PIN CHATTER

There are now four teams tied for first place. The CIO got a lucky break when Chelsea Milling had to forfeit three games as three of their team weren't there. It was unfortunate for Milling. Those L.A.P. Golden gals are getting to the top by leaps and bounds, winning two or three each time. Nice, keep going. It makes it more interesting. Nice bowling on the old alleys by A. Gilson, having four strikes in a row, Koch with three strikes in a row. P. Wedemeyer with a series of 489 and her high game 180. No wonder there was lots of excitement on alleys 3-4 as that is where Dot McClear was making her 484 series with games of 187, 187, 150. Swelligan! Now we know you can, we will be looking for more. Adams had 452 again. Nice going. Tarnacki of G-Spring hit the 400 series for the first time we know of—any wonder the C-Spring is keeping right up there? The Bobby-Soxers won a game, so now they are out of the rut and watch them go places. Remember the story of the Tortoise and the Hare? Only these are backing up for a fresh start.

Pennies saved for this week: A. White 4-7-10, G. Young 8-5-10, B. Kalses 7-9-10, Searles 5-10, 478. Leader 8-10, also 8-7 (just good). J. Downer 7-5-10, Reith 6-8-10, Rabley 6-10-7—the split pickers.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

On August 29 we noted: "As we see it, a strong likelihood exists that the state legislature will be forced in 1947 to levy additional taxes, if the bonus proposal and the sales tax amendment are both approved at the November election." This still stands. The voters opened the gate wide to new taxes when they earmarked 76 percent of the sales tax for local governments.

The ultimate solution of the tax problem is a state constitutional convention. A return of welfare expenses, such as Governor Murphy encountered in 1937 and 1938, would accelerate a demand for this remedy.

Regardless of what the state legislature may or may not do in 1947, the state's answers will be unpopular. Inflation is unpopular, and legislative troubles are the by-products of today's inflation. You can't win against inflation.

HER QUIET CHRISTMAS

KATE YARROW had so often heard neighbors remark that she would be an old woman before her time, that she had begun to think of herself as quite middle-aged. Actually she was not quite 30, nor had her full days as mistress of the Yarrow household—turned her hair gray or her cheeks wan.

Sometimes, since she had taken her mother's place, Kate did think she was imposed upon. But she blamed no one. Her father was generous enough with the money, and she had Martin in the kitchen and old Sam for outside work. But five inconsiderate younger brothers and sisters, a preoccupied father and a grumbling grandfather made a household that required supervision.

For the past two years, Kate thought, there had really been no Christmas. But this year would be different. The brothers, all in boarding school or college, had accepted invitations to spend the holidays with room-mates. One sister was visiting an aunt, and the other had gone south with her ex-acting but youthful grandfather. And Kate's father was spending the season with a thoroughly capable widow who, it had been whispered, he was considering as a possible second wife.

Bill did not neglect his privilege. So as soon as the last member of her brood had landed down the driveway, Kate told Martin and Sam to take a two-day vacation and then settled back to spend Christmas by herself. She ran into the capacious living room and with a completely undignified leap planted herself sprawling upon the divan. Every one but Kate sprawled on that divan. Kate never had time. Now she would begin the Christmas holidays by staying there for hours.

Before dinner-time she donned her best red evening frock and over this her smock. Then she went down to the kitchen to make herself a meal admitting for the first time that it was rather lonesome in the old house. She heard loud rattlings on the old brass knocker, and went to open the door rather timidly.

But her timidity gave way to annoyance. There was her older brother, Tom, who had started that morning ostensibly to pass the holidays with a group of bachelor friends. And here he was, back—with five young men in tow! They were heavily laden; turkey feet protruding from one of the bundles.

"Well, we began talking it over," Tom said, "and decided Christmas at the club would be a frost. So I asked the fellows to come home with me. I was afraid you wouldn't have things for the feast, so we stopped and got what we thought you'd want. Bill here, even got mistletoe, though I told him there'd be no pretty girls!"

Then, turning to one of the young men whom Kate had never met, the tactless brother went on, "Bill, this is my sister. Now I'll run along and get the car in the garage. And, sis, you might take the fellows up and show 'em where you want 'em to sleep!"

Bill alone of the young bachelors noted the look of disappointment on Kate's face. Later, after she had prepared an impromptu Christmas Eve supper and laid aside her smock, she heard Bill say from the other end of the table: "I thought Tom said there would be no pretty girls here. Boys, let's drink a toast to Sister Kate!"

It was past midnight that night when Kate left the kitchen. The boys had helped with the dishes under Bill's orders, but there would be pies and puddings to make for the next day and Kate knew she would have her hands full. She was up early to prepare the festive breakfast, and all day she worked in the kitchen.

It was late Christmas night when she had finished the last work in the kitchen. As she passed through the hall, Bill stood waiting for her. There, above them, hung the mistletoe—and Bill did not neglect his privilege.

"It isn't just because of the mistletoe," he told Kate, holding her still close to him. "I loved you when I first saw you. It has been outrageous for us to impose on you this way."

"It's all been worthwhile, Bill," Kate replied, "because I've made myself believe that I was doing it all for you—alone!"

Geo. Neuffer of Waterloo village met with an accident last Friday afternoon that caused him to lose his left hand. He was helping saw wood for John Boyer when he fell on the saw and his left hand was cut off at the wrist.

A very pleasant event occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ward, Washington street, Sunday, when they celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Ward have been residents of Chelsea and vicinity for 40 years, and he has been actively engaged in the milk business for many years.

