To Register Saturday

National Commander Milo J. Warner, of the American Legion, has issued a proclamation designating February 22 as a very significant day for Legionnaires to register for potential national emergency services. Mr. Warner has extended the invitation for all veterans to register who desire to do so.

Registration Day Proclamation
Whereas, by action of the 1940 National Convention and the National Executive Committee of The American Legion, a complete indexing and classifying of all members of The American Legion, primarily, and of World War veterans generally, is ordered as a means of listing individual qualifications for voluntary national defense service in the event of the onset of a national emergency.

Whereas, the preparation of the material and culmination of the plans for such organization-wide American Legion and veteran registration causes a day in the month of February, 1941, to be most suitable for such registration purposes; and

Whereas, no more appropriate day for the undertaking of such a patriotic enterprise on the part of The American Legion can be conceived than that of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington, on February 22, 1941;

I, Milo J. Warner, national commander of The American Legion, do hereby urge that the 11,700 Posts of The American Legion do publicize and utilize the day of February 22, 1941, as American Legion Registration Day and attempt during the course of that day to complete the questionnaire registration forms, prepared by the national organization of The American Legion, for all their membership and for such other World War veterans who may desire to participate in such registration.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of The American Legion to be affixed.

Done at the City of Indianapolis, this 13th day of January, in the year of our Lord, nineteen hundred and forty-one.

Milo J. Warner.

Local World War veterans are requested to register on Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoons at Miller Bros. barber shop.

Retrieving a Letter

What would you do if you had mailed a letter and it was a matter of life or death that you intercept that letter before it reaches its destination? Most persons wouldn't know. But that letter can be intercepted if there is time. One simply goes to the post office, fills out a certain form, pays for a wire which is sent to the post office destination of the letter, and in a few days a notice arrives informing you to call at local headquarters for your letter.

win, as they did upon the older issues. It is, after all, only a question of time.

Why is it, that when we think of saving or cutting taxes, we invariably start with crippled children or educational institutions or the remedial and cultural agencies of life? We say we think these are the important functions of life. Why not support them generously?

Of course, many persons can afford to buy their own books; and a few can afford to buy all the books they can profitably read. But the mass of our people will be educationally and spiritually impoverished without the operation of an efficient, public-supported library. And none of us are able to purchase and keep on hand all the reference material which a public library carries or can supply on every conceivable subject.

Let us, then, give wide public support to this public institution, and let us see to it that public money is made available for its larger development.

There are no institutions in any community that pay richer dividends than our public schools and our libraries.

(Signed) Ray W. Barber.

Surveys by teachers, and other studies in our school reveal that the amount of reading on the part of our youth is increasing. Many children are reading a great deal the year around. Perhaps more of our youth should have the reading habit but this can become a reality only by increasing the possibilities for reading. The organization of the Chelsea Public Library has been an important step in this direction and we at the school hope the library will continue to grow.

Education consists of more than learning the fundamentals. It does not cease when the youth leaves the school at night or with the granting of a diploma. When we compare a person's life span with the length of time spent in school we find very little comparison (a little over 2 per cent of a high school graduate's whole life is actually spent in school). But the habits, likes and dislikes that are formed during this flexible period determine to a large extent the kind of person one will be later on. If a love for reading can be developed in a boy or girl their education need not cease with the diploma. They can go much farther than any teacher could possibly take them. They will carry through life a treasure that money cannot buy. The opportunities for creating this love for reading should be increased instead of decreased. The Chelsea Public Library has been de-ing a good job and again let us hope the people will permit it to continue and to expand.

TECUMSEH — In a communication to local officials from the acting commissioner of U. S. public buildings and grounds, at the request of Senator Prentiss M. An appropriation of some $70,000 for the building of a new postoffice here, on a site south of the Hammel building on Pearl street, has been approved. — Herald.

NORTHVILLE — Considerable damage has been caused along the east and north shores of Walled Lake during the past few days by ice expansion. The shoving ice has already uprooted a number of trees, pushed over a 60-foot flagpole and splintered several boat landings. Embankments along the north shore have been pushed back, and ice is piling up on the terraces. The ice usually cracks in many places at some distance from shore at this time of year, and as these fissures again freeze they force a general expansion of the frozen surface. — Record.

