ensure pensions to 25,000 more persons who are now eligible to receive them.

Eighty per cent of the relief jackpot would be allocated to counties on a population basis, according to the supervisors' scheme, and 20 per cent would go to a state fund for emergency needs. Whereas the supervisors' formula is based on population, city officials of metropolitan centers have insisted that relief should be allocated on the basis of actual need on the theory that industrial cities often are harder hit with unemployment than small towns.

The city vs. rural controversy thus may break out into new fury as a result of the supervisors' plan. It will likely be challenged by Detroit and other large cities in Michigan. Labor complications are also foreseen.

Liquor Row

Action of Governor Dickinson, a national and state anti-saloon league leader, in deserting his fellow townsman and temperance-living neighbor, Muriel H. DeFoe, was one of those things that makes the Lansing scene of news interest these days.

DeFoe, member of the state liquor commission, believed that the state was putting too much money into liquor inventories, that a reduction of this investment would afford a cool million dollars for welfare use, and that, anyway, the commission was paying too much attention to a few distilleries.

Orrin A. DeMass, Detroit, commission chairman, countered with denials. DeFoe declared he would decline to sign any more orders for purchases with the "big six" distilleries until Feb. 5, the new "buying" meeting.

Then the governor intervened. Despite his personal ideas about temperance, Dickinson said he would sign liquor purchase orders if it were necessary.

It was all a bit disconcerting. The dispute gave another airing to the problem of liquor purchases and sales, a state business whose gross sales in 1938 totaled more than $37,000,000—5,236,000 gallons of whiskeys, gins and rums and 102,873,000 gallons of beer. Last year, liquor sales in-

Winter Sports

With winter's cold blasts assuring plenty of ice skating and tobogganing, the Upper Peninsula will celebrate a number of community winter sport festivals during February. The events will continue through Washington's birthday.

Escanaba and Newberry stage their carnivals Feb. 2, 3 and 4. Marquette's showing will be Feb. 6-11; Negaunee, Feb. 8-10; Gladstone, Feb. 9-11; Iron Mountain, Feb. 10-12; Sault Ste. Marie, Feb. 14-17; Munising, Feb. 17-18; Ishpeming, Feb. 19-22; Houghton, Feb. 14-17.

The all-peninsula queen contest will be held at the Soo on Feb. 17.

Members of the Escanaba Ski club made a trip to Tahquamenon Falls last Saturday and Sunday, believe it or not.

In the Lower Peninsula the winter sport centers include Grayling's big toboggan-skating-skiing park, Alpena, Petoskey and Ionia. Winter sports offer a new development for Michigan; a healthful recreation for its residents, and a source of additional income for many communities.

24 Years Ago

Thursday, February 3, 1916

Jacob Walz, who resided at the John Clark homestead in Lyndon for 50 years, died at the Clark home on Friday, January 28, 1916.

Charles F. Hathaway has purchased Mrs. Charles Fish's residence on East Middle street.

Miss Ricka Kalmbach returned home on Monday from an extended western trip.

John Liebeck and family are moving to the J. P. Miller farm south of town. Mr. Miller is moving to Chelsea.

Clarence Miller, James Doling and Lloyd Pennington of Jackson and Hazen Leach of Chelsea spent last week at the Leach cottage, Sugar Loaf Lake. While part of the party were fishing on one end of the lake in a boat the others were fishing through the ice on the other end of the lake.

Fred Egeier has rented the Lewis Yager, Jr. farm in Lima township. Mr. and Mrs. Guy L. Hulce have rented the Susan Cooper estate farm in Lima township.

Miss Eva Koch of Lima and William E. Frey of Ann Arbor were married on Saturday, January 29, 1916.

34 Years Ago

Thursday, February 1, 1906

Leo Wade, 14 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Wade, died Saturday, January 3, 1906 from injuries received in the morning when hit by a fast freight on the electric road. He was returning to his home from a trip in the country and was walking on the track of the electric road west of town and a passing freight on the M. C. R. R. prevented him hearing the approaching electric car.

W. H. Eisenman of Freedom reports that he saw a striped snake out sunning last Friday. Lilac bushes and shade trees are budding. Dandelions are blossoming.

Daniel Hieber of Freedom sold to J. G. Adrien on Saturday a dressed hog that weighed 335 pounds, for which he received $20.40.

Frank P. Glazier on last Saturday purchased the buildings on the southwest corner of Main and Huron Sts. in Ann Arbor.

A joint meeting of the Bay View and Ladies' Research clubs were held at the home of Mrs. L. T. Freeman on Monday evening.

Wealthy 'First Father'

George Washington was one of the wealthiest men of his time. He owned 70,000 acres of land in Virginia and 40,000 acres elsewhere. His estate was valued at what would now exceed $5,000,000.

Our New Teacher

We want to introduce to you Carl Chandler of Chelsea. He has taught at Battle Creek and Detroit. He says he likes our school very much and he says it is swell to be back. "I think this school is even nicer now than it was when I graduated from here," he said.

Mr. Chandler is taking the place of Miss Efty as English and Speech teacher.

He says his ambition is to be a good teacher. "My hobby is 'puttering around.' I take interest in most things that are being done."

All Hi Dance

On Thursday evening, Jan. 25, from 7:00 to 9:30 Chelsea high school gym was the scene of an All Hi dance. The Juniors had the gym very cleverly decorated with various colored balloons on streamers. The music was furnished by the High School Swing Band and the Victrola.

The students' ballroom conduct and dancing shows great improvement. We believe the credit is due to our dancing classes. The number of dancers has been greatly increased. Keep up the good work, dancing fans! Maybe in the future we will have more enjoyable dances like this.

F. F. A. News

The high school agricultural department, under the direction of Mr. Bust, will spend Thursday, Feb. 1 at Michigan State College Farmers' Week. Thursday is turkey day and many features of turkey work will be shown. About 20 boys will attend.

The F. F. A. Chelsea Chapter will play Manchester F. F. A. on Wednesday night, marking the first game of the season.

The F. F. A. club took over the sale of infantile paralysis buttons on Thursday of last week at the high school.

New Farm Projects

Under the direction of Thomas Bust, the vocational agriculture instructor of Chelsea High, six boys will carry Farm Management projects for 1940. This is the first Smith-Hughes school to carry such projects. Mr. Bust is the first agriculture teacher in Washtenaw county to direct Farm Management projects.

These Farm Management projects are plans by which the student of agriculture may through the course of the year keep records on farm income and outgo and through the cooperation of Michigan State College find where there farm rates in comparison to other farms. Many older farmers have kept records for over 11 years and say that the old records are of great help for future planning.

It is an honor for Chelsea high school to be the first to take the lead in Smith-Hughes schools in Farm Management project work. Mr. Bust is to be commended for his fine work and with the planning for better agriculture, Chelsea High will be among the leaders.

Band and Orchestra

Listen! What's this? When we were passing through the gym the other day we heard the mellow tones of our orchestra. We couldn't resist the temptation to linger and so we stayed awhile. We heard such famous numbers as "Tales of the Vienna Woods," "I Love You Truly," "Universal March," and they really played these pieces with "zip" and it sounded swell. It's been rumored that the orchestra will have a concert soon.

We also happened to be passing one day just as the band was beginning a day's practice. We stopped, more out of curiosity than anything else, and once they started playing wild horses couldn't have dragged us away. Were they swell!

Most of the pieces were new, too, and they are learning them for the usual spring concert.

There's only a month before the "pre-view concert" at Ann Arbor, and there are many pieces to learn. Here's some of the ones to be selected from: "God Bless America," "Gridiron Heroes," the official song of the Detroit Lions, "The Hero," "Military Escort" (in five ways), and many others.

Do you wonder why we stopped awhile and listened to them? They made us rush up to several members and want to know when we may hear the band and orchestra in an official concert. They don't know for sure yet but I bet with the way they're playing some sort of venture will be sponsored by them, as you know these new uniforms are still waiting.

Elementary News

Sixth Grade
Reporters: Charlie Slane and George Slane.

We are almost finished with the British Lands in Asia, especially India, because it is the biggest possession.

