Main Street Will Be Surfaced With Asphalt

According to information received by village officials this week the State Highway Department will bring equipment and a crew of men to Chelsea next week and will surface the Main street pavement with asphalt.

In the meantime local authorities will have the pavement repaired in preparation for the asphalt coating. Cracks will be filled and the pavement will be leveled where necessary. The street will be surfaced from Van Buren to the Michigan Central railroad, and an effort will be made to have the cement pavement on Park, and East and West Middle streets surfaced while the crew is here.

It is estimated that the work will be completed in less than two days.

EXHIBITED SHEEP 56 YEARS AGO

L. B. Lawrence, who has been a life-long resident of this community, and who has been active in breeding of fine sheep, reports that he exhibited Merino sheep at the State Fair in Detroit 56 years ago, taking first prize on a pair of Merino ewes. He was the youngest sheep exhibitor at the fair and the fair society paid his expenses. In 1881, at the age of 20, Mr. Lawrence started raising sheep on his grandfather's farm, known as the Fish farm, in Sharon township. He also bought sheep from neighboring farmers, shipping to southern markets. He made 18 trips to Menard and San Angelo, Texas, and three trips to New Mexico. For 25 years he exhibited at the State Fair and never missed taking a prize. For four years he was a judge at the fair. In 1905 he won grand championship on Rambouillet sheep. Mr. Lawrence continued in the sheep business until 1935, when he was injured in an automobile accident.

Highlights Of State's Uniform Traffic Laws

Editor's Note: These are the seventh and eighth of a series of ten articles, prepared by the Michigan State Police, high-spotting Michigan's new traffic law which becomes effective on September 29. Important changes have been made in customary driving habits. Greater safety—and fewer traffic arrests—will result from close study of these articles.

Stop Signs

The section of Michigan's new traffic law relative to observance of the stop sign is precise. Much of the hope of a reduced accident toll through enforcement of the act centers in strict adherence to provisions of the act concerning safety stops.

In the past there was some confusion about stopping at a stop sign. The sign has only one meaning under the new act—and that is to STOP. It is a violation to coast through such a sign into an intersection. Michigan State Police, in their enforcement orders, define a "stop" as "bringing all four wheels to a complete stop."

Stops should be made about opposite the sign. Where there are crosswalks, the stop should be made before reaching such crosswalks. In every case the stop should be made before reaching the traveled portion of the crosswalk.

Although all trunkline highways are through highways, traffic on them may, at certain locations, be required to stop. Usually such locations are at points where two trunklines intersect.

Since motorists on the through routes expect those on the cross roads to stop they too should stop when driving on the cross roads.

Stop signs are octagonal in shape, painted yellow and are located near intersections.

Parking

Parking is prohibited in fifteen specified places by Michigan's new traffic law. Most important among these: Parking is not permitted within 20 feet of a crosswalk; there is to be no parking within 30 feet upon the approach of any flashing beacon, stop sign or traffic signal; prohibited also is parking within 50 feet of the nearest rail of a railroad crossing; upon any bridge or other elevated structure upon a highway or at any place where official signs prohibit stopping.

These rules on parking are not arbitrary rules but are designed to eliminate practices which are unsafe and which accident records of the Michigan State Police show to be causes of accidents.

Double parking is specifically prohibited. It is unlawful to park within 500 feet of the scene of an accident at which police officers are in attendance when the scene of such accident is outside the limits of a city.

Vehicles must park parallel to the right-hand curb and with the right side of the vehicle within 12 inches of the curb.

Outside of cities and villages, vehicles shall not park on the main traveled portion of the highway.

RASP-EPLER WEDDING

The marriage of Miss Phyllis May Rasp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Rasp of Elkhart, Indiana, and Andrew C. Eppler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Eppler of Chelsea, took place Saturday afternoon, September 23, at the home of the bride's parents.

The ring ceremony was performed at 3 o'clock and the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white with a tulle veil and her shower bouquet of pink and white roses was tied with white satin ribbons. The couple was unattended.

A reception followed the ceremony. The wedding cake was centered with a miniature bride and groom and the ice cream was in the form of gardenias.

The bride, who is a graduate of Elkhart high school and Hillsdale College, has been employed as stenographer at Miles Laboratory, Elkhart. The groom graduated from Chelsea high school, afterward receiving his B. A. degree from Hillsdale College. He is instructor of special education at Western high school, Battle Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Eppler are residing at the Kellogg Inn Apts., Battle Creek.

Committee Named By County Health Group

Seeking to protect the health of every person in this community by making Washtenaw county a healthier place in which to live, a county-wide committee has been organized to work for the establishment of a county health department. The chairman is Dr. J. S. DeTar of Milan, Mrs. Malcolm-Blakely of Dexter is secretary, and Rev. Frederick Leach of Ann Arbor is treasurer.

Committee members for this region are as follows: Mrs. E. W. Eaton, chairman; Mrs. W. R. Daniels, Mrs. Wilbur Hinderer, Mrs. J. V. Burg, Mrs. C. Dietle, Mrs. P. C. Maroney, Mrs. Otto Hinderer, Mrs. Leroy Mayer, Mrs. N. Morkel, Mrs. Homer Grove, Mrs. Ray Barber, Mrs. Lyle Christwell, Mrs. James Munro, Mrs. Carl Mayer, Mrs. Elmer Schiller, Mrs. Eugene Garvey, Mrs. E. Guenther, Mrs. Homer Stoffer, Mrs. Don Miller, Mrs. Albert Schweinfurth, Mrs. A. W. Wilkison, Mrs. E. H. McKernan, Miss Bertha Spaulding, Mrs. Merle Barr.

According to the committee, public health work has been well organized in cities for such a long time that they are now healthier places in which to live than rural areas. The organization of a county health department in Washtenaw county would give the rural areas the benefits which city departments have achieved such as preventing the unnecessary deaths of mothers at child birth, preventing the spread of such diseases as infantile paralysis, tuberculosis, small pox, scarlet fever, and diphtheria, and preventing many deaths of infants in the first month of their lives.

Washtenaw county is far behind most of the counties in the state in taking care of health problems, says the committee, since 60 of the 83 counties in Michigan have already established health departments.

In explaining the operation of a county health department, the committee states that the department does not engage in the practice of medicine.

Fishing License Fund To Help Purchase Land

Purchase of lands that will assure continued public access to Michigan's best-stocked lakes and streams will be brought a step nearer September 29 when the new inland fish bill, with seven other acts of the 1939 legislature regulating fishing, becomes law. Forty cents of each $1 general rod license which resident fishermen will need after January 1 is earmarked for land purchase, for improvement of lakes and streams and for fisheries research. Plans are now being developed for the purchase of such lands which will consider every section of the state.

The wife of the holder of the new resident's license may fish on her husband's license, but wives of non-resident anglers must secure 50-cent licenses in addition to the $2 season or $4 10-day licenses of their husbands. By a separate act and conservation commission action, non-residents are barred from ice fishing in Branch, Cass, Berrien, Van Buren and St. Joseph counties from January 1 to trout season opening.

Agents other than officers of the conservation department and persons who receive a regular salary from any political subdivision of the state will retain five cents of the fee for each license issued, under the new law. Wholesale minnow dealers will need a $25 license, though for retail minnow dealers the license continues at $3 as at present.