Method for Filing Farm Income Tax Explained

More farmers than usual in Michigan will be filing federal income tax reports for 1940 because farm income levels rose during the year and because the minimums for married and for single persons were lowered by the federal government.

As an aid in filing reports, some practical help has been prepared by E. B. Hill, head of the Michigan State College farm management department. He lists 36 typical questions and provides the answers. Information obtained from the office of the deputy collector of internal revenue at Lansing.

Copies of these questions and answers are available for reference in all offices in the state of county agricultural agents and Smith-Hughes agricultural teachers. Filing time deadline is March 15.

Farmers who have been using the Michigan farm account books will have a far easier time answering necessary questions in filing reports and paying taxes, advises Professor Hill. The books simplify the tabulation of information required by the federal government.

Some of the questions answered in the advice include: problems of income from rented land; of partnership farming; of listing family or dependent minor labor; of farm work details; of estimating depreciation and handling time sales of crops and livestock.

Professor Hill also lists offices of internal revenue deputy collectors located in Ann Arbor, Battle Creek, Benton Harbor, Flint, Grand Rapids, Houghton, Iron Mountain, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Lansing, Marquette, Muskegon, Petoskey, Port Huron, Pontiac and Saginaw. With the address of each office he names the counties included in the office's territory.

Farmers should first obtain the proper forms by writing to the collector of Internal Revenue at Detroit or by calling at one of the deputy collectors' offices. Forms may be obtained from some banks and post offices. Quite complete instructions accompany the blank forms. Additional aid may be obtained from the collectors' offices.

Repeatedly I have warned motorists about the hazards of slippery roads, fog, sleet, and snow. These conditions prevail again. At this time of the year, we are sometimes caught rather unexpectedly in bad driving weather. A day that starts with sunshine and that, from all appearances, should be an ideal day for driving can suddenly become one of sleet and snow.

icy roads require careful driving. Chains give added protection. They are not a positive guaranty that you will not skid, but tests have shown that they do help to stop a car in a shorter space.

It's Smart to Drive Carefully.

U. S. A. Way

A little gem entitled "What's RIGHT With AMERICA" reveals an interesting comparison. It shows that the American worker still has the best opportunities of a high standard of living. "Today, the average American workman works 353 hours to pay for an automobile. The English workman has to work 3,522 hours. The German workman, 5,054 hours. The French workman, 7,295 hours. A Chinese workman would have to work all of his life and still he couldn't finish his installment payments."

WHAT A TREE!

Frank, Stephen and Vincent Toth recently cut down a poplar tree on the E. J. Foster farm, two miles south of Sylvan Center, that was 5 ft. 3 inches in diameter and 162 feet in height. It is believed this was one of the largest trees in this vicinity.

Do you have to
"TUCK YOUR CAR IN"

Not if it's One of these Four New Additions to the BUICK SPECIAL Line that Compact Automobile
Blings into Fewer Bumper-to-Bumper Inches

HERE-of late the modern automobile has been giving a pretty good imitation of a man getting up in the morning.

It has stretched and s-t-r-e-t-c-h-e-d—until today you almost have to have a shoehorn to get a car of any size tucked away in the family garage.

We thought something ought to be done about that.

So today in Buick dealers' showrooms you'll see four new models, additions to the 1941 Buick SPECIAL line.

They are typical Buicks on every count—steady, tireless travelers with a big 115-hp. Buick FIREBALL straight-eight-under their bonnets.

But by the simple step of compacting all this ability, goodness and value on a 118-inch wheelbase, we've trimmed inches off the over-all length—and dollars off the cost.

We're passing those dollar savings on to you, which makes three reasons for going to see these honeys now: You'll go for their ability—your wife will go for trim size and easy handling—and both will stand up and cheer for the easily-reachable price.

P. H. RIEMENSCHNEIDER
Phillip H. Riemschneider died on Thursday, February 13, at his farm home in Sylvan township.

A native of Hessen, Germany, he was born Feb. 20, 1857, the son of John and Elizabeth (Gippert) Riemschneider. He came to the United States when four years of age and for 80 years had resided in Sylvan township. He was married 54 years ago to Lydia Kruse, who survives him.

Mr. Riemschneider was an active member of Salem Grove Methodist church for 66 years. He was a charter member of Cavanaugh Lake Grange and of the Order of Gleaners; a member of Western Washtenaw Farmers' club, and for 30 years was treasurer of Riemschneider school, District No. 2, Sylvan.

