Federal Screw Shares Citation From Navy

Management and employees of Federal Screw Works, local manufacturers, are receiving congratulations and a share of the credit for the part they are playing in the production of Oerlikon 20 mm anti-aircraft cannon which were recently, cited by the United States Navy for their unusually effective work in destroying enemy airplanes.

The citation came from the Navy in the form of a letter of commendation from Rear-Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, addressed to Pontiac Motor Division, General Motors Corporation, who hold the prime contract for the production of this now famous cannon. Federal Screw Works is supplying vital parts for the gun to Pontiac Motor Division.

The letter of commendation reads as follows:

Subject: 20 mm Anti-Aircraft Guns - Success in Action.

Sirs: The Commanding Officer of a transport has reported to the Chief of the Bureau that in a recent engagement in the Solomon Islands, 20 mm anti-aircraft gun, serial number 41678, manufactured by the Pontiac Motor Division, together with another gun of larger caliber, shot down a twin-engine Japanese heavy bomber. The plane crashed into the sea, burning, about 1500 yards from the ship.

In that same action, the same gun, combined with 20 mm anti-aircraft gun, serial number 41657, manufactured by the Pontiac Motor Division, and two other guns of like caliber, destroyed a Japanese heavy bomber which crashed burning close to the ship.

Twenty millimeter gun, serial number 41650, manufactured by the Pontiac Motor Division, together with another gun of like caliber, in the same action, shot down another heavy bomber from which plane wreckage was strewn for a distance of about 100 yards before the plane crashed in flames.

In the same action, 20 mm anti-aircraft guns, serial numbers 41712 and 41666, both manufactured by the Pontiac Motor Division, are believed to have damaged planes engaged in the attack.

The Chief of the Bureau extends to the Pontiac Motor Division and to its workers, congratulations on the success of their product in action.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) W. H. P. Blandy,
Rear-Admiral, U. S. Navy,
Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance.

Pontiac Motor Division,
General Motors Corporation,
Pontiac, Michigan.
Via: Naval Inspector of Ordnance,
Pontiac Motor Division.

Pontiac Motor Division undertook the production of the Oerlikon 20 mm anti-aircraft cannon mentioned in the above letter of commendation, 10 months before Pearl Harbor. The gun was originally of foreign design and this was the first attempt to manufacture it in America.

Today, Pontiac Motor Division, with the able cooperation of such organizations as Federal Screw Works, is far ahead of schedule and notable savings in time, material and cost of production have been effected by the engineering and planning ingenuity represented among these organizations.

Local Rationing Boards Moved To New Headquarters

For the convenience of the public and the local rationing boards, the village has rented space in the building at 103 West Middle street (formerly the George Doe barber shop), and it is planned to make this the permanent headquarters of the rationing boards. Because of the additional duties of these boards, due to the increasing number of articles to be rationed, it was deemed advisable to consolidate the boards in a building which will be easily accessible to the public.

Both boards—the one which is issuing War Ration Book I and sugar and coffee certificates, and the gas rationing board, will meet in the new quarters from 4 to 5 o'clock each Wednesday and Friday afternoon, starting on Friday, January 15.

Those wishing service for non-highway (tractors) and transport (truck) rationing will be serviced by the local board if they have their Certificate of War Necessity. This board will also assist in filling out applications for gasoline and will receive appeals.

The gas rationing board has been meeting in the room adjacent to the Chelsea Electric & Water Dept. office and the sugar and coffee board has been meeting in the high school building.

Home Nursing Class To Be Conducted Here

With a scarcity of nurses, and doctors on a very busy schedule, it is important that as many persons as possible shall equip themselves with knowledge essential to the home care of the sick.

Because of this necessity, the local chairman of Red Cross training classes is announcing a class in "Home Nursing" to be conducted in Chelsea as soon as sufficient persons have registered for this service. Every family should be represented in order to benefit not only its own personnel but to help maintain the health of the community.

Miss Charles Brand, R. N., who is a graduate of Grace Hospital in Detroit, has volunteered her services as instructor in order that we may have the benefit of her training to apply in case of emergency in our own homes. Your readiness to accept this training is one of your patriotic gestures.

Mrs. D. L. Rogers, who is chairman of the group, will take registrations, Call 6431. Mrs. A. L. Seger, as general Red Cross chairman, will also accept calls for this class. Phone 5123.

LET'S BE FAIR!

(An Editorial)
Local rationing boards are necessary under the system of rationing adopted by the Federal Government. Members of these boards are volunteers who are donating their time as a service to our country and community.

Many people are inclined to find fault with the way these boards operate, but it must be remembered that the local boards do not make the rules and regulations—they are merely carrying out orders as they are handed down to them from the agencies under which they function.

It is true that there is a lot of so-called "red-tape" connected with the present rationing system, and many writers, commentators and other individuals argue that rationing is absolutely unnecessary in this country. That is beside the point—this compulsory system has been adopted by our Government and must be accepted as it is, and the volunteer workers who are devoting their time to be of assistance to the public should not be the victims of unjust criticism.

Let's be fair and helpful to these rationing boards!

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

The Girl Scouts will convalesce the town on Saturday, January 16 to collect old silk stockings, waste grease and old electric light bulbs. The bulbs may be broken but it is preferred that they be unbroken old bulbs.

The older group of girls is starting a course of Home Nursing. Mrs. J. V. Fisher is the instructor, assisted by Mrs. John Perini.

March 23 has been set as the date for the annual banquet and Court of Awards. All parents and workers, interested citizens and members of the sponsoring organization, the Chelsea Study Club, are invited to attend.

TOWER CAFE ENLARGES

The Tower Cafe has been enlarged by the addition of the room formerly occupied by the Clark grocery store. Mr. Mundhenk leased this room and has had it re-decorated, covered the floor with linoleum, and is equipping it with new tables and chairs. This room will be used for private parties and other special occasions. The Kiwanis club will make it their regular meeting place, starting January 25.

Public School Active In War Work Projects

Chelsea public school has been very active in war work since early in 1942. The students organized a War Council which determines the kind of work which shall be done.

One of the greatest of the projects they have undertaken is the sale of War Bonds and Stamps. In addition to the regular weekly sales, the seventh grade sponsored a December 7th sale which totaled $489.35 in stamps. On December 18 a Bond Auction held in high school amounted to $485.00. In these two events the students sold enough bonds and stamps to buy a "Jeep." The seventh grade also sold $2,625.00 worth of bonds in their December 7 drive.

Chelsea is among the first high schools to introduce a Physical Fitness program. At least 70 per cent of the students were enrolled in this program at the beginning of this school year. Beginning this week arrangements have been made to include nearly every boy in this program.

Every two weeks the Journalism Club writes a letter containing school and community news and sends it to fifty or more graduates and former students who are in the armed forces. They have received many letters of appreciation from the boys.

