1940 Acreage Goals and Payments Announced

National acreage goals for principal crops and the rates at which participating farmers can earn payments under the 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program were announced this week.

Commenting on the 1940 farm program, Harry M. Cole, Washtenaw County AAA secretary, said that the new program is basically the same as in 1939, except that it offers more opportunities for soil conservation. Mr. Cole also said that more opportunities for participation by small farms are included in the 1940 program.

A national soil-depleting crop goal of between 270 and 285 million acres has been set. This is the same as the 1939 goal. This acreage, at normal yields, will provide ample supplies for all domestic needs, for export requirements, and for an adequate reserve.

The total wheat allotment is 62 million acres, or 7 million higher than 1939. The corn allotment for the commercial corn area is about 4 1/2 million acres below 1939. The reduction in the corn allotment has been made because of the large quantity of corn which is now in storage all through the corn belt.

Payments on the normal yields of allotted acreages of corn, wheat, potatoes and commercial vegetables will again be made to participating farmers.

Lower acreage goals for corn have resulted in a higher rate of payment.

Following are the 1940 conservation program payment rates on important Michigan crops:

	1940	1939
Corn, per bu.	$ .10	$ .09
Wheat, per bu.	.09	.17
Potatoes, per bu.	.03	.03
Commercial vegetables, per acre	1.50	1.50
General soil-depleting crops, per acre	1.10	.99

Payments for wheat and corn will be supplemented by parity payments if the 1939 season average price is less than 75 per cent of parity. These payments are designed to lift farm purchasing power to the level it occupied before the World War.

The rates per acre which will be used in computing payments for carrying out approved soil-building practices are practically the same as for 1939. The only exception is the increase in the allowance for non-depleting acreage from 50 to 55 cents per acre.

The minimum payment to small farms has been increased to $20, and each farm may earn as much as $30, in addition to all other payments, for planting forest trees.

The change in the amount of credit farmers can earn by soil-building practices is one of the most important revisions in the 1940 program. As a means of obtaining more conservation, the rate of credit has been reduced for several soil-building practices which are normally carried out on a large proportion of farms. By reducing the rate of credit for these practices, increased emphasis is given to soil-building practices which are not normally carried out on a large number of farms. Changes in the credits do not affect the amount which a farmer may earn by soil-building, but merely change the requirements for earning it. As a result of changes in credit for practices, it is anticipated that farmers will use their soil-building allowances for increasing conservation practices badly needed, while maintaining those practices normally carried out.

REBEKAHS HOLD PARTY

The Rebekahs held their Christmas party at L. O. O. F. hall on Friday night, beginning with a cooperative supper at 6:30, after which a Christmas program was given as follows:

Recitation—Jerry Lehman.
Song Drill—George and Franklin Sweeney, Jerry Lehman, Donna and Leota Altstaetter.

Recitation—Christmas Jingle—Eunice Lehman.

Guitar selections—Loren Munro.
Recitation—A Christmas Greeting—Phyllis Munro.

Tap dance—Donna and Leota Altstaetter.

Reading—White Christmas—Mrs. Helen Schatz.

Solo—There's a Song in the Air—Robert Breitenwischer.

Reading—The Day After Christmas—Mrs. Lula Sweeney.

Group singing.

Gifts were exchanged and each was presented with a Christmas stocking, filled with candy and nuts, the gift of the lodge.

BLACK BEAR ON DISPLAY

Wm. Weber has a black bear at his meat market which was killed during the hunting season by Chas. Dietorle. The animal has been in cold storage for some time. The kiddies are invited to call at the market to see the bear.

NOBLE GRANTS MEET

The Past Noble Grants met last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Anna McDonald, where a chicken dinner was served at 12 o'clock. Gifts were exchanged and the name of the secret pill was disclosed at this meeting.

BOOKS ON EFFECTS OF ALCOHOL
TO BE DISTRIBUTED BY GROUP

North Lake Community W. C. T. U. (Women's Christian Temperance Union) was recently organized at North Lake. Its members consist of women and men of North Lake, Dexter and Chelsea. The men become honorary members by signing the total abstinence pledge and paying $1.00 dues annually. (They may talk at meetings but cannot vote). Their dues are used in the community to place books and papers in schools and libraries to teach people "What Alcohol Is and What It Does."

Part of the dues paid by the women members goes all over the world to teach the gospel of Temperance. By "Temperance" they mean healthful moderate indulgence in things benefited but total abstinence from things harmful, as intoxicating liquors.

The motto of the W. C. T. U. is "For God and Home and Native Land." The W. C. T. U. has been called "Organized Mother Love" and its aim is to protect the home from the liquor traffic.

Liquor as a home wrecker is becoming so familiar that it is incumbent upon the W. C. T. U. to intensify its work of educating the youth of America to temperance. Children in court are an everyday sight. Judges tell us that more sex crimes and crimes of violence are being committed today more than ever before and that the two great contributing causes are liquor and broken homes, and liquor is the root of seventy-five per cent of the broken homes in America today.

Visit your library and see the books and pamphlets and leaflets recently placed there by the North Lake Community W. C. T. U. Your children will want to read "Pioneer Girl." The old and young will want to read the scientific facts about alcohol as contained in the Temperance Library.

Mrs. H. G. Pearce, president of W. C. T. U.

CHRISTMAS PARTY

The Chat 'N' Sea held their annual Christmas party last Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. R. W. Barber. About 30 members and guests were present. A delicious supper was served at seven o'clock at tables prettily decorated with Christmas greens and lighted red tapers. A short musical program was given after the supper. Gifts were exchanged.

Officials and Teachers Subject To Income Tax

Giles Kavanaugh, Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Michigan, announces that several thousand new income taxpayers are to be added to his already large list of 370,000 Michigan persons who will file income tax returns under the provisions of the Public Salary Tax Act of 1939.

