Red Cross Asks For Support To Furnish Recreation Rooms

With so many people anxious to do something for the boys in service, an opportunity has arisen which calls for the support of every member of the community.

Thirty American Red Cross Chapters within the territory surrounding Fort Custer, have organized camp and hospital service committees to help maintain military morale by directing recreational and educational projects. At present the main undertaking of the committees is to furnish Company Day Rooms.

These rooms are close to the barracks and mess hall of each company, and get their name from the fact that they are used for recreation chiefly during the short periods of the day when the men are off-duty. Fort Custer, one of the large reception centers for newly inducted men, has a very real need for these day rooms which introduce a "home" touch which is particularly appreciated when rookies are getting used to a life absolutely strange to them.

Newly inducted men are homesick—they are not yet adjusted to army life—they are unfamiliar with regulations and they have no privacy. The importance of having a comfortable place to write those letters home and to rest and play after the unusual exertion of the day, cannot be underestimated, for the men's whole attitude toward army life is colored by those first few weeks in camp.

We are all familiar with the splendid work of the United Service Organization in helping the boys who are away on leave, but their centers are far distant and are "off bounds" during the day, for the USO cannot operate on the grounds of the post.

And so the government turned to the American Red Cross which is the only organization allowed to operate at army camps. The government provided the space for these rooms and asked that the Red Cross, through the

Kiwanis Halloween Party Big Success

The Annual Kiwanis Halloween Party was held Saturday night at the high school gymnasium and judging from the comments from the children, everyone had a good time.

Funniest costume—1st prize, Dale Thomas, tramp; 2nd prize, Theresa Hankard, lady in gray shawl; 3rd prize, Joe Joseph, boy in big overalls.

Spookiest costume—1st prize, Theodore Nixon, skeleton; 2nd prize, Billy Cutler, spook; 3rd prize, Norma Jean Morgan, cat.

The children were served iced doughnuts around a large bonfire, and movies were shown by Walter Harper in the gymnasium afterwards.

The Kiwanis Club is to be complimented on its splendid work in sponsoring a party of this kind and it is hoped that the children went directly home and refrained from destruction of property and childish pranks.

New Offices Built By Chelsea Spring Co.

Greatly increased government orders received by the Chelsea Spring Company have necessitated a rearrangement in the layout of the factory, with new offices being constructed on the second floor in order to make room on the first floor for the installation of a new line of heavy equipment required to manufacture war materials.

Approximately 3,000 square feet of floor space is being utilized on the second floor for the new offices, lavatories, and for a large modernly equipped laboratory. The offices are separated with frame partitions with frosted glass panels, and Masonite plank and blocks were used on the sidewalls and ceiling. New exterior windows will also be installed to add to the attractiveness of the offices.

The new office will remain on the first floor adjacent to the employees' entrance, at the southeast corner of the factory.

It is expected that the new offices will be ready for occupancy this week.

Farm Trucks Must Have Cert. of War Necessity by Nov. 15

All trucks used entirely or largely for farming purposes must have a certificate of war necessity by November 15, states Fred Blumhardt, chairman of Washtenaw county farm transportation committee. Applications for such certificates are now being mailed to farmers from the Office of Defense Transportation.

The farm transportation committee, appointed last week, has undertaken as its first responsibility the job of advising truck owners on making out their application blanks for certificates of war necessity. Committee members, in addition to the chairman, are: William K. Wilson, Webster township, farm representative; John Cosner, York township, farm representative; Emory Mulholland, Superior township, truck representative; Charles McCalla, Ann Arbor, dealer representative.

Farmers are instructed to fill out application blanks as soon as they are received. Information required includes the number of miles on the truck speedometer at the present time and the average mileage for the past two years.

The number of trips made in each truck and the average tonnage hauled per trip must be stated as accurately as possible. "Truck owners must give the best estimates they can if they do not have records," states Mr. Blumhardt. "It is easier to start with a weekly average."

"Wait until you get your application in the mail," is the advice of the farm transportation committee. "Then fill it out at home if you can, but if you need help, call at the Washtenaw county Farm Bureau store, 407 N. Fifth avenue, Ann Arbor, or phone 23814."

When the application is filled in, mail it in the return envelope sent with the blank in accordance with directions. Certificates of war necessity will then be mailed to applicants from the ODT.

They were married on Nov. 2, 1892, and lived 12 years in Bridgewater township, 10 years in Sylvan township, and 12 years in Lima township before moving to Chelsea in 1926.

Each was a buck, one of four points and the other of six, weighing about 135 and 150 pounds respectively when dressed. The meat was taken to the Sanatorium. Damage to the car consisted of a smashed fender and headlight, and a tire blew out.—County Press.

By Gene Allaman

This is a true story in fact. Once upon a time a city man, thinking about his country cousins, said to himself in smug self-satisfaction: "My poor country relations! They live on a farm many miles from town. Roads are bad. They get to stores with difficulty. They eat mostly meat and potatoes, have few luxuries, enjoy little entertainment, have scant money to spend, are usually in debt, well, it's very sad. I am truly sorry for my country cousins." That was before 1942, mister. Times have changed! Don't pity the poor cousins today. There's a good reason, too. Your country cousins by now, this eventful November of 1942, are probably feeling downright sorry for you! In only a few days your automobile will be rationed for limited use of gasoline. And if you're the average American citizen, you'll be given the exciting privilege of burning up four gallons of gasoline every seven days. In a few more weeks, perhaps around Christmas, Uncle Sam will give you a fat-full of ration coupons for just about every important commodity you will need. Meat, for example. And then the incidental matter of milk. That's going to be rationed, too.

Your country cousins can have a milk-shake by merely going to the dairy barn. Eggs, butter, chickens, meat, fresh vegetables—yes, your farm relations probably will have all they need. Incidentally, the electric freezing chamber keeps meat and fruit and vegetables fresh all winter. You have forgotten that the highway is now paved with concrete. The rural route carrier brings the newspaper and periodicals right to the front gate. The radio brings Toscanini right into the living room. "Molly and Fibber" are there, too. Electricity has replaced the oil lamp. The old windmill doesn't clatter like it used to, because an electric motor runs the pump now. And that isn't all, brother.

For the city slicker who likes to get out his bankbook and swell with pride, here's a stopper: Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture has just figured out that the cash farm income from marketings THIS YEAR of our Lord, 1942, will be about 15 billion dollars, an increase of approximately ONE-THIRD over 1941 and nearly double the pre-war 1935-39 average. Why, the peak during World War I was 14.6 billion dollars, back in 1919. The 1942 farm income represents, according to the Bureau, a rise in prices of around 25 per cent over last year and a 12 per cent increase in sales.

