

By Gene Alleman

"Hang your clothes on a hickory limb," said an indulgent mama to her daughter who sought permission to go in swimming. "But don't go near the water!"

This paradoxical reply, both agreement and disagreement, saying yes and still saying no, reminds me of an interesting situation today at the state capital.

One year ago Kim Sigler, Michigan's fighting, crusading-reform governor, took office. He had inherited a financial mess of no mean size. Voters had thumped approval of a constitutional amendment which deprived the state treasury of a big share of sales tax revenues, including 44.7 per cent of the previous year's collections which must be allocated to the public schools.

A continuing inflation in prices has resulted in a constant rise of sales tax receipts. Year after year the state financial experts were caught with unanticipated surpluses. News papers and magazines on the headlines and fail to get into the details had arrived at a conclusion that Lansing was literally rolling in wealth. They had a tolerant attitude toward government, either federal or state, being reconciled to a belief that it never would be as efficient as private business and hence would always contain a percentage of waste.

Admonished by State Treasurer D. Hale Brake and others in his official family of the "truth of the consequences," Governor Sigler finally came out with an appeal to the state legislature to put a repeal-bill on the spring election. The legislators parried. The repeal move was defeated. Finally, in the closing days of the general session, legislators voted to put the repeal-bill to the voters at the November general election in 1948.

So far, so good. At least, the logic of the states' financial plight was in a position of full consistency. The State of Michigan faced bankruptcy unless it was removed from the strait-jacket of a disastrous constitutional amendment, or unless it could discover a new and added source of taxation. The emphasis for 1948, an election year, was naturally upon the first. Let's repeal this obnoxious, impossible amendment. Let's revise the state constitution.

Then came a new issue for 1948: Lack of responsibility in the power of the governor. The state executive was little less than a "terrified clerk." A remark was made about "the crummiest job in the country."

Governor Sigler's new thesis was that Michigan was plagued by a multiplicity of invisible government—"boards, bureaus, agencies and commissions"—all of them beyond the control of the governor. "What would he do about it? Ask the legislature to do it," about a dozen of these state bureaus.

If the Michigan Education Association wanted to obtain new ammunition for its campaign to defeat repeal of the sales tax amendment, we can think of none better than this. The governor's new position, as we see it, answers the suspicions of many voters that Lansing has too much money for its own good, that the State of Michigan could get along nicely with a lot less if someone would only streamline things and cut out inefficiency. The words sound familiar.

Former Chelsea Couple Observed 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mensing, former Chelsea residents, who have resided in California for more than twenty-five years, celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary there on Sunday, Dec. 21. A reception for two hundred guests was held in Trotter hall of the First Methodist church in Ventura, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, following renewal of their wedding vows.

Their attendants at the anniversary service were their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Mensing of Los Angeles, and the officiating clergyman was Rev. Edward P. O'Rear. Mrs. Philip Broese van Groenou of Chelsea, Mr. Mensing's sister, was the accompanist for a vocal solo, "Always," presented by Mary Jo Foust, and at the close of the ceremony the poem, "Sunset Trail," by Robson, was read by John Frei.

Relatives and friends from away who attended the celebration were the Mensing's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Mensing, of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. James Wagley, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Sauder and Jack Belcher, of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Glazier and daughters, of Fullerton, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur East and son of Lynwood, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pierce, of Canoga Park, California, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Gentner, Mr. and Mrs. Dorr Whitaker and son, Edson, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clark and Mrs. Philip Broese van Groenou, all of Chelsea and vicinity, and A. Belcher, of Nebraska.

Mrs. Fred Gentner, Mrs. Mensing's sister, who was a bridesmaid at their wedding fifty years ago, and Mrs. Philip Broese van Groenou, sister of Mr. Mensing, presided at the refreshment table and were assisted by Mrs. Harold Clark, Mrs. Henry Glazier and Mrs. Irving Kalmbach. Mrs. Glazier and Mrs. Ray Mensing served the four-tiered wedding cake after Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mensing had cut the first slice. Philip Broese van Groenou and Henrietta Glazier and Mrs. Sterling Sauder were in charge of the guest book.

Yellow and gold chrysantheums were used profusely throughout the hall as decorations, gold colored ones being used also to encircle the base of the cake. Gold candles and golden wedding bells uniquely and have many relatives and friends in this vicinity.

