Second Assault on Community's Scrap Metal Will Be Made Today

Tim Doolittle To Appear Here Tomorrow Night

Arrangements for the Tim Doolittle dance tomorrow night (Friday) are nearing completion and a good turnout is anticipated. Tim will bring his entire band, including "Smiling Al," "Red," and other WJR radio stars to the Chelsea public school gymnasium for the party, which will be from 9:00 to 1:00.

There will be square dancing for those who prefer this type of dancing and the more modern round dances for others. In addition, a program during intermission will be offered with the possibility of a good husking bee between some of our Chelsea champs such as "Sporty" Daniels, "Jerry" Niehaus, Lloyd Heydlauff, and others competing against Tim's gang.

The Kiwanians are sponsoring this dance for the purpose of raising money for the annual Kiddies' Halloween party to be held in the gymnasium on Saturday evening, Oct. 31. If you feel that these Halloween parties are a valuable asset to the community you can do your part to promote them by purchasing a ticket from one of the Kiwanians.

Various committees for the dance are as follows:
 Co-Chairmen—Lowell Davidson, Albert C. Johnson.
 Master of Ceremonies—Jerry Niehaus.

Help Needed To Make Kits for Service Men

A call from Red Cross headquarters has come in to the Chelsea Unit for the making and equipping of kits to be given to service men when they are leaving for overseas.

In response to previous needs, our local citizens have responded in a creditable manner and it is hoped that our quota of 50 kits for Chelsea will be taken care of immediately with the same enthusiasm.

Material for the construction of these kits is in the hands of Mrs. A. L. Steger, our local Red Cross director and may be obtained from her for assembling into finished products. When your kit is completed return it with one dollar which will be used to buy articles for complete equipment.

The list of items that will be packed in the kits is as follows: One book, one package of cigarettes, one soap box with a bar of soap, one deck of cards, one package of chewing gum, one writing tablet with envelopes, one pencil, shoe polish and cloth, razor blades, shoe laces, one housewife to include darning and sewing needles, white and khaki thread, buttons and safety pins.

The Red Cross is able to obtain these articles in quantity at wholesale prices, thus making it possible to stretch your dollar. Why not get your kit today and have it completed this week? Thank you very much for helping.

Mrs. A. L. Steger, Publicity Chairman.

CAROLYN KALMBACH HONORED
 East Lansing—Miss Carolyn Kalmbach, Chelsea sophomore at Michigan State college, will serve as treasurer of East Mayo dormitory during full term, it was announced here this week. Miss Kalmbach is a Home Economics student in the college.

Officers for fall term were elected in seven dormitories and nine cooperative houses last week. The new officers will take over their duties immediately and assist the dormitory matrons and house mothers in maintaining quiet hours for study, holding fire drills, planning social events, and carrying out the various duties of dormitory life. Elections are held each term, thus giving many girls an opportunity to hold office.

The women's dormitories at Michigan State College are designed to provide comfortable living quarters in an atmosphere as near homelike as possible. A housemother presides over each dormitory and acts as both an adviser and consultant on college problems to the girls in her care.

The Waterloo P.T.A. will hold a popular party at Gleaner hall, Waterloo, on Saturday night, Oct. 31 (Halloween). Public invited. Adv.

Stores Will Close and Collection of Scrap Starts At 1:00 O'Clock

This community's second big drive for the collection of scrap metal will get under way this afternoon (Thursday) at one o'clock. Business places will close at 12 o'clock and men and trucks are requested to be at Harper's garage not later than one o'clock so that assignments can be made.

A house-to-house canvass will be made in an effort to make this collection final for the time being. High school boys will be assigned to help in the village and a call will be made at every home to ascertain if there are heavy pieces of junk which the home-owner cannot move to the curb alone. All pieces which can be handled should be placed at the curb to make loading easier and quicker as there is a lot of ground to cover in this clean-up collection.

When the first drive was held two weeks ago there was so much junk at the curb that it was impossible to make the house-to-house calls as had been planned, as time would not permit. However, the clean-up squad will make a real effort to contact everyone today.

Reports from rural areas indicate that there will be a large quantity of junk to be collected from farmers and at some schools. Calls have been received by the committee from many sections and it is hoped there will be enough trucks on hand to dispatch to all of these rural points. Stops will not be made in the country unless the committee has been notified that there is junk ready for the collection.

In the report of the first drive, published last week, an error was made in stating the number of loads received from the Riemenschneider school—that school collected nine truckloads of junk rather than five as reported.

Everyone has done a wonderful job of cooperating with the local salvage committee in the collection of scrap metal, and it is hoped that as many trucks will be on hand today as two weeks ago, and a few additional men to help with the hauling and unloading—it's a lot of work but it's also a duty that every able-bodied man who is not working owes to his country. Come out and help!

Anniversary Services Held at Zion Church

Anniversary services held Sunday at Zion Lutheran church of Rogers Corners, Freedom township, marking 75 years of worship since its organization, were a most enjoyable event for members of the church and congregation. The church was filled to its utmost capacity with attendants from Detroit, Port Huron, Capac, Toledo, Ypsilanti, Dexter, Ann Arbor and Grass Lake.

The altar was decorated with bouquets of white chrysanthemums, presented by relatives in memory of departed members.

Dr. Wm. G. Sodi, of Columbus, O., stewardship secretary of the American Lutheran church, delivered the morning sermon at 10 o'clock. Guest speaker at the afternoon meeting was Rev. Harold Yochum, Detroit, president of the Michigan district, and Rev. Bruno Brueckner, Capac, chairman of the Southern Michigan Conference, spoke at the evening service.

Congregational Pastor Honored at Reception

Rev. W. H. Skentelbury, who assumed the pastorate of the Congregational church in September, with Mrs. Skentelbury and family were given a reception on Sunday from 3 to 5 o'clock and many members and citizens called to welcome them and extend good wishes.

