Farmers Should Isolate Newly Purchased Cattle

Lansing—Farmers purchasing cattle, either dairy or beef type, from any source should keep them isolated from their regular herd for at least two weeks, warned Department of Agriculture officials this week.

This is the length of time necessary to find symptoms of shipping fever (Hemorrhagic Septicemia), which all cattle transported, handled in stockyards, exposed to definite changes in temperature or transferred from different sections of the country are apt to be infected with.

"Several warnings have been issued concerning shipping fever and its effects," Dr. C. H. Clark, State Veterinarian, said. "But recent losses suffered by farmers who have mingled purchased cattle immediately with their regular herds makes it necessary to again reiterate the seriousness of this disease."

"It should be remembered," he continued, "that there is no known way of preventing cattle from contracting shipping fever under present methods of sale, which sometimes involves long distance transportation, changes in climate, exposure to infected yards and trucks, but caution in keeping newly purchased cattle separate from other animals for a long enough period will prevent the spread of the disease to other cattle."

State Government Faces Critical Days

for Van Wagoner. Therein lies a peril to the Republican leadership, as future developments may reveal.

Four-Point Program

In outlining his ideas about how a democracy should function, the governor presented a four-point platform: First, "we must do our part in the national defense program."

Because of a previously voiced lack of sympathy for the illegal sit-down strikes of 1937 (declared illegal by the United States supreme court), Van Wagoner may be expected to discourage hastily conceived strikes in Michigan plants where national defense awards are centered.

"It is the duty of state government and every citizen of the state," he said, "to speed this important work and to co-operate with the federal government so that the defense program may proceed unhampered and unobstructed."

He praised labor and management for working more closely together in effective national teamwork.

Second, "we must never lose sight of the real things we are building to defend our traditional constitutional rights."

What are these traditional rights? Freedom of speech, freedom of press, freedom of religion. Or in other words, freedom of a minority to criticize the majority; freedom of the individual to "believe and speak and write" as he chooses without fear.

As the governor expressed it, we should foster an "active spirit of tolerance for the beliefs of those who may happen to disagree with us."

Social Gains

Third objective of the Van Wagoner program is "to preserve and develop the best of the state's labor force."

Labor to organize and to bargain collectively; the right of the farmer to a "fair share of our national income"; the right of all to be "secure from the worst hazards of unemployment, old age and physical disability."

Governor Van Wagoner echoed the determination of President Roosevelt to withstand pressure "of many people" to curtail these newly granted rights on the assertion that they interfere with national defense.

Regardless of defense urgency, Van Wagoner indicates that he favors greater spending by the state government for old age pensions, unemployment compensation, crippled children benefits, state hospitals, and public schools.

The Fitzgerald-Dickinson administration emphasized home rule and a local financial responsibility. Van Wagoner's attitude would suggest a return to the conception of a strong centralized state government, and it may presage the opening wide of legislative purse-strings to the possible embarrassment of the executive office unless badly needed budget reforms are enacted during the 1941 session.

In his message to the legislature last Friday, Van Wagoner recommended more business-like collection and administration of state funds to prevent the re-occurrence of the $30,000,000 deficit left by his Democratic predecessor, Frank Murphy—only he didn't say so in that many words.

Honesty, Efficiency

Fourth objective of the Van Wagoner platform is this: "The job of putting our own house in order."

Put your own interpretation on this sentence. The governor accompanied it with these words: "of seeing to it that our state government is honest and efficient and effective."

To many persons the fourth point has partisan implications, arising out of the federal grand jury indictments.

And yet the logic is irrefutable. The governor linked his fourth point to the general goal of making democracy work, and in a reference, apparently to the dictator's way of regimented efficiency he observed:

"A democratic government in our world of today just can't afford to be inefficient or ineffective or corrupt."

"Election is Over"

As Governor Van Wagoner well said, "The election is over. . . . Our is the sacred duty of working together for the common good."

And therein is a reflection that democracy, if it is truly to be a democracy, must recognize the will of the majority.

Regardless of the Republican victories, the electorate chose Murray D. Van Wagoner to be Governor of Michigan.

Likewise, Franklin D. Roosevelt, although not the choice of a majority in Michigan, was re-elected to serve a third term as President of these United States.

Wendell L. Willkie in his Nov. 11 radio speech summed up the bi-partisan problem in these words: "Let us not, therefore, fall into the partisan error of opposing things just for the sake of opposition. Ours must not be an opposition against—it must be an opposition for—an opposition for a strong America, a productive America. For only the productive can be strong and only the strong can be free."

ANNUAL SCOUT MEETING

Ernest H. Chapelle of Ypsilanti, president of the Washtenaw-Livingston Boy Scout Council, has announced that the annual meeting and election of officers for the Council will be held at the Michigan Union in Ann Arbor on Tuesday evening, January 21. The annual meeting is to be definitely a work conference with a series of five panel discussions beginning at 5:15 p. m. All who attend are invited to participate in one of these five discussions as to ways and means in which scouting procedures in this council may be improved and extended.

