Cars And Drivers Go Wild On South Main

Thomas Moore, who resides on East street, lost control of his car as he was driving north on South Main street about 7:30 Saturday night, and the car went over the curb on the west side of the street, across the Reuben Schneider lawn, then across Lincoln street, knocking down two street signs, continued about 18 feet across the Wahl & Foor parkingway, where it hit a large stump. When the car struck the stump it was thrown into the air and turned completely around before it came to a stop, almost completely demolished. Mr. Moore suffered severe head injuries and was taken to St. Joseph's Mercy hospital, Ann Arbor. He was released from the hospital on Monday. Tom Kinsey, a passenger in the car, suffered a broken collar bone.

The Wahl & Foor service station had another narrow escape about 1 o'clock Monday morning when Frank H. Barnum of Gregory lost control of his car, driving through a large sign in front of the service station, knocked a steel boulevard light pole down, continued across the street where a tree stopped the car. Mr. Barnum escaped with slight injuries, which were treated by a local physician.

Vernon Hopkins, a local resident, was arrested Sunday night by Marshal Mead who gave chase on South Main street and stopped Hopkins at Mack's service station. He was charged with reckless driving and with operating an automobile without a driver's license. His car had only one headlight, and no speedometer. He was arraigned before Justice Howard Brooks on Monday and assessed a fine of $13.35 which he refused to pay, and Mr. Brooks then sentenced him to 60 days in the county jail.

Youths 18 to 20 Will Register Next Tuesday

Youths between the ages of 18 and 20 will register next Tuesday, June 30, in accordance with President Roosevelt's proclamation calling for the Fifth Registration under the Selective Service Act.

The President has announced that every male person will be subject to registration on June 30 "if such male citizen or other male person has attained the eighteenth or the nineteenth anniversary of the day of his birth on or before June 30, 1942, or the twentieth anniversary of the day of his birth after December 31, 1941, and on or before June 30, 1942." Persons previously registered will not again be subject to registration.

Registration for men in this area will be held at Sylvan town hall, between the hours of 7 a. m. and 9 p. m. Local volunteers will be in charge of the registration.

Library Will Conduct Children's Story Hour

Story Hours for children will be held in the Chelsea Public Library every week during summer vacation, beginning July 8.

On Wednesday mornings at 10 o'clock there will be stories for children from 5 to 8 years old. Thursday mornings beginning at 10 o'clock stories will be told for children from 9 to 12 years old.

Interested patrons of the library and mothers of the community are contributing their services for these story hours.

All children are invited to attend. Remember the dates—Wednesday and Thursday mornings at 10 o'clock, beginning July 8.

Maloney Sentenced To Term of 40 to 50 Years

Leo Maloney, thrice-paroled convict, 29 years old, who pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with intent to rob, while armed, was sentenced on Saturday by Judge George W. Sample to a term of 40 to 50 years in Southern Michigan prison at Jackson, the Judge recommending the minimum term.

Maloney confessed shooting William Tompkins of Ann Arbor with a shotgun on the morning of Monday, June 16, robbing him of $81 and leaving him unconscious in a ditch on Cavanaugh Lake road.

Tompkins, though seriously wounded, is expected to recover.

REV. MUMBY GOES TO UTICA

Appointments made by the Detroit Methodist Conference at its convention in Flint include Rev. Bert Ede of Flint, who is named to the pastorate at Chelsea, Rev. Carl Strange, Dexter, and Rev. H. W. Lenz, Salem Grove. Rev. Fred D. Mumby, who has been pastor of the Chelsea church for 8 1/2 years, will become pastor of the Methodist church at Utica.

SGT. ROGERS VISITS HERE
Sergeant Claude S. Rogers, recently in the Service Company of the 80th Infantry, stationed at Fort Ord, Calif., is home for a few days' leave, after which he will enter the Adjutant General's Officers' Candidates' school at Fort Washington, Md.

Tower Cafe Destroyed By Fire Monday

Overheated Grease Ignites And Flames Spread Rapidly

Fire which started about 8 o'clock Monday night from an overheated potato fryer caused the destruction of the Tower Cafe equipment, and the building is almost a complete loss. Chas. Mundhenk, owner of the cafe, stated that his loss would exceed $3,000.00, and A. B. Clark, owner of the building, says that damage to the building would exceed that amount. The loss of both men is fully covered by insurance.

According to Mr. Mundhenk, who was alone in the kitchen at the time the fire started, he had turned off the electric switch which controlled the heat unit under the potato-frying grease but that the unit kept right on heating until the grease became so hot that it ignited. As the flames shot upward he called the fire department's number and reported the fire. In just a few minutes the entire kitchen was ablaze and the fire spread rapidly to the dining room.

Mr. Mundhenk states that it was several minutes before the fire-siren sounded, but in the meantime some of the Chelsea volunteer firemen had heard of the fire and proceeded to get the fire trucks. However, Palmer's Garage, where the trucks are stored, was locked and none of the firemen had a key to the garage. It was necessary for them to break the door in order to get the trucks out. All this took time and it was about 20 minutes after the fire was reported before the truck arrived, according to Mr. Mundhenk. By this time the fire had gained such headway that it was impossible to save anything in the cafe, so the firemen confined their efforts to saving what they could of the building and adjacent structures.

In addition to his kitchen and dining room equipment, Mr. Mundhenk had several hundred dollars worth of canned goods in the basement which were damaged by the heat and water. The intense heat from the fire melted a large telephone cable in front of the restaurant and about 200 village and rural telephones were out of order until Tuesday forenoon.

In order that customers who took advantage of the Tower Cafe's 24-hour service would not be inconvenienced, Wm. Kolb immediately announced that he would give 24-hour service in his restaurant until the Tower is again open for business. Mr. Kolb is retaining some of the Tower employees until that restaurant resumes operation. (A good neighbor is a friend indeed!)

The Tower will be open in about ten days, according to Mr. Mundhenk, who has leased the A. B. Clark storeroom adjacent to his restaurant. He will set up a temporary kitchen in this room while the other building is being repaired, and then his kitchen will be located in the same place as formerly, with much better equipment which has already been purchased. He will use the larger room which he has leased for a dining room, with the best of equipment and appointments. The new arrangement will provide a much greater seating capacity, and it is planned to arrange for a small dance floor in the room.

Local Drive for USO Funds In Full Swing
The local USO drive is in full swing. A few of the volunteers who are making contacts for funds in individual blocks have already reported on their successes. This fund contribution continues up to July 1. If you have not been called upon, P. G. Schnable will be glad to enroll you at the Chelsea State Bank.

Remember that every cent that you contribute will be used for recreational purposes for our men-in-service. They need your help.

Local Sugar Rationing Board Is Organized

A permanent local sugar rationing board has been organized in Chelsea, with Mrs. Kent Walworth as chairman. Other members of the board are Mrs. A. A. Palmer, Mrs. Edwin Eaton and Supt. A. C. Johnson.

Sugar rationing for wholesalers, commercial users and institutions will be held at the Chelsea high school on Friday, June 26 from 2:00 to 5:00 p. m. All who registered under the commercial registration in April must re-register if they are to receive sugar during the months of July and August.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank friends and neighbors, also the Happy Workers, for flowers, postcards, fruit, and other acts of kindness shown me during my illness.

Mrs. E. Jane Cooper.

Chelsea High Band To Present Seven Concerts

A series of seven Thursday night band concerts by the Chelsea High School Band, starting July 2, has been made possible through the generosity of the officials of Federal Screw Works, who are financing the entire series of concerts. The program will be played on the lawn in front of the grade school and will start at 8:00 o'clock.

The first rehearsal of the summer band is to be in the gymnasium at 8:00 p. m. on Tuesday, June 30. All musicians in the community are invited to attend this first rehearsal and help the High School Band members develop a fine band for the summer concerts.

An individualized instruction program is being planned for all members of the High School Band and for any others who can begin the study of a musical instrument this summer. The purpose of this program will be to develop sound musicianship, so that the band will be able to take its place among the leading school bands in the State. Beginners are to come to the gymnasium for the first class lesson at 10 a. m. on Tuesday, June 30. Classes will meet on Tuesday and Thursday each week for a period of seven weeks. Lesson schedules for the band members will be arranged individually. There will be no charge for any part of the instructional program.

Marshall F. Richards, High School Principal and Band Director, is in charge of the summer program. Parents are invited to attend the first class meeting or to consult with him at any time convenient.

Several Tons of Scrap Rubber Collected Here

Collection of scrap rubber in Chelsea has been very satisfactory during the past week, according to service station operators. Several tons of rubber have already been collected and it is expected that a large quantity will be received at the filling stations before the drive closes next Tuesday night.

Everyone is urged to search their house, garage, barn, etc. for any scrap article of rubber, and take it to a service station, or call any of the local stations and the rubber will be picked up.

An Editorial

A great deal of criticism about the Chelsea volunteer fire department has been heard since the fire at the Tower Cafe on Monday night when there was so much delay in the arrival of the firemen with their equipment. The village marshal has also been criticized for not having the garage unlocked so the equipment could be moved.

