Plans Being Made for Bigger-Better Gardens

This is Victory Garden Week. All over America plans are being made for the biggest and best vegetable gardens in history. Here in Chelsea we are determined to do our full share.

Every garden in the Chelsea area should be registered with the local Victory Garden Committee. There are four reasons why this should be done:

1. We want Chelsea to receive full credit for its share in the work.
2. The local organizers can do their full duty only when they know fully the kinds of help that will be needed.
3. The Detroit Free Press is offering $1000 in prizes. Other groups are nearly ready to announce similar plans. The registered garden will have a better chance to win.
4. A year from now we may be making even bigger plans for Victory Gardens. If so, complete records of 1943 accomplishments and difficulties will be very valuable.

The high school Vocational Agriculture department has a supply of registration blanks. Ask any boy or girl in school to bring you one.

Community Garden No. 1, located on the Wirt Ives property, McKinley street, has 42 40x80 ft. plots. The $2.50 rental fee includes plowing and fitting of the land and the use of certain F. F. A. tools. Already seven of these gardens have been rented.

The International Harvester Co. has just published an excellent garden bulletin. Copies of this or of the M. S. C. Extension Service booklet may be borrowed from the high school agriculture department.

Food Shortage Is Threat To Home Front

Recognition Of This Problem Prompts Action By Governors

By Gene Althman

"You must grow your own."

Who said it? Was it President Roosevelt, Secretary Wallace or Congressmen Whoozle?

Guess again. The words appeared this spring in a newspaper advertisement authorized and paid for by the British government through its Ministry of Agriculture. The message was addressed to the women of England, and the copy reasoned that mothers, assisted by older children, must grow the vegetables that are vital to "your children's health—especially in winter."

Otherwise, the British message added, "if you don't, they (the children) may go short." Plain, simple language, right to the point; no beating around the bush. In other words, if your kids go hungry next winter for lack of health important vitamin vegetables, don't blame the Prime Minister, or the House of Commons, or the farmer. Just blame yourself!

Victory Garden Week is being observed in Michigan this week.

Michigan is no island; we are not 20 miles from enemy guns; Nazi bombing planes do not fly over Detroit or Saint Ste. Marie or Kalamazoo.

But like the English are being told plainly by their government, "you must grow your own." Michigan citizens are becoming increasingly aware of the fact that our home front is being endangered just as much by a threatened food shortage as by espionage or sabotage or absenteeism.

Recognition of the food shortage prompted Governor Harry F. Kelly to divert his energies during the final (Continued on page four)

Communication With Capt. Beach Is Possible

Mrs. D. E. Beach received a letter from the United States War Department on Monday, giving full details concerning communication with her son, Captain Kenneth O. Beach, who was reported two weeks ago as being a prisoner of the Japanese in the Philippine Islands.

Under the terms of the Geneva Convention, officially reported prisoners of war are permitted to correspond with friends and relatives. There is no limitation on the number of letters which may be sent them by relatives and friends, but all communications should be brief and strictly of a personal nature, and if possible, typewritten or in block letters. "V" or air mail facilities are not available to prisoners of war.

Ordinary foreign mail can be sent free of postage if addressed to a prisoner of war. Write in the upper left-hand corner "Prisoner of War Mail" and in the upper right-hand corner write "Postage Free". In addition to the above, in addressing Captain Beach, the following address must be used:

Capt. K. O. Beach, U. S. Army, Interned in the Philippine Islands, c/o Japanese Red Cross, Tokyo, Japan.

Via New York, New York.
Packages cannot be sent to the Orient at the present time. When transportation facilities are available, a package permit will be issued without request to the next of kin of each prisoner of war.

Next of kin is also allowed one cable to the prisoner of war, according to the information received by Mrs. Beach, and this message was sent on Tuesday morning.

Committee Plans For Bond Drive In April

The Chelsea War Savings committee met at the public school on Monday night to discuss plans for this community's part in the United States Treasury Department's April financing program which calls for the sale of $13,000,000,000.00 in U. S. Treasury securities.

Chairman Henry C. Schneider explained the program as outlined by the Michigan War Savings committee, and solicitors were named to make a canvass of Chelsea in an effort to sell this community's share in this huge financing program.