The church parlors were attractively decorated with flowers and potted plants and the refreshment table, covered with a damask cloth, was centered with white mums and pink roses arranged in a silver bowl. White candles in silver candelabra furnished illumination.

Mrs. Henry Schneider and Mrs. Otto Luick poured, and receiving the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Schneider, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Wurst, Mr. and Mrs. George Goodell and Mr. and Mrs. M. W. McClure.

PRIMARY DEPT. HOLDS PICNIC

The children of the Primary Department of the Congregational church held their annual party at the Spaulding farm on Saturday afternoon. Games, horse-back riding and a hayride were among the afternoon's entertainment features. Supper was served to the youngsters at a table appropriately decorated in keeping with Halloween season.

Chelsea Unit for Blood Donors Being Planned

There are many branches in our national defense program in which you may provide your support. One of the most important is that of volunteering your services as a blood donor.

Blood donations are needed to supply blood plasma to be used by the army and navy and for civilians in case of catastrophe. They provide life-giving aid for the armed forces and others in need of blood transfusions as a result of severe shock, wounds, burns or other injuries.

Chelsea will set up a unit for blood donors early in December and it is imperative that at least 175 persons volunteer their services for this important cause. Any man or woman in good health, between the ages of 21 and 60 may volunteer. You are taking no risks for you are given a preliminary test to ascertain whether or not you are fitted for the blood donor service.

Halloween Party For Kiddies On October 31

The annual Kiddies' Halloween party, sponsored by the Kiwanis club, will be held at the public school auditorium on Saturday night, October 31, when every youngster in the community is invited to attend and participate in the fun of the evening.

According to the committees who are planning this year's event, there will be a good program, plenty of noisemakers, a parade if the weather permits, the usual large supply of sweet cider and doughnuts, and a big bonfire.

There will be prizes for costumes, both boys and girls, and the number of prizes to be awarded for the various types of costumes will be announced next week, when details of the program will also be announced.

Since the inauguration of this activity by the Kiwanis club several years ago the children have done little damage in the village on Halloween night and it is hoped by the Kiwanis club and village authorities that the children will again refrain from any damaging pranks this year. This annual party is sponsored to provide plenty of Halloween fun and entertainment for the children and they can show their appreciation by participating in the fun and then going directly to their homes.

Farmers Not Required to Issue Game Permits

Lansing—Farmers perturbed about the new amendment to the Horton trespass law that makes it possible to require hunters to have written permission to be on the land, are being advised by the conservation department that if the farmer himself does not wish to bother with such red tape, no one else can insist upon it.

Some farmers had been asking whether they would have to give their own guests and close friends signed slips of paper to stay within the law. Guided by an attorney general's opinion of October 31, 1941, the department holds that it is entirely up to the farmer whether he will require written permits of anyone.

Hard hit by the new law, however, will be any trespasser a farmer chooses to prosecute. Inability to produce the written permit in court would leave the trespasser defenseless.

FARMERS' CLUB MEETS

The October meeting of the Western Washtenaw Farmers' club was held on Friday evening in the basement of the Methodist church. The supper, in charge of Mrs. Oscar Kalmbach, Mrs. P. H. Riemenschneider and George Sidwell was served at seven o'clock, with covers for 30.

The president then called the meeting to order and the following officers were re-elected for the ensuing year: President—Henry Musbach. Secretary—Mrs. P. H. Riemenschneider. Treasurer—Mrs. T. G. Riemenschneider.

Talks were given by Rev. Bert Ede and Schuyler P. Foster, who related their experiences while living on a farm and Fred W. Notten spoke in regard to membership in the State Farmers' Club. The program closed with a song and benediction.

PROCLAMATION

Though an inland state, Michigan early contributed her quota to the glorious history of the American Navy when, in the War of 1812, her cities manned the ships of Commodore Perry to his glorious victory in the memorable battle of Lake Erie, as he left his burning and sinking flagship, the USS Lawrence.

Today our American Navy sails side by side with that of its former foe of 1812 in the same cause of democratic liberty for which she then fought.

In the growth of the modern American Navy to world-wide eminence, men from the middle-west have constituted more than half of our Navy personnel, and Michigan takes just pride when the role of her Navy heroes is heard. Today, in a peculiar sense, the turn of the war tide rests upon the success of our Navy and its aerial support. It is therefore peculiarly fitting to give our Navy some evidence of its united civilian support.

Therefore, in conformity with the proclamation of the President of these United States and the Governor of Michigan, I, A. D. Mayer, President of the Village of Chelsea, do hereby proclaim Tuesday, the twenty-seventh day of October, one thousand nine hundred and forty-two, as NAVY DAY, and call upon Chelsea citizens on that day in their homes or places of assemblance, to make appropriate salute to our NAVY—FIRST LINE OF ATTACK.

Given at Chelsea this 20th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and forty-two. A. D. MAYER, Village President.

24 Years Ago

Thursday, October 24, 1918. The residence of H. H. Fenn on South Main street was badly damaged by fire last Friday morning.

Mrs. Catherine Moore died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Fisher, Jr. on Saturday, October 19, 1918.

THE HOME FRONT IN MICHIGAN

A recently captured Nazi document tells how Hitler plans to run his bloodstained "Greater German Empire" by means of an army of secret police, always on the job. Japan's ambition to share a conquered world with Germany isn't any secret. It is symbolized on New Jap postage stamps.

These aspirations have had some rude shocks lately. The splendid stand of the Russians once more threatens Nazi aggressors with stalemate and approaching winter; Nazi General Rommel still is stalled in the African desert; the far extended Jap flanks have been dealt blows by U. S. forces in the Solomons, Australians in New Guinea, Americans and Canadians at Kiska in the Aleutians.