All five discussion groups will come together at 6:15 for the dinner. At this time, summary reports will be given from each of the five groups and a brief business meeting will be held. Otto W. Haisley of Ann Arbor, who is chairman of the program, makes the assurance that the entire meeting will be finished at 7:45.

Reservations may be made at the Scout Council office, 324 E. Huron St., Ann Arbor.

Turkeys and Chicks In Farmers' Week Show

More than 200 turkeys and more than a thousand baby chicks will provide the music for one of the most unique "side shows" of the 26th annual Farmers' Week February 3 to 7 at Michigan State College.

The turkeys will be entered for competition in the annual turkey show, while the baby chicks will come from commercial hatcheries as non-competitive exhibits. Even another feature is planned to attract visitors to the ballroom of Demonstration Hall where the poultry will have more room than usual. Baby chicks will be hatching from the shell, visible to the public through a glass front set in an incubator.

These are some of the details already planned by C. G. Carr, P. N. Barrett and J. M. Moore of the college poultry department.

Show birds will arrive Monday, February 3. Also on this first day of Farmers' Week, poultrymen will gather for the annual meeting of the Michigan Allied Poultry Industries organization. Homer I. Huntington, Chicago, manager of the National Poultry and Egg Board, is on the evening banquet program and will speak again during the poultry department Tuesday morning program on "Poultry Profits and the Consumer."

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday the chicks will be hatching out of their shells. Visitors also will see the turkey judging progress to championships.

Turkey Day is Thursday, February 6. Scheduled for talks are S. J. Marsden, Washington, D. C., Federal turkey husbandman, and K. T. Wright and O. E. Shear of the college staff on the subject of poultry production costs, and E. S. Weisner and P. N. Barrett, also of the college staff, on a discussion of pullorum disease tests. Friday at 1:30 p. m., Dr. J. P. Hutton will auction off 50 lots of 25 baby chicks each.

Advice on Success

J. C. Penney, the chain store executive, who commenced with a small shop in Kemmerer, Wyo., in 1902, gave out some advice in an interview recently in Salt Lake City. He said that luck plays no part in success. Intensive training is the key to success. Mr. Penney believes that young men should select a business where advancement is not restricted and then apply themselves wholeheartedly to the job.

Mr. Penney seems to be particularly well qualified to give advice on the subject of success. The venture into which he put a few dollars in Wyoming 38 years ago now grosses $282,000,000 a year. And Mr. Penney has aided thousands of young men in achieving success.

The Michigan National Youth Administration is providing part-time jobs for 146 youth on its school work program operated in 11 schools in Washtenaw county, reports Otto W. Kaye, State NYA Administrator.

Youth who are accepted as eligible for NYA school work by the school authorities are employed on part-time projects for which they are paid a maximum of $6 a month. This amount often means the difference between staying in school and being forced to drop out. A school official appointed to serve without pay, is responsible for the administration of the program in his school. The program provides young people in financial need with a sufficient amount of money to meet such necessary expenses as books, lunches, transportation, and in some instances, clothes. The type of project on which youth are employed is selected with an eye toward providing him with as much work experience as possible in his chosen vocation. Youth are given the opportunity to obtain experience in typing, filing, dictation, bookkeeping, sign and poster painting, woodwork, book repairing, and other occupations which may prove valuable in seeking employment after they have completed their schooling, Kaye said. A total of 16,204 needy students are now benefitting from part-time NYA employment in 818 high schools in the state, and 6,621 in 48 colleges and universities.

GRASS LAKE—Miss Marion Hurdlebrink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurdlebrink, of Munnich, was accidentally shot with a .22 rifle last Saturday afternoon while hunting sparrows. The accident occurred in the Freer barn west of Munnich when she bent over to pick up a stick, the gun being accidentally discharged, the bullet entering just above the heart and lodging in the bone near the shoulder joint. She was taken to Rowe hospital at Stockbridge where she will remain for several days. Monday her condition was reported fairly good. The bullet had not been removed at that time.—News.

Highway Department Reports On Operation

Lansing—The state highway department this week offered tabulations showing its financial operations for the calendar year 1940.

The cash balance at the year end was $3,395,367 which is an increase of approximately $36,000 over the cash balance at the beginning of 1940. G. Donald Kennedy, state highway commissioner, said that the cash balance was increased by gasoline tax receipts, and Federal funds coming to the department near the end of the month.

"We operated throughout the year according to budget and schedule," Kennedy said. "Our cash balance is always large at the end of the month but it has to be that way in order to finance operations until further receipts are available from the gasoline tax."

The department will soon pay $1,275,000 to the counties from gas tax revenues. Other fixed charges also fall due early in January.

1940 receipts to the department totaled $39,404,685. This figure does not include weight tax receipts which are returned directly to the counties. Gas tax for the calendar year totaled $32,315,104, an increase of nearly $2,500,000 over 1939. The Federal government contributed $5,265,683 in regular Federal Aid construction programs and $342,209 in PWA construction.

Expenditures totaled $39,458,990 and included $12,554,782 in fixed charges, $6,040,090 for road and bridge maintenance and operation, and $18,948,972 for construction including right-of-way and engineering.