But that isn't all, folks. Government payments for soil conservation will be about the same this year as last. This will raise the total cash farm income to around 15.6 billion dollars compared with 11.8 billions in 1941 and the 1935-39 average of 8.5 billions.

What's the farmer doing with all this money? A large portion of this 1942 cash is going into payment of debts, reducing mortgages, savings through war bonds along with purchases of semi-luxury lines which are still available. One of the most encouraging signs, say the experts, is the absence of a speculative spirit which prompted farmers in the last war to go heavily in debt for purchase of land and equipment and then were caught in the vicious post-war price cycle.

No, the average country cousin isn't dumb. Most farm authorities apparently agree that the farmer will come out of this present war with a smaller debt structure and a large backlog of liquid assets—those things like war bonds which can be converted quickly into cash—than ever before. Because of high material prices, many farmers are postponing new farm construction until the war is over.

And here are some more encouraging trends: Ownership of farms is increasing; tenancy is falling. Rural retail sales have increased each month for 21 consecutive months. Instead of durables being in demand, farmers are turning to clothing, housewares, food specialties and minor luxuries.

The big unfavorable trend, of course, is the growing scarcity of labor. The selective service headquarters at Washington has recommended deferment for farm labor, and there is news of "freezing" labor on dairy and poultry farms. Farmers have been selling livestock, and even additional acreage, so that they can handle their farms themselves.

That is the bleak part of this story. It is one that heralds a possible scarcity of food by 1945 or 1946 with rationing of more and more commodities.

With approximately one third more income this year than last year and with food right in his own garden and poultry house or on the "hoof," the Michigan farmer is doing very well, thank you.

He represents the true American spirit of free enterprise. Getting the job done is more important to him than getting higher wages at shorter hours.

He is going to make a significant contribution to winning of the war. Yes, the "poor" country cousin is feeling sorry for a lot of city folk these days. Pass the fresh eggs and bacon, and have a laugh on us.

Farmers Also Face Gamut of Perils

Michigan agriculture, with its unmatched variety of production, provides its farmers with an unmatched variety of physical perils. Industrial records indicate agriculture in general is more hazardous than trade and service, construction, transportation, manufacturing or mining.

Which leads staff members at Michigan State College to point out some of the pitfalls on the average farm. The very equipment that unbends the backs of the farmers also proves the most perilous. The tractor leads the tragedy list on the farm. Safety specialists remind farmers to use some of the automobile driving experience in making tractor operation more safe.

Livestock comes second. Runaway teams, an old bull, a boar or a sow with pigs comprise the leading hazards.

Wells, pits, silos and cisterns offer another source of danger to farmers. In construction involving digging, a two-man crew is suggested so that a man in trouble has some help in avoiding a cave-in or earth.

The danger of gases in a confined area also give reason for having help at hand. Insect control should be confined to kill insects and not persons or valuable stock. Employment of sprays or dusts should take note of the perils of the application.

Other safety factors can be used. Testing of the water supply and the prompt treatment of cuts and bruises can reduce some of the common causes of trouble on the farm. Hurry and worry should be avoided, for these often contribute to carelessness and accidents.

Ladders, guns, electric wiring, fire hazards and fuels all add hazards to the occupation of farming.

Watch Animals, Too, For Cold Symptoms

Human beings usually take precautions when they begin to cough and get to sneezing but the wise livestock farmer from experience learns to watch animals for cold symptoms such as a hacking cough or running at the nose. Michigan farmers endure heavy livestock losses from the shipping fever and colds among cattle, points out G. A. Branaman of the animal husbandry department at Michigan State College. Almost any type of respiratory infection may easily lead to pneumonia unless good care is provided the affected animals.

Vaccination and medical treatment call for services of a local veterinarian, but careful care in nursing is the job of the farmer.

Western calves which have just been weaned from their mothers have a week of severe hardship when shipped to cornbelt feedlots. They are unloaded each day for feed and water, but they receive only dry hay, and with rough riding and changeable weather, they are very susceptible to infections. They may also infect the native calves and should be kept separated as far apart as possible.

Protection from storms should be provided, says Professor Branaman, but plenty of ventilation without a draft is important. A well-bedded shed opening on one side or end into a lot is good. Frozen grass is liable to cause scouring until the calves are acclimated for a week. Some grain and protein supplement or wheat bran should be fed at once. Some silage is excellent. Limit the hay and place it on top of the other feeds so they will be eaten as the hay disappears. Dehorning and other excitement should be postponed until all calves are fully normal.

Big Army of 4-H Girl Cooks Serving Nation

Another feminine army, distinctly different from the Waacs and Waves, is valiantly serving in our country's war effort. Its members were trained in their own rural homes. Its uniform is an apron, its equipment consists of kitchen stoves and utensils, and its sole purpose is to bolster America's health and morale.

This army is comprised of roundly half-million girls between 10 and 21 years old, who are enrolled in the nation-wide 4-H Club food preparation project. Many of them are entered in a competition in this activity, seeking to win coveted awards provided by Servel home economics department for outstanding achievement in preparing and serving nutritious, balanced home meals, demonstrating meal planning methods, and judging food products. "An Apple a Day Keeps the Doctor Away"

No. 6
of the Nutrition
Series

While the old saying undoubtedly overstates the case, nevertheless apples are a nutritious and delicious addition to the diet and when eaten regularly do make a contribution to health.

No apple excels the Michigan apple in taste and flavor, and from now on for several months Michigan apples will be available on the market in increasing variety.

The moisture content of apples is responsible for the juicy characteristics that make them so refreshing. Apples contain sugars and starches that supply fuel value, and in apples are also found vitamins A, B and C as well as several minerals.

Apples are comparatively inexpensive, and may be used in various ways—eaten whole, served raw in salads, baked, and made into apple sauce, pies and numerous desserts. Being homegrown, they do not take up valuable transportation space to reach our markets as do western and southern fruits.

CANNED APPLE SAUCE

1. Pare, core and cut apples in pieces.
2. Put in a kettle, add just enough water to start cooking, cover kettle and cook until apples are tender.
3. Pack hot in hot jars to within one inch of tops.
4. Partially seal all jars except the self-sealing type such as Kerr. The metal rings on these jars are turned firmly tight.
5. Process in the oven at 275 degrees Fahrenheit about 60 minutes.
6. As jars are removed from the oven, complete the seals. Nothing need be done to the self-sealing jars as they seal themselves as the contents of the jars cool.
7. The apple sauce may be sweetened at the time that it is used, or the sugar may be added just before the sauce is put into jars. The amount of sugar varies from 1/4 to 1/2 cup per quart. The exact amount depends upon the sweetness of the apples and individual preference.