Plan Meeting for Further Discussion in About Two Weeks

A rather small crowd, considering the importance of the topic to be discussed, turned out to attend the meeting sponsored by joint committees of the local Kiwanis club and the Chamber of Commerce, held at the High School gymnasium, Monday evening, when John Iglauer, editor of "The Municipal Review," official publication of the Michigan Municipal League, explained in a clear and concise manner, the advantages, in his opinion, of a city form of government for Chelsea.

Mr. Iglauer stressed the fact that, while his experience in the Municipal League and his knowledge of municipal government qualified him to point out what he considered to be the advantages of a city form of government over that of the village and township forms which were presently in effect, certain village or township was concerned. The Michigan Municipal League, which he represents, is primarily interested in helping all municipalities, he said.

Mr. Iglauer stated that Chelsea, as a city, would be entitled to two supervisors, appointed by the city council, (not elected) to represent them on the county board. These supervisors would not be paid by the city, but would receive pay from the county for attendance at meetings and for mileage, he said.

In answer to a question as to when and how qualified city managers could be chosen, Mr. Iglauer stated that a number of universities, including the U. of M., were now offering graduate degrees in City Administration, and that in the larger cities assistants to the city managers were in a position to learn the fundamentals of city management so that they would be qualified to take over positions as city managers of smaller communities.

Mr. Davidson stated, at the conclusion of Mr. Iglauer's talk, that there will be another meeting in about two weeks, for further discussion of the proposal that Chelsea become a city, and to decide whether it is the wish of the people of Chelsea that the matter be brought to a vote. In the meantime, he said, anyone who may wish answers to questions in regard to the matter of changing to a city form of government may mail the questions to Dr. Parker Sharrard, president of the Kiwanis club, or to Walter Harper, president of the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce, the two organizations sponsoring the meetings. Questions received by them not later than Monday, Jan. 19, will be answered in the columns of The Chelsea Standard next week, while questions received by Monday, Jan. 26, will be answered in the Chelsea Standard.

Return from Pleasant Trip to California

Mr. and Mrs. Dorr Whitaker and son, Edson, returned Tuesday night of the past week from a three-weeks' trip to California, where they attended the Golden Wedding anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mensing at Ventura, and saw the parade which preceded the Rose Bowl football game, at Pasadena on New Year's day.

They viewed the game by television at Fullerton, and brought back a scrap-book full of pictures of the game, the parade, and places of interest they visited. They also took a number of pictures which they are hoping will turn out well. They report that they had a fine trip with good driving back until they reached Kokomo, Indiana, where they encountered icy conditions. They said ice forming on wires and trees caused considerable damage all through Indiana from there on, wires being so badly twisted that it would probably be days or weeks before they could be straightened out.

Correction

In last week's story of the old Henry Dewep homestead the name Hiram Dewep was mistakenly given instead of Nathan Pierce, grandfather of Miss Alma Pierce; also, the name, John Foster, was mentioned as having become one of the first supervisors of Sylvan township. This should have been John Dewep, eldest son of Henry Dewep.

Year-End Check on Game License Sales

Nearly as many Michigan residents hunted deer in 1947 as in the year before, the conservation department reports after a year-end check of hunting license sales. Where 298,086 resident deer hunting licenses were accounted for up to Jan. 1, 1947, the count this year was 295,081—only one per cent less. Returns from resident small game hunting license sales continue to lag, with 466,381 issued to Jan. 1, 1948, compared with 635,770 at the same time a year earlier, a decrease of 27 per cent. Sport fishing licenses, resident and nonresident together, totalled 1,030,897 to Jan. 1, and this total will be even larger when all 1947 fishing license accounts are closed out in the next few months.

'Only Indians, Muskrats and Frogs Can Live in Michigan,' Wrote Army Officer

(Editor's note: This is one of a series of stories about historical spots and monuments in Michigan, based on information from the Michigan Historical Collections at the University of Michigan.)

"Only Indians, muskrats and bullfrogs can live in Michigan" once, wrote a man who served in the fort commemorated by a bronze plaque at Saginaw. Placed on the Hotel Fordney at Court and Hamilton streets, the plaque marks the site of Old Fort Saginaw. Built in 1823 on orders of the United States War Department because of the unfriendly attitude of the Chippewa Indians, the fort was abandoned the following year because of a malaria epidemic.

