Local Community Fair Was Successful Event

Chelsea's annual Community Fair came to a close on Saturday night after two days of interesting activities at the public school, starting Friday morning with classification and arrangement of exhibits, judging taking place in the afternoon by judges chosen by department heads for the various classifications.

Although the agricultural displays were somewhat smaller in number than last year, the products exhibited by 4-H club and Future Farmers of America members, and others, were of good quality and attractively arranged in the school auditorium, and livestock and pets were exhibited in a tent on the school grounds.

Of special interest to the hundreds who attended the fair on Friday and Saturday evenings was the hobby show which was held in the agricultural room in the high school building. Many fine exhibits were on display, including needlework, handicraft, fine arts, nature collections, scrapbooks, stamp collections, and many other novel and unusual hobbies. This division of the fair was under the supervision of Mrs. P. G. Schaible, with assistants in each department.

Highlighting the entire fair was the flower show, held in the kindergarten room under the direction of Mrs. W. R. Daniels and several assistants. The beauty of the floral displays would vie with those seen at flower shows in much larger cities, although smaller in number. There were beautiful displays of potted plants, cut flowers, single entries, miniature bouquets, centerpieces of fruit and vegetables, and others, which is evidence that there must be many lovely flower gardens in Chelsea and vicinity from which these displays were selected.

The auditorium was filled to capacity for the program on Friday night, which consisted of a concert by the high school band under the direction of Robert Dunstan; several numbers by the high school chorus, directed by Miss Marie McNeil; and a one-act play by the dramatics class of the high school, under the direction of Carl Chandler. William Rademacher was master of ceremonies. On Saturday evening the entertainment consisted of music by the Cassidy Lake band, and moving pictures of Alaska, shown by Walter Harper.

All teachers were in their rooms from 7:00 until 8:00 o'clock on Friday evening to consult parents and others interested in the work of the students. Officials of the Community Fair wish to express their appreciation to all who helped to make the fair a success. The complete list of premium winners will be published next week.

At a ceremony which took place on Saturday morning, October 5, in St. John's Catholic Church in Fenton, Miss Madeleine Bollora, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bollora of Alpena, became the bride of John P. Keusch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Keusch of this place. Rev. Fr. R. P. Tigue celebrated the nuptial high mass.

The bride wore a gown of white silk damask fashioned in princess style with a sweetheart neckline, long sleeves puffed at the shoulder and tapered to the wrist. Her veil was finger-length and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and chrysanthemums. She was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Marie Dery of Fenton was her aunt's bridesmaid and her dress was of azure blue taffeta, and she carried a bouquet of rust colored bebe mums. Her headress matched her gown.

Leo Tuttle of this place performed the duties of best man. The ushers were Conrad and Claude Dery, nephews of the bride.

The wedding breakfast was served at the Hotel Fenton and covers were laid for 35 members of the immediate families.

For traveling Mrs. Keusch wore a three-piece brown suit with leopard trim and a matching hat and an orchid corsage. Following a motor trip through the south, Mr. and Mrs. Keusch will return to Chelsea and will make their home at Cavanaugh lake.

Mrs. Keusch was formerly a teacher in the public schools of this place. Mr. Keusch is a graduate of St. Mary high school and the U. of M. Law school in Ann Arbor. He is a prominent lawyer of this place.

The bride was honored at several pre-nuptial showers and parties given in Detroit, Grosse Pointe and Fenton.

Miss Gladys Hinchey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hinchey of North Lake, and Carl Gross, of Chelsea, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Gross of Detroit, were married at 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, October 6 at St. Anthony's church.

MEN FROM 21 TO 36 WILL REGISTER WEDNESDAY FOR SELECTIVE SERVICE

Several Weddings Mark Week's Social Events

Registration of all men between the ages of 21 and 36 for the selective service draft will take place throughout the nation next Wednesday, October 16.

The Washtenaw county machinery for the huge task was set in motion on Monday when township officials received instructions from the county clerk in Ann Arbor, and registration blanks were distributed to the various township boards and others who will assist in the draft registration.

In Sylvan township the registration will be conducted by the township board consisting of five members, with the assistance of as many others as is deemed necessary to do the work. It is estimated that about 15 persons will be required to take care of the registration here, and all who serve must do so without remuneration. It is stated that 20 minutes will be required for each case, and it is believed there will be more than 400 eligible men in the township. Those who serve on the registration board will be at the town hall from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. and perhaps longer if necessary.

Registration in other rural townships will also take place in the town halls, with the township boards in charge.

Provision is made that any man subject to registration who is absent from his home precinct on registration day shall be permitted, for his own convenience, to register at any place of registration and be given a certificate. Men distant from their homes attending training camps, colleges, schools, etc., are included as absentees. Any inmate of any asylum, jail, penitentiary, reformatory or similar institution, subject to registration, shall be registered on the day of his discharge, according to the provisions.

Any man who for any reason fails to register on the day fixed by the President may present himself before any local board. The local board shall register him, and if he has a valid reason for having failed to register, shall issue him a registration certificate.

Any person who on registration day is prevented by illness from presenting himself before the registration board, who is not in a hospital, shall have a competent person apply to the chief registrar for authority to act as registrar in the case. The man deputized shall return the completed card to the chief registrar on the same day, obtain the registration certificate and give it to the registrant.

Any man who is quarantined or who is too sick to be registered on registration day shall present himself before a local board, or notify the board as soon as he can be registered. A physician's certificate or other competent evidence shall be necessary to prove valid cause for failing to register on the proper day. The county clerk is required to appoint special registrars to register the sick in hospitals.

Twelve Cars Involved In Accident On US-12

Twelve cars were involved in an accident which tied up traffic for several hours on US-12 near the John Liebeck farm south of Chelsea about 7 o'clock Sunday night.

According to deputies who were called to the scene of the accident the trouble started when a motorist stopped on the highway and his car was struck by a car traveling in the same direction. The pavement was slippery and the visibility was poor because of heavy rainfall, and cars traveling in both directions became involved in the pile-up when the drivers were unable to stop as they came upon the scene of the accident. The driver who stopped and caused the first crash drove away and his identity was not ascertained.

Several persons were injured as the result of the collisions, although none of the injuries were serious. Some of the injured were taken to a Jackson hospital and others to St. Joseph's Mercy hospital in Ann Arbor. No local people were involved in the crashes, although several motorists from this vicinity were held up in the traffic tie-up. Deputies Floyd Mattis and Edwin Klager managed to open a single lane for traffic until the damaged cars could be removed from the pavement.

DAVE TIES A KNOT!

In addition to his various duties, including banking, councilman, farm operator, etc., Justice of the Peace David Beach has started a new line of activity—that of performing marriage ceremonies. His first case was on Tuesday evening when Joe Frick and Maria Messinger of Ann Arbor journeyed to Chelsea to be united in matrimony. Although he was more nervous than the groom, Dave stated that he thoroughly enjoyed the dignity with which he was empowered—but most of all he enjoyed the remuneration which came as the reward from a happy bridegroom. He is considering the matter seriously now and may make an extensive drive for more customers!

CHAS. MESERVA NEW MARSHAL

At the meeting of the village council on Monday evening Charles Meserva was officially named part-time day marshal, in addition to operating the sewage disposal plant. Harold L. Craven is night marshal, and Otto Schanz, special marshal. According to village officials the new arrangement represents a saving of $45.00 a month as compared with the method of operation up to September 1.