Among the specific changes which become effective January 1 is the fixing of the lake trout catch at five per day, the whitefish catch at seven. Creel limit on smallmouth bass will be raised from five to 10 when taken from the Great Lakes. Bluegills and sunfish may not be taken through the ice between 6 p. m. and 6 a. m. In the lower peninsula the closed season on pike lakes has been extended 15 days and the spearing season has been extended from a month to six weeks. Regulations governing the use of turtle traps have been tightened. Turtle trappers must have fishing licenses, must attach name tags to their traps and must inform the local conservation officer where they are placing them.

Spearing is banned on Houghton Lake, Roscommon county.

Not Affect Farmers

Lansing—No new regulations are placed upon the farmer by the four laws affecting agriculture that became effective during the week, according to Agricultural Commissioner Elmer A. Beamer. The new laws, designed for the protection of the producer and the improvement of marketing conditions, provide for the grading of eggs, the issuance of warehouse receipts for storage of farm produce, control of overrun in dairying plants and truth in use of breed names in the advertising of milk.

Of the new laws, the warehouse or farm produce storage act is considered the most drastic. This law provides for the licensing of all warehousemen engaged in the handling of beans, potatoes, grains and seeds for storage, with complete provisions against loss to the farmer. The warehouse receipts must contain, under the law, information regarding the location of the warehouse; statement whether the farm produce will be delivered to bearer, to a specified person, or to a specified person on his order; the date of issuance of receipt; the rate of storage charges; the net weight and percentage of dockage together with grade established; the words, "not negotiable," or "negotiable"; the signature of the warehouseman; declaration of the ownership of the farm produce; statement of the amount of advance and statement as to whether the farm produce is to be stored separately or co-mingled as fungible goods.

The egg law is so designed to eliminate false advertising of eggs, making it mandatory that eggs advertised as "strictly fresh" be of Grade A quality, and requires the grading of all eggs containing more than 20 per cent Grade C eggs. Checks and dirty eggs must be so marked before resale, and all eggs must be marked as to size. It is the opinion that through the provisions of the egg law that consumer confidence may be restored, improving egg market.

The law pertaining to percentage of overrun in butter manufacture interprets excessive overrun as evidence of erroneous testing of milk and cream for butter fat content. This legislation is intended to promote true tests, with reports being filed monthly with the Department of Agriculture.

Dairies and creameries are restricted in the other act in the use of such breed names as Guernsey, Jersey and Holstein in the advertising of milk. The milk so advertised must be produced by herds of cattle which predominantly is of the breed name featured in advertising.

Spiegelberg of Chelsea.

Aristotle Knew Birds

Aristotle was one of the first men to discuss bird migration. He made many true statements regarding migration, but also sponsored some superstitions that persisted for centuries. He believed, for instance, that certain birds hibernated during cold weather, because he was unable to explain their disappearance and reappearance in any other way.

Committee Named By

but has the function of preventing disease, prolonging life, and promoting good health. This work is carried on by a staff of trained workers headed by a director who is a physician trained in public health matters. In addition to the director, there are specially trained public health nurses, sanitary inspectors, and clerks.

Through the establishment of a county health department, Washtenaw county in the view of the committee could look for the following benefits:

1. A reduction in the number of cases of common communicable diseases such as whooping cough, scarlet fever, and smallpox.
2. A reduction in the number of cases of tuberculosis with an ultimate saving to the county in the cost of hospitalization.
3. The protection of the public against the insanitary handling of food, water, and milk.
4. A demonstrable reduction in both infant and maternal deaths.
5. An improvement in the physical condition and sanitation of school plants.
6. A reduction in the incidence and spread of venereal disease.

The committee points out that a total of $25,000 to $30,000 per year would provide a fair budget for a health department—amounting to about 40 cents per person a year. To help meet these costs, the state will give $3,000 annually to the county and the federal government will provide $4,500 a year. In addition, the Children's Fund has offered $8,000 annually to the county to aid in establishing a county health department.

The additional $15,000 which would have to be provided by the county is a small amount, in the opinion of the committee, to pay for the saving of suffering and lives which would result from the establishment of a county health department.

Our Neighbors

STOCKBRIDGE—Shortly after noon Monday, Deputy Sheriff Boyce received a call from Munnith to the effect that the elevator there had been robbed of $100 in bills, while the proprietor was out to lunch, and that two suspicious characters, a negro and a white man were seen to board the noon freight coming this way. On arrival of the freight, Mr. Boyce arrested the two men under suspicion and locked them up here. The men were searched, but appeared to have no money. However the state police returned them to Jackson pending further investigation.—Brief-Sun.

DEXTER—Friday, Bud Wiley and Harry St. Louis had an involuntary wetting when their boat on Peat Lake took in so much water that it sank. Due to the condition of the banks of this lake, it was impossible for one in the lake to land. The two boys were submerged for over an hour up to their necks until their frantic signals were heeded. Then a boat was obtained, carted to the lake and the rescue performed. The community is exceedingly thankful that this misadventure did not terminate in a tragedy.—Leader.

SOUTH LYON—Acute alcoholism is given as the cause of eleven dead cows at the Alfred Schoenenberger (Martindale) farm, on Grand River road, west of New Hudson. Last Friday the Schoenenbergers' herd of over 30 head of high grade cattle was turned out into a field of sweet corn. Saturday morning when the farm hands went to the barn to do the milking they found that several of the animals were desperately ill, in fact practically all were sick. At night, nine of the animals were dead. Sunday another died, and Tuesday another, making the total eleven. The Schoenenbergers sell sweet corn and thus grow much of it, of various plantings. The cows had been turned out in it before with no ill effects, and just why the result was so disastrous the last time cannot be explained unless perhaps the corn was at a different stage, and there may have been more ears—the milk stage is said to be the most dangerous.—Herald.

Last Season's Deer Kill
Tops Previous Record

Deer hunters who go into Michigan woods next November will be shooting at a big target—the record kill of deer reported for the 1938 season.

Completed data of the game division of the Michigan Department of Conservation, compiled from compulsory reports returned by hunters, show a total kill of 162,301 hunters of 44,800 bucks.

The total exceeds by 2,865 the greatest previous kill, 42,444 during the 1936 season. It was in that year an additional 18 counties in the lower peninsula were opened to deer hunters and reports of success or failure were made compulsory.

As has been the case each year since 1931, when first tabulations of hunter success were made, the percentage of hunters who were successful was highest in the upper peninsula. Forty-three of each one hundred hunters above the Straits got their bucks while the percentage for the lower peninsula was 23. However, number of hunters per square mile below the Straits was 6.8 as compared with 2.57 above. Deer killed per square mile was 1.09 for the upper peninsula, 1.45 below the Straits. Hunters so far reporting their success over the state during the 1938-39 rabbit season accounted for 2,496,844 animals. The reported take of snowshoe hares was 512,917. The pheasant take totaled 921,018; prairie chicken, 27,271; ruffed grouse, 316,787; sharp-tailed grouse, 9,769. The raccoon kill was 33,442 by hunting and 6,501 by trapping.

Children In Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield

The Nagging Father

For several months a father made daily references to the occasion when his daughter had possessed herself of a small amount of change from a relative. It is little wonder that this girl continued her "light-fingered" practice. She gradually began to look upon her father with constantly decreased respect and concluded that he was just an ordinary "crank". In a short time she formed a subconscious desire to do anything that would irritate her father and gained a secret pleasure in thwarting his wishes.

As human beings learn by the trial and error method, it is not unusual for a child, caught in the act of committing a minor misdeed, to reform before actually making a serious mistake. This would have been the result in the foregoing instance if the father had used a different method in stressing the point that he wished to impress upon his daughter.