About 150 soldiers and civilians were living in the stockade when the epidemic broke out in the summer of 1823, according to information in the Michigan Historical Collections at the University of Michigan. Dr. Zina Pitcher, the army surgeon, did his best to combat the disease but met with little success. It was Dr. Pitcher who later commented on the unhealthfulness of the state's climate. Dr. Pitcher also fell ill and for several days had to be carried to his patients. Altogether two officers, an enlisted man and an officer's wife, daughter and son died of the disease before the garrison was moved to Detroit in October.

For a number of years afterward the Saginaw valley had the unenviable reputation of being an unhealthy place to live, the records in the Historical Collections show. This idea was spread principally by representatives of fur-trading interests in the region who did not want other persons to come into the area.

Manuscripts in the Michigan Historical Collections indicate that Dr. Pitcher recovered from his illness and rose to several important positions before his death in Detroit April 6, 1872. He was a regent of the University from its start in 1837 until 1852, mayor of Detroit for two terms, and an examiner of the U. S. Mint.

Wood Fiber Offers Opportunity for Industry To Use

Ann Arbor—Opportunity for expansion of wood fiber industries in Michigan is afforded by developments in methods of defiberizing low-quality woods, Robert Craig, Jr., associate professor of forest utilization in the University of Michigan School of Forestry and Conservation, believes. Prof. Craig, in a recent report prepared for the State Department of Economic Development, points out that "there is a steadily increasing demand for all kinds of fiber, and expiration of patents on masonite board leaves the field wide open. Michigan enterprises has a new opportunity to increase employment and add to the value of our woods waste and inferior species."

Three methods of fiber production are most practical, Prof. Craig says. These are use of a defiberizing machine, the Asplund defiberator and a cooking process. The defiberizing machine is a mechanical process for converting wood into fiber, running the wood back and forth over revolving cylinders containing numerous small, sharp-pointed hammers, as explained by Prof. Craig. These cylinders make use of wood in the form of two-foot bolts, but could be adapted for slabs and edgings. These materials are now considered mill waste and are usually disposed of at a loss, whereas turning them into fiber might be accomplished at a net profit, the Michigan professor believes. Shredded wood produced by the defiberizing machine is suitable for use in making roofing materials—most of it is going into roofing at present—and also in filter for sandwich board, thin cushioning pads, fiberoard, and plasters using wood fibers. The defiberizing machine can use any quality of wood. Aspen is the species most frequently used in Michigan, since it is the most plentiful species for which there are not already more demands than can be met, Prof. Craig explains. The Asplund defiberator is a machine developed in Sweden, which first converts wood into chips and then into fiber. The fiber thus produced is suitable for the manufacture of insulating board, hard pressed boards, roofing and flooring felts, and various molded pulp products, it has been learned. By combining this defiberizing technique with use of chemicals and steam, pulp suitable for manufacture of pulp boards and certain types of Kraft paper can be obtained. "A third possibility of obtaining fiber from low-grade material or from wood waste is by a simplified cooking process," Prof. Craig has reported. "Steam for cooking chips into fiber is cheaper than the electrical power needed for converting wood into fiber by mechanical means. An already established pulp company might very profitably set up a fiber cooking plant and make good use of poor-quality and little used species."

Protein-Rich Feeds Pay Big Dividends to Livestock Feeder

Livestock fed adequate protein perform much better in many ways, says G. A. Branaman, Michigan State college animal husbandry specialist. They eat more, make faster gains in weight and make more gain for the feed consumed. They also acquire more finish or fatness and sell higher on the market.

Right now is a profitable time to make use of protein-rich feeds. The prices of standard feeds, like the oil meals and tankage, are but little above corn prices, while their value in the ration is much greater. Beside the protein content of such feeds, most of them contain minerals and vitamins that are of added value. The various mixed feeds with high protein should be bought on the basis of protein content, as compared with straight by-product feeds, such as soybean oil meal or tankage.

The Hi-Light

Edited by the Journalism Club of the Chelsea Public School

CO-EDITORS Joanne O'Dell - Mae Slane.

