Local Posse Captures Escaper From Ionia

The most intensive manhunt held in this vicinity in recent years was staged on Monday afternoon when a number of deputies and village employees started out in search of a suspicious character who had been loitering in the neighborhood of Chelsea for several days and who was suspected of a number of thefts in the village.

Suspicions of local officers were first aroused last Friday when Dr. C. C. Lane discovered that some transient was making himself at home along Mill Creek north of the Lane home. Marshal George Doe was called to investigate but did not find the man "at home," although a makeshift hammock made of blankets, and a few personal effects were found. Numerous complaints were received by police officers of a prowler being seen in different parts of the village, blankets were being stolen from cars, and were groceries and other items. The Albert Staphish home on Elm St. was broken into on Saturday night and a quantity of food taken from the refrigerator. On Sunday a man was seen roasting meat near McKinley street north of town. Sunday night Henry Merkel discovered someone in the vicinity of his barn and upon inquiring as to the reason for his being there the man said he was looking for a dog. On Monday this same man was seen to take mail from the Merkel mail box and officers were notified.

Three deputies from the sheriff's department were called, and with a number of local deputies and village employees the search was started in the vicinity of Oak Grove cemetery where the man had been seen. The posse found no trace of him there, so the search centered in the area north of town. Later it was learned that the hunted man had gone west on Middle street and the search shifted to that part of town. Finally the object of the search was seen going across the country north of Mill Creek. As the group closed in Dave Mohrlock fired a shot over the man's head and he immediately surrendered.

The captured man was identified as Alfred Wisette, 21, who escaped from the Ionia Reformatory on July 2. He stated that he was sentenced from Huron county on a charge of entering without breaking, and had only 41 days of a 3 to 5 year sentence to serve when he escaped. He was taken to the county jail in Ann Arbor and later returned to the Ionia institution. Although Wisette admitted to officers that he had stolen the blankets and groceries here, he would not confess to entering the Staphish home Saturday night, but clues were found which led officers to believe that he was the guilty party.

Manpower Is Doubled In Present War

350,000 Michigan Men and Women Now In Armed Forces of U. S.

By Gene Alleman
Michigan's contribution of manpower to World War II is already more than double the entire record for the first conflict, 25 years ago.

Approximately 350,000 men and women (yes, don't forget the ladies) have left Michigan homes in cities and on farms to serve in Uncle Sam's forces all over the globe. That is a bit more than a third of a million people—quite a legion.

World War I records list the following: Army—182,598; Navy, 19,413; marines, 3,318. Total: 205,329. Of the latter number 4,226 became gold stars on the state's service flag—2.3 per cent of all—and not all of these were killed in action, as influenza and other diseases took a heavy toll of lives.

In other ways the contrast is sharp. Our part in today's war has already exceeded the entire sum of our participation in the first conflict. Instead of fighting one war—and with France, Italy and Japan among our allies—we have two wars on our hands; our troops are yet to land on the continent of Europe (when this column was written) and only four of our divisions saw action in Tunisia. We still have a long way to go before the boys march into Berlin and Tokyo.

There appears to be a long, long trail ahead. But victory is certain. Of this we know.

It should be remembered also that the present rate of inductions is high, after a temporary lull last spring, and that fathers are still subject to call. A total contribution of 400,000 to 500,000 is not improbable in view of Washington warnings of preparations to carry on the war for six more years.

And yet, surprisingly and happily enough, the Michigan mortality rate of our modern world-wide engagements is apt to be considerably less than 2.4 per cent. Airplanes and tanks are the front lines of today's fighting. They require a comparative small number of men to operate them. It is a mechanized war, so goes the new parlez vous version; not a war of mass movements and entrenched lines.

Waterfowl Hunters To Have Extra Shooting

Michigan waterfowl hunters will get a half-hour's extra shooting in this season, according to the season rules laid down by the Federal Fish and Wildlife Service, and proclaimed for Michigan by the state conservation department.

Hunters will be permitted to start shooting one-half hour before sunrise this year, instead of having to wait for sunrise as they have had to do for the last several years. The season will open on September 25, in order to give the hunters a week-end opening. This is one day earlier than last year, but the season also closes one day earlier—on December 3. The possession limit on waterfowl was extended from last year's limit of 80 days after the close of the season to 45 days after December 3 for this season.

State conservation department officials believe that this liberalization of waterfowl regulations is the fulfillment of the policy promised by Irs. Gabrielson, chief of the Fish and Wildlife Service, that as soon as the depleting waterfowl populations increased in size, the shooting regulations would be liberalized.

The federal regulations set the combined possession limit on coot and snipe at 25 for next season, whereas last year hunters were permitted to have 25 of each.

