I AM AN American Day

(May 17, 1942.)

I am an American.

I do not care for war. But I care less for abject slavery.

I do not like to fight. But I would sooner fight than be ruled by a tyrant whose goal is the subjugation of all mankind.

I do not like to kill. But I will not rest until the crazed ambitions of madmen are forever dead.

I do not want to die. But I prefer death to the loss of our heritage of freedom.

I am an American.

H. S. Band and Chorus

Will Present Concert

A concert will be presented by the Chelsea High School Band and Chorus on Tuesday night, May 19, at 8:00 o'clock in the high school auditorium.

The band has invited as its guest and soloist, Nannie Houston from the University of Michigan. Band Mr.
Houston was also in Chelsea on Monday, to present a group of clarinet solos for a high school assembly, and in the evening he entertained the Kiwanis club.

The Chorus and Band will each be in charge of half the program. For a changing number, the combined Band and Chorus will render "Land of Hope and Glory", a song which is a favorite here, and one that has come to mean much to England during this war.

Proceeds from the concert will be divided between the Band and Chorus and used in those respective organizations. The program has been made as entertaining as possible for everyone.

RIFLE PRACTICE CHANGED.

discontinued rifle practice at their range on Tuesday evenings. Their range, in the basement of the Baxter

Utility Executives Will Give Vital Information

In case of a local emergency, utility services will be of prime importance as one of the most vulnerable parts of community life. The County Council of Defense and War Board of the University of Michigan are sponsoring a discussion on what to do about utility services in case of enemy attack as the fifth meeting in the series of lectures being held on civilian protection.

On Monday, May 18, at 8:00 p. m., in Hill Auditorium, Ann Arbor, citizens will receive vital information on what they should do in regard to gas and electrical services, telephone and water supply, in case of disaster.

ager of the Ann Arbor office of the Michigan Consolidated Gas Company, will speak on gas services. W. W.
Williams, supervisor of overhead lines in the Detroit office of the Detroit Edison Company, will present the utility angle of defense so far as electrical power is concerned.

Speaking on the army air-raid warning system, Colonel E. N. Stannard, general traffic engineer of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, will come from the Detroit office to present the role of the telephone as seen from the utility point of view.
What to do about local water supply will be explained by the manager of the Ann Arbor City Water Department, Harrison H. Caswell, chairman of the County Council of Defense.

The meeting is open to the public free of charge.

Celebrate Golden Wedding

MR. AND MRS. JOHN WAHL

Mr. and Mrs. John Wahl, who celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Tuesday, May 12, were guests of honor at a family dinner on Sunday, held at the Marilyn Inn, and at an open house held at their home at 738
South Main street in the afternoon and evening.

At the dinner covers were laid for 20. The table was centered with a lovely bouquet of yellow roses and daisies, and flanked by two beautifully decorated wedding cakes. In attendance at the dinner were the sister of Mrs. Wahl, Mrs. Adolph Meyer, of Jackson, who was her bridesmaid, and William Wahl of North Francisco, brother of Mr. Wahl, who was the best man, at the wedding 50 years ago. Mrs. Wahl wore a gown of black lace and a corsage of yellow roses.

Many relatives and friends called during the afternoon and evening to extend their congratulations. The living room was decorated with the many gift bouquets and potted plants.

The dining table was covered with a lace cloth and the centerpiece was of yellow roses. Mr. and Mrs. Wahl received many gifts and cards.

Guests were present from Boston,
Mass., Lansing, Detroit, Jackson, Ann Arbor, Rives Junction, Waterloo, Francisco, Munith and Chelsea.

Mrs. Wahl was formerly Caroline Katz and when she was 11 years old moved to Manchester and later to Freedom township where she lived until her marriage to Mr. Wahl, which took place at her home on May 12, 1892. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Paul Irion of the Bethol church of Freedom, who now lives in St.
Louis, Mo. Mr. and Mrs. Wahl made their home in Waterloo township, where he was born, for 49 years and moved to Chelsea on March 10, 1941.
Mr. and Mrs. Wahl are the parents of three sons, Edward Wahl of Grass Lake, Lewis Wahl of Chelsea and Dill-man Wahl of Waterloo. Another son died several years ago.

When Uncle Sam fixed the top price which can be charged for everything from aspirin to ironing boards, it was the most far-reaching governmental order ever experienced by the American people.

"Tell us what to do and we will do it," has been the attitude with which the order has been received.

The Office of Price Administration tells you what to do in a simple three-point guide to shoppers:

(1) Before July 1, educate yourself as to how the price rules work and don't try to be a price policeman.

(2) After July 1, report established violations to War Price and Rationing Boards.

(3) For the duration, remember that you have a personal obligation to buy at or below the ceiling price and the plan won't work unless you make it work.

Since finding out how the price rules work is the first step in the OPA guide, the following questions and answers will acquaint you with the essential provisions:

Q. Why was the General Maximum Price Regulation issued?

A. It is a war measure to stop further increases in the cost of living.

Q. Why have prices been rising?

A. People have more money to spend and less civilian goods to buy.

Q. What prices are covered?

A. Nearly all prices charged by retailers, wholesalers, manufacturers and producers.

Q. What are the ceiling prices?

A. In general, the highest price charged for an individual article during March, 1942, by each individual seller.

Q. Then a can of tomatoes cost me more at one store than at another and both prices be legal?

A. Yes. The maximum price for an article is fixed at the highest price at which it was sold at that particular store in March, 1942.