This law passed at the last session of Congress puts to rest the old question of public salary taxation. The salary of federal employees has always been taxable, but until this year, beginning January 1, 1939, state salaries were not taxable under federal taxing authority. All public school teachers, all state and county officials, and city and village executives and employees must pay income tax. Some of them have been paying tax on income received from other sources, but until the current year have not been required to include the salary received as a teacher or public official. Married couples, where one or the other has income from the state or a political subdivision, must now combine their incomes to determine taxability.

For 1939 and subsequent years, the tax is upon the net income which is determined by subtracting the allowable deductions and personal exemptions from the gross income. Ordinary deductions are interest paid on indebtedness (like a mortgage on a home), all taxes paid (except income and improvement tax), benevolences to one's church or any organized charity, bad debts which became worthless during the year for which the return was made, and 10 per cent of earned net income. The personal exemption of husband and wife living together is $2,500, and an additional $400 for each child under 18 years of age. Single persons without dependents have an exemption of $1,000. Persons with a gross income of $5,000 or more should file their returns on Form 1040; those below $5,000 on Form 1040-A.

These forms may be procured from the Collector of Internal Revenue, Detroit, Mich., and will be available after January 6, 1940. These should be executed and mailed to reach his office by March 15, 1940. The forms contain full information relative to their preparation.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Fleming of Washington St. announced the engagement of their two daughters at a family dinner on Christmas day—Sarah Josette to Walter Braden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Braden of Monroe, Mich., and Margaret Mary to John William Steele, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Steele of Chelsea.

COUNTY CHURCH COUNCIL

The annual meeting of the Washtenaw Council of Churches and Christian Education will meet on Monday, January 8 at 6:30 at the Bethlehem Evangelical church, Ann Arbor. The banquet will cost forty cents a plate. There will be speaking and special music. Each church in the county may send five delegates and as many visitors as it may wish.

GOLDEN WEDDING MONDAY

Employ 214 In County

There are 214 youths employed on the Michigan National Youth Administration work projects program in Washtenaw county at the present time, according to Orin W. Kaye, State Administrator.

Employment on the work projects program reached a record level of 10,917 persons during the past month, according to figures made public by Kaye.

The number of needy youth between the ages of 18 and 24 inclusive to be given part-time jobs is the highest for any single month since the establishment of the National Youth Administration. Each county is allotted a quota in proportion to the number of unemployed youth in the state. Described by Kaye as "exploratory work experience" this employment is designed to better a youth's chances of obtaining a job in private industry. Attesting to the soundness of this program is the fact that an average of 300 youth leave the NYA rolls each month for private employment and attribute much of their success to experience gained on the NYA projects.

The type of work on which these youth are employed includes highway, road, and street improvement; improvement of grounds around public buildings; work in educational buildings; construction of social and recreational buildings; construction of airport buildings and facilities; construction of recreation facilities other than buildings; conservation, irrigation and flood control; clerical assistance; public health and hospital work; library service and book repair; recreational leadership; work shops; sewing; resident projects; nursery, schools, and homemaking.

At the present time there are 10,917 youth on the Michigan work projects program. With the facility of certification made possible by a recent arrangement with the Michigan State Employment Service, much of the red tape in placing needy youth on NYA projects has been eliminated. This also obviates the necessity of passing through the county relief machinery.

Projects of the National Youth Administration have been designed to aid in solving the problems immediately facing young people, at the same time making allowance for the situations they will face when they are adults. Since women have traditionally occupied the position of home maker, many of the projects have been designed to conserve and develop the skills of young women in the domestic arts. Many young women also are receiving work experience in commercial subjects, such as typewriting, shorthand and bookkeeping which will help them in securing employment in offices and elsewhere in industry where this type of skill is valuable. The clerical projects operated as part of the NYA program have not only provided useful community service but have given many girls their first opportunity to receive practical experience in the vocational field they have chosen.

There are also work shops and resident work projects for young men so that they may gain experience in operating machines and learning handicraft skills that will help them obtain employment in industry, and in many cases agricultural training is offered to fit youth for farm work.

Milk Marketing Act
Is No Panacea For Farmers' Problems

By Gene Alleman

Lansing—If the farmer thinks that Michigan's new milk marketing act is going to solve all his dairy troubles, he is badly mistaken!

It provides no panacea. Fixing milk prices for both producers and consumers is a daring innovation, legally upheld by the United States supreme court, as being within a state's power. Whether the Michigan state constitution permits this is another matter; two suits now pend which challenge the act's constitutionality.

But the problem of milk control is intricate. Complications are numerous. Here are a few of them.

Changing World

Once upon a time (probably in grandfather's day) the farmer daily milked his cows, transported milk to the consumer's front gate, transferred it from his containers to those provided by the consumer, and thus pocketed a few pennies profit on each quart. Surplus milk was converted into butter or fed to the hogs.

Then the village grew into an industrial center. Living became complex.

The changed world produced the distributor with an elaborate pasteurization plant, a testing laboratory, and a fleet of delivery trucks and drivers. The farmer sold his milk right at his farm gate; "surplus" not needed for fluid consumption was converted into butter, cheese or condensed milk—non-perishable commodities which could be kept for months.

From state agricultural colleges came the science of dairying whereby milk production could be controlled by proper breeding and care of cows. Labor discovered the weapon of collective bargaining. The distributor, anxious to have a ready supply of milk close at hand, encouraged farmers to increase milk production. Then a declining birth rate, due to the depression, curtailed consumption of milk.

Thus you have the modern picture of production surplus, higher labor costs, and lagging consumption.

The cry arose for government to intervene—to "save the day". It became the "political" thing to do, and thus Michigan's milk marketing act was born.

Farmer at Fault?

Instead of controlling milk production to meet a constant steady demand (peak consumption comes from Sept. to Dec. inclusively), the Michigan farmer has been inclined to breed his cows so that they freshen in the spring when pastures are green rather than in the fall when feeding costs are high.