Joining the Circus

A small boy who ran away with a circus was returned to his home by the probation officer for the third time. This child had a good home which supplied every comfort. The fascination and adventure of the circus, however, proved to be a temptation which he could not resist. Since punishment had failed, more adequate remedial measures were necessary. When it was discovered that this boy's ambition was to become a tight rope walker, the judge urged his parents to provide him with the required tight rope apparatus that would completely satisfy his desire.

Nearly every boy goes through the period of becoming interested, heart and soul, in some hazardous profession—from policeman to aviator. Taking a humorous attitude toward him only aggravates the situation. He should be given every encouragement in following out his latest hobby, because in a few months' time it will probably fail to hold his interest.

Samland in Germany

Samland, not Uncle Sam land, is in Germany, and welcomes large numbers of Americans every year to the famous "Amber Coast" of the Baltic and the dundlands nearby.

Car Taxes
The average motor vehicle operator in the United States last year paid special automobile taxes aggregating $49.06, or 24 1/4 per cent on the value of his $200 car, figures compiled by the American Petroleum Industries committee from official sources show. The total figure looks like the war debt—$1,386,156, 907.

Iceland Climate
The names "Iceland" and "Greenland" are somewhat misleading. Science News Letter points out. While Iceland boasts only 5,500 square miles of glacier, the last named region has only a narrow fringe of green at any time and that for but a few months out of the year.

War Has Stimulating Influence On Markets

By Gene Alleman

Lansing—The World War No. 2 is already having a stimulating effect on Michigan industry and agriculture.

Again is appearing the familiar shadow of 1914-1918 when Europe's internal jealousies brewed a war boom, in the United States.

"War profits" were reflected in newspaper headlines. The Associated Press reported that Michigan's tool and die plants were rapidly going on a 24-hour daily production schedule, as orders poured in from Washington for preparedness aircraft output needed to back up our neutrality stand. Residents of Lansing were assured that the city's industrial system was in a better position to receive benefits from war munition orders than in 1914-1918.

"To its upstate readers the conservative Detroit Free Press carried a top headline on a front page: 'State farmers profit millions in war markets.'"

At the capital city Governor Luren D. Dickinson diverted from his usual "sin-dancing-drinking" statements to declare that America's first duty was to keep out of war and he urged strict observance of President Roosevelt's neutrality proclamation as defined by Congress.

War Profits

Much as the average Michigan citizen did not like the prospect of personal profit at the price of bloodshed overseas, he nevertheless read with relish the news of a pending war boom.

As steel stocks rose almost daily and steel plants hurried to speed production, lake shipping concerns announced that more ore-carrying vessels were being pressed into service. Early in August, one month before Hitler issued his invasion order, traffic through the American locks at Sault Ste. Marie was 42 per cent ahead of last year.

In the Upper Peninsula's Copper and Iron country, workers looked forward to the prospect of a busy fall and winter season. Copper prices climbed. So did iron prices. Old-timers recalled the prosperous days during World War No. 1.

Upstate farmers were told that the war boom in commodity prices would put $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 into their pockets for the 1939 crops.

"War profits" to Michigan farmers meant a hope of clearing away without losses the largest stored surpluses in nearly ten years as of last January 1: Oats, 71 per cent of the 1938 crop; corn crop, 76 per cent; and wheat, 64 per cent.

Hog prices were soaring. The consumers' premature rush for sugar boosted prices nearly 50 per cent in a few days. Mayor Richard W. Reading of Detroit protested; Attorney General Frank Murphy rumbled about possible G-men investigations; Attorney General Thomas Read at Lansing declared that a price-fixing "conspiracy" among retailers would bring instant prosecution by the state. He added, significantly, that "the present crisis may succeed in doing that which numerous 'isms' have failed to do" for Michigan farmers.

Crops Improving

While mid-summer weather was approaching drought proportions, Michigan farmers entered September with crop growing conditions 4 per cent above August and 1 per cent above a year ago. The federal-state crop reporting service said that 1939 crops would be well above 10-year averages.

And that news, coupled with the reaction that surpluses were still on hand, was immediately linked to headlines of rising commodity prices, due to the war.

Known to agricultural experts for a long time through Republican and Democratic administrations was the fact that farm prices have lagged in parity with manufactured goods. The AAA and soil conservation programs were aimed to effect an artificial remedy. As Attorney General Read observed, war profits may do for the grower what government planning had not fully accomplished.

Problem of Neutrality

Into the new picture of war profits was injected the issue of national neutrality and how it might be best maintained.

Michigan's senior United States senator, Arthur Vandenberg, announced that he would vigorously oppose any revision of the present neutrality act to permit "cash and carry" purchases of American munitions.

Vandenberg is the state republican central committee's choice for the White House.

Thomas Dewey, Owosso-born presidential possibility, made a plea for peace during his visit to his old home a month ago.

At Washington was Attorney General Frank Murphy in a Dewey-like role of a relentless Sir Gallahad against corruption and crime. While he had not joined the chorus in defense of the President's "cash and carry" plan, he was expected to do so.

War profits and neutrality thus loomed prominently in the Michigan foreground of coming events.

Spy Fever

Into the daily press and the motion picture news reels Attorney General Murphy solemnly requested every good American citizen to come to the aid of his country.

Spies would seek to embroil America in the conflict. Industrial plants where war orders were being filled for Allied powers would be subject, it was thought, to extensive espionage and sabotage activity.

If you believe there is a spy in your neighborhood, quoth Murphy, notify the nearest G-man office of the department of justice.

State Police Commissioner Oscar Olander confided that his staff of 300 uniformed men and plain-clothed detectives had been instructed to keep a vigilant watch for foreign agents.

And so, with war fever, came an accompanying pulse-quickener, spy fever, to the Michigan scene.

Hard-Boiled Budgeteer

Gus Hartman, Michigan's new budget director, is earning a reputation of being a hard-boiled executive in grim quest of economy.

For many administrations state employees have driven their cars to state garages before week-end holidays in order to have gasoline tanks filled to the brim.

Official and personal use of state cars in many departments had become one and the same.

In announcing that he opposed any special legislative session to impose new taxes, Budget Director Hartman asserted that plain and simple economy measures could stretch the biennial appropriations to meet anticipated needs. This was easier said than done, as the late Governor Fitzgerald discovered when he sought to cut the state payrolls by millions within 60 days.

"Could Hartman deliver the goods?" asked many a sympathetic citizen. What was perhaps the first answer toward realization of his ambitious goal was Hartman's rigid order governing mileage use of state automobiles. Other drastic economy steps were promised.

A cloud in Hartman's economy sky was the prospect that higher commodity prices would add to the state's expense of maintaining its many institutions.

Further Expansion Is Planned By Mich. Bell

Detroit—Rural and small community residents of the state were given an inventory this week of telephone service improvements which revealed probably the most far-reaching program of the kind in the 61-year history of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company. Every section of the territory is affected by the program, which is planned to continue unabated next year.

President George M. Welch announced that the rural expansion program of the company, started in 1937, will produce the following results by the end of this year:

1. Additions of more than $1,250,000 to the company's rural and small community plant. 2. The election of 68 new company-owned and leased buildings. 3. 49 per cent of the small exchanges will have been converted from magneto (crank type) telephones to common battery operation. 4. A reduction of about 50 per cent in the maximum number of customers per rural line. 5. A consequent improvement in rural and small community service that will place it on a par in quality with that enjoyed in the largest centers.

This service expansion has been accompanied, the president emphasized, by a residence rate schedule that is 15 per cent below that in 1934 as the result of two rate reductions since that year.