Pleasing as these latter developments may be, listen to Army Services of Supply Commander Somervell. Speaking in St. Louis recently, he said the United Nations have "taken a terrific shelling all around the globe" and it is time "we begin to be realistic."

He continued, without mincing words: "The Japanese and Nazis hate us... and it is just about time we start throwing some of that hate back in their faces. You can't kill a man you don't hate or fear. And our number one job now is to kill Nazis and Japs... We've lost our rubber, most of our tin, our hemp, our silk. We've lost ships by the hundreds, men by the thousands. We've lost the freedom of the seas. We've lost everything except a smug sense of complacency. And that's one thing we've got to lose and lose fast or we'll lose our independence."

Munitions produced in the United States in August were more than 3 1/2 times that of November, 1941. (The month before Pearl Harbor). But the fact remains that over-all production in August lagged about 14 per cent behind forecasts.

Our production will falter even more, if we don't build up that huge reserve of scrap metal to carry our steel mills through the winter and early spring. Aroused to the danger, our nation and state have responded nobly to the intensive salvage campaign now under way. Great heaps of scrap metal are being dragged from attics, basements, barns and farmyards. But there must be no lessening of effort. The flood must continue to grow and continue unabated.

War brings shortages. We're beginning to feel them. We're all at war, so all of us must share these shortages. Share and share alike is an underlying principle of democracy. Fuel oil is not scarce but the means of transporting it are at a premium. There'll be only about two-thirds of the normal supply this winter for the 30 states in which rationing will become effective Oct. 15.

Unless our coal supply is increased we'll be short of this fuel, too, next year—by 42 million tons. Coal production will be speeded through 91 new labor-management committees in the soft coal mines. Longer work hours in the mines are likely.

Nationwide gasoline rationing probably will begin about Nov. 22. But we shouldn't wait until then to impose upon ourselves a voluntary rationing by cutting out all unnecessary driving. Surely, everyone recognizes by now the necessity of saving all important rubber. Trucks and busses alone are wearing out tires at the rate of 35,000 a day.

The same thing is true of meats. Because of the tremendous amount of meats needed by our armed forces and our allies, meat rationing is forecast about February. In the meantime, we should limit our weekly meat diet to 2 1/2 pounds per person. Actually, this allowance is about as much as we have averaged for 10 years.

Yes, we can win this war. But everyone must do his share. Work, save, sacrifice, share, no hoarding—there are hundreds of little things which 130,000,000 Americans can do every day to hasten the day of victory.

Our armed forces have looped off some 400 miles of bombing distance to Jap-held Kiska by creating a base in the bleak and desolate Andreanof Islands. Thousands of miles southward, in the humid tropics, other U.S. fighting men hold outposts against the enemy.

These men, vanguards of greater forces to come, must have the best fighting tools it is within our power to provide them. They must have the right sort of food, clothing and equipment—adapted to the climate and the character of their hazardous enterprises.

Who would deny them this? Some of what we send them comes from our surplus of goods. A great deal necessarily must come from the stock of things which we do not have in abundance. So, under our tight war economy, every single item, product and service must be examined: First, as to its primary war use; and, secondarily, as to its place in essential civilian needs.

This rigid test is disposing of countless assorted products and materials. All nickel must go to implements of war. The entire production of distilled spirits must be turned to war alcohol, an ingredient of explosives and synthetic rubber.

Except for what may now be left in stock, we'll get no more furniture made in whole or part of iron and steel, no refrigerated display cases,

Salvage of Tin Cans Ordered By WPB

All those residents of Ann Arbor and Washtenaw County who have been wondering what to do with their tin cans can have their answer now. The federal government wants those tin cans saved for de-tinning. George Gabler, chairman of the county scrap salvage committee has received notification of this in a telegram from the War Production Board. It has been announced by Mr. Gabler that all tin cans are to be salvaged but they are not to be collected in connection with the current drive to salvage other metals.

Only food cans and tin-plated tobacco cans are to be saved in the tin can program, which is national in scope. The salvaged cans will not be collected until a later date, but WPB is calling upon all citizens to start saving them now. In saving tin cans the citizen must follow a definite procedure if the cans are to be useful to the war effort:

- 1. Cans must be washed as they are emptied.
2. Labels must be removed.
3. Those cans which need it must be de-greased by light burning.
4. Cans must be "compacted."
5. It is, then possible to store the compacted cans edgewise in discarded cartons.

Compacting the cans into flat pieces and storing them in a dry place removes the greatest single obstacle to handling this bulky material. To compact a can, the householder should remove both the top and the bottom of the can. Then he should mash the walls of a can into a flat piece. He will then have three flat pieces. The top, the bottom and the mashed wall. These flat pieces can be stored edgewise in a carton, where they can await collection. A cubic foot of cans thus flattened will weigh from 50 to 100 pounds, according to the degree of compaction.

Mr. Gabler states that the first essential is to have householders start saving tin cans. Definite word on how and when the stored cans will be collected is to be announced later.

Throw YOUR Scrap Into the Fight!

non-mechanic water coolers, mechanical refrigerators for freezing and storing farm products. Articles in which no iron or steel may be used from awning frames to voting machines and wardrobe trunks, including such various things as bathtubs, B-B shot, croquet sets, fireplace screens, pet cages, skates, and household tongs.

Judged by peacetime standards of a few months ago, the things we will do without can be numbered only by the hundreds. Judged by the victory standard of our war economy, we'll save tons of important metal and hasten delivery of our fighters of the things they need.

Some things we will do without. Other things, we will share a limited supply—share and share alike, the democratic way.

To stop manufacture of an article or to limit its production can be effected quickly by our government. But to distribute, or ration, a restricted stock among a nation of consumers is quite another story.