Then the matter of better bred cows. The average production of dairy cows in Michigan is 4,800 lbs. per cow per year. Yet state-owned dairy herds (which are maintained to provide a steady supply of milk for inmates and employees of state institutions) produce an average of 13,000 pounds per cow per year.

Quite a difference! Fewer animals are needed; feed and labor expense are less; the return of profit to the owner is greater.

These factors tend to increase production costs—costs which must come out of earnings of the farmer.

Distribution Costs

On the other hand the milk distributor is open to criticism that he has encouraged farmers to increase milk production so that a ready surplus of supply would be always available at a low price.

Because milk production lags during the season of higher consumption, the distributor is usually willing to buy heavily at this time. He then cartloads buying in the spring when production is up and when consumption is down.

Duplication in distribution costs is another factor tending to keep up consumer prices. A study made in Milwaukee showed that seven companies maintained deliveries in the same 147 blocks; six companies did so in 146 blocks. The alternative to free competition would be to create a milk utility like that for the telephone, electricity, gas or transportation. Who wants that?

Distributors also cater to consumer whims. To retain a customer, the distributor will send a truck on a special trip to deliver a bottle of milk—a trip which means additional expense eventually added to the consumer's bill.

Consumer is Next

We pointed out last week that Detroit labor took as much out of the consumer's milk bill (home-delivery price) as did the farmer-producer. Detroit milk truck drivers, for example, have probably the best organized C. I. O. union in the city—the only large union which has a "check-off" whereby the distributor deducts dues from wages and hands them over to the union.

Next is the consumer, interested in getting a good product and in paying a fair price (the lower the better!). There is some evidence that the price of fresh-delivered milk since 1933 "has been higher than the index of the entire cost of living". (Quotation from Fortune magazine survey, November, 1939).

Then per capita consumption of milk dropped 6.89 per cent between 1929 and 1936. Why? Fewer babies were born during hard-times; family earnings were less; milk prices declined 22 per cent in 1932 while consumer income went down 40 per cent.

The 1939 milk marketing act, now functioning in Michigan, is of two years' duration. Being an experiment, its permanence will depend upon how well it works, or does not work. As such, it bears close watching by the public.

THE HI-LIGHT*It's Waltz Time

With dance time every Tuesday the students of the high school go to the ballroom (gym) where dancing technique and social etiquette are taught for two 45-minute periods. Waltz, square dance and many other old fashioned dances are taught. This program is in connection with Henry Ford's social teaching plan.

There are eleven people teaching over 12,000 students per week. The courses are taught both in high schools and colleges. Over 70 institutions are taking part. The Chelsea teacher is Mr. Morkiewicz, with Mr. Bohle at the piano.

The students of the high school are receiving this new plan with great enthusiasm and are showing their sportsmanship in courteous attention to instructions.

There has been a need for such a plan and the students of the high school wish to thank the Ford Motor Company.

This is the best citizenship theme: What is Citizenship?

By Naida Olson

What is citizenship? Many people don't know. Let's pretend someone asked you what citizenship is, what would you say? If someone asked me I would tell them that citizenship is good manners in the home, in public, and in public buildings.

By good manners in the home I mean don't butt in when someone else is speaking, talk as quietly as possible when you are speaking to someone. Keep your room neat. After you read magazines and papers put them back where they belong. These things are all good manners to practice in the home.

By good manners in public I mean keep yourself from appearing conspicuous. Be careful not to bump into other people. Don't shout across the street to a friend. Practice these manners in public and people will like you better.

There is one good manner everyone should follow, no matter where they are, and that is, do not make any unnecessary noises.

Sixth Grade

Leroy M. and Edwin L., Reporters

We have a weight chart in our room. Wednesday, Dec. 20 we will be weighed again. We are all anxious to see if we have gained or lost since last month.

The sixth grade is making posters about keeping off the lawns, mostly on rainy days.

An Indian Princess came to the school last Wednesday morning and the grades went to see her. She gave a talk on health. We are sending for some booklets on health. We are to learn the health rules and color the pictures that are in the booklets. They will come from the Michigan Tuberculosis Association. The sale of the Christmas Seals makes it possible for us to get them free.

The sixth grade are going to be more quiet in the hall when we pass to recess.

We had a set of Encyclopaedia in our room Dec. 14 to look up the Suez Canal and the Panama Canal.

Barbara Eaton gave a special report on diamond mining near Kimberly in South Africa. She gave it in the form of a letter. It was very good.

We received our report cards Wednesday, Dec. 13 and most of us are pleased with our grades. Those who are not pleased will try to do better next month.

We are reading a new Christmas story. The name is "Christmas Truants". The author is Frank R. Stockton.

Proverb—One cannot always be a hero but one can always be a man.

Reporters: Edwin Lantis and Anne Lamberton

Anne Lamberton was sick all day December 20. She came to school after her assignments for December 21. When she came to school the next day she had all her lessons. Anne's mother came to visit our class December 21 and heard us prepare our news items.

For our Christmas party we thought we would decorate our table for presents so we chose a committee. They were Leroy May, chairman, Barbara Eaton, Joanne Shutes, Anne Lamberton, Laverne Holbrook. The people who brought materials are Barbara Eaton, Laverne Holbrook, Evelyn Otto printed "Merry Christmas" and a Happy New Year" on the board.

We have a "Seeing Eye Guide." It is a pamphlet telling how people can get around with their "Seeing Eye Dogs." Some of the people go to college with their wonderful dogs.

Some children told the class Christmas stories Dec. 20. Their names are John Wellnitz, June Vail, Robert Faber, Myra Townsend, Joanne Shutes, Bobby Robbins, Leroy May, and Breitenvischer.

We are going to study transportation in our Elson Basic Readers. We have cleared the bulletin board so we can put up pictures about transportation.

