Donkey Softball Game Will Be Played Monday

By Rolly Spaulding

The time has come—once again at least, for the East Side West Side annual tangle. Next Monday night starting promptly at 8:00 p. m. (Chelsea Standard time) the East Siders, led by Jule Strieter, will take the field dragging their—ah—DONKIES—behind them, to oppose the West Siders, captained by Jerry Niehaus, in the second annual donkey-softball game.

This year the field will be arranged quite a bit differently than last year. The lights will be furnished by the local light plant in sufficient quantity and quality so that the outfielders may play without tail lights, though lighting on the tail in another sense will still be quite the thing.

Bleacher seats will be placed right on the playing line with the field roped off in such a manner that everyone will be able to get full view of the game at all times. And equally important, the section along the first base line will be designated for West Siders and that along the third base line for East Siders. Come out and support your side! Tomatoes, at $1 a bushel, should be left at home.

The starting lineups are as yet unavailable but Jule Strieter quite confidentially told me that Ferd Merkel, Jay Tuttle, Herb Loeffler, Waldo Kusterer, Carl Fletcher, Bill Kolb and Bill Schatz were almost sure to start for his side. Several others of the east-side business men, Kent Walworth included, are waiting to see the size and formation of the donkeys before volunteering. And from across Main street Jerry Niehaus is collecting a dark horse team but several players' names have leaked out and here they are—Leigh Palmer, Bert Withevell, Babe Klumpp, Lewis Hasel-swerdt, Vincent Burg, Harvey Murphy and George Seitz. What a collection!

Now don't forget—next Monday night, 8:00 o'clock sharp, at the local athletic field. Tickets, costing .10c and 20c, will be sold by any of the Twilight Softball League players, with the full proceeds to go into the injured players' benefit fund, and while our luck was not as bad this year as last, we have four broken fingers to pay for. Please make an effort to buy your ticket before the game and then come out and cheer for your side.

Plea to our two local undertakers—Do the sporting thing and ignore the fact that you are both East Siders and do the best you can with any of the West Siders that may be dumped off at your place after the game. This plea has been entered through the kind foresight of Jerry Niehaus and Jule Strieter, captains of the rival factions.

McDANIEL-BEUTLER WEDDING

At a ceremony on Sunday afternoon at Haven Methodist church, Jackson, Robbie Eleanor, McDaniels, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McDaniels, Jackson, became the bride of Loren Walter Beutler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Beutler of Chelsea.

Before a background of palms, ferns and baskets of gladioli the service was read by Rev. Emil Runkel. "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly" were sung by Myron Davis, with Mrs. Charles Boos as accompanist.

Miss McDaniels' bridal dress was white satin, with which she wore a lace-trimmed sweetheart veil and carried a bouquet of white roses. Her sister, Mrs. La Verne Humes, as matron of honor, was attired in poudrette blue taffeta, with velvet streamers falling from the pockets. Her accessories were pink and she carried tallman roses. Dorothy Jackson, Eleanor Rulewicz and Margaret Naylor, bridesmaids, chose pink gowns and carried pink roses tied in blue to match their shoulder length veils. Their pearl necklaces were gifts of the bride.

The groom was attended by Douglas Kennedy of Chelsea as best man and the ushers were Eldine Hawley, cousin of the groom, Mark McKernan and Edward Hamilton of Ann Arbor. Mrs. McDaniels wore an airline blue gown and Mrs. Beutler was attired in navy-blue. Their corsages were of roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception for 100 guests was held in the Cascades clubhouse. Following a trip in northern Michigan, the couple will be at home after September 12 at 8083 Prairie St., Detroit. The bride is a graduate of Jackson high school and Mercy School of Nursing. The groom was graduated from Chelsea high school and attended Wayne University and the Detroit Times Study school.

HARTLEY-AHEARN WEDDING

The ceremony uniting Miss Jean Hartley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hartley of Gregory, and James P. Ahearn of Chelsea, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Ahearn of Bad Axe, was performed at St. Mary's rectory at 10:30 on Saturday by Rev. Lawrence L. Dorr. The attendants were Miss Helen Lenaway, a cousin of the groom, and Russell Mayhew of Ann Arbor. The bride is a graduate of Stockbridge high school. Mr. and Mrs. Ahearn will reside in the Musbach residence, East Summit St.

