At a meeting of the ministers of the community on Monday, tentative plans were made for the Lenten and Good Friday services. This year the North Lake church has been invited to join the movement, and the pastor included in the preaching program.

The schedule for this year is as follows:

SEND YOUR DIMES!

Mrs. W. R. Daniels, chairman of the local committee for the raising of funds to fight infantile paralysis, states that all who plan to contribute should do so this week by either mailing the "March of Dimes" birthday cards to President Roosevelt, or making contributions directly to the local committee. One thousand birthday cards were mailed to residents of this vicinity on Monday, for use in sending dimes to Washington.

HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Fred Harris, who resides in the Hummel residence on North Main street, had a narrow escape from serious injury or death the past week. Mr. Harris was in the barn, just finishing milking when a bullet from a .22 rifle whizzed past him. Several cases have been reported to the authorities of rifle shooting within the village limits.

Brown Explains Auction Sale of State Tax Lands

Auditor-General Vernon J. Brown, chairman of the State Land Office Board, has outlined a plan by which properties of aged and deserving persons could be withheld from the coming sale of tax-delinquent properties.

Mr. Brown also urged former owners of tax delinquent properties which reverted to the State on November 3, to take advantage of the provisions of the State Land Office Board Act in order that they might regain possession of their properties.

"An unusual opportunity is offered to previous owners," stated Mr. Brown. "It has always been true that properties have been lost through failure to pay taxes. However, realizing that conditions have been such during the past decade that many honest and sincere citizens have defaulted in the payment of tax obligations through no fault of their own, the legislature wisely provided methods by which taxpayers could save their properties. In addition to the many moratorium plans which have been made available through the depression era, the State Land Office Board was created so that those who were unable to avail themselves of these plans might still repurchase their properties from the state on attractive terms.

"An auction sale of these properties will be conducted in each of the counties under the jurisdiction of the State Land Office Board. This auction will commence at 9:00 a. m. February 13, 1940, at the office of the county treasurer of each of these counties. Properties lying within that county will be offered for sale to the highest bidder provided the bid equals or exceeds 25 per cent of the assessed valuation for 1938. If the former owner wishes to repurchase his property he should be present at the sale to see that at least the minimum bid of 25 per cent is submitted. In case other bidders exceed this amount it is unnecessary to enter into competitive bidding, but the former owner may do so if desired.

Banquet Honors High School Football Squad

More than one hundred people attended the annual football banquet at the high school gymnasium on Monday evening. The event was sponsored by the Kiwanis club to honor the 1939 Chelsea high school football squad. The dinner was served at 7:00 o'clock by the senior class of the high school, and the high school band furnished music during the dinner.

Supt. A. C. Johnson introduced Henry C. Schneider, president of the Kiwanis club, who presided as toastmaster. Group singing was led by Jerry Niehaus, with Mrs. Niehaus at the piano. A talk on the "Silver Anniversary of Kiwanis" was given by M. W. McClure. Coach Chas. Cameron introduced Paul Schneider, captain of the 1939 football squad, who in turn introduced Andy Policht, captain-elect of the 1940 squad.

Letters were then presented by Coach Cameron, as follows:

Varsity letters to A. Lindauer, R. Riemenschneider, P. Schneider, E. Vissel, G. Winans, D. White, and R. Walz, Mgr., all seniors; T. Combs, G. Knickerbocker, A. Policht, O. Schiller, juniors; L. Birch, L. Distle, C. Lane, sophomores; D. Kern and R. Strieter, freshmen.

Reserve awards were presented to L. Kusterer, N. Niehaus, D. Walz, D. West, D. Gadd, and L. Policht, assistant manager.

Following a clarinet solo by Ralph Dingle, with Margaret Harper as piano accompanist, Earl T. Martineau, backfield coach at the University of Michigan, spoke briefly and showed moving pictures of the Michigan-Ohio State football game.

BLAZE CAUSES SMALL DAMAGE

A slight blaze at the home of Raymond Culhane on Lincoln St. called out the local fire department Monday forenoon. The fire was extinguished before they arrived, with no serious damage resulting.

Large Crowd Attends Masonic Celebration

More than three hundred twenty-five Masons, their families and friends, attended the 75th anniversary celebration of Olive Lodge, No. 156, F. and A. M., held Friday night at the public school auditorium. Among the guests were many from neighboring cities and villages.

The banquet was served at seven o'clock by the senior class of Chelsea high school. The Ford Rolling Mill orchestra played during the banquet hour.

