing before the Bronze Age—more than fifty million years ago. There are no records extant ante-dating 6000 B. C., except for excavations and discoveries.

Ques.—What was the Boer war in South Africa all about?
Ans.—The Boers of the Transvaal and Orange Free State declared war on Great Britain in 1900, the aim being the destruction of the British paramilitary in South Africa. The war was of short duration and resulted in the British annexing the two States above mentioned.

Answer to problem—Just $12—the tout's request was not needed.

Ques.—In point of age, who is the oldest member of the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball club? We wish to settle an argument.
Ans.—Paul Waner is the oldest member of the Pirates. He will be 37 years old next April.

Ques.—Will you kindly answer just what a "paradox" means? Thank you.
Ans.—A "paradox" is a statement or sentiment opposed to common sense, or seemingly self-contradictory, but which may be true in fact.

Ques.—In a baseball game the home team comes to bat in their half with the score tied—needing one run to win. The batter drives one over the wall with the bases loaded. Does he get credit for a home run, or just a single for scoring the runner on third?
Ans.—The batter gets credit for a home run, and the four runs count in the score, but all bases must be legally touched.

Ques.—What do you think of this? I've eaten meat all my life and I'm as strong as an ox.
Ans.—That's nothing. We know some people who have eaten fish all their lives and still they can't swim a stroke.

Soon after Easter a few students visited the Ann Arbor airport. D. S. Reynolds, secretary of the Ann Arbor Air Service, gave us liberally of his time to show us the workings of the airport. He offered to help us start an Aviation Club here.

The next Tuesday night we organized a club with thirteen members, electing Norman Garvelink of Lawton, president; Gilbert Baker of Dryden, secretary; and Thaddeus Grudzien of Quincy, treasurer. It was voted to have dues of ten cents a month and membership of twenty-five cents to buy material for models and aviation magazines and books. The club has grown to a present membership of forty. We have held meetings each Thursday evening, many times with Mr. Reynolds as our leader.

Trips have been taken to Ann Arbor Air Show, Jackson Air Show, Wayne county airport and the University of Michigan wind tunnel. Fifteen of our fellows have taken up flying lessons at the Ann Arbor airport with three who have had over three hours of actual flying time.

We have been helped financially to do this by Mr. Reynolds who gave us part time work at the airport to pay part of our course.

We are indebted for all this activity to Orin W. Kaye, State NYA Administrator and to D. L. Miller, Camp Director, who have

Brass Cabinet Hardware

In Seventeenth Century

Brass hardware appeared on English and American furniture toward the close of the Seventeenth century and heralded a definite break with the Tudor influence of which court cupboards, chests, and Bible boxes of richly carved and turned oak were typical. For these, turned wooden drawer knobs and iron chest handles and locks were eminently suited, writes Thomas Hamilton Ormsbee in American Collector.

When the cabinetmakers of England and the American colonies began to use walnut and other darker colored cabinet woods for their furniture, there was need for hardware that would provide a contrast. For as oak went out of fashion, so did the practice of painting carvings and turnings in red and black for decorative effect cease. Handles and keyhole escutcheons of polished brass were the logical and artistic solution to contrast with, first, the brown of walnut and the yellow of fancy-grained maple and, later, the red tone of mahogany.

Simultaneously with the need, in Birmingham, long a town that had ironworking as its chief industry, a group of men began to shift their activities to brass founding and to specialize in making drawer pulls, keyhole plates, chest handles, hinges and kindred items, generally known as cabinet hardware.

Honoring Veterans

The custom of firing three volleys over the grave of a deceased veteran is derived from the old Roman custom of casting earth over the coffin, calling the dead by name three times and then saying "Vale" three times. The word "vale" is the Latin word for farewell. The firing of three volleys is equivalent to saying farewell to the deceased.

Indians Collected Wild

Plums for Use in Winter

Before Columbus came to America the American Indians gathered the wild plum and dried it for winter. It seems to have been the only fruit growing on trees they used, though they ate many berries, seeds and nuts, relates Ruth Mosher Place in the Detroit News.

The wild plum may still be found in some sections. The fruit, small, sour and imperfect, is far removed from the modern product of the cultivated orchard. In one respect, the Indians and the most up-to-date grower meet on common ground. The plum curculio, pest of the plum tree, apparently destroyed the harvest at various times and damaged the fruit, then, as in later times.

