May 1 Is Last Day for Signing AAA Plans

Washtenaw county farmers have until May 1 to sign their 1940 AAA farm plans, Harry M. Cole, secretary of the Washtenaw County Triple A committee, announced this week.

"The farm plan shows the soil-depleting acreage allotments, the soil building goal, and the maximum payment which can be earned by each farm through cooperation with the Agricultural Conservation Program," Mr. Cole said.

This basic information is worked out in the county AAA office, but the details of how the plan applies to the individual farm are worked out by the farmer and a community committee member, Mr. Cole added.

Farmers who intend to cooperate with the farm program sign their farm plans, indicating that they want their farms inspected this summer to determine performance.

Up to April 18, 2500 farmers in Washtenaw county had signed their farm plans. This number represents 66 per cent of all the farmers in the county who have been called on. Last year 74 per cent of the farmers in Washtenaw county were in the program.

Mr. Cole urges all farmers who plan to participate in the 1940 AAA program, but have not yet signed their farm plans, to see their local Triple A committee member as soon as possible.

1940 Record Contest for 4-H Girls Is Announced

Club girls with talent in home-making arts will be again honored through the national 4-H girls record contest to be conducted during 1940 by extension agents. Information and suggestions for carrying it on may be obtained from the State Club Leader, who announces its acceptance.

How 4-H training gives girls the ability to do many home tasks well is shown in their records. Last year's six national winners in this contest cooked 4,430 special dishes and 81 meals, canned 17,019 pints of foods, made 631 articles and garments, took part in dressa revues, did extensive room improvement and raised much garden. They also contributed to youth and community improvement by conducting 81 demonstrations, made 1,706 exhibits at fairs, and averaged four years of club leadership.

The girls' record contest encourages such enterprise and helps to bring it to public gaze through appropriate awards. Each county winner receives a special gold medal, state winners an all-expense trip to the 19th National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, Nov. 20 - Dec. 7, and six $200 scholarships go to national winners. Particulars may be obtained from county extension agents.

Band and Orchestra Present Fine Concert

The Chelsea High School Band and Orchestra, under the direction of Robert Dunstan, presented an enjoyable program at the school auditorium last Friday evening to a large and appreciative audience.

Especially well received was the selection by the brass quartet and the clarinet solo by Ralph Dingle. The squad of baton twirlers was also given an encore. The six twirlers were picked from a larger group which has been practicing for the past several months.

The proceeds of the concert will be added to the fund which is being raised for the purpose of buying new uniforms for the band.

FIRE DAMAGES TREES

A fire that started from a bonfire on the south side of Sugar Lake on Sunday spread southward and west to Crooked Lake before it was brought under control late in the afternoon. The fire, fanned by a hard wind, spread rapidly and jumped the road near the Waterloo Project office buildings and onto the lake. No buildings were destroyed in the blaze, but a large number of trees were consumed. The boys from the NYA and CCC camps were called out to fight the blaze.

Sixty Hi-Y Delegates Attend Meeting Here

Sixty Hi-Y delegates, representing Howell, Lansing, Dundee, Ann Arbor, Jackson, and Chelsea met last Friday from four until nine o'clock in the high school study hall.

Richard Riemenschneider read the devotions and gave a short report of the Chelsea club. In small groups the delegates studied methods of the Hi-Y program, and shared with each other their experiences. During a short free period preceding the banquet the boys observed the Hi-Y display case arranged by the local club and also reviewed a display of recent books and supplies for Hi-Y clubs.

The banquet, served at 6:15, was prepared by the Home Economics department. Mr. Downing acted as toastmaster and presented Supt. A. C. Johnson to the delegates. Rev. Ray Barber gave an inspiring address of welcome. Ralph Dingle rendered a clarinet solo, accompanied at the piano by Margaret Harper.