Q. When does this ceiling become effective?

A. For goods sold at retail, which affects most of us, it becomes effective on May 18. However, for retail services to the consumer, it does not become effective until July 1; while for sales by manufacturers, producers and wholesalers and services rendered to an industrial consumer, the ceiling became effective May 11.

Q. Is there a limit on charges for laundries, dry cleaners, auto repair shops, radio repairmen and such?

A. Yes. These are classed as retail services to the consumer, but purely personal services such as beauty and barber shops are exempt.

Q. Is real estate included?

A. No. Sales of land and buildings are exempt.

Q. Can prices be lower than the ceiling?

A. Yes. They can be as low as the seller wishes.

Q. Is there a maximum on food or beverages served in hotels, restaurants and lunchrooms?

A. No.

Q. What does the price regulation cover?

A. Practically every article used in the life and work of America. Included are the basic "cost-of-living" articles—clothing, fuel, furniture, most foods, hardware, appliances, tobacco, drugs, toilet articles and agricultural supplies.

Q. But there are some exceptions.

A. Yes. The OPA is not permitted to set ceilings on farm products that are selling below parity. The Act also exempts newspapers, magazines, theater admissions, railroad and bus fares. Because of obvious administrative difficulties, also exempt are fresh fish, fresh fruits and vegetables, rare stamps and coins and objects of art.

Raw farm products such as wheat are exempt from ceilings but these same products, when processed and prepared for the consumer, as in the form of bread, are under price ceilings.

A LETTER TO.
Chelsea
from
The Bahamas

(Written aboard a small Dutch merchantman in the Bahamas).

It is 10:15 in the morning, the bright warm morning of March 16, 1942. Kate and I are both sunning ourselves on the passenger deck below the bridge.

A cry comes from the lookout above the bridge:

"Lifeboat off the port bow!"

Activity. Excitement. We borrow binoculars. Sure enough! A lifeboat is shaping up on the horizon, a lifeboat with sail up and flying a yellow distress flag.

Much speculation as the ship draws near. The men in the boat are waving their caps and rowing for all they are worth. When they perceive we have changed our course they bend exhausted over the oars.

Within fifty yards of the ship their identity is established beyond a doubt. The eleven men in the lifeboat are part of the officers and crew of the small Dutch freighter S. S. Astrea—the sister ship of the one on which we are sailing!

We pull alongside, a ladder is lowered, they come over the rail slowly. Some of them need help. They are a haggard, helpless, pitiful lot, all unshaven and all sucking buttons. Members of the two crews throw arms around each other; tears are seen in a great many eyes.

All are terribly thirsty. They gulp down water by the bucket. One can't wait for it to be poured from a teakettle; he grabs the kettle, drinks from the mouth.

Coffee, sandwiches, fruit juice, and cigarettes appear on deck as though by magic. Our captain is very nervous, his watches posted everywhere. The Germans like nothing better than a halted ship for a target. They have been known to wait for days near a lifeboat until it has been sighted, then torpedo the rescue ship when it stops.

As soon as the lifeboat has been hoisted aboard, the bells jangle and we proceed full speed ahead. The rescued are all weak and it would not do to question them too strenuously just now, but they do say another lifeboat containing fifteen men is somewhere in the area. All in all, they have been adrift over eleven days, and the two boats became separated in a storm three days previous. However, we cannot afford to circle and search; it is much too dangerous. The other boat must be left to its fate.

Our ship has been under way only ten minutes when a watch signals out again:

"Lifeboat off the starboard bow!"

We have spotted the other boat. We pull alongside, stop, and repeat the process of rescue. In this boat are the captain and the Chief Engineer of the Astrea. This fifteen is in equally bad shape. We notice their feet are all swollen and cracked open. We cannot understand why.

While the second lifeboat is still in the water, a neutral Argentine ship, the Rio Igazu of Buenos Aires, appears on the scene. It was most incongruous to see a ship still brightly painted, with plenty of light fixtures in evidence. However, the Argentine flag was plastered all over her sides and stern. She halted five hundred yards off and asked if she could be of assistance.

Yes, she could, our captain replied. His ship lacked accommodations for twenty-six extra passengers, and so the fifteen in the second lifeboat were transferred to the Rio Igazu, which was also bound for New York.

What a target we presented! Two merchant ships at a dead halt, on a bright morning with perfect visibility! Yet we proceeded northward unscathed.

When the rescued were rested and shaved and fed and bathed we had excellent opportunities to question them, and they were not at all reticent. Just after nightfall on the 4th of March a sub came to the surface and threw a shell over their bows, having used its periscope to determine they were unarmed. Then they were warned to abandon ship immediately, and the crew made for the lifeboats.

The Nazis, perceiving them to be Dutch, decided to frighten them so completely they would never dare return to sea. Thus, as the boats were lowered, they were shelled and machine-gunned. Luckily, no one was wounded, but the lifeboats were punctured in many places and leaked badly. This accounted for the condition of the crew's feet, for they were immersed in salt water for almost twelve days. After they pulled away, the Astrea was sent to the bottom by shell fire. She was carrying, incidentally, a valuable cargo of Brazilian rubber.

After things had quieted down aboard our captain told us he would wager there were ten lifeboats in the two-hundred-fifty mile area around us. But it would be suicide to search. Ever since we left Haiti he had received four and five radiograms per day, each announcing another sinking along our route. Many of these sinkings have not yet been announced; many never will be.

