New Filtration Plant Is Now In Operation

Chelsea's new filtration plant which was started several months ago has been completed and was placed in operation last week.

The new building which houses the plant is located on the village property on North street, and is 23x60 feet, one story, of cement block and brick veneer construction. Equipment consists of three filter tanks eight feet in diameter, an aerating tank 11 feet in diameter, and the necessary mechanism to operate the plant.

The filtration process includes the pumping of all water through the filter tanks, to the aerating tank, and then into the mains and to the elevated tank. A new 12-inch well, assures the village of ample water supply at all times.

Before placing the new plant in operation the elevated tank was thoroughly washed out and mains were flushed in order to have a clean system before forcing the purified water through the pipes to the consumers.

The filtration of Chelsea's water supply will prove to be a great improvement. The iron and carbon dioxide is removed from the water, and it is some softer, although the filtration plant does not provide real soft water.

A real difference will be noticed in plumbing and heating equipment as there will be little corrosion in pipes and boilers, and the stain on fixtures will be negligible.

No small matter is the fact that better coffee and tea is also assured housewives, and it is expected that cooking generally will show an improvement as the result of the latest improvement in Chelsea's forward march.

Armistice Day

Armistice Day is a symbol of the determination of the country to preserve the ideals upon which it was founded and those for which the veterans of the World War so valiantly fought.

With all thankfulness we look back to that Armistice Day which ended the World War. We remember how gladly men stood erect in the sun once more and let their fires shine out at night without concealment, how the load of anxiety fell in a moment from a world of women's hearts, how a war-torn world turned back to peace with profound gratitude to the God who gave it and to the men who paid for it with their lives.

This Armistice Day is unusually important to us as we look back to the past with thankfulness and to the future with uncertainty. We must, however, keep the ideals before us upon which our country was founded and try to preserve them, though the sacrifices be great.

Freedom is worth Armistice Days. However, let us hope that we keep celebrating ours with the same thankfulness as we do this year!

Hundreds of Children Attend Halloween Party

In spite of the inclement weather last Friday evening several hundred youngsters attended the annual Halloween party at the public school gym, which was sponsored by the Kiwanis club.

Although the rain kept most of the children inside the Chelsea high school band and a few others braved the storm to carry out the parade feature of the activities. However, all had plenty of noisemakers and the roof of the auditorium came close to being raised by the noise within.

During a let-up in the rainstorm cider and donuts were served on the playground, and a huge bonfire helped to make the gloomy night a little more cheerful.

The program consisted of a performance by the Clowding Gymnasts from the University of Michigan, and moving pictures shown by Walter Harper.

Prizes on costumes were awarded as follows: First prize winners (receiving $1.00 in Defense Stamps) Neil McPherson, George Heydlauff, Philip Tompkins, Phyllis Hopper.

Plans Are Completed By Community Association

The Chelsea Community Association has substantially completed its program of activities for the fall and winter season. The officers announce that the Community Hall on West Middle street has been decorated and that it is now open for public use.

The association plans to hold weekly dances and card parties at the hall during the winter, and the members state that the Halloween dance which was held last Wednesday was a success. C. Stanley Evans states that the hall now has ample facilities for playing pingpong, pool, badminton, and shuffleboard, and that he would commence to hold tournaments in these activities in the near future. He also mentioned that the reading room has quite a collection of recent magazines and periodicals for those who wish to read in their leisure hours.

It is planned by the association to sponsor a basketball league this winter for the residents of Chelsea and vicinity. They request all players and managers who are interested in entering a team in this league to meet at the hall on Wednesday evening, November 12, at 7 o'clock. This league will be under the supervision of Willard Guest, so all basketballers who are interested in this league should consult him for further details. The basketball league will play all their games in the Chelsea high school gym and it will continue from December to March. The association is also planning to sponsor a boxing tournament in Chelsea this winter if there is sufficient interest here for such activity.

Certain members stated that they plan to have lectures and public programs in Chelsea this winter. They intend to show the pictures of the Michigan-Minnesota game in the hall during November and to conduct other civic enterprises there during the rest of the year. The association plans to have a series of public dances for Chelsea this winter, the first of which will be held shortly before Christmas. The officers urge residents who are interested in this civic program to purchase their membership cards from Willard Guest, Norman Perkins, Norman Phelps, and C. Stanley Evans, who are in charge of memberships for the year.