Martin Steinbach, W. M. of Olive Lodge, opened the program with an address of welcome. Greetings from Olive Chapter, O. E. S. were given by Mrs. Luella Weinberg, W. M., and Paul Belser, H. P. of Olive Chapter, R. A. M., also extended greetings.

Dr. Francis B. Lambie, Grand Master, was unable to be present for his scheduled address, and Arthur J. Fox of Almont, Grand Lecturer of the Grand Lodge of Michigan, gave the address which had been prepared by Dr. Lambie.

Congratulatory messages and flowers were received from Golden Rule and Fraternity Lodges of Ann Arbor, and Washtenaw Lodge, Dexter. The local Kiwanis club also sent a communication of greetings.

Geo. Atkinson, chairman of the program committee, then introduced Haze Bennett, master of ceremonies for the stage show which followed. Numbers on this part of the program included musical selections by the Texas Ranch Boys, The Perfect Trio, The Four Notes (a mixed quartet), tap dancing and impersonation, instrumental duet by two Dearborn policemen, vocal selections by the orchestra soloist, vibraphone soloist, and special selections by the orchestra. With accompaniment by the orchestra, the audience sang "God Bless America" to close the program.

Dancing followed, with music by the Texas Ranch Boys and the Rolling Mill orchestra. A grand march at 12 o'clock, led by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Steinbach, preceded the release of two large bags of balloons which was the occasion of much merriment.

The auditorium was beautifully decorated for the occasion, with blue and white streamers forming a false ceiling. Suspended from the streamers were numerous silver tinsel covered Masonic emblems with a large illuminated emblem in the center of the hall.

A garden setting formed the background for the stage show, with a fence of lattice work with pillars at each end and an archway in the center. "1865" was on one pillar and "1940" on the other. Numerous lighted flowers and illuminated arch added to the beauty of the decorations.

Out of town guests included Leland L. O'Dell, Worshipful Master of Valley Lodge No. 109, Rochester, N. Y., and Warden Harry Jackson of Southern Michigan Prison.

P. O. HOUSES PRISONER!

Complaints are often heard from patrons of the local postoffice that they cannot get into the lobby late in the evening to get their mail, but very seldom is there a complaint from a patron that they cannot get out of the postoffice after they have gone in to get their mail. However, that very thing happened Monday night!

Carl Fletcher, genial manager of the A & P store, went to the postoffice about 7:00 o'clock to get his mail and while he was fumbling around in the darkness to find his key and his box, Postmaster Witherell locked the postoffice from the outside. Carl was at a loss to know what to do. He had visions of making up a bed out of the contents of the waste paper basket and spending the night as a guest of Uncle Sam. He tapped on the windows so hard that it frightened some ladies who were passing and they hastened on their way thinking that ghosts had taken over the federal building. Finally, after about a half hour of tapping on the windows, Carl attracted the attention of a passerby who paused to ascertain what the difficulty was and proceeded to get Mr. Witherell, who gladly released his prisoner.

This incident will no doubt cause the postoffice department to place a signal light on the front door, showing whether or not there are any customers in the place before the door is locked for the night.

Mr. Witherell explained that when he went to lock the postoffice he looked in the lobby and then went to his office for just an instant, and during this short interval Mr. Fletcher entered the postoffice.

mer owner may within 30 days meet any such bid. All former owners may also have the privilege of spreading their payments over a time payment contract whereas other bidders must pay cash for the full amount of their bid within 24 hours. It is the sincere desire of the State Land Office Board that all parties who previously had any interest in these properties and who now wish to regain their rights, shall have every opportunity to do so and we believe that this method will permit us to meet every reasonable request of such persons.

"We have been seriously concerned over the plight of a few aged and deserving needy persons who find their properties involved in the coming sale. However, we believe that we have at least a temporary solution for this situation. We are suggesting that the investigators for the Old Age Assistance Bureau and the Welfare Department arrange to withhold properties of their clients from our sale.
"We shall likewise cooperate with township supervisors and village and city officials in withholding other cases which are not on the relief rolls but which frequently are more deserving of consideration. We shall, of course, have to depend upon local authorities to call these cases to our attention. In this connection it should be pointed out that our tax laws make it the duty of local assessing officers to exempt from taxation the property of those who are financially unable to contribute to the cost of government, and we therefore feel that we are justified in placing the responsibility for the withholding of such properties from the sale in the hands of local officials."
It was also suggested by Mr. Brown that those who are unfamiliar with the procedure to be followed should immediately consult their county treasurer. Lists of properties to be offered for sale and explanatory pamphlets are available at the various offices of the county treasurers.