The state conservation commission at its July meeting instructed the director of the conservation department to proclaim, with one exception, the federal rules as effective in Michigan, as soon as they were announced by the federal agency. The single exception laid down by the commission was that woodcock were to be protected in Michigan this year, although federal regulations permit one woodcock in the daily bag.

GETS ENGINEERING COURSE

Cadet R. G. Olson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Olson of Ann Arbor, formerly of Chelsea, is now taking a basic engineering course at the University of North Dakota at Grand Forks. The present course is for nine months, to be followed by an eighteen months course at another university. Russell was one of 43 men out of 25,000 to pass the tests for this school.

New Motor Vehicle Law Is Effective Tomorrow

Tomorrow (Friday, July 30) one of Michigan's most far-reaching moves toward greater highway safety and better public protection takes effect when the recently amended Motor Vehicle Financial Responsibility Act becomes a law at midnight.

Thereafter, every motorist in an accident where anyone is injured or killed must make a written report to the Secretary of State within ten days. He must also pay all damage claims within thirty days, or show proof of financial responsibility either in the form of an acceptable liability insurance policy or by deposit of cash or a bond up to $11,000 in order to continue to drive in Michigan.

If he cannot meet these prescribed conditions, the Secretary of State must revoke his operator's license, license plates and car registration and continue the suspension until all claims are satisfactorily settled and proof of future financial responsibility is also established.

All enforcement provisions of the Act are mandatory upon Herman H. Dignam, Secretary of State, and must be executed without discretion or option and independent of police or court action.

"The law appears to be evasion-proof," Mr. Dignam said. "It is clear, and arbitrary in its definition of guilt and precise in its imposition of penalties. There is no chance for human judgment and human error."

"Beyond question, a great many drivers will run afoul of this law shortly after it takes effect. They may be inclined to blame our office for their troubles. I should like to record now that we are in no way responsible for the law, but that we are simply the legally designated instruments for the enforcement of its penalty provisions."

"To reduce to a minimum the 'innocent victims' of the new law, we have during the past few weeks participated in a public information campaign in which newspapers, radio stations and industrial, civic and labor leaders have been most co-operative. We have also sponsored a free digest of the law available at gas stations and many other places. This was a public service activity neither required under the new law nor by the normal routine of this office."

"There is ample reason to expect our new law to cut the loss of Michigan highways in uncollectable property damage and in human lives. The driving privileges taken from irresponsible motorists should rebound in accelerated measure to the general welfare of all the people of this state."

NUTRITION TIPS

Give New Potatoes First Place in Summer Menus

Now that potatoes are again plentiful, it is suggested by the Washtenaw County Nutrition Committee of the Civilian War Services that we serve them in as many different ways as possible. New potatoes now in season are not suitable for winter storing, so one should eat as many as possible at this time.

Potatoes have high food value and are much more than a starch food. True, they contain some starch—but they also contain protein, calcium, iron, phosphorus, thiamin, riboflavin, Vitamin A and Vitamin C. If properly cooked they will supply us with a comparatively large percentage of our daily food requirements. New potatoes are a delicious accompaniment for all kinds of meat and fish—and they can form the most substantial part of a vegetarian dinner.

Everybody knows about baked, boiled, fried and mashed potatoes—but these are just the beginning of the many ways in which this versatile vegetable can be served. Here are a few suggestions: potato salad either hot or cold, croquettes, pancakes, omelets, hot pot, soup, chowder, hash, creamed potatoes or potatoes used as a crust for meat or vegetable pies.

If you have never tasted potato pancakes you've been missing a culinary treat. Here is the recipe:

- 2 cups grated raw potatoes.
- 1/4 cup milk.
- 1 egg.
- 2 tablespoons flour.
- Salt and pepper.
- Chopped onion.

Put the grated potatoes immediately in the milk to keep them from turning dark. Drain the milk off, add the well beaten egg, then the flour and just enough of the milk that was drained off to make a stiff batter. Season with salt, pepper and chopped onion. Drop by large spoonfuls in a well greased frying pan. Cook until well browned and crisp. Serve at once.

To enjoy delicately flavored summer fruits in our meals next winter, the Nutrition Committee suggests that the cherries and berries now ripening be canned or frozen.

Fortunately, fruits such as cherries, red and black raspberries, blueberries, huckleberries, logan blackberries, and currants are easy to can. Just follow directions given below from the time the fruit is picked until it is stored away in jars and success is assured.

Select ripe, but not over-ripe, freshly picked fruit. Be sure that all stems have been removed. Wash one quart of fruit at a time in a quantity of water, lifting fruit from water with hands to avoid crushing. Berries and currants are now ready for the next step, but cherries should be pitted if they are to be used for pudding or pies. If left whole, cherries must be pitted.

Sugar is not necessary for canning cherries and berries. The fruit will keep just as well if canned without sugar, which can be added when jars are opened for serving. However, sugar does add to the flavor and helps preserve color. If you have sugar, use it, but if you need your ration for other fruits, don't let lack of sugar keep you from putting up all the cherries and berries you can while they are in season.