The rescue of those twenty-six men was an experience we shall never forget.

get. They recuperated rapidly although their nerves were constantly on edge.

We still had one thousand miles of Atlantic to traverse. And our captain said the barometer was falling. It looked like a storm.

We were ordered not to take showers, to keep our cabin doors open, and to sleep with clothes on and lifebelts handy. From now on it would all be a matter of luck.

CORRECTION

The item in last week's Standard stating that Mr. and Mrs. Bert Foster had purchased the Regner Tavern recently was erroneous, as Mr. and Mrs. Foster have owned the tavern building and adjacent land for the past six years. They took possession of the property on May 1 after purchasing the tavern equipment from Mr. and Mrs. Rogner.

ELTON R. EATON CANDIDATE FOR UNITED STATES SENATE

Elton R. Eaton, editor and publisher of the Plymouth Mail, has announced that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator.

Petitions are already in circulation for him. Editor Eaton, who started in the senatorship contest two years ago but withdrew in favor of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg when he failed to win a place on the national ticket, declares that it is his intention to put up one of the hardest fights he has ever made for the nomination.

His announcement makes possible for the Republicans the selection of a candidate who cannot be accused of an isolationist attitude. He has long been an ardent advocate of a powerful United States air, navy and armed force.

Before You Move...

BE SURE YOU CAN GET A TELEPHONE

Before you decide to move or build, the Telephone Company will be glad to advise you whether war restrictions will permit you to have the telephone service you will need.

Even though telephone service is furnished now in the locality to which you plan to move, it may not be possible to supply you with any service, or exactly the kind of service you want.

Drastic restrictions of telephone installations have been ordered by the War Production Board in the interest of conserving war materials.

Except as needed for war purposes, or by those responsible for public health, welfare or security—

1. Telephone service cannot be provided at some locations.

2. Party line service only, can be furnished in many cases.

3. Extension telephones cannot be installed in residences.

4. Additional apparatus may be installed only on a limited basis.

In so far as materials and war restrictions permit, we shall provide the best possible service, and we look forward to the day when we again can give the kind of service wanted, “when and where wanted.”

But now, and for the duration, war needs come first. That is part of the price of protecting liberty.

Except as needed for war purposes, or by those responsible for

public health, welfare or security—

Our Line of Defense

At the time of Civilian Registration in February, close to fifty persons signed up as blood donors.

The next program for this contribution will be held in Ann Arbor on May 20. It is necessary to make the appointments between the hours of 12:00 noon and 4:30; each appointment requiring about a half hour.

Chester has been outstanding in her work for Defense and inasmuch as the contribution of this plasma may result in the saving of a life on the military or home front, it is hoped that many from our locality who signed up in this classification will respond to the call for May 20.

Appointments must be made and any who are registered at the Civilian Defense Volunteer office and are willing to go to Ann Arbor on this date, please call Mrs. A. A. Palmer who will see that transportation is provided on that day. Immediate calls are urged because of the necessity of working by appointment.

With propaganda serving as one of the Axis weapons, local defense authorities in the State of Michigan are now organizing to combat false information. The Washtenaw County Council of Defense has swung into action. As one of the first approaches to the public, traveling exhibits will be prepared for different store windows in the county by a museum expert with the assistance of professional interior decorators and artists. Watch for this exhibit.

To enlist the interest of young people, an essay contest will be conducted in high schools throughout the county on "What Can I Do To Help On The Home Front?" Prizes will be offered by service clubs and business firms.

Washtenaw county needs 200 Red Cross nurses' aides. A new training course will start in June at the University hospital and continue for seven weeks, followed by 150 hours of practical application. This training gives a nurse's aide the right to work in any hospital in the United States. Why can't Chelsea send some of her people who are interested in the field of nursing and who wish to cooperate with Civilian Defense, to participate in this splendid training?

Here is your information:

Who are they? Women with an aptitude for nursing and a desire to participate in civilian defense who are between 18 and 50, have equivalent of a high school education, will give service without pay, will take training course and give 150 hours service annually; will take 20-hour First Aid Course.

What do they do? Work as assistants to nurses—making beds, giving baths, taking temperature, pulse, respiration, assisting with non-sterile dressings, helping to apply casts and slings, making patients comfortable, etc.

Where do they work? In wards of hospitals, in hospital clinics, in official and voluntary public health nursing agencies, in industrial health clinics, in school health services, in all field health organizations.

What training is required? 1. The 20-hour training course; Unit I: class work taught by a qualified graduate nurse at local Chapter House or other suitable place; Unit II: supervised practice in wards of hospitals specially designated as training centers by the Office of Civilian Defense. 2. The 20-hour First Aid Course.

Who sponsors this course? The American National Red Cross; the U. S. Office of Civilian Defense.

What uniforms do they wear? The blue and white uniform authorized by the American Red Cross and the U. S. Office of Civilian Defense, with the insignia of the Volunteer Nurses' Aide Corps on the sleeve and cap.

Where can they apply? To the American Red Cross Chapter or to the Civilian Defense Volunteer Office in their community.

Do not confuse this course with "Home Nursing and Care of the Sick." We are anxious, also, to start a course in Chelsea under this heading. An instructor has been obtained and the class requires two hours a week for ten weeks.

Chester has come across in a big way in Nutrition, First Aid and Canteen, now let's pursue a course that will not only be helpful to you in your own home but will enable you to help out in an emergency.