Fixed expenditures include $6,560,000 in returns to the counties and other local units, $4,082,000 to the highway bond sinking fund, and $915,000 to the City of Detroit in connection with the street widening agreement.

Scenic Views Will Be Opened To The Public

Lansing—Scenic views along Michigan's trunkline highway system now obscured by interfering trees and undergrowth will soon be opened for the enjoyment of motorists, it was announced this week by State Highway Commissioner G. Donald Kennedy.

Kennedy revealed that the highway department, in cooperation with the conservation department, has planned the removal of the offending "curtains" as a part of the winter program for maintenance forces.

In cases where the highway parallels a scenic attraction for some distance, it was suggested to district foresters and engineers that intermittent openings from 400 to 500 feet be opened, but not necessarily removing all trees.

"There are many beautiful views now obstructed from view," Kennedy said, "that can be revealed by this program." He added this was particularly true along the scenic shoreline routes and more generally true in the northern half of the Lower Peninsula and the Upper Peninsula.

Where obstructions to the views are located some distance from the highway rights of way, it was said property owners would be contacted to obtain their cooperation in an effort to accomplish the result desired.

Kennedy said the work would be speeded as rapidly as possible in an endeavor to have the views opened up for next summer's tourist traffic.

The accident statistics for 1940 will not be available for some time. However, it is almost certain that the traffic toll for 1940 will exceed that of 1939 and also that of 1938. Again, more people were killed in traffic accidents than from any other cause.

We talk about national defense and the conservation of life and property, but our biggest problem is the conservation of life and health through accident prevention. When will the American public realize that safe driving is not the other man's business but everyone's responsibility?

Thirty Deaths Recorded During Hunting Season

Lansing—Thirty deaths from gunshot in the 1940 hunting season, the most recorded in the last 12 years, are resulting in renewed emphasis in the conservation department's educational campaign for greater familiarity with firearms through more off-season practice at ranges.

In previous seasons, from 1929 back through 1939, the toll of hunters killed has been 23, 27, 23, 18, 23, 24, 20, 15, 27, and 26. Casualties are not in proportion to the hunting hosts, which now number about 500,000 in each game season and 160,000 in deer season.

Seventeen of the 1940 season's fatalities were in small game hunting. Non-fatal accidents, totaling 45 in small game season and 26 in deer season, were fewer than in 1939.

In 46 of the 1940 accidents, fatal and non-fatal in both seasons, the shotgun was the firearm in use, in 31 cases the weapon was a rifle, and in one instance a hunter was wounded with a pistol, and in other accidents the type of gun involved was not reported. In 27 cases the hunter was shot by his own gun. Twelve of those fatally injured were less than 20 years old.

Visual Defects Cause Headaches

Your eyes do not have to be much out of focus to cause headaches; in fact, minor uncorrected visual defects are more commonly a cause of physical discomfort than are greater uncorrected errors, according to the Better Vision Institute. When eye defects are slight the human mechanism whips up nervous energy in an attempt to correct such defects and disturbs the nervous balance of the body. When the eyes have high refractive errors, the human body ordinarily accepts the low vision instead of expending extraordinary nervous energy in striving to overcome the defective vision. It is because of this tendency of the human body to clear up vision blurred by minor defects that many persons do not realize their eyes need attention until they receive warning signals of recurrent headaches.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Saturday was a great day for Norman Krantz, Carlton Christwell, John Weintitz, Joe Hale, Arthur Paul, Tom Smith, Dean Scott and Cameron Colquhoun. These Boy Scouts were taken to the Mill Lake Camp on the Waterloo Project where they cooked their dinner over an open fire in the fireplace.

After dinner, tests were passed in tracking. Then, after cleaning and straightening the contents of the building so as to leave everything as it was found, like all good Scouts do, they started their hike across country back to their homes in Chelsea.

This hike was planned by their Scoutmaster, Lowell Davidson, and conducted by Assistant Scoutmaster, Dudley Foster, and Al Johnson.

The Chelsea Boy Scout Troop has recently been reorganized under Scoutmaster Lowell Davidson and Assistant Scoutmasters Dudley Foster and Charles Bahnmiller, with Bob Perkins as Scribe. The troop now consists of four patrols.

The Owl Patrol, with Dick Bahnmiller as Patrol Leader; Leroy May, Color Guard; Norman Krantz, Assistant Patrol Leader; Jimmie Gaken, Treasurer; and Bob Breitenwischer.

The Beaver Patrol, with Carlton Christwell as Patrol Leader; Bob Bycraft, Assistant Patrol Leader; John Weintitz, Treasurer; and Jack Christwell, American Flag Bearer.

The Wolverines, with Joe Hale as Patrol Leader; Bob Eaton, Assistant Patrol Leader; Arthur Paul, Treasurer; and Tom Smith, Scout Flag Bearer.

The Wolf Patrol, with Marion Dietle as Patrol Leader; Edwin Lantis, Assistant Patrol Leader; Dean Scott, Treasurer; and Cameron Colquhoun, Color Guard.

With more hikes being planned and a contest starting next week, along with other regular Scout activities, this promises to be a very interesting and progressive year for Troop 25, of Chelsea.