War-time rationing allows 1/2 cup sugar for each quart jar of fruit. More may be used in sour fruits and less in sweet fruits. Make sure that it balances so your average per quart is not more than the ration allows. A medium syrup requires 1/4 cup sugar to 1 cup water. If the jars are well packed with fruit, about 3-4 to 1 cup of syrup is needed in each quart. Fruit juices may be used in place of water to add flavor to the product.

To use the raw pack method for berries, pack berries, pressing gently into hot jars, cover with medium syrup and process in boiling water bath 20 minutes for quart or 15 minutes for pints, or in the oven for 35 minutes at 275 degrees F. Be sure the jars in the boiling water bath are covered with one to two inches of water to prevent loss of liquid and to be sure of even heat in jars.

Equally good is the pre-cooked method for berries and currants. Add 1/2 cup or less sugar to each quart of fruit, heat to draw out juice (to be sure fruit does not scorch, do this over boiling water). Boil gently three or four minutes, pack in hot jars and process in boiling water bath for five minutes or in the oven for twenty minutes at 275 degrees F.

Cherries differ only slightly. For raw packing cherries, pack in hot jars and cover with syrup. Process quarts in boiling water bath for 25 minutes, pints for 20 minutes, or in the oven at 275 degrees F. for 30 minutes. To can cherries by pre-cooked method, boil pitted cherries with sugar for five minutes. Pack while boiling hot into hot jars. Process five minutes in boiling water bath, or twenty minutes in oven at 275 degrees F.

It is suggested that directions for preparing fruit to be frozen be obtained from the locker plant where it is to be stored.

Our Neighbors

MILAN—The Milan Baptist church is placing in operation the second Sunday school bus next Sunday, July 25. The proposed run of the new bus will be south of town. The venture into this activity has been very successful and the pastor, Rev. D. C. Swaney, reports that children are now attending Sunday Bible school who never attended before. The average number of children brought in on the north bound bus, the original run, is thirty-seven children. Preparations are being made to accommodate this many or more in the new bus. The community south of town will be canvassed to gather up children who do not attend any Sunday school. Those interested in this section of the community are asked to contact the pastor by phone or personally and the bus will make every effort to pick up any children desiring to attend. —Leader.

STOCKBRIDGE—Plans are underway for the "First Annual Flower Show" in Gregory, to be sponsored by the King's Daughters. A committee meeting will be held Thursday at the home of Mrs. John P. Ackerman, to discuss plans and set the date for late August or early in September. The standing committee members are Mrs. J. F. Ackerman, chairman, Mrs. Howard Marshall, Mrs. Beatrice Lamborn, and Mrs. Vincent Young. Other committees will be appointed at the Thursday meeting. —Brief-Sun.

DUNDEE—Milan lost its world-famed resident last week, when the convicted traitor, Max Stephan, who escaped the hangman's noose by only eight hours, was moved from Milan to the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta. —Reporter.

Nutrition in Milk

The 11 nutritional factors listed as the daily requirements for an adult, vitamins A and D and half of the calories in the milk are derived from the fat, while the non-fat fraction, on the other hand, supplies protein, calcium, phosphorus, iron, ascorbic acid, thiamin, nicotinic acid, riboflavin, and the other half of the calories in the milk.

Manpower Is Doubled In Present War

lied victory. Tunisia was taken with an unexpected small loss of men and material. The same holds true, so far, for our invasion of Sicily. In fact, cocky as we always are—and Americans are the world's worst braggarts—Washington is now completely over-optimistic that the war would be over soon. Why look at the way we licked Rommel in Tunisia—and isn't Sicily already an easy push-over?

While the war-makers may worry about our complacency, it is a fact that the casualty lists have been small to date. And as for the boys who have been wounded—say, there's something else worth crowing about. Approximately 98 per cent of all American wounded men have recovered to date, leaving a mortality rate of only 2 per cent!

Our boys in the service are healthy, too. They receive the best of food and medical care.

Every doughboy and sailor acquires a fatalistic attitude about his chances of returning home. Since only 2 per cent of the wounded die and since today's mechanized war has reduced the number of fatalities to date as compared with World War I, military service becomes a great adventure to the average young man and young woman.

As you contrast the state's participation in the two wars to date, you recall how the Michigan State Police was a creation of the first war and that the state troopers were dispatched to the Upper Peninsula to check I.W.W. agitators attempting to stop iron mine operations. Today, the state administrative board plans to enlarge the home guards and maintain a permanent force at Detroit, equipped with jeeps, tommy guns and all else, ready for emergency duty for the next race riot.