Proverb—"Diligence is the Mother of Good Luck."

We hope you had a very Merry Christmas and will have a Happy New Year.

Almanacs for 1940 Are Ready for Distribution

A sure sign of the New Year's approach came with announcement by J. E. Johnson, manager in this area for the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, that the 1940 Telephone Almanac is ready for distribution.

The new almanac, one of the first for 1940 to make its appearance, is the 13th issued by the company. It covers a period marking the 64th year of the telephone in the world and the 62nd year of the telephone in Michigan.

As a reminder of the past, the almanac is printed, illustrated, and phrased in much the same style and language as the real old-time almanacs. It contains the usual monthly calendars with historical references for each day of the year. There also are the 12 astronomical monthly calendars for 1940, together with sun and moon calculations and instructions for their use.

Through the pages of the almanac also are found the signs of the zodiac, information on eclipses for 1940, a statement as to the chronological eras, and even a rebus for young readers. Illustrations and descriptive material contrast events and customs in the early years of the nation's history with those of the present day.

One of the features of the almanac is a list of 12 historical events in the history of the United States which emphasize the importance of communications in shaping the destiny of the country and of its unity. These events also point to the part the telephone has played in bringing the United States into closer touch with other countries of the world.

Sweden's Royal Family

The London Times recently reminded readers contemplating a visit to Sweden that that country's royal family is so democratic, tourists dining in Stockholm's hotels recently find members of the king's family at nearby tables.

Paid for Monkey's Bite

Uttered by a monkey, Ruby Lee, 15 years old, of Illington, England, was awarded $75 damages against the owner of the animal.

Question And Answer Dept.

Problem—Do you know what is older than his mother? (Look for answer elsewhere in this department).

Ques.—What is the class of mail for postal cards and picture postcards?

Ans.—Both postal cards and picture postcards are transmitted as first-class mail.

Ques.—Can you answer me as to who it was that said: "Don't fire until you see the whites of their eyes?"

Ans.—This famous admonition was given by General Putnam to the colonial troops at the Battle of Bunker Hill in 1775.

Ques.—Which President of the United States had the largest number of children?

Ans.—John Tyler. He had eight sons and six daughters by two marriages. His immediate predecessor had ten children—six sons and four daughters, all full brothers and sisters.

Ques.—Can you tell me how long parrots live to be?

Ans.—It is very difficult to determine the natural life of a parrot. It is known that the macaw parrot in Italy has lived in captivity over 200 years. African gray parrots in Europe have been known to live 100 years. The Mexican parrots, those most common in this country, average about 20 years in captivity.

Answer to problem—Vinegar, of course. The mother is younger.

Ques.—Is it true that William Penn, the Quaker who founded Philadelphia, was a slave-owner?

Ans.—Yes. William Penn was the owner of Negro slaves at the time of his death. This was before slavery was restricted to the southern States.

Ques.—On which side of a country road should a pedestrian walk if there are no side paths?

Ans.—In the interest of safety, pedestrians should walk on the left side—facing on-coming vehicles. This is recommended by all traffic regulations.

Ques.—Does the United States have any National Parks besides those on the mainland?

Ans.—Yes. One in Hawaii which was created in 1916, and one in Alaska, which was created in 1917. The one in Hawaii is situated in the south central portion and contains two active volcanoes.

Ques.—I would like you to tell me why a ship pumps oil when it contemplates a rescue?

Ans.—Oil has a tendency to calm and quiet a rough sea. From this we get the old saying "pour" oil on troubled waters.

Ques.—What do ostriches eat? I am told they will eat anything, including meat, jewelry, etc.

Ans.—By nature ostriches are herbivorous. Those in captivity are usually pastured on alfalfa in the summer; in the winter they are fed alfalfa hay, wheat bran, barley, oats and corn. They require grit, too, and they have a voracious appetite for stones, gravel, granite and pieces of bone. They will not eat meat unless forced by extreme hunger.

Time of Death Undetermined

It is not known when the volcanoes of Auvergne, France, became dormant.

Farmers' Week Date
January 29 to Feb. 3

Plans for the 25th annual Farmers' Week program at Michigan State College get under way with the announcement that the dates for the nationally outstanding event at East Lansing are January 29 through February 8.

As general chairman for the event, E. L. Anthony, dean of agriculture, is anticipating even greater service to and dividends realized by those who attend, for the college is able to utilize three new buildings.

In the new fieldhouse, for instance, the general evening programs in which rural visitors gain a better picture of the state's agricultural greatness can be seen by twice the huge crowds which in previous years have consistently squeezed into Demonstration Hall on Wednesday and Thursday nights. Even at that the arena open for events will be larger.

Use of the new music building will provide other space previously not available. Music and speech department programs are planned.

Then there is the new Livestock Pavilion offering a sizeable arena and seats for more than 3,000 spectators. Livestock judging for the annual colt development, swine, sheep and beef production contests will culminate in this space, as well as the student's Little International fitting and showmanship competition.

Resumption of the annual turkey show will be permitted through use of some of the space in the huge new field house.

With greater space for the many-sided educational affair which puts in review all phases of the state's agricultural problems and scientific solution, the college staff hopes to retain national leadership in attendance and scope of programs which have been attracting fifty to sixty thousand visitors during the week in recent years.

Lima

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schiller and family spent Christmas day at the home of Mrs. Michael Schiller.

And now another evening was coming serenely to a close, as though the stars of the night before, when she had gone alone to see Bruce, had not shrunk out of the sky, as though all beauty had not become ashes in her heart. Jarvis had gone to his library after dinner, and Autumn sat at the piano, her hands lying idly over the keys, her eyes inattentively noting the blue dusk that stole from the open window and made a strange, impalpable color of a great bowl of yellow roses.