Boys' and girls' basketball teams will play Saline tomorrow afternoon and evening. Our next home game is against Roosevelt, Feb. 23. This week is the final week of the first semester. Report cards will be handed out next Wednesday. The Grade School PTA will meet in the Home Economics room next Wednesday evening.

"SAFETY FIRST" Use caution, children of Chelsea High school! Start this New Year right by making one more resolution, even if it is a little late. This is the kind of weather that makes it bad for drivers—and that makes it bad for you. You are the one that can help by being careful.

Every day as you come to school, think not only of yourself, but of the safety of others. As you come dashing across the lawns, taking your favorite short-cut, rushing out from between parked cars in the middle of the block, did you ever think of the cars that come speeding down the street? Well, just stop and think the next time, because these are the actions which set bad examples for the younger school children. Are you going to endanger ourselves and the lives of others by setting bad examples? Think it over and then make that one last resolution!

PEP MEETING The pep meeting presented by the cheerleaders on the eve of the Dexter game was staged in the middle of the gym floor. This new and unusual type was presented by the three cheerleaders for the second team, G. Salzgeber, B. J. Joseph, and V. Clark and the six cheerleaders for the first team, M. Proctor, J. Proctor, P. Schiller, R. Lentz, E. Geddes and D. Walker. The meeting opened with several cheers, among them a new type "F-I-G-H-T" cheer. Then Mr. Cameron with his new plaid suit gave the line-up for the second team, which is apparently all ninth graders. The first team cheerleaders then took over and led several cheers. Suddenly whistles, applauding who-what? Mr. Newkirk with his new maroon corduroy jacket, first team coach, who gave a pep talk. This was followed by others from Margie Proctor, Oscar Jensen and Don Baldwin. The meeting closed with the singing of the school song.

CHELSEA VS. MANCHESTER Manchester was soundly defeated when GAA girls went to Manchester Jan. 6. Starting line-up for Chelsea was J. Hughes, M. Schradet, D. Howard, M. Roberts, M. Johnson and P. Schaible. Manchester's starting line-up was A. Palmer, J. Fink, J. Conser, S. Merziman, A. DeCaire and E. Brown. Substitutes for Chelsea were G. Fouty, J. McClure, R. Fox, P. Scott, M. Slane, E. Hollifield and M. Heydauff. The score was 13 to 2 in favor of Chelsea at the half. The final score, resulting in an easy victory for Chelsea, was 28-6. High point girl was Joyce Hughes.

MONDAY NIGHT DANCES Because of the attendance on previous Monday nights, the dancing classes will be postponed unless the students show that they want this kind of entertainment by being present on Jan. 19. Scott Colburn, the dancing teacher and director, on these occasions will gladly help with or play any kind of dancing. Perhaps the parents of the High school pupils would receive more enjoyment from these dances also, if more of them participated for the two hours on alternate Monday nights.

RED CROSS NEWS Chelsea High school makes more afghans than any other school in Washtenaw county. Students now have completed this year's first afghan, made up of all colors, that are arranged very attractively. Afghans are made of knit six-inch squares which are then sewed together. The Junior Red Cross in the past has presented them to military hospitals for use by wheelchair or other patients. Chelsea afghans have gone to Colorado, Missouri and Percy Jones hospitals. Some of the afghans are now sent to Europe. The people who receive these afghans know where and whom they are from because we attach little tags to the afghans telling them. These afghans mean very much to the people in Europe so let's keep up the good work, kids.

LATIN CLUB Latin club members plan to go ice skating at Ann Arbor, Jan. 17. The Latin class put on a radio program over station WPAG Jan.

15. The title of the skit was "Thanks To The Romans." The class members who participated in the skit are as follows: Ronnie Eder, Virginia Christwell, Verdice Wheeler, Corky Murphy, Dorothy Thomas, Patricia Murphy, Donna Kalmbach and Ted McClear.

BAND NEWS Dexter band will come here to give a combined concert with the Chelsea band. No date has been decided upon. The band is working on music for it. The concert is to be given in the afternoon to the student body and anyone else who is interested.

HILY DANCE A large crowd turned out for the dance after the game between Dexter and Chelsea, last Friday night which made the dance very enjoyable, especially to the girls (?). With such a nice stag line, one could certainly tell that leap year is here.

