W. Grossman Will Be New Village Marshal

Wm. Atkinson, who has served as village marshal for the past 17 years, submitted his resignation to President

Monday evening to be effective October 15. Mr. Atkinson has served the position well in his capacity and his many friends regret that he chooses to retire at this time.

Waldemar Grossman has been employed by the council to fill the pos-tion vacated by Mr. Atkinson. Mr.

Grossman started his duties on Sunday, and will be engaged chiefly in motor patrol work until the present marshal retires, after which his time will be divided, doing both patrol work and carrying on the duties of night watchman.

Mr. Grossman recently completed a ten-day training period at the shortie department, which better qualifies him for the duties he has undertaken.

It is the purpose of the village administration to make an energetic effort to enforce the new state traffic laws in Chelsea. As everyone well knows there has been general disregard of traffic laws by many who drive full knowledge of what safe driving entails. It is the duty of the new marshal

Children In Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield

Making a Mountain Out of a Mole Hill

The age old battle between youth and maturity was displayed in court when a father complained that his son was willful, disrespectful, and disobedient.

This boy possessed a strong desire to share the duties of the home with his parents and to experience the satisfaction that he was at least partially responsible for the success of the entire family group. His feelings on the subject were so strong that he frequently quarreled with his father as to the means and methods whereby he could assist in meeting the family problems.

The father was not only obstinate but tactless. He did not want his son peddling newspapers, or doing chores about the neighborhood, because this would divert his mind from his studies. Consequently, when his father discovered that his boy was doing odd jobs so that he could purchase a birthday present for his mother, he flew into a rage and applied a severe beating.

The boy felt that this was the last straw, so he left home and spent the night with a boy in the neighborhood. Early the next morning, the father signed a petition in juvenile court alleging that his son was willful, disrespectful and disobedient.

Following the hearing the judge called the father aside and said: "While I agree that it is a parent's duty to guide his children in important decisions, I feel that you are taking small unimportant matters too seriously. What difference will it make fifty years from now whether your boy bought his mother a present with the money he himself earned or with the money you gave him?"

The new 1940 automobiles have been provided with a complete new unit of lighting.

The new equipment is known as "The Sealed Beam Headlight System." No dirt, dust or moisture can penetrate the sealed unit to corrode the reflecting surfaces and lens. More light, properly distributed is thrown on the road surfaces.

The new lamps throw two light beams. The lower beam is for city driving and the top beam for country driving.

These lights will provide more protection and greater safety after dark on the nation's streets and highways.

There are more than 81 towns in Georgia with names ending in "ville."

Warm Holidays in Iceland
Reykjavik, the capital of Iceland, has the same average annual temperature as Milan in Italy. Warm sea bathing is found in Iceland due to proximity of hot springs near the beaches.

Question And Answer Dept.

Problem—Here is a word of six letters, and means a loose, filmy mass. Behead it (that is, take away the first letter) and you will have a word which means "bodies of water". Behead it again and you will have a colloquial word which is the name of a certain kind of trees. Behead it again and you will have a word which is an obsolete variant of a word which means a "garage". Behead it a fourth time, and it will be a letter of the English alphabet. A fifth and final beheading will leave it still a letter of the English alphabet. What are the six hidden words or terms? (Answer elsewhere in this department).

Ques—I wish to ask you seriously if money is wealth?

Ans—In a loose sense money is considered wealth. Strictly speaking money is only a receipt for wealth. It is simply the medium of exchange for the things (wealth) you want or need.

Ques—How many white stripes and how many red stripes are there in the regulation American flag?

Ans—There are six white and seven red stripes in the United States regulation flag.

Answer to problem—Flakes, Lakes, Akes (oaks), Kes (kiss), Es, S.

Ques—What is the meaning of the word "mnemonic"? I can't find it in the dictionary?

Ans—Evidently you did not look in the proper classification. The word, beginning with "m", is spelled "mnemonic". A mnemonic is a word, term or thing that serves to remember something else. For example: If you want to remember the seven colors of the rainbow (Blue, yellow, violet, indigo, green, orange, red) you memorize the two words "By vigor". Each letter represents a color.