Some of the sixth graders are getting extra notebook covers to keep their geography papers in.

Barbara Eaton brought a big calendar. She got it from her father. Jane had a birthday party January 28.

The class learned from our Weekly Reader how men of Science can tell how long an earthquake lasted, how bad it was and the direction it moved. They use a machine which is called a seismograph.

Joan Shutes and Anne Lamberton made a picture of the glacier that covered Michigan twenty thousand years ago and a map of Michigan as it looks today. It is from a special report from the Conservation Exhibit in the gym.

We are having new key words for our reading class. They are about Clipper ships.

On these cold snowy days we don't do anything special except throw snowballs and play tag.

A few of the class have made a report in geography about the building of the Taj Mahal in the city of Agra in India. Betty Whipple brought a color picture of the Taj Mahal.

The sixth grade room was used for a check room January 24 by the Red and Gun club. They left it in good condition.

We are all sorry that Myra Townsend is going to move soon and leave our school.

Joanne Shutes gave a farewell party for Myra Townsend, Saturday, Jan. 27. All the girls of the sixth grade were invited to come to the party.

Our motto for this week: "No one, with the exception of myself, can really cheat me of final success." Barbara discovered it in our spelling book.

Joke:
What does a rich man need?
What does a poor man have?
What does a miser spend?
What do we take with us when we die?

Answer—Nothing.

During the winter months when there are considerably fewer hours of daylight it becomes necessary to use the headlights on automobiles and trucks earlier and longer.

Automobile fatalities which occurred during the hours of darkness, increased 54.5 per cent from 1930 through 1937. During the same period, automobile fatalities which occurred during hours of daylight decreased 5.4 per cent.

Our greatest automobile traffic is during the daytime, but our highest automobile fatalities are at night. These facts challenge all of us to be more alert and more courteous in our night driving. It requires additional caution and extra driving ability to move through congested traffic as well as in the "wide open spaces."

Good highway lighting is possible and will help solve this evil and should be installed as rapidly as possible.

When Forest Giants Sleep

Hartwick Pines state park near Grayling, where may be seen one of the few remaining stands of virgin white pine in Michigan, is attracting many visitors this winter. The trip to the park is an interesting side jaunt for those drawn to Grayling winter sports park. Trees in 30-acre stand of virgin pine are more than a century old, tower to heights of 100 feet and more. Hartwick Pines state park is one of many kept open during winter months by the Michigan department of con-

Cassidy Lake Events

Radio

(Harold Ivins)

From all appearances, the many struggling months of the former radio club has finally come to a brilliant climax. Since the arrival of Engineer, V. Owens, of Birmingham, classes have been organized, and, in doing very well with the study of "electrical fundamentals" in both the morning and afternoon classes.

With the new program, many tools and test instruments have been added to the club to correspond with the laboratory which is now under construction in the basement of the craft shop.

The most fascinating of the new equipment is the oscilloscope and chandyst, which, thanks to Mr. Oesterle, is the OK on the condenser, certainly the servicing division will appreciate this modern equipment.

The laboratory is to have two sound-proof rooms for transmission and reference work, as well as construction and servicing benches along with a code table.

A representative of F. C. C. is expected to visit the latter part of next week to consider specialized transmission with power transmitter. Some of the students hope to be broadcasting the "weather".

Many thanks to Claire's for their very useful donation of radio parts. Mr. Nawrocki and Mr. Ivins recently visited the Waterloo CCC camp, and found a station which we hope will be on our QRM schedule. May it be known that members of the club are very desirous of visiting other hams—Now, how about your ham?

Anyone interested in a high fidelity amplifier with the best possible parts is advised to see Mr. Papsdorf, who recently thought he had a roughy glibbed your reporter, that was forced to retaliate—Ask Paps the expander works.

Auto-Shop

(Francis Gowens)

Our auto shop seems to be doing very well with the young men interested. One of these men, for example, is Otto Urpila, who recently secured a job at Hart's Garage at Chelsea. He had obtained most, if not all of his experience in our auto shop under the supervision of Mr. Herder.

Recently the fellows in the shop have completed a complete motor repair job for the Internal Revenue Department at Detroit. They are now working on a similar job for the same party. Edward Quist has filled his shoes as junior welding supervisor. A class in welding has been started for all interested. Classes are held Saturday mornings.

The evening classes in Automotive are progressing rapidly, and are expected to be very promising. Many changes in schedules have been made throughout the entire program this year. Among them we wish to emphasize those of our Auto Machine Shop. In these two departments the following subjects were reduced to aid the students in their intricate desires to become expert machinists and mechanics: Applied Mathematics two hours weekly; Physics one hour weekly; and First Aid and Health, one hour weekly.

Another good man gone from the Shop, Leslie Housel, who proved to be a very valuable man, and shop man as well, hailing from Newburgh, Mich. Leslie has obtained a job at the Dibble Body Shop in Jackson.

General minor repair jobs were turned out of the Auto Shop last week.

"Cassidy Tech. Fight" (Joseph Takus)

Cassidy boys carry off honors in amateur fights at Jackson.

The first round of fighting in the Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament staged at the County Building last Friday night resulted in three wins out of seven bouts for Cassidy Tech. The referee, who is known throughout Michigan for his ability in fine judgment in this capacity, was Bob Armstrong.

Bantamweight
(118 lbs. and under)

Paul Hawley of Jackson led the field in the bantamweight class by knocking out Don Kovell of Cassidy Tech. At the end of the second round Kovell ran into a hay-maker that put him to sleep, but was saved by the bell. In the third round, Kovell ran into another one of those hay-makers thrown by Hawley. Yes, Kovell was out for the count, colder than a refrigerator. Well, I'll say one thing for Kovell, "He likes his sleep." Wool!

Featherweight
(126 lbs. and under)

Ray Wilson of Jackson won a close decision from Wilfred Mallett of Cassidy Tech. Although Wilfred was outweighted by four pounds he gave a good account of himself. Yes, Wilfred is a good fighter, but Ray is a shade better. Too bad about the shiner, Wilfred! Better luck next time.

Lightweight
(135 lbs. and under)

Ray Benson, the scrapping lightweight from Jackson won a decision over Zane Hunter. Benson hit Hunter with everything but the ring posts. Ah! but hunter can take it. You just have to observe this boy to see that.

Welterweight
(147 lbs. and under)

Everett George, one of the hardest hitting, fastest, coolest-headed fighters of Cassidy Tech. cleverly outfought Edward DuLumba of Jackson. Everett carried the fight in all three rounds. Keep your eye on this boy. He is going places.

Jeff Embury, another welterweight of Cassidy Tech., scored a technical K. O. over Don Cole of Jackson early in the third round. Cole's face was badly battered—and the bout was stopped by referee Bob Armstrong. Embury, shifty and fast, should give a good account of himself in the tournaments-to-be.

L. Smith of Jackson scored a knock-out over Francis Gowens of Cassidy Tech. eight seconds after the beginning of the first round. Poor Gowens, he still claims he was hit by a pop bottle thrown by someone in the audience. You're a smart auto mechanic, Gowens—stick to it!

Dale Elliott, another middleweight, "Superman" of Cassidy Tech., outfought Ross Peavey of Jackson in the exchange of "fist cuffs" to win the bout. Dale, who is a tall rugged fighter should go places in this tournament. More power to you, Dale, we are looking forward to seeing more of your fine exhibition of the art of boxing.

After this fine, splendid showing of the boys in the manly art of self-defense, we are at a loss to understand why Coach "Chubby" Van Houten is planning to organize a stretcher crew at Cassidy Tech.

With all seriousness, however, we are pleased to recognize the fact, the boys are ready to do and die for dear old Cassidy Tech. That's the spirit, boys. Let's have more of this show.

Woodshop

(Frederick Martell)

Mr. Jensen won't have cause to complain of dust and sawdust around the woodshop after the completion of the new dust collector, which is being installed in the woodshop at the present time.

The machine consists of a 3 horsepower motor, and travels at a rate of 1725 R. P. M. All dust, as well as sawdust and wood scraps are sucked from the shop through a blower unit into a ten-inch galvanized steel pipe which is 114 feet long, into a cyclone dust collector.

