State-Wide Tid Bits

If the weather has been hot, the political picture most certainly has not.

Williams, who has not yet announced he will run again, has been crossing frequently between the governor's summer home on Mackinac Island and the mainland.

How does industry feel about Michigan? A survey by the State Department of Economic Development shows manufacturers like proximity to manufacturers' market.

They dislike high wage levels, low productivity—especially in Detroit—distance from markets and distance from steel sources.

No more enrollment padding has been found in Michigan schools. Twelve districts have been audited, 288 yet to go.

Michigan now ranks fifth in total motor truck registrations.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER
 The Christian's Respect for Law
 Isaiah for August 19: Luke 20: 19-26; 1 Peter 2: 13-17
 Memory Selection: Luke 20-23

IN THEIR EFFORTS to entangle Jesus in his discourse and to bring him to say something that would offend either the people or the Roman authorities, the scribes and chief priests set spies upon him to report upon what he said. These spies asked him if it were lawful to give tribute unto Caesar. When Jesus had asked to be shown the tribute money and had seen on a coin the image of Caesar, he said unto his questioners, "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's."

Thus, instead of being himself entangled, Jesus answered an important question with great wisdom, and laid down a principle that may well be depended upon to the present time. And neither the people nor the Roman authorities could take any offence at what Jesus said.

Turning to the first Epistle of Peter, we find the writer urging strict obedience, to men in places of authority, and he closes with the exhortation: "Fear God, honor the king."

So may we know that Christian living demands the right regard for the established institutions of the country, as knowing that government, in its origin and authority, is from God, and that it has a rightful claim upon every man. "The powers that be are ordained of God," and good citizenship is a part of Christian living.

THIS PETTY PACE

BY BROWN LEE YATES

By LITTLE HULL

WE THE PEOPLE of the United States permit our congress to permit our President to permit the United Nations to vote away the lives of three to five hundred thousand of our old Chinese allies, now on the island of Formosa, we will be punished just as surely as we are now being punished for having forsaken these same allies while they still controlled the mainland of China. To cold-bloodedly hand the remains of the Nationalist army over to the Red executioners will stretch the patience of a conscientious God and the respect of our fellow nations.

But aside from the indecency and horror of such an act, we must consider the strategic absurdity of "ceding" to our enemies the very center of our Pacific defense line. What nation on earth—except ours—would even dream of such weak stupidity?

If the administration of President Truman permits this act of sabotage, it cannot be amended when, and if, we elect another President in 1952. The harm will have been done. A glance at the map will demonstrate the fatal break in our Pacific defense line if Formosa goes to the enemy.

If the question of Formosa's fate is voted upon by the United Nations, there is a strong likelihood that they will elect to appease the Chinese and Russian rulers. Then our administration can claim that the matter was legally out of its hands and that they could do nothing about it. This must not occur! It is the people must instruct our representatives in congress to instruct the President to see that Formosa remains out of the hands of our deadly enemies no matter what any other nations may say. Maybe the continuation of the war in Korea will depend upon our surrendering our position as regards this question. Even then we must not weaken. Our worst enemy has been our weakness in dealing with the strong man in the Kremlin.

Fast Baseball Game Recorded in 1887 Copy of Chelsea Herald

James Henry Mullen, of Detroit, brother of Mrs. Fred Barth, of Lima township, has a Chelsea Herald, dated June 16, 1887, in which he found an amusing account of a ball game in the column captioned "Lima Beams." A. Allison was editor and publisher of the paper at that time.