440 Active MemberHunters Make Study
Of Hunting Territory

With five weeks to go before the gun season on deer opens in Michigan on November 15, many hunters who are planning trips into northern counties are studying kill reports before deciding where they will set up camps.

The 1939 season established a new record for number of hunters—168,143. The total number of hunters was 44,008. Increase in number of hunters last season was 5,542 over the previous record number—162,302—licensed in 1938. The final kill reports show only 99 more bucks were taken in 1939 than in 1938.

Percentage of hunters successful last season was, as usual, greater in upper peninsula counties than in those below the straits. Iron county led in percentage of hunter success, 48.2, followed by Dickinson's 43.8, Ontonagon's 43.7, Gogebie's 42.6, and Delta's 42.2.

Those who hunted below the straits last season had best success in Alpena county, where 32.4 per cent got their bucks. Others of the five ranking counties in the lower peninsula were Arcona with 28.8 per cent of hunters successful; Alpena 28, Crawford 27.9, and Oscoda 27.3. Average of hunter success above the straits was 39.1, in lower Michigan 25.4, and in 1938.

More Vision, Bigger Body, Softer
Ride Featured in New Ford Line

MORE VISION for drivers and passengers is one of the first things remarked by those inspecting the new Ford V-8 line. Ford designers have gone still further away from the tendency in recent years to limit the view from a car's interior. This Super DeLuxe Tudor Sedan is an especially rugged body, but with lots of daylight inside. A two-inch longer wheelbase, and newly engineered stiffer frame, bigger body, softer springs and sensitive shock absorbers give a degree of passenger comfort in front or rear seat that critics agree is remarkable. There is also increased head room.

For the deer counties of both peninsulas, 26.7. Total of those hunting deer in the upper peninsula was 42,388 and the number hunting below the straits was 117,701.

Deer killed per square mile last season in lower peninsula counties closely paralleled hunter concentrations. Roscommon county was most heavily hunted, 22.60 hunters per square mile killing 5.50 bucks per square mile. Other ranking lower peninsula counties were: Oscoda, 16.02 hunters per square mile, 4.37 bucks killed per square mile; Ogemaw, 15.55 and 3.55; Lake, 15.27 and 2.59; and Montmorency, 14.22 and 3.55. Above the straits hunter concentration was greatest in Luce county where the kill also was heaviest, 4.08 hunters per square mile and 1.46 bucks killed per square mile.

Farm Tenant Purchase
Program Is Expanded

Further extension of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Purchase program in Michigan to include the counties of Jackson, Saginaw, Monroe, Washtenaw, Kalamazoo and Ingham is announced by Donald D. Kline, Farm Security Administration Supervisor for Washtenaw county.

Mr. Kline stated that applications for loans under the program are now being received by his office, located at 343 South Main street, Ann Arbor. The closing date for applications will be October 31.

Funds will be available for a limited number of loans which will be made to qualified tenant farmers or farm laborers who desire to purchase farms which they will personally operate. The loans are made for a term of 40 years and bear three per cent interest. They are restricted to persons who are unable to obtain farm purchase credit from any other source than the Farm Security Administration.

Allotment of tenant purchase funds among counties selected by the Secretary of Agriculture for inclusion in the program is on the basis of prevalence of tenancy in the county and also considers the availability of suitable farms and qualified borrowers. Supervisor Donald Kline said.

"The immediate goal of the Tenant Purchase program," explained Mr. Kline, "is ownership of family-sized farms by their operators. Its indirect result is to promote good citizenship by giving thousands of deserving families a stake in the country—a new feeling of responsibility, self-respect, security and concern with the affairs of their communities."

All tenant farmers and farm laborers who can meet basic qualifications are eligible to apply for loans. Selections will be made on the basis of character, farming ability and experience. A high standard of farming ability is a basic requirement and preference will be given family men under middle age who have had extensive farming experience. It is also desirable that applicants possess livestock and equipment wholly or nearly free of debt and that the livestock and equipment be sufficient for operation of a family-sized farm.

The County Tenant Purchase advisory committee, consisting of Chas. McCall, Wm. Austin and G. A. Carr, will be available for consultation with chosen applicants relative to selection of farms to be purchased. The borrower, however, is expected to recommend to the committee a farm for which he has preference. Farms must be purchased within the county.

Lahsing—When Michigan voters go to the polls November 5, they must make an important decision. They must decide whether or not the people can trust their legislature to carry out the popular will.

For many years it has been an old American custom regardless of party, for legislators to proclaim: "To the victors belong the spoils!"

Proposal No. 2 on the November 5 ballot is an amendment to the state constitution which would write civil service into Michigan's basic law and set up a four-member, bi-partisan commission to administer the merit system directly under the constitution.

The legislature would no longer have any practical authority in the civil service picture. Thus would pass away the traditional power of the elected representatives of the people over this phase of state administration.

Would this transition be good or bad? That is the question the voters must decide, and it is admitted there is much to be said on both sides of the case.

Merit System

Probably the first question in the mind of the neutral voter is, Why is it deemed necessary to strip the legislators of this power?

The Michigan Merit System association, sponsor of the amendment, has taken the stand that the legislature cannot be relied upon to give the state a real civil service, and the association leaders point to the state's three-year experience with the merit system as evidence that patronage governs the choice of state employees and disrupts efficiency.

It will be remembered that the 1937 Democratic legislature passed the bill setting up Michigan's first civil service. Frank Murphy, then governor, imported William Brownrigg from California to administer the system. Director Brownrigg proceeded to hew to the line so rigorously in choosing employees by question-and-answer tests and in governing employee relations according to the letter of the law that a political reaction blew him out of office early in 1939.

At that time the newly elected Republican legislature revised the system by what critics termed a "ripper" bill. There were observers in politics and out who felt the liberalization was justified on the basis that Brownrigg had sought to do the impossible, namely, to reform government overnight.

8,000 Employees

The original act brought approximately 15,000 workers under civil service. At present there are only about 8,000 of the state's total of 17,500 employees under the setup.

All this will be changed, if the amendment passes. So sweeping is the measure that only about 570 positions (elected officers, department heads, board, and commission members, employees of the legislature, and not more than two other positions for each elected administrative officer and each department, board, and commission) would be exempt.

Furthermore the amendment manipulates the state's pursestrings. It directs the legislature to appropriate not less than one per cent of the total state payroll for the merit system. This means considerably more money than civil service is now getting.

Many objections to the amendment have been raised. Various organizations which have supported civil service and which formerly backed the Merit System association's program are opposing the current proposal. They include the state department of the American Legion, Michigan Farm Bureau, Inc., Michigan Federation of Labor, and the Michigan Federation of Business and Professional Women.

The opposition centers on the argument that whatever corrections need to be made to civil service should be made by the legislature and not through constitutional alterations. If the law-makers are not now doing the will of the people, then the voters can elect legislators who will. That is the contention.

Pro and Con

There are other lesser objections, however. For instance, the various ex-servicemen's organizations are zealous to safeguard the advantages they have gained through the veterans preference act. The amendment would nullify that law and leave preference questions entirely up to the new commission. The commissioners, incidentally, would be appointed by the governor and serve staggered terms.

The Michigan Federation of Labor has attacked the amendment because it pre-allocates funds and on the ground it would jeopardize the bargaining rights of labor.