WHAT CAN I DO?

By Ruth Taylor

"What can I do?" "How can I be of help?" As always happens in an hour of national crisis, thoughts of self are put aside and an earnest desire to be of service wells forth from the country over.

The most important thing you can do today is to keep up your morale and the morale of those about you. When the time comes for action, which God forbid it ever will, we will be on the crest of excitement and there will be as much courage and heroism displayed as there is in the tales the returning travelers tell of England.

But now is the hard time—the difficult hour of watching and waiting. We are on the middle step—and as Miss said, "It isn't up and it isn't down." But as the country reaches the individual citizen can remain in spirit. Here are some things you can do:

If you live in America, prove loyalty to your faith in its ideals by putting them into actual practice. This means no discrimination because of race, creed or color; no unfair discussion in damning generalities of any group; allowing to others the freedom you claim for yourself; always observing the rules of fair play toward your neighbor; and in every action of yours observing the same integrity you want from your government.

Don't whine about taxes. The defense program is the work of all of us and for all of us. Be grateful that you can pay taxes rather than tribute. Readjust your standard of living to meet these obligations. This does not mean lowering your standards, but it does mean throwing the emphasis from luxury habits to the more vital things that make life happy. Stop doing the things you do because other people do them, not because you find them particularly enjoyable.

You'll be surprised how much you can do without and how you can unclutter your life; lower your living costs; and have many more of the things you have always wanted.

Train your children in self-reliance, courage and cooperation. If this motto keeps on, they will need them all. Make a game of it with them; but see to it that they are as well prepared for life as you can make them.

And of course, volunteer your help. Your community has definite plans. List the things you are capable of doing, offer your services and round out your capabilities by what courses your community offers for civilian defense. And when you're asked to do something to help that isn't entirely convenient, show your cooperative spirit by doing an unwelcome task well.

Prepare, yes—in every way you can for whatever may come. But don't lose your sense of proportion. There is today still to be lived and there is no sense in spending it fearing tomorrow.

Accidental deaths are increasing. The traffic toll for this year is 18 per cent higher than it was in 1940. The year 1941 will probably reach a record high in accidental deaths. War, diseases, floods, and accidents are taking lives daily. The automobile is responsible in a large part for the increase in the death toll.

We are moving too fast. Cars have passed me at a terrific rate of speed, only to drive on another half-mile and park at a tavern. What is the sense of this?

It's smart to drive carefully.

A LETTER TO. Chelsea from Havana, Cuba

(Written in the home of Miguel Le Pevebre, Calle F 505 altos entre 21 y 23 Vedado, Havana, Cuba.)

Buenos Dias, Senoras y Senores! Let us two Latins from Lowell send you an 85 degree greeting from this unbelievable island—a little world only two hundred and ten miles by sea from Miami—where heat, mosquitoes, and dictators are the curse of the country and, at first glance, the population seems to make a living by selling lottery tickets to one another.

I will dispense with any description of our crossing from Florida aboard the S. S. Florida. Suffice to say that the Atlantic was kind, and we were spared the indignity of a port-hole passage.

When you come to Cuba—come with great strength of mind—come slowly or you are lost for a while. We were lost. Let me describe our first two hours in Havana:

The ship steamed at three or four knots through the crowded harbor—a graceful white schooner lies at port—a great grey warship to starboard—the diving boys scream up at you—"Hey, Johnny, hey, Charlie, hey, lady!" throw pennies, throw nickels, throw quarters, mama, mama, be good to me!"—you are herded down the gangplank into the customs where several hundred inspectors pay no attention whatsoever to you—suddenly a Cuban named Sweeney takes you in your bags are ripped open—

Kate's unmentionables spread all over the place—all is confusion—Sweeney finds an inspector who looks scornfully at your belongings—finally he plasters your luggage with labels and foul-smelling paste—Sweeney finds eight or nine porters—they start off on safari towards the taxicabs—you stand there with your fat face hanging open—

Outside you find Sweeney represents the Ritz Hotel or something—endless discussion—you fight your way into a cab and count your bags—you fight Sweeney off your back—then a mad race through the streets at forty per—your driver thinks you should see the city (750,000 population)—you think not—people hang on the running boards trying to frighten you into buying flowers, combs, razor blades, and lottery tickets—your driver recommends every hotel in town—you tell him no, no, no, you want to live in a private home—how else can you come to know and like Cubans?