The firemen can't be blamed for the fact that the garage was locked. Neither can the marshal be blamed for the fact that the garage wasn't unlocked. Mr. Mead was on another call and as the siren had not sounded there was no reason for him to be at the Palmer garage. The first knowledge Mr. Mead had of the fire was when he drove past the restaurant and saw the smoke. He then went to the garage but by that time the door had been broken and the equipment was on its way to the fire.

There is one thing certain. What Chelsea needs is a municipal building, with space for fire equipment, rest rooms, council rooms, and such other village agencies as would be deemed necessary. Then every fireman should have access to the building at all times, so that when an alarm was sounded there would be no delay in getting equipment under way. This is no criticism of Palmer's Garage. It cannot be expected that Mr. Palmer would issue keys to his place of business to all the firemen. But it is essential that firefighting equipment arrive at the scene of a fire without loss of time such as that experienced on Monday night.

The present village administration has advocated the construction of a municipal building since it has been in office, but there have always been plenty of "cold-water throwers" to cool off any progressive proposal. Chelsea has made progress in many ways, but in other ways is lagging. For one thing we doubt if there is a town of this size in the state that does not have public rest rooms. Every resident of this village should be ashamed to admit the fact that there are none here.

We believe it would be a good move for the council to purchase property with the idea in mind that when the days of freezing and priorities are over (or before if possible) there would be a fine new municipal building erected which could so well be utilized to the advantage and pride of every local resident.

A THANK YOU

THE HOME FRONT IN MICHIGAN

Michigan really has rolled up her sleeves in the rubber salvage campaign.

Patriotic housecleaning already has routed several million pounds from Michigan attics and cellars. The campaign will continue through the rest of June. If you haven't made a rubber search at your house yet, get into action—of maybe a second hunt will uncover something overlooked before.

No bit of rubber is too small, too worn or too old.

Here are a few suggestions: rubber gloves, aprons, sink stoppers, preserve jars, old shower caps, soap dishes, drain plugs, rubber sponges, hot water bottles, ice bags, rubber hair curlers, girdles, combs.

Even the tiny rubber bulbs from the old eye droppers in your medicine chest are worth reclaiming. The nursery can contribute baby pants, nipples, tooth rings and toys.

Ferdinand the Bull was a rubber toy created by Disney and hundreds of thousands were sold. Each one weighed 3-4 of a pound. Dig Ferdinand out of his hiding place and put him to work scrapping the Japs.

The manner in which the people of America have responded to the President's plea for scrap rubber once more emphasizes our united effort against a common enemy.

"They said we couldn't do it," they representing the "Doubting Thomases," the skeptics, the fifth columnists, the unpatriotic and those who believe that Democracy cannot survive.

"They said we could not convert our plants to war production in time to help our allies. They said that we could not awaken our nation to the danger which it faced. They said we would not give our sons freely to the fight for freedom. They said we were too soft to accept rationing, price fixing and such war regulations. They said that we would fight each other and that unity was impossible."

We're showing them!

Another striking example of unity on the home front is the success of the War Production Drive. There were many who said this drive wouldn't work, that management and labor could not work together even to get more tanks, and guns and planes and ships. But joint labor committees are working together in more than 900 plants—and getting increased production.

There has been no evidence of chiseling either by management or by labor. The committees are trying honestly to find answers to three questions:

How can we get more production from our machines?

How can we improve the quality of workmanship?

How can we prevent waste of man-hours, machines and materials?

The nation's production program—victory over our enemies—the survival of Democracy hinges on the ability of these committees to find the answers.

Nothing which might be useful in war can be wasted on the non-essentials of ordinary living. This is true.

not only of materials but also of manpower.

The biggest waste of manpower is through ill health. We lose the equivalent of 6,000,000 full work days every month because of accidents and sickness.

Ill health is an enemy on the battlefield and on the production line. It goes further than that. To remain strong and fit is a compulsion laid upon all of us. Indifferent health means indifferent morale, and indifferent morale is an invitation to defeat.

The weapons with which ill health is fought on the Home Front are weapons known to every housewife—proper food, proper exercise, proper rest.

To the campaigns to save metals and rubber and rags and paper soon will be added another campaign. This will be a drive to save fats and oils. It is estimated that two billion pounds of cooking fats are wasted every year.

Fats make glycerine. Glycerine helps make military explosives.

Work on the construction of private telephone lines for train dispatching on three important divisions of the Michigan Central is well under way.

Ex-President Grover Cleveland died at his home in Princeton, N. J., on Wednesday, June 24, 1908.

Dr. A. Gulde returned from his European trip on Friday evening. Lightning struck Lynn Gorton's barn at Waterloo on Friday afternoon and it was burned to the ground.

The post office at this place made a record for small offices last Friday, on which day there were 142 registered letters and parcels sent out.

Miss Margaret Liebeck and Howard Gilbert were married on Tuesday, June 23, 1908.

Are you entitled to wear a target label button? You can ONLY if you are investing at least ten percent of your income in War Bonds to do your part on the home front toward winning the War. The target label button is a badge of patriotism, a badge of honor. You should feel proud to display it. The buttons are obtainable at your plant management, at the office of your local War Bond chairman, or at your Payroll Savings Window where you authorize your ten percent payroll deductions.

Enlist in the ten percent War Bond army and do your part to win the War.

Winning the war is the primary concern of every Michigan citizen.

It is the A-1 activity of every Michigan town—those communities whose populations do not exceed 10,000.

Believing that a "community guide book" for war work would be a valuable contribution to victory, the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce of the U. S. Department of Commerce recently undertook the compilation of what is now known officially as a "Small Town Manual."

This is a Manual Street Bible of war work and as such it contains a wealth of timely and valuable suggestions.

"Talk it over" is the first suggestion. Call a meeting of town and farm leaders to consider a full-fledged war program for your town. A Sunday afternoon or a holiday would be convenient. Get a band to furnish lively and patriotic music. Ask one of your ministers to deliver a short invocation.

A time limit should be set, and enforced, on all speakers. Care should be used to include farm leaders who can discuss from the rural viewpoint what farmers might do in a cooperative effort.

Problems are numerous, it goes without emphasizing, and here are some of them:

Farm labor shortage, town labor shortage, transportation difficulties, salvage and scrap collection, shortage of machinery and parts, use of idle machines, plants and equipment, migration of skilled workmen from your town, purchase of war bonds and stamps and housing of war workers.

For example, a farm labor shortage may or may not exist. It is a waste of time to speculate about it.

Members of the Grange, 4-H clubs, Farm Bureau and other farm groups can secure estimates from each of their own members, and each member can gather the information from four or five neighbors. In this way a town war plan can act intelligently on facts of your local situation.

Townsmen may be willing to give a few days to helping farmers get in the crop. Such a cooperative arrangement has been made by many Michigan towns—Vassar, Fowlerville, and Tecumseh being a few illustrations.

Salvage and Scrap. Talk about the home front! Here is a direct challenge to Main Street—collection of worn out wires, scrap iron, old broken

JEEPTOONS + + + By Fighting Men

Men of the fighting services are adept with pen and brush, as proved in art groups in USO clubs. USO presents examples of their work in a series of "Jeepoons." Here's a laugh on the sea-going service.

By Gene Alleman

"The tire shortage is bringing new opportunities to small towns," states the U. S. Department of Commerce in a 1942 manual.

Therein lies a timely story of one sector of the Michigan-home front. Every cloud has its silver lining, and the current problem of automobile transportation is no exception.

Whether automobile rationing will be ordered July 15 or Sept. 15 is pure speculation. Announcements of federal and state officials, as well as members of Congress, have been openly contradictory and utterly confusing, and it is not known yet—to the public at least—whether Michigan is to curtail automobile transportation through gasoline rationing or to solve the problem through other devices.

Winning the war is the primary concern of every Michigan citizen. It is the A-1 activity of every Michigan town—those communities whose populations do not exceed 10,000.

Believing that a "community guide book" for war work would be a valuable contribution to victory, the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce of the U. S. Department of Commerce recently undertook the compilation of what is now known officially as a "Small Town Manual."

This is a Manual Street Bible of war work and as such it contains a wealth of timely and valuable suggestions.

"Talk it over" is the first suggestion. Call a meeting of town and farm leaders to consider a full-fledged war program for your town. A Sunday afternoon or a holiday would be convenient. Get a band to furnish lively and patriotic music. Ask one of your ministers to deliver a short invocation.

A time limit should be set, and enforced, on all speakers. Care should be used to include farm leaders who can discuss from the rural viewpoint what farmers might do in a cooperative effort.

Townsmen may be willing to give a few days to helping farmers get in the crop. Such a cooperative arrangement has been made by many Michigan towns—Vassar, Fowlerville, and Tecumseh being a few illustrations.

Salvage and Scrap. Talk about the home front! Here is a direct challenge to Main Street—collection of worn out wires, scrap iron, old broken machinery, and other vitally needed products for war production.

How about the old unused canning jars? Home canning and preservation should be encouraged to the fullest during the war. Women of each church, members of the Women's club, or the Parents-Teachers association might sponsor a drive in the town war plan to round-up all unused canning jars and get them into the hands of folks who will use them.