When we first started in business, we determined to become the "prescription store" of Chelsea. That we have made our mark is best proven by the number of prescriptions we have compounded during our years of service to the community. Throughout those years, we maintained strict adherence to the ethics of pharmacy, holding as a sacred trust, the accurate compounding of prescriptions. This inflexible rule gained for us the confidence of physicians and laymen alike and we consider their confidence as the greatest asset of our business.

CHELSEA WINS A ROUGH AND TUMBLE BASKETBALL GAME
By Dwight Gadd
In a very rough and tumble, knock-down, drag-out affair last Tuesday night, the local boys won a close contest at Grass Lake by the score of 27 to 25.
The game was a very close one all the way through and a very good game to watch. Chelsea was again lacking in height but they made up for it in very good ball handling and by scoring at every possible opportunity.
Chelsea went into the last quarter behind by two points, the score reading 25 to 23 in favor of the Lakers. But Chelsea tightened its defense and opened up its offense and led 27 to 25 when the final gun sounded.
The second team lost a very close one by the score of 24 to 21.

Chelsea Wins Easy One
Chelsea defeated a young and inexperienced Romulus team last Friday by the score of 31 to 19. Romulus barged ahead in the first quarter, 9 to 7, before the local boys really got going, but after that it was all Chelsea. In the second quarter the local boys dominated the play all of the time and outscored Romulus 13 to 1, to make the score at halftime stand 20 to 10 in Chelsea's favor.
Coach Cameron started an all Sophomore line-up for the second half and even this team, who had never worked together before, outscored the visitors 6 to 2. In the middle of the last quarter the regulars came back in and dropped a couple more through before the end of the game.
The final score was 31 to 19.
The second team was again defeated 24 to 18 in a game that they should have won.

Non-Partisan
News Letter

By Gene Alleman
State Capitol, Lansing—A wave of agricultural advertising bills is about to reach the Michigan state legislature.

When the state supreme court upheld the constitutionality of the apple advertising tax, whereby a levy of one cent a bushel is assessed on the grower, (who adds it to the consumer's bill just as the retailer does with the sales tax) the court opened the dykes to similar legislation.

Dairy interests propose a similar advertising levy in the hope of stimulating consumption of milk and butter.

Cherry growers and canners also advocate a state cherry tax to solve the recurrent problem of how to dispose of a canned cherry surplus which in 1941 is the greatest known in many years. The cherry industry of Michigan has been weakened by a competitive feud among leaders, and this co-operative action may not be easily effected.

Even egg producers—and Hamilton in Allegan county is the "egg capital" of Michigan—are studying the court ruling carefully. As the Hamilton co-operative has shown, eggs can be controlled in flavor, while scientific processing can preserve the "fresh" taste from six months to a year, and the average consumer can't tell the difference!

Agriculture Commissioner
The bill by Rep. Maurice E. Post, (R) Rockford, to take the commissioner of agriculture out of politics by making him responsible to the state board of agriculture (governing body of Michigan State College) is beginning to back-fire.

Passed by the House, the measure is now before the Senate committee on agriculture. At a hearing last week a majority of farm spokesmen expressed opposition. Clark L. Brody, secretary of the Michigan Farm Bureau and a member of the college board, condemned the plan as being an unconstitutional invasion of the governor's executive authority. Fred P. Hibst, Cadillac, manager of the Michigan Potato Growers' Exchange, warned it would involve the college "more and more with politics because politically-minded men will seek election to the board to dominate state department policies."

Even the possibility that state department employees would be removed from civil service protection has been raised by several senators. Educational institutions are now exempt.

Some bipartisan control for the agricultural department has been favored by farm groups for many years. Gov. Murray J. Van Wagoner merely seized it in 1940 as a good campaign issue, and by this time he has put the Republican-dominated legislature in a pretty predicament. A veto is certain if the Post bill is passed.

Labor Reforms
Generally known as "publicity bills" are three measures, introduced by Senator Stanley Nowak (D) Detroit, which are designed to institute labor reforms in Michigan.

Senate bills 51 and 52 would impose minimum wages for women and institute wage and hour requirements for all workers in intrastate commerce. Because of their drastic provisions at a time when national defense has the right of way, the bills repose quietly in the senate labor committee.