A Service Flag for the high school will be completed soon by members of the Latin Club.

The Homemaking classes made a study of the food habits of the students and used this survey as a basis for making students and townspeople conscious of the need for better selection of food. Home Nursing is also being taught as a part of the first year Homemaking class.

Annual Meeting Held By Chelsea State Bank

The annual meeting of Chelsea State Bank was held at the bank on Tuesday, with all directors of the bank being re-elected. The directors are: A. J. Walz, Howard S. Holmes, L. G. Palmer, J. V. MAINTAINS "A" AVERAGE

East Lansing—Miss Carolyn Kalmbach, Chelsea sophomore in Michigan State College, is listed among the 25 students to maintain a straight "A" average for fall term this year, the college registrar's office announced this week.

Miss Kalmbach is a sophomore in the Home Economics division of the college at the present time. She is also an alumni scholarship student in the college, having been selected for this honor at the end of her senior year in high school for outstanding work.

The registrar's office also reported that of the 25 students making perfect records for the past term, 13 of the students were men and 12 were women. These students top the grade list of the 6,310 enrolled in the college last term.

ENLISTS IN MARINES

Charles Edward Quigley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore B. Quigley of Sylvan township, who enlisted in the U. S. Marines, will leave Jackson on Friday for San Diego, Calif. He was born Dec. 31, 1924 in Lima township and has been employed at the Central Fibre Products Co.

On Wednesday evening his mother and his sister, Mrs. Allen Alber, entertained a company of relatives and friends in his honor at the home of the latter. Progressive euchre furnished amusement after which supper was served.

Reuben Mayer and son of Detroit came Sunday to visit his father, Lewis Mayer, who is making his home with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Schiller.

INCOME TAX FACTS

Form of Return

Persons subject to the Federal income tax must report their income to the Government on forms, or blanks, prescribed by regulations. These forms are obtainable from any Collector of Internal Revenue, and generally from any bank. Special forms are designated for corporations, for partnerships, for trusts and fiduciaries, and for non-resident aliens. Farmers who keep no books of account on the accrual method must attach a special schedule to their return (Form 1040F). For individuals, two forms are used, depending upon the amount and source of income to be reported.

Form 1040. This form is intended for general use of individuals who are citizens of the United States, or residents in this country, whether citizens or not. It contains spaces to show the amount of income from various sources, deductions allowable, exemptions and credits, and computation of tax liability. As most of the items require some explanation in order to be allowable, the form also contains appropriate schedules to show in more detail how the income or the deductions are determined.

Form 1040A. This is a simplified report, which may, at the option of the taxpayer who makes his return on the cash basis, be filed instead of form 1040 by citizens and residents whose gross income was $3,000 or less during 1942, provided all this income consists wholly of one or more of the following: salary, wages, dividends, interest, or annuities. In using this form it is necessary only to enter the amount of gross income as shown, deduct the credit allowable for dependents, and insert the appropriate amount of tax in accordance with one's personal exemption status, as shown on the table on the reverse of the form. This form has no entries for deductions allowable, since the taxes indicated in the table on the back of the form are computed after taking into account what have been considered average deductions for persons of this income class.

A taxpayer should, therefore, consider carefully which form would be appropriate for his purposes. Which ever form is employed, all the information called for in the spaces should be inserted so far as applicable to the taxpayer, in order to avoid the expense to the Government, and the possible inconvenience to the taxpayer, of subsequent check and inquiry.

With each return form is a set of accompanying instructions, and these instructions should be carefully read by the taxpayer before making his return.

Returns for the calendar year 1942 must be filed not later than March 15, 1943. They may be filed by mailing to the Collector of Internal Revenue of the appropriate district in which is located the legal residence or principal place of business of the taxpayer. If the return is filed by mailing, it should be posted in ample time to reach the Collector's office on or before March 15, 1943. Returns received later than the due date are subject to a penalty variable according to the lateness in filing.

Now is the time to get your car tuned up. Get the most out of your engine, lights, batteries, tires, and general equipment.

When you drive your car into a garage for the regular checkup, have the safety items checked also. Tell the mechanic to look over your lights, brakes, tires, headlight bulbs, and other mechanical equipment.

It will be a long time before you and I are driving on new tires or will be able to buy new automobiles. Make the one you now drive last long. Put some real practical and common sense into your daily driving habits.

Take care of your car for the duration.

NOTICE, LYNDON TAXPAYERS

I will be at Chelsea State Bank every Saturday, starting January 2, until further notice, to collect Lyndon township taxes.

MARY CLARK, Treasurer.

By Gene Alleman

Whether Harry F. Kelly is re-elected governor of Michigan in 1944, thus breaking the one-term jinx of the past six governors, will depend upon many things even down to cabages and kings.

Among these is the test of his leadership with the State Legislature.

He starts out his administration with few handicaps, numerous blessings. Republican legislative leaders were practically unanimous last spring in demanding that Kelly run for governor in the September primary. He did so, unopposed. Four years as secretary of state have acquainted him well with the sure ways to get things done at Lansing. He does not rush into new ideas; he thinks them over carefully and deliberately. He talks little, saws wood persistently.

His legislative program, as announced last week, contained several interesting recommendations that give a clue to his philosophy of public service.

One group dealt with efficiency in government. Kelly proposed the streamlining of multi-department state structure by merging department and commissions. For example: The corporation and securities department, finance company division of the treasury, building and loan division of the department of state, banking and insurance department, and the public trust commission would be merged into one agency.

In the efficiency classification was a recommendation to abolish the office of budget director and to transfer this function to the office of auditor general. Kelly also suggested that inspection staffs, now maintained independently by numerous departments, should be merged into one state inspection department.

Would all this result in economy? Perhaps. But it should make possible a better government by increasing its efficiency. In our opinion, Governor Kelly is more interested in efficiency than in economy. He probably remembers too well the easy promises of other governors, or the records of failure to reduce bureaucracy.

The second classification deals with the opposite of economy, the spending of more money for causes which the governor deems to be worthy.

During his campaign Governor Kelly proposed $40 a month for old age pensions; the present state average is $22. He asks the legislature to increase this allowance.

He proposed that the state set aside $2,000,000 annually for state hospital building needs. He recommended a continuation of the present liberalized payments for unemployment compensation, and he said the legislature should investigate the feasibility of extending the unemployment compensation system to firms employing less than eight persons.

On the spending side also was a suggestion that a system of state pensions should be created for state employees.

Looking to the post-war era, Governor Kelly advocates a "rainy day" sinking fund of "not less" than $15,000,000 from the present state surplus.

As for reduction of the state sales tax, the governor cautioned that a slump in state revenues was inevitable during 1943 and all state revenues would be needed.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1942, the state distributed more than 61 per cent of its funds back to home governments. The increase in local aid alone was around $3,000,000 in 1942 over 1941.