The home battlefield consists of many obvious and commonplace things.

Tapping sugar maple trees in a community "sugar bush" project is one of many possibilities. Victory Gardens are popular. Cold-storage lockers may help to preserve fresh fruits for winter thimbers.

Because glycerine is needed for making gun powder, housewives are urged to save their bacon drippings and fat. These can be collected at a central point and sold to the nearest rendering company. The local butcher can give you the information.

The money obtained from the sale can be used to provide prizes for war effort, purchase war stamps, or help the Red Cross or USO.

Nutrition has soared into national prominence since the selective service authorities disclosed the regrettable fact that one-third of the men declared unfit for military service have had defects which could be traced either directly or indirectly to faulty nutrition.

Even the kitchen becomes a part of the home battlefield!

The women of your town will want to know more what kinds of food to buy, how to cook it so as to get the most nourishment, and how to keep it so it will retain its nutritive value.

Sewing bees is just another possibility, suggested by the U. S. Department of Commerce. Since wool is needed for our army, housewives may relapse coats, cut down adults' garments for children, reknit sweaters, retrim dresses, and use the needle and thread to make and remodel family clothing at a minimum of expense and material.

Old used wool can be used again to make new warm woolens. Don't throw away any woolen garments no matter how badly worn.

Farm income is up. In 1939 the average farm family's income totaled $1,443; last year, $1,628, and 1943 it may reach 2,465.

"You probably will never again have as good a chance as now to improve business in your town," states the "Small Town Manual." "The tire shortage is bringing new opportunities to small towns. People can now be influenced easier than ever before to shop at home. Make sure that farm families choose your town rather than some other one to do their trading in."

There is the silver lining—and the big challenge. But a plan is needed. And when it comes to promotion, remember Burnham's often quoted advice, "Make no small plans—they have no power to stir men's minds." Such a community program, carefully conceived and consistently supported, may contribute much right at home in helping to win the war as well as improving business.

Control Bombs With Spray, Leonard Warns

Lansing—It's a spray of water and not a stream, which the average persons should use on an incendiary bomb, despite claims to the contrary, Capt. Donald S. Leonard, State Commander of Michigan Citizens Defense Corps asserts.

Reports were circulated recently that the British had changed their methods of fighting fire bombs and now recommend a heavy stream.

Methods of working out satisfactory solutions to problems of civilian defense common to Michigan and Ontario were discussed this week at a conference in Toronto attended by representatives of the Citizens Defense Corps of the Michigan Council of Defense and Ontario civilian defense heads. The Michigan delegation, headed by Capt. Donald S. Leonard, also inspected the central control rooms and observed an hour's black-out of the Toronto region.

Although hundreds of tons of scrap rubber are already on the way to the nation's munitions factories, the final week of the scrap rubber campaign must maintain the fast pace set during the first three days if the quota is to be met. A large part of the success or failure of the drive collection will depend on the State's farmers, who were urged by C. V. Ballard, chairman of the agriculture committee of the Michigan Council of Defense, "to comb their farms for every available ounce of scrap rubber." The rubber should be delivered to the nearest gasoline station where it will be weighed and accepted as a patriotic donation or paid for at the rate of a penny a pound.

As Michigan's colleges were graduating thousands of men and women this month, another type of school—the civilian defense training school—was also awarding certificates of graduation to volunteers who had completed training for service in the Michigan Citizens Defense Corps. More than 60,000 volunteers were honored throughout the State, raising the total number of trained personnel in the protective services to 78,473. The State council announced enrollment in civilian defense totals 381,000 with 40 counties reporting. It was estimated that more than 375,000 persons are active in the Defense Corps and in the Service Corps in the State's 83 counties.

Dr. Donald L. Hayworth, State Director of the Victory Speakers Bureau of the Michigan Council of Defense, has been called to Washington as Chief of the Speakers' Section of the Office of Civilian Defense. Under Jonathan Daniels, chief of the Civilian Mobilization Division, he will develop speakers bureaus throughout the United States. He has organized Victory Speakers Bureaus in every county in Michigan, which now have more than 1,600 volunteers at work.

Civilian defense instructors will be available to scores of Michigan's rural communities upon completion of training courses in civilian protection by more than 175 conservation officers. The courses will be conducted in each of the department's 17 field districts by 20 conservation officers who attended a Defense Instructors Institute at the Conservation Training School.

HOLLY—It happens only once in (many) thousand times that a perfect hand (29 points) of cribbage is held. Wayne Miller, local barber, makes page one as a cribbage player who has been a fan for more than 30 years and reports his first perfect hand. Playing with Clare Hubble one day last week, Mr. Miller held all but the five of diamonds and in the cut made by Mr. Hubble, it happened—it was the five of diamonds. Mr. Hubble has been a cribbage player, for these many years, too, and that was his first experience. He claimed the cards by the way, tore the hand in two and proceeded to frame it. (P. NORTHVILLE—Dean Griswold, the oldest living graduate of Michigan State College of the Class of 1875, was given the Kedzie Alumni cane Saturday, June 13, at the college. The presentation was made at the Patriarch's dinner and the cane was given to Mr. Griswold by Mrs. Scarth Ingles of Galesburg, daughter of the late Warren G. Reynolds, last cane holder. Saturday was the first time that Mr. Griswold had returned to the campus since his graduation. He is 89 years old.—Record.

Labor Pirating Hinders Vital War Production

A warning that the employer who "pirates" labor by taking workers away from other war plants will hinder vital production, was issued today by L. N. Glendening, manager of the War Relocation Authority of the United States Employment Service.

"Labor pirating is extremely disastrous to the maintenance of steady, scheduled production," Mr. Glendening said. "Usually, this is done through offers of higher pay to skilled workers. A worker, too, may lose by leaving from one war job to another. He may find less comfortable and more expensive housing and living conditions, and many other disadvantages. Employers who pirate labor from other war contractors hinder the others production and thereby hinder the whole war production program."

War production, Mr. Glendening predicted, will near the "all out" stage next winter. At that time, he said, the country will begin to scrape the bottom of the barrel for available labor; 1943's expanded production will depend on adding millions of new workers to the war industries.

"Whether or not we can do it, depends largely upon the things we do this year to organize and mobilize," he continued. "Here are some of the things we know must be done:

"We must utilize all local sources of labor, relaxing hiring requirements based on prejudice which bars from jobs qualified women, older workers, Negroes, persons of foreign birth, or those possessing foreign-sounding names. We must train and employ women in the service trades and in labor-shortage areas to take the place of men called to war. We must upgrade workers into supervisors and foremen to organize the greater production effort of the next few months. We must employ youth, women, and white-collar workers in the farm labor scarcity areas to help with this summer's harvest."

ENTERTAIN S. A. CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Haselswerdt entertained the S. A. club and their husbands on Saturday evening at a party at Cavanaugh Lake, celebrating the birthday anniversary of James J. Munro of Ann Arbor. Mrs. Norbert Merkel and Theodore Simpson won high prizes in bridge. A birthday cake was a feature of the supper.

Madagascar Today

A BRITISH "TOMMY" stands guard at Madagascar's Diego Suarez naval base, while a small Malagasy looks on with approval. Coveted by the Japanese because of its strategic location on United Nations supply lanes through the Indian Ocean, Madagascar was occupied by British troops last month. President Roosevelt has pledged that the island will be held in trust for France. This photograph, which was flown to Cairo then cable to London and New York, is one of the first pictures of the occupation to reach the U. S. The scene typified the friendly welcome which the natives gave the British.

Girl Scouts Enjoy Week At Clear Lake Camp

The Girl Scouts of Chelsea enjoyed their annual week of camping at Camp Takona, Clear Lake this past week. A very successful week of events was planned for the girls. Since appreciation is extended to the Girl Scout Council, whose members are Mrs. Wilbur Hinderer, Mrs. E. W. Eaton, Mrs. Leon Fox, Mrs. E. Quirk and Mrs. J. O'Hara; to the counsellors, cooks and other staff members who carried out the camp program; to the canteen group and mothers who provided meals for the camp; and especially to all interested citizens of Chelsea who gave financial assistance to the Girl Scouts to make a successful camp possible.

Following is a day to day account of the camp as told by the girls themselves:

Sunday was spent in getting settled and acquainted. It was rumored around that some of the cabins had a hard time getting to sleep. Except for this and the fact that we all froze that night, Sunday was uneventful.

Monday—We were broken into our new duties. This was stunt night. Many clever stunts were performed. By the way Soos, where did you get that lovely (?) southern accent?

Tuesday—By this time we had gotten a nice start in handicraft and other parts of camp life, including duties and manners. On this night we held an Indian pow-wow. The Siamese Twins were masters of ceremony. The counsellors gave us a demonstration of different Indian dances. Then the girls formed a beautiful Indian Conga line to end the ceremony.

Wednesday—Plans were finished for our cook-out and others were started for visitors' night. That night the older girls took the boats to a place by the lake. The younger group climbed Murder Mountain. We had "Angels On Horseback" for supper. They were good except for those that were dropped into the fire—they tasted rather overdone. Then we rode around and watched the sunset (!!). The feature of this trip was a green canoe. What happened to your arm and leg, Pinkie?