On the other hand, proponents of the amendment emphasize the efficiency angle. The words of Samuel H. Ordway, Jr., of New York city, president of the National Civil Service Reform league, illustrate this point. "Each of us as citizen and taxpayer," he said in a recent talk in Lansing, "is concerned not only with getting a dollar's worth of service for a tax dollar paid, but, for the preservation of democracy itself, in seeing that all these services are as effectively rendered as skill, non-partisanship, and high morale can assure."

Democracy

Supporters of the amendment argue that the measure represents the very essence of democracy in that the people thereby write their own law into the constitution. California and one or two other states are said to have used this means to safeguard civil service against legislative tampering.

This leads to the most serious objection made against the amendment, namely, the implications as to continuation of the American form of representative government. If the legislature cannot be trusted, and if civil service can more efficiently and more satisfactorily be administered by a small super-commission, why not finances, health matters, and everything else the legislature now handles? Why not gradually dissolve the legislature and let constitutional bureaus do the whole job? These are the questions being advanced.

It is further contended that the net result of adoption of the amendment would be a growing laxness on the part of the electorate. The need of watching legislators would be somewhat diminished, and a legislature now said to be weak would become still weaker.

Thus the people would be doing less than ever to govern themselves. Intelligently, it is argued.

Although neutral observers have been slow to take up the cries of alarm raised by some opponents of the amendment, it is freely admitted the proposal implies a modification in the traditional American pattern of government. Some observers regard this change as desirable, as one calculated to streamline and strengthen the familiar party system of representative government.

It is apparent that the amendment will be supported in November by many who feel that in no other way can a stable civil service be effected. It is also apparent, however, that the proposal will meet opposition on the ground that the legislature, with all its faults, should remain the administrative arm of the people.

Shotguns Cause More
Accidents Than Rifles

Duck and small game hunting seasons bring a reminder from the conservation department that last year shotguns proved more deadly in early fall than rifles were in deer season. Small game seasons in 1939 saw 13 fatal and 57 non-fatal accidents while deer season had 10 fatal and 25 non-fatal accidents. There were 540,898 small game licenses sold, compared with 170,386 licenses (not counting archers) issued to deer hunters.

Typical of the thoughtlessness causing most hunting accidents was that befalling a crow hunter near Eastport, in Charlevoix county, just before the season opened. Dragging his shotgun through a fence after him, he shot away the front part of one leg, including part of the shin bone.

GRASS LAKE—Lewis Brothers citizens arrived Sunday at their winter quarters west of Leoni.—News.

PINCKNEY—Jack Young, while on his way home the other night killed a porcupine in front of the Loy McClear farm on M-36. Lawrence Campbell, of the U. of M. wild life sanctuary took the skull and sent it to the U. of M. laboratory at Ann Arbor for examination. This is pretty far south for these animals but occasionally one is killed here.—Dispatch.

CHARLOTTE—A blowtorch in the hands of a painter resulted in the destruction of the upper parts of the court house here 46 years ago. Another blowtorch being used on the Congregational church in Olivet caused damage to the building estimated at $300, on Tuesday. The blaze at the stone church occurred while repair work was being done to overhauling the steeple. It was thought started when the torch ignited a mouse nest under the upper part of the steeple, which sent fire to the wood rafters. Firemen had to cut two holes in the roof in order to reach the flames. The loss is thought to be covered by insurance.—Republican Tribune.

MANCHESTER—Last week a short mention was made of the fact that Thursday evenings would be known as church night. The clergy of the village met with the school board and the superintendent of schools, as it was agreed that this night should be set aside and that no school activities whatsoever would be planned. Members of the school board added several remarks to their approval of the idea, for example, "that if the church had no claim on the young folks on such a night it might be a very fine thing if the young folks actually spent an evening at home, with their families."—Enterprise.

Children In Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield

Sophistication is perhaps one of the most expensive words in our language. Sudden sophistication proved to be a folly in the guise of wisdom to a young woman who had left a sheltered home.

Thrown into a new mad whirl of life, she soon learned that the voice of the world, which always employs beguiling rhetoric for its seductive purposes, called on her to change her philosophy if she did not want to be a wall flower.

She observed that many sophisticated young women threw their caresses around like election circulars on the streets, discarding old fashioned reticences and safeguards. Not wishing to be outdone, she soon began to cater to the wishes of the American youth who urged her to "limber up her conscience and drink and smoke and keep late hours unchaperoned."

She had formerly observed laws of health, enjoyed a wholesome life; her new found sophistication prompted her to cast aside good habits. As a result she discovered that she had contracted a highly contagious social disease. The companions who had been the first to acclaim her "a real pal" now deserted her without the least hesitation.

Unpopular, Unattractive and Unwanted

An adolescent wayward boy presented a difficult case to juvenile authorities, because he would not cooperate in carrying out any program designed for his reclamation. The average judge has observed scores of similar youngsters who could be classified as unattractive, unpopular and unwanted children. Such children are frequently not endowed with any of the inherited traits which characterize the normal child. These children are a real challenge to society, for they are difficult to manage. They are often outcasts with a strong desire to belong to some group within the community. Unless they can be interested and made a part of a definite worthwhile group, they are likely to become members of vicious gangs who prowl in the streets doing all sorts of mischief.

A child of low mentality can more readily be persuaded to commit antisocial acts than one of normal intelligence with a good family background.

Roadside Picnic Tables To Serve Football Fans

State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner, anticipating increased use of the department's popular roadside picnic tables by football fans, has delayed removal of the tables until the close of the gridiron season.

The commissioner said so many requests had been received that orders removing the tables from the highways would be delayed as long as possible.

Van Wagoner added: "Although the tourist season is near its close, the tables have become so popular with football fans that I have instructed the maintenance division to transfer as many as possible to highways that will be traversed by a majority of persons driving to games."

Meanwhile, orders have gone out to all district engineers to determine the amount of chemicals needed for ice control in anticipation of bad weather ahead.

Engineers were also requested to inspect all shoulders along trunkline highways for the purpose of correcting at once all rutted conditions resulting from the unusual wet weather experienced during the last few weeks.

By maintaining proper shoulders, especially during cold weather, it was explained, one of the greatest road hazards of winter driving would be eliminated.

The work of an efficient traffic squad is lost if the courts do not uphold justified arrests.

There has been a marked slackening of law enforcement in the United States, which is largely responsible for the increase in accidents. Arrests should not be made to annoy people; they should be made to impress people with the importance of obeying traffic rules and regulations to cut down the hazards of automobile traffic.

Where violations are repeated, especially in the case of drunken driving, there ought to be no question on the part of the courts that the driving license of the violator should be suspended.

Help make your community safer by insisting on the enforcement of traffic regulations.

John Adams Started Custom

John Adams probably started the custom of observing the Fourth of July as a national holiday. When the Declaration of Independence was signed, July 4, 1776, he said the day "ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with guns, bells and bonfire."

Can't Open Safe

The city of Cleveland owns a safe that nobody can open. No one even knows what's in it. The new city clerk, Christian J. Bannick, discovered the safe. Inquiry disclosed that none of them remembered what was in it or knew how to open it.