FFA NEWS A farm forester, Ray Pfeiffer, talked to the members of the agriculture classes on forestry problems, last Friday. The group went to three wood-lots and Mr. Pfeiffer told them how to overcome certain problems. The lots were Kalmbach's, Bauer's and Bollinger's. The FFA basketball team played at Saline Friday afternoon. The score was 49 to 32 in favor of Chelsea. FFA boys are working on a soil conservation program to be broadcast over station WPAG next Monday.

CLASS NEWS KINDERGARTEN—The Kindergarten class reports that they are sorry Mike Timbrooks had an accident and hope he will soon be better.

FIRST GRADE—All scarlet fever victims are back to school and the class is glad to have them return.

SIXTH GRADE—Every other Wednesday the fifth and sixth grades enjoy having dancing. Their instructor is Mr. Coburn. This year they have done several square dances and the Grand March. The Grand March seems to be the favorite.

The ice and snow storms have given the sixth grade pupils the idea of drawing some pictures of winter, and there were some fine drawings.

SEVENTH GRADE—Janet Lotridge had a birthday Jan. 7. She played the birthday game and lost. Another afghan is ready to be sent to the Junior Red Cross. The afghan was sewed by Ellen Jane Geddes.

EIGHTH GRADE—The eighth graders had a Christmas party the last day before vacation. They played games and later had refreshments. The pupils exchanged gifts and had a very nice time.

Stanton Walker left for California during Christmas vacation and will be gone for three weeks. The class misses him. Bobby Plunkett has returned to Vienna, Illinois, where he lived before he came to Chelsea.

The Junior high boys now have a basketball team which practices Wednesday nights. Mr. Newkirk is coaching them.

SOPHOMORES—The Sophomores had a class meeting Friday to elect a representative for the Student Council. Their choice was Pat Murphy.

JUNIORS—The Juniors are selecting their play. SENIORS—A class meeting was held Friday, Jan. 8. At this meeting the class discussed their cruise; there were two choices of places to go—Mackinac Island and Niagara Falls. The class chose the latter. The cruise will begin May 19.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Who Are We, Anyway?

Subject came up at Bill Webster's, the other day, as we were chatting over beer and pretzels. Just who are the folks who make up our town? Where'd they come from?

Well, Doc Hollister's Scotch-English ancestry; Will Dudley's folks were mining stock from Pennsylvania; Skip Powell's family were brewers back in Holland.

Guess our bloodstream's got a bit of every country of the globe—and every section of America. We've still got differences in taste and background—whether they apply to music, history, or beer. Only those differences don't matter—because we're self-respecting people, in a free, united land.

And from where I sit, that's what makes our towns and cities—our America—so strong, progressive, tolerant. Our championship of individual liberties has brought us people from all faiths, all lands—to prove that respect for one another's rights is the greatest bond humanity can know!

New Method Helps Improve Keeping Quality of Lard

A way to improve the keeping quality of home-rendered lard is now available for farmers who store it for home use. It is simply necessary to add two- to three-pounds of hydrogenated vegetable shortening to each 50 pounds of lard at the time of rendering.

duct in question is hydrogenated vegetable shortening. Lard is a high-energy food that is almost completely digestible and contains substances necessary for good nutrition. Strong or rancid lard is not only unfit for food use and very unpalatable, but certain desirable food values have been destroyed. Such lard also destroys essential vitamins in foods to which it may be added.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION OF Chelsea State Bank of Chelsea, Washtenaw County, Michigan, at the close of business December 31, 1947, a State banking institution organized and operating under the banking laws of this State and a member of the Federal Reserve System. Farmers Repairing Equipment at Home

World War II and the rapid extension of government-approved rural power lines to most farm production emergencies contributed, more than any other factors, to the widespread use of transformer-type electric arc welders on farms.

Welding being done efficiently on the farm.

Thus a war-taught talent enters the peacetime picture with increasing popularity. Experience showed that many broken parts could be welded satisfactorily without having to remove them from the machine and that such equipment then could be returned to the fields promptly—especially when time-saving welding jobs were done on the farm.

Merely Using Your Head Will Save Your Heels

Is there an easier, better way to do that job? Purdue university answers with: "Yes, there probably is. There is an easy and a hard way, a labor-saving and a labor-wasting way to do any job. Few of us are doing our farm job the easiest way. If we use our heads we can save our heels—as well as time, energy and expense. But we rarely take time to save time. We don't figure out the easiest, most effective way—we just get the job done."