Thursday—We finished our plans for visitors' night. It went off very well, we thought, with many fine speeches. A Court of Awards was held while the parents were there. Many of the new songs we had learned were sung that night.

Friday—Mysterious rumors went around all Friday about our Ghost Walk which we held that night. Many people started screaming when they took one look at Ruth Ann. She was a madman with her face all drawn up, and foam at her mouth. She was a horrible sight.

Saturday—We had a Water Carnival in the morning which lasted two hours. Everybody had a lot of fun. The prize for the winners was the privilege of washing the noon dishes. We were all so thrilled. That afternoon put an end to our classes in swimming, nature, first-aid, and pioneering, which we all enjoyed so much. That afternoon, with fond farewells, we left our dear Camp Takona. Everything was so gay, most of us wished we might stay another week.

And so ended a thoroughly enjoyable week.

June Vail and Committee.

Waterloo

Mr. and Mrs. Will Cameron, son and daughter of Lansing were recent callers of Mrs. Theresa Koelz. Dr. and Mrs. Riecker and family of Ann Arbor were Sunday afternoon callers. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Marsh and daughter Shirley called on Mrs. Leon Marsh in Mercy hospital, Jackson, on Sunday afternoon.

Miss Amelia Hess attended 4-H camp a few days last week at Wolf Lake.

Miss Sandra Clair of Lake Orion is spending some time with her grandmother, Mrs. Hattie Gorton.

On Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Howard Plinto, assisted by Mrs. Louis Eppler, entertained at a miscellaneous shower for the pleasure of Miss Gulde, the guests including Mrs. Kenneth Runciman of Ypsilanti, Mrs. Harold Lantis of Stockbridge and Miss Maxine Irwin of Ann Arbor. Lunch was served following a social afternoon.

Local Defense Topics

Red Cross instructors in home nursing are needed to teach classes in rural areas of Washtenaw county in order to meet the demand for such instruction.

Mrs. Ray Baker, chairman of the home nursing of the County Chapter of the Red Cross, is appealing to all graduate nurses living in the rural areas to offer their services. Nurses willing to volunteer for this immediate need are asked to register at once at the CDVO in the armory in Ann Arbor. They will receive detailed instructions from Mrs. Baker on Red-Cross standards in teaching home-nursing, including the prescribed textbook and manual, before being assigned to a class.

Because of the transportation situation, nurses to teach in their own vicinity in rural areas are in particular need at present.

Townships in Washtenaw county have pledged to date $425,000.00 for the purchase of war bonds and stamps. This already exceeds the quota set by the United States Agricultural War Board and the Civilian Defense Volunteer Office, with reports from a couple of townships and a few school districts still to come in. Some townships signed up 100 per cent in the house-to-house canvass of weekly and monthly bond purchases.

The pledge of $425,000.00 for the yearly purchase of bonds does not indicate the total number of bonds sold in rural parts of Washtenaw county as many persons have bought bonds since Pearl Harbor and many prefer to buy bonds of larger denomination at less frequent intervals.

City and county draft boards have asked the CDVO for volunteer registrars to work on June 30, when men between the ages of 18 and 20 sign up under the selective service act. Also, Civilian Defense Volunteer Offices throughout the county will be called upon to supply full-time registrars for their nearest sugar rationing boards to handle various aspects of sugar rationing for the duration of the war.

JOSEPH A. STEELE ENLISTS

Joseph A. Steele, son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Steele of Sylvan township, left for Detroit on Thursday after enlisting in the U. S. Navy, and was sent to Great Lakes Training School, Great Lakes, Ill. Joseph was born in Chelsea Dec. 3, 1921. He had recently been employed at the Federal Screw Works.

On Monday evening preceding his departure, Mrs. Walter Wolfgang and Mrs. S. J. Weber entertained the neighbors and friends in the Red School district at a farewell party at the home of Mrs. Wolfgang.

The guests, numbering about 85, spent the evening playing progressive euchre, in which Mrs. Joseph Merkel and Roland Heim held high score, George Steele and Mrs. Alvin Hatt, low.

Following a pot-luck supper, Joseph was presented with a purse of money.

Mr. and Mrs. John Steele also entertained a group of relatives in his honor on Tuesday evening. Supper was served and he was presented with gifts.

WOMEN'S GUILD MEETING

The Women's Guild of St. Paul's church held their monthly meeting on Thursday at the church hall, Rev. P. H. Grabowski conducting the devotionals and giving a brief talk on the topic, "American Education". Mrs. Otto Lucht and Mrs. William Beach were appointed as a committee to arrange for the July meeting which will be a picnic with a pot-luck supper. Lunch was served to 22 members by the hostesses, Mrs. Samuel Bohnet and Mrs. Arthur Schairer.

RED SCHOOL HOLDS PICNIC

The Red School P. T. A. and the Hi-Neighbor club held a joint picnic on Sunday at Sott's Grove, Pleasant Lake. After the dinner, games furnished amusement for the children.

KIWANIS NEWS

The Kiwanians held another enjoyable meeting at St. Mary's hall on Monday evening. The ladies of the church prepared and served a delicious dinner to the members and their guests. The program chairman selected John E. Fletcher, Jr., a senior at the University of Michigan, to discuss the topic: "Russia Today".

Mr. Fletcher traced the evolution of the Russian Government from the early days of the czarist regime up to the present time when the government is essentially totalitarian. He mentioned that the ultimate goal of the Russians is to achieve a classless society and to achieve equality among all of the peoples in that large State. Mr. Fletcher stated that the Constitution of the Soviet Republics was essentially democratic, yet the formation of government policy both politically and economically is left to a small body of technicians and authorities. The speaker stated that many of the projects of the Russians are still in the experimental stage and that we can not readily tell the success or failure of the plan at the present time. Mr. Fletcher concluded his interesting talk by urging the Kiwanians to view with interest the great changes that are occurring in Russia along the economic front, and to ponder the worthwhileness of their system which limits individual initiative in order to provide social security and welfare among the mass of the population.

Underground Billposters

THREATENED WITH death or imprisonment, members of Luxembourg's underground organization have defied the Nazis and stuck thousands of these posters on walls and houses all over their little country. As fast as the German authorities tear the posters down, others appear. Poster shows Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxembourg with her country's flag and coat-of-arms. The motto is that of the Luxembourg Patriots' League. "We Want to Stay What We Are"—that is, free people.

Learning To Milk a Cow Becomes An Art

There's more to this job of milking a cow than meets the eye.

All jokes about faucets forgotten, take the word of a man who has studied cow psychology and the chemistry and other mysteries of why a cow gives milk. Milking is a combination of habit, regularity, speed and wise management, claims Dr. Huffman, dairy nutrition authority at Michigan State College.

A hormone produced by a little gland at the base of the brain puts a product into the blood which travels to the udder and stimulates the muscles surrounding the little sacklike glands to contract and squeeze out the milk. The effect of this chemical messenger, Dr. Huffman points out, is of short duration. If the milker does not get the milk while it is under pressure, he does not get it.

No need then to bang a milk stool over a cow's hips if she doesn't "let down" her milk. According to Dr. Huffman, it's the dairyman's fault for not milking her at the proper time or within proper time limits. Milking, likewise, is no time for nodding or day-dreaming.

Cows often get into the habit of giving down milk at a regular signal, like the rattling of a feed cart, starting of the milking machine or when she is eating grain.

The whole study aids a dairyman in contributing more to war production without adding extra animals or feeding much extra feed.

Other tips suggested by Huffman include:

If milking twice daily, space the periods 12 hours apart.

If a cow's teats begin to leak before she is milked, give her a little more priority in the milking order.

Presence of a strange dog in the barns at milking time may keep a cow from giving down her milk. It's an involuntary reaction and no cause for swinging the milk stool or aiming a boot at the cow.

LOYAL CIRCLE MEETS

Children In Court

By Judge Malcolm Hatfield

Youthful Temptations Are More Difficult To Resist

When it is considered that the average age of our criminals is twenty-three years, and that the largest single group falls in the nineteen year old category, it can readily be seen that the temptations of youth are difficult to resist.

Possibly a boy's increasing interest in the opposite sex, and his desire to attract attention to himself by possessing an automobile, fine clothes and an adequate amount of spending money, may be reasons why boys of nineteen frequently become delinquent.

A girl of seventeen, who stole a dress so that she could look pretty when she attended a dance, could not be compared to the armed gunman who robbed the cashier at the same dance pavilion. The latter was a morphine addict who committed a robbery so that he could secure the price of the drug which held him in its thrall.

Often times, children become delinquent because their activities appear to be centered upon attaining the means for pleasurable recreation, while adults appropriate objects which they can dispose of at a profit. Youthful delinquents frequently carry out a definite plan of action which will enable them to win the approval of their associates or the more hardened offenders of their acquaintance residing in the neighborhood.

The boy with a twisted or disorganized personality complex, will throw a brick through a plate glass window to satisfy his own ego, while another boy will commit the same offense to gain revenge on the merchant for some imagined wrong which the child feels the merchant committed against him or a member of his family.