Then the driver maneuvers his face into a friendly smile and his cab into the Vedado—a beautiful residential section beside the sea. He likes you! He realizes you are not merely tourists—and a few minutes later you begin to like Havana.

That is what happened to us. Our rooms are in the house of a famous sugar planter who, after amassing a fortune in the sugar trade, retired to Havana. How was the sugar crash of several years ago left him with only a beautiful home?

Since then he has taken guests recommended to him by his friends in Miami. The house is built of what seems to be pink cement, and the floors are varnished Cuban marble. Since the ceilings are at least twenty-five feet high, our rooms are dim and cool at all times. We have two rooms, private bath, and two negro servants, Manuel and Petra, who are ours to command. The view from our bedroom window is glorious—royal palm fronds, pink, white, and yellow rooftops, and the blue Caribbean, in that order.

Our meals are something to write home about: Desayuno this morning was pink grapefruit, eggs, white bread, and thick, black coffee. Almuerzo was Campbell's tomato soup, sirloin steak, French fries, avocados, and papayas. And Petra tells me we are to have roast chicken with rice for comida tonight.

Incidentally, if you're interested in our living expenses, the bill for all the above reaches the staggering sum of $3.40 per day.

Food of all kinds is cheap in Havana. Chickens cross counters for 40c, oranges for 10c per dozen, and a whole stalk of bananas—150 of them—can be had on any street corner for 45c.

If you're inclined to dissipate ever so slightly in the States, keep Havana behind you. For twenty-cent cigars are a nickel here, cigarettes the same, and the world-famous Bacardi rum rates $1.10 per fifth.

It is hard to write in Havana—very hard. Today we spent in solitude on the beach repossessing last summer's suntan—solitude because it is winter here and no Cuban would dream of bathing in the ocean. (Average winter temperature in Havana—85 degrees). Tonight we go to our first jaijai game. Tomorrow night to the Montmartre Club with two of our new Cuban friends, Julio and Herman Andrade. You see what I mean.

Kate sistas every noon and home-sicks every morning. But the first cup of crude coffee at breakfast would snap anyone out of anything.

It is usually hard to see Cuba clearly through the ever-present heat, the vicious glare of a tropical sun, the Latin fondness for "manana." As yet I do not feel one whit qualified to write objectively of the republic.

But by next week we shall have had many conversations with our friends. Curt questions "how would spoil everything." And Havana will have become home to us.

The following week will find us at Santiago de Cuba, a sprawling seaport at the other end of the island, 750 miles away. Our journey inland will be leisurely—for we will be extremely curious about the immense agricultural interior of Cuba.

We have just sweated visas out of the British and Haitian legations—and I use the word "sweated" accurately. For we had to have need of them. We will undoubtedly sail directly from Santiago for Port-au-Prince, capital of Haiti, and then on eventually to the British island of Jamaica.

Yet only time, two or three Spanish skippers, and the Trade Winds—can tell.

Right now I guess we'll go over to the corner for a coco place, coconut ice cream frozen in the half shell of a coconut.

I suppose the autumn air in Chelsea right now is clear and cool; the leaves are all red and gold rather than deep green; the high school footballers are just going down to practice. It would be nice to—but we mustn't weaken!

Only Yesterday---And What of Today?

Where only yesterday there was ample merchandise in all lines—today the talk is all a condition of scarcity in raw materials, in finished products.

Where, only yesterday, manufacturers were devoting their production efforts to making things that Mr. and Mrs. American use and buy every day—today they are working for Uncle Sam, helping to build a strength that none can surpass, nor equal.