Lansing—If you were a candidate for the governorship of Michigan, what would YOU do about that annoying $30,000,000 deficit in the treasury at Lansing?
Here is a question that is easier to propound than to answer.
Many an aspirant for office has made serious campaign promises during speech-making tours, pledges which he honestly intended to carry out but which he seemingly was unable, after election, to fulfill. Somehow, realities are different when the candidate-elect arrives at Lansing. New situations develop like plagues of locusts. Pressure groups protest at economy at their expense. Other interests demand additional state aid, and so it goes!
Being governor of Michigan is no child's play. The more we view the Lansing scene the more we appreciate the difficulties which beset the state executives in his endeavor to execute his duties.

fund, now that state highway revenues have been earmarked for highway purposes. Louis Webber, their Lansing representative, believes that the 1941 legislature should tag $10,000,000 for local road needs.
School teachers will probably be back, too, in 1941 insisting on more state aid. And so it goes—hospital beds, welfare funds, pensions for widows and orphans, crippled children care, old age pensions and a long parade of genuine social needs.
And still the $30,000,000 deficit is with us. Whosoever he may be, the 1940 governor-elect will have tough decisions to make, and the financial decision is certainly one of them.

The State Land Office Board announces...
Public Auction Sale of State-owned properties starting Feb. 13, 1940 at 9 A.M. at the office of The County Treasurer

THESE properties are those which were tax delinquent, bid into the State at the May, 1938 tax sale and reverted to the State on Nov. 3, 1939, and are now under the jurisdiction of the State Land Office Board.
Such properties will be offered for sale to the highest bidder at a Public Auction which will open February 13, 1940 at 9:00 A.M. at the office of the County Treasurer. To be accepted bids must be not less than 25% of the 1938 assessed valuation.
If you were an owner in fee, mortgagee, land contract vendee, or had a substantial interest by way of actual investment in any of said properties, you may bid at this sale or meet the bid of any other bidder, according to the provisions of Act No. 155, P.A. 1937, as Amended.
You may also, upon application to the State Land Office Board, enter into an agreement to pay the sum required in monthly installments, on such terms as the Board may provide.
Bids of all other persons shall be accepted only when payment is made in cash within 24 hours of the bid.
Ask your County Treasurer for explanatory pamphlet and lists of properties to be offered.

The sale of properties located in Washtenaw County will open at the office of Washtenaw County Treasurer, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

LIMA CENTER ECONOMICS CLUB
The Lima Center Home Economics club met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Carroll Ordway for a special meeting. Eight members were present. The lesson was conducted by Mrs. Clarence Reddeman and the subject for discussion were "Rug-making," "Candle-wicking," "How to set a table and serve afternoon tea." At the close of the lesson, the hostess served refreshments.

PONTIAC USES NEWSPAPERS
Bulk of Pontiac Motor Division's January-February advertising schedule—biggest since the model year opening was shifted to Autumn six years ago—will be carried by newspapers. F. A. Berend, Pontiac advertising manager, announces. More than 2,000 newspapers in 1,500 cities will be used.
On the heels of a record-breaking last quarter and a 1939 sales total 59.4 per cent over 1938 Pontiac has increased its advertising budget—48 per cent for the first two months. Newspapers will get 61 per cent of the 1940 January-February total, compared to 47 per cent in the same period last year.
"We are making newspapers the backbone of the campaign because of their flexibility and the opportunity of localizing copy by inserting dealers' signatures," Berend said.

Wireless for Blind
About 45,000 blind persons have been provided with radio sets and relay installations by the British "Wireless for the Blind" fund.

Wielding The Axe
For example, if there was ever an economy-minded state legislature, it was the 1939 one. Admonished by Governor-elect Frank Fitzgerald to effect savings in the cost of government, the lawmakers wielded the axe judiciously.
When they were finished, the budget was nearly balanced on paper.
If general revenues totaled more than $82,000,000 the legislature in a compromise with the school teachers earmarked the next $2,000,000 to go to the public school fund.
In the meanwhile, the state welfare fund is beginning to run precariously low; C. I. O. labor leaders are demanding a special session to authorize another $10,000,000 for welfare needs; and the state deficit is not less than it was a year ago, but in fact it is said to be a little higher.
What to do?
The choices are few.