At the evening session the State Y Secretary, Merrill Eneyart, led in a twilight song fest. George Corwin, National Y Boys' Secretary, gave a talk on the "Origin and Development of Hi-Y During the Past Fifty Years."

He stressed the importance of a better understanding and application of the Hi-Y purpose and platform: "To create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community, high standards of Christian character" and "Clean speech, clean sports, clean scholarship, and clean living."

The local president-elect, John Hale, was elected District Counselman who will attend the Third National Hi-Y Congress at Oberlin, Ohio in June.

A ceremony giving recognition to the new club officers and an expression of appreciation for the work of the retiring officers closed the evening session.

The next Hi-Y function in Chelsea consists of the aid of the Hi-Y mothers, who will prepare the banquet for the Washtenaw County Michigan Education Association on May 8. The proceeds will aid in the sending of the newly elected officers to Camp Hayo-Went-Ha in August.

It is of interest to note that 40 per cent of all Sophomore, Junior and Senior boys are members of the Chelsea Hi-Y. Freshman boys are also eligible for membership. More than 26 per cent of all high school boys in Chelsea are members of the Hi-Y club.

School Closed Friday
The Michigan Schoolmasters' club will meet in Ann Arbor on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. The Chelsea public school will be closed on Friday, April 26 to permit teachers to attend this most important meeting.

Lingering Winter May Affect Trout Fishing

Lansing—Late lingering winter in much of northern Michigan has made veteran trout fishermen chary of forecasting the kind of fishing that will be available Saturday, the 1940 season's opening day.

Weather wields a deciding influence up to the last minute. Streams carrying much surface drainage may be rolled by heavy spring rains, after the early runoff of melted snow and ice has left them clear.

Where snow persists in the north, better fishing is expected when the season is a few weeks old. On opening day, chances of success are rated better on the more southerly streams, which reach their normal stage earlier.

Fly-fishermen hope for clear, swift streams, but swollen rivers or rolled and muddy waters still afford sport for bait fishermen. Popular early in the season are the state's more than 80 designated trout lakes.

Trout fishing regulations are unchanged this year except for the license. No special license is needed this year to take trout, the $1 general rod license which includes the wife being good for all kinds of fishing for all year. Creel and possession limits are 15 brook, brown and rainbow trout, in the aggregate or for any one kind. Minimum length is seven inches.

Kalkaska and Baldwin are celebrating the season opening with festivals. The season continues, as in earlier years, through Labor Day.

"With every District in the Council conducting a Court of Honor in May, we expect to break all records," Ira M. Smith, Court of Honor chairman, said.

Children In Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield

Are Delinquent Areas Segregated? A group of ladies attending a luncheon concluded that delinquency is found only in slum areas. They did not seem to realize that crime is not checked by a railroad or river passing through a certain district.

Ideas are at all times carried back and forth by children from one section of the city to another. Therefore, it is impossible to completely isolate and segregate a so-called restricted district from other neighborhoods in which juvenile crime is prevalent. No chain is stronger than its weakest link, and no city can consider itself exempt until it immunizes every street and alley within its boundaries.

A dissolute attitude on the part of citizens towards crime, with the widespread use of motion pictures, radios, and magazines as means of recreation, are the paramount methods by which children are made aware of this subject. Crime is not only exploited in our theatres and press, but also in many establishments where slot machines and other games of chance are still in children's desire to get something for nothing.

It is an established fact that youthful crime is more prevalent in neighborhoods possessing large numbers of adult offenders, because youngsters unconsciously absorb the viewpoint of the residents in their neighborhood. On the other hand, it is an undisputed fact that children in highly desirable neighborhoods seem to conform spontaneously to the ideals prevailing in such localities.

Neglected Children Help to Keep Our Prisons Full

In comparing the 7,500 inmates of a certain institution in one state with the 2,800 inmates in another state of equal size, one may wonder why the former has so many more prisoners than the latter. The prime reason for the first having more than double the rate of the second is due to the fact that the children of the first are neglected ones. The former state has only 6,500 children in foster homes, while the latter cares for 12,400 children. The latter state spends more for child care and less on prisons, while the former pays less for the care of children and more for the upkeep of prisons. If this situation is to be reversed, the former state must increase the assistance it gives to children.

