Village Council Repeals Number of Ordinances

An ordinance to repeal outmoded ordinances which were adopted by the village many years ago appears in this issue of The Standard. This ordinance, which was approved by the council at their meeting on Monday evening, repeals more than twenty ordinances which caused many years ago to be of any value in the conduct of village affairs.

One ordinance which was repealed dealt with a highly organized volunteer fire department; another pertained to the operation of hacks, wagons, omnibuses, carriages, etc.; others dealt with construction of plank sidewalks, liquor control, etc. Some of the ordinances which have been repealed date back as far as 1889 and are considerably out of date.

It is planned by the council to pass some new ordinances which will meet present day conditions, to re-number all which are adopted and retained, and to publish them in some form in their entirety so they will be available for distribution to those who have need for a copy.

September 1 was set by the council on Monday evening as the final date for payment of village taxes. According to the law governing payment of taxes, the treasurer is required to return unpaid taxes to the county treasurer within one week after expiration of the taxpaying period.

The council also set the curb tax assessment at 20c a lineal foot for all curbing done within the village this year.

A representative of Consumers Power Company attended the meeting and presented a proposed contract for renewal by the council. A seven-year contract with the company for electric current which is distributed by the municipal plant expires this fall, and Consumers Power Company offers to renew the contract for five years at the same rate.

Thousands of Motorists Near License Deadline

More than 425,000 motor car owners throughout Michigan are operating with first half year license tags which expire at midnight, August 31, according to an announcement made this week by Harry E. Kelly, Secretary of State.

Although full year tags have been on sale at a price since July 10, Secretary Kelly reports that sales have been slow and that indications are that all offices will be crowded during the last week of the sale.

Many persons have inquired as to the possibility of an extension of the August 31 deadline and have been informed that under the law neither the secretary of state nor any other official has the right to grant more time.

"The law is clear on this point," said Mr. Kelly, "and it requires that violation tickets be given to car owners found operating without full year plates on September first."

To aid last minute customers offices of the secretary of state will remain open after regular hours during the last three or four days of the sale.

Michigan Schools To Defend Democracy Through Education

By Gene Alleman

Lansing—To Dictators Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin who dream of world control, the answer of Michigan public schools is this: "Defend democracy through education!"

While news headlines stress America's feverish race against time for armaments, Michigan educators quietly push plans for a long-range defense of democracy through an intensive program of citizenship training in every Michigan community. And as history goes, they are probably justified in assuming that books are more powerful than bullets.

It is a startling realization of how far-reaching Mr. Hitler's march of events has extended. Here is the reasoning behind the Michigan school movement.

Can Democracy Survive? On March 14, 1936, the German Fuehrer declared: "I do not believe there can be peace among the nations until they all have the same law and system of law. That is why I hope that national socialism will someday extend over the world. That is no fantastic dream, but an achievable object."

To the American people the prospect of national socialism, another phase for totalitarian government by dictatorship, has not been inviting.

Since the adoption of our constitution, we have enjoyed for a longer period than any other nation on earth the benefits of democracy—officially a representative government under a republic in which citizens permit themselves to be ruled through chosen representatives.

Against the national socialism formula for collective sovereignty, democracy stands out in sharp contrast. Concerned over the outcome of this clash of democracy with dictatorship, a conference on Education for Democracy was held in August, 1939, at Teachers College of Columbia University, New York City.

The pressing question was this: What is the responsibility of education for the defense and advance of democracy? The answer came in a consensus of educators that the ideals of democracy can be realized only as democracy is seen and proved to be a way of living.

MECHANIC SAVES THE DAY! If a man operates a garage in this town he must be an all-around mechanic, even to the point of assisting housewives in the preparation of Sunday dinner. Anyway it so happened on Sunday that a local housewife (name withheld by request), who was preparing a roast for dinner, found that the heat had formed a vacuum in her roaster and she was unable to get the cover off. After considerable exertion in trying to remove the cover she took the roaster to a garage where it was necessary for a mechanic to pry the cover off, with some damage to the roaster but the roast came out in fine shape and the family dinner was enjoyed all the more because of the delay, with top-notch appetites prevailing throughout the household.