Bond Issue, Economy?
Politicians of both parties are in apparent agreement that a special bond issue, to retire the $30,000,000 red-ink entry, would be turned down overwhelmingly by the voters.
Another choice is more economy. This is an old oratorical device. But how is this economy to be accomplished? Auditor General Vernon J. Brown has revealed that Lansing is a tax-collector for local government to the grand tune of $132,000,000 a year. The state's grants-in-aid come to this surprising total; thus actually the major part of the state's bill is not for state government at all!
Total state revenues come to about $160,000,000 a year.
Grants to local governments aggregate $182,000,000, leaving only $32,000,000 for state needs.
Are you, the local taxpayer, going to support a state economy campaign that doesn't really economize much at Lansing at all, but which comes right back home in your own community to pinch you, here and there?
The question of state finances, we again emphasize, is not easy to answer.

How About New Tax?
This year is campaign-time. So consider then another choice of solving the problem—levying a new tax or increasing a present one.
Senator Dan Vanderwerf, chairman of the senate finance committee, recently referred to the need for additional money and the desire to retire the state deficit. Additions to state hospitals, affording accommodations for 2,000 persons seeking admission, cannot be utilized fully because the 1939 legislature appropriated only $1,000,000 to equip and operate them, whereas $3,500,000 a year is necessary. Furthermore, 25,000 persons are eligible to receive old age pensions but state appropriations are not sufficient to care for them. (Old age lists now total 77,000).
"The state government can't continue to operate without additional taxation," concludes Vanderwerf.
Tax possibilities: Restoration of the state property tax, such as has been done in California to meet demands of special pressure groups for more state aid; imposition of luxury taxes on tobacco, amusement admissions, etc.; a temporary increase in the state sales tax, now 3 cents on the dollar.
New taxes are not popular with the average voter.
But some answer must be found. The Michigan citizen can't have his cake and eat it, too. If more social benefits are to be granted, means should be found to finance them. Unless, of course, Michigan emulates the example of the federal government's 10-year record of annual deficits, not in millions but in the billions.

Local Highways
If Murray D. Van Wagoner is a candidate for governor, as some observers believe he will be, then one of the 1940 political issues will probably be highways.
That is a reasonable assumption, for Van Wagoner is the highway department commissioner and president of the American Road Builders association.
County road commissioners, for example, look longingly at the sales tax

CHEVROLET SALES INCREASE

Detroit—In spite of unfavorable weather conditions prevailing over much of the country, retail sales of new cars and trucks by Chevrolet dealers in the first 10 days of the new year totaled 21,998 units, as against 15,018 in the same period in 1939, W. E. Holler, general sales manager, announced. This represents a gain of 46.5 per cent, one of the largest registered in any 10-day period since announcement of the 1940 models.
Sales of trucks, Mr. Holler said, totaled 4,282, as compared with 3,223 in the first 10 days of last year.
Used car sales in the first 10 days also showed gains over 1939; the figures indicate. In the first 10 days of January, 32,919 used cars were sold, as against 29,539 in the same period last year.

Fishermen Reporting Good Catches on Lakes

Lansing—Fishermen in the fast growing shanty towns on the thickening ice of Michigan's inland lakes and Great Lakes bays and shores are reporting good catches, after mild weather held the ice fishing season to a late start. Limit catches of bluegills are reported from Houghton Lake.

Four hooks and two lines are the most any fisherman may use, and all lines must be under immediate control, set lines having been outlawed. Tip-ups are considered the same as lines or poles, and subject to the same line and hook limits.

On inland waters spearing is permitted during January and February except on trout streams and certain other waters on which it is specifically forbidden.

Growing popularity of winter hook-and-line fishing is reflected in greater demand for such much sought baits as wigglers, or mayfly larvae, which are dug out of the mud of stream bottoms. Caddisflies, hellgramites, stoneflies, goldenrod gallworms and common earthworms are used for bluegills. Minnows are favored for perch, calico bass and larger fish.

All ice fishermen on inland waters must have the new 1940 one-dollar resident fishing licenses.

Rural Women Invited To Farmers Week

There'll be no neglect or lacking in the programs arranged for the rural women who attend the 25th annual Farmers' Week program at Michigan State College, Jan. 29 through Feb. 2.

By using staff members, borrowing authorities from other departments and by arranging for capable guest speakers, the home economics staff at the college is planning a rounded out series of sessions.

In acquainting visitors with what is happening out in the world, Dr. Marie Dye, dean of home economics at Michigan State College, has scheduled Dr. M. M. Knappen, head of the college history department, for a talk on the current European situation. Another of similar note will be presented by Darrel Brady, world traveler and lecturer, who will present a lecture illustrated with motion pictures on present conditions in Europe.