Economy in state government is not easy to achieve without stepping on the toes of people back home. You can't economize at Lansing without also economizing on Main Street. The governor and the state legislature probably realize it.

But greater efficiency in government, making for what we generally call "better government," is a reasonable possibility, abetted by the civil service amendment which serves as a dyke against patronage raids and resulting inefficiency and waste in public service.

Governor Kelly's chances in 1944 may rest on his ability to achieve better government, not economy in government. If he can do both, the age of miracles will have arrived! But don't look for it.

"10,000 Stores to Close." Such is the forecast for Michigan retailing in 1943 by E. W. McFarland, Wayne university professor and head of the Greater Detroit Consumers' Council. McFarland regards the forthcoming casualties, however, as a partial blessing in disguise, a sign of a healthier economy in the future.

His reasoning: There are too many outlets for goods to allow all retailers to make a decent living.

The professor's conclusions remind us of something we read once in one of the imposing monographs issued by the Temporary National Economic Committee, created by Congress a few years ago. Albert L. Meyers, senior economist of the United States department of agriculture, reported the trend since 1900 has been towards more stores. For example: In 1900 there was one food store for 486 persons; in 1935 this ratio had grown to one store for 358 persons.

Hence the verdict: "We must face the fact that because there are too many retail stores in existence there is not a sufficient volume of business to go around even at lower prices."

If these experts are right, Michigan's 1943 retail casualties may help to stabilize business for other stores, thus benefit ultimately the consumer.

Lieut. Col. Harold A. Furlong has been called into active army service, and thus Governor Kelly is presented with an immediate problem of selecting his successor as administrator of the Michigan Council of Defense.

At a farewell dinner in Lansing, Colonel Furlong revealed that he had always been a "dyed-in-the-wool Republican" in Pontiac and a life-long friend of former Governor Murray D. His friends came first.

Van Wagoner. Van Wagoner said that Furlong's appointment had been prompted largely by the knowledge that Furlong was one of two men in Michigan to be honored by Congress with the Congressional Medal of Honor, highest award possible for distinguished service in the first World war.

It revealed a trait of "Pat" Van Wagoner that carried him a long way in politics. He liked people.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Judge, would you mind tellin' Charlie here what you told me the other night walkin' home from lodge. I can't word it just the way you did."

"Sure thing, Tim. Here's what I told him, Charlie. There's no such thing as votin' a nation, a state, a county, or even a community dry. We had proof enough of that during our 13 years of prohibition. What you really vote for is whether liquor is going to be sold legally or illegally...whether the community is going to get needed taxes for schools, hospitals, and the like, or whether this money is going to go to gangsters and bootleggers. That's the answer, boys... simple as A-B-C."

Saturday Night Special

Baked Lima Beans with Bacon Squares

No. 11 of the Nutrition Series

Saturday night or any time the family will welcome this appetizing bean dish. Not expensive to serve, helps to stretch the meat ration, and has good filling qualities—the kind of meal "that sticks to the ribs."

Lima beans supply needed elements to the body in the form of iron and the B vitamins. Iron is essential for red blood and the B vitamins are the ones that give us extra stamina and help to develop steady nerves.

BAKED LIMA BEANS WITH BACON SQUARES
(6 to 12 Servings)

- 2 cups dried Lima beans
- water
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- 1/4 cup molasses
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 pound bacon squares

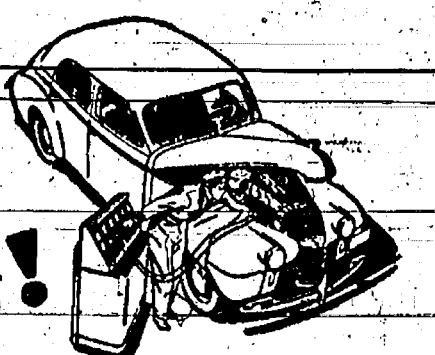

1. Wash beans and soak overnight.
2. In the morning, drain, cover with additional water, cover and cook slowly until skins burst. Drain and put in bean pot or casserole dish.
3. Mix remaining ingredients except bacon and pour mixture over beans. Mix.
4. Cut bacon in small pieces and arrange over top. Cover.
5. Bake at 300° F. about 4 hours. While cooking, add additional water if necessary. Uncover during last 1 1/2 hours.

TUNE YOUR CAR TO TODAY'S KIND OF DRIVING!

1943 DRIVING IS DIFFERENT! THAT MEANS YOUR CAR ADJUSTMENTS SHOULD BE DIFFERENT, TOO! High speeds, long trips, and wasteful use of gas are OUT for the duration. That calls for new adjustments, to fit today's kind of driving.

TO FIT YOUR CAR FOR THIS NEW KIND OF DRIVING

1 NO MORE HIGH-SPEED PERFORMANCE—Your car was engineered and powered for finest performance at speeds much higher than 35 miles an hour. It should be adjusted for war-time driving.

2 NO MORE HIGH-OCTANE GASOLINE—Octane ratings of all gasolines are definitely lower than in pre-war days. Your car should be adjusted to its new diet, to prevent wasteful "pinging."

3 LESS GASOLINE—Whether you're an "A," "B," or "C" book holder, every drop of gas must count. All maintenance operations should be made to provide maximum fuel economy at 35 m.p.h. and under.

4 LESS DRIVING—It's a fact—too little "exercise" for your car can be as harmful as too much. More frequent checking and adjustment of battery and electrical system will be necessary to prevent trouble.

5 CARS ARE BEING DRIVEN LONGER—Today's average car has older tires, older brakes, and older steering equipment. Safety inspection and adjustments are more important than ever.

6 SLOWER DRIVING AND SHORTER TRIPS—Slower driving, frequent stopping, and short trips that never let the engine warm up thoroughly, may result in water and sludge in the crankcase, causing danger of sticky valves and clogging of oil screens.

... IT SHOULD HAVE THIS SPECIAL KIND OF SERVICE

1 TUNE-UP FOR SMOOTH OPERATION AT LOWER SPEEDS—We adjust carburetor, timing, spark plugs, choke, and heat controls, and pull units in top condition for smoother low-speed performance.

2 ADJUSTMENT FOR LOWER OCTANE GAS—Your engine may need a valve grind, carbon removal, or a timing adjustment to fit it for today's fuels. We are equipped to do the whole job right.

3 FUEL ECONOMY ADJUSTMENTS—In addition to tuning up the engine, we check for dragging brakes, leaking gas lines, and other causes of fuel waste such as the use of improper lubricants.

4 BATTERY CHECK-UP—Let us check the condition of your battery regularly, and make sure that your generator and voltage regulator are functioning properly to keep your battery fully charged under reduced driving conditions.

5 CHECK BRAKES, TIRES, STEERING, LIGHTS, ETC.—Our "Safety Service" includes the important adjustments and replacements that are so necessary as your car grows older, to compensate for wear.