We are prepared for the conditions facing us today. Now, when our customers need us most, we stand ready, as never before, to serve.
 Now, despite rapid price increases, in all lines, we are still maintaining lowest prices that good merchandise can be bought for anywhere, of anybody, any place.

HERE RESTS IN HONORED GLORY
 AN AMERICAN SOLDIER KNOWN BUT TO GOD

A HUSH comes over the land... the clock strikes eleven! Traffic halts, wheels stop, work ceases.
 Men, women and children throughout America face the East. A bugle blows. Taps... for America's sons who made the supreme sacrifice on the battlefields of freedom.

With bowed heads we recall another November 11th when the last shot was fired in France. We pay tribute to the Unknown Soldier who sleeps in Arlington cemetery, and to the unnumbered thousands of our sons and big brothers who sleep, not in the glory of Arlington, but in the greater glory of autumn, on wooded slope or in sunny field, beneath the quiet stars.

"On fame's eternal camping ground their silent tents are spread,
 And glory guards with solemn round the bivouac of dead."

Amid the imploring silence of this solemn hour comes the realization that the flower of America's manhood died not in vain, though the world is once more engulfed in the throes of war. They gave reality to the word, freedom. They gave us a rich heritage —to hold high the torch of liberty. The spark inherited from the legions of the fallen, who died in manhood's morning on the grand highway of freedom still glows in all American hearts today!

 bur Hinderer.

PLAN NEW BOMB SHELTERS

Something different in bomb shelters is being planned by the Michigan State Police and the Michigan Department of Health for their crime detection laboratory at Lansing. Instead of being inside the shelter, the people it is intended to protect will be outside. The bombs will be inside.

"Suspicious packages believed to be time bombs of saboteurs and other criminals can be put in the bomb shelter under a sort of quarantine," says Dr. H. Allen Moyer, State Health Commissioner. "And for examining packages before opening them, the shelter will be wired for x-ray equipment."

The bomb shelter will be half buried in the ground, and will have thick walls and a light roof, to give a quick release upward in case of an explosion.

When the law establishing it becomes effective in January, the state's crime detection laboratory will give services free to police, sheriffs' departments and other law enforcement offices all over the state. Dr. C. W.
 Stuchberger, director of the laboratory, was formerly Chicago's official bomb agency and toxicologist.

By Gene Allen

Lansing—Instead of plowing, crops under, Michigan farmers are asked to grow bigger crops in 1942.

The season is obvious. As Harry N. Scholler, director of the north central division of the AAA, said recently at a Lansing state meeting, "We've got to feed the army, the people, and the people of Europe."

Thus a complete reversal of the doctrine of scarcity has taken place in less than ten years, and the reason lies entirely out of the farmer's or consumer's control.

For the first time in many years, the farmers are urged to increase food production. They are assured, at the same time, of a "profit."

This will be good news to families on rural routes and to business men on Main street, but prosperity has its price and all is not rosy and bright.

Soil Conservation

Whereas in the last world war every available acre of land was turned under for growing of grain and the usual economic marginal use of land was completely ignored, this crisis is finding agricultural leaders prepared to get production results without sacrifice of soil conservation.

The submarginal land of low fertility will be left alone, according to present plans. Increased output will be effected through application of better farming methods.

Mechanized agriculture is going to occupy the stage. Manufacturers of farm equipment are being exempt from priorities, and logically so, if the front line of democracy is to extend back to the plow.

War-Time Profits

AAA Leader Scholler, speaking at a state meeting of more than 1,000 county committeemen at Lansing, urged farmers to avoid a war-time profit spurge of going into debt for purchase of more land, more machinery and "expensive" automobiles.

"Save your money, buy defense bonds," he pleaded, "so you'll be able later on to buy machinery and automobiles made by fast-free now working on defense orders. Thus we can keep the factories going and not have a post-war depression."

But the profits of 1942 production are not going to be easily realized. Big problems are the shortages of labor and farm equipment, and the two go together. Canada has sought to overcome them by mobilizing young women into harvesting brigades during the summer months. Such was done in this country to a limited extent during World War I, and the result was beneficial to morale as well as to farm output.

Cooperative ownership of farm machinery is suggested by Leo V. Card, commissioner of agriculture.