DEFENSE BOND QUIZ

Q. I would like to provide a regular income for myself when I retire. Can this be done by buying Defense Savings Bonds?

A. Yes. If you purchase a Bond for $37.50 each month, each Bond will mature in exactly 10 years. Thus at the end of 10 years you will have $50 payable each month as each of your Bonds reaches maturity.

Q. But I will need more than $50 a month.

A. Then you should invest a larger amount each month. Every $75 you put into Defense Bonds will pay you $100 ten years from now. Meanwhile, your money serves your Government during this period of national emergency.

Note—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C.

Duck Hunters' Limits Changed for This Year

Lansing, Aug. 30—Michigan duck hunters, readying their guns and decoys for the 60-day season opening October 1, can make up a different bag to take home this fall, when the shooting is good.

Canvasbacks and ruddy ducks, previously limited to three a day, have been removed from the restricted list in the new federal waterfowl hunting regulations. Redheads and buffleheads, however, remain on the restricted list, and only three of either, or three of the two species combined may be taken in a day and included in the total daily bag limit of 10, of all species.

Restrictions against use of bait or live decoys are continued this year, and a clause has been added forbidding the taking of waterfowl by using cattle, horses or mules as biffs.

Daily limit on geese and brant, except Ross's geese which are protected is six a day. Of these, not more than three may be other than blue geese. Twice the daily bag limit of ducks and geese may be had in possession.

Only other major change in federal regulations affecting Michigan hunters is the closing of the season on Wilson snipe, or jacksnipe.

Duck hunters need both a federal duck stamp and a Michigan small game hunting license in this state. Shotguns not larger than 10 gauge or bows and arrows may be used, and the three-shell limit on repeating shotguns is continued. Shooting hours, the same as last year for waterfowl and coots, are from sunrise to 4 p. m.

Federal waterfowl regulations are listed in the department of conservation's game law digest which 2,500 dealers will distribute with each license sold.

The bride was attired in a navy blue suit with white accessories. Her corsage was of gardenias. The bridesmaid wore a beige suit with flag-red accessories and white gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Marsh will make their home at Cavanaugh lake.

Soldiers Contracting Influenza

During the World war it was found that the rate of contraction of influenza by soldiers was reduced five times by antiseptic dishwashing. "Saliva-borne infections," asserts the American Journal of Public Health, "are responsible either directly or indirectly for from 25 per cent to 45 per cent of our mortality."

Same Condition

There is no very great difference between severe head catarrh, sinusitis, closed eustachian tubes, or catarrhal deafness. In essence, all of these are merely labels for one and the same condition—a catarrhal inflammatory process which occurs in one area or the other of the facial and head structures, according to Phil M. Lovell, M. D.

Parents-Teachers Are First Line of Defense

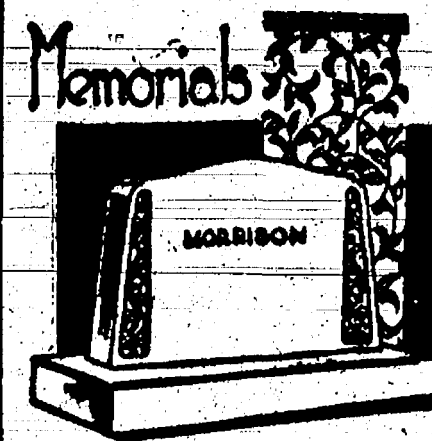

(By Otto K. Engelke, M. D., Director Washtenaw County Health Department)

Parents and teachers are Washtenaw county's first line of defense against dangerous contagious diseases.

With the opening of schools it becomes the duty of parents to inspect children each morning for signs of any contagious disease. They are, most frequently: Common cold, headache, upset stomach, fever, sore throat, irritability, and listlessness. If any of these signs or symptoms of disease exist, the parent should immediately get in touch with the family physician and withhold the child from school until the physician's advice has been received. Contagious diseases are most communicable when the signs just mentioned make their first appearance. The parent is the only one who can see to it that children of others are not exposed. When children arrive in school, better trained teachers inspect them for signs and symptoms of contagious diseases. Observations of children should be continued throughout the day.