Ques—Has the New York World's Fair established a world's record for a one-day's attendance?

Ans—Not as yet, but in all probability it will do so. It has the advantage of increased population, greater attractions and greater world-wide interest. The Columbian exposition at Chicago in 1893 had a one-day paid admission of 763,000 on Oct. 9, which is still the record.

Ques—In what city of the National League was the least number of home runs made? And how many of them were made by the home club?

Ans—The least number of home runs made in 1938 was in Pittsburgh of the National League. The number was 44. The Pirates getting 22 and the visiting clubs getting 22. The visitors' circuit clubs were as follows: Chicago, 7; New York, 6; Boston, 4; St. Louis, 1; Brooklyn, 2; Cincinnati, 2; Philadelphia, 0.

Ques—When will the next Congress meet again?

Ans—The next regular session of Congress will convene Jan. 2, 1940. However, Congress is now meeting in special session.

Ques—What is the difference between Semites and Hebrews?

Ans—Practically none. Semite is a blanket term for the whole, and the northern branch includes the Hebrews (Israelites) with Ammonites, Moabites and Edomites.

Ques—What is the Polish Corridor that has caused so much European trouble?

Ans—The Polish Corridor is about 50 miles wide and 200 miles long which connects Germany proper with Prussia.

French Fishermen First

To Explore Newfoundland
Newfoundland was already well known and frequented by French fishermen when Cartier headed there first. He came too early in the spring, though, and had trouble with icebergs. Sailing on, he mistook Magdalen and Prince Edward islands (now British) for the main coast, and so traveled north, exploring every harbor and bay.

A mirage led Cartier to believe that one large river mouth to which he came was a bay, and he wasted much time trying to map this supposed harbor.

Cartier made friends with some Huron-Iroquois Indians and kidnapped two to take back to France. These Indians told him he was in the "kingdom of Canada" though "Canada" was their word for "village."

The next year Cartier did his bit for history by discovering and naming the St. Lawrence bay and St. Lawrence river. He went up the river as far as the present city of Montreal. Returning to the coast he prepared to winter there, but soon his men came down with scurvy. Out of 110 men more than 25 died, and fewer than 10 were untouched by the epidemic. At last the Indians gave Cartier a cure for the disease.

Cartier's third trip was an unsuccessful attempt to colonize the new land he had discovered (he thought it was northeastern Asia). Some historians say he made a fourth trip after that. The last 13 years of his life Cartier spent in St. Malo, acting as technical adviser to other expeditions and as a Portuguese interpreter.

High Survival

Forest service officials estimate that 61 per cent of all trees planted in farm-shelter belts and field wind breaks of the prairie plains last year survived.

Traffic Book Prepared By Secretary of State

The new state traffic law became effective September 29 and many important changes have been made in the rules of the road, including the amendment prohibiting right-hand turns on a red signal light.

So that every motorist may have the opportunity to study and familiarize himself with the regulations, Harry F. Kelly, Secretary of State, has prepared a booklet entitled "What Every Driver Should Know", and containing a clear summary of the various sections of the law.

This booklet will be sent free of cost to every person writing to Mr. Kelly, in care of the Secretary of State's office, Lansing.

The booklet contains many illustrations showing the proper way to make turns, etc. and covers in concise form the important regulations relative to speed limits, stop and go signs, lanes and pavement markings, parking, bicycles and motorcycles, overtaking highways, and much other information of value to both drivers and pedestrians.

PLYMOUTH—"I am of the firm opinion that none of us realize just how lucky we are to be living in a country where there is no dictator. People here are allowed to speak their thoughts. There are no blackouts nor extensive military preparations and one is able to work at the trade for which he is best suited without being told what to do," said Mrs. Reinhold Rühr, wife of the grocer at the Haida greenhouses, who, with her two sons, Norman, four years old, and Otto, six years old, has just returned to Plymouth after spending the summer visiting in Germany. "The German people do not want war," she said, "they are 'blindfolded' and being led into it by their dictator, Adolf Hitler. There is no Christian religion in Germany. Older Germans remember the time when they could pray to a spiritual God, but the smaller children were amazed and were not able to understand why Otto and Norman said their prayers."—Mail.