Student showing of costumes made in fall term college work is another feature during the week.

Staff members will not neglect suggestions about how to make purchases, how to better manage homes, how to cook meats.

"Food Fads and Fallacies" is the title of another feature scheduled twice to accommodate those who attend. "Planning Our Family Life" is the subject assigned to Mrs. Lydia Ann Lynde, formerly on the college staff and now extension specialist in parent education for the United States Department of Agriculture.

Georgia's Agricultural Products

Georgia leads all states in the production of peanuts, watermelons, sweet potatoes, naval stores, improved varieties of pecans, pimientos and fresh peaches for market.

tine habits for work or a desire to produce something of value and substance."

"I thoroughly agree with everything you say," his friend responded. "What is more, I am convinced that industry should draw up a series of standards and test all graduates to determine just what our schools and colleges are accomplishing. It is possible that if this were done, it would not be necessary for employers to re-train so many prospective future executives."

"If industry ever does test the results of public education," added the first executive, "it may recommend that all schools be required to adopt methods followed in our prominent medical schools. There, students are taught by experienced doctors and are required to participate actively in all phases of their life's work while in training. After graduation the young man can confidently hang up his shingle anywhere, for he has been trained to meet the problems that will confront him in life."

Many Events On MSC Farm Week Program

Events numbering 161 present some picture in brief of the scope of the 25th annual Farmers' Week program at Michigan State College, opening Monday, Jan. 29, and concluding Friday, Feb. 2.

E. L. Anthony, dean of agriculture and general chairman for this giant clearing-house for modern scientific agricultural information, promises that every facet of Michigan's $200,000,000 farm, agriculture, will receive adequate attention in the program.

The $200,000,000 is the estimated total of farm income in the state in 1939. It should make farmers out in the state just as optimistic as they were a year ago when the farm income for the year was estimated at $197,712,000.

No phase has been omitted from the Farmers' Week program. Mixed in with entertainment and general programs, each department in the agricultural division is offering information, well selected speakers, demonstrations and exhibits designed for streamlining farming operations and rural life.

"How Michigan Farmers Succeed" is the theme adopted for this year's programs. To carry out this theme many of the programs from day to day during the week will present some of Michigan's outstanding farmers, telling how they have found new ways of being efficient or how their talents have led to unending backs or fattening pocketbooks.

Dairymen with annual breed association meetings open the week's program on Monday. Tuesday in general is livestock day. Forty-six events on Wednesday and the same number Thursday illustrate how the program widens out in the middle of the week, concluding on Friday with livestock sales, rural drama contest finals and Grange events.

PUZZLE--Where to Hold 161 Events

Dean E. L. Anthony, left, and Short Course Director R. W. Tenney, right, commanding generals for the 25th annual Farmers' Week to be held at Michigan State College, January 29 through February 2, may have worried expressions. They are trying to find places for the 161 scheduled events, embracing general sessions, contests, demonstrations, crops and livestock shows and entertainments. The 1940 theme selected is "How Michigan Farmers Succeed." Interspersed will be the college's contribution to show a virtual panoramic view of the progress and present status of modern agriculture within the state.

Question And Answer Dept.

Problem—A lady in a small town in Pennsylvania desired to correspond with a friend in a small town in Illinois. She posted the letter on a train at the railroad station. However she thoughtlessly addressed the letter to San Francisco. It was delivered to the friend in Illinois without delay. How did the postal authorities know? (Answer elsewhere in this department.)

Ques.—If a young man asks a young lady to "carry her to a show", what does he mean?

Ans.—He simply means that he wants to "take" or "escort" her to a show. The expression is provincial, and is almost wholly confined to the Southern States of our Union.

Answer to problem: The postal authorities didn't know. The letter was "returned" to the "writer" in Illinois, whose name and address was on the back of the letter instead of the real writer.

Ques.—Will you please tell me how the value of a diamond is determined?

Ans.—The color is the most important thing. Diamonds of the finest quality are colorless, perfectly clear and said to be of the first water. Some varieties are green, red, orange, yellow and blue. The most valuable are those in which the tint is decided and equal throughout, the commercial value is affected by the slightest tinge of a different color. The way a diamond is cut is also important.

Ques.—What is the origin of the American "dollar"?

Ans.—The name "dollar" originally came from the word "thaler", a coin which originated in erstwhile Bohemia in 1510, and was widely used in central Europe for many years afterward. But the coin itself was taken from the Spanish peso, which was the common unit of exchange in the West Indian trade in colonial days. Then it was called the Spanish dollar. In 1792 the Coinage Act of the United States gave legal recognition to what was already an established institution. Later the silver content was slightly changed.