According to "Michigan Regulations for the Control of Communicable Diseases", in the paragraph on Exclusion of Communicable Disease Suspects from School:

"Superintendents, principals, and teachers of all schools and nurses in any way responsible for the health program of any school shall exclude from school any child suspected by them of having a communicable disease. The name and address of such child shall then be reported to the local health officer for investigation. Readmission to school may then be permitted only with the consent of the local health officer."

At the beginning of each school year, certain contagious diseases become more prevalent. Close supervision of children before they are sent to school and after they arrive in school along with the immunization of children against diseases like diphtheria, smallpox, and whooping cough, are the best known methods of lowering the contagious disease rates in a community.

TECUMSEH—County Conservation officers have released 23 banded cock pheasants from the state game farm at Lansing, at various points in Lenawee county during the past week. The conservation department is keeping a record of the birds and the distance they travel after being released, and their chances of surviving the hunting season. If the birds are shot this fall the department asks that the bands be sent to conservation department with information as to where the shooting occurred. The band will be returned to the hunter, along with the age of the bird and where it was released.—Herald.

Not Always Termites
When a flooring begins to rot it is not always a sign of termites, although it is possible that they are causing the damage. If the condition exists near a wall that is close to a cement porch, it is probably dry rot caused by lack of ventilation.

The Y-shaped section of Detroit bounded by Eight Mile Road on the north and The Grand Trunk railroad on east and west, will be served by Michigan Bell's new Twinbrook Central Office.

"Letting out the seams" for a growing Detroit

WITH defense plants springing up, more people at work and business booming, Detroit rapidly is outgrowing its telephone facilities in certain central offices.

The number of telephones served by five central offices in north Detroit, for example, is increasing three times as fast as the average of recent years.

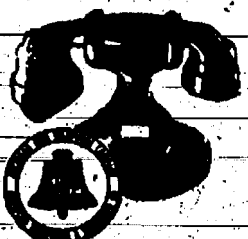

To relieve that pressure, Michigan Bell is rushing completion of a new central office building—Twinbrook—and installation of equipment at a cost of more than $1,450,000.

Western Electric's huge manufacturing and installation facilities make possible the swift expansion of telephone service in Michigan, and help us speed the $11,000,000 program required to meet telephone demands of camps and defense projects alone. To meet all the increased telephone needs throughout the state, we are spending more than $26,000,000 this year!

The telephone has a little part in almost every National Defense effort. And a little part in every effort adds up to pretty big figures.

Highway Officials To Convene In Detroit

Lansing—Paying particular heed to "highways for national defense," highway officials from all parts of the nation will converge on Michigan Sept. 29 for the 1941 convention of the American Association of State Highway Officials.

In announcing preliminary plans, State Highway Commissioner G. Donald Kennedy stated the annual four-day meeting was expected to attract more than 1,000 persons from virtually every state in the nation, as well as from Alaska, Canada, Porto Rico, Hawaii, and Mexico. Convention headquarters will be located in Detroit.

One of the largest associations of road builders in the country, the American Association of State Highway Officials has been designated by the Federal Public Roads Administration to develop and establish uniform highway policies throughout the United States.

Said Kennedy: "It is an honor to this state to have this organization hold its annual convention here, and it will afford us a splendid opportunity to show how Michigan has developed a highway system to serve the needs of manufacturing, agriculture, and the tourist industries. It will also serve to emphasize the fact that the manufacture of war materials is being concentrated here."

Although technical sessions on highway problems, paying particular attention to the part highways are playing in the national defense program, will feature the group meetings and sessions, delegates and guests will also have an opportunity to view some of Michigan's industrial and recreational attractions.

Included in the program will be a tour of defense industries in the Detroit area where the delegates will see how tanks, guns and various other defense items are being turned out in ever-increasing numbers.

A feature of the entertainment phase of the convention will be a caravan tour from Detroit to the Straits of Mackinac. The caravan will travel over some of Michigan's famed scenic highways and stops will include various historic sites along the route.

Lansing—If you haven't discovered it already, something has happened to Main Street in Michigan during the past few years.

Foremost is the fact that Main Street has been growing faster than Broadway, according to the 1940 census.

The 1930-1940 depression decade marked the first break in 140 years of constant trend toward urbanization of America. For the first time in a century and a half, more folks have been moving into rural and suburban areas than into the cities.