In the last war the state war board bought tractors, seed corn and seed wheat and retailed them at cost to farmers. The voters approved a $5,000,000 bond issue and the legislature created a war board of which Col. Roy Vandercrook, now with the Michigan Railroads Association, was secretary. Governor Albert E. Steeper was chairman.

With regard to war costs, the contrast is sharp, indeed. Modern war machines are costly; the government has contracted with many firms on a cost-plus basis wherein high wages are merely added to the future national debt, now past the 100-billion mark. Inflation is already here, and prices are crazily high.

The entire country—and this goes for Michigan, too—is enjoying a prosperity jag.

The war is going to cost us many, many times the dollars we paid in 1917-18.

But if the price of human life is less and our Michigan boys and girls come marching home, we will take our medicine and like it.

Early Peruvian Farming Scientific

Early Peruvian agriculture was renowned for its tillage. It had reached the stage of large-scale reclamation projects long before America was discovered. Its stair-step acreage is still a wonder of the world. Compared to the hanging gardens of Peru, the famed "sight" in Babylon was little more than a mound of greenery heaped up by Nebuchadnezzar to please his mountain-bred queen.

Can We Have Peace?

By Ruth Taylor

What do we want after this war? We say we want an enduring peace, that we are fighting to destroy the ideologies of aggression and oppression that have forced war upon the world.

We can have peace—if we will work for peace. If we so plan our educational system, we can eradicate in the next generation the hatreds, resentments, prejudices and distrusts which have bogged down all attempts at understanding in the past.

We can have peace if we will work at it as hard as we work at war. We cannot wipe out the causes of war by law, but we can wipe them out by understanding. Understanding is built upon knowledge, and knowledge means applied learning.

We state that we believe in the equality of all before God. Now we must prove our faith in that creed by affording to each the equal opportunity, the equality of rights to which they are correspondingly entitled.

We have the vision of peace expressed in the Four Freedoms and in the pact of the United Nations. We must also have the practical application of this vision in the terms of every day living, in our economic and political structure. Only freedom

We cannot expect those who are brought up to think it smart to evade the law, to keep the laws.

We can have peace if we will train for peace. If we so plan our educational system, we can eradicate in the next generation the hatreds, resentments, prejudices and distrusts which have bogged down all attempts at understanding in the past.

We can have peace if we will work at it as hard as we work at war. We cannot wipe out the causes of war by law, but we can wipe them out by understanding. Understanding is built upon knowledge, and knowledge means applied learning.

We state that we believe in the equality of all before God. Now we must prove our faith in that creed by affording to each the equal opportunity, the equality of rights to which they are correspondingly entitled.

We have the vision of peace expressed in the Four Freedoms and in the pact of the United Nations. We must also have the practical application of this vision in the terms of every day living, in our economic and political structure. Only freedom which is strong, can endure, and only a peace that is made by free men in a world free for all, can survive. We can have peace—if we want it.

"STAR" FARMER TO GET $200—Award of $200 to the "Star" Farmer of Michigan in 1944, offered by the Kroger Grocery & Baking Company to encourage wartime food production and rural education, has been accepted by the board of directors of the state Future Farmers of America.

Thousands of farm boys throughout Michigan receive practical farm training in high school through vocational agriculture classes. Outstanding students annually are honored by degrees of "State Farmer" and a few get national recognition as "American Farmer." The top ranking State Farmer, called the Star Farmer of the year, will receive the Kroger award at the annual convention early in 1944. Contestants are now working on the records to be submitted for the award.

The $200 cash award may be used by the winner for further education at an agricultural college or for purchase of purebred livestock or similar approved project on his home farm. Harry Newman, chief of agricultural education and state advisor of the Michigan association of FFA, will have charge of selection of the winner.

Young Foresters—Since 1934, 4-H youngsters have planted 13,000 acres to forest trees, improved 16,000 forest acres, protected nearly a half million acres from fire, planted 6,800 acres of food patches, maintained 4,183 feeding stations, and reared and released 71,000 game birds and animals. On the efficiency side, the boys and girls rate right up with the professionals. In Washington, for instance, 37.1 per cent of 28,000 pheasant eggs distributed to 4-H clubs resulted in mature birds—close to the score achieved by more than one state-operated game farm.

Prince Arthur—President Chester A. Arthur, who had a very large wardrobe, was known as Prince Arthur.

The number of man-days lost last year in industry because of accidents and accidental deaths totaled 270,000.

This is a terrific figure and it is hard to realize what effect this really has on our productive effort.

What would these man-days have saved had the accidents been avoided? Here are the facts:

12,800 large bombers could have been delivered, or 68,000 fighter planes, or 171,000 light tanks, or 324 destroyers or 89 full-fledged battle-ships.

Wouldn't it be wonderful to have this equipment for our boys in the fighting lines to use against the forces opposing liberty and freedom?