Ques.—Can you tell me of what Capt. Dreyfus was accused when he was banished to Devil's Island?

Ans.—He was charged with selling military secrets to Germany. Capt. Dreyfus was an Alsatian Jew, and was the victim of a shameful, political and anti-Semitic plot. The evidence against him was forged. In 1894 he was arrested, court-martialed and sentenced to military degradation and life imprisonment on Devil's Island, off the coast of South America. He was pardoned in 1899 by the President of France. In 1906 a court declared him absolutely innocent. During the World War Dreyfus served as a colonel with distinction in the armies of France.

Ques.—How many Indians are there in the United States at the present time? Are they decreasing in numbers?

Ans.—It is not known definitely, but the figures are about 450,000. They are slowly but gradually increasing.

That Traveling Pink Bollworm
The pink bollworm, described by U. S. cotton producers as a worse pest than the boll weevil, is a globe-trotting insect. Recognized as a cotton enemy in the East nearly 100 years ago, its original home is believed to be India and possibly southern Asia in general. Around the beginning of the Twentieth century, it was brought to Egypt from India in large seed-cotton imports, and has since spread widely. Its present known range includes much of Africa, Siam, the Straits Settlements, China, Korea, the Philippines, Hawaii, the West Indies, and Australia. Brazil and Mexico are recent fields for the worm's depredations. In the United States Texas, Arizona, and New Mexico play unwilling hosts to the insect, with Florida's wild cotton lately added to its victims.

Volcanoes Operate Trains
Italy's new electric "Bullella," de luxe passenger trains, fastest in Europe, have a top speed of 120 miles per hour, running on electricity from the "Valley of Hell," a valley at Lardarello, 100 miles from Pisa, where Italian scientists have capped more than 200 live steam wells turning them into electrical power. More than 32,800,000 kilowatt hours of electricity a day are produced. It is Italy's sixth largest producer of electrical power and furnishes light, heat and power for factories, railroads and cities hundreds of miles around.

Nowhere can we find accurate comprehensive countrywide figures on the relationship of alcohol to traffic accidents.

- 1. One state reports that 18.4 per cent of drivers involved in fatal accidents "had been drinking."
- 2. Several courts state that their studied opinion shows that liquor was involved in a certain per cent of all traffic accidents.
- 3. Some courts, in the same states, state that liquor was involved in even a higher per cent of accidents.

Therefore, police estimates, legal definitions, and court interpretations of the terms "intoxication" and "under the influence" are so variable that it is impossible to obtain definite figures.

All of us agree, however, that a man who has had two or three strong drinks certainly cannot have the accuracy and the alert judgment that he would have under normal conditions. We hope the time will soon come when driving after drinking will be placed in the same category as carrying concealed weapons, gambling, and similar infractions of law.

PROLOGUE TO LOVE

by MARTHA OSTENSO

"I'm glad you came, my boy," Hector said, drawing himself up solemnly and looking at Bruce with a penetrating eye. "Come along in. I have an appetizer waiting for you."

"Right, Hector!" Bruce said, following his host into the dining room where one end of a long refectory table of solid, gloomy old oak was spread tastily with fine linen and silver and china, and a surprising array of edibles.

Bruce had here, always, a disconcerting feeling that he was about to see the wraiths of antiquity emerge from the draperies on the walls and repossess with jealous hands these treasures that furnished Hector's home.

"One more, Hector—to the spirits of the past!" He waved a hand toward the tapestried walls as he spoke.

Hector looked at him quickly, then filled the glasses again with an excitement in his movements that caused Bruce to wonder. But he smiled across the top of his glass as he bowed once more to Bruce and drank.

"Well," he said, when the glasses were empty again, "you must be ready for supper, my boy. Let's sit in."

"I hope I shall never be hungrier," Bruce replied and took the chair to which his host invited him with a wave of the hand.

The wine was excellent, as were the cold meats and the salads. Hector's first excitement seemed to subside as the meal progressed, and he talked in a leisurely fashion.

They talked of Jarvis Dean's death and the impressive funeral that had followed, of the Dean estate and of Autumn's plans to live in England—but always in an impersonal tone that gave Bruce no hint of what was in the old man's mind.

When they rose from the table, Hector spread a cloth tidily over the dishes and led Bruce into the drawing room, closing the dining room door behind him.

"The skeletons will be at the feast," Bruce thought, smiling to himself.