A third Nowak labor bill would forbid boys under 14 years of age and girls under 18 to engage in "street trades" including the sale of newspapers and magazines. Even time spent in school would be included in an eight hour day limit. (The average newsboy or magazine junior merchant devotes only an hour or so each day, in his spare time, to his "street trade." It is usually considered "pin money" rather than employment, as Michigan requires compulsory education for everyone 7 to 16 years of age.)

Political Publicity
Office-holders realize the value of publicity, especially if it is at the public's expense and at the disadvantage of their opponents.

House Bill 99 would provide for the ballot designation of the occupation of a candidate who seeks re-election—a privilege which rivals would not possess. Thus, the occupation of "state representative" could appear on ballots.

Senate bill 99 is aimed at the practice of state highway commissioners whose names adorn roadside signs, picnic tables and other state-owned buildings and equipment in large letters. This bill would prohibit use of the names of public officers on state signs, maps, etc., unless specifically provided for by law. Furthermore, a signature would be that of the department or office rather than the individual heading the same.

(Republican critics of G. Donald Kennedy, interim state highway commissioner, complain that Kennedy had his name painted on thousands of road signs; held up printing of the winter highway map for revisions; and so on, at considerable expense—all in order to publicize himself prior to the spring election.)

Old Age Pensions
Senate resolution C, introduced by Senator Joseph Baldwin (R) Albion, would earmark 10 per cent of the state gasoline tax refund annually (five and six million dollars) for old age pensions and to retire the state deficit. It would require a constitutional amendment.

Rising recognition of more adequate pensions recently prompted state representatives to over-ride the house ways and means committee and to add $161,000 to a deficiency bill.

Both parties are bidding for favor of the "oldsters," the Townsend bloc. No action is expected, however, until after the April election. The same observation can be made about the $46,000,000 school appropriation bill of the Michigan Education association.

KIWANIS NEWS

The Speech I Class of the Chelsea high school, under the able direction of Professor Carl Chandler, presented the program for the Kiwanians on Monday night. The students cooperated to portray many of the leading episodes in the lives of America's two leading men, George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. The students gave a short history of these national figures and then they contrasted and compared the characteristics, lives, and leading literary works of each man. The students eloquently delivered Abraham Lincoln's immortal "Gettysburg Address" and other leading speeches and essays of the two Americans. They concluded their interesting program by presenting a skit, "The Birth of Old Glory," which illustrated how Betsy Ross, George Washington, and other leaders of our nation decided upon the colors and contents of our national flag.

Editorial

I visited a distant school not long ago, with the idea of comparing that school with ours. As I walked up to the entrance, I was quite impressed by the neat appearance of the school lawn. There wasn't a piece of paper or a small twig anywhere in sight, and I thought to myself, "This school must be clean and neat inside, too." I entered the door and passed down a long quiet hall. Through several doors I could see orderly classes. One larger than the rest, a study hall, I decided to visit. Everyone was very still, each person was working. It all fitted the outside appearance of the building. Then I noticed the floor. Paper wads, slips of paper, rubber bands, even an orange skin littered the polished surface. I was very surprised, and thought "Our school is better than that." But when I returned home, I looked at our school with a stranger's eyes. The outside and the halls looked quite attractive, but the study hall and various classrooms were bad.

We didn't have any orange skins lying on the floor, but there was plenty of paper. I don't know whose fault this is, nor what students are responsible, but certainly everyone in school should take enough pride in their building to keep it clean.

Spring is almost here and the ground will be bare. Let's make an honest and conscientious effort to keep paper off our school's floors and lawn. We need not only your neighbor's cooperation, but your own!

Class News

The Junior class put on an assembly February 4 in study hall. The program consisted of a "Truth or Consequence", led by Roderick McDonald. The National Anthem and other songs were sung. The singing was led by Martha Barber. The Sophomore class is electing a group to meet with the officers and help choose the company from which the class wishes to buy class rings. After the company is chosen the representative of that company will bring his selection of rings before the class. The ring that gets the majority of votes will be chosen as the class ring. These rings will not be received by the class until next year, although they will order them this year.

Student Council

According to custom a new member from each class was elected to take the place of the expired terms of the old. Representatives are elected twice a year, in September and in February. The new representatives are, for the Juniors, Jr. Miller; for the Sophomores, Tom Lyons; and for the Freshmen, Pat Burg. Their terms will run until next February.