Also attending the meeting on Monday night were representatives from local industrial plants, and others who will participate in the drive.

In order to achieve the goal of the Treasury Department it means that everyone who possibly can must purchase extra bonds to the fullest extent of their ability. The local committee and solicitors ask the cooperation of all in putting Chelsea over the top in this important undertaking.

I'M GOING BOYS—AND IT WON'T BE LONG!

Look out old Mr. Hitler,
We are eighteen today;
We are going to help our country,
The good old U. S. A.
We are coming boys, and it won't be long.

We are going to North Africa,
We want a Tommy gun;
We want to shoot those dirty Japs,
And make old Hitler run.
We are coming boys, and it won't be long.

The Japs blew up "Pearl Harbor,"
And the Philippines as well,
And now some of those dirty dogs
Are flying their planes in H.
We are coming boys, and it won't be long.

We are not much of a scholar,
Can barely read or write;
But we can show those lousy boys,
That we have been taught to fight.
We are coming boys, and it won't be long.

We are going to the Solomon Islands,
We'll sail the ocean blue;
Look out, General MacArthur,
We are coming to help you.
We are coming boys, and it won't be long.

We are going to help Doolittle,
For he's no flyers bum;
We'll fly right over Tokyo,
And blow her to kingdom come.
We are coming boys, and it won't be long.

Here's to our President,
The man we all can trust;
He says we can win this war,
We will, we can, we must.
We are coming boys, and it won't be long.

To all you Christian people,
When your kneeling down to pray;
Don't forget our fighting boys,
In the good old U. S. A.
We are coming boys, and it won't be long.

So when this war is over,
And all the Japs are dead;
We'll fly right over Germany,
And cut off old Hitler's head.
We are coming boys, and it won't be long.

Beef Price Violators Go To Jail

"The prison terms of up to seven months in jail with accompanying fines ranging to $5,800 meted out to 13 individual violators of OPA price ceilings on beef at the wholesale level today is only the start of our broad-based campaign to wipe out the black market in meat in this country," Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown said on March 9 in commenting on the sentences and fines handed out by Federal Judge Goddard in United States District Court in New York City.

Prices of Fresh Vegetables
Regional OPA offices may adjust the maximum price of any seller of fresh lettuce, spinach, carrots, green peas, snap beans, tomatoes, and cabbage when the selling price is likely to disrupt normal distribution, the OPA has ruled.

Seeds Not Rationed
Peas, beans, and lentils when bought exclusively for use as seed are exempt from the processed foods rationing program and do not require the surrender of either point stamps or ration certificates, according to OPA.

Substitute Coal or Wood
Fuel oil users who would be entitled to receive auxiliary rations of 100 gallons or more for heating purposes will not be issued such rations, if they can obtain the extra heat from coal or wood stores, OPA announced recently. This order applies to private home owners, apartment houses, and cold-water flat owners. Industrial plants heated by oil, and all others who burn oil for heat. To prevent hardship, the order provides for certain exceptions.

Certificates to Farmers
Farm families who have enlisted in the big 1943 food production program will be awarded a certificate of farm war service, signed by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, in recognition of their war work. It will be presented by County USDA war boards as soon as possible after the completion of the 1943 farm mobilization drive.

Farmers Pay Loans
More than 100,000 farmer-borrowers from the 12 Federal land banks and land bank commissioner repaid their loans in full in 1942. "Farmers are paying off their long-term debts from high farm income," stated A. G. Black, governor of the Farm Credit Administration. The demand for new farm mortgage loans was about 22 per cent less in the last six months of 1942 than in the same period of

FARMERS' CLUB MEETS

The Western Washtenaw Farmers' club held their March meeting on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin I. Gaunt, where dinner was served at 7 o'clock, with covers for 40. The tables and mantel were attractively decorated with an arrangement of iris, roses, gladioli and daffodils.

Following the business session the program opened with singing of "America," after which Irish stories were given in answer to roll call. The speaker of the evening, Rev. Wm. H. Skentelbury, chose for his topic, "We Do Not Live By Bread Alone."