6 MORE FREQUENT OIL CHANGES—Let us check your crankcase for oil dilution, every 500 miles or 30 days. Changing the lubricating oil at correct intervals will keep condensation, rust, acids, water and sludge to a minimum.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The tradition of American cavalry threads back to Indian warfare days and although modern armies are largely motorized today, the cavalry still plays an important role. Sturdy, well trained horses and excellent equipment and trainings are necessary.

When men are in the saddle for hours, their saddles, saddle rolls and other equipment must be made to stand the wear. Complete with carbine and helmets, the equipment for the cavalryman runs into hundreds of dollars. You can help provide this with your War Bond purchases. If you have not done so, join the Payroll Savings Plan and put ten percent of your income into War Bonds. U. S. Treasury Department

BRIGHTON—"Home on the range, where the deer and the antelope play," says the song. This area can't boast of the antelope perhaps but residents around here well know that there's deer in "them hills" and every now and then some incident occurs which calls attention to the fact. Sight of deer, buck, doe or fawn, is so common out east of Brighton that residents there think little about it. Latest deer story around these parts is of a tragedy for the deer who mixed its sinew with the iron muscles of the man-made motor truck and lost his life in the encounter. The deer was a big buck and he was killed early one morning on the Proving Ground when hit by a truck driven by William Rander. The buck came out of a swamp where he had been yarding and ran along the west super about the time Rander came along. The deer is said to have tried to climb over the rather steep incline, but slipped on the ice and was struck by the heavy vehicle.—Argus.

SOUTH LYON—Ten per cent in War Bonds is not enough for Mrs. Clara Williams, an office employee at Michigan Seamless Tube company. Last week, according to Personnel Manager C. R. Grant, she asked that she be paid 100 per cent in bonds. This seems to be a record impossible to beat. It appears that Mrs. Williams' husband is working, and she felt that all her pay should be used to purchase War Bonds. Another employee of the company, Voja Bogich, takes 75 per cent of his pay in bonds, using only 25 per cent for living expenses.—Herald.

MILAN—December 1942 with a mean temperature of 23.2 was the coldest December in this section in 15 years by observations of Stanley Helzerman, Tuttle Hill road. The first 20 days were very cold with four days of zero weather. Not since 1935 has the temperature reached zero here in December. The coldest day was on the evening of the 20th when five below zero was reached. The warmest day of the month when 43 degrees was reached. This is also the lowest maximum on record for December. Snowfall was also heavy for the month, 10.1 inches being the total, and the total waterfall including rainfall and melted snow was 2.87 inches. A month's accumulation of 15 inches of snowfall combined with 1.54 inches of rainfall produced floods of unprecedented heights in streams and rivers in this vicinity the last week of the month. A thunderstorm with freezing temperatures on the afternoon of the 26th was the oddest feature of weather conditions for the month.—Leader.

PINCKNEY—The Pinckney dam which has been here since 1837 when Prof. Kartland, the founder of Pinckney, hired Seth Pettys, veteran miller of this section, to put in a flour mill here, washed out last Wednesday morning and the mill pond which is about a quarter of a mile wide in some places is now a mere trickle of water, not much bigger than the little creek which ran through here in 1834. For over 80 years this dam furnished power to operate the Pinckney flour and feed mill. This mill ceased operation about 1920. About this time Henry Ford, who at that time was buying up water power systems all over the state with a view to erecting small factories, visited Pinckney about the time of the big fire which destroyed most of the business block here and brought the water power here. A man named Romberger who owned the White Star Corner refused to sell at the price Ford offered to Pinckney citizens, so Dr. C. Sigler and Floyd Reason bought the property and resold Mr. Ford the part he wanted at his price.—Dispatch.

Proper Ration of Feeds Provides Most Minerals

Livestock on Michigan farms when fed what seems to be a good ration, does not seem to need a great variety of minerals although salt always should be available.

On the basis of present livestock nutrition information, that is the deduction of C. A. Brannaman of the animal husbandry staff at Michigan State College.

For beef cattle and sheep, a self-fed mixture of two parts salt and one of bone meal is recommended. An additional part of limestone is suggested if the roughage contains little or no lime. If the roughage is deficient in phosphorus and the animals do not eat well, the bone meal serves as an appetizer and tonic for cattle and sheep.

Pregnant animals need some extra iodine. Unless milk or a protein supplement is being supplied to hogs on feed, then extra minerals are in order for them, says Professor Brannaman.

In some areas in the state where there is a cobalt deficiency, which shows up in the so-called Travers City disease, a half ounce of cobalt sulphate should be mixed with each 100 pounds of salt.

Little pigs confined, or on frozen ground, often develop anemia and thumps. One preventive is to paint the sow's udder with saturated iron sulphate solution. Another, used by practical hog raisers and found satisfactory, is to throw in a shovelful of sod from disease-free pasture, field or lawn.

Bedroom Suggestion

Young women who are busy as nurses' aides, with the ambulance corps, or whose work are still just as anxious to have their bedrooms attractive and feel as beautiful as ever. Here's a suggestion to make a bedroom seem larger, and at the same time for midday to see herself with a peaches-and-cream complexion. Finish the walls of the bedroom in apricot insulating panels, and use mirrors tinted in apricot on doors, as whatnot shelves, above the vanity and chest of drawers. These tinted mirrors are flattering to midday, and will make the room seem more spacious and warm.

Subject: 20 mm Antiaircraft Guns - Success in Action

Sirs:

The Commanding Officer of a transport has reported to the Chief of the Bureau that in a recent engagement in the Solomon Islands, 20 mm antiaircraft gun, serial number 41678, manufactured by the Pontiac Motor Division, together with another gun or larger caliber, shot down a twin-engine Japanese heavy bomber. The plane crashed into the sea, burning, about 1500 yards from the ship.

In that same action, the same gun, combined with 20 mm antiaircraft gun, serial number 41657, manufactured by the Pontiac Motor Division, and two other guns of like caliber, destroyed a Japanese heavy bomber which crashed burning close to the ship.

Twenty millimeter gun, serial number 41650, manufactured by the Pontiac Motor Division, together with another gun of like caliber, in the same action, shot down another heavy bomber from which plane wreckage was strewn for a distance of about 100 yards before the plane crashed in flames.

In the same action, 20 mm antiaircraft guns, serial numbers 41712 and 41666, both manufactured by the Pontiac Motor Division, are believed to have damaged planes engaged in the attack.

The Chief of the Bureau extends to the Pontiac Motor Division and to its workers, congratulations on the success of their product in action.

Very truly yours,
W. H. P. BLANTY

The production of Oerlikon cannon was undertaken by Pontiac 10 months before Pearl Harbor. This was the first time their manufacture had been attempted in America; and our Navy "E" banner was awarded largely because maximum scheduled production was attained 11 months ahead of schedule. We are grateful to the Navy for its words of commendation and for the privilege of releasing them to the general public.

whose cooperation as a sub-contractor in the manufacture of the above-mentioned weapons has contributed importantly to the winning of the Navy's commendation.