BIRTHDAY DINNER Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Merkel entertained at a family dinner at their summer home at Campnough Lake on Sunday in honor of his father, Martin Merkel, to celebrate his birthday. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Martin Merkel and daughter Bertha, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Merkel and family, Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Merkel and family, of Chelsea; Mr. and Mrs. William J. Federicks and Miss Christine Bommer of Detroit.

Two People Killed In Auto Collision Saturday

In a head-on collision of two automobiles on US-42 near the John Liebeck farm, south of Chelsea, shortly before 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon, two persons were killed and two others injured, one seriously.

George Toon, 30 years old, was killed instantly and his sister, Mrs. Dorothea Walsh, 28, died 30 minutes later in St. Joseph's Mercy hospital, Ann Arbor. Both suffered skull fractures. Another sister, Miss Kathleen Toon, 25, suffered a fractured left hand and minor injuries, but was released from the hospital on Monday. The three, all residents of Chicago, were en route to Canada on a vacation trip.

Ralph D. Johnson, 19, of Centerline, the driver and sole occupant of the second car, suffered a brain concussion but his condition is reported as somewhat improved.

Miss Toon told officers that her sister, Mrs. Walsh, who was driving, had just turned out to pass another east bound car, when the driver of that car swerved into the center lane to pass the car ahead. In the confusion her brother, who also was in the front seat, grabbed the wheel and the car swerved to the left, crashing into Johnson's car, which was in the outside lane. Both cars were demolished.

MILAN—Leslie C. Bruckner, one of Milan's shining stars of the gridiron, last Tuesday night received a telegram from Cleveland inviting him to take part in an all-star game in Cleveland next month. He was invited to join the College All-Stars team that will meet the professional Cleveland Ram football team in Municipal Stadium in Cleveland on September 4.

Bruckner is slated to teach and coach in Jackson (Michigan) high school this fall. The first day of school opens on September 4 but he has written authorities there asking leave to play in the game on that day. It is thought that the necessary permission will be granted.—Leader.

GRASS LAKE—The state police this week made an inspection of two cars of ancient vintage, which have constituted a nuisance on the village streets for some time past, and gave their young owners a list of necessary repairs on the vehicles, in addition to citing one of the youngsters for speeding. One of the boys was given two weeks to make necessary repairs and will be required to report to the police at the end of that time for permission to continue to drive the car. With the completion of these repairs the owner will be able to make a quicker getaway when parked at the curb and the speed of the car on the streets of the village will no doubt be considerably increased.—News.

DUNDEE—Two men who held up a gas station at Jackson early Wednesday morning wandered into Dundee later that same evening and before leaving the village had turned a few things upside down. Marshall Lloyd Harris who had heard reports over the radio that these hold-up men had turned toward this section of the state noticed the men when they entered the Coffee Cup and seemingly were dividing their cash. The men had already spent some time in the Dundee Tavern with evident intentions of holding it up but the number of patrons prevented the attempt. When Marshall Harris accused the men of being the hold-up men, one of them drew a gun while the other took Harris' gun and bilfold. They marched the marshall and the cook at the Coffee Cup into the park where they entered their car and tore away down Main street.—Reporter.

Agricultural Advisory Committee Appointed

Lansing—At a meeting of some twenty leaders in Michigan agricultural industries last week, Commissioner of Agriculture, Elmer A. Beamer and Director of Marketing, C. L. Bolander, were requested to appoint an advisory committee of five persons, representing different phases of agriculture, to cooperate with the new marketing bureau of the department in making plans for the promotion of Michigan agricultural products.

In selecting the committee, Beamer and Bolander appointed: Neil Bass, Lansing; J. T. Homer, Ann Arbor; A. J. Lohman, Hamilton; C. C. Taylor, Albion; and Prof. R. V. Gunn of Michigan State College.

This advisory committee will meet at regular intervals to offer advice and suggestions on the Department of Agriculture's new marketing program, which is being designed to sell more Michigan products to more Michigan consumers.