Presently her hands fell from the keyboard and lay listlessly in her lap. At a sound from the hall, she turned and saw her father standing in the doorway, his cigar in his fingers, his eyes fixed upon her with an unwanted tenderness.

"What was that you were playing, Autumn?" he asked after a moment.

"That was Grondahl's 'Serenade,' Da," she told him.

"I've heard you play it before—and I've asked the name of it," he said, "but I can never seem to remember. Play it again, I like it."

He came into the room and went to a large chair that stood to one side of the French windows where he sat gazing out into the still light of the garden as Autumn played. When she came to the end at last, he did not speak, and Autumn got up and moved to the console where the roses stood. She caressed an opulent, full-blown, yellow bloom with thoughtful fingers.

"No more music?" Jarvis enquired at last, a wistful note in his voice that hurt the bruised part of her being.

"Perhaps—later," she said quietly.

"Aye," he said, "I suppose one must be in the mood for it. But that bit, now—the one you just played—means something. It brings a light to one when he hears it."

Old Saint Pat ambled into the room and settled himself on a rug at his master's feet. Autumn left the roses and walked to a chair near her father's.

"Da," she said gently, "what would you say to my going back to Aunt Flor?"

The Laird turned slowly in his chair and looked at her across his shoulder. She glanced at him—insouciantly, almost without interest in how he should respond to her question. She had really not meant it for a question so much as an announcement.

But the helpless, almost childlike look of dejection that appeared promptly in his eyes gave her a moment's disquietude.

He bent forward and clasped his hands. "You wish to go, Autumn?" he asked, his voice grown wistful.

"Da," she replied, "one can't always do just what one would like to do. I came here because I wanted to—and I've managed to make a mess of everything since I've come."

Jarvis sighed heavily. "I'm sorry, my dear. It hasn't been your fault, either."

"It's the fault of no one in particular," Autumn said. "It was just in the cards."

"Aye, I know. You're still thinking of Geoffrey's son. Isn't that it?"

"I'm thinking—of everything," she responded. "I can't go on living here—with things as they are. I've done my best, Da—or my worst, perhaps, you would say. It will be easier for everyone concerned if I get back to the other side of the world."

She got up again and went to stand before the window. There followed a long silence burdened with the impasse to which their emotions had come. She heard her father clear his throat with a deep rumble, and then she knew that he had risen and was coming slowly toward her. His hand lay for a moment gently upon her shoulder, but she did not turn to look at him.

"I'm sorry, my girl," he muttered. "I cannot tell you how sorry I am. I had hoped—somehow—that you might be happy here—after a time—in spite of everything. I had hoped for too much, it seems."

"I had, too," Autumn replied. "But it wasn't to be."

"I shall miss you more now than ever," Jarvis said, and then, after a long silence, "But you must not stay because of that, Autumn."

"You are making it easy for me to go," Autumn said, somewhat abruptly in spite of herself.

"The old man went back to his chair," Autumn said at last, "don't be impatient with me tonight. I'm tired—and your music—"

"I didn't mean that, Da," she said quickly and went to him at once. The Laird's head sank forward, his eyes staring out upon the garden.

"I'd be just as glad if I could make it easy for you to stay," he said. "Sometimes I think you—"

His voice stopped and he swept his eyes with his hand. Autumn threw her arms around him and pressed him close to her in silence. Presently he freed himself gently from her embrace.

"You think of your father, as a coward, Autumn," he said scowling. "I may have more courage than you know. Yesterday—when the boy came to see me—I thought I might tell him—tell him all that I told you one night upstairs; there—I have my senses still, and I can see things still—with my own eyes. All your silly carrying-on this summer—with that mad crowd of Elliot Parr's—it didn't blind me to the truth. I've known from the first what was behind it. I've spent days and nights thinking about it. And when the boy came—before he came to me, I thought—I thought—the right thing to do would be to tell him—so that he'd know—so that he'd understand. Then, I thought—he could do what he liked—and you could do what you liked—and I wouldn't raise a hand to stop it, one way or the other. But—there's no way of accounting for these things, it seems. He came to me—and he stood there—as if he had been Geoffrey Lander, himself—proud, insolent, careless—and I offered him money for the loss of his sheep. I don't think I expected him to take it—but his manner stirred something in me. It stirred the bitterness and the hatred and the pride that have filled me for twenty years—and I turned him out! He paused for a moment. And now—I am turning you out, it seems."

"No, Da," Autumn protested, "it isn't so. You mustn't say that. I am going back—as I told you—because I think it will be best for us all."

Jarvis Dean drew himself up. "Have him over—tonight—in the morning," he said. "Bring him here—and I'll tell him. I'll tell him all I told you. When he has heard—"

"Father, please!" Autumn pleaded. "That would only hurt him—and it would only hurt me. You would be doing that for me, and it would be quite useless. If I love Bruce Lander, it's only another of my silly blunders. I'll get over it—with the ocean between us it ought to be easy. I'm not so hopeless that I shall go on forever breaking my heart over someone who doesn't care for me."

The Laird raised his head and looked at her. "You mean—he—"

"I mean—he doesn't love me, Da," she said, smiling down at him, "though there's nothing so strange about that."

Jarvis was thoughtful for a moment. Then he got up quickly and stood looking at his half-smoked cigar. "I didn't think he'd be such a damned young fool!" he said.

Autumn laughed suddenly, but the Laird looked at her sternly. "I'll be as you say, then," he said. "It's better so. I'll sell up in the fall and join you."

He patted her shoulder in awkward and inarticulate compassion, and turned away. She could hear his retreating steps on the polished floor, heavy and measured and pondering. To her defeated spirit, it seemed that those footsteps sounded the inexorable, iron stride of the past crushing down the present and the future.