MASON—Michigan Bell Telephone construction crews have been in the Mason area laying cable to change the system from manual operated to dial. Instead of using telephone poles in the rural areas, the wires are being placed in a shallow trench. A special machine is used to plow the trench and lay the wire. While no definite date has been set for changing to the dial system, it is believed that the new system will be in operation in November or December. The Michigan Bell has purchased property on Park St. between Ash and Maple and will erect a new building to house the exchange. —County News.

MORENCI—About 5:00 o'clock Friday afternoon people in the business section on North street were startled by a loud crash and the sound of falling masonry. Those in the vicinity rushed out of doors to ascertain whether a bomber had found its way to our peaceful village weren't so sure but that one had done so when they saw the front of the W. I. Hill three-story brick building come tumbling down. When the dust cleared away, it was observed that a truck was backed into the front of the building in such a way as to have received a big part of the debris. The truck, belonging to Mr. Hill, had been left in gear in front of the building and when Mr. Hill attempted to crank it, the truck shot backward into the building. The result was the wreckage of the entire front of the building, which after the accident, resembled a picture from war-torn Poland. —Observer.

Chelsea Wins

By Wayne Van Orman
During rain and cold weather, Friday afternoon, the Chelsea eleven vanquished an alert Belleville team. The 14 to 6 score gave Chelsea her first win in two starts.

Belleville scored the first touchdown, early in the second quarter, after a sustained drive from deep in their own territory; however, they failed to make the extra point when Chelsea's forward wall broke through and blocked the kick. Later in the same quarter Chelsea scored a touchdown on an end run of ten yards by Pelicht. Schneider converted the extra point and the score was 7 to 6. From then on it was all Chelsea, with the team as a whole showing much more spirit than was displayed the week before. Chelsea scored her last touchdown in the third quarter on a line plunge of two yards by Schneider, who also kicked the extra point. Several times it looked like Schneider was headed for a touchdown, only to run into his own blockers, who were loafing in front of him. White, of Chelsea, even though he had a slashed tongue, which threatened to keep him out of the game, made some of the best tackles for Chelsea.

The starting line-up for Chelsea was: Quarterback, Schneider; fullback, Walz; halfbacks, West and Birch; center, Strieter; guards, Williams and Knickerbocker; tackles, Schiller and Grieb; and ends, Combs and Lindauer.

Several Types of Farm Areas Evident In State

"Michigan's agriculture is very diverse."

With that brief statement backed up by a map indicating 17 different types of farming areas in the state, E. B. Hill proves in a new Michigan State College bulletin now available for distribution why it is important to know the state thoroughly in order to farm profitably.

Wide variations in soil types, topography, climate and economic conditions prevail. Because of these factors, the author, who is head of the college farm management department, shows how Michigan farmers have found it advantageous to follow types of farming best adapted to the particular regions in which they live.

Casualty one might think Michigan can be classed as a dairying and general farming state. But only in nine south central counties is this classification typical of the predominating type of farming.

As a picture of the state's agriculture, the illustrations and information offered in the 100 pages form one of the most complete preparations available to farmers or prospective farm purchasers. The issue is Michigan special bulletin 206, "Types of Farming in Michigan."

Forty-three dot maps scattered through the pages give graphic pictures of weather, crops, livestock, population by counties, land values and other details peculiar to the state. Copies of the publication are available through offices of county agricultural agents or by writing the Bulletin Room, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

BOYCE-MARTIN WEDDING

The farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Wirt C. Boyce in Lyndon township was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday afternoon, September 23, when their eldest daughter, Elaine, became the bride of Herman W. Martin, of Stockbridge.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Shirley Boyce, and the best man was her brother, Lloyd A. Boyce.

The bride was lovely in a floor length gown of ivory satin and lace, made on long slim lines. She wore a shoulder length veil of illusion-tulle and carried an arm bouquet of white carnations and baby mums. The bridesmaid wore a dress of rose moire taffeta and carried pink roses, ageratum and white baby mums.

Rev. Edwin Stephens of Stockbridge officiated at the ceremony at 4 p. m., under an arch trimmed with ferns and golden marigolds banked with baskets of autumn flowers.