The evening having turned cool, Hector had kindled a small blaze of pine logs in the Dutch tiled fireplace, and how they seared themselves before it with their brandy and cigarettes.

"I suppose you would be uncomfortable in the presence of modern furniture," Bruce remarked, glancing idly about the room. "You have lived so long with the ghosts of the past."

A strange glow warmed Hector's eyes. "In more ways than one, my boy," he observed pointedly. "But I have never permitted my ghosts to haunt me. That Elizabethan wine-cup, now—" he pointed to an elaborately wrought chalice that stood on the top of a china closet, "who knows but what the death of some gallant courtier may have been drunk from its brim? But does it make the cup less beautiful, less precious to our time?"

"Rather not," Bruce replied. "On the contrary—"

"The past," Hector said, warming to his subject, "is a dim avenue down which we may walk and find the diverging paths of terror and beauty and passion. If we stand at the entrance to that avenue and peer within, remote times telescope into our own immediate past, so that with clear eyes we may note that the events of antiquity and of a few decades ago have the same values. Or do you follow me, sir?"

Bruce regarded his host with mounting curiosity.

"I believe I do," Bruce said, swept involuntarily into Hector's stately mood.

Hector waved a fine brown hand toward the Sphinx-tapestry on the wall to their left. "The accomplished fact of the past," he continued, "may be compared to a tapestry like that—upon which we can look with disinterested sympathy and compassion and admiration at the quaint desires and ambitions and tragedies and loves of our forefathers. To the rational mind even a generation ago is such a tapestry, my boy."

Hector was leading studiously to something. His oratory was not without a definite object, of that Bruce was sure. He settled himself in his chair and resolved to wait patiently for the disclosure of his purpose.

"Do you remember that line from 'The Tempest'? 'What's past is prologue.' You will excuse me," he apologized suddenly. "I am an old man—and given to romantic indulgences."

Bruce smiled. "Go ahead, Hector! I've had some such ideas in my own mind, though I've never been able to put them into words."

Hector favored him with a shrewd glance. "Of course you have, my boy. Of course you have! You have thought of the past that lies behind you, no doubt—your own father's death, for example."

Bruce tossed his cigarette into the fire. "It was that I had in mind, Hector," he admitted.

There was a brief silence in which Hector leaned forward and turned his brandy glass thoughtfully about in his fingers.

"Would you mind if very much if I asked you something about that?" he said finally.

"There is nothing much that I can tell you, Hector," Bruce replied. "You probably know more about it than I do."

"Have you any very clear opinion concerning how your father came to his death?" Hector asked abruptly.

"I have understood that he took his own life—because of his love for another woman," Bruce returned.

"You know that?"

"I have put two and two together, Hector," Bruce replied bluntly. "I know they were in love—the rest I have guessed."

"You have talked with Autumn about it?"

"A little—a very little—one night just after she came back," Bruce admitted.

"You came to that conclusion together, then?" Hector asked. "I hope you don't mind my questioning you in this way. It's scarcely good manners in a host."

"It can't make the slightest difference, Hector," Bruce replied. "I see no reason why you and I should stand on ceremony."

"Certainly not! Certainly not! Because of that, I mean to tell you the truth about that episode, if you can bear the telling of it."

Bruce bit meditatively at his under lip while his eyes studied Hector's face.

"I'm of age, Hector," he said. "I guess I can stand hearing it—if you can tell it."

The old man drained his glass and set it on the table. "Then—listen until I'm quite through with it," he said.

—soon after she came back."

"You don't happen to remember—about what night that was?"

Hector thought for a moment. "Not very clearly. She called here the next morning—I think—on her way to visit the Parrs."

"That was on her first visit, wasn't it?"

"I believe it was," Hector told him.

"It must have been," Bruce said. "It just about killed the girl, I guess."

Hector looked at him for a moment. "Why do you think she has been playing the fool ever since?"

Bruce tossed off the brandy and set his glass aside. "It's a crazy world," he said. "One night—only a week ago—I learned how it feels to want to kill a man."

Old Hector, standing above him, raised his eyebrows. A light seemed to dawn in his eyes and he smiled whimsically down upon the roughly tumbled head of his guest.

"That was good for your soul, my boy," he observed. "You learned something that ought to mean much to you in the future."

Later, when Bruce got into his car, Hector stood within the little, cowl-like porch of his abode and noted that the Milky Way was a pearly bridge built from mountain top to dark mountain top. Bruce called a good night and Hector waved a response. And as the car sped away he looked up at the sky again and thought how much younger the stars had been when he was young.