Sequoia Trees Once Scattered
California's famous Sequoia trees once grew widely over the world, as shown by fossil remains found in Montana, North Dakota, Connecticut, Arizona, Greenland, Siberia, France, Australia and other places.

Sportmanship in driving an automobile is as important as it is in sporting events. A good judge about whether you are on the right track will be your sense of good sportsmanship. Have you ever been in a car, bus, or truck and been impressed by the sportsmanship of the driver—the way he kept his temper, his good humor at other people's faults, his patience, and his sense of fair play?

These are the things that make for courtesy and make for safety on our highways.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"I've been meanin' to ask you for the last couple of weeks, Judge, what you think of this prohibition talk that keeps croppin' up every so often."

"I've heard some of it too, Henry, and I feel like this about it..."

"It comes from a comparatively small group of reformers... the same type that plunged us into prohibition during the last war. And, as we all remember, into nearly 14 years of the worst crime and gangsterism this country has ever known. Everybody had all the liquor they wanted only it came from bootleggers at exorbitant prices and the government was deprived of millions and millions of dollars in taxes.

"It seems to me, as I told my Congressman down in Washington last week, that we've got all we can do here at home to help win this war without wasting time arguing about things we know, from sad experience, won't work."

How gasoline rationing affects your car

War-time driving conditions for which your car may not have been originally designed, and adjusted, necessitate annual care. Here are tips from Pontiac engineers to help you guard against trouble and excessive wear.

Engine knock or "ping," frequently caused by lower octane war-time gasoline, can be corrected through minor tuning, timing adjustment or, in serious cases, removal of cylinder head to clean out carbon.

Pre-war normal driving required a change of crankcase oil every 2,000 to 3,000 miles. Today, shorter drives on a cold engine may cause harmful condensation and thus require more frequent oil changes.

Batteries discharge in idle cars. Pontiac engineers advise, especially for A Cars drivers, limited use of electrical accessories, battery check-up every two weeks, periodic check of generator, starter, voltage regulator.

UNCLE SAM is COOKIN' WITH GAS!

Because of its intense and instant heat, its flexibility and its economy, natural gas is being used in a thousand industrial ways to produce war materials. It is used to toughen armor plate—it is used in making shells, planes, tanks and guns.

So great is the need for natural gas today in the war effort that the Government is asking the co-operation of every family in using it wisely in the home.

If you heat with gas, you are asked to conserve heat by installing storm windows, shutting off the heat in unused rooms, and by turning down the thermostat when there is no one at home. All can help the all-out war effort by using gas wisely in the home.

gineer to deputy state highway commissioner. Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, right, is a candidate for re-election as Superintendent of Public Instruction. ## Buying War Loan Bonds Helps Check Inflation

When the United States Treasury war loan drive gets under way on April 12 the average American citizen will get an opportunity to help decide what life will be like after the war is over.

The War Finance Committee, which is assisting the United States Treasury to sell upwards of $13 billion worth of Government securities points out that each bond bought by an individual plays its part in checking inflation, both now and after the war. Inflation, of course, is reflected in a rising trend of prices.

Naturally no one believes that a cup of coffee will ever cost the equivalent of several billion dollars as it did during the German inflation after the first world war. But it could easily rise to 15¢ or a quarter of a dollar.

An abstract subject, inflation sometimes eludes precise definition.

It works like this:

When the citizen buys a Government bond he draws down his own commercial bank deposit balance by that amount and obviously no longer has that amount to spend for civilian goods. The Government's deposit balance increases by $100 but the Government in turn quickly pays out the $100 for labor, materials and so forth. In this way the purchasing power of the rest of the country is increased by $100. But the man who loaned the $100 has had his purchasing power decreased. There is no net change therefore.

But if this isn't done, if the commercial banks themselves lend more and more money to the Government, all deposits are increased. Not only does the individual who might have loaned $100 still have his $100 but competing with it for the purchase of goods (not enough to go around anyway) is the $100 which the Government borrowed from the commercial bank and paid out to some other individual for goods or services.

In a nutshell, inflation begins to operate when all of those $100 bills start vigorously competing against each other.