Chelsea Loses Close Game To Saline Hi

By Dwight Gadd

The local lads lost a tough one on Tuesday night to Saline by a score of 26 to 25. It was a thrilling nip and tuck game, with one side going ahead and then the other.

In the first quarter Saline started right to work by sinking two field goals before the local lads woke up. Then Chelsea popped a couple also. Saline added a couple more and at the quarter the score stood 8 to 4 in the visitors' favor.

The hometowners looked a little better in the second quarter and began to match Saline basket for basket. The score at half-time read 16 to 12, with Saline still clinging to that lead.

Chelsea came back with a bang in the third quarter to score 11 points to Saline's 5 and to also take the lead. The home team really looked hot that period. The score stood 28 to 21 at the end of the third period in the hometowners' favor.

The fourth quarter was a knock-down drag-out affair, with both sides trying to take the lead and then freezing the ball. Saline got 5 points that period and the best Chelsea could do was 2 points.

The final whistle blew with the ball in the hands of the Chelsea boys and it might have been a different story if there would have been a couple of more seconds to play.

Jr. Miller led the Chelsea attack with 10 points, while Schaeffer led the visitors with 11 points.

The final score was 26 to 25. The Reserves lost their game by the tune of 22 to 9. They were a little short on one end compared to the Saline bunch though.

The teams travel to Belleville this coming Friday night (tomorrow) and they would appreciate as large an attendance as can get there. On Tuesday night they go to Grass Lake and seeing as that's not so far away let's all who can, go and support the team.

Edited By The PUPILS OF THE CHELSEA PUBLIC SCHOOL

Editorial

Anyone who drives through a fine timbered area of our north woods is confronted by many neat road signs telling him "Everybody loses when timber burns." We all believe this to be true, but in spite of a well organized conservation department we continue to burn too much timber every year. The causes are many and investigation shows most of the fires to be avoidable.

So it is in school attendance and tardiness. "Everybody loses when absence occurs." Here too, most of the causes are avoidable. In general, sickness, accident and allied causes are accepted as unavoidable. In these cases every opportunity is given to make up the work missed. Teachers do not have time to repeat lessons covered just because a pupil chooses to go to Ann Arbor or Jackson on a shopping tour on school time. Thus, in these cases, the pupil loses the opportunity afforded those who are in school. The parents are not getting their tax-dollars worth when their children are absent for reasons which the school authorities and the majority of taxpayers consider unreasonable. If the pupil is absent there is no tax refund as much of the instruction is done in the group and it costs as much to instruct one as it does twenty pupils. Again, the teacher loses in efficiency because he finds it difficult to teach a pupil who gets behind in his work. Thus the pupils who are regular in attendance do not receive the best from a teacher who has to contend with unexcused absences. Concerning tardiness due to carelessness on the part of the pupil about all that need be said is that he is one who loses most. Surely he is putting a label on himself which business and industry in later years will not accept. He becomes a nuisance, not only to himself but to the other pupils because he upsets the routine of a well ordered room by being tardy. Then too, a tardy pupil no doubt had a poor send-off at home and is not in a frame of mind conducive to learning and hence gets a bad start for the day. Finally, there is always a principal to contend with and his required records of attendance and tardiness gets in some pupils' hair.

Since a high percent of the absence and tardiness is based on thin reasons and "Everybody loses when absence occurs," why not make the best of the educational opportunities afforded the boys and girls of Chelsea by being in school on time?

Of all the questions on which high school students are given advice, I think there is one that is sadly neglected. This is the all important question of money, how to obtain it and most of all, how to take care of it after you do get it.

When we were somewhat younger, money (in our opinion, then) could be counted in figures no higher than ten was no problem at all. It was given to us, or spent on us, and we never gave it a thought. Then, suddenly, we were given money to use, and left on our own. No explanation as to the consequences if we spent it unwisely. If we didn't put our money to the best use, we heard about it from our parents, but if we did take care of it, then nothing was said.

Perhaps, older pupils don't think that "money" money problems are serious, but to us they seem that way. Booth Tarkenton, in his "Seventeen" magazine, writes that while we make our money, we don't make our money right. He is right. We are really in a conundrum. Perhaps this is an older person's opinion, but to us, it is real. Just as real as the fact that we are facing our parents, as they are facing our parents.

In this "high-powered age" of our cars, movies, and all the other temptations facing youth, the same problem does not face youth that did 20 or 30 years ago. But, although they are not the same problems, they must be handled in much the same way they were then. Youth today should be encouraged when they're right and not given sympathy, but more encouragement when they're wrong. Just as they were years ago.

Money is but one of the seemingly important issues to high school people today. There are others, equally important, and must be treated in that way.

When one considers the progress made by the American people socially in the last few years, he realizes all the money spent on this type of thing was well spent, and that with the present set-up for social training, the coming generation should be even better than the present one.

Band and Orchestra

The band and orchestra, now that they have received most of their new music, have been working steadily and earnestly to learn it, for their coming concert which will be on January 28.

On Friday, December 13, a representative from the firm from which the new band uniforms were purchased returned to check up on the uniforms to see if they fitted properly. Quite a number of the uniforms were found to be misfits and have been returned for alterations.