"With these expanded facilities also has come a substantial improvement in service," Mr. Welch declared. "It is easier to hear over rural lines, and the all-around service is better today than ever before because of the plant improvements made the past three years. Pole lines and other outside equipment are being replaced. More and more cable is being extended into rural areas, further safeguarding the service. The most modern telephone instruments and central office equipment are being installed."

By the end of December, he stated, gross additions to central office equipment in rural areas during the last three years will have reached $525,000, outside plant additions, $474,000, and new telephone instruments, $261,000, or a total of $1,250,000. Nearly half a million dollars worth of the plant additions and improvements is scheduled for the current second half of this year.

The end of the year will find old equipment replaced with new in approximately half of the 194 rural exchanges in the state. Three years ago only 3.6 per cent of the rural exchanges were of the common battery type while 96.4 per cent were furnished magneto service.

Michigan Bell officials estimate the company will have 35,000 rural telephones in service at the end of the year. Of that number, 14,000 will have common battery service.

There was a time when it was not unusual to have as many as 15 customers on a single rural telephone line. The average today is only about six and seldom are more than eight connected to one line.

Two years ago a queer looking plow made its appearance in rural Michigan. Its function was to bury telephone wire in the ground. Since that time, the Michigan Bell Company has installed more than 1,600 miles of buried circuit.

Although buried wire gives additional protection against storm damage, its use is largely limited to small side leads, with a maximum of 2 or 3 circuits, in areas where soil conditions permit the "plowing-in" method. Transmission requirements will not always permit this type of installation but it is used widely where it would be necessary otherwise to erect new poles and wire.

Pheasant Kills Snake

State highway patrolmen noticed a pheasant hopping about excitedly alongside the road north of Scotts-bluff, Mont. Investigating, they discovered the bird had killed a giant bull snake by pecking its neck full of holes.

Hitching Hotels to Stars

An asterisk alongside the name of a hotel in the famous Baedeker guide books is the sign of commendation to travelers. Every good hotel keeper in Europe works all his waking hours and often dreams in sleep of hitching his house to that star.

Catholic Trappists

The members of the Reformed Cistercian order of the Roman Catholic church, better known as Trappists, live an entirely secluded life, devoting their time to religious worship, contemplation and prayer, with hard physical work as their recreation. There are three monasteries: La Trappe, at Getsemanes, Ky.; Our Lady of the Valley, Cumberland, R. I.; and New Melleray, near Dubuque, Iowa.

County High Schools Get NYA Allotments

Lansing—The Michigan National Youth Administration has allotted $3,834.00 for eleven high schools in Washtenaw county for the school year 1939-40, Orin W. Kaye, State Administrator, has announced. This amount, made available under the student aid program of the NYA, will provide part-time work for approximately 71 students who would not otherwise be able to continue their education because of financial need.

Selection of students is on the basis of need, character and the ability to maintain satisfactory scholastic averages. The allotment for each county is based on an index of need and the percentage of youth population.

School superintendents and principals are given the responsibility of selecting students to receive jobs and the supervision of all work activities in individual high schools within the county. Students are assigned to such types of work as clerical and library service, classroom assistance, ground and building improvement and outside construction.

Work done by NYA students must be useful and not infringe on the duties of regular school employees. An average of $3 to $6 may be earned by the student each month for this part-time work. Maximum monthly earnings under the school aid program are $6.

Last year 10,763 students in 793 high schools participated in the Michigan NYA school aid program and educators and school administrators were high in their praise of the good accomplished.

The total high school aid allotment to the state of Michigan for 1939-40 is $500,154. This does not include funds allotted for college and graduate aid.

Oat Developed at M. S. C. Gets Indian Name

Huron, name of an Indian tribe which once occupied several counties of some of the best land in Michigan, is the name given a new oat developed and tested in the last decade by the farm crops department at Michigan State College.

In the face of highly productive oat varieties already developed and introduced by the college the new oat is due for popularity because of some unusual qualities, principally that of being smut resistant. That is the opinion of E. E. Down, college plant breeder, and of farmers who have assisted in making "out-state" trials.

High test weight, earlier maturing than either of its parents, Markton and Victory, and stiffness of straw not found in the Markton oat are other qualities of the new Huron.

Higher than average test weight was a dividend in the experimentation that was unexpected. Real reason for developing this cross supplied 10 years ago by the United States Department of Agriculture, was that the parent Markton was smut resistant. But it was a pleasant surprise in successive trials to find the new oat two to five pounds heavier than standard varieties in the same season and under similar conditions. Some plots this year the yields are running 41 pounds to the bushel, far over the legal test weight of 32 pounds.

Oats still occupy a larger acreage than any other crop in Michigan except for corn or hay. Increase of the new variety has been on farms in Lenawee, Jackson, Huron, Branch and Washtenaw. Four years' trials were conducted in Huron, Tuscola, Gratiot, Sanilac and Lenawee counties. Seed from the 1939 Huron oat increase is being made available for further increase and for commercial production in 1940.

Places to Spare

There are more than 2,000 units in the average automobile, made up of more than 15,000 pieces.

Rhine a Model

When at Düsseldorf in Germany you are in the city where lived once the artist Leutze who painted "Washington Crossing the Delaware." He used Germans for his models and the Rhine for the Delaware. His portrait can be seen in the Art academy.

The number of pedestrians killed by automobiles makes the problem one that each community should carefully consider. When we realize that over 40 per cent of the people killed by automobiles are pedestrians, we should readily appreciate that it is a real problem.

The first thing the pedestrian should do is abandon the old idea that as a pedestrian he can use the streets in any way he pleases. This he can not do.

Traffic lights were made to control traffic, including pedestrian traffic, and the pedestrian should obey traffic signals.

The eight-year bridge game of Dr. and Mrs. A. P. Overgaard and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Russell of Omaha is over with Dr. Overgaard top scorer. He had 1,456,280 points. The game, started in 1931 and played every Monday night, ended recently because Dr. and Mrs. Overgaard are moving to Houston, Texas. It ended (they swear it's true) with never a partner's ace being trumped.

New Traffic Law Will Be Effective Friday

Michigan's new traffic law, which becomes effective on Friday, September 29, contains many changes which should be borne in mind by the state's two million motorists. Although complete explanations on the changes are being published in these columns through a series of articles prepared by the Michigan state police, the most important things about the changes for motorists to remember are submitted herewith in condensed form:

"Stop" signs mean STOP!

Right-hand turns on red light are prohibited.

If a green arrow is shown with the red light, vehicles may cautiously enter the intersection to make the movement indicated by the arrow, but must yield the right-of-way to other vehicles, and to pedestrians.

A flashing red arrow with the red light means that vehicles must first stop before making the right turn.

Pedestrians should cross streets on green light, although they may cross on the red if they do not interfere with traffic. When crossing on the green they have the right-of-way over turning vehicles.

Pedestrians must walk on the left side on rural highways, facing oncoming traffic. When sidewalks are provided it is unlawful for pedestrians to walk on the main traveled portion of the highway.

Twenty-five miles per hour is the legal speed in both business and residential sections in cities and villages unless signs indicate the speed has been increased by local authorities.

Fifty miles per hour is the speed limit set up for trailer combinations when the towing vehicle is a passenger car.

It is unlawful to straddle lane lines on three and four lane highways or to drive into the far left lane of a three-lane highway or to cross the center line of a four-lane highway.

All vehicles should be parked parallel to and within 12 inches of the right-hand curb unless angle parking spaces are provided. Except on one-way streets, vehicles shall not be parked at the left curb.

Two-wheeled vehicles shall not be ridden more than two abreast. Packages must not be carried which prevent the rider from keeping both hands on the handlebars. No person shall be carried upon a bicycle or motorcycle other than upon a firmly attached regular seat.