To set up gasoline rationing for 20 million additional motorists involves printing 60 million ration books and some 100 million copies of various forms and regulations.

Until this job is completed and the machinery for gasoline rationing is operative, patriotic drivers are expected to drive as little as possible, keep within the 35-mile maximum speed limit, be sure tires are properly inflated, share their cars with others.

More and more commodities will be rationed. Some of them soon. The government will provide the machinery. It is up to the consumers to make it work equitably.

People using fuel oil for heating must determine how much fuel oil they bought last year and must measure the total square feet of floor space in order to have the information to determine the oil ration coupons to which they are entitled. Generally, they will receive two-thirds as much oil as last year, with an additional allowance for families with children under four years of age.

Rubber boots and work shoes now are being rationed to war workers and others who must have them. Certificates entitling eligible persons to purchase these restricted articles must be obtained from local rationing boards.

The "share-the-meat" ration of 2 1/2 pounds per person a week is still voluntary and will remain so probably until February, but it is nonetheless essential. Those homes which have been averaging more than this allowance should eat larger quantities of foods with nourishment values similar to the "red meats"—fruits, cereals, dry beans, soybeans, peas, peanuts, milk and cheese, poultry, fish, eggs and the like.

Farmers who slaughter their own meats and butchers who handle them are obligated to keep the same rations as the rest of us.

All rationing will be comparatively simple, if we are honest with ourselves and with our country.

Our Neighbors

STOCKBRIDGE—Mary Dorene Glenn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Caspar W. Glenn, and Curtis Worth White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arcus E. White of Trenton, N. J., were married Saturday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock at the home of the bride.—Brief-Sun.

DEXTER—A. D. Van Aken resigned as superintendent of Dexter schools the fore part of the week and his resignation was effective Tuesday evening. Mr. Van Aken stated Wednesday that he was not quite ready to announce his plans for the future but would be in a few days. He had been superintendent in Dexter for the past sixteen years.—Leader.

TECUMSEH—Although the hunting season did not officially open until this morning, Justice F. C. Hanna had his first case involving a game law violation in his court last Monday. The offender was Curtis Shilberg of Detroit, who was arrested in Raisin township on Sunday, charged with having two pheasants in his possession. Justice Hanna sentenced the violator to pay a fine of $50 and costs of $11.90. He arranged to pay.—Herald.

BRIGHTON—The Brighton fire department answered a call Friday at around 5:30 p. m. when fire broke out in the Island Lake Hotel. The flames, which caught in the bathhouse, were out of control when the firemen arrived, and in spite of their efforts the 43-room building was destroyed, together with practically all of its contents. The upright part of the building was still standing when the fire department left at about three o'clock the following morning, but the entire structure was in ruins.—Argus.

GRASS LAKE—One million pounds of scrap metal is a powerful lot of junk to obtain in any community but that is the goal we have set for Grass Lake and we believe it can be reached and even surpassed. The total of scrap delivered from the Vern Wolfe station alone is 666,000 pounds. This community has an opportunity to set a mark for other villages in the state, and possibly the nation, to shoot at and in the meantime we will get a lot of mighty fine publicity throughout the country for our efforts.—News.

Worst headaches for engineers laying war-oil pipelines are river crossings. The two-foot pipe from East Texas fields to Illinois has already tunneled beneath six rivers on its way to the main crossing at the Mississippi.

Because of the tremendous amount of meats needed by our armed forces and our allies, meat rationing is forecast about February. In the meantime, we should limit our weekly meat diet to 2 1/2 pounds per person. Actually, this allowance is about as much as we have averaged for 10 years. Yes, we can win this war. But everyone must do his share. Work, save, sacrifice, share, no hoarding—there are hundreds of little things which 130,000,000 Americans can do every day to hasten the day of victory. Our armed forces have looped off some 400 miles of bombing distance to Jap-held Kiska by creating a base in the bleak and desolate Andreanof Islands. Thousands of miles southward, in the humid tropics, other U.S. fighting men hold outposts against the enemy. These men, vanguards of greater forces to come, must have the best fighting tools it is within our power to provide them. They must have the right sort of food, clothing and equipment—adapted to the climate and the character of their hazardous enterprises. Who would deny them this? Some of what we send them comes from our surplus of goods. A great deal necessarily must come from the stock of things which we do not have in abundance. So, under our tight war economy, every single item, product and service must be examined: First, as to its primary war use; and, secondarily, as to its place in essential civilian needs. This rigid test is disposing of countless assorted products and materials. All nickel must go to implements of war. The entire production of distilled spirits must be turned to war alcohol, an ingredient of explosives and synthetic rubber. Except for what may now be left in stock, we'll get no more furniture made in whole or part of iron and steel, no refrigerated display cases,

HOW IMPORTANT IS SUGAR? No. 4 in the Series of Messages on Nutrition From the standpoint of good-nutrition, sugar is not TOO important. It does improve flavor and adds a pleasant sweetness to many foods, but balanced meals abundant in energy values can easily be planned with the amount of sugar allowed by the ration cards. Food authorities feel that the sugar curtailment will change our eating habits perhaps for the better and certainly not with harmful effects to the general health of the nation. Cake and pie and very rich, sweet pastries will give way to fruit which provides natural sugar and in addition an abundance of vitamins and minerals essential to sound physical condition. Sugar has a satiating effect on appetite. With sugar curtailed, appetites will be sharper and people will eat more of the protective foods which safeguard health. Corn sirup, honey and molasses are good alternates for sugar, and there are many recipes for tasty and wholesome foods in which they may be used. CLIP AND FILE HONEY BREAD PUDDING (6 Servings) 3 cups soft bread crumbs 3 cups hot milk 2 tablespoons melted shortening 2 eggs, beaten 1/2 cup strained honey 1/4 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon vanilla extract 1. Famous Journalist To Address Study Club

Professor Lewis J. Brumm, Chairman of the Department of Journalism of the University of Michigan, has been secured as speaker for the annual Fathers' Night program of the Young Mothers' Child Study Club to be held next Tuesday evening, Oct. 27 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Bernhart, 519 McKinley St.