This trend towards small towns and rural areas has been noticeable, for the rate of rural growth has been almost three times as great in urban as in rural regions. More and more city dwellers have been going "to the country" for their homes. Many small towns at the fringe of large cities have boomed during the depression, largely because of this human quest for happiness in a more peaceful and less crowded environment.

Highways, Autos

Rural living has become more urban in character because of the automobile, radio, and motion pictures and the advent of good roads and electricity.

Main street has the same technicolor pictures in its movie houses as Broadway; the price is 25 cents instead of 50 or 75.

Small town girls wear latest Hollywood dresses; they read the same style news in Vogue as their city cousins. And while the small town stores do not carry such a complete line, the prices are "in line" with the customer's pocketbook, and if the merchant is not enterprising enough to tell the customer what he has, then there's always a nearby progressive city with merchants who do, and the V-8 doesn't take long to get you there.

The old livery stable has been replaced by an automobile garage, and if the Reader's Digest is right, small town garages give the customer the most for his money. The corner drug store has neon lights in the window, and the juke box plays the latest tunes for a nickel. Life isn't so bad.

Empty Houses Scarce

As any Michigan country editor will tell you, empty houses are pretty scarce in small towns.

We'll let Don Cochrane, editor of the Hartford Day Spring in Van Buren county, tell his observations about a southeastern Michigan town of 1,694 population.

"This community has more than held its own in the battle of small towns. Each census since 1900 (and before, for that matter) shows that Hartford recorded growth. During the last census period, 1930 to 1940, that growth was substantial, not only in population gain but in new building construction and new enterprises. Today there is scarcely an empty building, business or residential, in the town.

"True, Hartford at one time had two bakeries; both small compared to the one just closed. It also had a laundry; and if memory serves, the writer might, two laundries operated here for a time. But that was before Hartford had a garage or an oil station. It was before the days of the modern theatre; about the time that the first soda fountain came to town. It was 'way back when' one restaurant instead of four catered to the public's appetite.

"A majority of towns lost their bakeries, laundries and livery barns before Hartford did. But new enterprises, created by the changing times and affording employment to more people, have taken their places.

"The future of the smaller towns is by no means dark. Indeed, with the persistent trend away from the congested metropolitan areas, which is due in part to transportation facilities, the future of the less populous communities—where life is worth living—is brighter as compared to the cities than at any time in history."

The Hartford editor quotes William H. Berkeley, editor at Cassopolis, as saying that the "business readjustment which followed in the wake of the automobile and good roads has robbed the small town of some of its enterprises," but Cochrane makes the point that "it has brought it other and newer enterprises and is continuing to bring it newer forms of activity, new residents, new assets. Life in the small town is less drab, less circumscribed than before that 'business readjustment'."

Decentralization

"Problems of Small Business," a monograph prepared for the Temporary National Economic Committee at Washington, hails the development of rural sections as an industrial boom.

American industry is becoming more diffused and diversified. Chicago, for example, has declined as a meat packing center from 35.6 per cent of the national total in 1899 to 18.8 per cent in 1940. Philadelphia's rug and carpet manufacture has slumped from 45.6 per cent to 27.8 per cent, although doubling the number of employees.

The advantages of such industrial diversification—branches being located in various sections of the country—are four-fold, according to the TNEC report: "Saving in freight hauling, less delay in shipping, less dependence of areas upon single types of manufacture, and less violent depressions and less excited prosperities."

Calculations

What the 1940 census means in long-range calculations was the subject of a recent Kiplinger service letter in Washington to its clients. Here are some forecasts:

The number of people between 20 and 65 years of age increased 13 per cent in the last ten years. Age limits for employees are likely to go up "aged at forty" may become a forgotten expression.

The bigger the army grows, the more potential fathers will be taken out of circulation. Postponed marriages and smaller families, both due to the depression, are resulting in smaller classes today at public schools. Elementary school enrollments declined one million from 1930 to 1938; that means fewer teachers, as in the case of Cleveland where facilities have been reduced 600.