Food Prices

Before a congressional committee at Washington, Commissioner Card strongly opposed price-fixing for farm commodities "at this time."

If there must be price-fixing, as some experts advocate, then the expert insists on price ceilings, for all commodities including labor. And immediately you run counter into a powerful pressure group at Washing-

Let Pig Make Hog of Himself

Social graces are to be ignored when a pig takes steps to make a hog of himself. But if a farmer is wise, let alone hospitable, he makes certain a hog gets a balanced diet. According to V. A. Freeman of the Michigan State College animal husbandry department, it takes 11 bushels or more of just corn to make 100 pounds of pork. But when 42 pounds of tankage are fed, the corn requirement shrinks to 7 bushels and when 63 pounds of mixed supplement are fed it takes only 8 1/4 bushels of corn to add 100 pounds of gain.

ton, just as influential as the farmers themselves.

With the farmer opposing price-fixing and labor-telling the government to keep hands off, the housewife or consumer is being caught right in the middle. Here is where the peril of inflation sets in, a threat of scarcity which prompts many persons to overbuy and thus to create an artificial scarcity, kicking prices upward and upward.

A recent analysis of commodity markets, made by the Associated Press, shows that prices paid farmers for major commodities have soared three to 47 per cent since June, 1940, and 18 to 68 per cent since January of this year! Wholesale butter has gone up almost 40 per cent since June of last year; cheese, 11 per cent; eggs, 88 per cent; hogs, 117 per cent; many housewives have helped to push up spiraling food prices by buying a dozen cans instead of one or two, or case lots instead of a half dozen. Commodity men were quoted by the Associated Press as saying that buyers are their worst enemies.

Consumer groups, however, suspect that the middleman is profiteering at the expense of both the farmer and consumer. A state consumer committee was recently formed under auspices of the Michigan Council of Defense to investigate reports of excessive price raises.

Inflation

If what the experts proclaim at Washington economists such as Lubin and Henderson—an inevitable penalty which we must pay through inflation which is well under way, duplicating the World War inflation, will be a steady advance of food prices during the coming months.

Here you have the food picture in Michigan today—farmer, middleman and consumer.

Unemployment may exist in cities and towns, but there'll be no unemployment on Michigan farms in 1942. Home gardens will be larger; "root cellars" will be filled with more vegetables than usual; shelves of canned goods will bend under added weight. While the farmer will continue to exercise his inherited prerogative of complaining about the weather, he is going to be a lot better off than many city folks—and he knows it.

KIWANIS NEWS

The Kiwanians held another interesting meeting this week at Koll's hall. The history committee was in charge of the program, and it selected A. W. Wilkinson to speak on the history and development of Chelsea. Mr. Wilkinson has lived in this vicinity all of his life and was well qualified to talk upon this subject. He traced the various phases of the growth of Chelsea from a farming community to its present status as an industrial village. The speaker delighted the Kiwanians with his many anecdotes of the "good old days" before the advent of the automobile when the boys in the town had their greatest enjoyment sitting around the cracker barrel each evening. He concluded his fine talk by stating that he thought that Chelsea would increase its population even more in the future because of its location and labor conditions.

President Alfred D. Mayer thanked the Kiwanians and townspeople who cooperated to make the annual Halloween party this year such a success. The speaker mentioned that, in spite of the inclement weather, a large crowd attended this party and all seemed pleased with the cider doughnuts, and the fine program which was arranged by Charles Cameron.

Conservation Records Will Aid Deer Hunters

Lansing—Deer hunters still debating the choice of a spot for hunting this fall can pick a county to suit their preference from the conservation department records of what happened last season.

If the hunter wants to be in the thick of the fun he may choose Roscommon county, most heavily hunted in the entire state, with a hunter concentration of more than 25 to the square mile. Good reason for the hunter concentration is the county's production of 3,152 bucks, more than were killed in any other county.

If the hunter takes the "percentage" approach to his choice, upper peninsula counties, particularly Ontonagon, will be attractive. Every other hunter in Ontonagon county last season (54.7 percent) to be exact took home a buck, though the county's total kill was little more than half of Roscommon's.