A very interesting program is scheduled for this annual occasion. Professor Brumm, whose fame as a journalist, speaker and educator is nation-wide, and who is listed currently in "Who's Who in America," will speak on "Education for Living."

The social event of the evening will be an old-fashioned box social. Each of the ladies will put up a "banquet for two" in a gaily decorated box and will vie with each other in making their boxes the most attractive so that in appearance as well as in the quality of the contents which will consist of all kinds of goodies limited only by the imagination and the culinary-art of the ladies—who provide them. Briak bidding will be inspired by their appearance, as they will be auctioned off by Lloyd Heydauff to the highest bidder, and the male guests in this way will thus gain their lunch and also their partner with whom they will share it. A prize will be given for the most attractive box.

War Producers Need Well-Balanced Meals

Farm producers and other war workers share with the homemakers the responsibility of planning well balanced-foods and meals.

Especially is the problem important for those who eat at least one meal away from home each day, warn members of the home economics extension staff at Michigan State College.

One of the best tips on cooperation is to have the person who eats meals away from home provide a description of such meals, so that the meals eaten at home can complement such outside meals with proper balance in the diet.

For health and fitness, adults need daily portions of milk, fruit, green or yellow vegetables and the other types of foods that form a good diet. Topsy-turvy hours of work make the meal planning even more important. Hit-and-miss eating as a habit means trouble with health.

Among the college staff recommendations are ideas for those who work at night. Four meals often fit such a schedule better than three. Before sleep there can be a hearty breakfast for the night-war worker when arriving home from work. A light meal on awakening is followed by a more substantial meal before going to work and a night lunch during working hours.

An eating place away from home should be selected with care. A clean and cheerful place that serves a variety of well-cooked food gets top rating. Prices and the food list should be scanned, to get good nourishment for the money paid. "Specials" ought to be selected only if they provide a combination of the food needed.

CHAPTER XIII

The man's eyes veiled suddenly. Curt fared.

"Well, make up your mind whether to trust me or not. I can't manage a tête-à-tête very often. You're from the Canal Zone. And you drink about as much as I do. Your general appearance needs to be explained." Curt dared a little guess-work. "You came in through Soledad on the destroyer that called there a week ago Monday?"

A rigidity in the other convinced Curt he was right. He went on.

"You've built yourself into a tramp by sleeping in old clothes and not shaving for ten days. Your skin isn't used to a beard, it itches. You keep scratching your face. But you couldn't resist the comforts of a clean body. You got those bleary eyes from going without sleep, and that hungry look from doing without food. For about two days, huh? Three days? The whole thing's a build-up. Why?"

Collins gave him.

"I needed a good background. McInnis says I can trust you. I think so, too, first judgment. It's a long story, and I can't even give it to you. All of it, anyway. I'm asking you, as a fellow American," he emphasized the words, "to give me a job. I want to get established here."

Steps mounted hurriedly to the door in the outer room. The door snapped open. Curt picked up the application blank Collins had been working on, and was studying it as Emilio entered, black-browed.

"Everything is ready," the native announced hardily.

Curt looked up. "Okay. We'll have to hold it a few minutes. All right, Collins," he snapped at the ragged man. "So happens I do need men. I'll give you a try-out, but you better be as good as you say you are. You can go up to camp with me now."

He looked the man over with his taste. "First, go to the next room and take off those rags. Get under the shower and I'll find you some clean clothes. There's a razor in the bathroom. Get those whiskers off. And hustle it up!"

Scarcely a word passed on the chugging trip to the levee camp. Esteban, the Carib launch boy, sat at his controls and stared straight ahead. Emilio suited.

As for Collins, after a few minutes of that stare he simply turned his back on Emilio, and gazed at the river's edge slipping by. Collins was a far stretch from the tramp of an hour ago. In spare shirt and breeches Curt kept on hand in his Tempujo quarters. Collins showed up a tall, rangy, athletic person.

The whiskers gone, his face proved lean, tanned despite the recent hirsute covering, clean in lines, likeable. Slightly hollow cheeks did their part toward maintaining the illusion he'd tried to build. His hair had emerged from the shower a sandy blond, much lighter than the brown-red of Curt's head. Collins dispatched most of the lunch Emilio had put aboard—ravenously, thus proving the one point—before settling down to sleep for the remainder of the trip.

Curt had plenty to occupy his mind. His guess, confirmed by the other's silence, that Collins had come to Soledad on the destroyer, was proof enough that something was brewing. But what?

The man had said he came "to see Mitchell," but Mitchell had been dead for days before Collins had presumably left the Canal Zone. Did he come to investigate Mitchell's death? If so, then he had plenty more to investigate.

True, violent deaths of three Americans would assume an importance that Mitchell's alone didn't have, but these other deaths hadn't occurred until Collins was already on his way. So that couldn't be the answer. Besides, he wouldn't have needed a disguise for this.

Now, it was to the United States interest, Curt reasoned, so far as it could be seen that peace was preserved throughout these countries. A revolutionary movement might warrant under-cover investigation even though the revolution itself might not rate interference. This man from the Canal Zone had come to the C. A. T. outfit. Montaya was the only person of consequence here. Did it mean that Montaya, innocent as he appeared to be of such aspirations, actually had political yearnings?

But here again were objections. Dr. Arca, the "provisional" Presidente of Tierra Libre, was a good executive, the people not abused, their economy prospering reasonably well. You can't have a revolution among satisfied people.