Immediately following the ceremony a two-course luncheon was served by Mrs. C. H. Whitney and Mrs. Guy Barton, assisted by the Misses Dorothy Sweet, Virginia Barton and Lavon Winkle. The bride's table was very pretty laid with a lace cloth and centered with a three-tiered wedding cake, decorated in gold and white, and a miniature bride and groom.

Amid a shower of rice and the good wishes of their friends the couple left on a short southern trip. Mr. and Mrs. Martin will be at home to their friends after October 1 at their home on Wood St. in Stockbridge.

The bride graduated from Stockbridge high school and Ypsilanti State Normal, and has taught in Flint city schools, and is at present teaching in Lyndon township.

The groom is a graduate of Guelph Dairy College in London, Ontario, and is the manager of the Wayne Creamery at Stockbridge.

Guests at the wedding included friends and relatives from Albion, Detroit, Hillsdale, Litchfield, Flint and Caro.

Record Registration

The more than 500,000 automobiles licensed last year by North Carolina established an all-time record.

Egg Contest At M. S. C. Sets New Records

Completion of the 17th annual egg laying contest at Michigan State College brought out some new records, not all of them in egg production.

But one trend in feeding, useful to nearly every flock owner in the state, is the feed consumption pointed out by C. G. Card, contest superintendent.

In Michigan the average flock probably eats about the same amount of grain as it consumes in mash. The contest hens, originally numbering 897, ate 48,474 pounds of grain in 51 weeks. They ate 26,720 pounds of mash, a ratio of about 65 to 35 of grain to mash.

"With Michigan climate," Professor Card explains, "we have a theory that more grain is needed to make up for cold months."

Michigan pens rated third and fourth places in the contest. First place went to an entry from Modesto, Calif. A pen of white Leghorns laid 3,478 eggs, trailed by a Rochelle, Ill., entry credited with 3,164 eggs. Ford's Riverbank farm at Coopersville, Mich. was the third place pen with Rhode Island Reds laying 3,104 eggs. R. O. Wagemaker's Reds from Grand Rapids placed fourth with 3,059 eggs.

Birds surviving the 51 week competition numbered 647, showing a 28 per cent mortality. Two pens were able to finish with all 13 original birds. Seven pens had 12 remaining, 21 pens had 11 left, 10 had 10 survivors. Poorest showing is that scored by a pen which had but two birds alive. After laying a total of 159,153 eggs, the entry birds were shipped to owners in Michigan and a dozen other states. A new contest for 55 pens already has started for 1939-1940.

In every 1940 Buick you get the skilled engineering and sturdy quality traditional to Buick—enriched by all the extra values which General Motors science and Buick workmanship can provide

No, you couldn't do what we wanted to do, and do it cheap.

You couldn't set out to top the field, focusing on how much you could put in rather than take out—and with accustomed equipment keep costs down.

You couldn't micro-balance engines, heavy-up frames and running gear, strengthen bodies, enrich upholstery and fittings, improve performance, better the value per inch, per pound and per dollar—and do it with last year's methods.

So we faced it, re-tooled and renewed our vast modern plant all over again—put eight million new dollars on the line; the Buick line for 1940.

What did we get for it? Rather ask, what do you get? Listen.

You get a big beautiful brawny car styled to knock your eye out—the fashion pattern for them all next year, just look around and see.

You get a car that positively glitters in its brilliance of action, modern as television in the wondrous way it does things.

You get a marvelously engineered chassis, keeled like a battleship with its torque-tube backbone.

You get for your command that surging, soaring, millrace power of the matchless Dynaflex engine, now electrically balanced after assembly to micropoised perfection!

You get 72 new features, and more. You get pride, joy, satisfaction and thrill—for here you get Buick at its unbeatable best.

High School News

The high school Physics and Chemistry classes are busy preparing for the Community Fair on Friday of this week. Both laboratories will be open for inspection and observation of demonstrations and experimental work. Although the Science department is in the basement of the high school the pupils anticipate a goodly number of visitors, especially between 7 and 8 on Friday night.