Shortage Of Food Is Threat To Home Front

weeks of the 1943 legislative session at Lansing to the multiple problem of food on the farm and food in the cities. Accompanied by six agricultural experts, Kelly traveled to Des Moines to confer with seven other governors. Result: Echoes of the governors' conference reached Washington. The United States Senate (with both Michigan senators voting in the affirmative) approved deferment for experienced farm labor.

At the Des Moines conference were the following advisors to the governor:

Charles Figy, commissioner of agriculture; G. L. Brody, director, Michigan Farm Bureau; W. G. Armstrong, master, State Grange; Senator Elmer R. Porter, chairman of the senate agriculture committee; Rep. Floyd E. Toyn, chairman, house agriculture committee; and C. V. Ballard, Michigan State college leader of county agricultural agents.

As any of the above men will tell you, Michigan made a leading contribution to the governors' conference. For many days in advance the experts had pooled their ideas while in a huddle with Governor Kelly. The Michigan delegation arrived at the corn-belt capital with a definite plan of action.

It is no secret that Governor Kelly at first had some misgivings about the Des Moines trip. Originally he did not intend to go. But as the fact-finders brought reports to his desk of the critical food problem everywhere, Kelly changed his mind. And when the conference from eight states assembled in Des Moines and began to cry on each other's shoulders, announcing a crisis which had been heralded in every newspaper for weeks, Kelly proposed a resolution which determined ultimately the success of the day's meeting.

In brief, he suggested that the experts pool their ideas through one representative for each state and that the governors draft the set of final recommendations.

Here is their program:

1. Agriculture should be recognized by the government as an essential war industry.

2. Selective Service should grant deferment to "all experienced labor essential to farm production."

3. War Production Board should release at once all present stocks of farm machinery in the hands of dealers or distributors. Manufacturers should be given permission to complete machinery from existing stocks of supplies on hand.

4. Abolish the present allocation red-tape whereby much machinery is sent to areas where it is not needed for use and whereby endless delays handicap farmers who apply for repair parts.

Herbert Hoover sounded the keynote at Des Moines when he declared that the "agricultural situation is in crisis" and that "unless we have more manpower and more machinery, the food production cannot be maintained."

From what the Michigan delegation had found, Hoover's conclusion was pretty much that of the average Michigan food producer.

Here you have the true makings of a corn belt revolt.

The big cities, too, are not only worried about food. They are alarmed.

A potato shortage and black markets share attention of New York City newspapers. Out at Sacramento, California's Governor Earl Warren announces that plans were afoot for a meeting soon of the governors of eleven Western states to discuss Western food and manpower shortages and agree on getting facts directly before President Roosevelt who always insists when he votes at Hyde Park that he is a farmer by occupation.

Even if Congress acts to defer "experienced" farm labor, Michigan experts are doubtful that the 1943 crops (should the weather again be favorable) can be harvested without resort to civilian assistance. Here are some proposed aids:

Planting of thousands of Victory Gardens. As the British would say, "you must grow your own."

Home-canning on a scale greater than anything Michigan housewives have ever attempted.

Civilian farm corps consisting of men, women and high school students for emergency harvest service.

Furloughs for men in military training camps who have had experience on the farm.

Governor Kelly isn't the first Michigan governor from Detroit to make history on the food front.

Hazen Pingree, governor in the late nineties, was dubbed "Potato Pingree" while mayor of Detroit because he crusaded for potato gardens.

Folks made fun of Pingree. But they won't poke fun at Kelly if he fights the "Washington bureaucrats" doggedly for positive relief. Even a nickname of "Kicking Kelly" wouldn't raise a ripple. No, sirree!

Survey Will Determine Need for Child Care

Surveys are being made in the Federal Screw Works this week to determine the interest in a Day Care Program for children in Chelsea. Any mother of a child ranging from 2½ to 16 years of age, who is employed in Chelsea, may take advantage of this program.

Funds are available to set up a program under the Latham Act providing a minimum of 60 children enrollment. Qualified instructors in an approved location in Chelsea will be provided, with groupings of children according to age level. A minimum fee for the cost of food eaten by the child would be charged.