Through centrifugal action caused by the stream of air going into the cyclone, the dust is separated from the air, permitting the air to escape through the top, and the dust, sawdust, or scraps escaping through the bottom, where it is then deposited into sacks.

All piping is underground. What a pleasure it will be to work in the woodshop henceforth. If you value your handkerchiefs, keep them off the floor.

The Socialite
(Dewey Williams)

Wednesday nights are no longer town nights for Cassidy. Without a doubt this certainly hurts the regular town-goers because it limits them to only two dates per week. Nevertheless, I think the fellows realize that this helps them more in their financial state. Thanks to Mr. Miller and Mr. Papsdorf for arranging the movies which we enjoy each Wednesday night.

Besides the main feature, we have an educational picture, as well as a musical comedy. Last Wednesday, Jan. 10, "Spawn of the North" was shown, featuring Dorothy Lamour and George Raft.

Wednesday, Jan. 17 the attraction was "The Triumph of Sherlock Holmes." Along with two travelogues, a musical and a cartoon comedy.

Mr. Papsdorf has started a projection operating club. Let's hope they are as successful as were our other clubs. Good luck, Paps.

"The Rambling Wrecks from Cassidy Tech."

Basketball at Cassidy Tech. is progressing very rapidly considering the limited space and time for practice.

Under the supervision of the athletic director Charles Van Houten, Coach Wager A. Glas, and the watchful eye of the assistant coach and manager, Richard Wickens, the finer points of the game are being drilled into the players. The team has many potential possibilities which should make them one of the winning teams of the season.

The team is composed of former high school stars from all corners of Michigan. The team personnel consists of Joseph Takus, the former all-city center from Grand Rapids; Chas. Cappell, a small fast scrappy guard from Pontiac; Ralph Sampala, a rugged guard from Crystal Lake; James Comolay, a fast smooth working forward from Paw Paw; Victor Linn, an aggressive forward from Custer; Melvin Glaser, a tall rugged forward from Iron Mountain; Clarence Summerville, a smooth working forward from Central Lake; Tom and Jessie Embury, a pair of fast-working guards from West Branch; George Howell, a rugged forward from Roseville; William Mallette, a small tricky forward from Alpena; Walter (Gizmo) Jones, the galloping jeep from Central Lake; Albert Sylvester from Hazel Park; Charles Satterlee from Mt. Clemens; Carl Markstrom from St. Joseph; last and I do mean the least, L. McMillen, our very uncapable assistant water boy.

The team had a practice game with Chelsea high school. After a hard-fought battle the Cassidy team was defeated by the score of 22-21. The team made a remarkable showing considering the circumstances.

Aviation Division
(Elmann Bednarz)

Our aviation division was a mere dream in its infancy about a year ago. It all started at a joint meeting where those who were interested got together to discuss and try to formulate some plan whereby we could gather more information on the subject of aviation. This led to a club, which now is the largest of any at Cassidy Lake.

Some of the fellows went to the Ann Arbor Airport, where they learned to fly—at their own expense, of course. Seeing the interest the fellows took in this particular field, Mr. Reynolds, the manager of the Ann Arbor Airport, came quite frequently to Cassidy Lake and held meetings, offering to help the fellows in any way possible.

Mr. Reynolds was the sparkplug which kept these enthusiastic young fliers going in times of low ebb.

In time and through various channels the NYA began to see light. Slowly but surely our aviation club has advanced to what we are today.

We have what is known as a primary, secondary, and advanced classes in aviation. At present the main method of progress is through theory, which is to be followed by practical experience in the near future.

Our instructor, who is an officer in the Army Reserve, is a proficient man being a licensed mechanic and instructor. At present we have a group of eighty-four enrolled in this class. We hope in the future, at the completion of our course, to become licensed mechanics and repair men.

Music
(Ernest Spencer)

The Cassidy Lake Band has completed one book of overtures, marches and waltzes, and is now working on the "Big Ten" school songs.

Monday evening, January 8, the band was invited to play at the CCC Camp at Waterloo, where we provided entertainment throughout the dinner hour, after which we were served a very relishing meal—trimmings and all. Their appreciation was quite obvious, due to their courtesy and attentiveness. Here, we of the band, wish to extend our sincere thanks to Lieutenants Brown and Stewart for the invitation, and we eagerly look forward for other such invitations.

Perhaps it might interest you to know that four of the boys in our band will try out for the all National Youth Orchestra under the direction of Leopold Stokowski. This All American Youth Orchestra will be composed of young musicians from all forty-eight states.

The orchestra will make a tour this summer through Central and South America. The members of the orchestra will be paid union musicians' wages. Cassidy Lake expects to place four men in this famous orchestra.

Friday, January 12, the Cassidy Ramblers, Curly Clark and His Gang, played at a dance at Lima Center, and again Friday, January 19, at St. Mary hall, Chelsea.

About fifty of the staff and youth attended the third annual Chelsea Rod and Gun Club dinner.

Farmer Sherwood reports an increase from 30 to 100 eggs each day.

Our Neighbors

TECUMSEH—The Tecumseh high school band, under the direction of Clarence Camburn, has been invited to play at the New York World's Fair next summer. The invitation was extended by H. D. Gibson, administration chairman. The Fair does not pay any part of the expense of the trip to New York, nor the cost of the band's stay while in the city. Mr. Camburn estimated that it would cost approximately $1,000 to send the band to New York, and he was unable to say at this time whether such an effort would be attempted.—Herald.

HOWELL—When her purse fell open, Miss Munsch, clerk at the office of the Perry Elevator Co., had about $100 in bills scattered all over that town by high winds one day last week. With the help of people about town practically all the money has been recovered, much of it having been retrieved several blocks from where it was dropped.—County Press.

Mosquito Salad Please

Flies and mosquitoes in the form of paste are a delicacy among African natives. Their chewing gum is termite mounds which they enjoy nearly as much as the fly and mosquito paste.

Question And Answer Dept.

Problem—Two men were engaged in a game of ski. There were no fouls or forfeits, but the man that had the lowest score won the game. How come? (Answer elsewhere in this department).

Ques—Why do we often dream of falling?

Ans—Many psychologists believe that this is really a memory buried in our subconscious minds, of the time when man's ancestors lived in trees, and when falling off a branch, it was one of the most terrifying experiences of life.

Answer to problem—The men were playing golf, in which game the low score wins.

Ques—Are there any large nations with which the United States has no diplomatic relations?

Ans—No. The last two large nations to sign trade agreements were Turkey and Russia. At this time it appears the Russian agreement will be broken eventually.

Ques—What kind of metal is used in airplane construction?

Ans—"Duralumin" is used in the construction of airplanes. It is light, and about equal in strength and hardness to soft steel. It is an alloy of aluminum.

Ques—Who was executed by law to be drowned, if any?

Ans—Nobody of record. However, the duke of Clarence, George, was so executed by his brother, King Edward IV. George sided with Henry VI against his brother Edward, and when the latter captured him the prisoner was given his choice of modes of execution. He chose to be drowned in a butt of wine.

Ques—Was Alexander Dumas, the famous author, a Negro or a Frenchman?

Ans—Alexander Dumas was a quadroon, one-fourth Negro and three-fourths white. His African blood was evidenced in his crisp hair, dark complexion and thick lips.

Ques—Will you kindly answer which phrase is correct "to the manner born" or "to the manner born"?

Ans—This phrase is written frequently erroneously "to the manner born", but it should be "to the manner born". It means to be accustomed to from birth.

Ques—Why was the old custom of March 4 set aside as inauguration day for the President of the United States?

Ans—It is said that Benjamin Franklin made the suggestion that March 4 be adopted as inauguration day because that date would fall on Sunday less frequently in the succeeding 200 years than any other date. The Philadelphia convention adopted the suggestion.

Ques—Will you please answer how the international date line affects travelers in their time—that is, how timepieces must be changed when crossing this line?