The Hi-Y club will have an exhibit of their work in the gym. The public is cordially invited to inspect the display. Hi-Y really means the high school Y. M. C. A. and the local club is a member of the state and national organizations. This affiliation was made possible last year by the sale of leathercraft articles and other projects by the club. The bulk of the finances however came in the form of contributions from men and women in Chelsea. Any adult who wishes to help in the finances for this year will find contribution cards on the Hi-Y display case in the gym.

The Fall District Hi-Y meeting was held at Albion high school last Tuesday. Maynard Osterle, president of the local Hi-Y gave a report on the activities of Hi-Y club. Twelve of the twenty-five members attended. Merle Enyeart discussed "Hi-Y Organization and Membership". Mr. Enyeart is one of the State secretaries.

Another secretary from the State office, Bruce Tallman, gave an inspirational address on "The Good and the Pattern".

Similar meetings were held in six other cities in Michigan and the boys who attended them came in close contact with ideals and ideas to "Create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community, high standards of Christian character". The Hi-Y platform of clean speech, clean sports, clean scholarship and clean living" also had an important place in the conference meeting.

Covers were laid for 12 and cards were the diversion of the evening.

This payment was the second half of the funds appropriated to the counties under the McNitt township road law. Washtenaw county's portion of this payment is $33,453.11.

HOLD BOOSTER MEETING

A joint "Booster" meeting of Cavanaugh Lake and North Sylvan Granges was held Friday night at Salem Methodist church, with about 80 in attendance. LIBRARY NEWS

The following items have been gathered into a form letter to be presented for the approval of local book readers interested in group discussions:

It has been proposed that a group of book clubs be organized in the community, the purpose of the clubs to share the enjoyment of reading through a various selection of books.

Each club would be composed of about 12 members, one member to act as chairman.

Each member would be asked to buy one book which he would choose, or could be chosen by the club or on advice of the librarian.

Each club would arrange for book discussions of their selections and quarterly meetings would be held at the library.

All clubs purchasing books would be entitled to a 20 per cent discount and it is hoped that the books of each club would be donated to the library each year for loan to the public.

The closing date for organization has been set for Oct. 15 and it is hoped all persons wishing to join these clubs will arrange to enter their membership by that date with the librarian.

Following is a list of books recently added to the book shelves in the Public Library:

Catherine, the Great—Anthony.

Butterfly—K. Norris.

Last of the Plainsmen—Grey.

The Loving Spirit—Du Maurier.

The Four of Hearts—Queen.

JERUSALEM SCHOOL NEWS

The Jerusalem school began its year's work on Sept. 11, 1939, with an enrollment of 20. There was a delay in starting because our new desks had not come. We used card tables and chairs. We got along quite well. We got our new desks Sept. 28. We all think they are fine. We have made up two days of our lost time by going to school on Saturdays. Our school had been painted and varnished during the summer.

Everything is going along well and we are all working hard. We have four beginners who are doing well.

Some of us have written up some book-reports of books we have read.

We have each made a new arithmetic chart with clowns. They are looking quite well for the beginning.

We are working hard on Good English. We have a "Poor English Box."

We are trying not to get our names in it, so that we can get an apple on our Good English trees.

We each have a banner on our Spelling Chart which we get punched every time we get a A in spelling. We are each working hard to get a punch every day.

We are checked carefully in our morning inspection. We are aiming to keep the red string off our name on the inspection chart, which would look bad.

The president of our Civic Health club is Paul Guenther; the secretary is Junior Barth. We have made some good health posters on food, also written some stories and some of the children composed some poems to use on our program at the Health club meeting.

We enjoy hanging up our A papers. Many of us have some up.

Some of the children have drawn some good free hand pictures for Art. We are planning some new work for Art this year. The beginners and first grade too, are making some good contributions to our Art collection.

We have picture study once a week, on Wednesday. We have studied two pictures by Van Dyck. We write up a story of the artist and the picture after we have studied it.

We have current events every Thursday morning. We have found many interesting articles in our daily papers.

We have enjoyed reviewing some of our songs and musical compositions of last year.

The 7th and 8th grades have had several tests in history, as they finished a unit.

The 5th and 7th grades have found some pictures for their geography.

The 8th grade has completed several projects in their science. Every one of us is anxious to help them collect things for them. They are doing some nice work.