THE HOME FRONT IN MICHIGAN

Week by week, the war is trimming off all luxuries—pleasure driving, the extra cup (or two) of coffee, and so on along a growing list. But when we start paying next year's taxes, we'll begin to realize how far the trimming process can go. The government's war costs will run to about $55,000,000,000 this year, around $90,000,000,000 in 1943. Deducting direct war needs, there will be left over for our use at home next year about $7,000,000,000 worth of goods and services.

On the subject of coffee, rationing of this item starts midnight, November 28. The individual ration is one pound for five weeks or 10.4 pounds per year for each person over 15 years of age. Adding the amount of coffee consumed by the public in restaurants and other institutions, the average American coffee drinker under rationing will be drinking 38 per cent less "java" than he averaged over the period from 1937 to 1941. The coffee ration, of course, may be changed from time to time to meet the varying conditions of supply.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. Sylvester Parker.

Defense Transportation Director Eastman learns from police reports that the public is observing the 35-mile-an-hour nation-wide speed limit "almost 100 per cent." Cases of flagrant violations, or cases involving repeated violations, may bring individual revocation of gasoline ration books.

By the way, machinery on national gasoline and mileage rationing is rolling. Forms on which America's 27,000,000 motorists apply for basic "A" or "D" mileage ration are being distributed and will be available to the public through service stations, garages, tire shops and other conveniently located places designated by local OPA ration boards as soon as distribution is complete. Exact dates will be announced soon. Every owner of a passenger car or motorcycle, with few exceptions, will need one of these forms.

Michigan's bar bill, as in all other states, was boosted for everything from packaged liquor to a "straight" drink at the neighborhood tavern, effective November 1. Blame the increased federal excise taxes. Sole exception to the increase is beer on draft.

The Michigan quota of new passenger automobiles for rationing during November is 3,035. The month's quota of bicycles for the state is 5,051.

Did your grocer puncture the top of a vacuum-packed coffee can at the time you bought it? If he did, he was taking what OPA considers a reasonable step to prevent excessive stocking of coffee. OPA soon may establish practices retailers may and may not engage in to discourage hoarding of scarce commodities.

DOTS AND DASHES: Snow-fencing and four kinds of corn cribbing have just been brought under the OPA maximum price regulation. . . . production of tire chains has been cut 60 per cent by WPH, saving thousands of tons of high carbon steel. . . . less glamorous and utility will be the rule for kitchen enameled ware under new WPH restrictions setting styles for these items.

No more canned sauerkraut will be available after present stocks are gone—the tin is needed for war use. . . . the war-time cupboard is getting more bare for Fido—canned dog food is just a memory, and your dog will have to be content with the leftovers from his master's dinner plate.

A man or woman entering military service must turn in his war ration book to his local War Price and Rationing Board, OPA has ruled. Incidentally, sugar rations for Army and Navy personnel on furlough have been set at a half pound a week.

and save minutes for war!

You've wondered what else you could do, in your own daily life, to speed the war effort. Here's one thing everybody can do —

When your telephone rings, answer as quickly as you can.

It's a little thing, but if all cooperate it can be far-reaching in its importance.

Every call must pass through a central office switchboard. And, switchboard facilities and telephone lines are busier than ever — carrying war messages. We'd like to add enough new equipment to meet all demands, but that's impossible because of material shortages.

So you can see why it's important not to keep any call waiting. Your cooperation in saving telephone minutes helps clear the wires for war calls that must go through!

Here are other ways you can help:

1. Keep all your telephone calls as brief as you can.
 2. Don't call Information for numbers listed in the directory.
 3. Make only the most essential Long Distance calls.
 4. When possible, give the number of the distant telephone you are calling.

camp and hospital councils and committees direct the work of furnishing them.

In our county we are concerned with Fort Custer where a number of such rooms have been already furnished. Sixty more remain to be completed. The furniture consists of 15 simple book cases, three full length mirrors, 12 library tables, 40 straight backed chairs, 15 writing desks, three floor lamps, and 18 bridge lamps, and one hundred ash trays. The cost of these furnishings amount to three hundred dollars a room. Recognition is given to all who equip such rooms by placing a plaque in the room with the donors name upon it. There are, of course, many extras which may be given to make the rooms just that much more comfortable, but the thing of prime importance is to first furnish a room and it is to this first step the local committee is working.

Officials of the Red Cross say that after inspecting the rooms already completed, they are convinced that no organization or individuals ever made a contribution that has brought so much happiness to so comparatively little given. One actual letter received from a boy said, "Things like this make a fellow feel he isn't so far from home," which is real appreciation.

Chelsea has sent many men from the community and the surrounding country into the service. Would it not be a splendid symbol of our pride and regard for these men to have a "Chelsea Day Room" furnished by the community?

Let's get behind this drive and give generously. Contributions will be taken at the Bank on Friday and Saturday of this week. This is your chance to help.

Reservoir Construction

Triumph for Col. Vogel

An article appearing in the October 22 edition of the Youngstown (Ohio) Vindicator, gives an interesting history of the life of Col. Herbert D. Vogel, son of L. P. Vogel of Chelsea, Col. Vogel, U. S. Army, Pittsburgh district engineer, was in charge of the construction of a large reservoir at Youngstown, dedication of which was the occasion for the article which follows:

Dedication of the $6,600,000 Berlin reservoir will be a personal triumph for Col. Herbert D. Vogel, U. S. Army, Pittsburgh district engineer, for he has long wanted a big job in the Youngstown district—and the reservoir was the U. S. Army engineers' first big one in the area.

"It gave us our first real chance to get acquainted with the Youngstown district," said Colonel Vogel some time ago, "and we found we had many friends here."

But other important jobs in the eastern Ohio-Western Pennsylvania area came rapidly on the heels of the Berlin job for the Pittsburgh engineers' office.

Among these other jobs were construction of the huge army depot at Lordstown; the personnel center at Shenango, Pa., and the Keystone Ordnance Plant at Geneva, Pa., near Meadville.

Colonel Vogel, a West Pointer, has had plenty of experience with the army engineering corps and has a first hand knowledge, too, of what it will take to lick the Nazis.

Born in Chelsea, Mich., in 1900, he registered in the University of Michigan in 1918, and was enrolled in the student army training corps. In June, 1920, he was appointed to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, graduating in 1924.