A noted archeologist of Rochester discovered an interesting Seneca Indian painting, which shows Indian women picking and sorting plums. He discovered references to "the worm," always found at the center, which could be no other than the curculio in its larval stage.

In the wild, nature sets up a balance. The dreaded curculio of the orchard had plenty of other food about. New seedlings could grow up quickly. Perhaps some natural enemy of the insect held the pest in control. At any rate, investigations seem to prove that not only the delicious plum but the fatal curculio have come down to us together.

Northern Mammal Lived

In Oregon, Writer Says

Scientists say that one of the proboscidean families that lived in Oregon was the northern mammoth, a creature that must have been "seemingly out of place, even in the strange pleistocene world" of which primeval Oregon was a part, declares an authority in the Portland Oregonian.

The Columbian elephants, mighty creatures that rivaled in stature even the largest elephants of the present, lived in old Oregon in great herds, judging from the abundance of their fossils.

Also on the Oregon ranges, probably long before the mammoth and Columbia elephant appeared, was huge Elephas imperator, remains of which have been found at Fossil Lake and in the La Grande country. Imperator was an enormous creature, the largest of all elephants and probably the most ponderous animal ever to thunder over the pleistocene plains of Oregon. These animals were 13 1/2 feet at the shoulder.

The mammoth was apparently represented in Oregon by two species. One of these was so peculiar to the Oregon country that it was named Mammut oregonense. Mammoth remains have been found in many parts of the state, especially in the coast counties and in the Willamette valley.

Tenderizing Steak

Instead of pounding a piece of tough steak to make it tender, you may soon be able to make the toughest cut off the bottom as succulent as tenderloin by subjecting it to the action of ultra-violet rays. This method, recently developed at the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research after three years of study, involves also subjecting the meat to temperatures between 60 and 85 degrees Fahrenheit.

Origin of Fishing Reels

The origin of the reel is more or less shrouded in mystery and although it was known to the Chinese, Egyptians and Macedonians, there is probably no record of its having been known to the ancients. The earliest description of a reel occurs in "The Art of Angling," by T. Barker, in 1651. The earliest picture figures in his enlarged edition of 1657. It was obviously invented some time between 1498 ("The Boke of St. Albans") where we are expressly told to "dubbe the lyne and frett it fast in y-toppe with a bowe to fasten on your lyne," and 1651, when Barker mentions the wind (which was set in a hole two feet or so from the bottom of the rod) as a device employed by a namesake of his own.

LIBRARY NEWS

Perhaps W. Somerset Maugham had you in mind when he decided to make a collection of short stories. From childhood to adult status, human beings will love the story either told or written. "It is natural for men to tell tales, and I suppose the short story began in the night of time when the hunter, to beguile the leisure of his fellows when they had eaten and drunk their fill, narrated by the cavern fire some marvelous incident of which he had heard. In cities of the East you can to this day see the storyteller sitting in the market place, surrounded by a circle of eager listeners, and hear him tell the tales he has inherited from the past."

Mr. Maugham in his anthology of the short story has gathered what he considers to be one hundred masterpieces from United States, England, France, Russia and Germany. These particular stories may not be the same that you may have chosen, but they have interested him most because they share his prejudices and his interests.

"The Tellers of Tales" by W. Somerset Maugham will give you these remarkable bits of literature that have been written during the past century. From England come stories by Christopher Isherwood and Sir Walter Scott; as well as Kipling, Hardy, Saki, Wodehouse and Joyce. American authors range from Hemingway, Caldwell to Washington Irving. From France, Balzac, and Flaubert. The great Russian authors are included, with the work of the little-known moderns. It is a book in which you may find your particular interests in certain pages and one to which you will return for material of interest and value to the reader of the short story.

Further books recently added are: "Skylark"—Raphaelson. "William Room"—Rosman. "Being Little in Cambridge when Everyone Else Was Big"—Abbott. "Tomorrow's Promise"—Bailey. "Glorious Adventure"—Halliburton. This latter book was the first to be written by Richard Halliburton whom you will recall as having recently been lost in a Chinese junk while seeking further adventure to be given to the reading public in book form. If you enjoyed the Odyssey and the Adventures of Ulysses, you will follow the same trail in "The Glorious Adventure"—along the hazardous shores of the Aegean Sea, the experience of swimming the Hellespont, the heights of Vesuvius and the glories of the Blue Grotto in whose depths the pen of the author was dipped and emerged, streaming with color and vibrant with life to be transmitted to the page for the benefit of those less fortunate in such picturesque travel.