ATTEND M. U. C. C. CONVENTION

The annual state convention of the Michigan-United Conservation Clubs was held at Johnson's Tavern, Houghton Lake, on Saturday and Sunday. Chelsea Rod & Gun club was represented by President James Park, H. B. Murphy, Geo. Hart, Paul Frayer and H. D. Witherell. James Park was elected to the board of directors from this district.

HOSTESS TO "GAY NINETIES"

Mrs. E. R. Dancer was hostess to the Gay Nineties club at their fourth annual meeting at her summer home at Cavanaugh Lake on Tuesday. A delicious picnic luncheon was served at one o'clock. About 25 members and guests were present from Coldwater, Hillsdale, Williamston, Howell, Ann Arbor, Milwaukee, Wis., and Chelsea. The afternoon was spent in visiting.

The Giant's Steps

The Giant's Steps, or Giant's Stairway, situated in the center of Paradise valley in Banff National park, is a succession of large rectangular blocks of stone placed by nature in such regular formation as to suggest an immense stairway. Over these stones rushes the crystal clear water of Wasatch brook, forming a beautiful cascade or series of waterfalls. These steps formed, according to Indian legend, the ancient stairway of the Indian spirits of the upper air. So impressed were the Indians with the beauty of the scene, that they named the brook "Wasatch," meaning beautiful.

Farmers' Day To Be Cancelled This Year

There's to be no customary Farmers' Day the last Friday in July this year on the Michigan State College campus. It's the war, the college announces, which forces the agricultural division to call off the usual open house invitation to farmers.

Instead there are plans to demonstrate new scientific practices to campus visitors who may come to the proposed 4-H club fair to be staged the forepart of September in the place of the State Fair events usually held at Detroit.

Visitors who do come in the meantime to the campus will be welcome, says E. L. Anthony, dean of agriculture. They will find the college staff involved as usual in the promotion of efficient agricultural production in Michigan.

New purebreds in the livestock barns can be viewed, says the dean. Two new beef purebreds, a new dairy bull, three purebred Arabian fillies and two new rams imported from Canada are among the new animals used in classwork, research and demonstrations.

Prilly Sensation, a 2100-pound 10-year-old Holstein was purchased recently from Buford Brothers, Elizabeth, Ill. His female relatives and offspring have production records indicating this dairy bull has some of the best blood lines in the United States.

A Hereford calf, a year old, has been purchased from Purdue university. He is Triple Bond 4th. The barns also house Black Baldie 3rd, a Black Angus born Oct. 8, 1938, and purchased by the college from Scripps' Wildwood farm at Lake Orion.

The three Arabian fillies presented the college by W. K. Kellogg from his Pomona, Calif. ranch, are to be bred to Amidore, 10-year-old Arabian stallion. The college staff foresees a rising interest in the pleasure horses.

Canadian imports for the college sheep flock include a Hampshire ram lamb from Robeson and Son, Ontario, and a three-year-old Cotswold ram from Charles Shore, Ontario.

Vegetables for Fall Use Can Be Planted Now

Gardeners tasting the results of early spring labors can march right back to the garden plot and plant for some extra fall production.

For such crops as carrots, turnips, beets, cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower, it's proper planting time, according to members of the horticulture department at Michigan State College.

Soil depth is more important for carrots than it is for turnips. In fact, the turnips probably could wait a while unless a household wants some of them early. Similarly, it's a little early to plant radishes for fall use. August is considered more timely.

Late cabbage plants ought to be far enough along to plant by now. The plants should be heavily watered before repotting from the seedbed. Roots should be disturbed as little as possible. Large late varieties such as Danish Ballhead and Hollander are recommended for storage but when cut must be free from insect or disease injury, should be firm, mature and handled carefully in the fall to prevent bruising.

Carrots often are difficult to start in hot weather. A well prepared seedbed is recommended and the gardeners should not permit a crust to form over the row before the seedlings come through. Rows from 16 to 30 or 36 inches apart are suggested by the college horticulturists.

Cauliflower hates hot weather. It needs a soil similar to that suitable for cabbage. Plants can be set in the garden the first of July to bring them into bearing the latter part of September when it is likely to be cool and moist. The blanching is accomplished by drawing leaves up over the heads as they begin to form, covering the cover with string. Broccoli is rated an excellent source of vitamins and minerals. It stands heat and drought better than cauliflower but is best grown as a fall crop.

HOLD GRADUATION DANCE

Last Saturday, June 21, Cassidy Lake Technical School held a graduation dance which was their first dance of the season. Guests for the evening were girls from the Y. W. C. A. and the Dunbar Civic Center of Ann Arbor, and from the Betsy Barbour Dormitory, the Pickrell and Palmer League houses of the University of Michigan. Four girls from Chelsea were also present. Among the chaperons were M. N. McDaniel, director of the school, Mr. and Mrs. Scarth Inglis, Paul Papsdorf, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Dennis, Miss Barbara Tinker, Sam Gallagher, Richard Marcoux, Neal Van Hatten, and John Mienel. The stage and the auditorium were beautifully decorated with green and white, the school colors. Everyone enjoyed the dance and many of the guests expressed a desire to return.

HARMONY CHAPTER MEETS

Harmony Chapter held their June meeting at the home of Mrs. John Schleferstein on Thursday afternoon. Thirty-nine members and guests were present. Mrs. R. W. Barbor had charge of the devotional service. Mrs. O. H. Hinderer read a poem by Edgar Guest, "Things That Make a Soldier Great." An article on the Japanese concentration camp in Utah was read by Miss Nipa Crowell, and Miss Bertha Spaulding read a Declaration of War. Refreshments were served. The assisting hostesses were Mrs. Mary Huston and Mrs. W. F. Whitmer.

Sharon

Mrs. John Leeman spent last week in Sault Ste. Marie with her son, John Leeman and wife.

Wesley McAtee has returned from the U. of M. hospital, much improved. Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Haist and family of Lima spent Sunday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Breustle.

Mrs. Ivy Earley of Akron, Ohio spent from Saturday until Monday noon with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ellis.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Davidson of Chelsea were Sunday visitors at the home of their son, Roy and wife.

The Ladies' Aid of the Community church met with Mrs. Albert Gardner at her home on Thursday afternoon of last week with a good attendance.

CHAPTER I

Arriving at Cabeza de Negro was like coming home. Neither Curt nor Lee had ever visited the one-time small fishing port in the old days, but that was the way it hit them now as it rose up out of the sea. Once it had been only a collection of manaca shacks on stilts, cut off from inland by fever-ridden marshes. An unhealthy spot for white men. Today all that was changed—or fast changing.

They were up at dawn for the early docking, and to watch the long, low blur on the horizon which slowly became the Tierra Libre coastline. Lee caught her breath as that blur took shape. Her memories of it were precious.

True, she'd been happy since, and now she had the boys. But no happiness, not even the children, could ever erase from her mind those first years here with Curt. Hard working days for him, in a job for which he was born, romance and beauty in the tropic setting for her.

Unconsciously she snuggled closer under Curt's arm as they stood at the rail staring landward. Unconsciously, too, Curt was scowling, but Lee did not see this.

Meanwhile, Buddy and Chuck were clamoring and tugging un-noticed, at the ends of their split leashes—they couldn't be allowed free run of the deck.

"Anuvver dog wace, Daddy," begged Chuck in the fuzzy tones of a four-year old.

He didn't yet have Buddy's clarity of speech, for Buddy was all of six and quite a man.

Curt obligingly called, "One, two, three, go," and the children scampered down the deck on all fours barking and pulling their leashes taut.

This play brought Curt and Lee to the vessel's stern where their eyes caught the flat black smudge in the distance. A lean, low gray vessel was cutting in toward the coast farther to the north.

"Headed for Soledad," Curt muttered, and the frown returned to his forehead.

Lee clutched his arm.

"It's a destroyer! One of ours, Jeff! Must be. And it's racing! Do you suppose there wasn't any word on the bulletin board."

Curt patted her hand and smiled down at her.

"Don't be getting any ideas," he said, and was immediately conscious he'd taken a second or so too long in replying. "There's no revolution here. Uncle Sam's just paying a courtesy call. We're doing more of that than we used to throughout the Caribbean."

"But it's speeding! See how the smoke lays flat from the funnels!"

"That's caused by the wind from around Punta Cauca, honey. Our smoke would look the same if we were in that position."

Once more, as he stood against the rail with Lee, Curt went over in his mind the string of events leading up to their presence here on the Pisces—as he'd done so many times these past several nights, lying awake in the dark.

He started with the proposition itself.

He, and Lee had been dawdling over a late breakfast, while the children played on the lawn within range of the open windows. He had the morning paper folded to handy size and propped against the coffee urn, and was sunk in a roving reporter's column purporting to give the progress of bomb-proofing the Panama Canal.

It took Lee several efforts to break through to him. It was the final "Jeff Curtis" that did it, and he looked up to discover she'd been running over the morning mail. There was a storm of paper in her eyes and she was tapping the knuckles of one hand with a long-fingered envelope.

"Who do I know in Cristobal?" he said easily. "What? Be one I guess. There's old Jim Briggs over on the Pacific side. Let's see."