Lansing—The state official was gloomy.

"How can you expect the average citizen of Michigan to become concerned over political parties and bosses when he lacks sufficient income to maintain a decent standard of living?" he asked.

Here was a challenging statement. Although the official had been a lifetime Republican, the remark smacked familiarly of the New Deal—the "ill fed, ill clothed, and ill housed" one-third of our total population.

We expressed healthy skepticism. "What do you consider a decent standard of living?" we replied.

The official explained, "I have it on the authority of an endowed foundation that a small per cent of residents in the average Michigan county can afford medical or dental treatment. The depression has reduced standards of living. The average family must deprive itself of proper medical and dental care simply for the reason that its income is too small to afford professional services. And as for hospital services, the same family is wholly incapable of meeting emergency bills."

"Such being the case, and I am convinced that it is, how can you expect Michigan citizens to become excited over who runs our government? A handful of astute political leaders can organize an entire county and do as they please. The voter is indifferent, and the reason is found in economics rather than politics."

America In Nutshell We called the state official's attention to the new medical and hospital service now being offered to Michigan citizens of moderate incomes on an easy-pay insurance plan.

Low cost medical and hospital care is now available to Michigan people who otherwise might not be able to afford a doctor or a hospital, we pointed out. It was a socialized solution to a general condition which President Roosevelt had dramatized in fireside chats and messages to Congress.

"All right, let's leave out the doctors and hospitals," the official continued. "Consider then these facts on incomes during 1935-36 brought out by some experts at Washington"—he produced a booklet from his desk—"the bureau of labor statistics, bureau of home economics and the National Resources Committee. These figures were presented to the Temporary Economic Committee (the monopoly investigating body) by Dr. Lubin, commissioner of labor statistics."

"We find that 4,000,000 families, or 14 per cent of the total number of families in the United States, had an average income of only $312 in 1935-36. Eight million other families, or 25.5 per cent of the total, had an average income of $758 per year."

"About 7,000,000 families, or 23 per cent of the total, had an average income of $1,224. The annual average for all families was only $826, or $69 a month. Furthermore, figures showed that 14 per cent of all American families had an average income of only $312 a year and were spending only $1 per week per person for food."

"What's the answer to all this?" he said with finality.

How Michigan Ranks When you want the answer to an unusual problem, you summon an expert, someone who is a specialist in his field.

So we turned to Dr. H. S. Patton, head of the economics department, Michigan State College at East Lansing. Here was an unprejudiced person who could shed light on Michigan's place in the national income picture.

"Who said that Michigan was hard up?" he snapped.

"Michigan ranks eighth of all states in point of per capita income. It leads all states in the Middle-West, according to 1937 income tax reports compiled by the national income section of the bureau of domestic commerce at Washington, D. C. The Michigan average was $675 for that year, 32 per cent of the income level for 1929."

When you realize that the price index has declined close to 18 per cent during this period, the result is that Michigan citizens had a greater purchasing power in 1937 than in 1929."

And 1937 was the year of the famous sit-down strike at Flint and elsewhere. Surely, compared with 1939, times were not so good then as they are today!

First In U. S. On March 22 the Associated Press reported that income tax collections for the first 20 days of March showed an astonishing increase of 51 per cent in Michigan.

In fact, the lake state leads the entire country. Illinois, for example, showed a gain of only 20 per cent.

Factory payrolls at Detroit and environs in Wayne county lead all other counties in the United States. Despite the removal of 35 factories from Detroit in 1939, new industrial plants and expansions have exceeded this loss by a tremendous margin. The total of new or enlarged industries was 228. Automobile production is at a near-record peak; employment is within nine-tenths of the 1937 high index of 112.3.