Ways and means of keeping the paper off the assembly floor were discussed. It was decided to ask each teacher just before it is time for the bell to ask the students to pick up the paper on the floor, thus making them conscious of it and maybe there won't be so much there the next time.

We had a Valentine party Friday afternoon. We had drawn names so everyone would receive a Valentine. We had fun.

We made a feeding station for the birds. We hope many birds will find food at our station.

We have also had a story of Abraham Lincoln read to us. It told of how he loved to read and wanted to be a lawyer.

In Science we are studying of the three great needs of man—light, heat, and water. We found we could not live without them but could live longer without food than without water.

INTEGRITY AND FIRMNESS

The above is a photographic reproduction of the features of George Washington carved out of rock by Sculptor Gutzon Borglum on the face of Mount Rushmore in the Black Hills of South Dakota.

WHAT would Washington do or say today? The question is often asked. It can never be answered precisely. In accepting the presidency, Washington minimized his talents, saying he was "without that competency of political skill, abilities and inclination which are necessary to manage the helm."

But he did make a pledge to the American people.

"Integrity and firmness are all I can promise. These, be the voyage long or short, shall never forsake me, although I may be deserted by all men."

INTEGRITY and firmness were all he promised, but these were enough to pull the young Republic through in those frail, uncertain, tenuous years. North Carolina had not yet ratified the Constitution, Rhode Island declared it never would, when Washington was inaugurated. Vermont was even then trying to negotiate separate recognition at London.

It needed Washington's firmness and integrity to make the foundations of the Republic solid.

IN THE past few years passages from the Farewell Address have been quoted perhaps more frequently than anything else in America. Two sentences stand out: "Tis our true and settled policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world."

"Taking care always to keep ourselves, by suitable establishments, on a respectable defensive posture, we may safely trust to temporary alliances for extraordinary emergencies."

What would Washington do today? We may dispute over the words he left us, and over their application today. But we can be certain that today, as in the early days of the Republic, Washington would give us the same pledge:

"Integrity and firmness are all I can promise. These, be the voyage long or short, shall never forsake me, although I may be deserted by all men."

Marion Dietle and Jean Eisenbeiser. Wednesday, Feb. 12 we hurried our spelling and English classes, and used the time thus saved to make Valentines. Most of us got good grades on them. On Friday we had our party with lots of Valentines, popcorn, crackerjack, apples, candy, and cookies. Also present were "Pluto", a little statuette dog Barbara Eaton bought for Miss Fox's desk, and "Tazzan", a dog belonging to Philip Tompkins.

Our boys have been proving they are good Scouts by volunteering to wash windows, not only in our own room, but elsewhere.

Turkey Yields to Women

Tradition, custom and law has been scattered to the winds in Turkey. No longer are the women kept secluded in harems. Today, about the only thing a Turkish woman can't do is join the military forces. It all came about because the men had so much to do in building a new nation that they needed the women's help. Today there are women judges, city officials, legislators and dentists. They have the right to vote and sit in assembly. There are women law students, women in the college of pharmacy, in engineering schools and in agricultural schools. There are more jobs for women than there are trained women to take them. The few restrictions against women workers are in the kind of work they may do. They are not allowed to work underground, under water, or in dangerous industries such as poison gas and sulphur plants.

Candy Production

Candy production in the United States is in excess of 2,000,000,000 pounds annually and is valued at more than $300,000,000. The annual per capita consumption is almost 16 pounds for each person. Illinois, New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts are the principal producing states.

On Robinson's farm the operator used 1,500 pounds of 2-8-18 fertilizer on the acre, used 30 bushels of seed an acre, planted 11 inches apart in 30 inch rows and sprayed eight times. Ford did not have Robinson's fertilizer.

How does a potato grower produce yields two or three times those obtained by other growers?

That was a popular question recently on the campus at Michigan State College when the state's leading pair of potato growers were named champions during Farmers' Week.

The champions are J. D. Robinson, Pellston, and Clayton Ford, Cornell. Robinson produced 590 bushels to the acre on a 17 acre field of russet rural variety grown as certified seed. Ford cropped 450 bushels on 6 1/2 acres of the same variety, grown as table stock.