"Some day, my fine lad," she began promisingly. "When you bury yourself in the paper—oh, what's the use?"

She gave up and handed him the letter. He ripped it open, slid out the several sheets of enclosure.

"Only mailed from Cristobal." He read aloud the letterhead: "Compania Agricola Tropical, San Alejo, Tierra Libre. C.A.T. Huh. Who do you suppose they are? Cabeza de Negro. Soledad, but I never heard of San Alejo." He glanced at the end of the letter. "Signed, Apolinario Montoya, President and General Manager. Never heard of him."

He ran his eye down the first page and looked up to exclaim:

"Why, honey, it's a new banana outfit! Opening up twenty thousand hectares between the rivers Masen and Negro. But that stuff's all swampland! You remember, Lee, that big stretch of swamp across the Negro? Got with a few spots of jungle?"

"And the mosquitoes!"

Curt grinned and skimmed over the rest of the letter hurriedly. Lee saw his growing excitement as he straightened in his chair.

"Lee! They're offering me the job of Chief Engineer!" He took a deep breath and went on more slowly, soberly. "But they say the offer's contingent upon residence with family for term of contract. Three years. Of course, if I had the job I'd like to have you and the kids with me, but—"

Lee rose and went around to him, pushing back the table to sit on his knees, and look him gravely, misgivingly, in the eyes. Here was a situation to be handled, one to be nipped in bud. It took her a moment to find the right words.

"You'd like that job, wouldn't you, darling?"

It was more statement than question.

He lowered his eyes. "Well, I'd—yes, sure I would. That'd be a real job! Just think, Lee. Drainage, levees, floodgates, railroad, power plants—all kinds of projects! And honey, his eyes turned, a chance to work on that overhead irrigation system I missed out on when we came north."

He broke off again and his eyes went blank to hide, or try to hide, how much this could mean to him.

"Well," he went on carefully, "it'd be something more than this kinder-garden stuff I'm doing now. Twenty thousand hectares is quite an order."

"Yes, I know. But you'll leave it to me to decide, won't you?"

"Well, yes, Lee," he faltered. "I guess I'll have to."

She looked a long moment into his eyes, then pushed a forefinger in circles through his thick, curly hair before kissing him lightly.

"It will hurt, dear," she said quietly, "but you'll have to forget it. There are Buddy and Chuck. We can't take them to a malarial swamp—and with Buddy ready for school this year."

"But, Lee, they cover that here! They say—"

He swallowed hard, dodging her steady gaze. "They say they have excellent accommodations halfway up the Quebrado Mountains, including school, hospital, clubhouse, swimming pool, tennis courts. They claim there's no fever in their settlement. San Alejo, they call it—and Lee, we ought to like it as well as we liked Puerto Soledad."

"We were happy in Soledad, darling. Don't think I ever forget. But we wanted children and thought this country—and climate best for them."

"I know," he answered unhappily. "She got up and stood at the window, hands locked behind her."

At length, without turning, Lee asked, "How do you know they're responsible people?"

"I wouldn't accept without investigating them!"

"The letter is headed San Alejo, Tierra Libre, but it's mailed in a plain envelope from Cristobal," she mentioned.

"Oh, that's explainable. They put their mail aboard an Associated ship at Soledad, no doubt, whose purser dropped it at Cristobal for faster air service. It came by air, you know."

"And the plain envelope?"

"Well, I—"

Curt fidgeted. "I don't think that means anything. Maybe they were out of printed ones. Or perhaps," his voice quickened, "in mailing it on an Associated vessel they were being wary of Associated finding out too much about them. They're rivals, Lee."

"I have a feeling, I can't explain, but—"

She bit her lip. "No, that's a woman's trick, that's not fair."

Finally, with reluctance, she said, "Well, at least it wouldn't do any harm to find out more about these people."

"Sweetheart!" Curt shouted, and jumped for her.

Her next words were muffled against his shoulder. "Well, I hope I'm not a sugar-and-water wife. He didn't see the tears in her eyes."

And that was the first step that led to their being here on the Pisces. The second?

Curt had put in a short-wave phone call for Jerry McInnis, his closest friend during the years he'd worked in the tropics. McInnis was now Chief Engineer for the Associated Fruit Growers at Puerto Soledad. The call came through later that morning. Greetings were quickly over. Then:

"Jerry, what do you know about the Compania Agricola Tropical? Claim to have that swamp between the Negro and the Masen?"

"Yeah, I know, only it won't be a swamp much longer. They're doing a swell job of reclamation, Curt. Well, I don't know much about them. Guy called Montoya heads the outfit. There's a whisper around here he was hooked up with Cedillo in Mexico and got out by the skin of his teeth when that revolt failed. But that's only gossip, take it for what it's worth. Seems to have plenty dough behind him, but I don't know where it comes from. Old Man Moore probably has the lowdown, but you know how tight-lipped he is."

Moore was General Manager in Tierra Libre for Associated Fruit Growers.

"Who's in with this Montoya?"

"Don't rightly know, Curt. Montoya seems the only top man so far I can see. There's a couple of Swedes I don't know anything about—except they hold their liquor and don't talk. Youngish guys. And a Dutchman, Hollander. I mean—a chemical man. Panama disease has shown up over on our side and if they're going to raise bananas, they'll have to find some means of combating."

"Yes, sure. But how come Associated didn't have that piece tied up? Never heard of anyone getting ahead of Old Man Moore before."

"Well, we've already got plenty of good land; all we can handle now or in the reasonable future. And this piece'll cost real money to develop. Why all these questions, Curt?"

"Under your hat, Jerry, they've offered me the job of Chief Engineer. Wanted to know more about them. Think they're reliable?"

"Well, I, yes, Curt, they are; so far I know. But I'd hate to have you make a decision on my say-so."

A wary, reluctant note had crept into McInnis' voice.

"Who's been handling the job?"

"Chigger Mitchell."

"What! Old Mitchell? He's a good man. What happened they need another?"

"Well, you know how Mitch was kind of tough on labor. A driver and all that. And he could sure find a guy's weak spot and dig under the skin. He didn't get the name 'Chigger' for nothing. Well, he must've made an enemy over there who wanted a souvenir. Anyway, his ears were missing when they found him—just a few days ago, it was—and they had to use a basket for the rest of him. These machetes are bad stuff, as you know well enough."

Early in the morning Curt wired his acceptance to the C. A. T. people's New Orleans office. Back came, overnight, a contract for signature. And things moved fast.

The freighter Pisces, one of a small fleet of Norwegian vessels chartered to the C. A. T. outfit, would be held over a day in New Orleans awaiting them. Loaded with rails, cement, lumber, machinery, it was bound for Cabeza de Negro, the new C. A. T. port at the mouth of the Rio Negro.

Curt had less than twenty-four hours to wind up all his affairs in the States, store the car, arrange for care and lease of the house through an agent, for forwarding of their mail.

Their mail. The first batch, re-addressed and sent by air to New Orleans, caught up with Curt just before they sailed. Busy with details of baggage and boarding ship, he hastily stuffed the handful of letters into his pocket.

It was hours before he thought of it and hauled it forth for inspection. The ship had reached the mouth of the Mississippi; they'd dropped the pilot and were headed out into the Gulf. One letter was a small plain envelope, postmarked Puerto Soledad, Tierra Libre.

Inside was a brief note.

"Mr. Curtis. Don't bring your family to San Alejo, don't come yourself. Don't forget Zora Mitchell."

McInnis stopped before a small cantina, the facade a blinding, bl-

CHAPTER II

Don't come! And here he was with Lee in the curve of his arm, Buddy and Chuck tugging at his trousers, with Tierra Libre rising up out of the morning sea, the buildings of Cabeza de Negro taking shape. His arm unconsciously tightened about Lee.

Long before they drew close enough to make out details of the sturdy new docks and receiving sheds they saw the motor launch cutting along the coast as though to intercept them. It, too, was headed for the port, and at last Curt recognized the figure standing in the cockpit.

He yanked off his hat to wave it wildly.

"Jerry, you old muckie-head," he shouted. "I might've known you'd come down to meet us."

"Yeah, got your wireless you were coming through Cabeza. Hiya, Curt. Hiya, Lee," called the stocky man in the launch. "It's good to see you folks again. Where're the kids?"

Curt and Lee each picked up a child and stood him on the broad rail. Buddy, from his new vantage point, piped up: "Mummy, what's a muckie-head?"

"A muckie-head, darling," she answered gravely. "Is your Uncle Jerry down in the little boat. See?"

"My Uncle Jerry, Mummy? Have I got a Uncle Jerry?"

"Yes, dear. Wave to him."

There was no opportunity for dallying here. The launch drew away and by the time the Pisces warped up to the dock Jerry McInnis—leathered face, close-cropped hair, weather-stained clothes—was waiting for them.

A dockhand delivered a message from Senor Montoya—a company briefcase. The senior had been delayed in getting down river to meet them but would reach Cabeza in another hour or so.

Curt lifted his eyes, glancing about for a radio shack.

"Right," grinned McInnis. "No halfway measures here. They've as good a wireless set-up as we have, though apparently for their own use. I mean, they're not entering into commercial competition with us."