Part of this Wayne county prosperity is traced to United States and European Allied army orders.

That the same picture exists elsewhere in Michigan is indicated by income tax payments, an accurate gauge of purchasing power.

More Comparisons Now for some more cold figures—better read them slowly.

The average per capita income in Michigan was $675 for 1937.

According to the 1935 census of business and industry, the average per capita of retail sales was $287. This was the amount spent for every person in the state at retail establishments for food, clothing, and other commodities including automobiles and household appliances.

Compare these figures with those for nearby states.

In Indiana the average per capita income was $494; retail sales per capita totaled $241.

Illinois: Income $643; retail sales, $235.

Ohio: Income, $625; retail sales, $204.

Pennsylvania: Income, $586; retail sales, $259.

Go across the Mississippi river into the breadbasket states, and you find these retail sales per capita: Iowa, $263; Kansas, $238; Nebraska, $261; Missouri, $261. Oklahoma is down at $181; Arkansas $130; Texas $221.

Southern states are way down in per capita income and retail sales.

Far west states are way up—California ranking fifth in incomes ($837) and $416 in retail sales.

Eastern states are also in the prosperity income column—Delaware second with $923; New York fourth with $859; Connecticut sixth with $737 and Rhode Island seventh with $692. Michigan was eighth, the income average per capita being $675. (These figures include payments for relief, soil conservation and subsidies in general.)

Michigan Well Off Another accurate source of information regarding Michigan is the Consumer Market Data Handbook, 1939 edition, compiled by the U. S. Department of Commerce. It gives an economic picture of every county in the state and its leading cities and towns.

We find that Michigan retail sales totaled $1,388,240,000; that an army of 163,278 persons were employed in retail stores and were paid $152,923,000 in wages; that 59 per cent of our citizens own their own homes; that automobiles exceed 1,200,000 and radios 1,122,000; that Michigan agriculture furnished a livelihood for 840,514 persons on farms worth $326,261,000 at an average value of $4,205.

What's wrong with Michigan—If anything? Well, you can come to your own conclusions. For us, the above figures are quite convincing.

If Michigan citizens are indifferent to government, as exemplified by political parties and leaders, then it is for reasons other than economic. The state official, gloomily surveying the national scene, had obviously overlooked his own state and its green pastures.

Motion Picture 'News' Originated in France It was in 1909 that Charles Pathe, a Frenchman, and his friend, Leon Franconi, hit upon the idea of the motion picture newsreel. Franconi suggested that the time was ripe for news events to be photographed and shown in the theaters. The idea seemed radical, but Pathe was a man of vision, and the more he toyed with the suggestion the better he liked it. Upon his return to Paris, he tried it out. It scored an instant hit, and soon all the capitals of Europe were showing Pathe Weekly.

Returning to America the following year, Pathe and Franconi started the newsreel in the United States. The first reel to appear in this country showed, among other features, a parachute jump from the Statue of Liberty by a daredevil named Rodman Law. He was supposed to be an expert jumper, but something went amiss and Law barely escaped death as he crashed at the water's edge. The police then went into action, and arrested the photographers for endangering a man's life; the parachute manufacturers threatened suit for showing their product to disadvantage, and the troubles of the newsreel companies in filming "stunts" dated from that day.

But the newsreels soon stepped out of their swaddling clothes, and showed evidence of the vital part they were destined to play in the movie industry.

Famous Italian Dolls A lonely war mother of Turin, Italy has created one of the world's foremost doll factories. It is managed by Madame Lenzi in a fashion that would gladden Santa Claus' heart. Madame Lenzi's real name is Signora Elena Konig di Scavini. Born an artist, and developing a passion for dolls as a child, she started making them when her husband was killed in the World War.

Now her Lenzi dolls are made by 360 workers and she maintains a sales exposition in the heart of Turin. Madame Lenzi's ideas come from a big collection of historical and geographic costume designs. Her most famous order was from Il Duce for four figures to be used as gifts to Japan. They cost him $100 each.