Commenting on the proposed marketing program and advisory committee, C. L. Bolander, director of marketing said: "The foremost object of this marketing program is the improvement of producers' income and increasing the sales of agricultural products produced in Michigan. To accomplish this, two important factors must be considered: Producers and consumers. Producers must be impressed with the necessity of meeting the requirements of established grades and standards, which will result in a larger supply of high quality products. Consumers must be furnished more information on the quality and grade of Michigan-produced food products. This advisory committee will be a great help to us, in that it will bring us first hand information on conditions as they actually exist."

Concocts Recipe for Better Dairy Herd

Seven spoonfuls of wisdom and experience are involved in the recipe dished up by the man in charge of dairy herd improvement association work in Michigan when he figures out the best methods of getting an efficient and better than average dairy herd.

Much of the secret lies in selecting a good dairy bull, says A. C. Baltzer, extension dairyman on the staff of Michigan State College.

Pointer number one, make sure the mother of the bull is under test as well as the rest of the herd. This dam also should be healthy and a regular breeder.

Number three, the bull's mother and all of her sisters should average at least 350 pounds or more butterfat a year. The sire of the bull should be proved, with a high percentage of his daughters showing desirable milk and percent fat test characteristics above the breed average.

As for the breed, says Mr. Baltzer, select from among those most commonly found in the neighborhood. Michigan dominates in three major dairy breeds, the Holstein, Guernsey and Jersey.

If granddaughters are proved favorably in test work as well as the female grandparents of the bull, this should add even more certainty to the quality of the young bull.

Final point in Baltzer's recipe for building a better dairy herd involves some simple mathematics. Assembling good dairy inheritance makes it easier to produce efficiently. Take a $100 cow purchased with ordinary breeding and she will require three years to pay out at the rate of $32 a year over feed cost, but a homegrown cow even at the same cost but of better breeding ought to be able to repay the $100 in slightly over one year.

Western Civilization Willard Earl Givens, executive secretary, National Education association, expressed the need of education for democracy in the following statement at the 1940 convention in Milwaukee:

"It becomes increasingly clear in the United States that the crisis throughout the world today goes to the very roots of our system of values and that it involves those personal rights, political liberties and representative institutions which we associate with the ideal of democracy. It is up to the schools to awaken the aspirational and finer impulses of the individuals who make up our democracy."

Michigan's public school system guarantees a free education for all children 5 years old to and including high school. Attendance is compulsory for youth 7 to 16 years old.

The 32,566 teachers (1937-38) received an average yearly salary of $1,525.04. Averages in other years: $1,098.53 in 1929-30; $1,328.81 in 1935-36; $1,814.10 in 1938-39.

Students total 960,410; school districts, 6,558.

The State of Michigan by legislative appropriations maintain six colleges and a university at which teachers can receive training: Central State at Mount Pleasant, Michigan State Teachers at Ypsilanti, Northern State at Marquette, Western State at Kalamazoo, all normal colleges, and Michigan State College at East Lansing and the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. Wayne university, Detroit, does not receive state aid.

It's a $100,000,000 business. State appropriations totaled $48,838,177 for 1937-38, while city and county appropriations were $48,305,935.

Annual Student Cost Since the prosperity peak of 1929, the annual cost of educating a child in public and private schools has slumped materially. The national annual student cost in 1929-30 was $44.34; in 1935-36 it was $34.84.

Michigan's per-student cost dropped from $56.53 in 1929-30 to $54.91 in 1935-36 and increased to $62.05 in 1938-39.

On a national scale education received $2,650,000,000 tax support during 1935-36. This was approximately one-fourth of the 1940 armament appropriations by Congress at Washington, D. C. Elementary schools received 1,328 millions; high schools $10 millions; and colleges and universities 493 millions.

These sums, large in themselves, are dwarfed in contrast to government spending for bombing planes, warships, tanks, guns and munitions.

Yet they pay for the education of one-fourth of the entire population of the United States and the direct employment of more than 1,000,000 teachers, janitors, bus drivers and numerous others as well as the indirect employment of many in producing, selling and transporting the materials needed by the schools.