Hitching to other vehicles by those on bicycles, sleds, roller skates, coasters or toy vehicles is unlawful.

Dwelling Comfort

Considerable work has been done toward the establishment of the correct degree of humidity for dwellings. There is a so-called comfort zone, which has a maximum temperature of 70 degrees Fahrenheit and a minimum humidity of 30 per cent; a minimum temperature of 55 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit, and a maximum humidity of 55 per cent. This is the range which has been established as being most agreeable to people living in temperate climates.

EVERETT SCHOOL NOTES

Our school started on the fifth of September. There were eight pupils. There were two beginners who are Gerald Frey and Elaine Wolff, one second grader which is Wanda Lee Frey, and two fourth graders, which are Raymond and Ruth Alber. We have one sixth grader, Norrene Watson, one seventh grader, Robert Alber, and one eighth grader, Don Lee Wahl. We have the same teacher we had last year, K. O. Schwartz.

We are progressing in our studies very rapidly. On the eighth of September we got four new pupils, who are the Van Rippers. They are Virginia, in the first grade, Alice in the third grade, and Dewey and Leora in the sixth grade.

On September the twentieth some one broke in our school and took our electric hot plate, clock, and a new box of chalk.

We are going to have a 4-H handicraft club again this year. Last year we had eight members and we hope to have more this year.

Two of our last year's eighth graders are going to high school and the other two are helping their fathers on the farm.

Government Water Consumption

An estimate, based on the fiscal year ended June 30, 1938, shows that 16 3-10 per cent, or 4,812,578,900 gallons of water, were used by the United States government in the District of Columbia.

Ag Committeemen See Detroit Packing Plant

Twenty-six reporters and committeemen of the Washtenaw County Agricultural Conservation Association spent the day of September 20, viewing and studying the operations of plant of the Detroit Packing Co., a Michigan Cooperative Corporation in Detroit.

Michigan has the unique distinction of having the only cooperatively operated packing plant in the United States—owned and operated by Michigan livestock producers, several hundred of whom are Washtenaw county farmers.

Headed by Harry M. Cole, secretary of the Association, representatives from 15 of the county's 20 townships took a keen interest in the explanations of the cooperative's set-up and its program for effecting a constructive system of livestock marketing as outlined by Director H. W. Hayes, Chelsea, and D. W. Rogers, general manager and his staff of department heads. Operations of the packing plant from livestock slaughter to sausage manufacture were viewed first hand. One of the most interesting features was the "kill" where hogs were being dressed at the rate of 350 per hour.

The township representatives were: Dexter, Leo J. Heatley and Ernest Hopkins; Freedom, William Uphaus and Gottlieb Horning; Lima, Fred Barth and Arthur Koengert; Lodi, Mark Sweetland, Harry M. Cole, Geo. Hertor, Herman Laubengage and Ben Schneider; Lyndon, Max Kalmbach; Manchester, Clayton M. Parr; Pittsfield, Fred Strath; Salem, H. Foster Smith; Saline, Edgar J. Forsythe; Scio, Theophil D. Strieter; Sharon, Gottlieb Jacob and Raymond Jacob; Superior, J. A. Pryce; Sylvan, William C. Pritchard and Reuben Lesser; York, L. Gale Riggs, Otto C. Hagans, Jesse J. Bird and Karl E. Theurer.

CHICKEN THIEF CAUGHT

The chicken houses at the Methodist Home have been visited by thieves on several occasions during the past few weeks and on Saturday night, about 10:30, the matron with her son-in-law and daughter, were returning from town and as they entered the grounds they saw a colored man coming out with chickens in his hands. They stopped him and demanded to know where he got them. He said he bought them from a farmer, but he was carrying the chickens out the front gateway of the Home. He surrendered the fowls and a complaint has been made against him. The matter is in the hands of the sheriff and prosecuting attorney at Ann Arbor.

Several people around the outskirts of the village have complained of this same kind of removals from their chicken-coops and there is reasonable hope that the real sneak thieves have been apprehended.

Chelsea Defeated

The Chelsea football squad received a thorough shelling last Friday as Clinton defeated them by a 26 to 7 score. This was Chelsea's first defeat since they won the league championship last year.

The Chelsea team, as a whole, showed very little enthusiasm in the game, and as Coach Cameron would say, "They stood around with their teeth in their mouth."

Clinton advanced deep into Chelsea territory early in the first period, but Chelsea made a goal-line stand and pushed the Clinton team back into their own territory. Chelsea threatened to score late in the first quarter, but Clinton took the ball away from them on two forward passes over the goal line. Chelsea's only touchdown came in the third quarter on a pass from White to Combs. Schneider converted the extra point on a place kick. Schneider was the outstanding player for Chelsea, while Harrison starred for Clinton.

Coach Cameron has more grief this week as White and Policht will be out of the line-up for the game Friday.

The starting line-up for Chelsea was: Schneider, quarterback; Policht and White, halfbacks; with Walz playing fullback; while on the line there were Strieter, center; Winans and Knickerbocker, guards; Schiller and Lindauer, tackles; and Riemenschneider and Dietle, ends.

FRANK T. NEWTON KILLED

Frank Thomas Newton, 21 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Newton of Ypsilanti, was fatally injured early Sunday morning in an automobile collision on Washtenaw Road two miles east of Ann Arbor.

Mr. Newton, driving east, attempted to pass another eastbound car driven by James M. Bridges of Lansing, who had signaled for a left turn before entering the center lane. Mr. Newton clipped the other car in passing, causing him to lose control of his machine, which crashed into a utility pole and plunged into a ditch, rolling over and over for about 100 feet. Thrown through the top of the car and into some bushes 75 feet from the car, the youth was dead when found by sheriff's officers.

Born in Ypsilanti June 20, 1918, Mr. Newton graduated from Roosevelt high school in 1936, attended Olivet College and was planning to enter Michigan State Normal College this week. His parents and a sister survive.

Funeral services were held at 2:00 p.m. Tuesday afternoon at the J. E. Moore funeral home in Ypsilanti, with Rev. R. T. Appleyard officiating. Burial was in Highland cemetery, Ypsilanti.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton have a summer home at Cavanaugh Lake and the son was well known in Chelsea, where he had many friends.

English Shepherd Gives Demonstration for Class

The best way to learn is by experience, and so following this saying the high school Ag department went to the farm of Clare Lemen and Sons of Dexter. Mr. Lemen, who is a breeder of registered Shropshire sheep, has had an English shepherd staying at his farm for several weeks. Alexander Keep, the shepherd, has given demonstrations at the Lemen farm before various groups.

The Chelsea agriculture department was very fortunate to have been invited to Mr. Lemen's farm for Mr. Keep is very highly trained in fitting and showing sheep and also is a confident shepherd, having worked with sheep all of his life. For generations his family has herded sheep.

The boys want to thank Mr. Lemen and Mr. Keep for their interesting demonstration.

Hopeless?

I know what is the matter. This school has no real loyal spirit. When the kids yell their heads off at the games it's because they want their team to win so that they can brag, not because they have any real school spirit.

Did they attend the debates? No! Now debates have been taken away from the few that had spirit enough to really like it.

Do they ever do anything because of the school? No! But I guess it's all hopeless—

Yet, we can't tell. There is always

Question And Answer Dept.

Problem. Three men went fishing. The three men caught twelve fish. Each fish made two meals. One fish was given to the cat. If each of the men ate the same amount, how many meals were served? (Answer: else where in this department).

Ques. How fast do radio sounds travel?