Monahan's shift was coming off duty as the launch made the levee camp's landing. Curt took Collins ashore—under Emilio's watchful eye —and while the camp cook was replenishing the lunch basket, he turned the man over to Monahan.

"Put him on a drag this afternoon, Slats. You can tell one way or another about him by the time I get back this evening. Luck, Collins."

Curt left his musette bag in camp, went briefly into the few questions accumulated since he was here two days ago, then took off upriver again.

There were three of them this time—Curt, Emilio, and the Carib launch boy.

They reached without incident a spot above the C. A. T. holdings, past the point where the Rio Negro levee made an elbow to join the first arm of the Quebrado range. Here Curt had the Indian-pull the launch in to the south shore. Then he put on his carefully prepared act. He appeared to deliberate.

"Very well, Emilio," he said at last, "here's our program. I want you to pace off the shore line and plant these flags every forty steps. Be sure they can be easily seen from across the river. This won't be hard to do, with the river now at a low mark, though you may have to use your machete on small brush. When you reach that bend-up ahead, wait for us there."

"Meanwhile, Esteban will set me down at that hill opposite. I'll climb to the highest point, get some pictures for further study, and come down the other side. The launch will pick me up, then we'll cross and get you. Is that clear?"

Emilio fumbled with the flags. "Could not Esteban plant the flags? Then I could stay with you."

"We need him on the launch. Neither of us could handle it in these rough waters." For some distance they'd been fighting the increased current of the lower rapids.

"But Señor Montaya gave me strict orders."

"Of course, of course," Curt interrupted impatiently. "He told me, too. That's for where there could be danger of attack, such as came to Mr. Mitchell. There can be no danger here. Come, we'll have to get going if we're to get back to camp by dark."

He hustled Emilio, still protesting and blackly reluctant, off along the shore line, jumped back into the launch, and was set down on the other shore. As the launch boy headed upstream for the rendezvous, Curt took one look behind him. He could see Emilio was watching him.

Curt was now in somewhat familiar territory. On this bank rose a considerable hill thickly covered with a mass of trees, bananas, and mangoes. Because of the hill, Finca Urania, the Associated's farm, didn't touch the river at this spot. Curt plunged into a path used by the women of the farm laborers when they came to the river to wash clothes. He picked up a mule trail at the edge of the banana plantation, broke into a trot.

Banana farms are laid out evenly, the "bits" planted twenty feet or so apart. The plants grow rapidly, shooting up suckers, of which the strongest are allowed to remain, and each single plant eventually becomes a ring of plants, like a bed of gigantic canna. Their long broad leaves meet twenty to thirty feet overhead, allowing only scattered rays of sunshine to reach the earth. A banana plantation is a lovely, peaceful spot—if one has the time to enjoy it. Through these sunbeams brilliant birds and butterflies dart; there are rustlings underfoot of field rats or iguanas—or snakes; and all is hushed as a green-windowed cathedral.

It was along such a lane, hot as the air still, that Curt trotted. It all went well he could get to the farmhouse of Urania and back to the river in thirty to forty minutes. He would have to explain this lapse of time, but he'd worry about that later.

Out of breath and sweating heavily, he reached the farmhouse. His khaki shirt was dark with perspiration.

There was only a native timekeeper in the farm office, which was the ground floor of the two-story house, while another mazo was raking the corral. He looked up, amazed, at the stranger who appeared out of nowhere, but Curt gave him no chance to put his curiosity into words. He took the initiative.

"Donde esta hoy el Señor McInnis?"

"Creo que fue al Tigre, Señor."

Curt went to the old wall phone and turned the handle sharply. The bell in the box tinkled. The thick soft voice of the exchange operator answered.

"Ring Finca Tigre." He waited.

"Señor McInnis there? How long would it take to bring him to the phone, Oh? He thought a moment. "All right, thanks, won't wait." He hung up. He couldn't risk half an hour.

His eye fell on a typewriter. Seizing a piece of paper, he totted it into the machine and began to punch out a note:

"Jerry. You've heard of Zora Mitchell and Bill Henderson without a doubt. Convinced of danger here, but don't know what it is. Old Man Moore has confidential file on everyone of consequence in Tierra Libre. Hates to give out but I must know all I can about Montaya. Make him spill to you, and meet me at Riverbend about nine Saturday night. Hiring Collins, no chance to talk to him yet. C."

He cast about for an envelope, found one, sealed and addressed his message.

The native timekeeper had been staring at him throughout all this, half in amazement, half in resentment. Curt asked his name.

"Rafael Diaz, Señor."

"Bueno, Rafael," said Curt. "Tell me one about this. See that Señor McInnis gets this as soon as possible. Phone him to come here. Put it in his hands yourself." Understand?

"He gave the young man a ten-dollar American bill, thinking that should keep the fellow's mouth shut, and deliver the note.

"Si, si, Señor," the boy promised.

"Es importante," Curt cautioned again. "No digas nada!"

As Curt made off at a trot across the clearing, to disappear under the banana plants, the timekeeper, note in one hand, money in the other, shrugged his shoulders, muttering, "Locos—Todos locos, Americanos. Siempre tienen prisa." (These crazy Americans, always in a hurry.)

On his way back to the river Curt thought of his sweet-scented shirt. He tipped it off as he trotted and let the breeze be created nearly dry by the time he reached the hill. It would still show wet, but that could be accounted for by his exertions along the river.

He saw a brilliant orchid in bloom, an epiphyte fastened to a slender dead tree limb within reach. It was one of the "butterfly" orchids. Lee wanted, and had two three-foot candelabra branches covered with dozens of small bright yellow blooms, like butterflies alighted.