Ans—It is the day of week that changes—not the time of day. The traveler going east across the international line gains a whole day—that is, if it is Sunday west of the line, it will be Monday east of it. If he were going west, he would lose a day.

The State Land Office Board announces...

Public Auction Sale

of State-owned properties

starting Feb. 13, 1940 at 9 A.M.

... at the office of ...

The County Treasurer

These properties are those which were tax-delinquent, bid into the State at the May, 1938 tax sale and reverted to the State on Nov. 3, 1939, and are now under the jurisdiction of the State Land Office Board.

Such properties will be offered for sale to the highest bidder at a Public Auction which will open February 13, 1940 at 9:00 A.M. at the office of the County Treasurer. To be accepted bids must be not less than 25% of the 1938 assessed valuation.

If you were an owner in fee, mortgagee, land contract vendee, or had a substantial interest by way of actual investment in any of said properties, you may bid at this sale or meet the bid of any other bidder, according to the provisions of Act No. 155, P.A. 1937, as Amended.

You may also, upon application to the State Land Office Board, enter into an agreement to pay the sum required in monthly installments, on such terms as the Board may provide.

Bids of all other persons shall be accepted only when payment is made in cash within 24 hours of the bid.

Ask your County Treasurer for explanatory pamphlet and lists of properties to be offered.

The sale of properties located in Washtenaw County will open at the office of Washtenaw County Treasurer, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Michigan Apples Bring $103 a Bushel

Nation Prepares for Lent

Lenten Message

Body, mind, and spirit comprise the unity by which you are known to others. What is necessary for the healthy and well-being of one component of your being is vital to the other two. Your body needs refreshment; your mind requires rest and change; your spirit...? The greatest of these is spirit, yet frequently the least esteemed.

I believe that Lent properly understood and right fully used is indispensable to human personality, which is more real and dearer than anything we possess.

The Rev. Frank R. Wilson, rector of St. James Episcopal church at Hyde Park, N. Y., the "Church of the President," presents a special Lenten message to people of the nation:

Sharon

Substitutes Science
Differences between substitutes and the materials they were designed to replace often intrigue imaginative research men. Right now the fact that balls made of "Koroseal" look exactly like balls of rubber but don't bounce, has several researchers scratching their heads for some use to which this and other odd properties could be put.

OLDSMOBILE SALES INCREASE

Oldsmobile sales of new Sixes and Eights for the second 10-day selling period of January totaled 4,123 units, the second largest volume for this period in Oldsmobile's history, D. E. Ralston, general sales manager for the company, announced today.

"Sales this year increased more than 10 per cent over the 3,458 cars sold during the same period last year," said Ralston, "and more than 18 per cent over the 3,490 cars sold during the first ten days of January this year."

"While substantial sales increases have been made in each of the three series of Oldsmobiles this year, the most noteworthy sales gain is found in the Oldsmobile Custom '8' Cruiser series. Sales for the second ten days of January of this series totaled 960 units and gained approximately 81 per cent over the 740 eight cylinder Oldsmobiles sold during the first ten days of January this year."

"The answers are of interest to everyone who has a social security number or who is the survivor of a worker who has been employed in jobs covered by the Social Security Act."

Pastors' Conference

Held In Ann Arbor

The First Annual Pastors' Conference of Michigan, under the joint auspices of the Michigan Council of Churches and Christian Education, and the Religious Education Commission of the University of Michigan, was held on January 22-24 at Ann Arbor. The sessions were held in the Rackham-Graduate Building of the University.

Two hundred and one persons were present, representing fourteen denominations in the state of Michigan, from seventy-eight towns and cities in the state, including also three pastors from Ohio.

The Conference was built around the general idea of "Christianity and Civilization." Dr. Charles Gilkey, Dean of Religion, University of Chicago, opened the Conference with an address on "Blackouts." Several other important addresses were: "Religion and Mental Health," by H. O. Voder, M. D., Ypsilanti State Hospital; "A Spiritual Interpretation of Current Events," by Shailer Mathews, University of Chicago.

All in attendance agreed that the theological lectures given by Dr. Walter Horton of Oberlin College were the high-point of the Conference. Dr. Horton's theme was "Can Christianity Save Civilization?" By saving civilization, he said, is meant not saving the present Christianity, but a cultural renewal of religion. He declared that Christianity shows the most promise of any institution around which there can be a cultural renewal and a saving of civilization. Yet he was not over-optimistic.

An Interfaith dinner was held, a Jewish Rabbi speaking on "The Rabbi and his People." After each session of the Conference was held a worship service, led by Rev. J. B. Stauffer of Lansing. There were several denominational luncheons, and conferences on worship. Also there was a series of conferences held on (1) The Church in Our Town - A United Approach. (2) The Church and Delinquency Prevention. (3) The Pastor as Counsellor.

It was believed on the part of everyone that the Conference was a decided success in its first meeting. It is to be hoped that there will be established a permanent annual conference of Michigan pastors.

Michigan School Teachers. Thirty-two thousand Michigan school teachers must file oaths of allegiance to the Constitutions of the United States and of Michigan if they want to teach in public schools. The legislature passed a law requiring them to file the oaths with the state superintendent of public instruction.

PARALYSIS DRIVE CLOSES

A total of $61.31 was collected locally by the committee in charge of the infantile paralysis "March of Dimes" drive. This amount is in addition to the money sent directly to Washington in the President's birthday cards which were sent to residents of the community for this purpose.

Parochial and public school collections amounted to $15.00; a total of $10.31 was collected from the coin boxes in business places and at Cassidy Lake, and there were 36 contributions of $1.00 each. This fund has been turned over to the county committee and one-half of the money will remain in this county for use in the fight against infantile paralysis. The other half will go to the national fund.

Members of the local committee wish to thank all who have contributed to the fund, and also those who aided in any way to make the drive a success.

Contributions of $1.00 were received from Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Mayer, Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Johnson, Dr. and Mrs. Faye Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Erue Plankell, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harper, Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Schallie, Dr. and Mrs. J. N. Strieler, Oscar D. Schneider, Fred Loeffler, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Harker, Mrs. Clara Hutzler, Mrs. Elizabeth Wackenhut, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kusterer, Dr. and Mrs. A. L. ## Chelsea Defeats Milan

By Wayne Van Orman

After a defeat by the Dundee team last Friday, Chelsea came back Tuesday night to gain a romping victory over the Milan team. Chelsea showed much more team work than she has shown in most of the games, and had a decided advantage even at the outset of the game. At half time Chelsea was well out in front and by the fourth quarter Coach Cameron saw fit to replace the regulars with the fast team reserves. The final score was 33-22. Policht and Schneider led in points scored by Chelsea, 12 and 10 respectively.

The second team of Chelsea lost by a 15-14 score. Walz was the leading scorer for Chelsea, with 5 points.

There will be a home game Friday, February 9, with Roosevelt.

Autumn laughed and rumbled Dickie's hair. "Hands and dresses can be washed, can't they, Dickie?" she said.

Mo-mo's hoofs clattered across the kitchen floor to a basket of vegetables that stood in one corner. "Simmy—look after Mo-mo." Mrs. Willmar sighed wearily, and wiped her face with her apron. "If you children can't mind that lamb he'll have to be kept outside. He's getting too big to be in the house, anyhow."

When the children had lugged the sheep out of the house and had gone romping in the yard, Autumn seated herself beside the kitchen table and Mrs. Willmar went on cutting out the cookies with the cover of a baking-powder can.

"Tom says you'll be leaving us soon again, Miss Autumn," she said quietly.

"Not for another two weeks or so," Autumn told her. "There is a lot to do with straightening—everything up in a place like this."

"Ah, dear! I don't know what we're going to do!"

Autumn glanced quickly at her and saddened. Tom Willmar's wife was a wistful-eyed little woman who had won her way back to health when she had come to live here ten years ago. The Dean ranch had meant life itself to her. And now—the fear of being ousted from her contentment and her modest security haunted her eyes.

"I've been wanting to talk to you about that, Mrs. Willmar," Autumn said gently.

The woman turned her face toward her in an utter hopelessness that wrung Autumn's heart.