Methods were somewhat similar to those practiced by the 160 growers who became eligible in 1940 for membership to Michigan's 300-bushel potato club. Spraying to control blight seemed highly important, as one of the 300-bushel men reported his neighbor got only 46 bushels to the acre when he neglected to spray his crop, whereas on his own farm the blight sprays permitted a 450 bushel an acre yield.

it to him! It wasn't meant for him. It was just an old letter I read in a book, a love letter, and I thought it was sweet, so I copied it! You knew perfectly well it wasn't meant for Richard, Peter Corr!"

Peter touched her hand, leaning near her. "Poor kid! You were a great little girl, Mary. You know, you've grown up mighty beautiful."

"My brother didn't come back himself?"

"No, he and Tommy stayed ashore."

"Well, there's nothing could be done anyway," Richard decided.

Ira Corr spoke, Isaiah and old Hiram heard him, and came to the cabin door, but Captain Corr looked only at his son. He asked:

"Where's Peter?"

"Ashore, Father. We're at Gil- ead. He's gone to get help for you."

"I'm past help, Dick," he said. "You'll be Cap'n by morning."

Richard had never lied to this old man. "I'll do the best I can, then," he said humbly.

"Look out for Peter."

"I'll take care of him."

"I mean, look out for him," Cap- tain Corr repeated, in clear warn- ing. "You're mine, but he's not, Dick. Not my son. His mother was a widow woman, the old man said."

"She made me claim him or she wouldn't marry me. I was young, wanted a woman any price at all; and for all I knew then, Peter'd make a man and a good son for me. I gave him and you talk al- ways, Richard; but you're a man, and he's not. I knew that sure, after his first time, at sea. The sea winnows a man, Richard; blows the chaff away and shows you what he is underneath. It didn't need that business of Tom Hanline to show me the inwardness of Peter. I knew before, I wasn't fooled," he said.

"So I cast him out. It's all in my will, Dick. Lawyer Ashburn's got it at home. A dollar to Peter that was never mine, and the rest to you that was always my own son."

Richard's pulse beat choked him. Captain Corr's eyes were closed now; but the old man said softly:

"I could always brag about you, Dick."

He seemed to smile, but he did not speak again. He did not know when his father died, till Isaiah came at last to peer over his shoulder and to say:

"He's gone."

Richard looked down, and he saw this was true. His father was dead. He was Captain now.

He rose. He went on deck. He saw their position, said to Mat Forbes:

"Mr. Forbes, my father is dead. Keep her off and on, I'll be busy for a while."

He returned below. He went into the cabin, and closed the door. There, tender as a woman, he shaved his father's dead face, and dressed him in seemingly garments. While he was alone with his father he had considered the problem which the old man's revelation presented.

There had been no chance to ask Captain Corr whether Peter knew the truth about himself; but Richard was sure he did not. Richard even thought Peter

Children In Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield

Difficulties Encountered By Court Officers

Few parents realize the disadvantage in which a court officer is placed when he is required to assist in reclaiming a delinquent youngster. To illustrate this point it must be remembered that when a petition is signed in court alleging that a child is delinquent, it is the duty of the assigned officer to make a thorough investigation of the case and then to determine whether or not the child should be brought into court.

If the child must be removed from the home pending the trial, the probation officer becomes a jailer. During the course of his investigation, the officer endeavors to get the delinquent to confess his part in the crime. If the officer has won the confidence of the youngster, he often loses this confidence on the day of the hearing, because it is the officer's duty to inform the judge of the result of his investigation.

After the youngster has been placed on probation, the officer is expected to keep a close watch on the progress he makes. When one considers the various functions the officer is forced to perform before a child can be placed on probation, it can readily be seen that he must be exceedingly tactful, resourceful and broadminded.

Distorted Viewpoints

It is claimed that crime is costing every man, woman and child in the United States approximately ten dollars per month, where as certain supporters of the parole system assert that they are reclaiming from seventy-five to eighty-five per cent of all offenders. A judge was asked to account for such a situation. He replied, "An uninformed person would probably point to four or five isolated cases in which political pressure was brought to bear to have certain hardened criminals pardoned or placed on parole. From this deduction he would jump to the erroneous conclusion that the parole system was solely responsible for the discrepancy which reveals that even though parole does reclaim seventy-five per cent of all offenders, the cost of crime is still fifteen billion dollars per year."