Here was his excuse for lost time! First wrapping the bulbous roots firmly to the limb with fibrous creepers so they wouldn't jar loose, with his machete he hacked off the limb, fortunately half rotten, trimmed the ends, and carried his prize along.

A family of tiny gray monkeys, hardly larger than kittens, chattered down at this outrage to their privacy. They followed Curt, scolding shrilly until he emerged on the crest of the hill, where rocks had prevented thick vegetation. There he saw Emilio was nearly through setting the stakes and anxiously watching for him to appear.

Curt put on the rest of his act with deliberation. He studied the opposite shore, the rising hills behind, put away his field glasses, took his pictures, then fought his way through the undergrowth down the hill to meet the launch.

"It was some time you were gone from view," said Emilio, when at last picked up. The man was jittery. "I worried. You had difficulty?"

"Some," admitted Curt. "But this is what lost me some minutes. My wife wants an orchid collection. She had one when we lived here before."

Curt exhibited the plant with such real pride that it appeared to satisfy Emilio, and the man fell into narrow-eyed sullenness.

"Well, I'm through here," said Curt, tapping the camera. "Let's go."

They picked up the flags Emilio had planted—in his pictures they would mark 100-foot intervals, though this was no more essential to Curt than the pictures. But the ruse had worked. During this process Curt also hunted a couple more orchids to bolster his excuse for the delay across the river.

Then they proceeded to eat lunch in the boat, in the lengthening afternoon shade of a stand of mangroves. Roots of these trees, sprouting from branches in midair, had taken hold in the river bottom, making a natural awning against the sun.

Perched on a branch not far from the launch, a noisy kiskadee jawned incessantly. Esteban, the Carib, called it a "heet-gee-gee." At first it was merely annoying, but before the meal was finished the bird had become a definite nuisance.

Curt pulled his pistol, took aim, fired. His brows shot up in astonishment!

There had been no kick when he squeezed the trigger, and the bullet, expelled without force, made a curious arc and plopped harmlessly into the water.

He tried another shot, but with the same result. Then he removed the clip and examined the remaining bullets. They seemed to be all right. The brass shell case from the first shot had ejected over the side, but the second had fallen into the boat.

Curt picked it up and examined it. Undoubtedly, it was from the same lot as the rest of the clip. Suddenly he noted that Emilio's sullenness had disappeared; that the native was eyeing the proceedings with a dead-pan countenance and completely indifferent eyes.

The bird meanwhile had merely hopped a couple of steps at each shot and was still jabbering its raucous notes. Curt snapped home the clip, tried a third shot. Another dull thud. So he shrugged, reholstered the automatic, and said, "Huh. Bad lot of ammunition. Nothing more."

Farm Truck Owners Required To Register

Farmers who own trucks and truckers who are primarily engaged in hauling farm products from farms or supplies to farms are again reminded that October 22, 23 and 24 are National Farm Truck Registration days on which they can obtain assistance from the special Washtenaw County Farm Transportation Committee in filling out applications for Certificates of War Necessity, which all trucks will be required to carry after Nov. 15 in order to legally operate.

Fred Blumhardt, chairman of the Washtenaw County AAA Committee and USDA War Board, will serve as chairman of the Washtenaw County Farm Transportation Committee.

The following registration places will be available: The main place of registration is the Washtenaw Farm Bureau Store, 407 N. Fifth Ave., Ann Arbor. The time, 10 to 12 a. m., 1 and 4 to 8 to 10 p. m. Also many independent dealers throughout the county have offered to assist their customers.

All registrants who come to the County Farm Transportation Committee for assistance are asked to bring with them any log books or records they may have kept covering the operation of their truck or trucks from January 1, 1941, up to the present date. Blumhardt said this would greatly facilitate filling out the data required on the applications.

Mr. Blumhardt said that the Office of Defense Transportation was to have mailed to each truck owner a blank application form, an instruction book to cover the information requested on the application form, as well as additional information concerning ODT regulations and orders, and a self-addressed envelope in which the application form may be returned to the ODT office in Detroit.

All registrants are requested to bring this material (application blank, instruction book and mailing envelope) with them when they go to the County Farm Transportation Committee for assistance.

Under ODT General Order No. 21, all trucks are required to carry a Certificate of War Necessity in order to legally operate after November 15, Blumhardt said. Without a certificate, no gasoline, tires, repairs, or repair parts can be obtained.

Certificates of War Necessity aim to confine truck operations to those which are necessary to the war effort or to the essential domestic economy, and to make the most use possible out of each vehicle. To this end, the certificates will set the maximum mileage and the minimum loads for each truck or vehicle for which a certificate is issued.

Now that schools are in session again, a few words of warning to parents are timely.

Teach your children to be extremely careful on their way to school. Teach them to cross streets only at intersections and then only after they have looked to left and right. If it is necessary for your children to walk on the highways, instruct them to walk on the left-hand side and to step off the road if necessary. Remind them daily!

School patrols stationed at busy intersections near schools have made crossing streets easier and safer for our children. Yet accidents happen not only where traffic is heavy, but where it is light.

Urge your children to use good judgment on their trips to and from school.

A night fighter needs 5,000 units of Vitamin A per day to aid night vision.

Office News

In addition to the marks, report cards will also have citizenship grades. Citizenship means attitude, application, and conduct. The grades will be: 1, excellent; 2, good; 3, fair; and 4, poor.

Chelsea plays a football game at Romulus on October 23.

Our Student Council is promoting the sale of the Tim-Doolittle dance tickets. The single dance ticket is 50c, spectator admission ticket 35c, and the couple ticket is $1. Dancing from 9:00 to 1:00.

The high school boys will assist in the scrap drive this afternoon.

The two remaining home football games take place October 30 with Milan and November 13, with Manchester.