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN'S brass band is packing its instruments and uniforms in readiness to accompany the Wolverine varsity to Boston where Michigan meets Harvard on the gridiron Oct. 12. The band trip is being made possible through the courtesy of the Buick motor division and the Michigan Alumni Association at Flint, Mich., and the Noyes Buick Company of Boston. Michigan's marching band, numbering 150 pieces, is credited with being one of the finest in the country. The bandmen are all students of the university who devote many hours to this activity under the direction of William D. Revell, conductor. Photo shows one of the famous formations, a block "M", formed between halves at the University of Michigan stadium. Following the Harvard game, the bandmen will be featured guests at a banquet of the Boston University of Michigan Club.

So we hitched our wagon to a FIREBALL

—and gave these smarter, roomier cars even more sensational PERFORMANCE than before

THIS formidable example of precision machinery you see above is the new 1941 Buick FIREBALL engine.

It takes its name from what happens inside it.

Like all engines that hold major speed records on land, sea and in the air—like the famed General Motors new Allison aviation engine—it is valve-in-head type.

It represents 39 years of the development concentrated on valve-in-head design—and it stands today as the one engine in the land that really capitalizes on the new and better modern fuels.

The pistons in this Buick FIREBALL Eight are found in no other automobile engine.

THE FIREBALL DOES IT!

Modern gasoline have high octane ratings to permit higher compressions without "ping." Note how this piston, which can be used only in valve-in-head engines, rolls the fuel charge into the shape of a flattened ball that centers around the new, smaller, racing-car type spark plug. Fired at its very heart, this more highly compressed fuel ignites with such full-throated "ping-free" wallop that any gasoline of 75 octane rating (now available at standard fuel prices) may be used in the 115-hp. engine. Any fuel of 80 octane rating serves in the 125- and 135-hp. engines.

Cupped in new contours to complement the dome of the cylinders, they roll the intruding fuel charge into a flattened and turbulent ball, packed fat with potential power.

Concentrated about the racing-car type spark plugs, that explosive ball is fired from its very heart.

So great is its extra thrust that the same-size engine which last year developed 107-horsepower now pours out a super-efficient 115—and delivers more miles per gallon throughout the whole performance range on regular-priced gasoline!

This is the Buick FIREBALL principle, latest development of Buick's exclusive Dynaflex design.

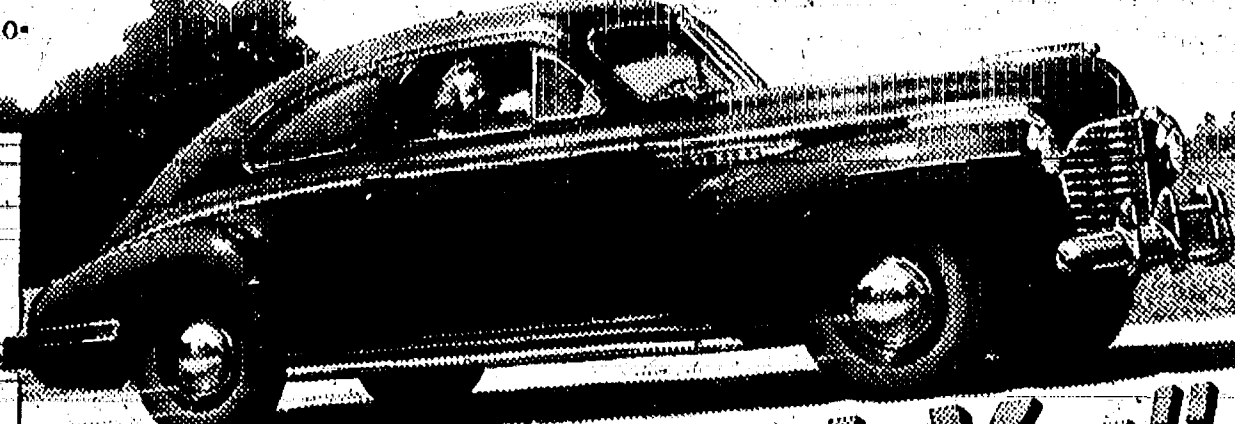

There's still more to the story in the wonders worked by Compound Carburetion.

A standard part of Buick SUPER, CENTURY, ROADMASTER and LIMITED engines, this fuel-supply system lets you travel at fifty on the same meager fuel ration you ordinarily expend to get thirty, and delivers up to 10% or 15% more miles per gallon of gasoline.

You can have it in your Buick SPECIAL for a small extra charge—and step up your 115-horsepower engine to a wallowing 125.

But in big engine or bigger, you get plus-power from less gas—even the 165-hp. 1941 engines giving more miles per gallon than last year's 107-hp. engines at speeds above 40!

According to the Encyclopedia Britannica, a super motor which travels with a series of explosions like the shock waves of a great projectile is called a "FIREBALL."

HEALTH COUNCIL TO MEET

The Washtenaw County Child Health Council will hold its annual meeting at the Bethlehem church, Fourth Ave., Ann Arbor, at 2:00 p. m. sharp, on Monday, October 14. Dr. Badgley of University Hospital will show pictures and talk on Infantile Paralysis. The county nurse, Miss Haist, will give her annual report and will outline a plan for a county-wide survey of all crippled children under 21 years of age. This survey is preliminary to a free clinic which will be held in Ann Arbor early in November. It is believed there are many people in Chelsea and surrounding territory who would be interested in hearing Dr. Badgley and who would help in this survey which is in cooperation with the National Society for Crippled Children. They are asking all counties to get an up-to-date list of all crippled children and make provisions for their examination so that the condition of each child at the present time may be determined. Anyone interested is invited to attend this meeting.

Forum Leaders Discuss Citizenship Program

Seventy-five local committee members and forum leaders in Washtenaw County's American Citizenship Program for new voters met in the Michigan Union last Thursday night, to hear Prof. Harold M. Dorr, University political scientist, and to discuss the organization of forum groups throughout the county.

Ypsilanti, Whitmore Lake, Dexter, the Lincoln School District, the Cassidy Lake Technical School were represented at the meeting. Chelsea was not represented because local leaders had planned the first of their forum discussions for young people that evening.

Professor Dorr spoke on the purposes of the citizenship program and then discussed facts about voting, the first of a number of topics to be studied by the new voters. He emphasized the importance of intelligent use of the ballot in the maintenance of democracy. His address was followed by an open discussion of organization methods. Superintendent of Schools, Ernest H. Chapelle of Ypsilanti, presided.

At an executive committee meeting following the gathering, plans were made for a delegate convention of new voters to be held at Ypsilanti on October 21. The forums being organized on the basis of last week's discussion will be held in all communities of the county between now and November 10, when the whole program will be climaxed by a recognition ceremony for new voters at the Yost Field House in Ann Arbor. Plans for a pageant-parade at the recognition ceremony are being made by a committee headed by Paul Ungrodt of Ypsilanti.

The next meeting of the Leaders' Institute will be at the Michigan Union tonight (Thursday). Forum leaders, committee members, and interested citizens are welcome.

Band News

On Friday night, the high school band made their first appearance of this school year. Only part of the uniforms arrived as the order was sent in two groups. Those that did arrive however were very satisfactory and very attractive.

The other uniforms are expected soon and those that did not receive their uniforms are waiting anxiously. The next appearance scheduled for the band is at the football game at the athletic field on October 25, when the Chelsea lads play Milan.

Senior News

Having finished the magazine sale, the seniors think it about time they swing into something else that something being a doughnut sale. The doughnuts will be made by the Michigan Bread Co.