Industry is called upon to produce more and more in spite of the manpower shortage and is tapping sources of labor never dreamed of before.

A great deal of help can be given if you and I simply are careful in our work, in our home life, and in driving our cars.

Let's help cut down this tremendous toll.

Need Turkeys for Soldiers

Because turkey will be the main course of Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Day dinners on every battlefield, American turkey raisers have been asked by the WPA to supply about 10 million pounds of turkey meat during August and September for shipping to armed forces overseas.

The public is asked to refrain from eating turkey for a few weeks until this urgent demand for the armed forces has been met. Later in the fall civilians will have supply of turkey approaching an all-time record production.

Home Repairs Are Essential. Wartime restrictions on building new homes make it important that houses should be kept in good repair, according to Federal Housing officials. New home building is largely restricted to war industry areas and the majority of American families must depend on their present housing for the duration of the war.

Collection Of Fats In State Shows Increase

Collection of household fats in Michigan during June showed an increase of six per cent over May...

Of the 68 Lower Peninsula counties, 48 registered gains, while Upper Peninsula collections climbed 11.5 per cent.

Six counties exceeded their quotas. Mason, with 101.7 per cent, was over quota for the third successive month.

Collections for the State were a little less than half a million pounds, according to reports submitted by rendering companies.

More of the available supply of household fats is being obtained and more people are saving more fats," Burns said. "This is an encouraging record, but we are still far short of quota, and must strive for greater gains."

Appeal for Pickers The critical shortage of cherry pickers in the Grand Traverse area has prompted Capt. Donald S. Leonard, Director of Civilian Defense, to appeal to defense councils to redouble their efforts to enlist more orchard workers at once.

"I am advised by A. B. Love, State Supervisor of the Emergency Farm Labor Program, that there is danger of losing a substantial portion of the cherry crop unless more pickers can be put to work immediately," Capt. Leonard said.

"I am appealing to defense councils through the press to increase their efforts to find volunteers who will go into the orchards and work at prevailing wage rates in this emergency.

Defense councils were largely responsible last year for meeting a similar emergency, and I hope they will do as well this year. I know they can."

Capt. Leonard asked that defense council officials confer with their county agents, and with the United States Employment Service in counties where that agency has offices, before attempting to direct volunteers to the cherry country.

Full information on supplemental gasoline rations available to those who offer their services may be obtained from county agents or the USES.

Check Against Ceiling Prices The Consumer Activities Section of the Michigan Office of Civilian Defense is urging housewives to use a "Market Basket Price Book" to check against ceiling prices in grocery stores and meat markets.

The books can be made at home and models have been sent to the Consumer Activities Committee of each defense council. In some communities they may be printed under local sponsorship and distributed to consumers.

The books are set up to show the ceiling price of each standard commodity and should be used when shopping to determine if prices charged are legal. Violations of price ceilings should be reported to War Price and Rationing Boards to combat black markets and hold down the cost of living.

All 83 Counties In State Are Fighting Barberrry

Grains free of the devastating black stem rust come out of Michigan's war producing fields as a result of the 25-year battle of farmers and the government against the common barberry bush that spreads the rust spores.

Since 1918, a total of 6,612,038 bushes have been destroyed in a campaign that has touched every county in the state. The 1943 program already has included resurvey of Genesee, Manistee, Ogemaw, Presque Isle and Westford counties. A resurvey of Montcalm county is scheduled, as well as portions of Clinton, Ionia, Eaton, Ingham and possibly Shiawassee counties where barberries previously have been found; according to M. E. Turner, state leader of barberry eradication in the state.

Since June, 1940, Mr. Turner has been in charge of the program in Michigan for the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine under the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Co-operating are county agricultural agents, Michigan State College staff members and the State Department of Agriculture.

Small grains, including wheat, oats, barley and rye, are attacked by the rust spores, blown into grain fields by wind. An estimated two-million bushel loss in grain occurred annually in a 12-year period of 1916-1927, but barberry eradication gets part of the credit for reducing this average loss to less than 700,000 bushels for each of the 12 years in the 1931-1942 period.

Farmers are asked to report prevalence of bushes or resprouting of previously salted barberries to county agricultural agents. The latter are sending reports of local rust epidemics, the location of bushes, and twigs for identification. J. H. Muncie, MSC extension specialist in plant pathology, is aiding in barberry identification.

Lye Burns Close Passage Leading to the Stomach

The most serious result of lye burns is that the esophagus leading to the stomach is closed, making swallowing impossible. To nourish the patient it is sometimes necessary to pass a tube through the abdomen into the stomach, and often many months elapse before the esophagus can be sufficiently enlarged to receive food.