This should be of special interest to working mothers who have children enrolled in the elementary school who wish to continue working during the summer school vacation.

Any person interested in obtaining a day care questionnaire may contact Miss Margaret Heselshwerdt at the Federal Screw plant, or Miss Julia Davies at the high school.

Victory Gardens

In an assembly given by the F. F. A. on Tuesday morning the speakers discussed the food shortage, the best way to help replenish the food that we have to export to our allies, and the food that our armed forces have to have.

The best way to do this is to have people of the United States grow their own vegetables and other things that can be grown in small gardens. In many towns some agricultural class, farmers, or even other citizens have rented land from someone else or have used their own land and divided it up into so many equal parts, which are plots. These in turn are rented to people who are unable to own their own victory garden.

If everyone would cooperate with this project it would enable us to send more food to our allies and our armed forces, and yet have enough for our own consumption.

Republican Primary Ballot Monday, April 5

ZIEGLER KNOWS GOOD ROADS

ELECT

CHARLES M.

ZIEGLER

State Highway Commissioner

(Political Advt.)

A little older than Louise, she is quite tall, pert and awkward.

Carolyn Breitenwischer, as Catherine—Is of the blond type men are said to prefer. She is about the same age as Louise.

Dorothy McClear, as Doris—Is the youngest of all and very much impressed by her upperclassmen.

Madelyn Rowe, as Harriet—Is rankly a snob. Spoiled at home, she still expects her schoolmates to cater to her.

Bob Strieter, as Droopy—Is exactly that. He is a southern Negro about as fast under the hat as he is on the ground.

Margaret Knapp, as Miss Watkins—Had a boyfriend who went to Cuba to fight the Spaniards, but she is still waiting and hoping.

Tom Lyons, as Jimmy—Is a good-looking young man about twenty-one, enthusiastic about life, college and eventually Louise.

Luther Kusterer, as Prof. Frazier—Was a very nice boy in college, the pride of the English Department, and they finished him off with a Rhodes Scholarship to "death of Oxford". The English culture did not stick, but the accent did.

Members of the two agriculture classes are making plans for the projects which they will carry out during the summer months. These projects are of three kinds: 1. Supervised farm practice. 2. Improvement projects, designed to increase the real estate value. 3. Supplementary projects, such as testing milk or pruning a fruit tree.

Each year at this time every agricultural department must send in to its State office a report covering the work planned by each student.

In some schools the war has caused a marked decrease in the number of farm projects. Older boys who will soon be subject to the draft hesitate to start something they may not be able to finish. Younger boys sometimes feel they may be able to earn more by taking jobs in the town or city.

In Chelsea, however, every agricultural student is planning at least one project, even though help may be needed to finish it.

Spring Fever

"Oh, isn't it lovely outside?" "Why do we have to sit here and study?" Those are the sounds you hear around the halls of old C. H. S. these lovely Spring days.

Everyone walks around in a daze, daydreaming about things that have happened in other years, and wondering what this Spring will bring.

A few of the many signs of Spring Fever around here are: pell-mell coats, cotton dresses, roller skates, etc.

I believe the nicest sickness anyone could ever have is Spring Fever, and those that haven't had it are certainly missing something.

Freshmen Defeat Sophs

At the end of the first quarter the game was scoreless, while in the second quarter the Freshmen made five points, making the score at the half 5-0. In the last half the Sophomores made two points and the Freshmen five, making the final score 10-2 in favor of the Freshmen.

Chelsea Loses In Area Tournaments

By Robert Strieter

A superb comeback by the strong Michigan Center quintet defeated the Chelsea basketball team last Saturday night by the score of 39-16. Chelsea advanced to the finals by defeating Manchester on Friday night, 35-23.

On Friday night at the Center high school, Chelsea showed its power by trouncing their arch-rival, Manchester. For 12 minutes the Chelsea five held the opponents scoreless while racking up 18 points. With Kern and Kusterer leading the way, Chelsea took a halftime lead of 23-3. The Manchester team was hopelessly outclassed by the starting five but gained somewhat when the substitutes for Chelsea were in the game. The last quarter saw the game speed up again with each team making nine points. The final score was 35-23. Kusterer led both teams in scoring by tossing in 11 points.