She looked out upon the blurred garden with eyes dull in resignation. During the days that followed, Jarvis Dean's spirits were lighter than they had been for months. To be sure, it was not pleasant to think that Autumn was leaving the place to which she had come such a short time ago, her heart swelling with anticipation of what the future held for her, her mind full of plans for the new life she was entering. He was sorry for her. And yet, the irking uncertainty of those weeks had been almost more than he could bear at times. Autumn's decision to return to the Old Country had relieved him of that, at least. His own resolve to sell everything and follow her as she saw fit could be managed without too great a sacrifice had brought its regrets, its pang of loneliness, but that had passed. He had a clear road before him now. He would leave behind him the past and all its burden of unhappiness and spend the rest of his days in a manner befitting a man of ample means whose declining years might easily be his brightest.

It was some such feeling that possessed him as he looked at Autumn now, sitting opposite him at the breakfast table. He had ordered an early breakfast so that he might leave in good time on his journey into the hills to inspect his flocks and to take up some supplies to old Absalom Peek. Tom Willmar had been making the trips back and forth during the summer, but Jarvis was in the habit of going himself at least once during the season. Besides, he had given instructions to have the young Irish lad, Clancy Shane, drive out the few hundred sheep that had been culled from the range and were being brought down to be sold. He wanted to spend a half hour with the boy and assure himself that everything was coming along as it should.

"You might make the trip in with me today, Autumn," he suggested, "if you have nothing else to do. It would be company for me and the drive would do you no harm."

"I thought of it last night," Autumn said. "It will be my last chance to see the flocks before I leave."

"Aye—that's so. Well, get your self ready and I'll wait for you."

"I'll change in a jiffy, Da," she said, and left the table.

"Put enough lunch in the box for the two of us, then," Jarvis told Hannah. "We'll be back for dinner late."

They were on the road before the day was more than a bright flame on the eastern hilltops and Autumn was guiding the car over the smooth trail at a speed that made her father grip the edges of the seat with both hands.

"The trail will be rougher higher up, Da," she explained once when she glanced sideways at him and saw the grim set of his face. "We'll make good time now and loaf later on."

Noon brought them within sight of the small flock that Clancy Shane was bringing down from the upper ranges and Autumn waited in the car while her father walked down into the valley. Half an hour later he came back.

"I think I'll stay along with Moony," he said. "If you want to go along by yourself and have a word with Absalom, you can pick me up on the way back."

"I'll do that, Da," she said. "Have you any message for Absalom?"

"Just give him the box of stuff there in the back of the car and tell him I'll be up myself maybe in a week or two."

Autumn started the motor and put her hand on the gear shift.

"Here, now—wait a bit!" Jarvis shouted. "We'll eat first."

For a full hour, Autumn and her father talked and laughed together as they had not done since she was a child. When she got up to go at last, Jarvis went with her to the car and leaned over to kiss her before she started away.

"So long, darling," Autumn called as she put the car into the trail again. "I'll be back before you know it."

Jarvis stood shading his eyes against the mid-day sun, until the car vanished around a bend in the trail, and an inexplicable sadness came over him. He had been too happy for the past hour. He turned and picked his way slowly down into the valley.

It was not until Autumn's visit with Absalom Peek had come to an end and she was preparing to hurry away that she found the courage to tell him that she was bidding him good-by for the last time. She had stayed with the old herder much longer than she had planned. The sun was already approaching the hilltops in the west and her father would be anxiously awaiting her return. But she had found it impossible to tear herself away from the quiet valley and its flocks and the hungry chatter of the old man.

"You'll be comin' up again, like as not," Absalom said as they strolled together toward Autumn's car.

"I'm afraid not, Absalom," she told him. "I'm never coming again."

"En!" The old man looked at her in surprise.

"I'm going back again—to England, Absalom."

"Now, now! What's wrong, eh?"

"There's nothing wrong, Absalom. I'm just—out of place here."

Absalom thrust his fingers under his weathered hat and scratched his head.

"Well, well," he said at last. "It isn't much of a place for a young girl, I know. It'll go hard with the Laird, I'm thinkin', losin' you again just when he's got used to havin' you round."

Autumn hesitated before she made her reply. After all, it would do no good to tell him that her father had decided to spend the rest of his days abroad.

"I haven't been much of a help to him, I'm afraid," she replied.

"He's past help, that man," Absalom said suddenly. "Not but what he's a great man in his day, but he's not livin', Miss Autumn."

"Poor Da," Autumn murmured. "He hasn't had an easy life."

"That's right enough. He hasn't. But he won't make it easier by packin' you off to that—"

"He's not sending me away, Absalom," she hastened to assure him. "I'm going because I want to."

Absalom regarded her quizzically. "There's more behind it than that, I'm thinkin'. Though I'm askin' in no questions, mind."

She was staunchly cheerful in her farewell to Absalom, but a hot mist came between her eyes and that unforgettable picture there on the hill side below them. And then, in a moment, she was gone and old Ab salom had turned again to his solitary task.

Very late that night, when Autumn lay awake and allowed her mind to drift sleepily back over the journey into the hills, it seemed to her that what she had beheld in the cycle of that day had been sunrise and sunset on the moon, or on some bizarrely landscaped planet hitherto only a fantastic dream in the mind of man. Early morning had clawed great, long scars of black valley down the pale, colossal faces of the hills, frightening and thrilling in their report of what this land had been in ages gone. Noon had made insubstantial islands of the mountain tops, swimming in their mists as on the white lambency of some primordial sea. And in the twilight, the dark patches of pine that marked the valleys in that broad expanse might have been the spoor of creatures unthinkable, in an unthinkable chaos of the earth.

No more of that now! Back again to the artificial, the purposeless life she had known with Aunt Flo. Forget that there had ever been anything else. Forget the reverent somber brow of a mountain bared to the moon. Forget a star unfolding like a bloom of sweet loneliness in the luminous, unnameable color of a summer sky. Forget the drift of mountain rain in the spring, and the flaming torches of Indian paint brush on the gaunt hills. Forget Bruce Lander, and the curious, heartless, dear ways of love, forever.