Snakes Don't Add Smartness

Record has not been found in the scientific literature concerning the treatment of insanity with snake venom, the Journal of the American Medical Association says in response to a query. A physician in Peru wrote the Journal as follows: "The bushmaster snake with neurotoxic (poisonous to nerve tissue) venom is found in the jungles of eastern Peru. At a mission on the Perene river I saw a normal Indian who had recovered from the bite and who was said to be more intelligent than previously. This is the usual result. How does this compare with the use of snake venom in the treatment of insanity?"

Protect Drainage Soil

Drainageways in corn and soy bean fields which suffer from erosion during rains may be protected by sowing them to sudan grass, according to soil conservationists. Farmers who failed to sow waterways to grass this spring or whose seedlings have not been successful can seed 25-pounds of sudan grass to the acre in any location where a good seedbed can be prepared. Sudan grass sown at this time of year makes rapid growth and will soon establish itself sufficiently to hold the soil in the waterway. In early fall the sudan should be mowed for hay and a mixture of equal parts of timothy and redtop sown at the rate of 30 pounds an acre. Care should be taken in working in this seed to disturb as little as possible the sudan grass stubble which will hold the soil until the other grasses can become established.

Buffer State

Uruguay had been a buffer state between Portuguese Brazil and Spanish Argentina. Originally discovered by the Spanish in 1516, the Indians resisted white men's settlement for over a hundred years, but gradually the Spaniards built cities, and the country developed, much as Argentina did. In May, 1811, Jose Artigas, the Protector, succeeded in putting the Spanish out of the country and establishing Uruguay's independence. Today she helps to produce the world's meat supply.

Adapt Selves Quickly

Sally Norcutt of Wendell, N. C., sat on a box hugging her knees. She nodded her dark head. "You might not believe me," she said, "but we really enjoy living this way. We feel we are accomplishing something. This life isn't as hard as it appears to be here. Any of the girls at home would trade places with us."

Self Service Is Now Rule in London Hotels

LONDON.—Imagine walking into a residential hotel in London and being told that you couldn't have a room unless you made your own bed, dusted round the room a bit, or even helped out with the dishes. This happens now. It's all because of the servant shortage. Large portions of hotel service staffs now have essential jobs—serving in the armed forces or in factories on the home front. Hotel owners are solving the problem by getting their patrons to pitch in and do some of the work.

280 Hollanders Die in Penal Camps, Report Says

"The flowers are for yesterday and the monuments for tomorrow"

"I'd like to tell you what the Japs did to some friends of mine"

I AM LIEUTENANT (j.g.) ANN B. BERNATITUS, U. S. N.—a nurse, back from Bataan. I have a message for you . . .

"Those American boys—who fought for you with their backs to the wall, waiting for help that never reached them—came from the land of plenty. But when their lives were at stake, all they had was . . . plenty of nothing!"

"They were outnumbered, outgunned, and out-supplied. They were so short of ammunition that anti-aircraft gunners often had to hold their fire until the enemy planes were on top of them. They were so short of bandages and gauze that we nurses had to wash out the old ones and use them again.

"But they were never short of courage. They never spoke of surrender. They just went on fighting, and hoping, and dying. And no sacrifice was ever too great.

"Let me give you an example. One terrible day on Bataan we had 285 patients on our operating tables in 8 hours—a new patient every two minutes of the day.

"A sailor was brought in with his abdomen blown to bits. He was a goner and I think he knew it. 'Doctor,' he asked, 'is there any hope at all?'"

"The doctor wished to reassure him and replied, 'We'll do everything we can!' The sailor tried to roll over. 'Doc,' he begged, 'get me off this table and save one of those other fellows who still has a fighting chance.'

"That was the kind of men we had at Bataan. And they would want you to remember not only what they did, but what they did without.

"They would want you to remember it, but not with flowers and memorials. The flowers are for yesterday and the monuments for tomorrow.

"Remember them now—this month and every month—by buying War Bonds!

"Buy guns and planes and shells and ships and tanks—for those other countrymen of yours who are fighting so far from home. See to it that never again, any place in the world, will American fighting men be caught short as they were on Bataan! That never again will American wounded perish for the help your dollars might have sent!

"Certainly taxes are higher. Certainly the cost of living has gone up. But the men on Bataan were never ten-percenters!"

"They gave everything they had. And now it's up to you to buy War Bonds not only if you can, but all you can! Please believe me, folks—that's the way the boys on Bataan would like to be remembered!"

YOUNGSTERS—HELP WITH HOME-CANNING!