Financial Dilemma Also in the education for democracy picture is a realization by educators that public schools face more tough competition for public funds.

National defense has the right of way. Billions are being spent hurriedly.

As the birth rate declines and more oldsters await pensions, pressure for government funds is coming from new segments in American life.

Only 17.6 babies per thousand population were born in 1938, compared with 25.1 back in 1915. That means fewer parents who are interested directly in the schools.

Another complicating factor is the indifference of many teachers themselves to the need of acquainting the public with the modern school. Too many teachers assume that the public

This and That

By Gerald K. Miller

Last Saturday Elwood, for one day the center of international interest, rose manfully to the task of being host to 200,000 people.

Restaurants and drug stores were forced to close an hour at a time to clean up and prepare new food.

Through all this the tired, footsore and very hot crowd retained its good nature, and small town informality was the order of the day.

On the lawn in front of the school house Wendell attended to talking to "Big Six" Watkins, a schoolmate of Wendell's, and now living in Kansas City, Missouri.

Wendell Wilkie was a contradiction. He was a rough and tumble fighter, always out to raise a little rumpus, but going out of his way to help the underdog.

His work was not good in Arithmetic, but in History, Economics and allied subjects he knew more than many of his teachers.

I had the pleasure of meeting and talking a few minutes with Edith and Wendell Wilkie after the latter's acceptance speech.

Friendship, kindness and sympathy are fundamental traits. When you talk with him you feel you are on bedrock, that the man personifies the right Americans have made to win and hold our Democracy.

When I read the above it sounds schoolboyish, or as if the terrific heat had gone to my head.

Children In Court By Judge Malcolm Hatfield

Unwarranted Vandalism The lust for excitement often leads boys into wrongdoings.

This was demonstrated when a country school was burglarized and the interior completely damaged.

Cooperation of Religious and Nationalistic Groups A court found that leaders of various nationalistic and racial groups not only have the welfare of their respective people at heart, but they also take great pride in the fact that they care for their own.

supervise the case. Similar successful results were obtained when the same methods were applied to children of other foreign racial groups.

It has been discovered that when a boy is placed in the custody of his priest, rabbi or minister, and when his parents are made to cooperate with the church, second offenses are seldom committed by such youngsters.

By gaining the help of both the church and the leaders of the various nationalistic and racial groups the court is able to rely on the services of individuals who thoroughly understand the ideals, customs and habits that motivate the lives of their children.

In the midst of Michigan's hottest summer season, over five tons of tuberculosis Christmas seals were delivered throughout the state this week.

Christmas Seals Are Ready for Distribution

In sharp contrast to last year's modern design, the 1940 seal, drawn by the well-known American artist, Kelly-L. Martini, is extremely informal.

The bulk of the 1940 seals go to industrial centers—27,500,000 to Detroit; 6,000,000 to Grand Rapids; and 4,000,000 to Flint.

With the arrival of the seals, preparations for Christmas campaigns are speeded up throughout the state.

Mail lists are taken from the records which are kept for every person who receives Christmas seals.

Of particular interest to farmers and others in the area who may purchase gasoline for other purposes than use on the highways is the portion of the exhibit dealing with gas tax refunds of three cents per gallon which

State Department Will Have Exhibit At Fair

How Michigan's many citizens are served by the department of state in Lansing will be graphically explained to residents of this area by means of an attractive exhibit which officials have arranged to show throughout the Washtenaw County Fair opening on August 27 at Ann Arbor.

Thousands of Michigan residents who have viewed this educational exhibit at fairs and festivals in other counties have in this way become better acquainted with functions of this important division of government headed by Secretary of State Harry F. Kelly.

In examining this display virtually every person will find that he is served directly by the department by at least one of its many functions.

Included in the display will be a set of Michigan's "laboratory tested" 1941 automobile license plates as well as actual plates from many other states and Canadian provinces.

Because of his sponsoring such tests and elimination of the old system which featured costly special and trick plates, Kelly has been named chairman of a national committee to study license plates throughout the country this year.