ORDER FOR PUBLICATION

State of Michigan, in the Circuit Court for the County of Washtenaw, In Chancery.

Martha A. Kusterer, Plaintiff, vs.

Harriet C. Nordman, Hattie P. Lee, Ida M. Bucklew, Edward F. Riemenschneider, Edward Riemenschneider, Thomas F. Morse, Amy E. Morse, Annie E. Morse Staebler, Village of Chelsea, a Michigan Municipal Corporation, or their unknown heirs, successors, devisees, legatees, and assigns, Defendants.

At a session of said Court, held at the Court House in the City of Ann Arbor, in said County, on the 18th day of November, A. D. 1939.

Present: Honorable George W. Sample, Circuit Judge.

It appearing to the Court from the allegations contained in the bill of complaint filed in this cause and from the affidavit annexed thereto that the above named defendants and their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns, are necessary and proper parties to said cause, and that the said plaintiff does not know and has been unable, after diligent search and inquiry, to ascertain the places of residence of the persons named as defendants herein and their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees, and assigns, or any of them, except the Village of Chelsea, a Michigan municipal corporation, and cannot ascertain in what state or county the said defendants or their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns reside;

Therefore, on motion of James C.

Hendley, attorney for the plaintiff, it is ordered that the defendants and every one of them do cause their appearance to be entered in this cause within three months from the date of this order, and in case of their appearance that they cause their answer to the plaintiff's bill of complaint to be filed and a copy thereof to be served on the attorney for the plaintiff within fifteen days after service on them of a copy of the bill of complaint and notice of this order, and that in default thereof said bill of complaint be taken as confessed by each and all of said defendants, and also that within forty days of this order the plaintiff cause a copy of this order to be published in the Chelsea Standard, a newspaper printed, published and circulated in said County of Washtenaw, and that said publication be continued once each week for six weeks in succession, or that the plaintiff cause a copy of this order to be personally served on the said defendants and each of them at least twenty days before the time prescribed for their appearance, or cause this order to be otherwise served as provided by law.

Geo. W. Sample, Circuit Judge.
Countersigned:
William W. Hamilton,
Deputy County Clerk.

Notice

The above cause involves the title to the following described premises situated and being in the Village of Chelsea, County of Washtenaw, and State of Michigan, and is brought to quiet the title of the plaintiff heretofore to-wit:

"Lot number eight in block number eighteen, according to the recorded plat of Eliza Congdon's Third Addition to the Village of Chelsea, Washtenaw County, Michigan. Also all that parcel of land lying east of said lot eight to the township line, excepting so much thereof of the above described property as is used for street or highway."

Fishing Digest Will Be Given With Licenses

For the more than a million fishermen who will enjoy angling in Michigan waters in 1940 there will be distributed during December to 2,200 dealers, along with the new fishing licenses, 1,400,000 copies of the 1940 non-commercial fishing digest.

A convenient, pocket-size, 12-page folder, the digest lists open season on all species of game fish, designated pike and trout lakes and rainbow trout streams, and major regulations governing fishing, in synopsis form. Detailed regulations affecting specific localities, which are too extensive for inclusion in the digest, may be obtained upon application to the local conservation officer, or the conservation department in Lansing.

Chief change in the sport fishing regulations for 1940 is the one dollar resident rod license that will be good for all kinds of fishing, including trout, and will be required of every person over 17 years of age who fishes, except wives of license holders. Forty cents of each dollar of this income will be earmarked for purchase of lake and stream frontage to insure continued public access to fishing grounds and for lake and stream improvement and research. Dealers (but not employees of the state) may retain five cents of each license fee.

Non-resident license fees are unchanged, but non-residents are barred from fishing through the ice in Berrien, Cass, Branch, St. Joseph and Van Buren counties from January 1 to the last Saturday in April.

Innovations in the regulations respecting fish are prohibition of bluegill fishing through the ice at night from 6 p. m. to 6 a. m.; setting creel limits of seven whitefish and five lake trout per day, where the catch previously was unlimited; and classing great northern or grass pike as a game fish. Though great northern pike may not be taken from Michigan waters commercially, it may be imported and sold here if it meets game size measurements. Whitefish and lake trout creel limits will not apply to commercial fishing.

Notten Road

(Received too late for last week)

Mrs. Carrie Rank was taken seriously sick and was removed to the hospital at Ann Arbor. It is reported that she is recovering and will be able to be brought home soon.

The Schultz family, who have occupied the E. J. Notten farm, have moved to the Joe Helm farm. A Mr. Beal and family have moved to the farm vacated by the Schultzes.

What Do You Know About 1939?

1 Who is this handsome youngster and who did he marry?—Marry, who was recently divorced?

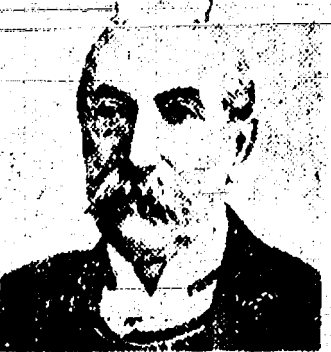

2 These feet belong to a baseball player who had to quit in 1939 after playing about 2,300 consecutive games. Who is he?

3 Whose nose is this? When and why did it make news most of last summer, and where did all this take place?

4 This horse won a big race last May and his name isn't Man O' War, Lawrin, or Chico, or War Admiral. Who is he? What race?

5 This Italian gentleman's name was Filippo Pacelli. What happened on his son's 33rd birthday, March 2, 1939?

6 This demonstration ended when someone said, "You cannot strike against the government." Who said it? To whom?

7 Something quite astonishing happened to the piece of land shown in black. What's its name and who owns it now?

8 This young gentleman went traveling abroad last summer. What is his name and where did he go? What's wrong with him?

9 This man left on a long, cold trip, and he won't be home until late in 1940. Who is he? Why did he go where?

HERE'S THE ANSWERS—DON'T PEEK!