The swing band has been re-organized and now has an addition of the "Freshmen Five" who won second place in the Amateur Hour.

Don't forget to save January 28 for the band concert.

Second Grade

Second Grade is glad to be back in school. Everyone had a nice holiday but we like our work and are ready to start out with 1941.

We now number 34. Gilbert Burrows came from Lansing to join us. Deborah Walker and George Raviler are entertaining the flu. We hope they are able to return soon.

This month we are learning about the Eskimos. Some of us are planning to build an igloo.

Seventh Grade

Joan Shutes and Leroy May, December 15-20.

For Christmas, we had an afternoon party at which ice cream and cake were served. We borrowed a tree from Mrs. Beal, which Charles Slane, George Slane, Marion Dietle, Laverne Holbrook, and Robert Blantonwischer trimmed. The program was in the nature of an "amateur hour." Nearly everyone in the room did something to help entertain. We exchanged gifts, and everyone had a nice present. We also had a guest, an ex-classmate, Clifford Myers.

The seventh grade girls helped sing in the Thursday evening program of Christmas music.

Laverne Holbrook made himself a very comical hat of evergreen trimmings. He also suggested much of the news.

The quotation for the week was from Lincoln: "Always I have plucked a thistle and planted a flower where I thought a flower would grow."

We hope that everyone had a very Merry Christmas and a Very Happy New Year.

(January 2-3)

Editors: Jane Downer and Charles Slane.

We have three new calendars—two from the bank and one from Smith and Weber.

We are substituting spelling for reading this week, as our Current Events didn't come. By doing this, we can cover a whole week's work in spelling, and not get behind. In geography, we are making an illustrated product map. Each pupil is supposed to bring pictures of one type of product. Then we will put them on the map. In penmanship, we are practicing Arabic numbers. In English, we are trying to finish our "Exploring Today" books.

Our quotation for the week was original with Shakespeare: "Give to a gracious message a host of tongues, let ill tidings tell themselves."

During vacation Leroy May visited in Rockford, Ohio; Donna Perkins in Lansing; John Wellnitz in Adrian; Eldore Carlson in Ypsilanti; Walter Freysinger in Dearborn; Audrey White in Kankakee, Ill.; Joan Shutes in Jackson; Laverne Holbrook in Jackson and Detroit; and Tom Smith in Lincoln Park.

Eighth Grade

The results of the music aptitude tests have been posted, and at least ten people from the 8th grade received scores of 90 or above. Only one person had a perfect score. He was Robert Breitenwischer from the 4th grade. Mr. Dunstan says that many of these people will be invited to take up an instrument for band or orchestra, because anyone having natural musical ability should by all means make use of it.

The new safety poster for this school stresses the importance of keeping out of the way of cars which are turning corners. The idea behind the poster is that looking both ways while watching for turning cars.

Antipathy to Horse Meat

Dates to Pagan Rituals

Humanitarian reasons keep many from taking any animal foods. Others, considering meat merely "second-hand vegetables," prefer to take their nutriment "direct." And many are convinced that a fruit, vegetable, nut and grain diet is really scientifically superior. But why do Americans in general devour such large quantities of meat from cows, lambs, swine and other animals? Yet shrink from eating horses? Why do they shudder at the horse-meat butcher shops of France?

"So far as natural qualities go, horsemeat is little if at all inferior to beef," declare Smithsonian Institute investigators. "Various races have eaten it habitually. It formed the principal food of Huns and Mongols. Tartars also ate it."

"These scientists find that 'the feeling of repugnance' arose in a curious way," and offer an explanation.

"Before Europe's conversion to Christianity, horsemeat was much eaten at religious festivals held in honor of old pagan gods. Because of associations with heathenism, early Christian missionaries forbade its use as 'meat offered to idols.' Hence people gradually came to feel that there must be something repulsive in horse-meat itself, and many still have this feeling without in the least knowing why."

Diamonds Stud Beaches

In South Africa Colony

The sandy shore of South West Africa is literally studded with diamonds. Along the 850-mile coast, for 30 to 80 miles back from the Atlantic, there is a dreary waste of undulating sand, and shifting dunes, but this miniature coastal Sahara is the country's jewel box.

Near here, in 1902, German raiders and workmen discovered diamonds. The gems are supposed to have been washed up by the sea. Dredges also bring them up off shore.

In 1934 these sands gave up $5,710,500 in diamonds; in 1935 more than twice that sum; in 1936 almost three times the 1934 amount.

These otherwise barren beaches yield about one-fifth of the world's annual supply. The gems are small but brilliant and of good quality. Half the country's revenue is paid by the diamond output.

The sand hills from which the jewels are "mined" vary in height from 30 to 100 feet along the coast, and rise to 300 and 400 feet three miles inland. Those protected with a sparse growth of vegetation do not shift, but others often move as much as five feet on a stormy day.