Grasshopper's Day

Believing that there is an important relationship between the intensity of sunlight, air temperature, the body temperature of the grasshopper, and where and when the pests are eating, Professors Pepper and Hastings, Montana State college, have designed a special thermometer with which to take the temperature of grasshoppers.

Crop Rotation Plan Should Be Balanced

Unless a farm has a well balanced rotation for its fields, the chances are that the farmer who works that land is depleting the soil and getting lower yields of the crops he grows.

Castrate Pigs Early For Market Results

The earlier pigs intended for market are castrated the better they will weigh in. When pigs are castrated at three to four weeks of age, they are easier to handle, the wounds heal more quickly and the pigs are usually under closer supervision so that the wounds can be watched closely. Incisions should be made low to permit good drainage and to give the finished barrow a neater appearance.

Rust Preventives Will Help Save Machinery

The old saying "more farm machinery rusts out than wears out," is a good one to heed these days. E. C. Sauer, agricultural engineer at MSC, says that rust can be easily licked by the use of rust preventives.

There are two types of rust preventives, liquid and grease. The location of storage and length of time you wish to store the unit will determine which is best to use. The grease type can be used in bearings and has lubricating properties.

VETERANS NEWS

OFFICE OF VETERANS' AFFAIRS

Veterans Urged To Check Wills Made While in Service Veterans are advised to take a good look at wills and powers of attorney drawn up while they were in the service, and rescind those which are outdated and do not represent their current desires.

In many cases, servicemen and women executed wills and had them witnessed by people who were not even casual acquaintances and who have since become widely scattered.

In many cases where a veteran executed a power of attorney giving an immediate member of the family or a friend the power to dispose of certain property, owned by him, the veteran would now prefer to revoke such power of attorney and resume control of the property.

However, many of these powers of attorney are still in force and have either been forgotten or dismissed with the thought that they are no longer binding.

The legal rights of veterans owning property might be seriously impaired by the attorney-in-fact under outstanding powers of attorney if exercised after the veteran's return to civilian life.

Six rules pertinent to wills are:

- (1) Have a good will. (2) Know where it is kept. (3) Know it carries out the wishes of the executor. (4) Avoid useless guardians for minor children. (5) Have proper witnesses who are known and can be found. (6) Make sure the will will be recognized in the state where there is property.

Check Farming Tools

Next spring may be too late to get your tractor or other farm machinery in condition for another year of service.

Agriculture engineers at Michigan State college advise farmers to start overhauling and repairing farm equipment now. A few days spent checking equipment will help prevent costly lay-offs when the busy spring work period comes along.

Married Vets Lead A study of the scholastic standings of married veterans and single veterans studying at Bannalaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., shows that the married ones are topping the single ones.

The study was made because of the fear among some educators that the responsibilities and distractions of married life might impede the student's progress. The study covered 2,783 student veterans, of whom 652 were married.

March of Dimes has financed research and education projects at 23 institutions in 29 states. Its basic aim is to find a preventive or cure for polio to eliminate it as a threat to America's children.

To that purpose more than 13 million dollars has been allocated for research and education in the 10-year history of the foundation. This year a total of 30 million dollars is needed to meet obligations resulting from the increase of polio cases in the last five years.

Polio Victims Need March of Dimes

The past 10 years were the most critical period in the history of infantile paralysis in America, with 112,000 cases of the disease recorded in that time.

But with the help of the American people, contributing their money through the annual March of Dimes, the most crucial phase of the battle against polio is coming to an end.

This year the March of Dimes, being conducted from January 15 to 30, marks the 10th anniversary of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, and may be a turning point, also, in the long, bitter struggle to make the nation's children safe from the disease.

During the past decade the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, supported entirely by voluntary contributions to the March of Dimes, has worked doggedly at its job.

Despite the tremendous load of 112,000 cases and despite wartime restrictions, the foundation and its chapters assumed the burden of providing care and treatment for an estimated 88,000 polio victims.

At the same time it was expanding facilities and developing new methods that guarantee immediate help when polio strikes.