Mountain's Height Mt. Everest's height is equal to one 740th of the earth's radius.

Cleaning Varnished Floors Varnished hardwood floors that have never been waxed should not, as a rule, be washed with water. However, if they are badly soiled they may be gone over with a cloth wrung from slightly soapy water, followed by a second wiping with a rag moistened with clean water. Wipe dry immediately and polish with a oil-treated mop.

Longest Telegram The longest telegram on record was a birthday greeting message sent to President Franklin D. Roosevelt from Birmingham, Ala., on January 30, 1934, says Collier's. This night letter, which required 19 hours and eight minutes to transmit over high-speed automatic telegraph instruments, contained 41,000 signatures and was a quarter of a mile in length.

A telephone call to a distant friend . . . made just for old times' sake . . . is one of those thoughtful acts which keep friendship alive. It is like a handclasp reaching out across the miles. And it gives the person at the other end of the wire the pleasure of knowing that, although far away, he still lives in the heart and thoughts of an old friend.

*On a call for which the charge is 50 cents or more, a federal tax applies.

Confucius Say—
Betty B. built herself up for an awful let-down Friday p. m. What's the matter Betty? Didn't Lansing show up?
Jim B. prefers Lansing, too. Say, what is it that Lansing's got, that Chelsea hasn't? Could it be 'coo'ds'?

At least Merle was among the stage in John's Friday night.
Say! Some of Junior steadys and their better halves, better watch their step. This is for some of our F. F. A. kiddos.
Jean D. saw some swell "stars" perform Friday night in "Stardust". Don't take us wrong, but "Stardust" was a movie she enjoyed with her better half.
At the Hi-Y banquet Friday evening the coffee had a sweeter flavor when Mary B. poured it—but "six" cups seems to be a little beyond the limit—or is it?
What made Mary M. stop stirring food Friday morning? Could it have been when Gene entered the Home Ec. room?
We understand Walworth had a date with A. A. last Friday p. m. Let's see now, where was Betty F. Two guesses she was in the list somewhere.

So, Clara really admits she prefers blondes. But wait a minute, why the chaperone? Or does one misunderstand at times? At least Jean R. was doing a very capable job.
Our most inseparable S. S. couple were seen together in our theatre on Friday.

Hi-Y News

The Spring Conference of the Hi-Y clubs in this district was held in Chelsea last Friday, April 19. Hi-Y clubs attending were from Jackson, Ann Arbor (two clubs), Howell, East Lansing, and notably the Michigan State School for the Blind.
The first part of the meeting began in the Study Hall with singing, devotionals, and a report by the presidents of the clubs. This meeting was led by Merrill Eneyarht, Michigan Town and Country Hi-Y secretary.
The banquet was served at 6:30 by members of the Home Ec. club. Ralph Dingle rendered a solo, and Rev. Barber gave a short talk.

The meeting then was continued in the study hall, where the election of a District Counselman took place. We are very proud of the fact that John Hale was elected. The main event of the evening was a talk by George Corwin, National Hi-Y secretary, from New York.
The election of John Hale to the office of District Counselman means he will be Chelsea's delegate to the National Hi-Y Congress in Oberlin, Ken. this summer.

Home Ec.

It was rumored the Hi-Y banquet was "okey". No wonder, look who cooked and served it.
The Home Ec. Club is saving their money for our day in Lansing. The club girls get their transportation free and the Home Ec. class girls will have to pay half of their expenses.
We will have to have our project completed May 8. Some of us have our done.
Our class-work dresses will, or are supposed to be done in two weeks.