Age, Not Youth, Serves

So this is the much-heralded age of youth, is it? This statement may be correct, but back in Washington, D. C., it is not youth that is serving the country, but graybeards, who have and are continuing to shape the destinies of our nation, meaning our senators and representatives in congress. About 40 members of congress are under 40—not a single member of the cabinet is under 40 and probably none under 40—and yet these oldsters who have about 10 years of activity left govern and guide half of our people who have 30 to 60 years of activity left. As one writer puts it: it might be less costly to pension members of congress after a term or two. This would eliminate their endless struggle and scheming for reelection. Surely their thoughts and their worries are not about what sort of a world this will be after 1960.

Less Money As Senator

Senator Josh Lee thinks he is more useful to the country in his job as senator, which pays $10,000, so he turned down a $12,000-a-year life-time judgeship.

German Airforce Aids Italy in Attacks Upon British Forces in Mediterranean; Munitions Production and Shipbuilding Are Vital Spots in U. S. Defense Work

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

INVASION:

England Cautious

In contrast to the cheerful, bombless Christmas holiday, London was glum the first days of the New Year. The Nazi airforce had "concocted" the City of London, that district in the central section of the metropolis where financial houses are located.

Thousands of incendiary bombs were dropped. Hundreds of roaring fires were out of control at the same time. The losses were estimated in millions of pounds and the dead could not be counted. Three days later a man wandering into the section asked a policeman the way to Paternoster Row, famous for centuries for its bookshops. The bobby replied: "There is no Paternoster Row, sir."

Mostly the British feared an attack through Ireland. Earlier warnings that the Axis thrust into the Balkans might only be a winter sortie and not a full-dress attack, were being taken seriously.

The actions there were being watched with interest. Germany moved 300,000 troops through Hungary and into Rumania. The Germans were posted along the border of Bulgaria where it was freely announced that as soon as they were in position and the time was ripe, an advance would be made on Salonika, Greece.

Bulgaria was belligerent in talk, but made no move to mobilize for defense or call upon Turkey and Russia for aid. Russia, however, countered the action by lining the border of Rumania with Soviet divisions. The Germans abruptly shifted a part of their force to sit opposite the line.

It looked like the real thing. But experts didn't believe it. They believed Hitler was merely protecting his rear in the Balkans in preparation for the attack on England, much as he had protected his flanks when he took Norway before the drive into France.

Later came reports that German air squadrons were proceeding to Italy to aid Mussolini's fliers in attacks upon British bases in Libya, and on the British fleet in the Mediterranean. It was also believed that the Germans might be used in Italy's campaign against the Greeks now raging in Albania.

Neutral Eire

Ireland is the weak point in the British defense and its ports are no further from Germany than were the ports of Norway. Like Norway, too it has long stretches of unprotected coastline. During January and February, conditions will be favorable for a German attack—the tides will be small, the nights long and the fogs thick to cover embarkation of troops.

It is estimated Hitler must establish a bridgehead of at least 50,000 troops, not counting losses, to start an invasion. Losses in such an operation would have to start off with 200,000 troops for the landing alone. If Britain held bases in Eire, the loss estimate would be even greater, and even then the movement might not be successful. But Ireland remains neutral and aloof.

Otherwise on the war front: In Libya, fighting now on Italian territory, the British Egyptian army said it could take the important harbor of Bardia whenever it chose.

Manila reported that it had learned on good authority that 12 German raiders were being armed and supplied in Japanese harbors. A mysterious raider, which ran up the Japanese flag but which Australians said was German, fired on the tiny island of Nauru, a former German possession in the Pacific.

DEFENSE:

Full Speed Ahead

As soon as President Roosevelt's "Big Four"—Knudsen, Hillman, Stimson and Knox—can get industrial plants working at capacity turning out munitions, look for an acceleration of ship building in cargo carrier classes. Washington is beginning to be alarmed at a quiet survey which showed that if Britain should fall, the Axis powers would have ship building capacities in conquered nations six times larger than U. S. capacity.

First note on this line was sounded by Republican Rep. Hamilton Fish from the President's own N. Y. district. Representative Fish has been a critic of the administration since 1932. In turn he has plenty of critics of his own and ran into a fury of angry words when he went calling on dictators in Europe in the summer of 1939, while an official delegate of congress to the Inter-parliamentary Congress in Norway.

WILLIAM RHODES DAVIS, international oil operator who, according to Verne Marshall, head of the recently organized "No Foreign War" committee, was leader of a Nazi peace plan naming President Roosevelt as arbiter in 1939.

But Fish's warning on ship building has not been taken lightly. If a successful Axis would take advantage of such ship-building capacities, they could control the high seas within a short time, even if the American two-ocean navy already were sailing the briny deep.

500 Planes a Day?

Another plan which will not be cast aside lightly was presented by pint-sized Walter Reuther, manager of the General Motors division of the C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers. Presentation to President Roosevelt actually was by Philip Murray, C. I. O. chieftain, but the plan was Reuther's.

The proposal calls for activating 554,000 feet of existing automobile plants space in the Detroit area, which once belonged to such forgotten firms as Hupmobile and Graham-Paige. Reuther and Murray also maintained that there are thousands of skilled workers in the same area still waiting for jobs. Cited were lay-offs recently by Fisher Body, Chevrolet and Termosted.