The public should bear in mind that the politician and the pompous taxpayer have never given those who direct and supervise probation an opportunity to provide adequate probation service. Indeed, subterranean views of the entire problem lie much deeper. We are passing through an era of national adjustment. Unless we lay a firm economic and social foundation, there is great danger that civilization will avalanche. When four million men and women are actively engaged in the pursuit of crime, when two hundred thousand children pass through the juvenile courts each year, and when we consider that from two to nine per cent of our entire school population is caladjusted or consist of problem students, we will understand that our much vaunted civilization is undermined by many sinister forces which must be immediately eradicated if we wish to prevent communism and revolution.

Question And Answer Dept.

Problem—There is a body of water in the world which is well known to most people. Its name is suggestive of something weird or ghostly. Can you call the name of that body of water? (Answer elsewhere in this department.)

Ques.—Please tell me in your question department of the paper, what man elected to the Presidency of the United States used as his slogan "The Full Dinner Pail"?

Ans.—William McKinley, in the Presidential campaign of 1896. However, he was not the author of that slogan; it originated at the Republican national convention, and was influential with the delegates in nominating the Ohio governor, when the nominating delegate in his peroration shouted in a stentorian voice "William McKinley of Ohio for Prosperity and a Full Dinner Pail."

Ques.—Is rice native to the United States or this hemisphere?

Ans.—Neither. Rice is native to China, but it found its way to Madagascar, where all conditions were excellent for rice growing. In 1694 a vessel with a cargo of rice was bound from Madagascar to Liverpool and was driven by bad weather to America and took refuge in the harbor at Charleston, S. C. In return for the "southern hospitality" accorded the crew the captain presented the settlers with many large bags of the rice. This was the beginning of the rice industry in the United States.

Ques.—Is there a man in the moon? If not, why is the moon always pictured with a human face?

Ans.—No. The moon's surface is made up of a series of mountains and valleys, and the reflection of the sun, strange as it may seem, causes these formations to resemble a human face. Astronomers use these markings to distinguish the different phases of the moon.

Ques.—Is it true that the Pope contributed to the Washington Monument in Washington, D. C.?

Ans.—Yes, but he did not contribute financially. The Pope contributed a block of African marble from the Temple of Concord at Rome as his gift to the monument, with the inscription "Rome to America". In 1854, during the Know-Nothing excitement when anti-Catholicism was rampant, the place where the blocks were kept was forcibly entered and the papal stone was carried away. A reward was offered for its recovery, but its whereabouts remains a secret to the present time. No doubt this marble stone some day will be found at the bottom of the Potomac river.

Ques.—Does a woman lose her citizenship in the United States when she marries an alien that has not been naturalized?

Ans.—No. Under the present law the citizenship of a woman does not shift when she marries an alien. Formerly a woman's citizenship was the same as that of her husband. Answer to problem—The name of the body of water is Lake Erie (Erie).

Ques.—What is the meaning of the letters "D. E." used after the word "Mexico," the capital of our southern republic?

Ans.—They are the abbreviations of "Distrito Federal," meaning Federal District. The capital of Mexico, like the capital of the United States, is located in a federal district governed by the central government.

Trousers Furnished Gold

To Make Souvenir Rings

There is a story told about Lord ("Jacky") Fisher—England's great sailor since Nelson—to the effect that he once appeared at the court of Edward VII wearing some disgruntled old clothes.

"Really old clothes," said King Edward, "is a very old suit you are wearing."

"Yes, sir," came the instant reply, "but you've always told me that nothing really matters but the cut."

Which lends point to a story told by George Arliss in "My Ten Years in the Studios". Here it is:

"Dame Madge Kendal (famous actress of bygone days) gave me a gold ring made out of Lord Fisher's trousers; and gave Flo (Mrs. Arliss) one too; also made out of Lord Fisher's trousers. The title First Sea Lord, which was Lord Fisher's carried with it a great deal of gold braid. This gold braid does not descend from trousers to trousers. The new trousers do not inherit the braid of their predecessors. When a First Sea Lord has worn out his trousers, he apparently casts them off like an old glove—braid and all."

"Dame Madge was a very observant and original woman. Having discovered that gold braid of this period contained a great deal of pure gold, she followed the matter up until she got Lord Fisher's discarded glove, took the braid to an old-established gold refiners, which still carries on business opposite the Garrick club (London), and had the gold extracted and made into gold rings as souvenirs of her old friend Lord Fisher."