For either of the above courses, call Mrs. A. L. Steger or Mrs. A. A. Palmer. They will be glad to take your application and give any further information that you desire.

During the consumer sugar registration 2689 people registered at the Chelsea public school, and of this number 2262 people received war ration stamp books. There were 427 who did not receive stamp books because they possessed more sugar than was permitted.

About 20 volunteer registrars assisted the teachers in the registration. Mr. Johnson wishes to thank the volunteer registrars, the teachers, and the general public for their very excellent spirit and cooperation in carrying out the registration, which was completed with a minimum of difficulty.

Farmers Urged To Treat Seed Potatoes

Michigan farmers preparing to plant an increased 1942 acreage of potatoes are urged to select good seed and treat before planting to insure quality and increased yields.

"It takes just as much labor to grow a diseased crop," warns J. H. Muncie, Michigan State College extension specialist in plant disease, "as to grow a healthy one. Three essential practices are recommended. Even healthy appearing seed potatoes may not be free of disease. They do not contain virus or degeneration disease. Therefore, says Dr. Muncie, it is important to get seed from a high yielding crop that showed little or no disease."

Second of the authority's recommendations advises treatment to kill scab or scurf. Commonly used is corrosive sublimate, four ounces of the chemical to 30 gallons of water. Seed tubers are soaked before cutting. Soaking should last 30 minutes and then the seed potatoes should be dried in the shade. If corrosive sublimate is too expensive or not available, then a commercial compound such as Semesan-Bel can be used as directed on the label. Formalin, one pint in 30 gallons of water, may be used for scab control, soaking tubers 1½ to 2 hours.

After the potatoes are treated, they should be placed in a cool, dry shaded spot and allowed to green-sprout. This process increases the stand and insures earlier growth in the field.

Sprouts should be allowed to grow a quarter to a half inch before cutting into seed pieces. Then, says Dr. Muncie, the seed ought to go into a well-firmed soil. This is his preliminary recipe for a start on a volume of good quality potatoes for 1942. Spraying and dusting recommendations follow the crop into the harvest season.

"My father works for Hitler." These boastful words, uttered by a lad at a Michigan public school, led to the identification by the Michigan State Police of a Nazi agent.

The agent was employed by the German library of information with offices in the United States at New York City, and it was his duty to circulate propaganda favorable to the Nazi cause and to establish friendly contacts.

But here are two significant facts: The Nazi sympathizer is an American-born citizen. He speaks English fluently.

While he is denied access into Michigan war plants, through friendly cooperation of plant managers with the state police, he is at liberty today, free to speak and to act as he pleases providing he is not caught in the act of espionage or sabotage.

Peril of sabotage exists in Michigan today. And the Michigan State Police and the Federal Bureau of Identification know it well.

But to finish our story, The revealing words of the Nazi agent's son, uttered in a moment of youthful bragging, finally reached the attention of police detectives through a long chain of events. One of the boy's chums told his father about the conversation at dinner table. The father reported it to the school teacher. The teacher questioned the boy after school hours and verified the statement. Then the principal notified state police.

Identification of the Nazi agent occurred prior to the outbreak of war last December. It occurred also when diplomatic immunity existed for German agents and when German propaganda was permitted to circulate openly through the United States mail.

Such agents are known to the subversive squad of the state police, headed by Detective Lieut. Edward Mulbar. In fact, a long list of suspects has been compiled, and the activity of these individuals is carefully followed.

Insidious acts of propaganda have already been detected in Michigan.

Here are several examples. A barber advises a customer to withdraw money from any bank. He says he can't reveal the reason, but insists that the information is "very confidential."

Investigation discloses that the barber obtained the so-called "tip" in a letter sent to him by a friend in New York City. FBI locate the individual who admitted he had merely heard a rumor.

Whispered propaganda is easy to spread.

You recall the incident a number of years ago when rumors were circulated that a Republican nominee for the Presidency had negro blood? Every president has been the target of vicious rumors, from George Washington to Franklin D. Roosevelt.

A second illustration, reported recently to the Michigan State Police, was a story that war defense bonds and stamps were not a safe investment, that the government was going to repudiate them and so on.

Who would benefit from such a lie? The answer is obvious.

Albert Karl Kalschmidt is a name better known in World War I than today.

Kalschmidt was the leader of a gang of traitors, members of the Deutschland in Detroit, who plotted to destroy Michigan-made munitions. Others in this conspiracy were Walter Schulz, Charles Francis Respa and his brother-in-law, Carl Schmidt.

They decided to blow up the Detroit Screw Works. This plan was changed because Kalschmidt decided that the place was too well guarded, and the Peabody Overall Company factory in Walkerville across the border in Canada was selected instead.

Another target was the Windsor Army which housed many Canadian soldiers.

The factory bomb exploded, but luckily for the Canadian soldiers the one at the armory did not.

Kalschmidt and his gang of saboteurs were finally arrested and sentenced to serve terms in prison.

While enemy bombing raids by airplanes are expected to be made against Michigan military centers, such as the St. Mary's river locks at Sault Ste. Marie, the Willow Run bomber plant near Ypsilanti and the Chrysler tank plant in Macomb county, a greater danger lurks in the possibility of disastrous sabotage being committed by a handful of enemy agents. Most of them would be emigrants or American-born citizens.

Quislings to the cause of the United Nations.