Brest-Litovsk Treaty

The Treaty of Brest-Litovsk was the peace treaty signed by the central powers and Russia, March 3, 1918, and ratified by the All-Russian Council of Soviets March 14. After the fall of the Kerensky government, Lenin and Trotsky proposed an armistice to the central powers, and Germany offered to receive delegates at Brest-Litovsk. After some what dramatic negotiations, Russia agreed to evacuate the Balkan provinces, Finland and the Ukraine and to cede Ardahan, Kars and Batum to Turkey, in addition to giving further advantages to the central powers. The treaty was never recognized by the allied powers and was annulled by the armistice of November 11, 1918.

Steps in Animal Learning Shown by Scientific Test

Use of tools by animals came into existence long before man or even the higher apes evolved. Dr. Carl J. Warden, associate professor of psychology at Columbia university, says in reporting the completion of a series of tests. It was discovered that the lower primates were capable of employing a series of rakes to obtain food placed out of their reach.

Not only did the monkeys use the rakes, which varied from one to about three feet in length, but they developed an insight into the problem which enabled them to succeed in using the tools without a hazardous trial and error method.

Failure to get the food caused some of the monkeys to act very much like spoiled children. When the problem became too difficult for some of them to solve they flew into a tantrum, kicking their feet, biting the rakes and tearing their hair. On the other hand, success often made them eager to continue using the tools.

The monkeys were placed in a cage approximately three feet square and food was left on a long platform just out of their reach. The first step was to leave a short rake lying along side of the food, in such a manner that if the monkey pulled in the rake he would automatically get the food. Later the rake was separated from the food and the animal had to learn how to grasp the rake at the right end and "hook" the food for himself.

When the food was placed out of reach of the rake, the monkeys learned how to use the short rake to get a longer one and in turn to "hook" the food. This process was repeated until finally some of the more intelligent animals were using eight rakes placed at different distances from the cage to get the food.

The ability to use tools has in the past been thought to be exclusively a characteristic of man and the higher primates, such as gorillas, chimpanzees, and orangutans. This experiment definitely shows that the use of tools originated long before even the chimpanzee evolved.

First Paris Fire Brigade
In 1705 King Louis XIV of France founded the Paris fire brigade. Forty firemen formed the first brigade and they were recruited from workmen used to doing their jobs high above the ground. A number of years later an auxiliary fire brigade was formed for the guarding of Paris. This was composed of four companies of priests. The great bell of the Cathedral of Notre Dame was used as a fire warning. On one occasion, where there was a big fire at the famous hospital of the Hotel Dieu (which adjoins Notre Dame), 20 of these firemen-priests were burned to death in trying to rescue the patients.

Proposed Playground for S. E. Michigan

Although ideally suited to regional development, the five counties constituting the Detroit metropolitan area—Wayne, Washtenaw, Livingston, Oakland and Macomb—are sadly deficient in public bathing beaches and other play facilities, surveys by State and Federal agencies have shown. The nearly 3,000,000 people living in this area have only 20 per cent of the recreational spaces they need, according to the national standard.
This situation, however, will be remedied if the voters of the area approve the Detroit-Huron-Clinton Parkway-Playground Proposal in the election of November, 1940. Public Act No. 147 of the 1939 State Legislature provides that in the forthcoming election there will be in the five counties a referendum vote on the plan. If the citizens of the area say "Yes", a Metropolitan Authority and Metropolitan park district will be established, and planning of the new facilities for play can be started immediately.

The picture-map, above, shows what could be done in the area. Through the valleys of the Huron and Clinton Rivers, from Lake Erie to Lake St. Clair, would wind the proposed Detroit-Huron-Clinton scenic parkway, backbone of a chain of diversified recreational facilities. Its two ends could be connected by a pleasure drive along the Detroit River and Lake St. Clair.

The system of parks, playgrounds, bathing beaches, overnight shelters, bicycle, hiking and nature trails, fishing and boating areas, picnic grounds and other facilities for pleasure-seekers could be quickly and easily reached over new express highways radiating from the heart of Detroit. Land-scaped parkways themselves, these express highways would pass over or under existing streets and thoroughfares. They would be routes without intersections or traffic lights to hinder and delay motorists headed for the recreation lands or for destinations beyond the area.