"Talking about it won't change anything, I'm afraid, Miss Autumn," she replied resignedly. "Snyder was talking to Tom last night in town. He's a hard man, that Snyder."

"What was he saying, Mrs. Willmar?" Autumn asked.

"Tom told him he'd like to stay on here—it's been home to us for over ten years now. But Snyder says his clients, as he calls them, have plans of their own and there won't be any more place for us here."

Autumn clasped her hands in her lap. For days, ever since the evening of her last conference with Snyder and the men who were considering the purchase of the ranch with all its stock and equipment, her mind had dwelt almost constantly upon the Willmars, and Hannah, and poor old Absalom Peek, and the others who had given their years of faithful service to Jarvis Dean. At the outset of her negotiations with Snyder, Autumn had supposed that her father's old dependents would remain where they were—and go about their work as they had always done. Hannah, of course, would have to be looked after, but Autumn had already resolved to take her along with her and make her remaining years as comfortable as she could in the service of Aunt Flo. Snyder had been as diplomatic as possible. He was anxious to complete the sale without delay and in a manner that would be quite satisfactory to both parties to the transfer. When Autumn had expressed her wish that the staff should remain to carry on the work, Snyder had been unwilling to commit himself. His clients, of course, would have plans of their own. He would do what he could, certainly, to bring them to accept her suggestion. In the end, Autumn had refused to put her name to anything until the point was satisfactorily settled. The transaction had been delayed—and Snyder had been annoyed.

Autumn looked at the pitifully brave smile on the face of Mrs. Willmar. This little woman was only one of that small community of souls who, with the toll of their hands and the unquestioning courage of their spirits, had brought richness and well-being to this valley. And now that community was to be disrupted, flagrantly, ruthlessly, with no thought of the injustice that was being done to these humble people whose loyalty to Jarvis Dean was no part of the bargain that Snyder was making. In that brief moment Autumn looked inward upon herself and saw that in her pampered life she had taken these honest folk for granted, just as carelessly she had taken for granted the substantial revenue from her father's estate. Here was a heritage from the past which she had not recognized.

"I know, Mrs. Willmar," Autumn said at last. "Mr. Snyder is being very difficult about it—though, of course, he is not altogether free to do as he chooses. He must meet the wishes of his clients. But they will never find anyone better than Tom to manage this place. I have told them so."

"There's precious little comes of telling people what they don't want to hear, Miss Autumn," Mrs. Willmar replied.

"I know," Autumn said. "But I don't want you to worry. If the worst comes to the worst, I shall see to it that you and Tom have a good position before I leave."

Mrs. Willmar had placed the cookies in a pan and turned now to put them into the oven. When she straightened again, she looked at Autumn with a small, sad smile.

"That's awfully kind of you, Miss Autumn," she said. "But you shouldn't trouble yourself about us, really. We shall get along somehow. And it isn't so much a question of where we'll go as it is—just our leaving here. The Laird was always too kind to us, I guess. He—he spoiled us. No other place will ever seem like home to me. You see, I got my health back here—and my two youngest were born in this cottage. It makes a kind of difference—to know that we're leaving home."

Leaving home! The words cut across Autumn's heart with a cruel import. The woman could never guess what they meant to her, of course.

"Oh, Mrs. Willmar!" she cried. "If you only knew how—how terribly I understand!"

She was on the point of saying more, but suddenly, utterly bewildered by the complexities of her own feelings, she got up and went to the little woman and threw an arm impulsively about her shoulders.

"I've talked too much," Mrs. Willmar said, the tears starting to her eyes.

"I'm glad you have," Autumn said quickly. "But I don't want you to worry about it any more. I know it will work out, somehow, for the best."

There was little comfort in that, Autumn thought, but words were so futile, after all.

Mrs. Willmar hastily dabbed at her eyes. "I'm behaving badly, I'm afraid, Miss Autumn," she said brokenly. "I've no right to carry on this way. It's not proper, at all."

"Proper, fiddlesticks!" Autumn replied. "She turned suddenly and looked out of the door where the children and Mo-mo were at some game in the yard. 'I'll have to run along now, Mrs. Willmar.' She opened the door and then looked back at the foreman's wife. 'Those cookies smell awfully good. Do you suppose you could have one of the children sneak some of them past Hannah for me?'"

Mrs. Willmar smiled. "We might try," she said.

A little later, when Autumn slipped in through a side door of the castle, she surprised Hannah in the small sitting room in the act of wiping her eyes with the corner of a dust cloth. Hannah straightened severely and contrived a cheery smile which in no wise deceived Autumn.

"Hannah!" she reproved. "What's the use of carrying on like this?"

Hannah flicked the cloth indignantly over the rungs of a chair. "Who is carrying on? Not me!" she denied vigorously.

Autumn gave her a narrow look, then went into the drawing room where she seated herself at the piano, thinking to break the heavy enchantment of the house with the sound of the melodies she loved best. But after a random bar or two her hands fell dully away from the keys and she stared from the windows into the garden, her spirits sinking under the burden that had lain upon her for almost a week.

Uppermost in her mind, above all the questions that arose out of her perplexity, was one thought that bore constantly upon her mind. Hector Cardigan had told her about the evening Bruce had spent with him, when he had unfolded the past, withholding nothing of the story of Geoffrey Lander and Millicent Dean. Autumn had lived through four days of unspeakable suspense, hoping for some gesture from Bruce, some sign of his relenting toward her. At last, in utter despair of ever hearing from him, she had turned her mind toward preparations for her departure. Her resolution to leave all behind her and begin life anew might be both cowardly and selfish, but to her defeated spirit there seemed no other way.

Late in the afternoon, when it seemed no longer possible to cope with her problems, Autumn went to the rose garden to spend an hour with her own thoughts among her mother's flowers. She had been there only a few moments when Hannah called to her from the house.

"You're wanted on the telephone, Miss Autumn," Hannah told her as she came up the porch steps.

"Is it Mr. Snyder?" Autumn asked, with the ever-recurring, breath-taking hope that this, at last, might be Bruce calling.

"I don't know. It didn't sound like him—though I don't hear like I once could."

Autumn went to the telephone and picked up the receiver. The voice was Florian Parr's. He had just come back from his business trip to Vancouver and insisted on Autumn's returning with him to Kelowna. He had talked with Linda on the telephone, he said, and it was her fervent wish to have Autumn down for a day or two so that she might meet Linda's new fiancé. Besides, Linda was planning to go to Europe on her honeymoon. There would be plans to discuss with Autumn.

"I do love it, Florian," Autumn said impulsively, glad at the prospect of any relief from the depression that had weighed upon her all day. "I'll be ready when you get here. Hurry!"

"Right-o! old thing!" Florian chimed back. "You won't be able to see me for just once I get started. I have a few things to do yet before I leave, but you can count on me in—make about an hour and a half, say. How's that?"

"The sooner the better," Autumn told him. "I've had a terrible day of it, one way or another. I'm dying to talk to someone."

"And I'm dying to talk to you," he replied. "I'm the original old die-hard, Autumn."

She left the telephone with a sudden feeling of relief. Florian was a good sort, after all.

After telling Hannah her plans to go to Kelowna for a couple of days, Autumn hurried upstairs, took a refreshing cold shower, and proceeded to dress with an attentiveness to her appearance which had, in times past, helped to brace her flagging morale.

Presently she stood back from her pier glass and surveyed herself. The past few weeks had taken their toll; her eyes looked frightened and too large in the hollow pallor of her face; the backward clustering of her hair seemed too heavy for her head. And this severely tailored suit of white linen, smart though it was with its mannish silk blouse, gave her an almost aseptic look.

Florian would have a shock when he saw her, she reflected differently. But the wonder that thrust sharply into the background of her thought was what Bruce might think if he came face to face with her now.

She selected a half-opened pink robe from a vase on her dressing table and drew it through the lapel of her jacket. The effect was chastely sweet, she decided. Well, one had to contemplate the trivial details if one kept going at all—especially when the important things of life seemed bent on one's undoing. Bruce Lander might just possibly call while she was away—no, no, there must be an end to such thoughts as that! She tightened her lips as she heard Hannah's voice calling her from the foot of the stairs. That had been Florian's car, then, that she had heard entering the driveway.