You will love his chatty style and revel in the human element that trickles through its pages and wait eagerly for his next book because Halliburton's "Glorious Adventure" promotes that patience for further travel.

Lost Mine Is Still Sought

The famous "Lost mine" of Randolph is still hunted by dreamers of Randolph county, North Carolina. A Pennsylvania prospector took a fortune out of the mine over 160 years ago, but his heirs were unable to locate the mine and it is still awaiting some energetic digger.

George Washington's Wealth

George Washington was one of the wealthiest men in the country, owning 70,000 acres of land in Virginia and 40,000 acres in the near West, which congress gave him for his military service. His estate was valued at what would now exceed $5,000,000.

Wax for Comfort

If you want your guests to feel perfectly at ease when you are serving drinks be sure that the tops of your occasional tables which are not of plate glass have a generous coating of wax. The wax will prevent wet glasses from making rings on the wood and if the table has an enamel top will save the surface.

Hankies Match Lipsticks

Chic New Yorkers are matching their handkerchiefs to the color of their lipsticks these days. A leading cosmetics house is featuring French sheer handkerchiefs in shades dyed to match the colors of lipsticks. The handkerchiefs may be had both in regular and sports size.

Woodbine Willie

Reverend G. A. Studdert-Kennedy was the English clergyman who became popularly known during the World War as "Woodbine Willie." After the war he was appointed chaplain to the king and was made rector of St. Edmund King and Martyr, London. He visited the United States in 1924. Among his writings are "Rough Rhymes of a Padre," "Lies I Believe" and "Food for the Fed-up." He died in 1929.

Bleak Finland Celebrates

Flower Day Each Spring

It is so common to think of Finland as a bleak and barren land of the north that many visitors are greatly surprised to find Flower day, May 13, one of the most popular of Finnish holidays. It is a day when all Helsinki turns out to celebrate and the city is literally covered with thousands of geraniums, hydrangeas, fuchsias, pansies, violets and poppies. Housewives fill their windows with flower pots and hang wreaths of brightly colored blossoms over their doors, while the university students and school children hold processions and singing festivals, all marked by lavish floral decorations.

The day is historically the anniversary of the Finnish national anthem's first public performance, so that choral singing, for which the Finns are as famous as for their running, plays a big part in the celebration. The anthem is nearly a hundred years old now, and is dear to the heart of every Finn. Its words tell of the indomitable spirit of Finland in overcoming her natural poverty:

"Our land is poor, as all can tell, For those who seek but gold."

The visitor is bound to admit that if the country has little gold in its hills it suffers from no lack of golden buttercups, marigold, and nasturtiums upon their surfaces. For in addition to the boatloads of cultivated cut flowers which are sold any spring or summer morning in the famous marketplace in Helsinki, the rural fields and woods are full of gay wild blossoms from May till August.

It is a curious fact that with all his love for flowers of every kind the modern Finn seldom sends any at all to a funeral. A movement has been under way for several years which provides a home for the aged from contributions made by those who, instead of buying flowers for a funeral, send their money to the foundation in charge of the project.

Assails Eyebrow-Shaving

As Detrimental to Vision

Don't shave your eyebrows, ladies, if you would see better as well as look better. This bit of beauty advice is offered by no less an authority than Mr. Perc Westmore, famous Hollywood make-up expert. According to Mr. Westmore, when too much of the eyebrow is plucked away, the eye is deprived of one method of protection against excess light from the sun or artificial illumination. It is thus more subject to eyestrain and defective sight due to glare.

It is interesting to note the number of protective devices which have been provided for the eyes, observes Better Vision institute. The efficiency of each is nature's way of proving the importance of our seeing apparatus. For example, the eye, seeing an object approaching, closes almost instantaneously. Then, too, nature has provided the deep, bony socket into which the eye is fitted and the covering of lashes and eyebrows to protect the precious organ. Other forms of nervous protective development are the extreme sensitiveness of the surface of the eyeball and the expansion and contraction of the pupil in order to control the amount of light entering the eye.