His first tour of duty was at Fort Belvoir, Va., on July 1, 1927, he was sent to the Engineers School, University of California, taking civil engineering, and obtaining a master of science degree. In Oct., 1928, he was assigned to the hydraulic laboratory, at the Berliner Technische Hochschule, in Berlin, under a fellowship award of the Institute of International Education, and graduated in 1929 as a doctor of engineering. These studies were of great value to the federal government when he later organized the U. S. waterway experiment station.

Vogel, in 1929, became assistant to the Memphis district engineer, later the same year, assistant to the president of the Mississippi River Commission with headquarters at Vicksburg, Miss.

Here he organized and directed the waterway experiment station, and it became the finest hydraulic experimental laboratory in the country. First designed to make tests for cutoffs, dikes and other improvements to the Mississippi, it later became the center of study of hydraulic problems for the whole engineering corps, and proceedings of the American Society of Civil Engineers and the Mississippi River Commission contain many reports of his studies.

Later Colonel Vogel was assigned to the command and general staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., and Aug. 1, 1936, left for Hawaii for duty at Schofield Barracks and Fort Schafter. In July, 1938, he reported to the engineer school at Fort Belvoir as staff and faculty assistant. He then was sent to Pittsburgh as assistant to the district engineer, becoming successively officer in charge of the inspection division, executive officer of the military division, intelligence officer, chief of the engineering division, public relations officer, and then on May 18, 1942, he relieved Col. D. Lee Hooper as district engineer. At that time, he was a major, quickly being named a lieutenant colonel and then a full colonel.

He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and the Society of American Military Engineers.

Local Defense Topics

The local Red Cross is alert to all defense calls and in response, is building up plans for a Blood Donor Unit to be set up on December 15. There is a need for 175 volunteers and it is hoped that the response will be sufficiently adequate to provide all of the Blood-Plasma needed from Chelsea.

Any member of the committee including Mrs. Paul Maroney, Mrs. W. R. Daniels, Mrs. A. L. Brock, will be glad to take your enrollment.

Under the direction of Mrs. John Hale, a Junior Red Cross unit is being organized. The various activities carried out by this group will aid the local chapter in many phases of its output for defense. Citizens should cooperate in every way to urge the young people in joining this worthy organization.

During the month of October the Surgical Dressing Unit of Production made, bundled and delivered 5,000 dressings to Red Cross headquarters in Ann Arbor. A new unit made up of defense workers from the Federal Service Works has been organized. This group meets on Wednesday afternoon under the direction of Mrs. J. L. Fletcher and Mrs. Frank Edgar.

The Motor Mechanics class which opened its course of instruction in October under the direction of Miss Virginia Schumacher of Ann Arbor, has been making exceptional strides. Mrs. Frank Edgar who is chairman of the group, has arranged the classes at the high school shop and the Palmer Motor Sales, each location furnishing various facilities for working essentials.

The Surgical Dressings unit of the Red Cross is meeting twice a week now. Monday nights at seven in the Home-making Room at the high school and Wednesday afternoons at one of the Chelsea Industrial Workers' rooms over Loeffler's. Since September first 18,038 dressings have been made. All women are welcome at these meetings. The dressings are urgently needed by the war department for use both here and abroad.

Nov. 7 to Dec. 7 Set As Navy Recruiting Month

Enlistment of at least 4,000 Michigan men in the Navy is the goal of a campaign which opens here, and throughout the state next Saturday, November 7, and lasts until December 7, the first anniversary of the Jap attack on Pearl Harbor.

This was announced today by Chief Specialist Denzil W. Reed, Recruiter in Charge of the Navy Recruiting Station, New Post Office Building, Jackson, Michigan.

The period has been proclaimed officially as Navy Recruiting Month in Chelsea by Village President Alfred D. Mayer. President Mayer's proclamation states:

WHEREAS: The United States Navy has done a heroic job of fighting an offensive war in all parts of the world, and is continuing to maintain the offense in our war against the Axis, and

WHEREAS: The current production of warships and merchant vessels, so vitally needed to win this war, is at the highest peak of any time in history, and:

WHEREAS: Hundreds of thousands more patriotic men are needed by the Navy to man these ships so that we may be assured of a complete and all-out victory over our Axis enemies;

THEREFORE: I, Alfred D. Mayer, president of the Village of Chelsea, Michigan, do hereby proclaim that the period from November 7 to December 7, 1942, be officially designated as NAVY RECRUITING MONTH here and urge all citizens living in this area to assist members of the Navy Recruiting Service in their efforts to help enlist at least 4,000 Michigan men in the Navy during this period; and I do further urge all men from 17 to 50 years old, inclusive, to investigate now the opportunities which the Navy offers them."

(Signed) Alfred D. Mayer, President Village of Chelsea.

The 4,000 goal has been set as enough men to provide crews for a battleship, cruiser, destroyer, submarine, sub-chaser and patrol torpedo boat.

Announcing the drive's opening, Chief Reed said:

"Navy enlistments in Michigan and throughout the nation have been at a higher level in recent months than at any time in history. However, the production of warships also has attained a record peak.

"Thus, it becomes apparent that Navy enlistments must not diminish, but actually must increase in volume so that we may be assured of providing enough men to operate these new ships and assure defeat of the Axis.

"I hope that all men of this area from 17 to 50 years old, inclusive, who have not yet looked into what the Navy has to offer, will do so during the period from November 7 to December 7."

"Let's give the Japs an answer to their stab in the back last December 7."

Regular meeting of Herbert J. McKune Unit No. 31, American Legion Auxiliary, was held at the home of Mrs. Ed. Frymuth, Tuesday evening with twenty members present.

Jean Eaton reported 13,038 surgical dressings made since August. Mrs. Eaton asked that more of our members respond to this project.

It was voted to give ten dollars to the Red Cross for the purpose of helping to furnish a "Day Room" at Fort Custer.

A report of the District meeting held at Brooklyn was given by Roxie Maroney.

The Girl Scouts invited members of the Auxiliary to a defense stamp tea to be held at 4 o'clock Wednesday at the high school.

Alma Eisele, Matilda Hinderer and Helen Quirk were appointed by the president to help the Blood Bank committee. All Auxiliary members are urged to donate a pint of blood. The Blood Donor Unit is to be in Chelsea December 15.

Jean Eaton was appointed chairman of a committee to send gifts to all boys in service whose parents are members of the local American Legion or Auxiliary.

Delicious refreshments were served by the committee Marjorie Frymuth, Louise Guant and Blossom Umstead.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

The Girl Scouts are selling their cookies and ask your help in making the sale successful, as by this means they can help finance the expense of their troop.

Plans are being made for the collection of grease. The village will be canvassed by the girls, the date of which will soon be announced. Be sure and save the grease which has been strained into a container and kept in a cool place.