"Cheapest communication for them, I suppose."

"Sure, you know yourself a telephone line across these marshes would be out of the question; it'd have to be re-strung after every flood. They have a line now from Tempujo on to San Alejo. Tempujo's their upriver port across from our Riverbend Junction. Before that they used radio, as they do at Cabeza now. And is their San Alejo station a darn! More powerful than ours at Soledad. Talk with Europe, Asia, anywhere."

"That one of their river boats?"

"Yep. They have two. But we can talk later, Curt. He scooped up the children, one in each arm. "Let's find a more comfortable spot for the wait. Lee, you're looking great! If I didn't know better I'd guess you were twenty. Hard to believe these are yours. Marta sends her love and can't wait to see you."

McInnis, chuckling, nodded from Curt's piled luggage to his own launch boy, and the mestizo immediately took possession to stand guard. Then the Associated man led the way from the dock to the one main street of the town. There were signs of recent construction. The new company was booming the village.

"That's a good dock they've built," Curt said. "I suppose Mitchell did it?"

"Sure."

Just the one word, and it sounded strange. Clipped and odd, for McInnis. Curt threw his friend a side-long glance.

"Looks like they're really going it big here."

"And how! They pushed their railroad from Tempujo to San Alejo more than a kilometer a week. And meanwhile were building San Alejo with materials flown across the swamp by two freighter planes. You've got yourself a job, Curt."

"They must've sprung up full-fledged."

"I'll say! One day we caught them throwing up temporary buildings at Tempujo, the next day heavy materials were coming in through Soledad. We had the facilities. They shipped to Riverbend over our lines and ferried across the Negro. They still have a transportation office over in Soledad, but most of their stuff's coming in through Cabeza now."

Associated Fruit Growers—where Curt and McInnis, fresh from M. I. T., had their first years of practical engineering—stretched along the north bank of the Rio Negro, a hundred kilometers or more of banana plantations in an almost unbroken line. These were fed by a narrow-gauge railroad, and there was one handling of fruit from farm pickup platforms to conveyor belts at shipside.

But the new Compania Agricola Tropical, south of the Negro, had more of a problem. It wasn't possible to run a railroad through to the sea. Salt marshes lay between their concession and the coast and made it necessary to handle fruit by rail from farm to river port, and by steamer or lighters from there to Cabeza where ocean vessels could pick it up. Not so good, two handlings of perishable fruit. Costly, too. And the delay and expense of hauling construction materials up river was sharp in Curt's mind.

"Well, here we are."

McInnis stopped before a small cantina, the facade a blinding, bl-lous green in the raw sunshine. McInnis put the boys down, led them inside. Lee and Curt followed.

"It's nearly lunch time," McInnis remarked. "Shouldn't the kids be fed, Lee? You know what the cooking is like here, but we can probably get canned soups."

Lee smiled.

"I don't need a brick wall to fall on me. Go ahead, you two. Have a drink. I know you have plenty to talk over. I'll drag out my rusty Spanish and get along."

The men turned to the deserted bar at the end of the room, mounted uncomfortable stools and ordered gin rickeys. While the native bartender mixed them nearby, Curt made conversation.

"Jerry, it'll cost so much to produce and ship fruit here that I don't see how these people can hope to compete with Associated. Not without a subsidy, and Tierra Libre does not grant subsidies."

McInnis grunted.

"Well, that's their business."

"Of course," Curt mused on, "it's a pretty slick hombre who could put anything over on Old Man Moore. I could give even money the Old Man figures they'll go broke getting into production, then plans to bid in and take over the concession cheap. Maybe throw a bridge across the Negro and handle the fruit once from pick-up to the dock at Soledad."

McInnis grinned, but said nothing. The bartender placed the drinks before them, then left to lend a hand in the kitchen lean-to.

Alone now, and with a furtive glance to be sure Lee was occupied with the children, Curt pulled forth Zora Mitchell's letter. He spread it open before the other, and his face was serious, his voice low.

"Jerry, what've I got into?"

McInnis read the note, refolded it, slid it back to Curt. He frowned. He took a long pull at his drink.

"All right, Jerry, out with it," Curt spoke again. "What's up?"

"Well, Curt," his friend said finally, "my reason for coming down to the coast to meet you wasn't altogether social. But now I'm here, I have my doubts. There's nothing I can put a finger on."

"Come on, pal, we know each other's first name. Spill it."

"It came out slowly and in pieces. 'Well, Curt, I can't help feeling there's something fishy about your new outfit. They have more men on their payroll than we have, for instance, Americans as well as natives, trying to get things set before the next rainy season. That's all right. But Soledad's the only live spot—such as it is—within their range. You couldn't call Cabeza a satisfactory place to live a fellow up over a holiday."

"So—well, damn it all, you'd expect that gang to come to Soledad once in a while. But no one ever does. The two Swedes and the Dutchman I told you about are the only ones who ever get to Soledad, and that's only on business, to supervise receipt of shipments."

"And they don't talk. We tried to get up a ball game with your people once. No go. It's as though this Montoya was afraid his men'd spill something to our advantage. And that's carrying the rivalry theme a bit far for this business and this country. I—well, you see how vague it is, only a feeling."

Curt reflected. He pushed his glass around in circles on the bar. "Ever get over to the new planting yourself?"

Wire Pulling

Compared with early wrought-iron wires used for suspension bridges, which had an ultimate strength of 80,000 pounds per square inch, modern wires for the same type of cable are made by the cold-drawn steel process and have a strength of 235,000 pounds per square inch.

Stone Masonry

There are no nails, and no iron pillars or rafters in the N. C. Capitol building in Raleigh. The entire building is supported by stone masonry.

War Needs Lead To New Clothing Fabrics

Wartime clothes for the whole family offer surprises both in materials and in the styling, according to clothing specialists of the home economics extension department at Michigan State College.

Rayon replaces silk and nylon in hosiery, also in other fabrics and even a keen eye and experienced fingers can scarcely detect the new forms. Rayons resemble silk, wool, linen and even mercerized cotton. The improvements in manufacturing are making the difference and rayon fibers now are "bright," "semi-dull" and "dull."

The strength of the fabric has been increased, crepe twist yarns and better draping qualities making it an acceptable material for the home sewer. Spun rayons are given a permanent crimp to look like wool and even have a protein added before spinning.

Aralac, a fiber resembling wool, is made from casein, hence it is often called "material made from milk." Combined with mohair, fur and other dress fabrics. Used alone it makes blankets, pillows, chair cushions, comforters and knit underwear.

Other synthetic fibers are vinyon, a plastic base fiber made from synthetic resins; soy bean fiber, resembling wool; and fibraglass that is six times as stiff as natural fiber which prevents its use in clothing. Its present cost is high. A two-yard square tablecloth costs $40.

Double yokes and cuffs on blouses, on skirts and dresses are out and all-over pleating and tucking, except as trimming.

The wool needed to clothe a soldier is 280 pounds a year which permits less for civilian use. The limitation in length of skirts and jackets for women with the elimination of patch pockets and taking away vests and the cuffs from men's trousers together with other substitutions, promises to save as much as 15 per cent on the total yardage.

Zipper of plastic and even silver are promised as steel ones are out, but already linings, buttons and other fastenings appear on garments.

Fabric finishes that include a long list of qualities as controlled shrinkage, permanent finish, crush resistant and water repellent add new angles to care and the wearability of materials.

Other fabrics treated to be flame retardants go by such names as nevafame, saniflame, and flame proofing. These will char rather than burst into flame.

Moth proofing fabrics as wool clothing, rugs, blankets and upholstery vary as to the length of time the process is guaranteed to last. Many are not effective after dry cleaning or washing. Mildew prevention is a chemical process whereby fabrics are resistant to mildew molds and some even to perspiration.

In spite of unfamiliar terms and new appearance of materials the careful homemaker may still find plenty of good wearing fabrics. Labels that tell the story are the protection of the shopper. Learn to read your labels and help yourself to better values, say the extension clothing specialists at Michigan State College.

Much has been said and written about the saving of tires.

With summer and hot weather coming, we must be doubly careful about rubber tires.

Tires wear out twice as fast in summer as in winter, according to the National Safety Council. Heat is a natural enemy of rubber, wearing the tread faster and weakening the strength of the cords.

The same rules apply in summer as in winter:

Keep your tires properly inflated. Do not drive fast. High speeds generate heat, and with the roads hot, they add abuse to the rubber on your tires.

Drive smoothly. Drive carefully. Do not make your turns fast—avoid skidding.

Change tires frequently so that you will equalize the wear on them.

Drive carefully.

Mihailovitch's 200,000 Patriots

Battle Axis In Yugoslavia

Cairo, Egypt—Full-scale warfare is now going on in the hills and valleys of central and western Serbia, where 200,000 guerrilla fighters under Gen. Draja Mihailovitch are battling a half a million Axis troops.

As Hitler launches all-out offensives against Russia to force a quick decision this year, the presence of Yugoslav guerrilla armies on his flank has created a dangerous third front, with the result that he has ordered 90,000 Germans, 300,00 Italians and an undetermined number of Bulgarians to wipe them out. Today battles are raging in all parts of Yugoslavia.