Tall Tales

As told to: ELMO FRANK E. and SCOTT HAGAN WATSON

Massachusetts Melons

THE visitor from Georgia motoring through the Berkshires of Massachusetts looked rather scornfully at the crops in the fields among the road.

"Why, I don't see any melons up here," he said to the farmer leaning on the fence. "Can't you raise them?"

"No, we don't seem to have any luck with melons," replied the Yankee. "I tried to raise some a while back—tried it year after year, but I couldn't ever get a good crop somehow. The trouble was that the soil was just too rich for 'em."

"I'd plant my seeds, the vines would start growing, the blossoms would come out, and then they'd set and the melons would begin to form. Then the sun would get hotter and the nights would sprinkle our Berkshire dew on 'em. And that dew, I tell you, acts like magic, it makes things grow so. But I never could get any melons, though."

"Is that so?" exclaimed the Southerner. "Why couldn't you?"

"Well, I tell you," answered the son of the Berkshires. "Those vines just, naturally, grew so fast they dragged the melons all over the field. They just plumb were 'em out before they had a chance to set ripe. So I just had to give up tryin' to raise melons."

Danse Macabre

The black-and-white spotted Japanese Waltzing Mouse, which whirls around in a wild dance at night with few intervals of quiet, does not dance for joy. Most medical authorities agree that its disposition to waltz is due to a deformity of the brain that has become established in the breed and is transmitted from generation to generation.

Collegians Increase

America has about 7,400 college students per 1,000,000 population, according to an educational survey. In 1900, the ratio was approximately 1,400 per collegians per 1,000,000.

Banff Springs Golf Legend

Indian legend placed a bad-tempered Manitou in the lake that lies between tee and green on the short eighth hole of the Banff Springs golf course, in the Canadian Rockies. The golfer's version is that the Manitou exacts the first ball he drives as a tribute. The hole is known as the Devil's Cauldron and the nearest anyone has ever come to making an ace on it was five years ago when Donald Deyell, then chief clerk at the hotel, plunked his first drive into the lake and rolled the second into the cup. The Manitou is supposed to have laughed.

Use of Colored Glasses

May Be Habit Forming

Many colored eyeglasses are habit forming and should be used only on professional prescription, particularly by children. Few adults and fewer children have "supersensitive" eyes; normal eyes need the protection of tinted glasses only in extreme glaring sunlight, as when fishing, mountain climbing, or driving over long stretches of white pavement. Free wearing of colored glasses is liable to render eyes abnormally sensitive, and dependent upon artificial protection. Other vacation hints: Avoiding crowded bathing beaches may also avoid infantile paralysis and other dread diseases. Summer can be harder on children than winter, early sunrise and extended evenings making their active hours unduly long. Children often lose weight in summer, and reach school time browned but nervous, and far from rested. Special care is needed to see that they have adequate sleep; nine hours per night should be a minimum. Summer meals should be planned to assure the children their necessary milk, eggs, fish, etc., which they need to a much greater degree than desk-working adults.

Rain That Does Not Fall
The United States weather bureau says: "The phenomenon which has the appearance of falling rain but does not reach the ground, is a common one, especially over arid regions. The rain actually falls from the clouds, but the air between the cloud and the earth has such a low relative humidity that the rain is completely evaporated before it reaches the ground. In meteorological literature this type of precipitation is referred to as 'virga.'"

Ancient Cathedrals Link To Architecture's Past

Throughout Europe during medieval times there flourished the golden age of architecture. This had its noblest expression in splendid churches and cathedrals that were designed by master architects and executed by skillful builders, relates John A. Menaugh in the Chicago Tribune.

Many of these magnificent ecclesiastical structures were razed later as the result of the barbarity of war or the jealousy and hate of kings, but fortunately many others remain, their classic and perennial beauty a priceless link to the far past.

The great cathedral of Orleans was demolished 400 years ago. In more recent times the cathedrals of Cambrai, Arras, and Avanches, the marvelous Romanesque church of Cluny, and other historical structures were torn down. But standing are countless edifices in France, Italy, Germany, Spain, England, and elsewhere that tell the glories of that golden age.

It was about A. D. 1000 that architecture throughout central and western Europe enjoyed a spirited rejuvenation. The famous builders of that time began creating structures in a style based upon the earlier Roman, but modified in various countries and regions by national and local influence. The style thus developed came to be known as Romanesque, the term itself meaning a resemblance to the Roman. It incorporated in addition some of the best features of the more easterly architectures, including the Greek and the Byzantine.