The troop of older Girl Scouts entertained their mothers, members of the American Legion Auxiliary and the Chelsea Study club at tea, Wednesday afternoon, the proceeds of which go to the Girl Scout Victory Fund.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish in this way to thank the Federal Screw Works, Women's Guild, friends and relatives, for the gifts, flowers, cards and the kindnesses shown me during my stay at the hospital. These things were deeply appreciated.

Hilda Gross.

CARD OF THANKS

I sincerely thank all my friends for their generous birthday card shower, for the many welcome calls with congratulations, gifts and flowers. Certainly it is nice to be so remembered on one's birthday. I assure this occasion will ever remain with me as a pleasant memory. Thanks again.

War Council

Defense stamps were on sale at the Tim Doolittle dance Friday night, but not many were sold. High school stamp sales for last week were totaled at $20.70.

The Council is going to keep a scrap-book which will give suggestions for helping with War Savings, Civilian Defense, Salvage Drives, Red Cross Projects, etc.

A news letter will be sent to all the boys in the services whose addresses are known and who have formerly attended Chelsea high school. This is being sponsored by the War Council and written by members of the Journalism Club. Anyone knowing any addresses of these service men and who would like to have a copy of such a news letter, will please turn in the addresses to the Chelsea Standard, and the War Council will see that they receive a letter.

The Chelsea public school is going to join the "School at War" program. Defense stamp sales were sold this week. If they go over big, they will be sold once or twice a month.

A plan has been suggested by the Defense Council that the students of Chelsea public school buy a jeep. This will be done by purchasing defense stamps. A jeep costs $900 and it is hoped that within a set date, which has not as yet been decided upon, that the students will have invested the assumed amount in stamps. A record will be kept of the amount of sales by a thermometer with a bulb consisting of a picture of a jeep. As the sale mounts, the jeep will rise towards the top of the thermometer.

Let's Buy a Jeep

The war council of Chelsea high school has decided to try a new idea to stimulate the sale of defense stamps. A committee consisting of Mr. Cameron, Margaret Knapp and Donald Schanz was chosen to make arrangements for this program.

During a definite period, which has not yet been set, the war council will attempt to sell enough defense stamps and bonds to buy a jeep which cost approximately nine hundred dollars. In order to carry out this program it will take the cooperation of students in high school.

Recently the sale of stamps has not been going so well; the grade has far exceeded the high school amount. It is hoped that this program will stimulate the sales.

Students of Chelsea high school, let us get in there and buy that jeep!

A Pleasant Surprise!

Monday morning brought sounds of surprised "Oh's" and "Ah's" from the girls of Chelsea high school. This was brought about by the redecorating of the girls' basement by Mrs. A. A. Palmer.

The basement was formerly a dull gray, but now the sinks, mirror frames, shelves, paper towel containers and the dressing table top are painted a light shade of green. The dressing table was decorated with a gray patterned cloth.

The girls were greatly indebted to Mrs. Palmer and they wish to express their appreciation.

"Girls! Let's keep the basement as nice as this is now!"

Seniors of '43 (?)

Our Senior class secretary, Helen Grabowski, is 5 feet 3 inches—medium weight—well, let you guess as she's quite modest and refuses to give her correct weight. She has blond hair and blue-gray eyes. If you see her leading a dog around you'll know why, because that seems to be her favorite pet. You'll see Helen at all football and basketball games rooting for her favorite team. If you should ask her what her favorite food is, you're likely to get the answer, "Just food." In other words, anything suits Helen. Maybe that accounts for her modesty in her weight.

Athletic Board

At the last meeting of the Athletic Board the names of high school graduates who have athletic equipment were discussed. It was decided that the volleyball equipment would be kept in room 11.

Junior News

The Junior class has appointed the following committee to choose the Junior play for this year: Dorothy Knickerbocker, Eleanor Harper, Virginia Spaulding, Tom Rademacher and Donald Schanz.

Freshmen News

The Freshmen class will give the Sophomores their return party on Friday, November 6.

Senior News

Last week on Monday, October 26, something happened that made each of the Seniors feel every inch a Senior. A salesman came with sample announcements and the Seniors think they picked out the nicest one.

The salesman came early this year, as they could have gold seals on their announcements. Since after December first the government is prohibiting the use of gold leaf in any printing.

Some of the magazines the Seniors sold during their campaign have arrived and if your order does not come correctly please contact any Senior and they will try to remedy the error.

Chelsea Ties Milan

Last Friday afternoon Chelsea and Milan battled to a scoreless tie in a Huron league football game played at the local athletic field under adverse weather conditions. A very strong south wind kept the team defending the north goal at a decided disadvantage. Milan threatened in the first quarter when they drove to the 10-yard line where they lost the ball on a fumble.

In the third quarter Chelsea attempted a couple of field goals from the 15-yard line, but both were wide and short. Another time Chelsea drove deep into Milan territory only to be stopped by a 15-yard holding penalty. Gaddi supplied most of Chelsea's offensive threats with his quarterback sneaks which were good for many nice gains. Policht also caught a couple of nice passes for sizeable gains. Schiller was the outstanding player in the line as he recovered Milan's fumble in the first quarter and also did some very nice blocking, especially on one play when he knocked two Milan men off their feet.

Next Thursday, Chelsea travels to Ypsilanti to play Roosevelt in a week after this the schedule is brought to a close with the traditional game against Manchester.

Get Vitamin B

Only 14.7% of the high school students had a whole-grain product or enriched bread a few weeks ago when the Home-making I class made a survey of the high school. In checking the food requirements for a day, we find that a person should have at least two servings of a whole-grain product or enriched bread daily. Let us tell you some facts about enriched bread and then I am sure you will see the importance of getting it daily.

Enriched bread tastes good and costs the same as bread which does not have these added substances. That is a great advantage, for it means that you can continue to use all of your favorite recipes with the same results you have always had, but the bread will be much better for your family. Enriched bread contains extra vitamins and minerals. These vitamins are vitamins B and D. The mineral added to flour to enrich it is iron. Calcium may be added.

Why are we so concerned about vitamin B in our diet? It promotes better appetite; it prevents beriberi; it promotes better growth in infants and children.

Those Freshmen

Generally there is an article on the Freshmen at the very beginning of the year. Don't think we forgot them, it has just taken us longer to figure them out this year.

There is an old saying, "Freshmen Are Green," but this year's class of Freshmen certainly didn't carry this statement out at the last All-Hi party.

They came on the stage, not green but black and, we might add, that their skit was very good.