Mrs. Robinson visited our school this month. She is coming again Oct. 11.

Health Plan Approved By Doctors of State

Lansing—An apple a day doesn't always keep the doctor away, but low incomes have.

No one has known this better than 4,357 doctors in the Michigan State Medical society.

Two weeks ago these physicians, represented by official delegates in annual convention at Grand Rapids, officially approved a plan that is both liberal and daring. They hope that the experiment, for such it obviously is, may provide an intelligent answer to a problem that has long been a vexing one. That social significance of the step was widely recognized is shown by the fact that news of the society's action was placed on front pages prominently beside headlines of latest war bulletins from Europe.

The problem is an old one, of course. But it was only in recent years that the serenity of the medical man was disturbed gravely by the rise of a new spectre on the far horizon. It was that of state socialism.

At Washington a bill was prepared, for example, which would put the national and state governments headlong into the medical field. Doctors would be subsidized, if you please, so that the masses in the United States might be assured of the medical care which they need. The cost would rapidly mount into hundreds of millions, so another federal tax, similar to those for old age pensions and unemployment compensation, would logically follow to make it "self-supporting."

Insurance Policy

This is the background for the medical society's decision two weeks ago. Having first obtained legislative sanction to do it, the society has set up a plan whereby any family may obtain family medical service at low cost on the same principle as buying an insurance policy.

That involved an agreement on price, and the element of price has been something which, ten years ago, would have probably prevented even a preliminary discussion of the idea. Professional ethics were stern against the introduction of anything that faintly smacked of "commercialism." The mention of price had that unfortunate connotation to some.

Under the incorporation of the Michigan Medical Service, a non-profit group, physicians of Michigan now offer to provide full medical services to any individual or family which agrees to make small monthly payments. It is the installment plan combined with an insurance policy, all dignified by one of Michigan's leading professions as well as by the state legislature itself.

Operation of the plan will go into effect in the near future. The state will supervise it through its insurance department at Lansing.

What You Get

And now for the plan in a nutshell. For a subscription charge of $2.00 monthly, a family—including the husband and wife and all the children under 21 years of age—will be entitled to the service of a doctor of medicine of their own choice. The services offered include the following:

1. Medical and surgical care, including office, home and hospital visits.

2. Consultation service and special medical services including X-ray, laboratory, and anesthesia services.

3. Obstetrical care after subscriber has kept up payments for 12 months.

4. Diagnostic services necessary to determine the presence of tuberculosis, cancer, venereal diseases, or mental ailments. (Actual treatments for these conditions not included).

Plan Is Flexible

But the payment is not fixed. The $2.00 monthly amount, for example, entitles the family to medical benefits up to $375 in any one year.

For $3.50 a month, the family is entitled to $550 in a year.

For $4.50 a month, the medical services may reach $875 in a year.

At the outset subscribers to the plan will be limited to employed persons under the age of 65 who can be enrolled in groups of 25 or more. Such subscribers may, however, also enroll their dependents including the husband or wife and children under 21 years of age. An annual income not in excess of $2,000 for individual subscribers or $2,500 for subscribers and their families will be a membership requirement.

Restrictions are as few as possible. Medical services will not be made available for self-imposed conditions such as alcoholism, drug addiction and self-inflicted injuries. To limit demands for trivial services, the first $5 of medical expenses incurred each year must be paid by the subscriber. Subscribers will be entitled to free choice of any doctor of medicine legally licensed and practicing in the State of Michigan.

Hospital Plan Too

While the medical installment and insurance policy plan is brand new, Michigan being the first state to take such a step, an approved hospital plan on the same basis is now functioning in 25 states. Eleven states have rejected a plan for group hospitalization; twelve states have it now under consideration.

In Michigan this parallel service is sponsored by the Michigan Society for Group Hospitalization.

During the first five months of its operation in 1939, more than 40,000 subscribers were enrolled.

Ninety-five per cent of all hospitals in the state and all but five of those institutions having 50 beds or more, are participating in the movement.