Don't worry if you're too young for the W.A.C.S. or W.A.V.E.S. There's another important job for you. Save all the extra vegetables from your Victory Garden by home-canning. A few jars a day take little time and add up to well-filled shelves by the end of the season. Food costs are high in the stores and may be higher, but food grown at home still costs a few cents a jar.
There's a deep satisfaction in growing and canning your own food. Wait and see. You'll take inventory of your garden each day to see which vegetables are right for the table and how many extras there are to put in glass jars. Make it a point each day to gather everything at its prime, and make it a point of honor to get the extras into glass jars before they lose freshness.
That's the big secret of delicious, nutritious, home-canned foods—freshness. Home-grown, home-canned foods often have many more vitamins than those bought at the store, because they are fresh. And when you get a reliable home-canning booklet, you'll be surprised at how many different things may be put away for later use in glass jars.
Be sure to have the very best canning instructions and recipes. One fruit jar company offers a Blue Book free with a coupon packed with each dozen jars—or for ten cents if you have no coupon. The instructions are easy to follow. It is not necessary to have elaborate or expensive equipment. Form a canning club and have fun while you can!

Corn—Home-Canned to Keep!

Corn, a favorite food of man, beast, and bacteria, is the victim of defense propaganda and I am not talking about war. Gladys Kimbrough, Home Service Director of Ball Brothers Company, made the above statement and went on to explain, "Persons who refuse to take the time and trouble to understand corn, defend their canning failures by claiming that it refuses to keep. The truth is, corn is more than willing to be canned, but it demands to be canned in the right way. If used, because it has no acid to protect it against the invasion of bacteria. Tactics? Why," says Miss Kimbrough, "they can be summed up in one sentence: i. e., learn what is to be done, begin at the right time, keep things moving, and turn on the heat."

Keep Vitamins In Home-Canned Tomatoes

The tomato rates respect because it is chockful of vitamins (A and C), those invisible spark plugs that keep one feeling fit.
Because tomatoes are an important food, it is imperative that every one not needed for immediate use be saved by canning, but they must be canned right, else there will be little or no vitamin C left in them. Undue exposure to air after the skins are removed and overcooking in an open covered container destroy vitamin C. This is one reason that tomatoes should be prepared and canned as quickly as possible. Usually whole tomatoes have more food value than tomato juice, partly because a considerable amount of vitamin A is lost in the pulp that fails to get through the strainer when the juice is made, but mainly because greater exposure to air destroys vitamin C.
If you want first-class canned tomatoes, use freshly gathered, firm-ripe, sound fruit—one small bad spot can ruin a whole batch. Wash the tomatoes before scaling; scale a few at a time. Remove all core, slip off the skins, and cut away green spots. Pack the tomatoes tight into clean hot jars—this is best done by pressing each tomato down with a wooden spoon. Add salt to season to suit your taste; the usual amount is one teaspoon to the quart. Seal as according to manufacturer's instructions and process 35 minutes in hot water bath. If tomatoes are not fresh from the garden, process 45 minutes.
No juice can be better than the fruit from which it is made, so be sure to use strictly fresh, firm-ripe, tomatoes, which are free from all decay. Wash well and cut away any green spots or weather cracks. Weather cracks are those splits that form around the stem ends when hot sunshine follows a hard rain. Such tomatoes are unfit for canning or juice unless used immediately after picking. Leave the tomatoes whole and steam or bake them until they are soft; then press through a fine sieve, preferably a cone-shaped one; reheat the juice to simmering; pour into sterilized jars and process 30 minutes at simmering. The pulp will separate from the juice unless a very fine sieve is used or if too much heat is applied at any time. Oh, so you boil the juice in an open kettle until it is thick? Well, that's a fine way to get rid of most of those precious vitamins.
The best tasting juice is that made by pressing whole home-canned tomatoes through a sieve just before serving. Any seasonings liked may be added before canning but the juice will be better if seasonings, except salt, are added when the juice is opened for serving, and even the salt may be left out.

Jar Rubbers Are Different This Year

It is now thought that red rubber will be available for jar rings this year but there will be no cause for alarm if the rubbers you buy turn out to be black. It is 40 rubber, not color, that counts. True, you may be a bit startled when you open your first package of the war models. "But what of it?" asks Gladys Kimbrough, Home Service Director of Ball Brothers Company. "Our grandmothers got along well enough with lipless rubbers and so can we."
Months ago, manufacturers began experiments to learn how to make jar rings that would conserve both rubber and food—the government set its scientists to the same task. One of the first things upon which all agreed was that lips are unnecessary for opening jars. The point of a thin knife can be run under the rubber to make a tiny space for air to seep through and break the seal. It is then easy to remove cap or lid. It was also agreed that jar rings could be a small fraction of an inch narrower, but the thickness must remain at the pre-war standard.
War-time rubbers will keep jars sealed air-tight, but they won't stand abuse. To get good results, break yourself of that never-good habit of stretching to test and follow these four simple rules:
1. Wash and rinse rubbers. Boil them to sterilize if you can. If processing is to be done, drop the rubbers in boiling water and set aside until needed.
2. Have rubbers wet when they are used—and be sure that each rubber lies flat on the sealing surface of the jar.
3. Partly seal all jars before processing.
4. Screw zinc caps and bands on glass top seal closures slowly when sealing, as quick or jerky turns cause rubbers to slip out of position.