Mrs. James W. Speer was born in Dexter township May 22, 1860 and died at her home on Railroad street Monday, Nov. 27, 1922 after an illness of six years. Besides her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. John Larnie of San Pedro, Calif. and Mrs. Wesley Smith of Chelsea; two sons, Henry J. Speer of Grand Rapids and Geo. Speer of Royal Oak. Rev. G. H. Whitney conducted services, with burial in Oak Grove cemetery.

The Misses Lizzie and Nellie Maroney have had their residence on Railroad street given a full-scale remodeling, making other improvements.

Reuben Hieber had one of his hands badly injured at the Chelsea roller flour mills, as he was working at the pancake flour mixing machine. His hand was caught and the three first fingers were badly crushed.

Residents of Manchester regret that the hotel has been sold, and will be used for a chair factory.

The new farm residence of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Young, on the Manchester road, has been completed and is modern in every respect.

Day of Days

MARY CRANE emptied the last tub and stood it against the shed to drain, sighing her thanks that if she must wash clothes on Christmas Day the job was at least over and done with by noon. She had just returned to the kitchen when a knock came at the door. It was her neighbor, Hattie Jamieson, decked out in her finest.

"Aren't you the one," Hattie exclaimed, "washing clothes on Christmas Day?"

Mary conceded it wasn't the best way to pass the day, but added that it must be done.

"I wonder if you'd do me a favor?" Hattie asked. "John and Fanny have asked us to come to town for Christmas dinner and the tree tonight. You know, times were a little tough for Henry and me this year, so I took those two little State orphans to board. Now, I don't want to leave them at home alone, and Fanny wouldn't want them to come mingle with her youngsters."

She sighed faintly. "Would you let them come stay with you for the evening?"

"Why, of course," Mary replied, smiling. "It will make Christmas for me, who was spending it alone. What time will they come?"

"Fanny's sending the car for us about five o'clock, and we'll drop them off here on the way."

After Hattie had left, Mary mused that she didn't suppose the Lord thought Fanny's children too good to mingle with these two orphans, but after a moment she realized there was much to be done. By five o'clock she had walked to the store and spent her few pennies on two tiny pair of red mittens, which were now hanging on the little spruce tree Mary had cut in the back yard. And in the kitchen a hot, hearty supper was waiting.

Mary sat in the living room, waiting. "Lucky I did that extra washing today, so I feel justified spending those pennies on the youngsters. Those children must have a Christmas, and maybe—" she sighed—"I shan't have a home another year!"

Waiting there in the old rocker, her head dropped slowly, and Mary Crane fell asleep.

"One thing I'd like to do before dinner," rich old Andrew Craig said to his wife. "Suppose there's time? You remember Mary Crane had some tough luck a few years back. She borrowed money from the bank on her house and couldn't keep up the payments. Well, the directors decided not to give her any more time."

"All tall and bright and—and beautiful."

"I couldn't help remembering our lean years, Sue, when Mary was our neighbor and worked day and night to pull you through pneumonia. So I just gathered in that debt—it was only a few hundreds—and had some papers made out to Mary. I'd kind of like to take them out to her on Christmas night."

Sue pulled his head down, and kissed him. "It will take just 10 minutes to pack a basket for you to take along," she reckoned swiftly. "If you drive there and back in half an hour, you can do it. Remember, we have guests coming!"

It was snowing when Andrew alighted from the car. A lamp showed him Mary's kitchen through the window, the cheery tree, and the sleeping old lady. He tip-toed in and placed his basket on the table, papers on top. The latching of the door aroused Mary.

Her small guests rushed in a few minutes later to find Mary holding the papers to her heart, her face alight with joy.

"Merry Christmas, Mary," cried the little girl. "There was a man on your steps when we came down the lane. We saw him plain: as could be!"

"You're right," said Mary. "Andrew Craig is a man, if ever there was one."

"Not the man in the fur coat," insisted the child. "It was another just behind him. All tall and bright and—and beautiful."

"Well," said Mary. "I'm not surprised. Some folks might say it was shadows and lamplight and snowflakes, but—tapping the papers—'wherever there's things like this goin' on Christmas night, I'm persuaded He's there!'"

There may be more dial tone delays
as we approach the Holidays

PLEASE WAIT FOR THE
DIAL TONE BEFORE YOU DIAL

With only a few more days for last-minute Christmas shopping and with folks already planning family reunions and holiday festivities, there's an extra-heavy load of calls on the local telephone system.

During the next couple of weeks there may be more times when you'll experience a slight delay before you hear the hum of the dial tone. That delay means that all the central office switching equipment is momentarily in use. So please be sure to wait for the dial tone before you dial. Otherwise you'll get a wrong number or no number at all.

It will help a lot, too, if you'll try to avoid the busiest hours—10 A.M. to noon and 3 to 6 P.M.—and keep your calls reasonably short. Then the switching equipment can take care of more calls for more people faster.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

A Grand
American Tradition

The Cuppers had a grand old family reunion last week—for the first time since the war.

Big and little Cuppers came, by car and train, from as far west as Nebraska and as far east as Vermont. They crowded Dee and Jane's house, set-up quarters in the barns, or stopped with neighbors—a jollier gathering you couldn't have imagined!

I was asked to their final Saturday night supper, when they sang old songs, drank beer and cider, reminiscenced. Dark Cuppers and blonde ones—Vermont accents and Alabama drawls—doctors and farmers... all with their differences of taste and politics, yet as close and harmonious in spirit as a group could be.

From where I sit, it's a great American tradition—not just family reunions, but the ability to get along as one harmonious family, regardless of differences of taste—whether it's taste for politics or farming, beer or cider.