Ans. Radio sounds travel so fast that they are considered instantaneous, or about the speed of light. To be more specific, radio waves and light waves both travel 186,000 miles per second.

Ques. How can a bat fly in the dark without hitting anything?

Ans. It is not known for sure. Bats may have some other sense that we do not know of. However, scientists generally believe that bats possess extremely sensitive ears, which guides them in their movements in the dark.

Answer to problem. Twenty-four meals—22 to the three men and two to the cat.

Ques. I would like to know why water boils when it is heated?

Ans. It is the combination of the molecules in the air. These molecules are so infinitely small that they cannot be seen and will float around in the air forever. When the molecules explode they become steam, and the bubbles of steam rising through the water make it boil.

Ques. Is the air colder on a mountain at 10,000 feet above the earth's surface?

Ans. Much colder. When it is 100 degrees above zero at the surface, it is 70 degrees below zero at 10,000 feet.

Ques. Will you please tell me in your valuable paper the correct pronunciation of the word "prologue" as I have heard it pronounced two different ways over the radio.

Ans. Two ways are both correct, dependent upon how the word is used. If used as a noun it is pronounced like "pro-lood". The accent in both cases is on the first syllable.

Ques. After diligent work I have figured out the day of the week Christmas will come on in the year A. D. 2039. Now I want to see if you will agree.

Ans. You failed to say what day of the week you have it, and therefore don't know whether or not we agree. However, it is a fact that December 25 (Christmas), A. D. 2039 will fall on Saturday, if our present calendar system is used at that time.

Ques. If Germany and Russia are such bitter enemies (off the record) isn't it rather paradoxical that the two nations formed a non-aggression pact?

Ans. This is a matter of opinion. However, it is thought that this move was for strategic purposes on both sides. Hitler wants Russian aid, or at least neutrality, in an armed conflict with Great Britain and France, while Stalin wants Hitler's assistance in a potential war with Japan. In this pact both sides will benefit, despite the fact that Nazism and Communism are bitter enemies.

Ques. How do we know of the existence of millions of stars which can a new generation coming. The sophomores might snap out of it by a slight chance, and there's a fifty-fifty chance that the freshmen will. The juniors and seniors are a total loss. If only—if they just—get the real school spirit.

Maybe there is a chance yet!

Band News

not even be seen through the telescope?

Ans. By means of photography. A photographic plate is placed at the focus of a telescope and exposed for several hours. It will then detect millions of faint stars which are believed to be more than a thousand million miles away.

Slats' Diary

Sunday. Well I am glad to see the 1st day of the week again which is the 1st day to me since school started again. The weather has been fine and hot and us kids and to the teacher we seen what sun school declared a holiday on account of the heat. She said OK and then proceeded to forget it.

The teacher said very well but who is this speaking. Then Blisters spit the beans and said it was my father. So I suppose he will get better.

Thursday. About 9 a.m. this morning a man meek on the door of are house. The man sed he are from the electricitry Co. and were told we have some thing about the place that wont work. Ma sed Ant Emmy spoke up and told the man we have 2 of them which are still up stairs asleep. I expect she ment Pa and Unkel Hen. They wist are ladies dept. had a good laff wist the masklines dident say nothing.

Friday. Pa sed he got to talking with Mister Gillem and ast him do Mistress Gillem have her own way much and Mister Gillem replide and sed he guest she does as she rights down what she do a wk. or 10 days ahead of time. So I think she must be Mistress besides just in name.

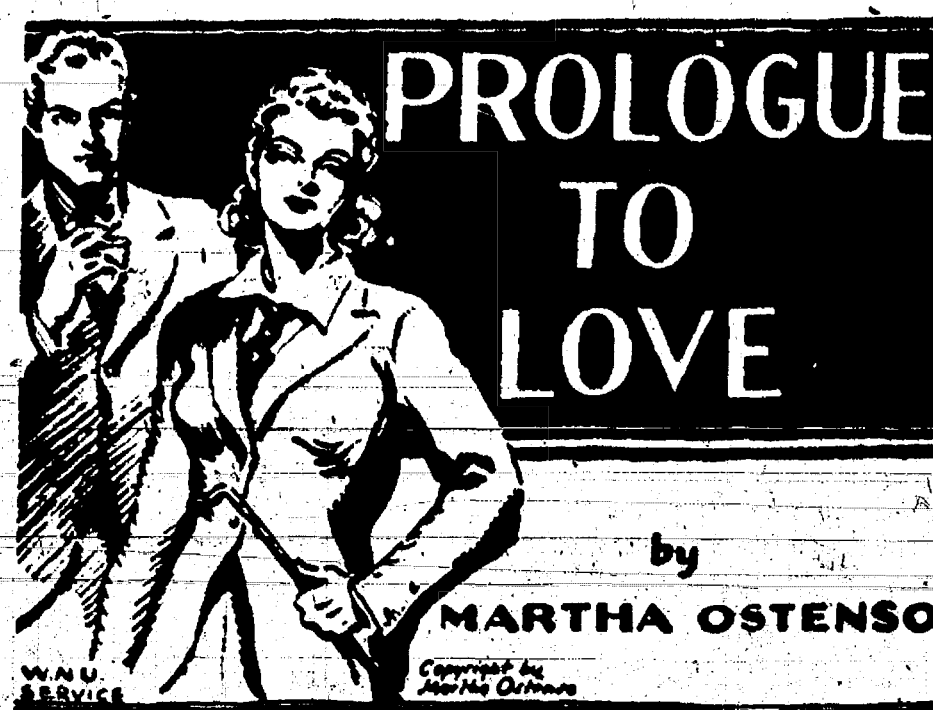

Saturday. I and Jake and Blisters got together and sed we could have a lot of fun today if it wasent for haffing to think about S. S. and church tomoro and school Monday. Life would certenly be offe on me if it wasent of a chearfe nacher and not inklined to worrie about nothing. P. S. Gotta get a rabbit dog before long.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Lovely, independent Autumn Dean, returning home to British Columbia from abroad without her father's knowledge, stops at the home of Hector Cardigan, an old family friend. He tells her that she should not have come home, that things have changed. Arriving home at the "Castle of the Clouds," she is greeted lovingly by her father, Jarvis Dean, who gives her to understand that she is welcome for a short visit. Her mother, Mrs. Landor, and her sister, Odell, have been dead for years. Autumn cannot understand her father's attitude, though she gives him to understand that she is home for good. She has grown tired of life in England, where she lived with an aunt.

CHAPTER II

Jarvis Dean stood before the great windows in the hall, looking out upon the world where the light of early morning was affame above the spires of the pines. He moved away once and called up the stairs to assure himself that Autumn was getting ready for the ride she had insisted on taking with him into the sheltered ravine where the lambing was in progress. When she replied, he strode back to the window and looked-out upon the softly lighted mosaic of the world that was his. As he stood, weary and haggard from a sleepless night, it came to him that it had been better had he sold it last winter when he had had a substantial offer for it. Why had he not sold it? He was getting old. Pride, pride, pride and vanity. Vanity of possession, of power, of triumph! Yes—that had been it—triumph! The triumph, as he had thought, of his own conscience over a catastrophe of twenty years ago. That was why he had stayed on here, stubbornly, bitterly, when his world had seemed ready to crash about his ears after the death of Geoffrey Landor, and then—Mill-cent.

Ah, Millicent, forever loved, forever lost! Her slender red smile, red still as she died in fever, red in the undying love of another, slender in hatred of himself, seemed to pierce the brooding east now as he stared at it with vacant eyes.