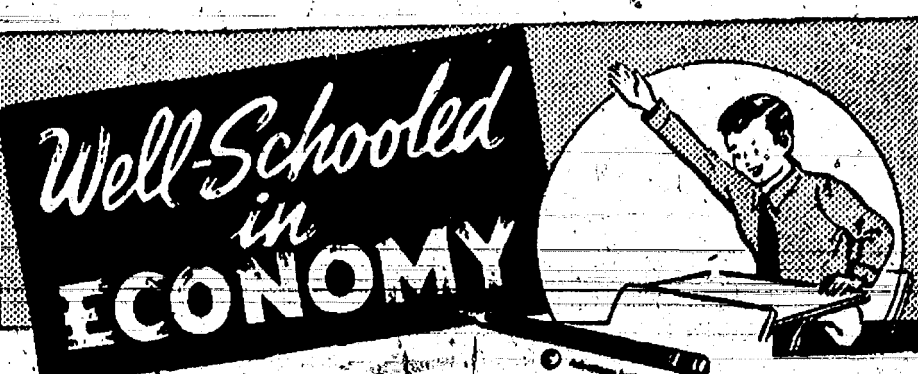

Figure that out in terms of demand for milk, perambulators, bicycles, toys and other items used by young people. And conversely remember that we will have more oldsters than ever before—more demand for hearing devices, optical lenses, golf clubs, books, and magazines. The undertaker can't lose!

National Defense

The experience of England in moving many defense plants into small communities in order to minimize bombing losses has prompted officials at Washington to advocate a "farming-out process" for our national defense orders.

One of the problems of the present defense situation, which calls for haste in manufacture of munitions, is the efficient utilization of industrial facilities in the small cities and towns of 10,000 population and under. Big business has been getting most of the defense orders. Thurman W. Arnold, assistant U. S. attorney-general, recently declared that the large concerns were not farming out orders to small business as they should because "letting the little fellows in means future competition and lower prices."

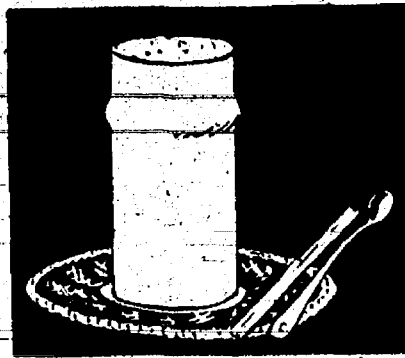

This charge has been repeated, in substance, by a number of Washington correspondents. The White House itself has come in for severe criticism. Big business has a ready answer: Small concerns lack equipment, experience and personnel to handle orders in any quantities. Take your choice.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

British-Russian Forces Invade Iran In Drive to Foil Alleged Nazi Coup; Navy Takes Over Shipbuilding Plant; Fierce Battle Marks Russo-Nazi War

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union)

COLOGNE, GERMANY.—This picture gives a dramatic view of a recent sensational daylight air raid by the British Royal Air force on a huge power station in the vicinity of Cologne. The bombers flew at a height of less than 100 feet at times. Much of the smoke was caused by air raid missiles and many direct hits were scored. The planes then swept lower still to get photographs like this.

JAPAN:

Not So Wide?

The statement by Ambassador Nomura of Japan in Washington that the bridge between Japanese and American policy was not so wide that it could not be spanned was viewed as perhaps a sign of the weakening of Nippon.

It was recognized in both Britain and the United States that the far eastern menace of Japan was largely a war of nerves and a battle of bluff.

The Indo-China move both these nations could laugh off as a good joke provided it did not develop into one of two things—an invasion of Thailand, or a move against the Burma road.

Either of these eventualities, it was understood, could reasonably set fire to the powder magazine in the East, yet Japan made no such move, only issuing statements which were more and more bitter. Now Nomura was saying, after a 20-minute conference with Secretary Hull:

"He outlined the position of your government. I outlined the position of mine. No conclusions were reached."

"I believe the gap between the two can be bridged. It would be folly to do otherwise. I have a very strong conviction that it will be done, but I don't just know how."

And that, at least the "folly" part of it, was exactly what America and Britain had been preaching to Japan for weeks, since the start of the move into Indo-China. It offered room for hope that Japan might yet decline to be the Axis tool.

DEFENSE:

Of Leningrad

The defense of Leningrad, which apparently was to be undertaken by the Russians despite the belief of most observers that a military involvement of the city could only end in its total destruction, drew the eyes of the world, heralded by the dramatic announcements of Soviet leaders preparing everyone for the imminence of battle.