The hospital plan provides 21 days of hospital service a year for each member of the family irrespective of number, furnishing complete service in a semi-private room (or ward) in any member hospital. Other benefits include use of operation room as often as necessary, anesthesia service when rendered by a salaried employee of the hospital, all routine clinical laboratory service, and ordinary drugs and dressings. After a subscriber has held a membership in the plan for twelve consecutive months, maternity service is furnished. This includes care for the mother and infant in a semi-private room or ward.

There are no age limits for adults, no physical examinations, no exemptions of chronic conditions, no given percentage of a group is required, and only ten need enroll to make the plan effective.

A cash deposit is not required from the subscriber at the time of admission to the hospital. He is admitted upon presentation of his identification card, and the hospital sends the bill to the society for the services rendered.

3. Consultation service and special medical services including X-ray, lab-

"insurance policy" are as low as 2c per day for the individual and 5c a day for the entire family.

Monthly rates are: Single subscriber, ward 60c; room 75c; husband and wife, ward $1.20, room $1.50; family (children 1 to 19), ward $1.50, room $1.90.

The same legislature which authorized the group medical plan gave sanction to the hospitalization program.

The 77 participating hospitals, with assets of over $65,000,000 further agree to return any surplus accrued in the operation of the plan to the subscriber either in the form of reduced rates or increased benefits.

Regimenting of Medicine

With doctors and hospitals themselves taking the step to insure proper medical care to those of moderate incomes, the Michigan State Medical society believes that there is no social justification for regimentation of American medicine.

According to Dr. Edward J. McCormick of Toledo, past grand exalted ruler of Elks, "it is entirely in the realm of possibility that the Wagner program (subsidized health service) could double the present budget within the next decade. Can the United States stand the shock of the Wagner program without another depression? Any school child could answer that question."

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Lovely, independent Autumn Dean, returning home to British Columbia from abroad without her father's knowledge, stops at the home of Hector Cardigan, an old family friend. He tells her that she should have come home, that things have changed, and that he is a widower. Her mother, former belle named Millicent Odell, has been dead for years. Autumn cannot understand her father's attitude, though she gives him to understand that she is home for good. She has grown tired of life in England, where she lived with an aunt.

When Bruce finally dismounted before the doorway and stretched his hand up to her, she laid her own slender one within it and got down. For a moment she clung to his hand and hesitated.

"Wait, Bruce," she whispered, and the thought struck her that she should not have come like this to see Jane Landor.

He smiled down upon her and folded his other hand over hers. "You look—frightened," he said, leaning close to her.

She followed him into the house. The large room was in darkness, in a trembling haze from the room and out of the house.

CHAPTER III

Breakfast in the Dean household had always been a ritual. In his busiest season Jarvis Dean nevertheless attended his table of a morning with the leisurely grace of a country gentleman. If a man could not begin the day becomingly, the Laird maintained, he had better remain in bed.

He was in good spirits this morning as he sat in his place, his daughter on his right and old Hannah opposite him at the end of the table nearest the kitchen. Hannah Stewart had, since the death of her mistress twenty years before, been accustomed to eating with the family unless there were guests. This arrangement had seemed to Jarvis to be the most sensible one while Autumn was small and had to be attended to, and later Hannah was so much one of the family that it was unthinkable that she should eat alone. Hannah had seen to it that the paper streamers and other decorations that had festooned the dining room for the dance of the night before had been cleared away and the place restored to its wonted homely austerity. She would give her attention to the drawing room and the rest of the house as soon as the meal was over. Here in this room, however, life had returned to its accustomed way.

To Autumn, it seemed that some perverse fate had ordered the quiet scene so that she might find it impossible to seek an answer to the questions that had assailed her mind throughout an almost sleepless night. She had ridden home from the Landor place and had returned to her father's guests with a feeling that some curse had been laid upon her. She had moved about under a black spell that was as unreal to her as a delirious dream. And when it was all over and the last guest had gone, she had hurried to her room and lain awake until dawn.

Her father turned his eyes searchingly upon her as she seated herself at the breakfast table.

"It was a little too much for you, that business last night," he observed gently. "You look stale this morning."

"I didn't sleep well," Autumn admitted. "I'll be all right when I've had a little rest."

She had permitted her father to know only that she had indulged an impulse last night to get away alone for a ride in the moonlight; it had been impossible to tell him of her frightening visit to the Landors.