Thus, by defeating Manchester, Chelsea advanced to the finals and won the right to meet Michigan Center. This did not look too good, for the Center five had defeated a supposedly strong Napoleon team Friday, 61-29. However, the boys went into the game with the motto, "Everything to gain, nothing to lose." The first period saw the Chelsea boys take the lead 4-0, and they had the opponents completely baffled. However, they recovered somewhat to take the lead at halftime, 12-7. Up to this game they had been scoring 30 points and up the first half, so the outlook looked extremely bright.

However, the powerful Center team was not to be denied and at last started to show its stuff. Kusterer was fouled out midway in this period and his loss was felt greatly. Chelsea could not get going again and thus the Center boys pulled away. The final score read 39-16 but the score was not a clear picture of the game. The Center team had to go all out to win, and certainly knew that they had played a ball game.

Orlowski, of Center, led the scoring with 14 points. The high-point man for Chelsea was not one of the regular first-teamers, but a second-teamer brought up for this game. Orlowski led the Chelsea scoring with 5 points.

The Chelsea boys played good ball but could not cope with the strong Center outfit. The entire season has been successful and next week it will be recapped for the benefit of you fans.

—BEFORE THE SUMMER RUSH

... AND ON MID-WEEK DAYS

Everybody has extra responsibilities in wartime—and that includes Greyhound. It is all-important today that every bus be used when and where it will do the most to help the war effort. You can help by timing your travel right—by taking trips in the early Spring when travel is lighter, rather than in the mid-summer rush period. You can aid by choosing mid-week rather than week-end days. You can aid still further by choosing from Greyhound's many daily schedules the buses on which more seats are usually available

McLaren, also known as Emma Newkirk McLaren, deceased, to the Probate Court, Washtenaw County, Michigan, in accordance with the will of said Emma N. McLaren, the will of decedent, to Wirt S. McQuade, said order assigning residence dated March 25, 1936, was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, Washtenaw County, Michigan, on May 11, 1936, in Book 320 of deeds, on page 135, at 2:30 o'clock A. ORDER FOR PUBLICATION

Sale of Real Estate

No. 32991

State of Michigan, the Probate Court for the County of Washtenaw.

At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Ann Arbor, in said County, on the 9th day of March, A. D. 1943.

Present, Hon. Jay G. Pray, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Ernest Schable, deceased.

Edwin F. Schable, Administrator, having filed in said Court his petition, praying for license to sell the interest of said estate in certain real estate therein described, for the purpose of Quincy was thumping his cane and hollering, "Well, well—what are we waiting for?"

We were waiting for Hugh Norcross. He fluttered an orange square of silk at his sister. "Tie your hair up with this, Bess. You're right, that blue scarf has vanished. What of it? Get another for half a dollar."

"You could not. I paid two-seventy-five for that scarf last Christmas. And it isn't in any of my things, because I've hunted."

"Well, it doesn't matter," Hugh said crossly. "I wish you'd cheese it about that old scarf in the midst of."

They started on ahead. Bessie, although the morning was growing warmer every minute, so that I was comfortable in my sleeveless print, still wore her bespotted white sports coat.

"The minister's eyes kept glancing over his shoulder at Mr. Quincy, who worked his wheels while Lily Kendall guided the chair. She kept up her incessant chatter with all of them, but especially Mr. Potter. Could he do a portrait of her in her pink lace with crystal beads? No, the crystals, come to think of it, were broken. The jet would do. He could! She offered him $50 and he said, 'boy! would I wait for my church picture till he'd earned that?'"

"Gladly!"

"You, or rather, Mrs. Gerry, will get some of it back. If I get a few commissions, I'll stay longer at the Head. It's so beautiful here."

I glanced at him and smiled.

Maybe some of the other boarders would follow suit and Aunt Nella's season wouldn't be ruined, after all.

But as we neared the cliff where you take the treacherous path down into the Pirate's Mouth, he held back, shaking his head. "Not for me. I've that what'd-you-call-it-phobia—when you're afraid of high places? I wouldn't go down there for even $100."

"Nor I," Bessie agreed, drawing back.