There was only one way to read this situation, and that was to understand that the Russian army resistance on the Finnish front and against the pincers attack from Latvia and the south was crumbling, that the soldiers were fighting rear-guard actions and falling back on the Soviet's second city, and that the civilian population was being urged to fight it out.

Such a battle had been fought only once before in recent world history, and that was in Warsaw, and the pages of that battle were filled with stories of the glorious heroism of the defenders, and of the ruthless destruction of the city and thousands of its inhabitants in the course of the battle.

The story was to be even more bitter and terrible in Leningrad, not only, believed most observers, because of its greater size and population, but because of the fact that the German invaders undoubtedly were not so "hot" as they were before Warsaw and the Leningrad were better prepared.

It seemed that the army retreating toward Leningrad was not, like the ill-fated Polish army, a rabble in a rout, but an orderly group whose losses might have been heavy, but which was moving backward slowly.

In fact, as the northern forces, under Voroshilov himself, were falling back, the Russian communiques told of encounters in the Smolensk area, although they had admitted the loss of the city days before, and some thought this might mean that the Reds were driving the Nazis back in the center.

On the southern front the Germans were consolidating their gains, and the battle of Odessa, sort of a foretaste of the battle to be at Leningrad, was admitted by the Germans to have been a hand-to-hand encounter of the bitterest sort.

PRODUCE:

Or Else

While President Roosevelt struck out at critics who said that production was lagging, quoting chapter and verse, also war department figures to show Senator Byrd of Virginia that he had been misinformed, he also put the Kearny, N. J., shipyard back into production by ordering the navy to take over the plant.

Secretary Knox sent one of his admirals to take charge, and history made when the army took over the North American Aviation plant, was repeated.

Yet there was said to be a difference in this latest plant seizure, in that the navy would not plan to relinquish it to the private owners after putting it in operation, but continue to operate it as a navy yard.

Thus the eventuality oddly enough sought by men and employer as well in this instance, was brought into being, an eventuality which the state authorities of New Jersey sought vainly and bitterly to prevent.

Sixteen thousand workers were at the plant and the work on two cruise ships, almost ready for launch.

The union was the International Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of the C. I. O.

IRAN:

And Britain

The British demand on Iran that she expel all Nazi agents from her borders, and the Iranian refusal to obey, turned eyes again to the Middle East and Near East, and showed that Britain, conquerors of Syria with the aid of the Free French, realized the need of strengthening the position of her forces in that part of the world.

Few doubted the ability of the British, with the possible aid of the Russians, to take over little Persia, and present to the Nazis coming down from the Ukraine, or wishing to, a firmer front. It also would extend the common frontier with Turkey, and allow Ankara to have an excuse for maintaining a stronger pro-British neutrality.

Iran's fears were realized when British troops under the command of Gen. Archibald Wavell crossed into southern Iran and at the same time Soviet Russian forces moved into northern Iran from the Caucasus.

There was resistance encountered, according to the early reports from the fighting fronts. London sources indicated that the movement into Iran came to foil a Nazi coup. The move was seen as a direct action to the refusal of the Iran to give a satisfactory reply to the British and Russian request that Germans be expelled from the country.

Iran was powerless militarily, though with an army technically measured at 120,000, to halt a British invasion in similar force to that which moved in on well-defended Syria, but she was in an important position geographically for Britain's Middle Eastern defense, believed one of the next tactical moves of the war, as the weather in northern Russia was about to tighten into winter temperatures and snows.

TRIPOLI:

The lengthening range of R.A.F. bombers was bringing the harbor of Tripoli, chief Mediterranean base for Nazi-Fascist operations in North Africa, more easily within reach.

Ports of the character of Tripoli, being rare in northern Africa, the latest of these bombings, during which 25 tons of explosive were dropped, were said to show that the British are putting into effect a plan they believe utterly necessary—the preparation for the switching of a major Nazi offensive to Africa.

It has been some time since I have written about courtesy, especially the courtesy of dimming lights. It is almost a universal custom, whether it be a law or not, that drivers dim their car lights when passing one another. Drivers rounding curves or climbing hills especially should dim their lights to avoid blinding the drivers of approaching cars.

Frequently, however, you find some fellow bolting along who pays no attention to such courtesies, who must have all the light for himself, and who pays very little attention to the contents of his fellow traveler on the other side of the road.