"I'll be down in a moment, Hannah," she called back, and hastily dabbed a powder puff to the shadows under her eyes.

She had almost convinced herself that she was gay when she descended the stairway and approached the drawing room door. On the threshold, she paused abruptly and checked the greeting that was ready on her lips. The young man who rose to meet her was Bruce Lander.

"Hello, Autumn!" he said quietly as he came toward her. "I was afraid I might not find you at home."

She felt the wild, hot flush that covered her cheeks. "Why—Bruce! I had no idea it was you. I was expecting Florian."

In her confusion she knew, of course, that she had stumbled wretchedly there.

"I'll not stay more than a minute, Autumn," he said, with a diffidence that brought her a quick marveling of incredulity.

"Oh, please!" she breathed. "Sit down—until he comes, at any rate."

What on earth was she saying? She felt as if her wits had left her completely. What she had just said, in effect, was that he might leave the moment Florian arrived. But perhaps Bruce would not care to meet Florian—after their last encounter.

She seated herself and Bruce took a chair near her. Somehow she could not bring herself to glance directly at him in her sharp awareness of the distraught look on his face. Every instinct of her being, alive to his nearness once more, informed her that Bruce Lander had been suffering even as she herself had suffered.

"I had hoped you might come," she found herself saying, the words stumbling out recklessly.

He darted a quick look at her. "Had you, really? I—I wasn't sure you would care one way or the other."

"Oh!" She was not sure whether or not she had spoken. Her fingers twined tightly together in her lap. "I dropped over to say good-by, Autumn," Bruce went on. "Tom Willmar says you are planning to leave for England in a few days."

"I haven't set the time yet," Autumn replied. "It won't be for another ten days, anyway."

"I am going into the hills for a couple of weeks," he continued. "I'm leaving early in the morning. You'll probably be gone before I get back."

Her voice, when she spoke again, seemed to limp like some injured thing. "Oh," she said, "it was nice of you to come."

He opened his cigarette case and offered it to her. She was obliged to make her fingers rigid in order to control their trembling as she held the cigarette while he lit it for her.

"I came, Autumn," he said at last, his voice strangely tense, "because I did not want you to leave with the feeling that—that we are not friends."

A desire to give way to tears almost overwhelmed her as she looked at him now and recognized what it meant for him to speak so frankly. She could have gone to him in that moment and wept in his arms.

"I have had no such feeling, Bruce," she said with difficulty. "I couldn't blame you if you had," he said. "I think I told you—one night—that we could not be friends."

She smiled at him but did not speak, smiled frozenly, in a silence that was unbearable.

"I wanted you to know, before you left, that we shall always be friends—because we must be. I had dinner with Hector the other night."

"He told me so," Autumn said. "I heard the whole story—our whole story," Bruce went on, with evident emotion. "I wish you had told it to me before."

Autumn lifted her hands toward him slightly in a gesture of appeal. "I wanted to tell you, Bruce, but you must know why I could not."

"I understand that perfectly, Autumn. I should have felt the same about it myself—and would probably have acted as you did."

She forced herself to look squarely into his eyes. "It has all been terrible—for both of us."

"Forget it, then," Bruce said firmly. "What's past—is past!"

As he spoke, a car drove up before the door and came abruptly to a stop. Bruce got up and walked toward the window.

"That must be Florian now," Autumn said.

"It is," Bruce told her. "I'll be on my way."

He came toward her and held out his hand. She slipped her hand into his and thought in swift panic that she was losing him now, forever.

"Did you mean when you said—that the past is past?" she asked him hurriedly, as Florian's footfall sounded at the door.

Before he could reply, Florian had halted them from the doorway. Bruce drew back a step and Autumn turned to meet Florian, who was coming toward them, his usual easy self, his hand extended.

"Hello, folks!" he greeted them. "Great to see you again, Autumn! And you, too, Bruce! How's the big sheep man? Gosh, I haven't seen you for an age!"

"The last time we met—" Bruce began, but Florian interrupted him. "Say, the last time you spoke to me, you had murder in your heart."

"I admit it," Bruce said with a smile.

"You're great on that defending-a-woman's-fair-name stuff, Bruce. You'll get a reputation if you're not careful. You looked ready to kill me that night—kill me with your two hands, as they say in the thrillers."

"I know I was," Bruce admitted. "I owe you both an apology for what I thought that night."

"Don't spoil it, now," Florian admonished him. "You know, you really should have lived in the days when knights were bold—and all that rot—when running a man through was just part of the day's work."

He laughed at Bruce and then turned to Autumn. "Give us a drink, Autumn. I'm as dry as a salt mine."

"Sorry I can't stay with you and join in one," Bruce said. "I've got to get into the hills first thing in the morning and I've got a lot to do before dark."

"Sorry," Florian replied. "I was hoping we might have you down at the ranch for a little party this weekend. Autumn is coming down to help us celebrate her going away."

In fact, Lin told me she intends to telephone you tonight about it."

"I'd like to go," Bruce assured him; "but I can't put off the trip another day. Tell Lin for me, will you? I'll not be home to take her call."

"You're not leaving tonight?"

"No, but I'll be staying up at the cabin in the ravine tonight," Bruce replied. "I have some work to do up there on some new corrals I'm putting in."

"Well, business is business," Florian observed, "and I've had enough of it to last me for a month. How about that little drink, Autumn?"

"I'll say good-by, then," Bruce said, and gave Autumn his hand once more.

Autumn held his hand for a moment without speaking, then turned away as Bruce started for the door. "Call me up when you come out of the hills," Florian suggested as Bruce waved him a farewell.

"Right!" Bruce replied and was gone.

Florian turned to Autumn as the door closed. "Come along, darling—one drink and we'll hit the trail."

Autumn brought the ingredients and permitted Florian to mix them. He kept up an incessant chatter concerning his trip to Vancouver and the scores of small interests that had occupied him since their last meeting. Autumn did her best to listen but found it impossible to keep her mind on what he was saying. When at last Florian filled the glasses and handed one to Autumn, she sipped it once and set it aside.

"Come on, darling," Florian urged. "We'll have to be making tracks."

She looked at him. "I can't go with you, Florian," she told him. "What?"

"I'm sorry," she replied, "but something has come up—since you telephoned. I've got to stay here tonight."

Florian was puzzled. He knew from her manner that there was no use in urging her to come with him. She had made up her mind.

"That's rough on me," he said, "but you've become a woman of affairs, and there isn't much I can do about it, I suppose."

"There's nothing anyone can do about me," she said, "except myself."

Florian was silent for a moment. Then he helped himself to another drink and lifted it in his hand, regarding it thoughtfully. At last he looked at her over the rim of the glass.

"You know, Autumn," he said slowly, "I have a hunch you will not go to England at all."

"I don't know, Florian," she admitted.

"You don't want to go," he told her.

"You know I don't," he said, lifting his glass. "Well—here's luck!"

Autumn lifted her glass and drank with him. When she set it aside once more, she got to her feet.

"You are going to stay for dinner," she announced abruptly, and in spite of his protests she went to the kitchen to confer with Hannah.

The sound of Florian's car on the highway was still audible to Autumn as she hurried to her room and began removing her white linen suit. She changed quickly to her bright riding clothes and fastened a bright green scarf about her throat, her hands trembling with an unaccountable excitement.

Her flight down the stairs and out of the house brought from old Hannah a mere despairing click of the tongue. She had long since given up the struggle of trying to cope with the vagaries of her young mistress.

She rode up the narrow trail and dismounted among the birches, leaving her horse to graze as she approached the door. She did not knock, but pushed the screen door quietly open and stepped within.

Bruce was on his knees in the middle of the floor, packing a heavy box with supplies. He looked up quickly, then got to his feet and faced her in the shimmering gloom of the place. She retreated a step and leaned her back against the frame of the doorway.

For a moment neither spoke. Then he stepped toward her.

"Autumn!" he said, his voice quick with excitement.

"You did not answer my question—this afternoon," she said.

"What question?" he replied.