Local Defense Topics

Over one-fourth of the graduate nurses in Washtenaw county have so far completed and returned questionnaires sent out to the total list of 772 nurses last week by Pearl M. Haist, R. N., nursing deputy of the Emergency Medical Service of the County Council of Defense.

"We need to know what nurses are working full time, what nurses would be available in case of local disaster, what nurses would be interested in refresher courses so that they might do emergency home duty for us," stated Miss Haist in appealing for all questionnaires.

"With the shortage of nursing facilities already affecting the public, what would the Emergency Medical Service do in the event of an epidemic among war workers? Defense production in this area must not stop because of sickness if we can prevent it. Please fill in the blank if you received one and mail it in the return envelope," Miss Haist requested. "It does not mean you will be called to work unless you are willing and able."

Though Washtenaw county ranks high in Michigan in the number of graduate nurses residing here, many are already employed full time in the hospitals of the county.

"Washtenaw county also ranks high in the need for a reservoir of nursing services due to our incoming population, unaccustomed to this climate." A volunteer trained in public health has been assigned by the Civilian Defense Volunteer Office to work under Miss Haist in compiling returns on the questionnaires. She was selected on the basis of her volunteer record over the past year, during which she assisted the Ann Arbor public school health department in health inspection of pupils. She also worked under Dr. Otto K. Engelke in the County Health Department campaign to immunize Washtenaw children against communicable diseases.

Any graduate nurse in Washtenaw county who did not receive a questionnaire is requested by Miss Haist to write or phone the CDVO office in the armory, Ann Arbor, so that she may be included in this survey.

Failure to submit all the required information on fuel oil application is accounting for many of the errors now being corrected at the headquarters of the war price and rationing board at 200 North Fourth Avenue.

Many applicants have been disappointed in not receiving prompt decisions simply because they failed to fill in all the necessary facts on their applications, according to rationing officials. Other persons who are receiving prompt corrections include those to whom improper application forms were issued originally.

The fuel oil adjustment office, under the supervision of an employee of the rationing board, has seven CDVO workers on duty at a time to handle the line of fuel oil consumers wishing to secure correction of their allotments.

The Ann Arbor adjustment office is open daily 9:00 to 4:30. Saturday hours are 9:00 to 12:00, and the office will be closed to the public Wednesday afternoons to permit workers to complete their records.

Only mistakes made in filing application or in calculating ration can be corrected on the spot, stated rationing officials, while all requests for additional fuel oil on the grounds of illness or infirmity must be filed separately on the special forms available at 200 North Fourth Ave., Ann Arbor.

This auxiliary form contains the space for statements as to special health needs which must be signed by a doctor, and as to special heating requirements which must be signed by a heating engineer. Both signatures must appear on the auxiliary application form.

Hundreds of such supplemental applications have already been referred to the fuel oil panel of the rationing board. Many have had to be returned because they are not signed or not completely filled in.

"The rationing board has no authority to act unless all the necessary information is submitted," stated Louis E. Burke, chairman of the fuel oil panel. To date no appeal has been made by county residents to the state Office of Price Administration.

JERUSALEM SCHOOL NEWS

The third term of school for the Jerusalem school closed January 8. The following were neither absent nor tardy during the term: Donald Koch, Joyce Eisenman, Raymond, Leona, Harold and Wilfred Moore, Arlene Haist, Carl Koch, Joan Koenigter and Ralph Trinkle.

The president of the Jerusalem Civic Health Club is Doris Trinkle, secretary, Donald Barth.

This term, we spent quite a bit of time getting ready for our Christmas program and making gifts, invitations and cards. We made calendars, holders and holder hangers for our parents.

Mr. Thayer, our supervisor of schools, came and gave us our standard tests before Christmas. These tests told us in what studies we need to work harder in.

Our school is enrolled in the Junior Red Cross. We are waiting to receive the Red Cross magazine.

Many of us have colds and some have the mumps. In health work we are studying Nutrition.

Larry and Norma Jean Green, who came to our school last term, have left again.

The sixth grade has made some Good English posters. The 7th and 8th grades have made some posters on the parts of speech. The 10th grades have been illustrating nursery rhymes.

The following have read the most books in their grade: 8th, Donald Koch; 7th, Aileen Lewis; 6th, Robert Koch; 4th, Carl Koch; 3rd, Clara Lewis; 2nd, Leona Hatt; 1st, Doris Haist.

The following have the most Arithmetic punches for their grade: Donald Koch, 8th; Aileen Lewis, 7th; Joyce Eisenman, 6th; Arlene Haist, 4th; Joan Koenigter, 3rd.

The following have their names on the Spelling Honor Roll the most times in their grade: Donald K., 8th; Aileen Lewis, 7th; Joyce Eisenman and Norman Koch, 6th; Arlene Haist, 4th; Joan Koenigter, 3rd; Leona Hatt, 2nd; Doris Trinkle, Donald Barth, Arlene Haist, Wilma Koenigter, Donald Koch.

ANNUAL SCOUT MEET JAN. 14

"Boys in Wartime" is the theme of a panel discussion which will open the program of the annual meeting of the Washtenaw-Livingston Boy Scout Council, to be held at the Michigan Union, Ann Arbor, on Thursday evening, Jan. 14.

In this panel discussion such topics as "Mobilizing Boypower," "The Boys in War Service," "The Boys in a World at War," and other phases will be discussed. Panel leaders will include Rabbi J. M. Cohen, James Benjamins of the Family and Children Service, Duane Chamberlain of the Ypsilanti State Normal College, and John M. Trytten, principal of the University high school. At 7:30 Dr. John Muyskens of the Department of Speech of the University of Michigan will speak on the "Realm of Grace."

Reports will be presented and election of officers will be held. It is expected that several men from Chelsea will attend.

Gardeners Smile At New Food Rationing

Spring fever came early to Michigan gardeners this year. In fact the malady defied blizzard weather when new food rationing appeared imminent and gardeners remembered what they had been able to produce during 1942 in back yards and farm quarters, third and half acre.

Inquiries coming to the horticulture department at Michigan State College indicate the intensity likely in 1943. Home production of food, home processed, the government has said, does not curtail any family's share in what they will be able to purchase at food counters after more complete rationing is in force.

Estimates of the office of civilian defense indicate a quarter million Victory Gardens were produced, mostly in Michigan urban centers, in 1942. An eight per cent increase in farm gardens made a total of 5,000 additional acres or 10,000 to 15,000 additional farm gardens over those in 1941.

More than the rationing of foods is involved in the importance of gardening in 1943, says Perry Bowser, vegetable gardening specialist at the college.