"Why should anybody go down?" I asked. "You can see into the Pirate's Mouth by coming over to this rock and leaning over. You do it, Mr. Quade. Mr. Norcross or Mr. De Witt will hold your legs. Like kissing the blamey stone."

"I'll look. Lemme. I don't get hydrophobia," Lily screamed.

We had to laugh, and it relieved the tension. Victor Quade lay down on the rock, but Lily grinned back at us.

"Oh, go ahead and laugh. High ain't it? Of course. I know hydrophobia is really what they call it when people play sick all the time. Like my niece, before she got in pictures. What I meant was cliff-tomania."

She flung her full bulk alongside Victor, till I held my breath lest she shove him into the deep. But in another moment Victor, rosy, shaking his dark head disapprovingly.

"Nobody down there on that shelf. Not a thing, so far as I could see, with the fissure at the far end and the ocean below. What a frightful place! Either way, a thin person might roll off into the sea."

"Used to be called Lovers Nook," Bessie sighed. She walked away rapidly toward the church steps, with Hugh following to console her, as per usual.

"Won't somebody help Miss Kendall up?" I asked.

But Lily yelled, "Don't touch me! I—I can get up myself."

It took her quite a time. The men turned away, politely, while the hot reistering land-breeze played with her ballooning skirts. But finally the behemoth came parting up to me. "Somethin's rotten in Denmark!" she hissed. "Keep away from that Quade fellow!"

Keep away from Victor? What could she mean? "I was dying to make her be more explicit, but she shook her rigid marcel at me forbiddingly."

"Not now!" This time the hiss, whispered so that I don't see how anybody could have failed to overhear it, was a command.

"It's only a few steps from the top of the cliff overhanging the vicious Pirate's Mouth—to the site of the Quaker church. The inn guests were making toward Bessie and Hugh, seated on the steps. Victor came back beside Lily Kendall, who immediately switched to the other side of me.

"Great bootleggers' cache—that big shelf of rock, Judy."

"Yes. Uncle Wylie said the coast guard found some stuff hidden down there during prohibition. The bootleggers, fearing a raid, had tried the Pirate's Mouth, but somebody must have tipped them off."

Victor wasn't looking at me, I noticed. He was watching Lily Kendall. Why? She was marching, eyes and bosom front, like a grenadier.

"Well, even the police wouldn't find anything today," he sighed, giving her a side glance. She only pressed her lips tighter together.

"What did you expect to find—Roddy Lane?" I asked.

"Or old man Brown?" Mr. Quincy spoke up. He was looking at his watch. "Why, it's only five minutes of 3. Never saw a morning laid so long or fly so fast, either."

"I'm practically starved," Bessie called. "Hugh wants a look at the golf club Mr. Quade says he saw in the basement. Then we're going back to the inn. I've got to have an aspirin."

"Why don't you go along back now?" Victor asked. "I'm sure—er—Miss Kendall will be glad to go with you."

"Sorry Miss Kendall stays." This was the first time I'd heard Lily snap out of her kittedish role. "With the gang," she kidded her lower lip protruding till she looked positively menacing.

"Wise lady," Victor shrugged.

"I'll wait for my brother," Bessie said with finality. "Are we all to go down to that horrible cellar?"

"Why, of course not. Better if nobody went," Victor explained. "There is a club there. May be your brother's, maybe not. Doesn't prove a thing either way. What I thought was blood may be rust, perhaps, though I don't think so. The police will be ripping if we mess around too much. This is certain—none of us wants to leave fresh prints on anything down there."

"I wish I could go!" Thaddeus Quincy regretted plaintively. "Take the same committee you had before and have another look, Quade. And you men do what he tells you. He's up in this murder stuff and the rest of us aren't."

Thanks for that double-edger. Victor Quinn accepts the compliment. Victor Quade has his doubts.

I gave Victor the key and the crowd piled into the little old musty church. Goodness! How dark it was! The cobwebby windows, with their darkly stained glass, showed scarcely any light at all. The vestibule was as tight enough where the sun streamed through, but save for that bright patch of searchlight sun down the main aisle, the pews were almost in a tomb till your eyes got used to it. I say tomb? Tomb is right!