A representative of the Chelsea Public Library presented awards to a number of grades in the school for participation in the Summer Reading Program.

Student Council

The meeting was opened with the discussion of the juke box that the school is planning to purchase. It was decided to get more information about them and Bob Edgar was appointed to secure the addresses of some of the companies.

Suggestions were made as to what the Student Council could do to help with the Tim Doolittle dance. It was voted to plan a ticket sale program and LeRoy May was placed in charge of it.

Senior News

For the past week the Seniors have been selling pencils. Each student was responsible for selling at least ten pencils. The colors of the pencils this year were gold and purple, with the football schedule of the year on them. The pencils sold very fast—the project was a great success.

Graduates of '43 (?)

Wilma Schweinfurth, our capable Senior president, when asked how tall she is, replied quietly, 5 ft. So immediately I looked her height up in the records. She is 4 ft. 11 3/4 inches high. She has green eyes and from them shines a light of divinity. She weighs one hundred and thirteen pounds and every ounce of this is a threat to those who play basketball against her, a game in which she excels. Maybe that accounts for the fact that basketball is her favorite sport. Sweeny—that's her nickname—is aggressive, friendly and always ready to give a helping hand. The best way to describe Wilma is with three words—she is tops!

The Critics

The party Friday night was a success, even if it didn't get there until nine o'clock and even if the music was unsatisfactory.

The skits were pretty good. We wonder if some of those jokes told were meant or were just kidding—a little of both perhaps. The Freshmen should certainly be congratulated on their skit. It isn't very often that Freshmen win first prize.

By the way the football boys play football, you wouldn't think that they could be tame enough to play pianos and to sing as they did Friday night.

Bob Strieter must have been in a dreamy waltzing mood. Did you notice that there was only one fast tune all evening?

We have always wondered why men, down through the ages, have worn something that covered their legs. We know now. Leroy May felt very insulted, because his legs were mistaken for three other boys' legs before the girls guessed him as the owner of the legs. He says (and I quote): "My legs were the prettiest of them all, too!"

The senior stand seemed to have quite a lot of business. All had the refreshments they wanted.

We hope that the other parties will be as well attended as this one was. If they are, it won't be long before we have some method of getting good music.

The party was over a little after eleven, and the kids scattered to various places.

Chorus

Last Wednesday, eleven members representing the chorus were called together for a group discussion. Many activities are planned for the chorus this year, including a "Harmony Hop" sponsored by the chorus on Valentine's Day. The chorus is planning on a Christmas concert, and will also sing on November 30, for a public performance at the Methodist church. They are now working on several new numbers and many more are ordered.

The group also decided that every other week two chorus members would be chosen to write publicity and news for the chorus. Ideas for obtaining more boys in chorus were given, as more male singers are needed to balance with the girls. We hope that anyone wishing to join the chorus will feel free to see Mrs. Laudenslager about it at any time.

Athletic Board

Mr. Cameron read the rules for both girls and boys athletics and then they were discussed by the members of the athletic board.

Luther Kusterer was elected to write up all the football games for the paper.

Band News

The band has been preparing for their new marching program for the past week.

Two new drum majorettes have been added to the personnel of the band. They are Clara Miller and Frances Hale.

The band is enlarged in membership and its quality of performance is increasing rapidly.

A plan is also being worked out for section rehearsals at least once a week.

Class News

The classes held their monthly business meetings last Wednesday.

The Seniors appointed a committee for their party which they hope to have in the near future, to celebrate the success of their magazine and apple-picking campaign.

The Juniors have appointed a committee to select the Junior play. The date for this event has not been settled.

The Sophomores planned their skit for the All-Hi. A committee was appointed to plan the pep-meeting Friday.

The Freshmen decided to set their dues at seventy-five cents. A committee was selected to plan the skit for the All-Hi party.

Girls' Athletics

Last Tuesday the girls went to the athletic field. After some confusion in getting lined up alphabetically the girls did some exercises. Evidently some of the girls' muscles had not been used for quite awhile. The result? Just ask them! After partaking in those wonderful (?) exercises the girls played softball. Some of those girls have a mighty powerful swing so watch out boys!

Thursday night, because of the rain the girls went to the gymnasium. They had a wee spot of military drill and Miss McDonald had one glorious time trying to keep the girls at attention (between their conversations) and trying to compete with the football boys singing. After the drills the girls had some relay races.

Chelsea Ties Flat Rock

Last Friday afternoon the Chelsea Bulldogs met the favored Flat Rock Rams at the local athletic field and held them to a scoreless tie although Chelsea dominated the play. Twice Chelsea was stopped inside the 10-yard line, once after a poor Ram punt and again after Strieter had blocked a Ram line rose up and threw the Chelsea boys back, once just a yard and a half from the goal line. Chelsea again threatened in the fourth quarter when they drove to the 18-yard line where on fourth down an attempted field goal was wide and far short of the goal posts. The nearest Flat Rock came to the Chelsea goal line was in the last two minutes of play when a Chelsea punt was blocked and recovered 25 yards from the goal. Chelsea breezed, however, and took the ball on downs one play before the game ended. Merkel and Strieter stood out in the line along with Modack's fine pass catching.

Chelsea with a record of 2 wins, 1 loss, 1 tie, is now in fourth place in the Huron League standings. Friday they journey to Romulus to play Romulus High, a team which has won 1 and lost 3. Let's all go to Romulus and get behind our team and spur them on to victory.

Hi-Y News

The Hi-Y club held its induction service for new members at Cavanaugh Lake on Monday evening. The club provided a wienie roast supper for all the club members and guests. Afterwards games and singing were in order. Ending the meeting was an impressive induction ceremony led by president Bob Strieter and Mr. Laudenslager, club advisor. The new members will be announced next week.