Booklets prepared under Kelly's direction, entitled "What Every Driver Should Know" and outlining rules for safe driving which every motorist should follow, may be had for the asking at the exhibit.

Operations of the state department in handling applications for operators licenses and vehicle titles as well as in collection of the gasoline tax are visibly portrayed as part of the exhibit.

Those visiting the exhibit will learn that in 1939 gasoline tax collections totaled more than $31,420,000, that 1,628,536 motor vehicles were licensed in Michigan last year as compared to 1,093,003 in 1916 and that the weight tax in 1939 produced $10,035,245.

Money from these two sources is spent for highway purposes.

last year alone totaled more than $1,579,000.

A complete explanation of the manner in which individuals may apply for refunds and when they may be entitled to them can be gained at the exhibit. Information regarding other applications which may be submitted to the department and of all departmental activities also will be furnished and residents of this area are invited to inspect the display at any time while it is in Ann Arbor.

Park Was Battle Ground The site of the important battle of Long Island in the Revolutionary war is now largely Prospect park, in Brooklyn.

credible, now, as glowing from the exercise she climbed the slope at Todd's side... "I can imagine." "They've all been especially annoying, except Dad. Or maybe it has seemed so to me because John..." "You're generous, Todd." "Not very." He gave a short laugh, quickly stilled... "I do admire you. I have always... "How is that?" about something I hoped could happen. And last night—it was difficult. "Don't worry about it." "I won't worry about it." "Just what I needed. Coasting, silly fun, exercise. Everyone has been so solemn all day. Being with you—" "I?" He laughed with a note of embarrassment in his voice. "What have I done?" "Just been natural, and allowed me to be. There's no strain in being with you." "Not now," he said gravely, "but there was. You felt a sense of strain last summer, after our engagement had been announced, when you were trying to persuade yourself that you wanted to marry me..." "I'm holding." Gay tightened her grip around his waist... "I do admire him. You're like him—a little..." "You want to believe that, don't you? I am, a little, I guess..." "I love you." He caught her to him...

of churning foam. "Br-r-r!" Kitty Cameron sat up and leaned forward to reach the fur coverlet folded at the foot of the chaise-longue. "You come in here glowing like mountain climbers and proceed to freeze me out." "You invited us." Gay dropped into a chair beside the chaise-longue. "You're a hot-house blossom, Kitty. Where's Robert?" "Playing hand-ball at the club." "Gay's mother lay back against cushions, under the fur coverlet. He's dressed about his waist-line. Sit down, John, but not in that chair. This is the only one Robert really trusts." She gestured. Peach-colored chiffon in a fan of tiny pleats fell back from her rounded arm. Her long, very deep blue eyes moved from John to Gay. "You must have enjoyed the country. I expected you yesterday. What have you done to make yourself look so blowsy, Gay? Your face is as red as a tomato." "I'm holding." Gay tightened her grip around his waist... "I do admire him. You're like him—a little..." "You want to believe that, don't you? I am, a little, I guess..." "I love you." He caught her to him...