Eighteen per cent of all foods produced in the United States were used by the government in 1942 for the armed forces and for lend-lease shipment. The 1943 program indicates government needs of a minimum of 25 per cent and a possible 50 per cent reached by the end of the year.

Not volume alone is involved, Bowser points out. Commercial and amateur gardeners are expected to produce enough volume to reduce the food transportation volume. Handling food over long distances is to be curtailed. That's where patriotism and household economy in 1943 go hand in hand for those families already feeling the spring fever urge to plant and later plant a more effective Victory Garden.

Gamble's New WAR TIRE

Made According To Government Specifications

NOW AVAILABLE FOR THOSE WHO CAN BUY WAR TIRES

This new Crest War Tire is the result of American far-sightedness to keep your car rolling on to victory.

Tons of scrap rubber, turned in during our National rubber drive makes this tire possible. It is built with first line cord construction, 4 ply, according to government regulations governing all War tires.

The Crest War tire is not made of new, high quality rubber like the regular Crest Deluxe tires and for that reason we recommend a maximum speed of 35 miles an hour to be assured of satisfactory service.

The Crest War tire is built by the famous makers of regular Crest tires and embodies every feature possible to provide the most in tire service under war time conditions.

METH. YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

Last Thursday the young people's organization of the Methodist church met in the League room and elected officers as follows:

President—Dorothy Knickerbocker.
Vice-Pres.—Frances Hale.
Secretary—Ruth Collins.
Treasurer—Dick Schulz.
Publicity Supt.—Pearl Alexander.

Many topics were planned for the meetings of various kinds and they also made out check lists to find out the different things the young people are interested in and what they would like to do to contribute to the meetings.

It is now being decided whether we should meet every week or every other week. With the money we have earned this year and the amount from last year we are really planning this year as being an excellent year to accomplish many things that were impossible to do in 1942.

If any young people of the Methodist church wish to join this group now is the time to do so.

Pearl Alexander, Publicity Supt.

Y. M. CHILD STUDY CLUB

The January 12 meeting of the Young Mothers' Child Study club was held at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Hevdlau, with 20 members present. Mrs. Travis Cash spoke on the art of story telling. As examples of stories suitable for three different age groups she told "The Little Boy Who Wanted To Be A Soldier", "Apron Strings", and "Mother of Pearl". She also gave a dramatized story suitable for small children in which the story teller and listeners joined in furnishing the action for the tale.

Plans were made for a bridge party to be held on February 2. Mildred Hopper was appointed general chairman, assisted by Bernice Fahmer and Lenore Schmidt. Leah Smith and Margaret Foster will have charge of tallies and tickets. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

CHELSEA STUDY CLUB

The Chelsea Study Club met in the Home Economics room of the Chelsea high school on Tuesday evening, January 12. Following the regular business meeting, Mrs. Jean Eaton gave a most interesting report on the subject "The Little Countries Under Nazi Rule." She gave a vivid picture of the Nazi dominated countries—a domination which reaches out socially, politically and economically.

During the course of the evening the club members made surgical dressings after which delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Miriam Hale.

The next meeting of the club will be held Tuesday evening, January 26 at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Daniels, and the husbands are invited at this time. Dr. Max Peet will speak on "Infantile Paralysis."

LADIES' GUILD ELECTIONS

The Ladies' Guild of the Congregational church held their annual meeting on Thursday afternoon. Splendid reports were given on the past year's activities. It was voted to have just two groups in the Guild this year and the division will be made this week. Officers elected for the year are:

President—Mrs. M. J. Baxter.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. O. H. Hinder.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. A. L. Brock.
Secretary—Mrs. C. H. Schwieger.
Treasurer—Mrs. L. A. Wacker.

U. K. CLUB MEETS

The U. K. club was entertained on Wednesday evening of last week at the home of Mrs. John Forner. With two tables of euchre in play, high prize was won by Mrs. John P. Cook and low by Mrs. George Satterthwaite, with Mrs. Albert Nicolai receiving the traveling prize. The hostess served lunch.

INITIATED INTO "STOICS"

Miss Grace Riemenschneider spent the week-end in Ypsilanti. On Friday evening she was formally initiated into the Stoics, honorary organization for men and women students who by the sophomore year of their college course have attained certain degrees of scholarship.

ENTERTAINS FOR MOTHER

Mrs. J. V. Fisher entertained at a dinner party on Thursday evening for the pleasure of her mother, Mrs. Flora Hopkins, on her birthday anniversary. The guests included Dr. and Mrs. Charles Fisher and Jack Fisher of Ann Arbor and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Fisher of Chelsea.

LIMA CENTER P. T. A.

A meeting of the Lima Center P. T. A. was held Friday night at the school house. Following the business meeting bridge furnished pastime for the women, while the men played euchre. Refreshments were served.

MURDER at PIRATE'S HEAD

By ISABEL WAITT

CHAPTER I

Pirate's Head always reminds me of a Summer squash. Its long neck juts out of Rockville, Mass., into the wild Atlantic. Once, according to legend, this rocky promontory was the lookout for buccaneers, who hid their treasure in a deep fissure called the Pirate's Mouth. Just the mention of that slippery shelf in the foamy sea makes my flesh creep!

It began to creep the day I received a queer letter, the first week of my visit at the inn. How would you feel to receive a missive from an unknown, containing forty old twenty-dollar bills?

Postmark, Boston. Date blurred. Pennmanship, sprawly, as if an attempt had been made to disguise it. Spelling, excellent. Astonished, I read:

"The old church should go for a song at the auction. Please bid for one who doesn't wish to be known in the transaction. Sentimental reasons."

"In return, you may later use it for tearoom or lending library, rent free."

"Please don't tell a soul, but buy at any cost. If not enough, will reimburse. If too much, keep the difference and oblige."

"A FRIEND."

Nobody knew I was summing up at the inn. As for the auction of the homely little church, scheduled for July 3, the following day, I'd planned to go just for fun. Everybody at the Head would be there to take a whack at buying that desolate, long-unused place of worship, standing on the bluff.

That odd letter, though I didn't realize it at the time, was my first clue in the series of dreadful things which were to occur. Thrilled to death at the mystery, and speculating as to my unguessed correspondent, I pinned the bills into a stocking and tucked the missive itself under the lining of my top bureau drawer.

Maybe this vacation wasn't going to be as dull, after all! I'd visited my Aunt Nella before, and found it deadly. But then she'd never had any murders to offer. I'll say this for murder—it's never dull.

Aunt Nella runs the inn at Pirate's Head, the only one there. In a way it was a comedown for her to open her lovely old colonial home to paying guests. For more than 150 years it had sheltered the Gerry family in decent privacy. They might have been comfortably off, except for the failure of the Lane Bank. This crippled Uncle Wylie, Aunt Nella's husband, worse than his rheumatism. Old Man Lane put a bullet through his head when his pet went into receivership, dragging down all his neighbors but Aunt Nella went to making blueberry pies.