"Fool, fool!" he muttered to himself. "I might have known—I might have known!"

He turned as Autumn, dressed for the ride, came down the stairs.

"Let's go!" she sang out, and stood before him slapping her boots with her skirt.

Two horses stood before the door. Jarvis Dean's big black and Hector Cardigan's hunter. In a moment they were in the trail and heading eastward over the way that Autumn had come the night before.

They were on their way to visit old Absalom Peek at his camp in the ravine. When they turned at last from the main trail and took a winding path that led toward the camp, Autumn remembered a roundabout and more picturesque way to the place, down through a gulch where a tiny creek ran and where the white birch grew in a dense wall up either slope. Landor's Gulch it was called locally, partly because one-half of its length marked the boundary between the Landor and the Dean acres; partly, too, because it was down there beside the creek among the birches that the body of Geoffrey Landor had been found years ago by one of his own men. The years had dimmed the details of that tragic story, though they had served only to deepen the legendary color that invested it. Years ago old Hannah had told Autumn that sheep herders had encountered Geoffrey's ghost among the white birches there, of a moonlit night in spring, and had heard his voice calling to his sheep-dogs when the wind came up from the river. Autumn had all but forgotten the legend, but its memory smote her now as she drew rein and turned her horse toward the gulch.

"Come on, Da!" she called. "Let's go down this way."

Jarvis drew up short and looked at her.

"There's quicksand along that creek," he replied. "Don't you remember?"

Autumn laughed. "Come on! I used to find gold pebbles down there. I want to see if there are any left."

Jarvis exclaimed under his breath. "Damn it, my girl, I have no time for such fooling! Are you riding with me or are you not?"

Autumn held her horse for a moment in perplexity, then followed her father along the trail of his own choosing. One of these days, she thought to herself, it would be necessary to warn Jarvis Dean that his daughter was grown up and would not be spoken to as if she were no more than a child. But there would be time for that.

When she drew abreast of him again, the old man's face was oddly rigid and colorless. Hector Cardigan had been right, then. Her father had changed. He was not the man she had known in other years. He was getting old, and the burden of living had lain too heavily upon him. Her impatience with his mood melted to pity as she thought of him.

"By the way, father, how are the Landors?" she asked casually, when they had ridden a short distance.

"Eh? The Landors? Ah—they're well, I presume," he said absently. "You told me at Christmas time that Mrs. Landor had been ill," she reminded him.

"Oh, yes, yes, of course," he said hastily. "Old Jane has been very low. She's not long for this world, I'm afraid."

"And Bruce?"

But Jarvis had fixed his eyes suddenly on a straggling bunch of frail new weeds close to the trail. He dismounted abruptly and pulled the grasses up by the roots.

"Milk vetch," he remarked, and got back into the saddle.

When they arrived at the camp, old Absalom was in his shack, brewing coffee and frying bacon. While her father went indoors, Autumn lingered for a moment outside, her eyes sweeping the rounded skyline above her, where the morning sun was burnishing the hills. The snug little valley into which she had ridden was filled with the bleat of ewes and the tiny cry of hundreds of newborn lambs. On the sunlit slope above her, the main flocks grazed, ewes with their lambs old enough to be released from the pens, or ewes which had not yet dropped their young.

Jarvis Dean's voice called to her from the doorway of the shack. There was old Absalom Peek, grown more wizened and gnome-like than ever, his weathered face contorted in a shy grin. He held the screen door open and she ran up to him.

"Hello, Absalom!" she called.

He shook hands with her, his old eyes beaming and watering with delight.

"Welcome home, Miss Autumn!" he said, achieving a gallant little jerk of a bow. "You've been gone a long time. But a fine young lady they've made of you, I see."

Autumn laughed and glanced at her father who stood by, tall and elegant in his riding clothes, smiling indulgently down upon his old herder.

"I've been gone too long, Absalom," Autumn said. "But I'm home for good now, and I'll be over to see you often."

"We'll be makin' for the hills right after sheerin'!" Absalom told her. "In about another fortnight."

"Stay and visit with Absalom while I go out and look over the new family," Jarvis said, starting for the corral. "Come along when you feel like it."

Autumn entered the shack and seated herself while Absalom tended to his coffee and bacon.

"It'll be like old times havin' you back at the Castle, Miss Autumn," the old herder said. "You'll be puttin' new life into the old place."

"Perhaps the old place could stand a little new life," Autumn replied.

Absalom turned to her with the tawny pan in one hand, then glanced quickly through the doorway.

"And I'm telling you it could stand a lot of it," he said. "You never saw such a place as that's got to be. The Laird's a great man, an' still hearty for a man of his years, mind you, but there's need of someone about the house there besides that poor old body that does the cookin' and the cleanin'."

In the old days we used to have a bit of a dance now an' then, or something to keep a man from gettin' old before his time—but yon's a morgue, gettin' to be."

"You give me an idea, Absalom," Autumn said. "It isn't every day in the year that a daughter comes home. I'm going to celebrate. I'm going to invite the whole country-side to a dance. Will you come? We couldn't give a party without you."

"We'll be leavin' in another fortnight," he reminded her.

"We'll make it next Friday night, then."

Absalom's face lighted up with enormous pleasure. "I'll come, right enough, if I can get away to it. But ye'll promise to put on a few o' the old dances, mind. I'm gettin' too stiff in the joints for the stuff they call dancin' nowadays."

Autumn laughed. "If some of the youngsters today tried your reels, Absalom, they'd have to be carried off the floor."

"Aye, that's right enough, too. But who'll ye be askin', now?"

"Everybody!" Autumn replied.

The old fellow's eyes became dreamy with reminiscence. "I've had many a good turn in my time with Katie Macdougall, down at The Bend—if ye'll think of it to ask her," he suggested archly.

"We'll send her a special invitation, Absalom," Autumn promised, getting up. "I'd better leave you to your coffee, now, while I go and take a look at the lambs."

"Aye, an' they're worth lookin' at. Nigh unto five hundred was dropped durin' the night."

Autumn went out and found her father beside one of the pens that opened off the corral. Within it a large, robust ewe stood in maternal dignity, while about her pranced a day-old lamb on its ridiculous legs, flicking an absurd cottony tail.

Autumn laughed in sheer delight. "Oh, you little rascal!" she said. "I'll have to learn about sheep all over again, Da."

She glanced up at him and noted the wistful eagerness that came into his eyes, and the quick, unaccountable restraint that immediately masked them.

He sighed heavily. "It's no business for a woman, my girl."

"That's a man's opinion, Da," she countered.

"And it's my opinion that a woman can talk a lot of damned nonsense, given the chance," her father retorted. "With the help of God, I'll be out of the business myself before another year."

"Out of sheep-raising?"

"I'm going to sell," he told her.

challenge to Autumn. "Our dance, Mr. Parr? I cannot recall making any engagements."

He stepped closer to her. "It is not so much a matter of engagement, Miss Dean, as it is a matter of preference."

She laughed. "Yours—or mine, Mr. Parr?"

"I can only speak for myself," he replied.

She wrinkled her nose at him. "You seem to find little difficulty in that."

"Are you going to make this awkward?" he countered.

Autumn chuckled softly. "Not at all, Mr. Parr. Besides, I should think a man who plays polo and pilots his own plane—"

"A splendid alibi!" he put in. Before she could reply, he had swung her out upon the floor. The orchestra had already begun to play. The crystal chandeliers of the drawing room were turned off, and immediately the long floor was a dim pool of violet light from the colored lanterns that had been strung below the ceiling. Autumn noted the eyes that followed herself and Florian, shadowed eyes of envy or of admiration, and overheard one or two comments that were unequivocal. She permitted herself to drift in the joy of the dance, glancing up at her partner now and then with that rare, long look of half-closed eyes that is the piquant complement of that most subtly articulate of dances.