"I don't know what's wrong with the women nowadays," Jarvis continued. "In my time a young woman could dance all night and go to work the next day and be none the worse for it. But the women today have gone to pot."

Old Hannah sniffed. "I don't see that your men nowadays show much to brag about."

The Laird smiled. "Aye, they're a feckless lot, and have a mighty high opinion of themselves."

"It's hard to judge the present by the past, Da," Autumn ventured.

"Aye, my girl, there's something in that, too. It's the times that make the difference. It was a hard life we lived when I was a youngster—and it made hard men of us."

And hard women, too, Autumn thought, her mind upon Jane Landor.

"It'd take more than a hard life to make anything of the like of that Par lad, I'm thinking," Hannah suggested.

"There's no way of telling that," Jarvis countered. "There's good blood in the boy. His father comes of a good line."

"The world's full of fools who can boast of good fathers before them, then," said Hannah stoutly.

"Right enough," declared Jarvis, chuckling to himself. "It takes two to breed even a flock of culls."

"Will you be using the car today, Da?" Autumn asked abruptly.

"No. I'll be down at the pens till supper. Haven't you done enough traveling to be content for a while?"

"I have some things to do in town, she said. 'I'll leave right away and

'Big Eddy'
When a Columbia river logger talks of "Big Eddy," he is not discussing one of his friends or "side-kicks," he is speaking of Portland's Third avenue, known to loggers throughout the west as a rendezvous where fallers, buckers, high-climbers, donkey-punchers, rigging-slingers, and hook-tenders can find a kindred soul. That part of Third avenue between West Burnside street and the Steel bridge was christened "Big Eddy" because of the way the river in the old days cast up foams and jetsam near the foot of West Burnside.

Oregon 'Cabin Fever' Was Caused by Frayed Nerves

Although the Oregon logger once considered a broken arm or leg a minor accident, and a thing to be expected in the course of everyday work, the most common malady affecting "brushcrafter" in the old days was a purely imaginary ailment called "cabin fever," which is still prevalent in camps off the beaten path. When two loggers were bunked together for months at a time a case of "nerves" was often the result. While their daily savings mounted, a feeling of caged frustration increased likewise, until one of the men finally came down with "cabin-fever." His cabin mate might be a pal of years' standing, yet he would suddenly seem obnoxious; his laugh would seem intolerable, and even the color of his eyes, or the part in his hair appear distinctly repulsive. When the logger with "cabin-fever" drew his pay, he usually set out for the nearest town to blow in his savings on a wild and hectic spree. Generally he returned with empty pockets, and a hangover—to find his partner a congenial soul once more.

Toy-Shop Bear

The Koala bear, for which the Australian government is reported to be seeking additional protection, is the living copy of the teddy bear found in toy shops, according to the National Geographic society. "With beady eyes, pointed noses, and short, sturdy bodies, they are among nature's least offensive creatures. Their habits are curiously human. A cuffing by the mother bear for misbehavior will bring cries from the young one that resemble those of an unhappy child. Once very common in Australia but now seen only in the east and south-east part of the continent, the Koala bear has been nearly exterminated by hunting (for the sake of the fur), and by the ravages of an epidemic of half a century ago."

100 Cats for Farmers—Gratis

When Italian farmers at Ferrara find mice and other rodents a little too plentiful they call the local office of the agricultural federation and within 24 hours a horse and wagon carrying about 100 half-starved pussies is wheeled up to Mr. and Mrs. John Farmer's back door, opened, and a mice vs. cat rampage is on. In two days the farm is virtually rid of rodents. The agricultural federation then sends its wagon back and has an easy time collecting their cats who lie basking in the warm sun after a feline banquet. The service is gratis to farmers by the government.

Insulin Discovery

Insulin was discovered by two Canadian physicians, Drs. Frederick G. Banting and J. J. R. McLeod, but the greater share of the credit has been given to Dr. Banting. At the time the discovery was announced in 1922, Dr. Banting held the office of resident surgeon of the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto. The insulin treatment had been used under the supervision of its discoverers for a while before it was announced, but its general use dates from 1922.