That's where I came in. She wheeled me into being hostess and general factotum, greeting the tourists and answering the phone while her hands were in the dough, as she put it. "You'll have a nice change," she said. "The Head is always so quiet and peaceful."

My funds were minus X, and I, without near relatives, my parents both having died in a plane crash. Even Aunt Nella was only a play aunt, who had been my mother's dear friend.

We had only a few guests the first of July. Nice people, all of them, apparently, but merely famous to me: The Reverend Jonas De Witt, Miss Lily Kendall, Hugh Norcross and his sister, Bessie. Mr. Thaddeus Quincy and Mr. Potter. The house staff consisted of Aunt Nella, Uncle Wylie and myself. A town girl came in to wash dishes, but she lived out and had nothing to do with the things that happened.

You can wager I don't mention my letter to a soul. Visions of tearooms danced in my head. I'm going to skip the auction here, except to say that I bid for the old church and got it for $500. I still had $500 of somebody's money!

Along with the quaint old building came sturdy, hard benches for seating maybe 125 people, a few dilapidated hymn books, and down in the basement the most wonderful sea chest you ever saw. Cedar. "There's my hope chest," I gloated. "A little the polish and a lot of elbow grease!" The thing was locked when I examined it after the sale. I was prying at it with a bobby pin when Uncle Wylie said Aunt Nella wanted me right away back at the inn.

Not until evening did I escape. Then I discovered Mr. Quincy put on the porch sitting patiently in his wheelchair, as usual. I liked Thaddeus Quincy, perhaps because he refused to use his infirmity as a topic of conversation. Though about 66, wizened and, always alone, still whenever he was included he was the life of the party. Just then he looked dejected enough, amusing himself by strumming on the piazza rails with the malacca cane he always had handy.

"Want me to take you for a ride?" I asked. "My, the fog is creeping in."

"Would you, Judy? Just down the ramps. Then I can manage for myself." He called me Judy since the first day, and I liked it, from him. To the others I was Miss Jason.

"How'd you like to see the inside of a church?" I asked. I held my breath while we made the plank. Uncle Wylie had put over the side steps of the porch for this wheelchair.

"Saw all I wanted to this afternoon at the auction," he answered. "Yes. From the outside. Shouted your bid through the door. Only made one bid. Why?" I asked.

"Wanted you to get it cheap. Think I'd bid against you? What'd you want of that old cypress?"

"Wait till I get it fixed up. Tea and crumpets. My it's getting foggy! Left my handbag down in the basement. Taking you down while I get it. Guess how much money I have left?" I queried.

He eluded my little trap, but appeared grateful for the companionship. "How should I know what seeds you make at the inn? Tell me something about the Lane castle."

He pointed at the great stone mansion that loomed up ahead of us. Beyond the inn but to the left of the church, known to Pirate Headers as the castle. Hideously ornate it was, by daylight, with too many turrets. It had been vacant for years.

"Not much to tell," I replied. "Been closed since Mr. Lane committed suicide after his bank failed, three years ago. There was a nasty scandal flushed up, implicating son Roddy—Roddy, Jr.—whom you saw at the inn last night. He lives out West and never's come back here."

That odd letter, though I didn't realize it at the time, was my first clue in the series of dreadful things which were to occur. Thrilled to death at the mystery, and speculating as to my unguessed correspondent, I pinned the bills into a stocking and tucked the missive itself under the lining of my top bureau drawer.

"Wanted you to get it cheap. Think I'd bid against you? What'd you want of that old cypress?"

correct "Z." "Been watchin' the sun set. Must of dropped off. Lemme push you back? Oh, I get it! Two's company." For once the kittenish Lily wasn't going to butt in.

As she moved away chuckling, I heard Mr. Quincy breathe, "Thank Heavens!" Poor Lily Kendall—corrupt, gabby, good natured, lovely, 40-year-old forever twisting her countless string of beads till they spilled all over the house, and heavens—what a pest! She'd seen mighty little of a sunset in all that gathering mist.

Once the door was open, I struck one of the two matches Mr. Q. had given me and hurried down the aisle of the musty auditorium. Wrong word for this little meeting place, but never mind. The flame went out, and for a moment I stood hesitating, listening to the ghostly lashing of the waves on the rocks. But I'd promised Bessie Norcross, our fussiest guest, a key for her door, having swiped said key from Albin Potter, our artist boarder. His key fitted Bessie's room, too, and he never bothered to close his door, let alone lock it. He'd probably never miss it. I'd stuck it in my handbag, having intended to go to Rockville and have a duplicate made. The bag must have been left in the basement near my new hope chest when Uncle Wylie called me away.

The basement stairs, very narrow and steep, led from a door at the side of the front platform, the church being built back-to-to, in a way. I didn't want any more complaints. I'd promised Bessie she'd have her key. I didn't want to break my neck, either. I groped down a step or two, clinging to the stone wall. Then I decided it was too precarious. The other match should last until I snatched the bag and started back, so I struck it.

The damp chill of that black little cellar penetrated my thin blue dress. Shivering, I hurried as best I could. There weren't many steps. The church had literally been built on a rock, so the floor was uneven, one end having a patch of dirt floor. A strong breeze came from somewhere.

I remembered the chest was against the wall abutting the sea. I could have reached it more easily by taking the path around the cliff to the tiny basement door, but I knew that would be locked from the inside. I'd told Uncle Wylie to lock up when he'd summoned me. He'd said he had, and hung the entrance key where I'd just found it. He was absent-minded, but in an emergency could be relied upon. Yet holding up that tiny flame I could see that the basement door was open a crack, and was swinging wider—wider!

Would the match last till I closed the door, locked it and found my bag? I measured the distance with my eye, approaching the while, and kicking at the door as I passed. From the darkness something twinkled at me. Was it a firefly? Another step. I held the flickering match closer. It couldn't be! I was seeing things. A final spurt and the glow faded, burning my fingers. Automatically I dropped the match. The pain brought action.

"You mustn't faint! You mustn't faint!" I kept telling myself. In utter darkness, with the moan of the sea and the creak of the door that wouldn't stay closed unless locked, I staggered for the stairs. Nothing on earth would have made me take the cliff path. It's mighty lucky I didn't, as it happened.

Finally I found the stairs, missed a step and stumbled. Down, down, I rolled to the bottom. Every second I expected someone to reach out and grab me. I scrambled to my feet, more careful this time, but sobbing till I made the main floor.

My skin prickled. The middle aisle—the door! I stumbled ahead, straining my eyes at the shadows. It wasn't a firefly I'd seen by that flickering match. From beneath the cover of the sea chest a dead white hand had protruded, and on it a huge square-cut diamond had winked at me. I'd admired it—it was it only yesterday!