When can we expect such sabotage? Will it occur in the factory at the assembly line?

Here is one guess, and we cannot quote our authority. It will happen when the finished product—the tank, airplane motor, or other material—is ready for shipment. Fire is the chief weapon of the saboteur. It could destroy a million feet of valuable timber in northern Michigan or thousands of bushels of valuable grain in elevators in country towns.

There will be other Kalschmidts in this war. Michigan must be alert to the peril of these American Quislings who would misuse American freedom in order to destroy it!

Other Sweets Can Be Substituted For Sugar

Sugar continues to make news and history but it isn't necessary to dip into the sugar supply to sweeten many of the normal Michigan meals.

Suggestions from the home economics extension service at Michigan State College indicate the several ways a cook can turn to save sugar.

One cup of refined white sugar can be replaced by one cup of maple sugar, maple syrup or honey or by 1½ cups of sorghum syrup or cane syrup or by two cups of corn syrup.

In the lemonade season a handy recipe can be used without disturbing the sugar. A tasty hot weather drink includes 2½ cups corn syrup, one quart ice water or carbonated water, a half cup strained lemon juice and an eighth teaspoon of salt. Mix the corn syrup and ice water, add the lemon juice and salt and serve with cracked ice.

In changing from sugar to syrup for sweetening, some modification is made in most recipes in the liquid.

Michigan State College authorities recommend:

For cakes and cookies, use honey to replace sugar, cup for cup, but use only half the quantity of other liquid usually recommended. If the original recipe suggests a cup of sugar and a cup of milk, then the cook can use a cup of honey and half a cup of milk.

When corn, cane or maple syrups replace sugar, reduce the liquid in the recipe by one-third.

Those who turn to sorghum can follow the same rule as with other syrups, but the baking powder should be reduced. A half teaspoon of soda should be added for each cup of sorghum and this has the leavening power of two teaspoons of baking powder.

CLUB HOLDS FINAL MEETING

The last regular meeting of the Chelsea Study club was held at the home of Mrs. Warren R. Daniels on Tuesday evening. Following a very short business session, Mrs. John Hale introduced Dr. Otto La Porte of the University of Michigan, who talked to the group on "Succulents."

Dr. La Porte, who had previously been a guest speaker at the club, presented his subject material in a most delightful way, giving the group the names of all the families of plants known as succulents, then taking up different plants in these classifications, chiefly cacti, sedums and crassulaceae among others.

He showed examples of many specimens which he had brought with him and finally closed his discussion by explaining the various methods of propagating similar plants. This was an evening that was interesting to all who heard his talk, regardless of whether they had ever grown such plants as a hobby, or not.

Mrs. Daniels and Mrs. Philip J. Olin were hostesses for the evening.

Mrs. Earl Combs is a patient at St. Joseph's Mercy hospital, Ann Arbor.

KIWANIS NEWS

The Kiwanians enjoyed another fine meeting on Monday evening of this week at St. Paul's hall. The ladies of the church prepared and served a delicious dinner to the members and their guests. The Kiwanians later commemorated National Music Week by arranging an excellent program under the direction of Marshall Richards. Mr. Richards spoke briefly concerning the progress of the Chelsea high school band and mentioned the importance of music appreciation in these perilous times. The speaker then introduced Norris Huston of the University of Michigan Band, and Dick Richards, who played several classical numbers on the clarinet for the gathering. They were ably accompanied by Miss Marie McNeil at the piano.

President Russell A. McLaughlin, Lloyd R. Heydlauff and P. F. Niehaus attended the annual District meeting in Ann Arbor on Monday evening. Mr. McLaughlin ably summarized the many achievements of the Chelsea Kiwanis club during the past year at this gathering and spoke briefly of the new projects undertaken by the local club for the coming year. He also presented a twenty-five dollar check on behalf of the Chelsea club to the Underprivileged Child Committee to aid the furtherance of its fine work among the underprivileged children in the University Hospital at Ann Arbor.

Mr. and Mrs. David Colquhoun entertained their brother-in-law, John Wingate, of Detroit as a guest over the week-end.

THE LIBRARY AND DEFENSE

It is the earnest desire of the trustees of the Chelsea library to promote projects in the library which may help in the general program of war efforts. One of the plans now being worked out is to arrange exhibits of books and pamphlets on subjects related to projects now being conducted in the community. Victory Gardens, Home Defense, Nutrition, and First Aid have been selected for first attention.

The Victory Garden exhibit will be in the library beginning this week. One of the outstanding features of this exhibit is a Garden Encyclopedia recently added to the library. Bring your gardening problems to the library and see if you can find the answers in the books and pamphlets exhibited there.

Other exhibits will be added as soon as the material can be collected.

WALWORTH & STRIETER

SHE LOVED A SPY

by SYLVIA TAYLOR

THE STORY SO FAR: Joan, a secretary, in love with her nightclub employer, Karl Miller, is horrified when he shoots his business partner, Eric Strom. She is tickled when he tells her he has a wife in Germany, and is acting as a spy. When she threatens to tell the police, he reminds her, her finger prints are on the gun, implanted there when he asked her to pick it up. And unless she will keep silent and continue her work, she will be charged with the murder. When his manager, Paul Sherman, who had been a friend to Joan, backs him up, the terrified girl agrees. Later Paul secretly reveals to her he is really an FBI agent, and she promises to help him trap the higher-ups in the spy ring. Police find Sybil's clothing and a suicide note near a bridge over Paul's steps. While he is holding her hostage, meanwhile Karl hires a beautiful girl as a singer, who turns out to be Paul's run-away sister and who innocently betrays him. Karl captures Joan and Paul as they find a Nazi radio transmitter and bomber plans and places them under guard on board an old tramp steamer. Paul and Karl will transfer the stolen bomber plans to a submarine.