Let's be decent about this. Let's treat others as we like to be treated. That rule—to treat others as we like to be treated—would prevent the largest percentage of the automobile accidents on our highways today. It's greed and speed in driving that cause so much trouble on our highways. It's smart to be careful.

One Match Can Start It

This is what a forest fire looks like. One match or cigarette carelessly tossed from an automobile in the Michigan pine plains country can set the "red demon" roaring through woods baked dry by prolonged hot weather. Conservation department forest fire fighters are preparing for emergency situations in many areas. In the last 15 years, smokers have caused more than 40 per cent of the forest fires in Michigan. These fires have destroyed thousands of acres of timber, killed game animals, even burned out the elements of the soil that support plant growth.

Barking Up Wrong Tree
A misdirected effort is often termed "barking up the wrong tree." This is a hunter's phrase that arose, quite naturally, from the dogs losing the scent and mistaking the tree in which the game had taken refuge. The wily raccoon will often escape overhead through the branches of the trees, leaving the dogs behind frantically barking up the wrong tree.

Murderers Not Punished
At certain periods of the year, on the hot plains and deserts of South America, South Africa and Asia Minor, the bitter and burning winds are so nerve-rending that persons who commit crimes, even murder, during these gales are seldom punished, according to Gellier's.

New Process Extracts

Metal From Sea Water

Matching the tallest of Paul Bunyan yamms is the development of a huge plant on the Gulf of Mexico coast at Freeport, Texas, for the extraction of the metal magnesium from sea water.

More than 5,300 short tons of magnesium came from producing plants and stocks in the United States in 1939 to meet the swiftly growing demand for the lighter-than-aluminum metal, classed as an essential material by the army and navy munitions board. This was a greater quantity than the total American production of both 1937 and 1938, says a National Geographic society bulletin.

School Lunch Projects Will Resume In State

Peanut butter, pork and beans and concentrated soup are headlines on the varied list of foods which will be available for free distribution to school lunch projects in Michigan during the 1941-42 school year.

E. M. Rowlands, acting regional director of the Surplus Marketing Administration, announced in Milwaukee today.

Thousands of teachers, parent-teacher associations and other school lunch sponsors are now laying plans for resumption of school lunch programs.

Allocations of these foods already have been made to state welfare agencies for distribution in Michigan and the 11 other states in the mid-western region.

Other items on the list of available foods include grapefruit segments, grapefruit juice, prunes, honey, corn meal, and wheat products consisting of cereals and both white and graham flours.

The regional director said it is likely a variety of fresh fruits also will be available again this year, particularly citrus fruits and apples.

The school lunch program, which last year helped see that five million undernourished and needy children in the United States were better fed, is one of the chief outlets for surplus foods purchased by the U. S. Department of Agriculture in its efforts to broaden domestic markets and bolster farm prices.

Last year during the peak month of March, the school lunch program was operating in 2,492 schools of Michigan. A total of 124,818 undernourished children received benefits of the program in these schools.

It is predominately a rural program. Seventy-seven per cent of the participating schools and 63 per cent of the children served live in rural areas. In comparison with the 5,000,000 children who participated during the peak month last year, the present national objective of the program.

Mr. Rowlands explained, is to reach all of the 9,000,000 children shown to be undernourished in a recent national survey, nine million youngsters who are living below the danger line of health.

Local sponsorship is the keystone requirement for any school lunch project. The federal government provides certain basic foods, and the community carries on from there, furnishing the leadership to organize and direct the program.

The sponsoring group sees to it that food is clean, well cooked and that sanitary equipment and premises are provided. It supplies such supplemental foods as are necessary to turn out an appetizing, well-rounded meal each noon. The whole community helps.

Work Projects Administration and National Youth Administration help may be secured in many cases. Home demonstration agents of the Michigan State College extension service advise and help get school lunch programs started. The Surplus Marketing Administration has a special school lunch representative in each state to assist schools and sponsoring groups.

Sponsorship usually comes from school officials, teachers, parent-teacher associations, patriotic organizations, lodges, women's clubs and any other groups interested in improving health and general welfare conditions among children of their communities.

Persons interested in starting school lunch programs can obtain full information by writing the State Director of Commodity Distribution, at the State Welfare office, or to the Regional Director, Surplus Marketing Administration, 1050 Empire Building, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.