Autumn strove to speak but her voice failed her. Bruce came and stood looking down at her.

"What question?" he repeated. "Did you mean it—when you said—the past is past?"

"I meant—just that!" he told her. "Forever."

"Forever—and ever!"

She looked at him for a moment before she spoke again.

"And you told me once—that I should never come here again," she said, smiling up at him. "Did you mean that, too?"

The slender furrow deepened in either cheek as he leaned toward her.

"I meant that, too," he said. "I meant it—then."

She caught her hat suddenly from her head and flung it across the room.

"I'm here!" she said. "That's why I've come."

would not be at home. He would be in his cabin. She turned from the trail and rode over the hills straight in the direction of the ravine. As she came to the white birches and looked ahead, she saw the cabin among the trees, almost hidden in the dusk. There was no light in the window, and her heart fell at the thought that he might not be here, after all. If he had already gone—

Quebec Eliminates Ragweed

The Quebec provincial government's long-term program to eliminate ragweed in the lower St. Lawrence and Gaspé peninsula regions has been successful according to a recent survey. The offensive weed, which causes hay fever sufferers so much discomfort, has virtually disappeared. The plant protection service started this campaign three years ago. In addition to its own workers, this government agency has paid premiums to school children to aid in destroying the weed.

No. 1200-M
Marjorie P. Giesel, Plaintiff, vs.
Moses Clark, Amos Hicks, Prosper P. Clark, Elen Botsford, sometimes called Ellen B. Godfrey, Ann Botsford, sometimes called Anna Botsford, Celia Botsford, sometimes called Celia B. Gillette, Mary Botsford and Amelia Botsford, Eliza Botsford, Henry Botsford, Albert Botsford, Smith Botsford and Ada Botsford, the heirs of Elnathan Botsford, deceased, and the creditors of the Estate of Elnathan Botsford, deceased, Albert Keedle, Mary Ann Shadford, Henry Keedle, Elizabeth McCollum, Sarah Campbell, William Keedle and Nellie Keedle, the heirs of Thomas Keedle, deceased, or the several unknown heirs, devisees, legatees and assigns of each and every defendant hereinabove named and referred to.
Defendants.

Order for Appearance
At a session of said Court held in the Court House in the City of Ann Arbor, Washtenaw County, Michigan, on this 14th day of December, 1939:
Present: Hon. George W. Sample, Circuit Judge.

On reading and filing the bill of complaint in said cause and the affidavit of Marjorie P. Giesel attached thereto and on file herein, from which it satisfactorily appears to the court that the defendants above named, or their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees, grantees and assigns, are proper and necessary parties defendant in this cause; and it further appearing that after diligent search and inquiry it cannot be ascertained, and it is not known, whether said defendants are living or dead, or where any of them reside if living, and if dead, whether or not they have personal representatives or heirs living, or where they or any of them reside; and further, that the present whereabouts of said defendants are unknown, and that the names of the persons who are included therein as defendants without being named, but who are embraced therein as defendants under the title of unknown heirs, devisees, legatees, grantees and assigns, cannot be ascertained after diligent search and inquiry; and on motion of Walter M. Nelson, attorney for plaintiff:

It is Ordered that said defendants and their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees, grantees and assigns, cause their appearance to be entered in this cause within three months of the date of this order, and in default thereof that said bill of complaint be taken as confessed by said defendants; their unknown heirs, devisees, legatees, grantees and assigns; and
It is Further Ordered that within twenty days plaintiff cause a copy of this order to be published in the Chelsea Standard, a newspaper printed, published and circulated in said County of Washtenaw, such publication to be continued therein once in each week for six weeks in succession.

Geo. W. Sample, Circuit Judge.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of money secured by a mortgage dated the 8th day of September, 1930, executed by the Fixel Investment Company, a Michigan corporation, Fixel Development Company, a Michigan corporation, Rowland W. Fixel and Charles Grosberg, as mortgagors, to George Schneearle and Caroline Schneearle, his wife, or the survivor, or either of them, which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Washtenaw, State of Michigan, on the 28th day of October, 1930, in Liber 180 of Mortgages, page 535, and

Whereas, the said George Schneearle, also known as George J. Schneearle, died on September 28, 1931, and thereupon Caroline Schneearle, his wife, became the owner of said mortgage by survivorship, and

Whereas, the said mortgage together with the note or obligation mentioned therein, and for which said mortgage was executed as security, was thereafter duly assigned by the said Caroline Schneearle to Esther A. Dean by an instrument of assignment, dated the 28th day of April, 1939, which was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, Washtenaw County, Michigan, on the 28th day of April, 1939, in Liber 27 of Assignments, page 393, and

Whereas, the said mortgage and note were thereafter duly assigned by the said Esther A. Dean to Caroline Schneearle, Cora Schneearle and Karl Schneearle, by an instrument of assignment dated the 28th day of April, 1939, which was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, Washtenaw County, Michigan, on the 28th day of April, 1939, in Liber 27 of Assignments, page 394.

Whereas, the amount claimed to be due and unpaid on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of $18,199.15 for principal, and the sum of $839.61 for interest and the sum of $89.65 for insurance paid by the assignees of said mortgages, for and on behalf of the mortgagors, together with an attorney fee of $75.00, as provided for in said mortgage, making in all a total of $18,932.31, due and owing from said mortgagors to the assignees of said mortgages and no suit or proceeding having been instituted at law to recover the money secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative,

Now, Therefore, Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises, therein described, at public auction, to the highest bidder at the south front door of the court house in the City of Ann Arbor, in the County of Washtenaw, on the 16th day of March, 1940, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day; which said premises are described in said mortgage, as follows:

"270 acres of land located in Sections 13 and 14, Seco Township, Washtenaw County, Michigan, and more particularly described as follows: All that part of the west half of the northeast quarter Section 13, Town 2 South, Range 6 East, lying south of Huron River, and also all that part of the northwest quarter of said section 13 lying south of the Huron River excepting lands described as follows: commencing at the northwest corner of said Section 13, and running thence south on the west line of said section 14 chains and 75 links; thence east parallel to the north line of Section 81 chains, thence north 4 chains and 75 links to the Huron River; thence northwesterly along the bank of said Huron River to the north line of said Section 13, thence west along said section line 26 chains and 96 links to the place of beginning, lands hereby conveyed containing 180 acres more or less, and excepting land sold to the Eastern Michigan Edison Company by deed recorded in Liber 191, page 270. (Also the northeast quarter of section number fourteen (14), excepting and reserving therefrom the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of said section; also a part of the northwest quarter of said section fourteen (14), commencing at a point on the south line of said northwest quarter, one hundred and twenty-one (121) rods east of the southwest corner of said northwest quarter; thence north along a stone wall or fence to the A-r-old Road, so-called; thence east along said road to the north and south quarter line of said section; thence south along the quarter line to the center of said section; thence west to the place of beginning, all being a part of section number fourteen (14) town two (2) south, range five (5) east, in said Seco Township, Washtenaw County, Michigan."

Excepting, however, from the above described lands and premises the lands and premises released from the effect of said mortgage by four certain releases executed by Caroline Schneearle, mortgagee, as appears by said releases recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Washtenaw, State of Michigan, as follows:

Release dated June 21, 1932, recorded June 27, 1932, in Liber 27 of Discharges, page 283.
Release dated January 17, 1934, recorded January 18, 1934, in Liber 23 of Discharges, page 376.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

WHEN SHOULD A MAN ADVERTISE?

BUSINESS men often talk about the problem of when they should advertise most. Should it be when business is good and sales come easily or when business is slow and sales are hard?

Those who believe in advertising most intensively when everybody has money, argue logically enough that it is wise, as Shakespeare himself pointed out several centuries ago, "to take the tide when it serves." Advertising, then will prove of most value, some men believe.

Those, on the other hand, who believe a business should spend money for telling its story most aggressively when times are slow, say Charles Roth that advertising is a business-building force and that it is, therefore, needed most when business needs building.

Whenever we have a temporary lull in business we see the spectacle of many advertisers "drawing in their horns" and refusing to spend money for advertising until times are easy once more.