Children In Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield

A Dislike for School

A gang of boys decided to quit high school and secure work. An investigation of their case proved that so many intangible factors entered into the problem that it was impossible to catalog definitely the various elements that created their dissatisfaction with school. Nevertheless, there was little doubt that, like most boys who leave school, these youngsters were influenced by the following considerations: (1) parental indifference and antagonism; (2) the school's inability to encourage development; (3) lack of adequate facilities for the teaching of a varied curriculum; (4) the fact that the school was unable to overcome the inherent desire of these boys to search for pursuits outside the school room, which motive they considered far more important than gaining an education.

Backing Up the Court

A young colored boy was arraigned before the court for breaking his probation and was held in the Detention Home for a few days. This boy played in the high school band and was a substitute on the football team. The school authorities had made a complaint against him only a short time before, yet they attempted to have his punishment revoked in order that he might participate in the football game that Saturday. They even went so far as to urge the boy's minister to appeal to the court for leniency.

The offense committed was not serious, but taking this light viewpoint was not conducive to the youngster's reform. When a school, parent or other persons or agencies report a child to the court, they should be prepared to stand by their conviction and support the court in every verdict.

France's Taxless Villages

In the Jura mountains there are 24 French villages whose population of 10,000 not only do not pay taxes but actually receive a yearly dividend of from 100 to 200 francs. The explanation is that each village owns a large forest whose lumber is exploited in a business-like manner.

HOLD CHRISTMAS PARTY

Members of the Women's Union of St. Paul's church assembled on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Mary Faust for their December meeting and Christmas party. The program opened with a group of Christmas songs, led by Rev. P. H. Grabowski, interspersed with Christmas stories. The following numbers were given:

Readings—

A Christmas Wish—Mrs. W. M. Hinderer.

Has Anyone Seen Christ in You?—Mrs. Leroy Satterthwaite.

Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men—Mrs. H. L. Paul.

We Do We Celebrate Christmas on Dec. 25?—Mrs. S. Bohner.

Burning Christmas Candles—Mrs. Alfred Lindauer.

Why We Sing Christmas Carols—Mrs. Oscar Stierle.

Why Do We Present Christmas Gifts?—Mrs. Oscar Lindauer.

Origin of the Christmas Tree—Mrs. Arthur Schaller.

Whence the Christmas Cards?—Mrs. Mary Eschelbach.

Santa Claus and Christmas Stockings—Mrs. Lewis Schneider.

Songs—Away in a Manger; Jingle Bells—By Donna Hinderer and Eleanor Schmidt.

Recitation—Christmas Comes But Once a Year—Earl Guenther.

Recitation—A Snow Bird's Message—Dean Guenther.

Recitation—The Night Before Christmas—Peggy Schaeble.

Piano solo—Silent Night—Barbara Luick.

At the business meeting following the program, a report of the convention at Jackson was given by Mrs. Eschelbach.

It was voted to change the name of the society from the Women's Union to the Women's Guild.

Mrs. Wilbur Hinderer and Mrs. Martha Weimann were appointed to arrange the Christmas baskets for the shut-ins of the church and congregation.

The president appointed Mrs. Paul F. Niehaus and Mrs. Charles Meserv as auditing committee, and Mrs. N. H. Schmidt to attend to the church decoration for 1940. The meeting closed with the Lord's prayer. Christmas gifts were exchanged and refreshments were served to 50 members and friends, with Mrs. Niehaus as assisting hostess.

Many Cows Required To Fill Ice Cream Needs

It takes the milk production of 50,000 dairy cows to produce enough cream for Michigan's production and consumption of ice cream, according to estimates of dairy specialists at Michigan State College.

Here is the picture of the ice cream business within the state, as depicted by P. S. Lucas, associate professor in dairy manufacturing at the college and a man who has contributed scientifically to greater skill and knowledge in how to make ice cream.

Nationally, ice cream consumption is nearly three gallons annually per person, but in Michigan the average persons eats more than that.

In each gallon there is six tenths of a pound of fat. In 15 million gallons necessary for Michigan consumption in 12 months there are nine million pounds of butterfat or the total year's production of 50,000 good cows.

Another 10,000 cows would have to deliver all but the butterfat in their milk production for the more than eight million pounds of milk powder used in Michigan's year's supply of ice cream.

The state's beet sugar industry shares in demand for the dairy food product, for there is two-thirds of a pound of sugar in every gallon of ice cream—an annual requirement for nearly ten million pounds, almost exclusively beet sugar.

From Dolly Madison days of its invention, ice cream has become an important food business, says Professor Lucas. One reason for size of the industry is the modern trend to year-around consumption. One aid in this has been development of fancy molds, permitting ice cream turkeys, Santa Claus figures and Easter rabbits to add to the popular summertime ice cream cone business.

Master Carver

Grinling Gibbons, the great English carver, is most noted for his magnificent choir stalls at St. Paul's cathedral. He died in 1721, just when mahogany was becoming the fashionable wood in England, and after spending the last seven years of his life as Master Carver in Wood to George I at a salary of a shilling and six pence a day.

Ancient Monument

A monument still stands commemorating the march of Tighath-Pleaser to the source of the Tigris in 1100 B. C.

Gas From Coal

Gas made from Welsh anthracite is used to operate a motorbus which has completed successful tests in Stockport, England. The necessary plant imported from France takes up five back rows in a 31-seater single-deck bus. On the trial run in the hilly country around Marple and Mellor the bus traveled at the normal speed of a bus using petroleum, except that it was slightly slower on the exceptionally steep grades. The tests have been particularly encouraging because they promise a new source of consumption for Welsh coal and because, with a war to fight, Britain will have unlimited supplies of power for home service.