Now continue with the story.

"Shut up! Give me that envelope. We're getting out of here. Come on, Joan, I'll keep you with me." Paul walked ahead and Karl followed with Joan. His grasp on her arm was painful, but she did not wince. She was too proud to let Karl Miller see that he had hurt her.

There was a long ride down the Embarras. Neither Karl nor Paul spoke. As they went through the warehouse and up the swaying steps of the gangplank, Joan was surprised at her own calmness. She was no longer afraid of Karl Miller. She followed Paul's example of superb indifference.

On deck Paul and Joan were led to a small shabby cabin, and the door locked behind them.

"Cozy?" Paul grinned.

"Paul! You act as though you actually enjoy this."

His face grew serious. "I don't like it for your sake, Joan. But so far as I'm concerned, it couldn't have worked out better."

"What do you mean?"

"I counted on Karl's finding us at the beauty shop. I wanted him to. I think he'll lead us to the rest of the gang this way."

Joan sat down gingerly on a dirty, faded chintz chair. "But you said those papers were enough."

Paul lit a cigarette. "They were, but I still have a few ends to tie. We're not in any actual danger yet. Trust me for that."

Paul watched Joan as she explored their tiny prison. "You have more nerve than any other girl I ever saw," he said admiringly, repeating what he had said the night Karl killed Strom and Joan had promised to help trap Karl after Paul revealed he was an FBI man.

"My knees are shaking," Joan admitted, smiling. "But I wouldn't let Karl know how I felt. I would give him too much satisfaction."

"Good girl!" Paul approved.

"And," Joan continued, "this may be your idea of no actual danger, but it doesn't seem that way to me."

The gentle throb of the ship's engines warned them the freighter was moving. "Here we go," Paul said.

"Try to trust me, Joan, that this is the best way. I took you with me tonight deliberately because I was afraid that it would be worse for you if you were left behind."

"What about Pat?"

"Pat doesn't know anything. They won't be apt to harm her."

In the dim light of a small electric bulb they waited. As the ship rolled more, Paul said, "We're going through the Gate now. We'll soon be on the open sea."

"Where is Karl taking us? Can't you tell me that?"

"I'd rather not. The first thing to find out is how he intends to get rid of those plans," he added.

"Might ship them to a submarine."

"A submarine!" Joan cried in dismay.

"It's not a pretty picture, is it?" Paul said grimly. "That's why I don't want you to know too much."

Karl did not reappear but a sailor unlocked the door and mumbled something to Paul in German. "He says he'll show you to your cabin," Paul explained.

"I'd rather stay here!"

But Paul advised her to go without objection, so Joan followed the sailor out on deck. He opened a door and motioned for her to go inside. Hesitatingly she obeyed.

There was a bunk with a quilt folded neatly upon it, a washstand and one porthole through which Joan could see the deck. Fog enveloped the sea and it was impossible to tell how far away from shore they were. In a few minutes she heard the sound of footsteps, and sitting up she saw that Paul was being shown into the cabin next to hers. Even though the door was locked behind him and a sailor remained on guard outside, Joan was comforted to know that he was near.

Joan had not expected to have any rest that night but she found herself overcome with fatigue. She wakened to feel the warmth of the sun upon her face.

CHAPTER XIV

Karl was dressed in white. In appearance and manner he was as smooth and impeccable as always. But the same qualities that once charmed Joan now disgusted her as she asked coldly, "Where is Paul?"

"Do you expect me to tell you?" Karl parried.

Where was Paul? This subject held her interest most. She dared not think what might become of her without him.

But the day passed, the night, the next day, and still she had not seen him. And the next morning as she saw Karl coming on deck, she demanded, "What have you done with Paul? I want to see him."

"All right," Karl agreed surprisingly. "He summoned a sailor and spoke to him in German."

A few minutes later Paul appeared. His coat and tie were gone and his shirt was open at the throat. He looked tired.

"Karl spoke rapidly in German, then suddenly turned on his heel and walked away."

"Oh, Paul!" Joan gasped. "Are you all right?"

"I'm fine," Paul said grimly. "Karl's just been trying to persuade me to join his little group. Both of us, for that matter. He thinks we'd be valuable to him in his spying business."

Then he glanced at her with a smile. "You sound almost as if you care."

"I do," Joan said. And suddenly she realized that she did care. That she cared terribly what happened to Paul O'Malley.

Five more days passed as the weather became increasingly uncomfortable.

"We're probably off the coast of Mexico," Paul said as he stood at the rail looking into the vast expanse of blue sky and water.

Without turning his head, Paul said in a low voice, "I have something to tell you. Do you know which sailor is called Thomas?"

"I think so. The one who brings our meals."

"Right. It seems Karl has something on him, forced him into service on this ship by blackmail. He's promised to help us, when the time comes."

"What time?" Joan asked, feeling suddenly chilled in spite of the tropical sun.

"If everything goes as I expect it should be within two or three days."

"You still don't know how Karl plans to get rid of those papers?"