With the assistance of the Chetniks, a Serb patriot society, and the able leadership of Gen. Mihailovitch who organized the remnants of the Yugoslav army shattered in the German blitz of April, 1941, the guerrilla army last autumn recaptured some 200,000 square miles of Yugoslav territory. Through last fall and winter five divisions of Axis troops launched three major expeditions to crush Serb resistance, but all of them failed. This badly needed reserves were kept from the Russian and Libyan fronts.

Moreover, Mihailovitch's guerrillas have actually been strengthened by volunteers. Greeks escaping across the border, New Zealanders left from the Battle of Greece and Croats from northern Yugoslavia. Munitions and guns have been procured by raids on Nazi munition depots and arsenals. A nation-wide intelligence system, in which peasants, women, students and children are working, has kept the guerrilla leaders informed of all German movements. Striking swiftly, vanishing swiftly, Gen. Mihailovitch and his men have cut German communications, blown up supply bases, isolated Axis battalions, and generally scattered Nazi plans for major movements through Yugoslavia towards the Middle East.

With the fall of Athens, Miss Slavridi, a Red Cross nurse in Greece, was evacuated to the island of Crete. There, her hospital was bombed for two and a half hours by Stuka planes, with the result that all the doctors were killed and she was left alone with the wounded. She refused to leave them.

With the aid of an Irish priest she transferred wounded British soldiers as well as German paratroopers, to a series of caves on the Aegean shore. In the center of a raging battle, and in direct line of fire from both British and German guns, she improvised operating tables, gathered medical supplies, carried water to the thirsty, pain-ridden soldiers, thus saving many lives. German and British, in the fierce ten-day struggle for Crete. When a serious food shortage arose, she hung out a captured German flag in front of the cave, and German planes dropped supplies of food and ammunition to the cave.

Germans were stunned when they saw her, practically alone, taking care of wounded men in the worst-bombed spot of Crete. German officers were so impressed by her bravery that they flew her back to Athens in an army plane, where today she is continuing her work.

Czech Women Shot by Nazi "Protectors"

Women in Czechoslovakia, fighting side by side with men in the silent underground battle against Hitler's terror, die with them too. Last month in Prague a Czech woman faced a firing squad condemned for sabotaging Nazi food stores. Later Maria Jindrichova, a teacher, was publicly executed for circulating anti-Nazi leaflets and having her pupils write letters to other children in the Sudetenland.

100 Underground Newspapers Reach 3,000,000 Poles

London—One hundred papers, pamphlets and newsletters of all sizes and descriptions are now circulating as part of Poland's underground press. Officials here estimate that some 3,000,000 Poles are daily risking their lives

TWILIGHT LEAGUE

By Rolly Spaulding

Standings	W	L	Pct.
Spaulding Chevrolet	6	1	.857
Cassidy Lake	4	2	.666
Chelsea Spring	3	3	.500
Central Fibre	2	3	.400
Kimunity	2	4	.333
Federal Screw	1	5	.166

Schedule

Thursday, June 25—Cassidy Lake vs. Chelsea Spring.

Monday, June 29—Spaulding Chevrolet vs. Central Fibre.

Tuesday, June 30—Cassidy Lake vs. Kimunity.

Thursday, July 2—Chelsea Spring vs. Federal Screw.

During the past playing week the best ball of the season has been played. A postponed game between Cassidy Lake and Federal Screw took place last Wednesday night and it was really something! Cassidy Lake led 6-3 in the second inning, but Federal Screw picked up two in the third and three in the fourth inning and held Cassidy to one more in the fourth to make the score 8-7 in favor of the Screw boys at the start of the fifth inning. Cassidy Lake went hitless in the fifth, while their opponents picked up another two runs but the Cassidy team staged a last desperate rally and scored 3 runs in each the 6th and 7th inning to win 13 to 11.

The following night Chelsea Spring and Kimunity staged a ball game that was better than a World's Series game as far as ball playing was concerned. Chelsea Spring scored two runs while their pitcher, Whitey Guest, pitched no hit ball until the seventh inning when Fred Karp (a Central Fibre player filling in for Kimunity who was short one man) tied into Whitey's fast ball for a home run and the only score of the ball game for Kimunity—Chelsea Spring retired the next two men up and the game ended in their favor, 2 to 1.

Monday night's game was postponed but the regular scheduled game for Tuesday night between Spaulding Chevrolet and Kimunity was staged as scheduled. Spaulding Chevrolet scored 2 runs in the second inning by making use of a Kimunity error with bases loaded. Kimunity tightened down again and held Spaulding's boys scoreless for the remainder of the game, while on the other side of the game "Coke" Lanning pitched a shut-out game with the assistance of a flashy infield a couple of times when Kimunity managed to load the bases—the Luther Kusterer, Dick Kern to Paul Schneider combination came through with a double play in one instance and "Len" Novess—Spaulding's third sacker, shoestrunged a hot liner which started past him about a foot off the old terra firma and the force of the drive knocked him down and rolled him nearly out to Joe Policht in left field, who came in fast and was credited with an assist on the play. Charlie Panarites is good too (that gets me two hot fudge sundaes and a box of candy with an extra bonus if "Mac" prints it in CAPITALS).

Fertilizer Supply Does Not Face Drastic Cut

Except in the supply of nitrogen, for which six ways are open to users to aid themselves, the supplies of fertilizers will not be drastically cut for the remainder of 1942 and for 1943.

This was the information gained in Chicago by Michigan representatives in a recent conference of Zone 10 of the National Fertilizer association and representatives of the Federal War Board.

Phosphates and potash will be ample, although there are to be distinct limitations on nitrogen fertilizers because of diversion to war needs, the men were informed. Dr. C. E. Millar, head of the Michigan State College soil science department, attended the session as chairman of Zone 10 which includes the states of Michigan, Iowa, Wisconsin, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky.

Some of the available nitrogen likely will be specified for use on certain special crops such as the vegetables requested by the federal government. Growers of these truck crops are to get as large a share of the nitrogen as conditions permit, the conference indicated.

In the meantime the scientists stressed six ways in which farmers can overcome some of the nitrogen diversion. One is to take better care of farm livestock manure. Another is to use greater acreages of leguminous crops that gather and store their own nitrogen. Third step is to take greater care in making seedings. An increase in the use of cover crops, green manuring crops is recommended. Rye seeded in the fall or sweet clover seeded in the small grains to plow under in the spring are recommended.

Fertilizer applications on leguminous seedings is recommended. Use of phosphates and potash to insure a stand and gain better growth is considered good farm practice. Final step is to extend the liming program to sweeten sour soils for the growth of nitrogen-fixing crops. Representatives endorsed a resolution asking the proper federal authorities to permit more metal repair parts for lime-stone grinding machinery.

CANNING DEMONSTRATION

Helen Noyes, Michigan State College Extension Service representative, conducted a canning demonstration at the high school home economics room on Wednesday afternoon, June 17. Canteen leaders and representatives of several rural communities attended.

Miss Noyes demonstrated methods of canning with small amounts of sugar and also without sugar. She explained the pressure cooker method of canning, which is the only one recommended by the state department for vegetables and meats. The usual water bath method is safe only for acid foods such as fruit.

The ladies who attended the meeting were asked to acquaint the rest of the community with the new methods they learned. Anyone who would like information concerning new methods of canning may phone any of the following people:

Mrs. Norman Schmidt, A. L. Brock, John Hummel, Paul Maroney, L. Wacker, David Colquhoun, Kenneth Proctor, T. G. Riemenschneider, Armin Schneider, Maynard Knickerbocker, Howard Flintoft, Kent Walworth.

SALEM GROVE W. S. C. S.
The July meeting of Salem Grove W. S. C. S. will be held at the home of Mrs. Nelson Peterson on Wednesday afternoon, July 1. Mrs. Dillman Wahl will be the devotional leader. Topic: "America's Stake in Africa." Mrs. Chester Notten will have charge of the program.

Members of Salem Grove church are planning special services for Sunday, July 5, in observance of the 90th anniversary of the founding of the church. A cooperative dinner will be served at noon. Each family please bring table service, sandwiches and some dish to pass. Coffee will be served by the W. S. C. S. All friends of the church are cordially invited.

BOYS AT SCOUT CAMP
Under the leadership of Al Johnson the following Boy Scouts of troop 25, Chelsea, are spending the week at Camp Newkirk: Dean Scott, Tom Smith, James Gaken, Dick Richards, Stanley Weir, Dick Bahnmiller, Cameron Colquhoun, Joe Hale and Marlon Dietle. Bahnmiller, Colquhoun, Hale and Dietle are life guards; Weir passed second class fire building and cooking, and Richards passed signalling.

HONORED ON BIRTHDAY
A formal party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Merkel last Thursday evening in honor of their daughter Grace's 18th birthday. Friends were present from Detroit, Dearborn, Ann Arbor and Chelsea. Grace received many lovely presents.

FIRE DEPT. CALLED
The fire department was called out West Middle street about 5:30 Monday afternoon when Richard Abdon's car caught on fire. Slight damage resulted.