Of course we know that none of you have forgotten about saving tubes (and I don't mean old rubber inner tubes). Just give your tubes to any Senior.

Last but not least the Seniors thank all of you for your most welcome patronage of our stand at the Community Fair.

Co-operation

Cooperation, which Webster defines as "the act of working together" is a homely virtue which is altogether too frequently neglected.

Cheelsea high school, however, can congratulate itself upon the high degree of this quality shown during the fair. The number and quality of the exhibits, and the excellent display arrangement, testified eloquently to the harmony between the number of people who contributed to the fair's success.

Another opportunity to exhibit community co-operation will arrive on November 7, 8 and 9 when the sophomores request all possible aid for the "Amateur Show" designed to finish paying for the loud speaker system.

Because practically every organization in school, and many outside the school, felt the need for such a system, last year's sophomores undertook to pay the first installment. Now the balance is due, and the present sophomores undertook to finish what their predecessors started.

The sophomores agreed to do the work and the working, but they need the co-operation of every member of the community. They need every available bit of talent, because an amateur show is an impossibility without amateurs. If anyone can sing, play an instrument, give a speech, or do anything else, they are urged to sign up as soon as possible. Sophomores also need the co-operation of the community in another way—no show is a success without an audience. It is to be hoped that community co-operation will show itself in still a third way—in loyal speech. Be a "booster". Many a good government has come to grief because of indifference or "knockers" who sit all together and do nothing.

Girls' Sports

Once again the girls in the high school are taking an active part in athletics.

Now under the direction of Miss McDonald all the girls that wish to play football meet every Tuesday and Thursday at 3:30 and go to the athletic field to play.

As yet no regular team has been formed, just the Freshman and Sophomore squads. Several of the girls have proved themselves good players in field as well as at bat.

In the game that was played last Tuesday many of the girls proved that they could hit them out of the infield. Pitcher Schweinfurth displayed fine pitching ability as well as good batting. She pitched a shut-out game and also contributed two home runs.

All the girls are expecting to continue football for a few weeks at least until basketball season starts. This year Miss McDonald is planning to have a regular team, and may plan games with other schools.

Gaddin' Round With Gadd

The Chelsea boys were out for blood Friday and got it. They walloped the Belleville boys to the tune of 14 to 0 in an exceptionally fine ball game. The Chelsea team played a very good offensive and defensive game and looked very good on the field.

It seems that after our second touchdown one of our linemen, Kniekerbocker to be exact, wanted to carry the ball once. He's been carrying it at practice and has looked pretty good although once after he'd made a good run Cameron told him to get back in the line because he had too many brains to be a backfield man.

Kern really showed he could run once during the game. It was in the third quarter and Chelsea was down on Belleville's 35 yard line. Pitcher called a pass over center to Dietle who lateraled to Kern and he really picked up his feet and ran, outdistancing the whole Belleville backfield in the race for the goal line.

All of you who didn't go and back the team you really missed a good game. Let's all go who possibly can to the next one which is at Romulus tomorrow, October 11.

Home Ec. Classes

For the past several weeks both of the Home Making classes have been studying food preservation. The methods used were the hot pack, cold pack, and open kettle. The class canned peaches, applesauce, tomatoes, pickled beets, and tomato juice. They also made apple jelly, grape jelly and grape lemon jelly.

Money for buying materials was made by selling the canned goods to the class or by selling them to parents and friends. This money is used to buy different things for the kitchen.

Chelsea Wins

The Chelsea team redeemed itself from the defeat suffered at the hands of Flat Rock three weeks ago by winning last Friday from a team which outweighed them quite a bit. The final score was 14 to 0 in favor of Chelsea.

Cheelsea had a huge edge in first downs—14 first downs to Belleville's 8. They also had an edge in yards gained in rushing—181 yards to Belleville's 88. Chelsea's air attack completed 7 out of 14 passes attempted for a total of 45 yards. Belleville completed four out of nine for 40 yards. Most of their passes were long ones. Chelsea had an edge of from 5 to 10 yards per kick. All of Novess' kicks went for at least 35 yards.

The touchdowns were made by Novess in the second quarter and Kern in the third quarter. Novess made his by going over for three yards off tackle. Kern's was made when Novess threw a short forward over the line of scrimmage to Dietle. Dietle was hit almost immediately but lateraled to Kern who outran the Belleville backs for a touchdown. Both conversions were made by Novess.

In all it was a very interesting game and enjoyed by all who went to see it.

The next game is tomorrow at Romulus.

The Assembly Program

On Tuesday, October 1 the pupils of Chelsea high school were assembled in study hall to hear a talk given by Dr. Ray Hardy of Detroit. Dr. Hardy was brought to us under the auspices of the Greene Dry Cleaning Co. of Ann Arbor.

Dr. Hardy's speech was entitled, "The American Way of Living". His speech dealt on a very serious topic and made the student body think seriously about the matter. The boys and girls of the school enjoyed Dr. Hardy's speech very much.

Around the Fair

By Peggy Almond

On Friday when I arrived at the fair I was just in time to see the curtain be drawn as an introduction to the evening's program. The band with most of their new uniforms, was first on the program. After this came the mixed chorus and then a comedy by the dramatics club.

After watching the program I decided the flower show was next. Never have I seen, or expect to see, such wonderful varieties of flowers, from miniature bouquets to immense blossoms.

The hobby show was also very interesting, especially the spectacular display by Dr. A. L. Brock.

The Home Economics classes and the Chemistry students also had exhibitions; the Home Ec's showing what they had done, and hope to do this year. The Chemistry lab also showed that many hours had been spent for the occasion. In the gym were many country school and 4-H exhibits as well as display by merchants.

On Saturday the displays were the same and the Cassidy Lake band played for us and moving pictures on Alaska were shown by Mr. Harper.

Sophomores

The next undertaking of the Sophomore class is the "Amateur Hour" which will be held November 7, 8 and 9.

The committees in charge are headed by Margaret Knapp, corresponding secretary; Evelyn Lehman, publicity; Luther Kusterer, tickets; and Tom Lyons, arrangements. These, with Bob Strleber, class president, and a faculty committee, form an executive group which is designed to meet with efficiency and dispatch such problems as may arise.

Letters have already been mailed to neighboring schools, inviting residents of nearby communities to participate in the program.

THANK YOU!

The students of the Chelsea public high school are very grateful to Mr. Johnson and the faculty for making it possible for us to listen to the world series games.

The Student Body.

Seventh Grade

We have a club and all the people in the room are co-operating in a campaign against gum-chewing. Miss Fox put on our side blackboard pictures of what people don't like in other people.

In the back part of the room we have a new bulletin board. It is softer than the other bulletin board and the tacks go in very easily.

A few of the people in our room entered hobbies, plants, and livestock in the Community Fair. The following people entered things in the fair: John Wellnitz, Thomas Smith, Jane Downer, Doris Nagy, Barbara Eaton, Frank Aldrich, Audrey White, Stanley Czaplak, Phillip Tompkins and Charles Stane.

The first large-scale excavation of an Indian burial ground on the Long Pine division of the Custer National Forest in eastern Montana will be undertaken this year by the Carter County Geological society. Ships Smaller, Ocean Bigger, in 1492

In 1492 when Columbus sailed the Atlantic to the New World, it took him three months in his tiny galleon, the Santa Maria. The United States liner, America, newest and largest ship of our merchant fleet, could make the trip today in a little more than three days. While great mechanical progress has been made since Columbus' day, the sea has lost much of its freedom. Ships are bigger in 1492, but the ocean was bigger in 1492. Above is shown the 30,000-ton liner, America, with Columbus' flagship at right.