Lily astonishingly took command. "Why should the men have all the fun? Come on, Judy Jason. We ain't murderers. We don't play golf. Let's us take a peek. Why give the real killer a chance to take his hanky and give the stick a swipe?"

Good idea, several conceded. Victor didn't like it. He was afraid, we'd disturb the position of things, but Lily was already wadding down the main aisle.

The Rev. De Witt surprised us by announcing he was going outside with his glasses to take a squint at the bridge. The milkman might be early. Picnickers might be arriving at the Head. Was it likely everybody was sleeping late after the night-before celebration? And, look, he'd seen boats in the harbor. Not close, of course. But couldn't we signal? Build a fire? He stopped, remembering last night's, I suppose, and the uselessness of such procedure on the Fourth of July.

"Go along out and shoot off a couple of rockets," the artist added facetiously. Shall we help him, Mr. Quade?"

CHAPTER X

Victor's hand was on the door-knob. "You keep close to me, Judy."

I dashed again. "But I don't see—we could always get them to give us a sample of their penmanship. I remember the funny capital P in Friend; it had a flourish on it."

Victor might have been speaking to a child. The point is, my dear, that the comparison is no longer important—with the original gone. But it is, Laae and Brown out, in a way, and a possible third-party killer in. Don't you see?"

"I thought you believed that all the time, the way you were questioning everybody, Mr. Quade."

Feeling my way. Hoping for a clue. But this—why this is a confession, at least, that the person who sent you the money to buy the church is one of your own guests. After this, be careful whom you suspect—openly. Which one is it, Judy? Any idea?"

"Not a ghost. Been going batty ever since it happened."

"Haven't caught anyone coming down from the third floor who had no business going there?"

I shook my head. I felt little fear prickles creeping all over me. "Turn your back, Mr. Quade. I'll get the money out of my First National. You can keep it for me."

"Good girl!" He had a clean handkerchief ready to receive the soiled roll of bills. After minute examination he handed them back to me, suggesting I put them where the letter had been.

"Let me handle this. You keep mum. Maybe I'll spring a trap. Bills are from all over the country, and none in sequence, just as I surmised. Smart boy, this criminal!"

He reached over and laid a hand on my shoulder. "Be careful, won't you?"

"I'll stick like a burr," I smiled, thinly, following him out into the hall. Then I hurried upstairs and stuck the cash in my bureau drawer and raced down. Chowder or no chowder, I was going with the bunch this time. They could eat canned soup if Auntie couldn't manage alone.

Besides, Victor had whetted my curiosity almost as much as my fear by the warning he'd given me. I had no intention of staying behind and being grabbed and searched by some unknown assassin while the menfolk were down by the Pirate's Mouth. I simply couldn't believe the murderer was one of our guests, and my own guess would have been that Lane was responsible. He knew the Head like a book. For all we knew, he'd swum the bay—some feat, I'll admit, from the castle to Rockville. Not the gut! too dangerous. Maybe he'd left a bag nicely packed under a bathhouse in Rockville. He'd turn up. They'd see!

Then for the second time I recalled the flashing ring. Would he have left it behind? That hand! I could visualize it plainly. Dead white. Well kept. Not oldish. Not veined, but rather plump. That was my impression. It seemed to be pointing at me as I hurried to rejoin Victor.

We found the gang gathered around Albion Potter, who was dabbing at his little church picture, adding clouds I couldn't see.

"Your aunt gave me some kerosene," he beamed.

"Ain't it swell?" shrilled Lily Kendall.

"Fine," I said, wondering who on earth would want it after what had happened there.

"If you like it, I'll give it to you, Miss Jason," Potter said shyly.

"Well, I'd be delighted, Mr. Potter," I tried to sound sincere.

"Do one for me and I'll pay you $25," Lily said. "I'm dyin' to have one to show my niece."

"Twenty-five dollars!" Albion was overcome. "Miss Kendall, I'll beg it at once. Unless Judy—Miss Jason," he corrected himself hurriedly, "will let me give you this one and do her another. Fact is, I could use that money for an easel."

"Sure. Sell every chance you get," I ran down the steps where Mr.