For about a century and a half Romanesque architecture held sway in Europe. Then it was almost completely discarded in favor of the Gothic, although in modern times there has been a revival of some of its most pleasing features.

Starfish Digests Food By 'Reverse' Process

The starfish reverses the usual gustatory and digestive procedure of fish and even humans, since instead of taking food into his stomach, he wraps his stomach around the food and digests it. When he gets through eating, he pulls his stomach back into his body and starts looking for another meal. Incidentally, oysters are his favorite meat.

"When a starfish finds a cluster of oysters, he wraps himself around it, with his star-like legs clutching the base of the cluster and the underside of his body, where his stomach is located, next to the tip of the oyster," said Dr. H. F. Prytherch, director of the United States biological laboratory on Plover's island, North Carolina. "The starfish then exudes a fluid that has the effect of anesthetizing the oyster so that the main muscle will relax and the shell open."

"After the anesthetic takes effect and the shell opens, the starfish then pushes his stomach out of his own body, into the oyster shell and around the oyster, leaving it there until he has digested it completely. Then he repeats the process on another oyster."

In the northern oyster beds, and down as far as Chesapeake bay, starfish are among the worst enemies of the oystermen and eat up more than $1,000,000 worth of oysters a year, according to Dr. Prytherch. But starfish are not very numerous as yet in North Carolina waters and oyster beds, so that they are not yet doing much damage. Dr. Prytherch is trying to work out a method of getting rid of starfish without injuring the oysters.

To show how voracious starfish are and the rate at which they eat oysters, Dr. Prytherch has had nine starfish in a laboratory tank for slightly more than four months, during which time they have opened and digested more than 1,400 oysters.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

AN EXPERIMENT IN HORSE-FEEDING

THERE'S an old story I have always liked. It is about the parsimonious Frenchman who rued the money he spent in feeding his horse.

After scheming and planning he hit upon an idea which would enable him to stop all that.

It was beautifully simple: Each day he would gradually cut down the amount of feed he gave the horse. He would cut it down so gradually, in fact, that the animal wouldn't ever realize he was being cheated.

The horse would thus become used to getting along on less. Eventually he would need no feed at all. Think of the money that would save!

The French genius scientifically set about carrying on the experiment. Several months later he was telling about it with pride in his voice. "Did it work?" asked a friend. "Work? Oh, yes, indeed, it did!" he exclaimed. "It worked perfectly." Beautifully. The only trouble was that just about the time his horse got used to going without feed, he died.