Prison Has Playgrounds

A "model prison" was opened in Venezuela incorporating cells with adjoining baths and free circulation of air; playgrounds, orchards and ample ground for development of a vegetable garden.

This city, with 9,000 population, has watched the construction of the model prison with interest, inasmuch as there is not a hotel in the entire state of Yaracuy, of which San Felipe is the capital, which can boast of rooms with bath.

Construction of the prison was ordered by Gov. Luis Felipe Lopez of Yaracuy as an experiment in rehabilitation of criminals.

The model prison is the first of its kind in Venezuela, and students of penology will study its effect on prisoners.

McNary's Views On Farm Problem

American Market and Parity Price for Farm Products Will Be Party Goal.

A promise to the farmer that he will be assured of the American market for his products was made in an address delivered at Aurora, Illinois, by Senator McNary, Republican candidate for Vice President, and co-author of the McNary-Haugen bill.

Senator McNary said the Republican administration under Wendell Willkie "will further and by every means, seek to enlarge the American market for farm products—both by improving the consuming power of city consumers and also by encouraging the industrial uses of farm raw materials. Thirdly, it will search for a formula for freeing the American farm price from the vagaries of foreign markets; putting the farmer on the same footing with other American producers, who sell at the American—not the world—price."

Senator McNary's speech sounded the keynote of the Republican campaign on the farm problem. He criticized the woeful failure of the New Deal to solve the farm problem in a permanent and effective manner. He said, "Actually, the basic farm problem is no nearer solution today than it was on March 4th, 1933. The New Deal has reached none of its fundamental objectives; its farm program is a thing of shreds and patches; settling nothing; merely putting off the day of reckoning. If I did not believe that the New Deal's success could be enormously bettered, I should not as a farmer and a friend of the farmer—be standing before you today. If I thought that the best the Government of the United States had to offer the farmer was regimented subsistence and a permanent state of disparity, then I should despair for my country."

The speaker endorsed heartily the statement, made on several occasions by Mr. Willkie, to the effect that the present form of the farm program would be continued until something better can be developed. He said, "I know of no one who advocates withholding from the farmer the grants he now has—soil conservation, parity payments, crop loans and other benefits—until the prolonged emergency is past and the farmer no longer is at a disadvantage. I have many farmer friends who are gravely concerned over the deficits which these benefits together with all the New Deal's expenditures are piling up for deferred payment. The farm population will pay its full share in meeting these bills. Furthermore, the administration of these vast paternalistic enterprises leaves much to be desired. The inevitable faults of bureaucracy—red tape, favoritism, confusion and delay—plague these enterprises. They should be decentralized. Costs should be reduced."

His direct statement giving his view on the relative merits of the New Deal administration of the farm program and the Republican policy was as follows: "The New Deal, satisfied with its farm program, sees the farmer's lot a maximum aim. I see it as a minimum. I accept that program only as a stopgap substitute for something better to be provided. And I assert, in full confidence, that the next administration will be able to provide something better."

In further explanation of the difference between the New Deal accomplishments and the aggressive Republican policy on the farm problem Senator McNary declared, "The administration, worth its salt, strive for parity prices—not parity payments. It will seek to make out surpluses a blessing and not a curse."

Regarding the results of the New Deal farm program, the candidate said, "Surrounded by mountainous surpluses, or reserves, the farmer has been frozen into a dependence on the government. The New Deal, as everyone knows, did not invent the farm problem. Its offense lies in the fact that, finding agriculture ill of a functional disorder, it made the disorder chronic."

He continued, "Secretary Wallace has renamed the agricultural surpluses. You will, of course, recall that the great glut of wheat, corn and cotton that plagues the New Deal began as plain surpluses. Then, in 1938, Mr. Wallace changed the name, but not the substance, to the 'ever-normal granary'—a condition which if not checked, seems on the way to providing ever-normal poverty for the farmer."

Oddities Among Echoes

Explained by Scientists

Modern science understands and can explain the oddities among natural echoes that occur in different parts of the world, writes Albert Carr in The Scientific American. Some echoes magnify your voice. Usually such "megaphone" echoes are heard in caves.

At the famous quarried grotto known as the Bar of Dionysus, in Sicily, the crumpling of a piece of cellophane will make you think a machine gun is at work. Why? Well, when echoes are thrown back simultaneously from many surfaces their combined volume is louder than that of the original sound heard from a single direction.

The musical echo is certainly the most charming of all the numerous echo family. On Saddleback mountain, in Maine, the most hideous discords, such as an Indian war whoop, are returned as a delightful, soft, musical note. Such echoes are generally found only where there are symmetrical rows of trees which "cut out" or absorb certain sound frequencies and reflect the others in a harmonic relationship.

Everyone has observed how a prism or spectroscopic grating breaks up sunlight into its component colors. Here and there an echo will do the same thing to sound, producing a "sound spectrum."

In Big Horn canyon, in southern Montana, the rushing roar of the river sometimes echoes from a certain section of the cliffs in a howl like that of a police car siren, beginning on a high note and sweeping down into the bass clef. Years ago Indians in the neighborhood used to shout the spot for fear of evil spirits. Today we know that the various wave lengths in the sound of the river are reflected by different parts of the jagged cliff, reaching the ear separately instead of all at once. If the observer takes another position he can cause the order of the sounds to be reversed, so that the echo begins with the deep tones and rises to the treble.

Physicists say of echoes of this type that they "analyze" sound.

Invented Smoke Remover

The first practical method for the removal of smoke particles from air or fume gases was invented by an American chemist, Dr. Frederick G. Cottrell. The smoke was passed through a metal cylinder inside of which was suspended a wire, or a framework of wires. The cylinder was then charged negatively and the wire positively to a potential difference of tens of thousands of volts.

"Why is it?" Debby's color deepened. Gay saw her hands knot into fists as John's hands did when his fighting instinct was aroused.

"Well, there are your courses for one thing," Ann Houghton said evenly. "You were very eager to take them. You can't very well stop."

"But Mother," Debby interrupted. "Gay says I can go to a business school or have a tutor."

"We couldn't afford that, Debby."

"But I should like to do it for—"

Gay began, then stopped short, checked by the expression which had settled over Ann Houghton's face.

"No, my dear," she said, still evenly, holding her off, Gay thought, by the reasonable friendliness of her tone. "That's very generous of you, but I think Debby is better off at home."

"We needn't go into that, Debby."

"Yes, we will!" Debby slipped off the arm of her mother's chair, stood with her hands clenched into fists, her head defiantly lifted. "It's because you're afraid to let one of us get out of your sight for fear we'll have an idea you didn't put into our heads."

"Debby!" Sarah cried in soft protest.

"It's true. You know it is. You want to do everything for us so that people will say what a wonderful Mother you are. You are. You have been, but I want to go somewhere and see something. Oh Mother, I am sorry!" Debby dropped down on the arm of the chair again. But can't you see—"

"I see that your judgment is correct," Ann Houghton's eyes remained fixed upon the needles. "You are far too emotional to be trusted away from home."