After this success there was a decided change. They didn't go around school any more holding their chin on the ground and stardust in their eyes; they now look every upper-classman in the eye. The Freshmen at last are on an equal (7).

Band News

Mr. Richards reported on a nickelodeon that he has been getting information on and it was agreed to try it out for a month. The music problem was discussed further, however, and the Student Council now has three possibilities—a nickelodeon, a radio-phonograph or a phonograph which would play through the public address system.

The Huron League conference which was scheduled for November 6, has been called off.

Student Council

The Chelsea high school band played at the Milan-Chelsea football game on Friday, Saturday night the Band led the Halloween parade. After the parade the Band provided entertainment during the judging and before the program of the evening was commenced.

The Kiwanis Halloween Party

The annual Kiwanis Halloween party was held Saturday night. The purpose of these parties is to keep the children from performing childish pranks such as soaping windows.

The party was well attended by the children. Some of the children's comments on the party were, "I liked the movies," "The party was swell," "The cider and doughnuts were good," so evidently it was a hit with the most of them. Everyone was surprised when the band dressed up, too.

After marching around town the children came back to the school where there was a large bonfire. Then the contest was held. The prizes consisted of two dollars worth of defense stamps for the first prize, a dollar and a half for second, and a dollar for third. The following were prize winners—Most original costume: First prize, Doris Downer, cigarette girl; second prize, Marilyn Schooley, Spanish senorita; third prize, Wallace Franklin, cowboy.

Funniest costumes—First prize, Dale Thomas, tramp; second prize, Theresa Harker, lady in gray shawl; third prize, Joe Joseph, boy in big overalls.

Spookiest costumes—First prize, Theodore Nixon, skeleton; second prize, Billy Outler, spook; third prize, Norma Jean Morgan, cat.

After the judging, cider and doughnuts were served and then the children went to the gymnasium where movies were shown by Walter Harper. After the party the children were all supposed to go directly home and it is hoped that they cooperated by doing so.

Home Ec. Club

The point system was adopted for determining the level of accomplishment for the members. The purpose was for all girls carrying on activities will be awarded points. These points will be totaled in spring and the girl leading will receive a gold Betty Lamp Pin—the emblem of the American Home Economics Association. The next three in line will receive a sterling silver Betty Lamp Pin. It is an honor to be awarded one of these pins. Joanne Moore was elected scorekeeper for the year.

Pep Meeting

The Freshmen had charge of the Pep meeting last Friday. The Pep meeting opened with the band playing "Officer of the Day." Then Elaine McClear came out on the stage dressed as an old witch. After she had mixed her brew she proceeded to prophesy the events of the game. After awhile there were a couple of cheers from the cheer leaders, a few words from Mr. Cameron and another selection by the band. Several songs were sang by the entire group led by the chorus, and last, but not least, those he-man players, Bob Stricker, Bob Edgar, Dick Ford, Tom Lyons and Don Alber (unnamed) sang "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition" and "Down by the Old Mill Stream."

The Pep meeting was brought to a close with Eleanor Harper's playing of the school song.

BOMBS BURST ONCE

By Granville Church

WNU Feature.

He told Collins the story Montoya had given him about the hangars first built, later abandoned to storage purposes because the flyers pointed out the bad location.

"He told of the boxed airplane wings he'd seen the day of his arrival."

"I know," put in Collins enigmatically. "I had a talk with the men of that plane when they put down at Puerto Soledad."

Curt grunted and went on. He told of Mitchell's rising suspicions over a shipment from Japan—or through Japan, he added—of eight long, square-end boxes. Heavy boxes, like overstuffed coffins, Monahan had told him.

He told of having seen only yesterday another pair of big, heavy square boxes marked generators, from Germany via Vladivostok. So far as he knew, and he was pretty familiar with the project by now, they had no use for generators of that size, nor were any on order that he knew of, and he'd had access—presumably—to all engineering equipment orders then placed.

They reached the airfield spur. Here a wide stand of manzanitas made a black blob on the landscape. They dared not continue use of the motor, for sound rises and San Alejo was not more than a kilometer ahead and above them.

Pushing the car up the branch line, and backing out by the third leg of the "Y" onto the main line again, they had the car headed for Tempujo once more. They left it in the blackness of the low trees.

Curt fumbled in the tool box, stuck a chisel into a hip pocket, and the two men struck off down the airfield branch. Stars there were plenty, and they gave some light, but there was no moon and the going was rough.

They followed the tracks to the spur that led to the bodega at the lower end of the field, then up this spur to the fence. This lower gate was locked, but Curt expected that. He led the way along the fence until they'd turned the corner at the end of the field, then on to the copse of trees that sheltered the big buildings. The blackness here was so thick it felt solid as they pushed into it.

"I doubt if we need to worry about a guard inside," Curt muttered. "The fence is ordinary protection and they couldn't keep a watchman at this end of the field without his showing a light at times. Lights down here would cause speculation if seen from San Alejo."

He seized hold of the fence and pulled and pushed experimentally. "I don't know," he confessed, "but I suspect it's strung along the top for alarm. In any case, it'd be darn near impossible for us to get over that barbed stuff in the dark. We'll burrow under."

They used the flashlight, playing it close to the ground. Putting the chisel to work to loosen the earth, Curt scraped away with his hands until they had a hole through which they could crawl. He had a sudden thought.

"Hey, take off your clothes! I've got fresh ones at Tempujo for myself, but if I give you any others it might be noticed."

"Right," Collins stripped to his shorts for the forage, and minus a gun belt, had to carry his automatic in his hand. They circled the three buildings cautiously, the two hangars, the adjoining shed-roof between duplicate of the hangars at the other end of the net cut the grass here, commented Curt. "Huh. Probably don't intend to let it be a better indication that the buildings aren't in active use."

High in the walls was a continuous horizontal strip of windowing in ground glass. Not the faintest glimmer of light showed anywhere.

"Absolutely perfect camouflage from above," growled Curt. "Look how they built the center portion around trees. The trunks go up through the roof. I'll bet not a square foot of these buildings can be seen from the air. Only the tracks leading in here would tell anything, and they can't be avoided. But even the tracks, with the weeds not kept down, probably look like a cart path."

They were now in front. Down at the other end of the field only a few night lights showed.

"This leading platform along the front," went on Curt. "It's anchored only lightly to the buildings and the ground. My guess is it could be picked up by a couple of dozen men and swung out of the way in a few minutes. Pretty darn clever."

True, this leading platform, the height of a flat car, was not solid. It jiggled to a healthy push.

"Well, we can't force the doors, obviously."

"Can we dig under as we did with the fence, or do you suppose there's a floor?"