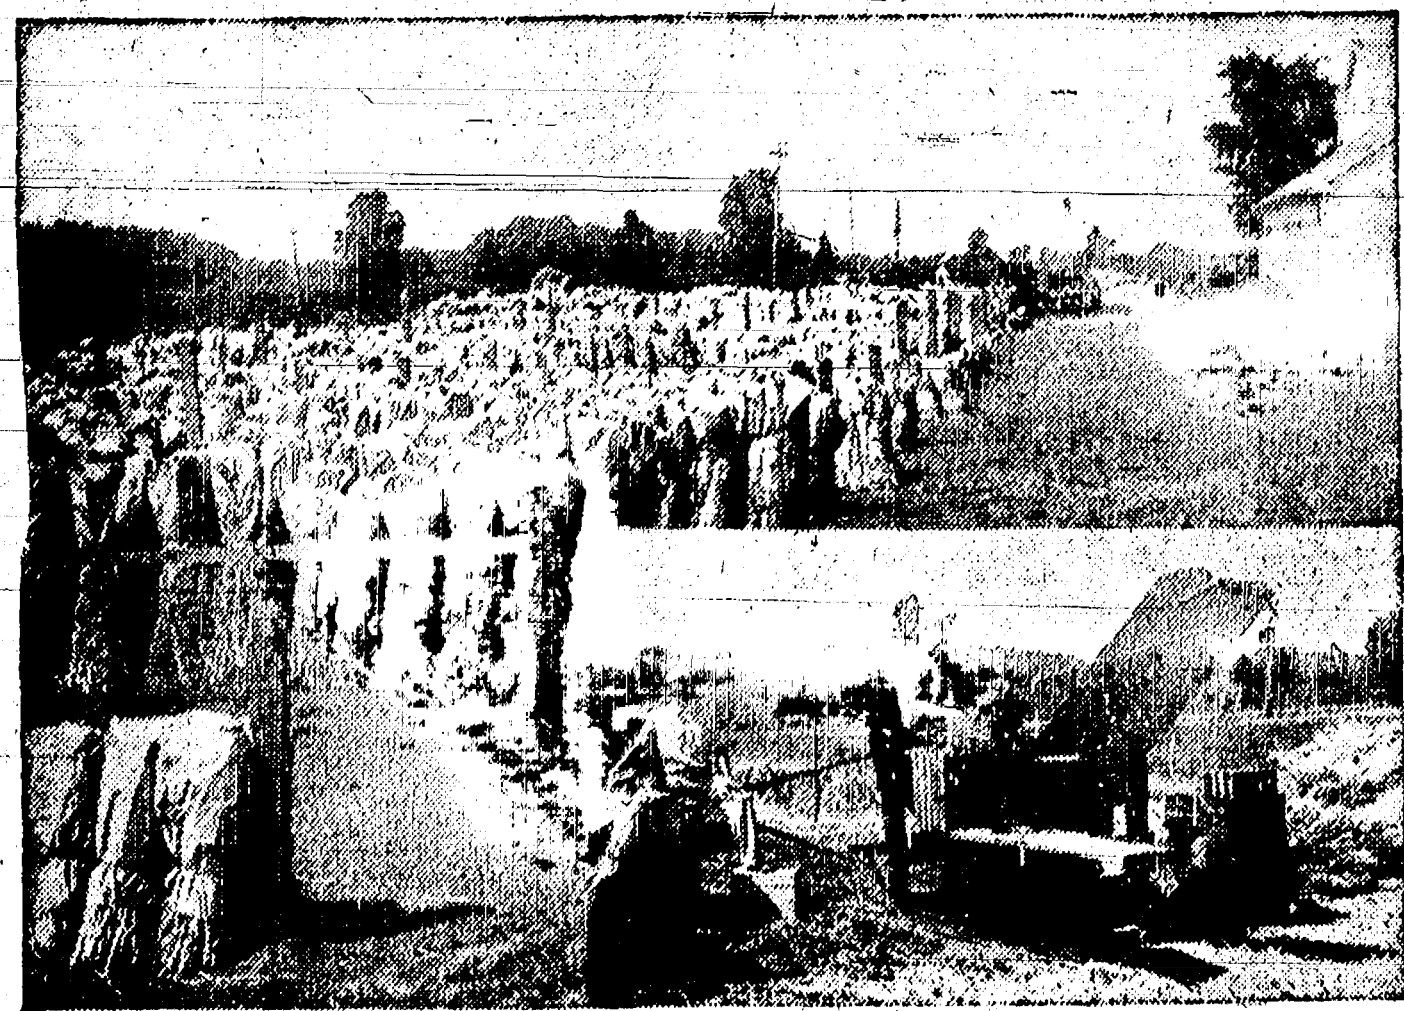

We laugh at the benighted condition of a man with an idea as foolish as this, but many business men try to stop feeding their business "horse" by eliminating or cutting down on their advertising.

The fact is that advertising is the feed which keeps their business in

CREW THRESHES 8,000 M. S. C. GRAIN SAMPLES

Only eight acres of grain are represented in these samples but it requires about three weeks of a crew's time to put them through the special thresher constructed five years ago by Michigan State College plant breeders.

Nearly eight thousand small test plot bundles of grain are having their heads cut off and threshed this month on the experimental farm of Michigan State College, with the use of a small machine built five years ago under direction of the experiment station plant breeders.

The work involves harvest from more than a thousand small plots designed to test the merits and breeding work with oats, wheat, barley, rye, emmer and spelt.

During the fall and winter the threshed samples will be weighed and examined to determine if they will be of any service to Michigan agriculture. Some may replace present grain breeding favorites, for the work represents up to 20 years of effort on some of the strains and varieties.

E. E. Down, plant breeder, has about 300 oat plot yields, James W. Thayer Jr. has about 350 barley plot yields which occupied about 2 1/2 acres. Hubert M. Brown has 250 wheat samples grown on about two acres of test plots, as well as those he grew in