the future that they had maintained, these past two days in the country, a close and intimate companionship. It was his fault. The sense of inadequacy he felt was deeply humiliating. How could he make Gay's mother understand the nature of his obligation, the impossibility of buying his release? Buy his release? He thought bitterly. Permit Gay to buy it for him— "In the silence which followed his reply, he saw Kitty Cameron turn with a baffled expression to her daughter. "But, Gay—" she began. "Does it matter, Mother, except to John and to me?" Gay sat forward in her chair, her color heightened, her attitude defensive. "Other people have had to wait. John knows best what his obligations are. If I'm willing to—" She dropped back into the chair with a short mirthless laugh. "After all the fuss there's been, I can't understand why you try to rush us into marriage." "I'm not trying to rush you into anything. I'm merely trying to find out, if I can, what you expect to do." "Whatever I do needn't interfere with your plans, Mother. You've accepted the Davenport's invitation, haven't you?" "Tentatively. But you wouldn't enjoy it, darling. A six weeks' course. No young people and the Davenports aren't stimulating company." "Besides which, I haven't been invited. Go, of course, Mother. The Davenports are dull but you and Robert enjoy yourselves wherever you are." "But what will you do?" Kitty Cameron's glance, a little embarrassed, she thought, turned to John. "I don't suppose all of this is very entertaining to John." "Why not?" Gay folded her arms beneath her head. "I can go to Daytona with Aunt Flora." "You couldn't, Gay!" "No, I guess you're right. Well, I could go to Italy with Dad, though he doesn't really want me. When I'm with him he thinks he should do things to entertain me. He's much happier poking around in art museums and book-shops and cathedrals alone." "David was born a bachelor." David Graham's former wife said without rancor, in indulgent extenuation. "He's always happier alone, though when I made that possible the heavens fell." Her attention returned to the subject under discussion. "I want to know that you are provided for, before I accept the Davenports' invitation definitely." "I'll visit Tory in Palm Beach. It's usually amusing there," she said with a forced gaiety which struck through John's heart in a stab of quivering pain. "I'm in Palm Beach, John, in Maine. You and Robert, cruising with the Davenports. May we all survive!" Kitty Cameron regarded her daughter thoughtfully, her brow beneath the soft waves of her amazing hair, puckered in lines of doubt. As she opened her lips to speak, the telephone rang. She took the instrument from the table beside the chaise-longue. "Hello. Yes, darling. John heard her say. "Yes, they're here. John is leaving tonight. No, I had no idea. Of course I've told them. Wait a minute. It's Robert," she said. "What shall I tell him? Do you want to go to the Heron Club?" "Shall we, John?" Gay's eyes met his, glancingly, clouded at what she read in his face. "If you would like to, Gay." The constraint in his voice ended her indecision. It was his fault, he thought miserably. He had destroyed their plans for the evening, the plans they had made driving from the country this afternoon. In silence he saw her raise her head. "Well, go," she said, too lightly, too quickly. "Tell Robert we'd love to, Kitty." Kitty Cameron's lips parted as though she meant to speak. Then her brow cleared. Her shoulders under the peach-colored negligee made a faint shrugging motion. She spoke into the transmitter. "The orchestra made preliminary sounds, then swung smoothly, gratefully, into a waltz. The blond, curly young Englishman leaned across the long table toward Gay. "This is my dance, I think," he said with a slightly formal inclination of his head. (To be continued)

The other night the burglar alarm sounded, and the next day on the strength of the developed film a young man known as Ernest J. F. Dupuis was arrested. "My friend and I". SOMETIMES ONE HEARS the sorrowful expression, "My friend and I have separated. Notwithstanding the possibilities of mutual aid and happiness in friendship, too often this bond has been broken by self-seeking or ambition on the part of one or both of those concerned. Hearts have been hardened and distrust of mankind engendered as a result of such ruptures. Without the knowledge that God is the infinite Friend, human friendship lacks the only foundation on which fidelity and affection can be secure. In "Retrospection and Introspection" Mary Baker Eddy says (p. 30): "There are no greater miracles known to earth than perfection and an unbroken friendship. We love our friends, but oftentimes we lose them in proportion to our affection. The sacrifices made for others are not infrequently met by envy, ingratitude, and enmity, which smite the heart and threaten to paralyze its benevolence."

The desolation and loneliness of the human heart are healed when Love is found to be the divine Principle, God, who creates and maintains all that is lovely and good. The understanding of God as the one Friend, forever reflected by man, is of the utmost importance, for the proving of this truth requires that each one shall in his own thinking and living reflect the one Friend, express the Love which is universal and impartial. This view of Friend, as Principle, removes the longing for personal friends, waking rather the desire in oneself to be a friend to all through reflecting in one's life the universal Love which is God.

This true loving and living fills the waste places of seemingly lost friendships or aloneness with the rich satisfaction of communing with God and reflecting Him, as Friend, to all. In this true view, the concept expressed in the phrase "My friend and I" is exalted beyond the finite personal sense to the conscious realization that since God is Friend, then each one, as God's child, expresses Friend. When one, instead of seeking how he can win personal friends, thus seeks to manifest what he knows of God, he will find his experience being enriched with many lovely manifestations of friendships.