The first thing to be done is to get jars, lids, rubbers, and canner ready. If you have no pressure cooker, get along with a water-bath canner. Examine every jar and lid to see that it is in good condition—remember glass top seals and two-piece metal vacuum-seal caps won't work unless the top edges of the jars are perfect. Wash everything clean; cover jars, glass lids and zinc caps with lukewarm water and put on the stove to heat—Cover vacuum seal lids and rubbers with boiling water and leave until needed. When everything is ready, gather the corn—bring in no more than needed for one canner full. Keep in mind that canning too much too late is a common cause of spoilage. Place the corn on a board and use a strong sharp knife to cut the husks (shucks) to off in the Middle West and South) off at each end just where the corn begins and ends. There shouldn't be any worms if you have followed Victory garden directions, but if there are worms in the tassel—end cut deep enough to leave them with the husks. The husks will come off easily and bring most of the silks with them.
Examine every ear of corn and use only those having plump, glossy, juice-filled kernels. Remove all silks; rinse the corn and cut it from the cob. One or more cuttings may be made, but scrapings should not be used unless processing can be done in a pressure cooker, because the scrapings make a thick mass that heats through slowly. Cover the corn with boiling water, using about half as much water as the corn; cook five minutes; then pour immediately into clean, hot jars. A generous amount of water helps the corn heat through quickly and aids in preventing its sugar from caramelizing and causing a brownish color. Add one teaspoon salt to the quart and seal jars according to manufacturer's directions. Then put into the canner and process.
If possible, use pit-jars, as they heat through more rapidly than the

Dehydration Processes
A closer look at some of the dehydration processes reveals that a carrot, for example, may not be peeled but may have its jacket charred by flame, and the char removed by water under pressure, pumped electrically.
Tankage for Spring Pigs
Spring pigs go to market sooner, sell at higher prices, and make larger profits when they are self-fed corn and tankage (or other good-protein supplement) or legume pasture than when they are self-fed corn alone.

Ceiling On Live Hogs Effective Next Month

The Office of Price Administration has announced that early in August a flat price ceiling would be set for live hogs at $14.75 per hundredweight, Chicago basis. The ceiling of $14.75 will apply to all grades and weights and assures packers an adequate margin between the price of live hogs and the OPA ceilings for wholesale pork cuts and processed pork. This price, while below the 22 year high of $16.10 reached this spring, is slightly above prices prevailing in recent weeks and is substantially above prices which live hogs brought prior to 1942. It is anticipated that the price of hogs will continue to fluctuate seasonally, as in the past, between the ceiling and the floor prices.
At the same time the War Food Administration announced that existing food distribution orders affecting meat slaughter and processing will be superseded, effective August 15, by one over-all system of licensing slaughterers. WFA said also that its support price for hogs will be extended, effective September 1, to include lighter weights in an effort to conserve feed supplies.
Under the new licensing system, all slaughterers—except farmers, who will continue to operate under the present permit system—will be licensed to slaughter livestock under conditions to be announced prior to August 15. Two of the conditions, the WFA said, will be (1) Payment by packers of not less than the WFA support price and not more than the OPA ceiling price for live hogs; and (2) Appropriate divisions of meat supplies between civilians, the Armed Forces, and our Allies.
Officials pointed out that present WFA slaughter quotas remain in effect until August 15, after which time the licensing system will provide the necessary limitations.
The purpose of the licensing program, WFA officials explained, is to call upon the meat processing industry to assume responsibility to carry out the meat program necessary to successful prosecution of the war. It will be more effective, they said, to lay out the general program and ask all of the people affected to carry it out than to attempt to do it by direct regulation. Licenses to operate may be revoked if there is violation.
Keep Cutting Tools Sharp
You cannot do good work with dull tools. Keep your saws and other cutting tools in keen-edge condition. This precaution will increase the life of any tool. You can burn up a hand saw or circular saw blade in no time if it is dull. Protect these blades, for they are difficult to replace.

Legislatures Keep in Step With Standing Committees
Increasing reliance on "standing committees" to keep track of developments in various fields of government and legislative activity was reported for the nation's state legislatures by the Council of State Governments.

Dust Mixtures
Dust mixtures containing calcium arsenate are for use against chewing insects. Many also contain copper compounds for disease control.

Images Form on Eyes
In several murder stories identification of the criminal is alleged to have resulted from a picture of the killer formed on the retina of the eye of the victim.

Functioning on a permanent basis during legislative sessions, the standing committees vary in purpose as widely as the needs of the states which established them, and deal with a diversity of subjects—agriculture, labor, public health, education, finance, amendments, to state constitutions, workmen's compensation, public works, insurance, transportation, elections and interstate co-operation.