Curt pondered. "Bound to be a cement floor," he decided. "Anyway, we couldn't tamp down earth inside when we left. No, the wall is a section to pry loose."

They searched along the back of the buildings, coming finally to a spot where Curt could use his chisel again with least likelihood of its being discovered. It took some minutes before they had on sheet of the sheathing sufficiently sprung to give them entrance.

There was noise to this job, try as they would to muffle it, but they seemed to have the field to themselves. They crawled through the opening.

Only Curt had a flashlight. He played it about experimentally, then more boldly, taking care that neither the beam nor a reflection from it should hit the strip of windowing.

Then it fell on something and stopped dead! Directly above them spread wings of death.

"By God, Collins! What'd I tell you!"

His words sounded hollow, and echoes slapped back at them from the walls. The finger of light picked out the fuselage of a huge plane that towered above the two men, played along it back and forth. A long, slender, cigar-shaped body, its nose of glass, two-motored, its wings appearing stubby from this angle.

"A Heinkel!" exclaimed Collins, and again echoes reverberated.

A Heinkel it was. But on the under side of its wings and on the side of the fuselage was lettering and the circle-within-a-star-within-a-circle emblem to identify it as an American plane!

CHAPTER XVII

"It's a Heinkel!" Collins repeated. "Look at the rounded, blunt-back wings, that tall assembly, the shape of the body. It uses inverted V engines for smoother streamlining."

But Curt couldn't stand there staring all night. He swung the beam of light about and immediately the plane was swallowed in blackness. Quickly the men went over the big building—one building, they found, now they were inside. Curt knew the two hangars at the other end of the field were separate buildings, the shed-roof chemical space between being walled off on either side.

Here, however, were no partitions, only the trunks of trees rising through the lower shed roof. This central section was the machine shop, and well-fitted out, as one sweep of the flashlight showed.

Along the entire front of these three joined buildings were thin stacks of lumber piled to present the picture Curt had got through field glasses a few days ago, of stacks of pipe, or piles of boxes and crates. With doors open it would look like a solidly packed warehouse. Actually, all materials could be pulled down quickly.

"Clever!" growled Collins. The tale of it had been hard for him to swallow, but now he saw how effective the camouflage was.

The big plane they first came upon appeared to be ready for flight. In the other hangar was a second plane not yet fully assembled. The motors and propellers were missing, but Curt found the engines quickly.

IN BRIEF

Hailo

It is not a friendly greeting when Dutch patriots call "Hailo" to Dutch Nazis. It stands for "Hang Alle Laffe Landverraders Op"—"Hang all cowardly traitors."

One-Handed

The R.A.F. now boasts four crack pilots each of whom has only one hand. Two are Scots, one is a Pole and one a Frenchman.

Easy Marks

To encourage reluctant Norwegian school boys to join Nazi organizations, the Quisling government has decreed that in the future boys who are members of Nazi clubs or who do voluntary labor service for the invaders will get extra marks added to their school grades. Norwegian teachers who have refused to give these marks have been dismissed.

Poor Nazis

Members of the Danish Nazi party complain that the Danish government does nothing about "persecutions" such as the Nazis are experiencing. If a Nazi volunteers for the eastern front, his family is ostracized. Schools are described as centers of German hatred. Danish libraries "refuse to give space to Nazi publications, and the book stores won't stock them." Out in the country, "provincial Nazis are treated as second-rate people."

Movie Critics in Brussels

At a recent showing of the propaganda film which the Nazis made of the Battle of Dieppe, a bomb was thrown into the theatre. One girl was killed and fifty prominent citizens have been arrested as hostages. The Nazis have also ordered in city to pay the cost of damages and to deliver 5,000 bicycles to the occupational authorities.

Forced Education

Goniec Krakowski, Polish-language German newspaper in Krakow, contains a large number of advertisements by Polish mothers asking for information about children who recently disappeared. A number of Polish boys to 13 have been carried off by the Nazis to be "educated as Germans."

Monsters

Airplanes are an old story to the natives of Papua, who have seen transport planes for years. But when Axis columns of bombers and U. S. supply columns of bombers, however, to the island recently, the natives fled into the jungle. The largest animals they had ever seen were pigs.

WAR MONTH

The eyes of the United Nations were focused on Stalingrad last month, with hopes for victory over Nazi Germany rising and ebbing with the tide of the greatest and fiercest battle in World War II. Over a million men on both sides, armed with the most modern weapons of destruction, were locked in combat in an area 40 miles wide. The Germans advanced first in miles, then in yards, and nearing the city, they had to fight for every step, but after 22 days of violent assault supported by overwhelming air power, they had still not taken Hitler's coveted prize. In fact in some sectors the Red Army was on the offensive, piling up German losses. Experts were beginning to think that even if the German army took the ruined city of Stalingrad, the price paid might turn it into an eventual Soviet victory.

Coincident with the Battle of Stalingrad, R.A.F. American and Red bombers began an air offensive against German communications and war plants, smashing at Warsaw, Budapest, the Saar, Karlsruhe and Düsseldorf. In Egypt, newly-appointed Gen. Sir Harold Alexander out-maneuvered Rommel's bid for a break-through to Cairo, and British and Allied forces gave his Afrika Korps a sound drubbing.

In the Far East, resilient Chinese forces were steadily recapturing most of the southern and coastal provinces occupied by the Japanese in their early summer offensive against the airfields in Chongking and Kiangsi that could be used for bombing of Japan.

Balked in the Solomons, Japanese forces broke through the Owen Stanley Mountain passes in New Guinea, driving toward Port Moresby, but at the end of the month, reinforced Australian troops were holding advance units and even driving them back, 32 miles from that vital southern port. Despite the temporary setbacks, however, many officials were preparing for a major Japanese blow, either at India or at Siberia—and.

WOMEN AT WAR

Russian Women Fight Beside Men to Help Stem German Invasion

Lieutenant Liudmila Pavlichenko, girl Red Army sniper who is at present visiting the United States, is only one of many Russian women on active combat duty. More than in any other of the United Nations, the women of the U.S.S.R. have taken their places in the front line, beside the men.

Even in the hardest fighting of all, the desperate and effective campaign of guerrilla war behind the enemy's lines, women have played their part. One of the heroines of the guerrilla bands is Vera Fikhtengolts, who received the Order of the Red Banner for her part in one raid. She had made the dash across the lines at night under heavy fire and, during a counter-attack by the Germans, operated a machine gun after the man gunner had been shot. Another girl guerrilla was one of Russia's best snipers, who served with a ski detachment, and served with a ski detachment for months last winter.