Since 1938, when the late Franklin D. Roosevelt founded the organization, funds raised through the

High Hopes Held for Howell Gas Field Production

Howell—The current shortage of gas and other petroleum products is adding to the keen interest with which engineers and geologists of the conservation department's geological survey are following developments in the growing Howell gas field.

Geologists' special interest is due to the Howell wells' production from the Guelph-Salina formation, a rock layer that underlies much of the lower peninsula but has been tapped elsewhere only by the Freer well in Clare county and a now plugged well at Lawkawlin at Howell. Production is obtained at about 4,000 feet, but farther north this formation is much deeper, underlying the rocks from which most of Michigan's oil and gas extracted to date have come.

The discovery well in the Howell field was completed Oct. 21, 1946; seven other wells have since been drilled in, and drilling is still in progress. Geologists say years of drilling may be required to explore the potential production of the Guelph-Salina formation, not only near Howell, but throughout the southern Michigan basin.

Current gas production from the eight high pressure Howell wells is eight million cubic feet a day, for house heating and industrial use. This is about an eighth of Michigan's total gas production and less than a twentieth as much as the gas imported daily from the southwest, but proximity to the Detroit market increases the economic value. A valuable by-product of the gas production is the liquid "condensate," which yields high test gasoline and other petroleum products.

Tip To Help Retard Root Growth in Drains

The problem of roots growing into drains has long troubled many people. Willows, poplars, and other types of trees having large root growth are difficult to keep out of drains.

A. J. Bell, agricultural engineer at Michigan State college, has a tip that will help to relieve the situation. He recommends dissolving one-half pound of copper sulphate in one gallon of warm water. This solution should be poured down the drain weekly.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Troop III—Jan. 7, 1948
The first thing we did was take down the decorations which we had at our party.

The meeting started with the secretary's and treasurer's reports. Sandra Baldwin took Judy Davison's place as treasurer today. We are going to make a Girl Scout and an American flag. We also planned to make posters, one with our promise and one with the motto. We planned that everyone should bring a few books for our library and we elected Kay Keeny for our January librarian. We then closed the meeting and played games.

Soil May Build or Weaken Our Bodies

Value of Food Depends On Mineral Fertility
"We are what we eat" and "what we eat depends on the soil that produces it," declares Dr. William A. Albrecht, University of Missouri.
"Human health troubles often come from poor nutrition which weakens the body. With its defenses down the body is less able to resist the attacks of bacteria and other forces."
"Foods from some soils provide only fuel for energy, other soils support crops that carry something extra—body building materials. Where rainfall is high and where virgin forests once covered the land, plants are barely able to put together any more than fuel foods for themselves and animals. Properly managed with lime, fertilizers and legumes, these soils can be built to put into crops these body building values.
"On the more fertile soils of the hard wheat belt, the former buffalo prairies, where the rainfall is less, plants are able to synthesize much more than just fuel. Because of the mineral fertility left in the soil foods grown here contain body building, bone making values.

"Neglecting to put fertility such as barnyard manure, green manures, lime, and other fertilizers back into soils, to balance crop removal pushes crops on these soils toward 'fuel only' crops. These 'fuel only' crops mean poorer growth and lower health values. The declining fertility of our soils is a decline in the health of our soils, of our plants and of ourselves."

Insoluble Grit Aids Chicken's Digestion

Some insoluble grit, usually granite or river gravel, will be eaten by hens if it is available. It assists the gizzard in grinding grains and coarse feeds that might cause impaction of the digestive tract. Fine ground feed can be digested satisfactorily without grit being available. Oyster shell and limestone rock particles sometimes are used as grit but the digestive juices break these down rapidly and thus make an excess of calcium available. Grit commonly is kept before hens at all times, although some producers prefer to feed it at intervals of 10 days to two weeks.

How to Defrost and Clean Your Home Freezer

Home freezers can be easily defrosted and cleaned if a few simple rules are followed, points out the Country Home editor of Capper's Farmer, one of the best known farm magazines.
Here are some of her suggestions:
For a complete cleaning, remove foods and place them in a cardboard container, or wrap them in newspapers. Scrape the frost from strips and liner walls with a spatula or piece of hard wood. Do not use an ice pick or any other pointed sharp instrument.
Clean the exterior regularly with a mild soap and water or a liquid wax which adds luster and protects the surface. Once a year—perhaps in the late spring—clean the surface of the condenser with a stiff brush or vacuum cleaner attachment.
To shut down a home freezer, turn it off. Remove the contents. Defrost and clean the interior, mopping water from the bottom. Leave the lid open so air circulates inside.