Blue prints and tables submitted with the proposal were based on production of 150,000 planes a year, six months after it was put into effect. Only light craft and training planes would be made. The manufacture of heavy craft and bombers would be retained by the present aircraft industry.

The President handed the data to his Big Four. But even before that it had been examined privately by Undersecretary of War Patterson, who is charged with mobilization of industry. He was much impressed. It will be opposed by the aircraft industry.

There were indications too that the drive soon will be put in force to speed up defense by compelling plants manufacturing "non-essentials" to forego their schedules and "accept" war department orders.

THE ARMY:

More Men Called

During the latter half of January more thousands of young men will be called for a year's army training, under the selective service law. The first call was in December and in virtually every one of the nation's 8,600 draft boards the quota was filled by youths who volunteered. In most local areas, however, the January call will, for the first time, take men who do not volunteer.

Altus G. Moore of Washington, D. C., is one man who advanced from private to major when the call came. He is a private in the capital police force. Called to duty, he took up his assignment as a reserve officer, major of infantry.

In St. Louis, Sergt. William Schneider was called into service with the Missouri National Guard. On the first day he was in camp he was tapped on the shoulder by an officer who demanded a salute. The officer was Lieut. William Schneider Jr., his son, just commissioned in the air corps.

Changing Hands

FATEFUL YEAR:

President Warns

The seventeenth month of the war opened against a sombre background. The year 1941 dawned with a general admission that before its close may come the decisive test, not only of the war, but also the American economic system.

America was given a grave report by President Roosevelt in a speech that took the joy out of New Year's celebrations. He said that the danger to the nation is the greatest since Jamestown and Plymouth rocks. He said if Great Britain was defeated the Axis powers would control Europe, Africa, Australasia and the high seas. He said that a victorious Axis would not hesitate to occupy South America and the United States would be lying at the point of a gun. He said that already secret agents of these powers are operating in the Americas.

Before the President spoke, he had received uninvited advice from two sources. German and Italian dispatches said that if the President promised aid to Britain by permitting use of Irish ports by American merchantmen—or giving Britain stranded German merchantships in U. S. harbors it would be viewed as intervention in the war. From a bloc of U. S. senators, among them Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.), came warnings that the President originate a movement for a "negotiated" peace.

He pledged that he would do everything in his power to keep the United States out of the war, declared there was not even the remotest thought of sending troops to Europe, called for defense production to the utmost, hinted it may be necessary to use machinery now engaged in manufacture of luxury goods to turn out armament, and forecast that the Axis powers would not win the war.

He pledged that he would do everything in his power to keep the United States out of the war, declared there was not even the remotest thought of sending troops to Europe, called for defense production to the utmost, hinted it may be necessary to use machinery now engaged in manufacture of luxury goods to turn out armament, and forecast that the Axis powers would not win the war.

Reaction

Throughout the United States the speech was received with pledges of support on all sides, even from personal and political enemies of Mr. Roosevelt like former Gov. Alfred Smith, former Gov. Alf Landon, Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.); Senator Austin (R., Maine).

But there was no enthusiasm among the totalitarian powers. Berlin was silent for 48 hours during which time Adolf Hitler went into seclusion and studied the document. Der Fuehrer then replied indirectly. He spoke to his army, not mentioning the name Roosevelt. But he promised his army a victory in 1941. He said God was on the side of Germany and "would not abandon those who were determined with courageous heart to help themselves."

Premier Mussolini was blunter. His mouthpiece, Virginia Gayda, said America already was in the war.

NAMES

... in the news

Quoted—The Overseas Press Club in New York consists of newsmen who are or have been foreign correspondents for U. S. newspapers in the past. There are few active members abroad now, most are back home. The club dropped from its rolls George Sylvester Viereck, saying it objected to his bringing "bunheads and gestapo agents" to its meetings. Viereck, an American, is registered with the state department as the $500-a-month correspondent for a Munich newspaper.

Death—Daniel Frohman, 69, one of America's greatest theatrical producers, died in New York. Agnes Ayres, 42, star of the silent movies and leading lady to Rudolph Valentino, died in Hollywood.

Job—Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., 27, was graduated by the University of Virginia last June. Now he has a job as a lawyer with the New York firm of Wright, Gordon, Zachary and Parlin. He and five others asked for jobs through the firm's employment department. All were hired.

Sued—Gloria Jean, the 12-year-old film star, has been sued for $335,000. The action was brought against the child and her parents by a theatrical agent who said he "discovered" her and by terms of a contract is entitled to 10 per cent of her earnings.

Plant Colchicum in Fall For Spring Landscape

For a bit of springtime landscape in early fall, plant colchicum. It is probable that when you go to buy them under this name they may not be obtainable, since most dealers, other than the specialists, prefer to call these plants meadow saffron. You might find them incorrectly called autumn crocus, since they bear a striking resemblance to the crocus of spring. Incidentally, the crocus is not in the same family with the saffrons despite the connection in the minds of gardeners.