Arizona Indians Seek New Mode of Living

Young Havasupai Indians of the Grand Canyon, Ariz., area, who return to their reservation after training at government schools are dissatisfied with customs and practices of their forefathers and have appealed to the federal government for aid in getting the modern conveniences about which they learned

These young tribesmen will agree with the white-man visitor that their reservation, located on the bottom of the Grand canyon of the Colorado river is as picturesque a place as can be found.

But they've seen and read too much about the outside world to be satisfied with the crude shack and the almost primitive farming tools which their parents and parents' parents have been using for generations.

They want to build stone houses that can be kept clean, houses able to withstand any kind of weather. They want new tools for agriculture and new equipment for irrigation similar to that used by progressive farmers.

To help them out, the federal government, through the National Youth administration, is working out a plan whereby the Havasupais can get funds for their much-de-

What the Indians need most of all is cement to build these new stone houses. Stone and timber they can find with abundance on the reservation, which comprises only 518 acres—the nation's smallest.

But to get cement they have to have cash, and cash is the stumbling block for these ambitious youths.

The NYA's plan for these youths will be ranked as a student aid project and merely will consist of paying them wages for doing work of their own houses. This will permit the money to buy cement.

The building program will have a second purpose as far as government officials are concerned. The young Indians, fresh from school, usually are full of enthusiasm and eager to institute reforms in reservation life. But, handicapped by lack of funds, they begin to forget about improvements and lose the spirit of progress instilled in them at government schools. By encouraging house-building, officials hope to prevent the loss of such a spirit.

North Carolina Town
Is 'Zoned' for Loafing

Citizens of Louisburg, N. C., are inclined to believe that life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness includes the privilege of a bit of public leisure. Louisburg has gone to bat for its citizens and country people who like to stop on the street and talk about politics, the war and hunting.

Along a couple of busy streets, the sidewalks have been marked off in three lanes. Center lane is strictly for walking purposes—the two outside lanes are for the innocent idling which is part of the pleasure of a southern town. A few benches are placed in the loafing space.

Under Louisburg's system, a farmer come to town to sell his tobacco is in no danger of being pushed around by hurrying Saturday afternoon crowds. Upon meeting his friends from the next county, the group simply steps over into the loafing zone, and there, protected by law and manners, they may chin to their hearts' content.

'Maryland, My Maryland'
The song 'Maryland, My Maryland' was written by James Ryder Randall. While teaching in New Orleans he read of the attack on Baltimore, his native city, in April, 1861. He was deeply stirred and was unable to sleep. He arose at midnight to jot down the lines of the poem 'Maryland, My Maryland'. The lines appeared in the April 26 issue of the New Orleans Delta. They were immediately reprinted throughout the South. The Misses Jenny and Hetty Cary of Baltimore set the words to the music of an old German song and sang it with such effect that it became the battle song of the South.

Sow's Ear Silk Purse
A feature of the exhibit of Arthur D. Little, Inc., at the National Exposition of Chemical Industries in 1921, was a silk purse actually made out of a cow's ear. The ear was made into glue, softened with water, brought almost to the point of precipitation with acetone; then forced through a warm container into a spinneret and through this into a hardening solution of formaldehyde and acetone in a V-tube. It was picked out of the V-tube, reeled, dried, treated to a 40 per cent glycerin bath in which it was also dried, then reeled and dried again, woven

About the Name Lucretia

Lucretia is one of the numerous "light" names (of which Lucy is best known) which we get from the Latin, says Florence A. Cowles in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. It means "bringer of light," a beautiful meaning indeed. Probably it sprang from Lucifer, the Latin name for the morning star. By a misinterpretation in Christian theology, Lucifer was regarded as the name of Satan before his fall, which explains the common phrase "as proud as Lucifer."