"Submarine," Paul said briefly. "Thomas tells me we're to contact it within the next twenty-four hours."

"There's a ring around the moon," Paul observed. "We're going to have some bad weather."

"Anything would be better than this. Closing her eyes against the heat, Joan leaned her head against the chair.

When she felt a hand over hers, she started. "Oh, Paul..."

Color flooded her cheeks. "Joan," he said simply, "don't you know I'm in love with you?"

Rejoice and joy flooded her heart. "I've been in love with you ever since the first day I saw you," Paul went on in his quiet voice. "But there was Karl."

"Oh, darling, that wasn't real. I didn't love Karl. I just thought I did. You must believe that, Paul!"

"Of course I believe it, honey."

"If I didn't, do you think I'd be telling you this? We O'Malleys are cagey people."

She smiled in the darkness.

"If we ever get out of this mess," Paul continued seriously, "will you marry me? It's not an easy life, you know, Joan. I'm gone a great deal and my job's dangerous. I haven't much to offer."

"You have all I want," Joan assured him. "And Paul, we've got to get out of this now. There's so much to live for."

Karl's voice broke through the night. "What a romantic little scene this is. Too bad that you two must be separated."

Joan felt Paul's warning hand upon her arm but she burst out, "What do you mean?"

"I have been listening to your charming conversation," Karl told her. Joan could see the outline of his white suit in the darkness, the glow of his cigarette. "Since you seem so well informed about my plans, it might interest you to know that when that submarine leaves this ship, Paul will be on it."

"Not You can't do that!"

She could imagine his smile as he said, "I am really quite jealous, Joan, that you can transfer your affection so quickly. I would prefer that Paul is safely out of the way so that there is nothing to interfere with our friendship."

Paul's hands clinched on the arms of his chair, but he said nothing. Joan understood then that it was better to pacify Karl than to antagonize him further.

On deck, Joan had to cling to Paul to prevent the wind from sweeping her off her feet.

Her hand grasped Paul's tightly as Karl disappeared around the corner of the deck. "Is he bluffing?" she whispered.

"Of course he is," Paul replied calmly. "It would be easier to get rid of me entirely than to put me on another boat. I wouldn't be any asset to Karl on a submarine."

Joan slept little that night. The ship began to roll and shudder as it met the seas that increased as the night went on. A sharp wind swept the deck. Black clouds raced across the moon and the sea splashed and hissed as it lashed over the prow.

Paul's finger tapped on the wall. Joan moved closer to the thin boards that separated them and called, "What is it?"

She did not understand his reply but realized that his door was being unlocked.

Presently Paul's head appeared in her door. "Thomas is here and knows where those papers are. We're going to get them," he said.

"Karl will find out," she warned.

"Karl and the captain are drinking below. They won't bother us."

"Take me with you. Please! I'm afraid."

Paul hesitated, then said, "All right. Maybe it would be better."

On deck, Joan had to cling to Paul to prevent the wind from sweeping her off her feet. The decks were slippery from the spray and the waves rose like black liquid mountains. As they proceeded cautiously, Joan dared not look out into the night. It was total blackness, and sky and water seemed blended into one evil force from which came the howling wind and spray.

At last Thomas unlocked a door and crossed the room. "They're in here," he whispered, indicating a small wall safe. "I know how to open it."

He handed the papers to Paul. "Do what you like with them! I hate Karl Miller!" In the glow of the flashlight his eyes gleamed.

Paul rapidly sorted them.

"What are you going to do then?" Joan asked.

"I'm going to change them—the plans for the bombing plane at least."

"We should meet the submarine tomorrow," Thomas said, looking fearfully over his shoulder. "But with this weather we may be off our course."

Paul seated himself at the small wooden table and handed a flashlight to Thomas. "Hold it as steady as possible," he ordered. From his pocket he drew a small bottle, a brush, pen and ink.

"What are you doing?" Joan asked, watching the grotesque shadows cast on the wall as Paul's fingers moved deftly over the paper.

"When I get through with these plans they won't know whether it's a bombing plane or a washing machine."

Once Thomas opened the door to listen, but only the wind greeted them, blowing the salt spray into their faces, and he shook his head. "This is going to be a bad one," he predicted, forcing his shoulder against the door to close it.

Paul finished his work and replaced the plans carefully in the safe. Joan was surprised to see him put the other papers back in their respective envelopes.

"These papers are probably going to Europe," Paul explained as he shut the safe.

Thomas nodded. "That's right. That's the way Karl always does it. Then they can't prove anything."

Paul threw the circle of his flashlight upon the door. "I can prove it this time."

"That's what some of the others thought," Thomas whispered, "but I've never seen anyone double-cross Karl and live to tell about it!"

"Let's get out of here," Paul said, taking Joan's arm.

The three of them made their way back and crowded into Joan's small cabin. Thomas stood by the door listening. "I guess Karl won't come on deck on a night like this," he said.

"There's nothing to do now but wait for morning," Paul said. "And I want you to get some sleep, Joan."

Freshmen At their class meeting last Wednesday the Freshmen elected Veryl Steinway and Rose Mary Lyons as candidates for president and vice-president of the Student Council. Then they took a vote to see how many wanted an all-high party May 29; the results were to have an all-high party.

Sophomores Wednesday during their class meeting the Sophomores elected Donald Schanz and Virginia Lucht for president and vice-president of the Student Council. They also discussed the book campaign party sponsored by the Sophomores, which will be May 15.