Autumn walked across the grounds to the Willmar cottage, her wide-brimmed leghorn hat in her hand, the light, warm wind blowing the skirt of her white organdie dress into a billow about her. As she approached the cottage, three children rose from the tall field of white daisies that grew in the hollow between the Castle and the foreman's lodge. The Willmar brood—Dickie, Simmy and Laura—started toward her with excited cries, their hands full of the white daisies they had been gathering. Trotting behind them came the ubiquitous Mo-mo, still possessed of his woolly tail, and bearing himself with considerably more dignity than when he had gone wandering with Simmy in the early Spring.

Autumn stooped and gathered the children into her arms, then turned and stretched her hand to rub Mo-mo's velvety nose.

Laura, the ten-year-old, pressed her blonde head close against Autumn's cheek and wound her arm tightly about her neck.

"I don't want you to go 'way, Autumn," she said, her voice full of pleading. "Mamma says we'll have to go away, too, if you go. We don't want to go."

Autumn's eyes darkened with the anxiety she had been feeling for the past week. "Nonsense, dear!" she protested. "You will stay here no matter where I go."

Dickie and Simmy broke into a duet of lament. "We can't have Mo-mo any more. The man says he's going to take Mo-mo."

"Oh, you dear sillies!" Autumn scolded them. "No man is going to take Mo-mo. Come along, let's go in and see mother."

With a warm little-boy hand in each of hers, and with Laura walking sedately ahead of her and Mo-more following closely behind, Autumn proceeded to the Willmar cottage.

It was baking day for Mrs. Willmar. As Autumn entered the kitchen with the children, the woman turned from the table where she had been rolling out cookie pastry. The troubled look in her eyes changed swiftly to a resolute smile as she dusted the flour from her hands.

"Good morning, Miss Autumn," she said, brushing a loose strand of pale hair back from her warm brow. "My goodness, you young ones shouldn't hang on Miss Autumn's dress that way! Don't let them do it. Come away, Dickie—your hands are a sight!"

The Curse of Scotland

The origin of the superstition that the nine diamonds is the curse of Scotland is uncertain, but one of the most plausible explanations is that in the game of comette, introduced by Queen Mary, it is the great winning card. It caused ruin to so many families that it became known as a curse.

To Swim, or Not to Swim
Women in America spend about $25,000,000 a year for bathing suits. Clothing merchants place them in two classifications—suits for those who actually go in the water, and suits for sun-bathers. Only about half of the bathing suits ever get closer to the water than a wash-tub.

CHELSEA WINS TWO GAMES
After taking a severe beating at the hands of U. High, Chelsea came back to win her next two games. Chelsea defeated Romulus last Friday in a rough and tumble affair, by the score of 32-22. Schneider was high point man with 12 points.

Tuesday night, Chelsea defeated Michigan Center by a score of 39 to 23. Schneider was high point man with 15. Chelsea was defeated earlier in the year by Michigan Center.

The second team of Chelsea was defeated by Romulus, 21 to 8, and also by Michigan Center, 28-7. Kusterer and Schiller were high point men.

There will be a game with Milan here Tuesday, Jan. 30. There will be both first and second team games, and the first game will begin at 7:15.

Elementary News

Sixth Grade
Reporters: Arthur Paul and Charlie Slane
January 19, 1940 we had 16 of 25 students present, although the temperature was from 16 to 10 degrees below zero.

The Sixth Grade went to the assembly and took notes Friday, January 19. It was by General Motors and about Science, Temperance and Baseball. January 19 we got a Red Cross sticker for our room window.

The Sixth Grade has gotten a new calendar from L. G. Palmer. It has big numbers so the people can see them from the back of the room. The afternoon of January 15 the State Conservation Department was down in the gym. The whole school was permitted to come. We took notes about the exhibit and then we had to make a report. Most of the people wrote a good report.

We have a cardboard disk called "At-a-Glance", showing the British Empire and its 54 countries. It gives much information about British Lands.
Proverb: "The life of duty not mere ease or mere pleasure—that is the kind of life which makes the great men, as it makes the great nation."

'Thumb' Lunch
While fine meals eaten at leisure are one of the greatest attractions of Paris, busy Frenchmen will take what Americans call a "quick lunch," what Londoners call a "hasty snack," and what Parisians themselves call "on one's thumb."

U. S. Cotton Production
American production of cotton increased 30-fold between 1800 and the Civil war.
Electric Heated
Electrically heated hotbeds are used for growing farm and garden plants for transplanting.