Somebody was screaming terribly. Below a door banged. Blindly I bumped into a human being near the entrance.

"Judy! Stop screaming! What's the matter, child?"

Thaddeus Quincy! In relief I grabbed at and nearly threw him. Not till afterward, in the safety of my own room, did I pause to wonder how he'd ever managed to reach the spot where he stood unaided.

"Quick!" I cried. "He's after us!"

"Who's after who? What are you talking about?"

I yanked at his arm, my one thought to get out of the church. "Now then," he panted. "Who's after us?"

"The murderer. I—I heard it squeak."

"Are you crazy?"

"The door, I mean. When he ran out of the cellar. After he killed Roddy Lane!"

THE HOME FRONT IN MICHIGAN

Military secrets, particularly in vital Michigan war production areas, will be in danger unless the public understands this one fact: That every American, regardless of who he or she is, has an important part in guarding wartime knowledge. The fact that you learned something or heard it casually or read it in a letter that bears no official seal of secrecy doesn't mean that it isn't important, according to the Office of War Information. Make yourself a self-appointed security officer. Don't give the enemy the benefit of the doubt.

If you have a heat problem in your home, particularly in rural areas, here's news from the Office of Price Administration. A brand new lot of coal and wood-burning stoves has been made available to provide necessary warmth. The wood-burners are very inexpensive and are not rationed. But the coal-burners are rationed. So if you need a coal stove or wish to replace your oil burner, see your war price and rationing board for a purchase certificate. Then go to your local dealer.

Michigan motorists who expect to qualify for continued use of their cars after Jan. 31 MUST get their tires inspected, before that date. Neither gasoline ration books nor tires will be issued in the future to those drivers who do not meet the tire inspection deadline. Avoid the last-minute jam by driving to your official OPA Tire Inspection Station today. There's one in every neighborhood and community in Michigan.

This is a fine time for Mrs. Michigan to develop her dress-making talents. For she is assured of continued use of her sewing machine. The War Production Board is permitting limited production of sewing machine repair parts this year. And steel needles will be available too.

If you're thinking about your Victory Garden for 1944—and everyone in Michigan certainly should be giving it serious consideration—you will be able to get garden tools, but they will be simplified. Such tools made after April 8, 1943 must conform to new patterns and styles prescribed by WPB to save critical materials.

American fighting men taken prisoner by Germany or Italy, and American civilians interned by those countries, receive regular American Red Cross standard food parcels and necessary clothing as soon as the International Red Cross in Geneva, Switzerland, is notified of their capture and camp location. According to OWI, 5,931 food parcels were dispatched during November to U. S. prisoners and internees in camps in Europe.

Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, has just launched a national drive to collect millions of books from American people for the men and women in the armed forces. Says Davis: "Our fighters can't use a dog-eared algebra book published during the War of 1812, but they do need books they will enjoy reading—good fiction, mystery stories, biography, etc." Take your gift book to your nearest library, Red Cross or USO office.

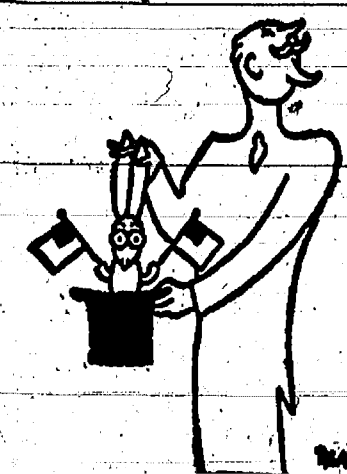

Gold in Them Lockers!

The labor-management committee of the steam division, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, South Philadelphia, Pa., reports that workers voluntarily contributed 5,000 pounds of tool steel from their lockers. It was valued at $2,100.

Food Shortage

It didn't seem possible that the United States could ever have a real food shortage. However, since all of us are finding it more difficult every day to get the kinds and amounts of foods we want, we are beginning to wonder what the future will bring. As we study the changing conditions in our own country and in the world today, we can only conclude that the food problem is going to become more and more serious. This year many people will help solve the problem by planting a big Victory vegetable garden.

If people in Detroit, can have successful gardens, then we should have far better ones. Plenty of good land, close to the residential sections, is available. Enough fresh vegetables for a family of four or five can be raised in a garden 50 feet by 100 feet. Those having larger areas will probably have no difficulty selling their surplus.

A good garden means plenty of work along with the pleasure of working with growing things and the satisfaction of doing something worthwhile. It is time to order seeds and make other necessary plans. The Chelsea Victory Garden Club will help gardeners in every way possible. A $35 fund already on hand will be devoted to prizes. The Farm Shop club is building a garden tractor that will be rented to those wanting to use it. Plans are now being made to rent several acres and rent 50x100 garden plots.

Chelsea will have some excellent gardens this year. It would be difficult to find a better way of helping your country and your own family at the same time.

—M. F. Richards.

Graduates of '43 (?)

Another very prominent member of the Senior class is Joseph Edward Merkel. Joe first saw light of day on February 10, 1926 in Chelsea. His favorite sport is football and he has been a member of the team for three years. Joe said his hobby was farming but everyone else thinks it is sleeping. Mr. Chandler might remember the next time he marks Joe in speech that it is his favorite subject. When the question "What do you intend to do when you are graduated?" is put to Joe he promptly replies: "Retire!"

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

A pelorus, used by the Navy, is a device which fits over the surface of a compass to enable the operator to take bearings on distant objects.
It has split hair sights, has been in use for many years . . . and costs approximately $125.

These instruments are essential equipment to every American ship which comes out of the shipyards.
With the scores of ships now being completed each month, we need many of these instruments. Your purchase of War Bonds and Stamps will help pay for them. Invest at least ten percent of your income every payday in these interest bearing Government securities.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The biggest field gun in the Army.
That's the 240-mm. howitzer. It's twenty-feet of barrel and must be pulled into position by tractors. After it is rolled into place, its own wheels are removed and the Big Bertha is set upon its emplacement ready to fire at its target some twenty miles away.

The cost of these huge guns runs into thousands of dollars but we can assure the Army of obtaining them by our purchases of War Bonds.

MURDER AT PIRATE'S HEAD

Lovers of mystery fiction will find in this story by Isabel Waitt one thrill after another. Judy Jason finds the body of Roddy Lane in a chest in the basement of the church
she had bought at auction, after receipt of an anonymous letter enclosing $800 in cash and urging her to buy the church at any price. Events follow in swift sequence after this, each more mysterious than the last.

CLEAN YOUR SIDEWALKS

There is a Village Ordinance that requires property owners to keep their walks free of snow.

Many local property owners are guilty of neglecting to clean their walks, and owners of vacant property are also guilty of the same violation.

People who go away for the winter are also required to make provision for having their walks cleaned.

There are no exceptions - - all walks must be kept clean!