Juniors The Juniors chose Jeanette May and Dorothy McGee to run for president and vice-president of the Student Council. After they nominated their officers for Student Council they made plans for the reception and talked about their play which was last Friday.

Girls' Athletics

The girls were scheduled to play softball against Dexter (there) on Thursday, May 7, but because of the bad weather the game was postponed until later. At their last game with Dexter the Chelsea girls lost and added it up to inexperience, but this time they hope to end up on top.

Home Economics

Girls of the Home Economics club are planning their yearly party, which will probably be a dinner, then all will go to the show in either Jackson or Ann Arbor. This event will take place in the near future.

Students in Home Economics II are planning a special salad luncheon.

Hi-Y News

The Hi-Y sponsored the taking of individual pictures again this year. The pictures arrived last Wednesday morning and were distributed by the class advisors.

The photos this year were larger than those taken last year and were a big improvement.

F. F. A.

At the meeting of F. F. A. last week the following Planning Committee was appointed: Jack Niehaus, Joe Merkel, Henry Orthberg, and Charles Downer. This committee will plan the program for next year.

Some of the boys are making contract agreements with the F. F. A. for sows they will raise.

Chelsea Defeats Saline

Chelsea chalked up their second win of the baseball season last Friday afternoon, when they defeated Saline on the local diamond.

Chelsea started the scoring in the first inning when they managed to gain a single run. In the second, they came through with 9 runs, keeping the score at ten during the rest of the ball game. Saline earned a single run in the fifth, which turned out to be their only score of the game.

Slane pitched the first five innings, being relieved by Edgar, who did not allow the opposition to score during the rest of the game. Playing especially good baseball were Dan Ewald and Bob Strieter.

Seen and Heard

Around School

Things are settling down to normal again at old C. H. S. after last week's sugar rationing and the Junior play.

During sugar rationing Mr. Chandler's greatest difficulty seemed to be in getting relationships and weights figured out to his satisfaction.

We couldn't help but notice how well Bob Strieter looked in his attire. Anyone would have thought the Roman Gods were returning.

It was rather dangerous to be wandering around backstage if you happened to run into Aunt Tillie and her umbrella, and wasn't it a shame to waste that perfectly good cream pie on Luther's face!

DO YOU KNOW?
Mr. and Mrs. Resident of Washtenaw County:
In case of an air raid and in anticipation and preparation for one—
DO YOU KNOW what to do in case the electric service lines are down in your own yard or in the vicinity of your residence?
DO YOU KNOW how to illuminate portions of your home or building by the use of a certain type of electric bulb, low in cost, which will throw light where you need it and in no way detract from the effectiveness of your blackout arrangements?
DO YOU KNOW how and when to use the telephone?
DO YOU KNOW what to do in case a gas main is broken and what you should do and should not do with your gas equipment?
DO YOU KNOW when and how to use water?
DO YOU KNOW what to do in case there should be several large conflagrations in your city, town, or village? Attend the meeting at Hill Auditorium on May 18 and these questions on use of utilities during air raids will be answered by experts who have been selected to give you this information.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE

By Rolly Spaulding

Schedule
Thursday, May 14—Spaulding Chevrolet vs. Federal Screw.
Monday, May 18—Central Fibre vs. Federal Screw.
Tuesday, May 19—Spaulding Chevrolet vs. Kimunity.
Thursday, May 21—Cassidy Lake vs. Chelsea Springs.

Standings

	W	L	Pct.
Central Fibre	1	0	1.000
Chelsea Springs	1	0	1.000
Kimunity	0	1	.000
Cassidy Lake	0	1	.000
Spaulding Chevrolet and Federal Screw	No games to date

Last Monday night our season started off with Cassidy Lake taking a defeat at the hands of Central Fibre, who, by the way, have quite a team this year. The following night Chelsea Springs knocked home a win over Kimunity to fulfill some of the expectations we have had for the Spring team but they had quite a time doing it.

From the looks of things, the cutting of our league from an eight-team league to a six-team league really increased the quality of the teams and we have six teams in the battle this year that really get out and play ball. Modestly speaking, there should be quite a game tonight between Federal Screw and Spaulding Chevrolet. I've heard that Spaulding Chevrolet has imported a fast ball pitcher from the Florida grapefruit area and Federal Screw lined up in the neighborhood of 900 men and picked out 15 for their team—Walt LaSavage, Harvey Lixey, Karmichael, Mshar, Gene Colbre and a few others didn't even qualify (Boy! what a scramble for these left-overs).

GUEST ARTIST AT WATERLOO

A musical treat is in store Sunday morning for everyone who attends the services of the United Brethren churches in Waterloo.

R. A. Cosselmon, relative of the pastor, with his trombone and mandolin, will be the guest artist. Mr. Cosselmon has for years played various musical instruments in bands and orchestras. He has also helped to make up male quartets, one of which was one of the greatest quartets in Indiana Central College ever produced. Recently he and his wife composed part of an evangelistic team which labored in Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and West Virginia. Mr. Cosselmon's playing and singing can now often be heard over station WJIM, Lansing, at 9:15 on Sunday mornings.

Mrs. Schade, an accomplished pianist, who has played for some of the greatest evangelists in the country, will accompany Mr. Cosselmon in all his numbers.

CARD OF THANKS

We want to express our gratitude to our many friends for the cards, flowers and other remembrances sent us on the occasion of our golden wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wahl.