"I'm not. I'm not really. It's only you who makes me that way. Gay wants me to go with her. Oh Mother, can't I? I never wanted anything so much."

"You're acting like a child, Deborah. Color burned deeper in Ann Houghton's cheeks. Her voice continued to pronounce words evenly with maintained control but Gay saw that her hands clasped over the knitting in her lap trembled. "I thought you had outgrown tantrums. You're being inconsiderate as well as unparadoxically rude. This can't be very pleasant for Gay."

"Oh, I guess Gay knows. I guess she's seen. You know there's no reason, Mother, except that you're afraid, except that you disappear—"

"Debby, hush! Come with me!" Sarah crossed the room, laid her hand on her sister's arm. Her face was white. Her eyes, wide and startled, met Gay's in fleeting apology, then turned away. "You don't know what you're saying."

"I do know!" Debby wrenched away from Sarah's hand. She stood facing her mother, frightened but defiant. "This is why I wouldn't go to college. I wouldn't let you make sacrifices to send me. You wanted to so that you could keep me tied here, grateful to you, not able to do anything that I wanted. You did that with Sarah and John. Sarah wanted to go abroad with Mrs. Trumbull. You knew she did and that it would have been wonderful for her. But she had to teach here in the high school to repay you for the sacrifices you'd made. You don't want John—"

"Deborah, go to your room. When John comes, I'll ask him to give you a sedative. You're ill. You aren't yourself."

"I am myself!" Debby's voice rose hysterically. "I've been wanting to tell you—!" Defiance suddenly crumpled. Debby's head dropped. Her lips quivered forlornly, like a child's. "Oh, what's the use." She gave a strangled sob and turned toward the door.

The door opened before she reached it. John stood there, smiling, his face glowing with cold above the collar of the bear skin coat, his hat in his hand.

"Hello—" he said. The smile faded as his eyes moved questioningly about the room. "What's the matter?" he asked hesitantly. "What's going on here?"

Debby conquered her sobs. Her head lifted.

"Gay wants to take me back to New York with her," she said, "and Mother won't let me go."

"So you threw a tantrum?" Over Debby's head John's eyes flashed a question at Gay. She tried to smile reassuringly but his expression, concerned and apprehensive, told her that she had not succeeded.

"I think it is wiser for Debby to remain at home," Gay said, but John's eyes, lifted quickly to her son, were frightened, now, heard the shaken note in her voice.

"Wiser!" Debby's voice rose again to a hysterical pitch. She whirled from her mother to face John, standing grave and silent in the doorway. "You know why she won't let me go? You know that she doesn't approve of—"

"Go to your room, Debby," John's voice, cutting through her hysterical outburst, silenced Debby. She went past him out of the room, her head drooping against her defiance crumpling beneath his stern, uncompromising expression. Sarah followed. The door closed.

CHAPTER XIV

"What is it, Mother?" John threw off his coat and walked to the hearth. "What started this? What is it all about?"

"I don't think we need to discuss it," Ann Houghton resumed her knitting. During the interval of silence which had followed the closing of the door, she had regained her composure. Her hands manipulated the amber needles steadily. Only the dull red flush that burned in her cheeks betrayed any inward agitation.

"I don't agree with you," John stood with his back to the fire; his glance turned from his mother to Gay, then back again to Ann Houghton. "I find Debby in hysterics. Sarah crying, you and Gay obviously distressed. I should like to know, if you please, exactly what has happened."

Gay's hands tightened on the back of the chair behind which she stood. "It was my fault," she said, in a low voice.

"Invited Debby to go back to New York with me."

"And you don't want her to go?" John's eyes, grave and concerned, turned again from Gay to his mother.

"I don't think it advisable. Unfortunately, Debby had her heart set on it. She was rude to me and inconsiderate of Gay. I did think she'd outgrown tantrums."

"I should have consulted Mrs. Houghton before I spoke of it to Debby. I'm sorry. It didn't occur to me that any objection would be raised."

"Why do you object, Mother?"

Ann Houghton regarded her son with a studied deliberation which chilled Gay's sympathy, aroused her antagonism. As deeply as memories of her own turbulent adolescence had moved her to sympathy for Debby, she had hated John's mother, too. Now, watching her manner with John, its effect upon him, pity crept into resentment. Debby's tallized into resentment. At accusations had held a measure, at least, of truth. If she had not seen Ann Houghton's gesture in John's room this morning, if she had not had that revealing glimpse of the possessive passion which burned beneath her controlled and reasonable manner with her children, she might now be convinced that only wisdom motivated the decision she had made. But she had seen. She knew.

"You know how difficult Debby has been," Ann Houghton replied, her eyes holding John's troubled glance. "This year, especially, she's just beginning to show a real interest in the courses she's taking at the high school. I'm sure it would be unwise to allow her to make a break now."

"Perhaps you're right," John said doubtfully.

"I offered to have her tutored in the courses she's taking," Gay said, "or send her to a business school. It's quite probable that she might make more rapid progress with a tutor than in a class at the high school here."

She had not meant to give an impression of patronage. But that, she saw, was the effect of her words upon Ann Houghton, upon John.

"That's very generous, Gay," John's mother said, "but quite unnecessary."

John gave a short laugh. "You aren't going to assume full responsibility for all of us, are you?" he asked. "I think we can leave Debby's education to Mother."

"I wasn't thinking of Debby's education," she said lightly. "I thought she would enjoy a visit in New York and that I would enjoy having her there. My motives, as usual, I'm afraid, were almost entirely selfish."

John looked at her, then, questioningly, pleadingly. She smiled and his face cleared.

"She would enjoy it," he said. "She's always been crazy about you. The idea of you before she met you, I suppose, now, after these past three days, she's your slave. I've turned to his mother. Let her go with Gay. Mother. She isn't doing much here."

The distance between them narrowed. Gay's spirits lifted. It was as though he had come to stand beside her and taken her hand in his. "I don't feel that it would be wise," John said. "Debby is impressionable and immature. It would be mistaken kindness, if it will permit me to express myself frankly, Gay, to give her, at this time, a taste of something she can't have permanently. I'm afraid she would be more discontented than ever when she returned."

"Good Lord, Mother," John's voice held a note of irritation. "No body wants to eat fruit cake for every meal, but it's pleasant once in a while."

Ann Houghton smiled faintly. "I think that sort of fruit cake, just now," she said, "would be very bad for Debby. With this notion she has of singing on a radio program or in some place of entertainment, I'm afraid that being in New York with Gay would turn her head completely."

"I shouldn't allow her to do anything of which you would disapprove, Mrs. Houghton."

"I don't question that, but your life is so different from our life here. I'm afraid that the contrast—"

"You know Debby is a chameleon, Mother. She adapts herself easily to any environment."

"That's just why I don't," John broke off, glanced quickly at John at Gay. "I'm not presuming to criticize your mode of living, Gay, but I'm convinced that for Debby just at this time—If it were Sarah, that would be a different matter. She folded her knitting into the bag. "I shouldn't think you would want her for a visit after the scene you've just witnessed. I feel that she, that I owe you an apology."

"No, please, Mrs. Houghton. She was terribly disappointed. It was my fault. I should have consulted you. It's all right. I understand how you feel, but I'm disappointed too."

John made a restless movement on the hearth. "Then it's settled, isn't it? Debby doesn't go back to New York with Gay. Now may we talk of something else? Food, for instance. I'm starved. Did Hilda make chocolate doughnuts? Come out to the kitchen with me, Gay."