The late P. D. Armour, great packing magnate, had the sanest view on the subject. "Be always told his associates: 'Advertise when times are good, because then your dollars show greatest returns. Advertise when times

According to health statistics 80,000 babies are born in the United States each year with congenital syphilis.

Another Use for Lumber

In a typical year, 125,000,000 board feet of lumber, the equivalent of 4,166 freight car loads, is used to pack American made automobiles for export shipment, the Automobile Manufacturers association estimates.

Hollywood Dialect

If you hear a movie director say, "We're sneaking it in a tank tonight, but I don't like getting it out in 8150," you know he means his latest picture is going to be sneaked, previewed that night in a town under 15,000 population, and that he is bothered because the picture is 8,150 feet long and he is afraid that it is too much footage for that type of film entertainment. In other words, the audience will get restless over its length and that will react against the picture itself.

Junior Farm Bureau Plans Gala Party

Washtenaw Junior Farm Bureau, at a meeting held Tuesday night, January 23 at North Lake church hall, made plans for a gala and novel Valentine party. Plans are rapidly taking shape that call for a party that has three novel elements to it. The invited guests are to travel to the party in sleighs as arranged by the Junior Farm Bureau. One hour of progressive games with four prizes will be played on arrival. A box social will top off the evening. The party is to be held at Sylvan town hall, Chelsea, on February 9, starting at 9:00 o'clock.

At its meeting last Tuesday night a large and enthusiastic group of rural young people planned this annual social affair. B. F. Hennink, known to the young people of the state as "Ben", or the "state director" of the Junior Farm Bureau, came to assist them in their plans and programs for the balance of the year. Following the planning session for the party, Mr. Hennink spoke briefly to the group, telling them that he expected them, in the near future, to begin to express themselves by appearing before other groups of farmers and farm people and putting on discussion work, etc. He also indicated that Washtenaw should be ready to send at least fifteen of its membership to the leadership training camp next summer.

The Valentine party calls for Gordon Van Riper to handle the arrangements for the sleigh rides and Elsie Mester to be in charge of the arrangements for the auction. The following people are in charge of the progressive games, with Rose Mary Bollinger as chairman: Orson B. Beaman, Virginia Van Riper, Gordon Van Riper, Elsie Mester, Kathryn Brechtneider, Clarence Ottomann, Junior Colby, Bob Gilbert, Mary Gilbert, Elmer Bristle, Carl Bristle, Paul Bristle, Wm. H. Seitz, Beatrice Steinway, L. D. Steinway, Alvin R. Rettig.

Prizes will be given to the girl who best represents the Valentine theme in her dress, and to the girl who has the prettiest box. The fellow who pays the highest price for a box will also receive a prize.

Virginia Van Riper was crowned Queen of the Snow Festival held Sunday, January 28 at the Irish Hills.

Children In Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield

Religious intolerance. One youngster was severely persecuted by his classmates because he attended church catechism after school. The boys would get his prayer book and read from it in voices mixed with derision and scorn. Not for an instant during the school day was this youngster allowed to forget his difference of opinion on religious matters. He was constantly engaged in quarrels for which he frequently was censured. As a result this boy became sullen and his school work suffered.

Had his teacher been aware of the situation, she could have endeavored to seek the cooperation of the children's parents without great difficulty. But, she too was swayed by religious intolerance and sympathized with the children of prominent families who made life miserable for the particular pupil whom they considered to be outside their realm.

Such a situation is not uncommon in smaller communities with a limited number of churches. One cannot help feeling that a general course on religion, together with a history of the various churches, would do much to alleviate conditions of this kind. Ignorance, which is usually at the base of all religious intolerance, can be effectively checked only through education.

Character Directs Intelligence

When approximately fifty per cent of all school children are outside the guiding influence of the church, and when our public schools and colleges are prohibited from teaching religion, how can children gain a knowledge of religion, morality and character?

Where shall we obtain our future leaders if religious training is eliminated from the curriculum? Without character, intelligence is only a mockery. Character is necessary to direct intelligence. Unless our future leaders possess character together with intelligence, there is danger that our present civilization will vanish.

Therefore, if character is necessary to direct intelligence, why should it not be feasible for all churches to unite, and insist that some form of religious training be given to the twelve or fifteen million children who are not now, or who never will be, affiliated with any church? Statistics show that most of the four million criminals at large today have had no religious training.

Slats' Diary

Sunday—Well the fellow witch and life are just 1 bad thing after another. I wish then gets worse were right. Yesterday and today as holidays to me was a joke and a series 1. The weather went down to zero so I had to spend all my time carrying coal and etc. and don't have no fun skating and etc.

Monday—After school this p. m. I arrived home a sniffling at the nose and sed I were about 1/2 sick. So Unkel Hen sed he would look after the cole and fires and etc. and I went to my room. After witch I snook out and I and Jake and Blisters done some skating and had some fun.

Tuesday—I didn't go into supper last evening. Becos I were supposed to be sick in my rm. But Pa must of been intrusted in my illness so he went to my rm. I suppose. Eney how at breakfast this a. m. he sed the wether are offe bad and littel boys that is sick otto not be out in it and not carry no cole. And lookt over toards me as he sed it. And sorta winkt like.

Wednesday—In school this p. m. the teacher told Blisters to rite a sentence about himself and he writ he are a pora littel boy a trying to get ahead and etc. The teacher sed that are fine and she hopes he succeeds. In getting 1.

Thursday—Ma sed she thot wotern is more braver than men sum times. Pa sed they issent no dout of same. He never saw a man brave enough sed he to stop in traffeck and look at himself in a mirror and powder his nose and etc. Then Unkel Hen got in bad 2 by laffing.

Friday—The teacher sed to Jake Jacob whatever it is that you have got in your mouth put same in the waist basket. Jake said he wisht he could becos what he have got is the tooth-ake. 1 on the teacher and a big laff.

Saturday—Jake and Blisters got to talking about they issent no. Sandy Clos and that there Pas is him and etc. So Jake sed he bet it is his Pa which is rissponsible for them purty Easter aigs all so.

NOTICE OF HEARING ON STREET VACATION

The following Resolution was adopted at regular meeting of Village Council held January 15, 1940:

Whereas, Chelsea Spring Company has filed with the Council a petition requesting that a portion of North Street in the Village of Chelsea, heretofore excepted from previous vacation of North Street between East Street and Main Street, be vacated and it appearing that this portion of North Street was formerly used as a means of access to a reservoir located upon the rear of the property, now owned by the Chelsea Spring Company, which reservoir is not now and has not been for some time past used by the Village of Chelsea.

Therefore, it is ordered that February 10th, 1940, at 7:30 o'clock, P. M., be fixed as a time when the council will meet and hear any objections to the vacation of certain portion of North Street, located in the Village of Chelsea, Washtenaw County, Michigan, being a strip of land Fifty-Three and one half (53 1/2) feet in width east and west by twenty-five (25) feet in length north and south, lying directly northerly of Lots 25 and 26 of Block One (1), original recorded plat of the Village of Chelsea, and being that part of said North Street excepted from the previous resolution of vacation, dated August 1st, 1910 and recorded August 22, 1910, in Liber 179 of Deeds at page 203 in the office of the Register of Deeds for Washtenaw County, Michigan, and it is ordered that notice of such meeting be given by publishing a copy of this resolution in the Chelsea Standard once before the time of such meeting.

Objections to such proposed action may be filed with the Village Clerk in writing prior to time of said hearing. James Munro, Village Clerk. Roy Harris, President.

Scouting Beckons All Boys

SCOUTING

The American Way

When the Boy Scouts of America celebrates its 30th birthday on Thursday, February 8, all of the 1,330,000 Scouts, Cubs and Scout leaders will re-dedicate themselves to the service motive which has characterized the Movement for three decades. Scouting offers adventure, fun and achievement—attractive to all boys—through the democratic life of the Scout Troop and Patrol, as essential ingredients in its character-influencing program for the boys of America. Drawing on the rich experience of the Movement, local and national Scout leaders anticipate the opportunity to serve more boys annually.