Meadow saffron should be planted at least two inches under the soil, the corms resting on a cushion of sand. Rapid planting is accomplished by pushing a dibber into the soil to a depth of four or five inches, rounding out a cone-shaped depression. Place a small quantity of sand in this depression and on top of it rest the meadow saffron corm, which you may prefer to call a bulb. Then fill up the depression with good garden loam free of animal fertilizer. Small quantities of complete fertilizer may be scattered on the loose topsoil and raked in.

Several weeks after the corms have been planted, spindly stems will emerge from the soil. These will be topped with beautiful flowers. No foliage whatever will appear this fall. Next spring, however, a sizable amount of leaves will develop. They will die before hot summer weather arrives. Toward the end of August the spindly stems will again emerge, and will again be topped with flowers. Peculiarly, colchicum do not bear foliage and flowers at one and the same time.

Utopia on Earth Possible, Tennessee Man Claims

Utopia for the world—or at least for the United States—is a plan offered by a man in Nashville, Tenn., by the name of W. W. Phillips. His plan is to devalue the dollar 80 per cent, when our gold stock reaches $20,000,000,000, thus making $100,000,000,000 out of $20,000,000,000. The profit on this transaction would be $80,000,000,000 for the federal government. With that money the public debt of $45,000,000,000 could be paid off and $20,000,000,000 should be given to European countries. But in return the Europeans should scrap their navies and armies and at last let peace on earth reign. After liquidating the public debt and putting an end to wars on earth, the government would still have left $15,000,000,000, plus any trading amount the treasury might have on hand prior to devaluation. With that much cash on hand, taxes could be abolished in the good old United States of America and the President then in office could retire in a blaze of glory as the greatest budget-balancer of all times, and the greatest peacemaker since the Galilean walked the earth.

Character Reading by Furniture

Give him a peek at the furnishings of your home and William K. Drews will read you like a book. For 20 years that has been part of his business as one of the country's leading authorities on fireproof insurance. "Homes are quickly revealing," he said, "all taste being 75 per cent inherited, 15 per cent subconscious and only 10 per cent conscious, so it is easy to make out the race, habits and characteristics of almost any homemaker. A neat, extensive array of hats and shoes in a wardrobe closet means, as a rule, that husband and wife sleep in twin beds and that she is the family boss. The Irish usually prefer energetic expression in art, while Jewish taste is essentially intellectual and Scottish restful. Latin races incline toward simplified things and Germans toward ornamentation." And here is a practical tip he gives women about mirrors. He says that mirrors are not all alike and that the quality of the mercury backing lends them great variety. "Be certain you've got one that suits you," he says.

Tourists Build Mexican Highways

American tourists in Mexico last year spent $15,000,000, of which half a million went to the government in the form of gasoline taxes, the proceeds of which are used exclusively for road building.

Since 1932, American tourists, through payment of this tax, have aided in the construction and maintenance of 5,500 miles of paved and all-weather highways.

The American motorist in Mexico travels along extensive highways cut through mountains and jungles by thousands of sturdy Mexican workmen.

Road maps, itineraries and helpful hints are supplied free by two national non-profit institutions in Mexico City: the Pemex Travel club and the Mexican Automobile association. These organizations are now answering, with no delay, more than 800 inquiries received daily.

Famous Morgan Breed

"Justin Morgan," whose statue stands on a farm near Middlebury, Vt., holds the unique distinction of being the only horse that created and permanently fixed a new type of animal, the famous Morgan breed. How his qualities have remained predominant in his descendants for the past 140 years is one of the unsolved mysteries of the horse-breeding world.

Yeast Dough Kneaded
Whether a yeast dough is kneaded with palms, knuckles, or the "heel" of the hand, or mixed in a dough mixer or mixing machine, matters little. What matters—and much—is that it be kneaded enough to make it the excellent gas retaining structure a good dough made from wheat flour should be. Dough properly and sufficiently kneaded will be smooth and resilient. It is not sticky, although it may be quite soft. A general rule says that the dough is kneaded enough when it does not stick to the palm if the hand is held on the surface of the dough during a count of thirty.

New Type Deafness
A new type of deafness—"motor ear"—is affecting people of the United States. "Motor ear" is an affliction commonly found today among people who make a habit of driving automobiles, with the left window rolled down, according to Dr. A. C. Hardy of Kirksville, Mo., who said: "The left ear, in such cases, is affected by wind, noises and impurities, and partial deafness results."

Student Pilots Safer
A sober driver, who drives 60 miles an hour at night, is 20 per cent more likely to be fatally injured than student pilots at army and navy flying schools, according to authorities.

Columbus Saw Bahamas First
The Old world's first contact with the Western hemisphere occurred in the Bahamas, for it was on October 12, 1492, that Columbus, after a terrifying voyage of 70 days, saw the first land in the New World. It was the island of Guanahani, one of the Bahamas, which the explorer renamed San Salvador. The landfall of Columbus is now known as Watling's Island.

On October 15 Columbus took possession in the name of the king of Spain of the island he called Santa Maria de la Concepcion, now called Rum Cay, and on the same day he visited another island which he called Fernadina, known now as Long Island. A few days later he named another island Isabella after the queen of Spain. This island is today known as Crooked Island.