Ratproofing Helps To Cut Food Losses
All granaries, corn cribs, apple cellars, and other storages should be ratproofed, say Michigan State college extension specialists.
Line granaries with metal whenever possible, or install concrete footings or projecting metal flashings above all foundations. Sacked feeds, especially high-protein feeds, should be stored away from walls on platforms a foot or more above the floor.
Standard Liners Bring Results
Feed Throws Away
One-fourth of the working time of farmers is spent in producing food which is thrown away before reaching the consumer. The waste on leafy vegetables runs as high as 43 per cent.

Farm people who attend the Farmers' Week at Michigan State College, Jan. 26 to 30 will find that an outstanding program of general interest has been arranged.

Each department of the school of agriculture will hold its own meetings during the week and general programs will be held during the late afternoon and evenings.

Tuesday afternoon's speaker will be Mrs. Ray Sayre, Acworth, president of the Associated Country Women of the World. This program will be of special interest to the women who will hear Mrs. Sayre tell of her visit to Europe last summer. Her topic will be "Europe as I see it."

Speaker for the Thursday program will be Dr. Daniel A. Poling, New York, editor of the Christian Herald. His subject will be "A Program for American Defense and Peace." Dr. Poling served as a member of the president's commission on universal military training.

Evening programs are scheduled for each night in the MSC auditorium or the fieldhouse or at both places.

Departmental meetings will get underway Monday, Jan. 26, with Dairy Day. Breed associations will hold their general and business meetings during the day.

Sugar beets and horses will be featured on Tuesday, although all departments will feature livestock day with meetings of swine, cattle, and sheep men. Ewes Can Produce Extra Lamb Crops

Ewes that have sound mouths and sound udders are suitable for several more crops of lambs, points out Graydon Black, extension and mat husbandry specialist at Michigan State college.

Often this kind of ewe can be purchased reasonably at livestock auctions, farm auctions, or privately from farmers who find it necessary to go out of the sheep business for some reason.

ABA Still Increasing in Membership over Most of Michigan

Inseminator manager James Bradbury, Directors Clifford Bradbury, Lowell Spike and Secretary-treasurer, Floyd Fowler, of the Chelsea Local, Michigan Artificial Breeders' Co-op, Inc., attended a meeting at Adrian Court House Jan. 8.

The meeting was one of a series being held throughout the state by A. C. Baltzer and George Parson's Dairy Extension specialists from Michigan State college.

Their purpose is to meet with all inseminators and secretaries, answer their questions and assist in correcting their local problems. This is the first time these meetings have been held since the ABA started, over three years ago.

Representatives were present from all three Washtenaw county locals, also from Monroe, Jackson, Lenawee and Hillsdale counties, 26 men in all. After a short morning session, all of the men were served dinner at a nearby restaurant, with Mr. Baltzer acting as host for the Central Association.

In the afternoon Mr. Baltzer met with the secretaries in one room, and Mr. Parsons, with the inseminators in another.

Mr. Baltzer reported that there are now 110 local ABA units representing over 100,000 cows in the state, with three starting in the Upper Peninsula soon. Semen is to be shipped to these later by plane, with the eventual shipment of semen direct to all inseminators by plane being contemplated if it should prove practical.

A new barn is now under construction which will house 36 bulls when completed. A pre-fabricated barn for immediate use is nearing completion and will house 82 bulls. There are from 50 to 55 bulls at the Central at this time. The laboratory also is to be doubled in size as soon as possible.

The increased use of artificial breeding has increased interest in this Dairy Herd Improvement Association. Mr. Baltzer reports that there are now 120 DHIA units operating in the state and would be over 150 if men were available for the field work necessary.

Inseminator-manager Bradbury reports that the returns are coming in faster now in our Chelsea Local. The first set of twins was reported by Walter Miles of 1880 Baker road, Dexter. The month of December was the busiest yet for Bradbury, when he took care of 116 calls.

Corn Protein
Corn protein, comprising about 10 per cent of the dry substance of native corn, is now being put to many new uses, although until recently its sole market was as stock feed.