In 1940 as for nearly every year for the last 10, the upper peninsula county poorest in terms of the percentage of hunters successful was better than the best county in the lower peninsula. But the lower peninsula, with more hunters also, produces more deer—31,320 bucks last year as compared with 20,393 taken north of the straits.

Average concentration for the entire state was 5.08 per square mile; 25.5 percent of all licensees got bucks, and the total kill was 51,713 deer, according to the report compiled by the conservation department's game division from hunters' game-kill cards.

The ten counties producing the most deer, in order: Roscommon, Oscoda, Alcona, Crawford, Ogemaw, Chippewa, Montmorency, Lake, Iron and Lapeer.

The 10 counties with the highest percentage of hunters successful, in order: Ontonagon, Iron, Gogebic, Baraga, Dickinson, Menominee, Schoolcraft, Mackinac, Delta and Chippewa.

Extremes of hunter concentration: 25.17 per square mile in Roscommon and 19.07 in Oscoda, compared with 1.57 in Menominee.

Simple little mistakes like those illustrated on the right above cause most hunting accidents. Correct habits of gun handling, shown on the left, are being demonstrated at sportsmen's shows and other meetings throughout the state in a conservation department campaign to keep hunters properly respectful of their firearms. Among elementary rules is one that guns should never be loaded in camp, home or cars but should be handled as carefully as if they were. In the field guns should never be carried with the safety off, nor ever allowed to point at anything the hunter does not intend to shoot. Fence climbing should be attempted only after the guns have been handed to a partner, or pushed through and laid on the ground by the hunter who is alone. Last season 35 of Michigan's 118,232 licensed deer and small game hunters died from accidents in the field.

Are you considering joining a MILITARY SERVICE?

Why not choose the NAVAL RESERVE!

AN IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT by the Secretary of the Navy

"All men now enlisting in the Naval Reserve will be retained on active Navy duty throughout the period of the national emergency, but they will be released to inactive duty as soon after the emergency as their services can be spared, regardless of the length of time remaining in their enlistment."

Frank Knox
SECRETARY OF THE NAVY

HERE IS THE OPPORTUNITY THAT THOUSANDS OF MEN HAVE BEEN LOOKING FOR

Here is your opportunity to have all the advantages and privileges of Navy life but with a shorter enlistment.

Many men do not realize—but it is a fact—that your pay, your training, and your chances for advancement in the Naval Reserve are exactly the same as in the Navy itself.

FREE TRAINING WORTH $1500

Take your own case. Let's assume that you have had no special training. In that case here is your opportunity to learn one of the Navy's 45 big-pay trades; from aviation engineering to radio. You may receive training worth $1500 the first year alone. In addition you get all the advantages listed in the second column of this announcement.

HIGHER-PAY OPPORTUNITIES

But perhaps you have had special training or know a trade. In that case the Naval Reserve offers you the opportunity to use your knowledge. If you qualify (high school or college not necessary), you can join as a petty officer right away—with higher pay and allowances. Also, if you have two or more years of college credits, there are special opportunities to become a Naval aviator or a commissioned officer.

LOOK WHAT THE U. S. NAVAL RESERVE OFFERS YOU

FREE TRAINING worth $1500. Nearly 50 trades and vocations to choose from.

GOOD PAY with regular increases. You may earn up to $126 a month.

EACH YEAR you are entitled to a generous vacation period, with full pay.

GOOD FOOD and plenty of it.

FREE CLOTHING. A complete outfit of clothing when you first enlist. (Over $100 worth.)

FREE MEDICAL CARE, including regular dental attention.

FINEST SPORTS and entertainment any man could ask for.

TRAVEL, ADVENTURE, THRILLS—You can't beat the Navy for them!

BECOME AN OFFICER. Many can work for an appointment to the Naval Academy or the Annapolis of the Air at Pensacola.

FUTURE SUCCESS. It's easy for Navy trained men to get good-paying jobs in civil life.

In any case, it is your chance of a lifetime to lead a healthy, exciting life... your chance to travel... and at the same time build a solid foundation for your future. There is nothing better than modern Navy Training for a successful career in civil life.