Ann Houghton rose from her chair. "If you please, John, I'd like you to go to Debby with me."

"Oh, let her alone. You know how she is when she's had a tantrum. Don't play up to her and she'll get over it."

"I don't think she's well. She's not been herself these past few days."

"You'll turn her into a neurotic if you don't stop coddling her."

"Debby is sensitive in a way which I think I understand better than you."

John turned to Gay in smiling exasperation. "What was the use of my spending four years in medical school and two years interning when mother, by instinct, knows more than I do about my profession."

Again a faint, chilling smile touched Ann Houghton's lips.

"I should like you to go with me, John," she repeated. "Debby is nervously excited. She'll probably need a sedative to put her to sleep. The doughnuts will wait and Gay will excuse you for a few minutes, I'm sure."

"Certainly, Mrs. Houghton."

"Back in a minute, Gay," John's eyes were pleading. His smile was strained.

"Good-night, Gay."

"Good-night, Mrs. Houghton."

John went out of the room with his mother. The door closed. Gay stood leaning against the back of the chair, staring into the fire.

Gay did not turn when the door opened. She remained seated in the chair beside the hearth, looking up at the painting above the mantel.

"Were you asleep?" John asked, coming to the chair. "I'm sorry I've been so long."

draw's parsonage in Dexter, with Rev. A. A. Schoen officiating, in the presence of the immediate family.

A gown of soldier blue crepe with wine color accessories was worn by the bride, and her corsage was of yellow roses and baby's breath. Her attendant was her cousin, Miss Grace Hinchey of Pinckney, who wore a dress of light blue with navy accessories and a corsage of red roses. The groom was attended by his brother, Harold Gross. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Gross is a graduate of the Chelsea high school and has been employed in Hinderer Brothers store for some time. Mr. Gross is a graduate of the Dexter high school and is the chef at Kolb's Restaurant. The young couple left Sunday evening on a motor trip to California. They will make their home in Chelsea.

The bride was honored at two miscellaneous showers during the past week. The first one was given on Wednesday by Miss Dorothy Gross at her home in Dexter. The second one was given by Miss Virginia Gilbert at the home of Mrs. Alfred Weinmann on Friday evening. Mrs. Gross received many lovely gifts.

May-Jaskol

At a ceremony solemnized on Friday evening, October 4 at St. Mary's rectory, Miss Ruby A. May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen G. May, became the bride of Peter Jaskol, with Rev. Fr. Lawrence Dorr officiating.

The bride wore a gown of soldier blue crepe and a corsage of gardenias. Her sister, Mary Myrtle May, as maid of honor, was attired in brown crepe, with Talisman rose buds forming her corsage. Dr. Paul Reichert assisted the groom as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Jaskol, who spent the week-end motoring through southern and western Michigan, will make their home in Chelsea.

Alber-Alexander

Harold Alexander of Chelsea, and Miss Alice Alber of Sharon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Alber, were married on Sunday afternoon, October 6 at 5 o'clock at the Lutheran parsonage, Waukegan, Ohio, with Rev. Paul Radloff officiating. The attendants were Miss Marjorie Alber of Sharon and Francis Hafner of Chelsea. For the present, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander are residing at the home of her parents in Sharon.

Present-Day Vocabulary

Exceeds Shakespeare's

The vocabulary of an educated present-day adult is about four times as large as the vocabulary used by Shakespeare in his writings, according to Dr. Robert H. Seashore, associate professor of psychology at Northwestern University, of Evanston, Ill.

Dr. Seashore and his collaborator, Miss Lois D. Eckerson, who have just completed seven years' work on the standardization of their new vocabulary test, announced that persons taking the test had an average vocabulary of about 60,000 words, exclusive of derivatives, while Shakespeare used only about 15,000 such words in his plays.

"It should be remembered," Dr. Seashore pointed out, "that older writers had a much smaller English language to draw from, and that we know nothing about the number of additional words which they could have used if necessary, or at least understood."

The psychologists selected for their test the third word given on each of the 1,378 pages of the Funk and Wagnalls' unabridged dictionary. After dropping prefixes, suffixes, and abbreviations, they had a list containing 1,320 words. These were made into four equivalent lists, any one of which could be used for testing. A multiple choice of definition is offered the person taking the test, and he is asked to select the correct one.

More than 600 college students have been given the test, and results show that the average person has in his vocabulary about 60,000 common words, 1,500 rare words and about 95,000 words derived from common words in forming other parts of speech, compound words, and so on. This means that the average person would know about 158,000 of the 450,000 items listed in an unabridged dictionary.

"We found that knowledge of a word is ordinarily 'all or none,'" Dr. Seashore reported, "that is, if a person can recognize the word at all, there is a good chance that he can also use it. We also found correlations between this test and other educational tests, indicating that vocabulary is closely related to or an essential part of the complex abilities known as general intelligence and reading comprehension."

Individual vocabularies were found to range from 112,000 to 192,500 words, he said.

Sets Own Damages

Farmer Marvin Foulke informed the motorist whose car had gone through his fence that he "guessed" $5 would pay for repairs. "No, sir," replied the driver, "now fence a farm and I know how much fences cost. And another thing, there ought to be a law against issuing a driver's license to persons who chew tobacco. I was opening the door of my car to spit when this happened." Whereupon the motorist spat again, handed Foulke $10 and drove on.

Ques.—Who was the first person to be chosen as a member of the Hall of Fame for Great Americans?

Ans.—Benjamin Franklin was the first to be chosen as a member of the Hall of Fame for Great Americans in 1900.

Ques.—Are minnows a certain kind of fish, or are they any kind of little fish that haven't just grown up?

Ans.—The term "minnow" correctly speaking is applied only to certain species of small fish. The young of larger fishes, when they are less than 3 1/2 inches in length, are properly called "fry."

Ques.—Is the game of checkers and the game of backgammon the same?

Ans.—No. Checkers is strictly a game of skill, and backgammon is wholly one of chance by throwing dice for the moves. The games are too complicated to be explained fully here. See any encyclopedia or an unabridged dictionary for fuller details.

Ques.—Where in the Bible does it say that "money is the root of all evil"? My Sunday school teacher told that it is.

Ans.—Your Sunday school teacher is right. However, in 1 Timothy 6:10 it says that "the love of money is the root of all evil", which is a different matter.

Ques.—In speaking of a number of certain articles, for instance, is it proper to say "I have forgotten the number" or "I forget the number"?

Ans.—Either form of the expression is correct. However, the meaning of "forget" is slightly different in the two forms of expression. "I have forgotten" means that the fact "I have lost from my mind" while "I forget" means that I am "unable to recall" the fact. Both these uses of "forget" are recognized by all reputable dictionaries.

Ques.—Will Christmas in 1944 fall on Sunday? This will settle an argument.

Ans.—No. Christmas, 1944, will fall on Monday. Because of the intervening leap years Christmas will not fall on Sunday until the year 1948.

Ques.—Is "red tape" just slang, or how did it originate?

Ans.—Red tape is not slang; it is a popular name for official or legal formality and delay. The term had its origin in England in the 18th century and arose from the custom of tying pigeon-holed documents; bills, etc. with red tape. It was perfectly natural that the ordinary man, impatient for action, should ridicule this everlasting tying and untangling of red tape which bound the documents.