In the encore that followed the tango, Florian maneuvered so that they became separate from the main body of the dancers, and moved through the open French windows, out across the piazza and down the steps into the garden.

Florian leaned above her with one elbow resting on the bough of the tree. She saw him smile as he lifted a lock of her hair and pretended to peer at the moon through its mesh.

"Mr. Parr," she said, with mock severity, "I must remind you that I am hostess this evening—and must be treated with the dignity due my position."

"You might also add that we met for the first time not more than an hour ago," he said.

"I do."

"But it has been an unforgettable hour," he responded.

Another couple strolled by in the moonlight.

"Look here," Florian said suddenly. "Why can't you come down for the week-end in Kelowna soon? The family will be keen on you. They've all heard about you from your father. My sister Linda wanted terribly to come up tonight, but she had a sprained ankle. She'd be crazy about you."

"I should love to come," Autumn assured him.

"I'll tell you what," he suggested. "Drop down for the polo game on Sunday. I promise you a good time. Your father owes my governor a visit too. He hasn't been down for months. Let's make a real party of it."

"I'll speak to father about it."

"Right!" he said.

"Let's go back, Mr. Parr," Autumn remarked. "I'm forgetting my duties."

"I'll come if you'll call me Florian," he stipulated, in a voice so low and engaging that it brought her throaty, pleased laughter.

"Very well, Florian," she responded, and they retraced their way to the brilliantly lighted house. The music floated out to them when they mounted the steps to the piazza that was completely festooned with honeysuckle, in sweet and heady bloom. Florian caught her arm.

"Let's finish this dance before we go in," he said, and drew her lightly away on the rhythm of the waltz that was being played.

The piazza was in darkness, away from the moon, and as they waited to the farther end of it, they found themselves alone. There Florian paused, drew her close and brushed her hair with his lips.

"I think I'm going to love you," he whispered.

Autumn's lips and cheeks glowed faintly, and she experienced the old, swift sensation of being deliciously drugged. Then, for some unaccountable reason, she thought of her mother, Millicent, whom she could recall only as a dream, and of that other Odell woman, known only as a myth, the woman who had been her grandmother. She thought then of men in England and men on the Continent, whom she had played with until they merely bored her. One especially she remembered—a blue-eyed youth who had been maimed in the war. The Odell women

Shipping Cashew Nut

Until 1933 cashew nuts were considered among the most risky foods to ship because so often they were attacked by vermin. In that year shippers adopted the process of replacing part of the air in packing cans with carbon dioxide or some other inert gas. This makes such a difference in keeping of the kernels that the imports increased from some 100,000 pounds in 1928 to 4,000,000 pounds in 1930 and 15,000,000 pounds in 1934.

Healthy Mind Will Preserve Facial Beauty

By PATRICIA LINDSAY

© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

A healthy mind is not only the nucleus of beauty but it is the nucleus of a radiant happy life!

Had I space to quote famous authorities I could convince you that destructive thoughts, or an undisciplined mind, can rob a woman of her health and destroy her happiness.

As you think, your face and eyes express your thoughts. Catch a glimpse of yourself in a mirror as you converse with a friend. Notice how your eyes sparkle and your lips turn upward when you speak gaily. See how quickly a frown appears and your eyes dim when you talk of sorrow or feel sad. Your lips narrow and your eyes partly close when you give vent to anger or gossip maliciously. Would you have believed it?

Do you know that every unworthy thought registers on your face? Haven't you seen women whose countenances reveal their habitual thoughts of malice, selfishness, jealousy? Of course you have. Over-indulgence of miserable traits have robbed them of their beauty and happiness.

Don't Be A Neurotic

Sick minds, registered on faces, ward off all human sympathy and love.

So don't be a neurotic. Keep your mind active, free, and in order. It is the receiving and sending instrument of your entire body. Let it receive wholesome, pleasant messages. Let it send wholesome, pleasant dictations. You know the old

Your face reflects your thoughts adage that "Beauty comes from within"—well it does, from within your mind!

If you have been in the habit of brooding, of becoming easily hurt at people's thoughtless words or actions, strive to overcome those tendencies. Ignore hurts and discouragements. Realize that brooding—or worrying—is an insidious form of illness which can destroy a lot you hold dear.

Don't be a woman consumed with

HINT-OF-THE-DAY

The intelligent way to go about changing the style of your hairdress is to sit before your mirror after you have given your hair a thorough brushing away from the scalp. Comb your hair back from the face. Determine which hair-do will accent your good features and soften your less glamorous ones.

If you can afford it, go to an expert stylist and let him take you in hand. Otherwise go to a good barber and get a hair cut once you have decided on the exciting new style. Try to suit your type, your mood, your clothes. Try all sorts of parts until you find one that does a lot for you.

Area of Dominion of Canada The area of the Dominion of Canada is greater than that of continental United States. The area of United States proper is 3,026,780 square miles, while that of the Dominion of Canada is 3,729,685 square miles. United States proper and Alaska have an area of 3,617,875 square miles. Thus it will be seen that the Dominion of Canada has a greater area than the combined areas of the United States proper and Alaska.

Fear of Ghosts The belief that a widow who remarries will be haunted by the spirit of her late husband is widespread in both primitive and civilized countries, says a writer in Collier's Weekly. As late as 1912 a man in Macon Ga., was quickly granted a divorce when he explained that the ghost of his wife's first husband bothered them so much they could no longer live together.

Three for One Paul Douglas, farmer in the Alameda, Wash., region, shot a coyote and when he walked to where it lay he found the same bullet had killed two calves belonging to another farmer whose sheep the coyote had been chasing.

The Rise of the Nile A rather pretty Egyptian legend tells that a drop from heaven, a tear of Isis, an ancient Egyptian goddess, falls into the Nile on a certain night of the year and causes it, to rise. One of the great Nile annual festivals is the "Night of the Drop."

On West Coast, Husband Is Chief Breadwinner

Changing times have brought much talk on the subject of wives and children whose earnings supplement family income, but a study of 5,784 small-city and village families in Washington, Oregon and California, reports 9 out of 10 husbands as the chief breadwinners and 7 out of 10 the sole support of their families. Husbands provided nine-tenths of the earnings that supported these families.

There was nothing unusual about these families, says a bulletin by the federal bureau of home economics. All of them included a husband and wife, both native-born. In the four cities—Klamath Falls, Eugene, and Astoria, Ore., and Olympia, Wash.—one-half of the families studied had incomes of $1,555 or less. In the 12 Washington and Oregon villages the lower one-half of the incomes were below $1,024, and below $1,355 in the 12 villages in California.

With so large a cross-section of the native-white, unbroken families, no one kind stands out as typical. The bulletin pictures the responsibilities for maintenance and the income situation of all families studied. Of every 10 families, five consisted of three or four persons, three included husband and wife only, and the remaining two had five or more family members. Average size of small-city and village families in this region was about 3.5 persons. One wife in seven did paid work to supplement family income. But women's earnings were so small, because many of them worked only part-time, that they provided a scant 5 per cent of aggregate family earnings.

Almost half of both city and village families lived in owned homes. Housing costs for renters were not high—about 6 per cent of all the families that lived in their homes paid less than $20 a month. Rent took much less than the traditional one-fifth of total income. Families in the upper income brackets had even larger shares of their incomes left after rents were paid.