Women serve too as fighting pilots in the Red Air Force, as sub-machine gunners and in almost all of the branches of the service. Many of them, serving as nurse or stretcher-bearers, have begged for front-line duty and have been assigned to the same units as their soldier husbands.

Plenty Tough

WITH HIS TOMMY GUN this British leading-seaman is ready to give covering fire for Commandos or naval boarding parties. At Dieppe, sailors ran destroyers and barges close inshore to land the troops and pick them up again, won high praise from the troops for their cool courage under continual enemy fire. Incidentally, the Commando troops at Dieppe were British Marines.

Little, But Vital to German Economy, Luxembourg Resists Nazi Rule

London—For the first time since the occupation of Europe Nazi leaders are being confronted with massed organized resistance that has spread into every home and every station of a country's life: the people of Luxembourg are out on a general strike in protest against the Nazi's annexation of their country into the German Reich and the conscription of their youth into the German army.

The strike began when, with the announcement of the Nazi decree, steel workers in southwest Luxembourg refused to come to their jobs. Gustav Simon, the German Gauleiter, immediately declared a state of civil emergency, established military courts, and threatened strikers with immediate death.

In the New Order workers are not allowed to strike, he said. As soon as it was known that firing squads were executing Luxembourg workers, however, all work stopped and the strike spread throughout the country.

Nazis threatened the entire 312,000 population with deportation, and actually sent "unreliable Germans" to work camps in Germany, but Luxembourgers answered the sabotage. Communications were damaged, fine sand mixed with lubricating oil ruined the bearings of railroad engines, fires broke out in warehouses.

So-called "enemy agents" captured by the Nazis were imprisoned; non-collaborators were deliberately starved, but the latest reports seeping into London indicate that 91 per cent of the people are firmly opposed to Nazi rule, and the strike continues. To the Germans, hungry for the vast steel output of one of the world's largest steel producers, this was a problem not easily solved. Intimidation might discipline 312,000 people, they could even be deported, but who would work the mills to produce steel for Germany's arms?

Women Chetniks

New York—Ruth Mitchell, sister of Gen. "Billy" Mitchell, has this story to tell of the grim determination and patriotism of Yugoslav women with whom she had been living before she was captured by the Nazis and repatriated to the U. S.

"One morning 35 Germans rode into the village where I was sheltering. They set fire to the church and school and raided many houses. All the men they could find in the village—10 in number—were strung up to a gallows in the market square.

Towards midnight, when they rode out again—leaving a trail of destruction behind them—the women of the village armed with home-made hand grenades, ambushed them in a quiet, narrow lane. Not one of the Germans escaped.

"The next day, when a Nazi investigation party rode into the village they were met with blank stares from the women and the sight of 10 dead Yugoslav men swinging from the gallows. The 35 Germans, with their horses and equipment, had just disappeared."

CZECH ACE

TOP SCORE for Czech flyers and one of the highest in all the R.A.F. is held by flight lieutenant Josef Kuttelwascher, who has downed 20 German planes, mostly as a night fighter. Kuttelwascher, formerly a Czech army pilot and a member of the French Air Force, has been awarded two Distinguished Flying Crosses. Here he is shown at home with the British girl he married.

Automobiles have many accessories, some of which are very useful, and some we could just as well do without.

I honestly feel that automobile horns are not needed. The noise made by them is not only disturbing to people not driving, but is a factor in the accident rate. Some people use horns instead of using common sense. If you did not have a horn on your automobile, you would approach intersections, pedestrians, schools and other possible hazards much slower.

To prove this point to yourself, drive the next fifty miles without using your horn. Disconnect it so you will not be tempted to use it.

Keep your mind on your driving. It works — it's safe.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Hitler found out that his high powered mechanized and motorized army bogged down in the snow and mud of the Russian Winter. Although our Army is largely mechanized the cavalry horse is still a highly essential factor in this mounted division and in the Field Artillery. The Army also maintains remount farms where many cavalry horses are bred and raised.

These select horses cost from $100 to $165 and our crack cavalrymen are expert riders and carry on the traditions which have followed the cavalry from the earliest days of the Army. Purchase of War Savings Bonds will insure good mounts for the Cavalry. You and your neighbors buying War Bonds and Stamps regularly every pay day can help buy these horses for the U. S. Cavalry. Invest at least 10 percent of your income in War Bonds.

Plants Grow Without Help

You'd love to decorate your home with plants, but you haven't time to take care of them? Many beautiful plants take care of themselves. In almost any spot, one or another will thrive. Sprays of Chinese evergreen and philodendron grow in a low, water-filled bowl, make a lovely centerpiece for your table. Just rinse bowl and add fresh water once a week. Dracaena, tall, with variegated foliage, does well even where there's little direct sunlight—near a fireplace or on a stairway landing. So does sansevieria which grows for months without drainage.

Secretary Bird
The secretary bird is a long-legged creature which feeds largely on snakes. It got its name because its crest suggests a bunch of pens stuck behind the ear.

HALLOWEEN PARTY
Mrs. Donovan C. Sweeney entertained the Past Noble Grands at a Halloween party on Wednesday night with Mrs. Mabel Pacey and Mrs. Mary Beardsley of Jackson and Mrs. Anna Krumm of Chelsea as invited guests. A delicious chicken supper was served with covers for 18. Mrs. Krumm was awarded the prize for the best costume, also holding high scores in bingo with Mrs. Evelyn Rowe receiving the consolation. The mystery prize was won by Mrs. Lena Jones. Each guest was presented with a souvenir by the hostess.

RECEIVES PAINFUL INJURIES
Margan Joseph, who resides on Mrs. G. W. Palmer's farm, received painful cuts and bruises recently. Mr. Joseph was driving the tractor with a load of corn attached upon the barn floor, the clutch failed to work and the tractor went through the side of the barn and with the wagon dropped 12 feet to the cement basement. Mr. Joseph was thrown clear of the wreckage. The tractor was demolished.

CARD OF THANKS
I wish to thank all my friends and neighbors for their kind remembrances, lovely flowers, gifts, letters and cards through my several weeks of illness.
Mrs. Carl Beutler.

CARD OF THANKS
I wish to thank my friends and the boys of the Federal Screw Works for the acts of kindness shown to me during my sickness.
Adam Mohrlock.

OWN Doctor
Animals, by instinct, know the value of vitamins long before man. Animals can be their own doctors, but only if allowed to roam the fields, forest or jungles to get the medicine they need. In some zoos, when an animal gets sick he is given a supply of the plants and edibles of his native land, and in these he finds the needed medicine and cures himself.