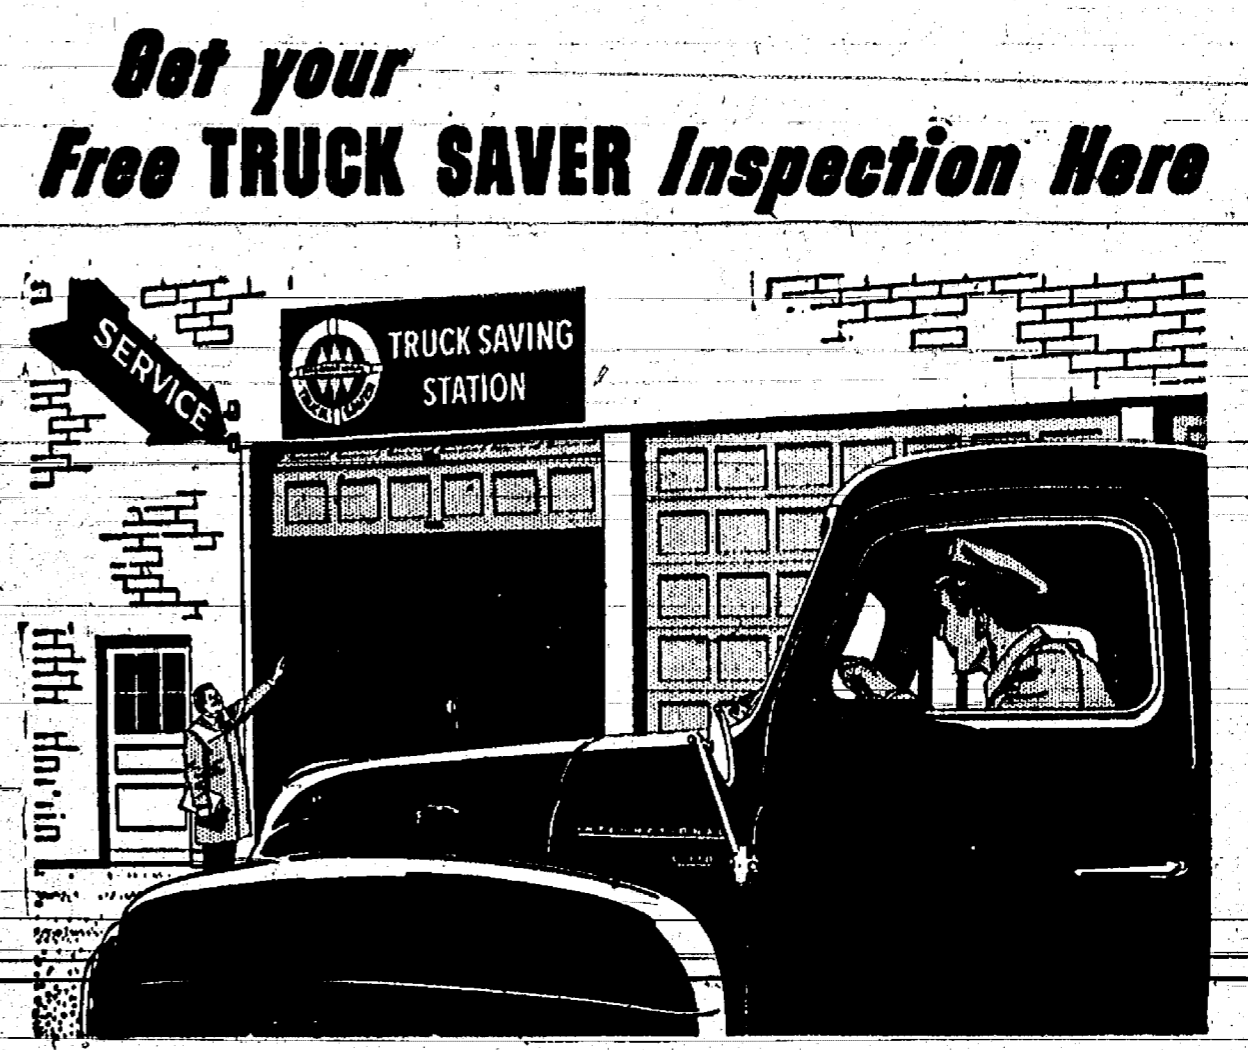

The story of the ball game was written up as follows:

"The match between the Hayseeds and the Windpounders are off picnic day according to agreement. The Windpounders demonstrated their ability to pound something besides wind by knocking the Hayseeds out of time. There was good playing on both sides but nothing could withstand the heavy batting of the Windpounders. Score 66 to 30."

The article was signed "Oy Shike."

The Carl Schwiegers entertained informally at dinner at their home on Island Lake road Sunday, guests being Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Green, of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Bumpus, of Plainfield, Dave Reid and James Almond, of Chelsea, Joann Risner, of Paintsville, Ky., and Billy and Barbara Hunter, of Island Lake.

Wife's Eyes Helped Him
Into the post of Attorney General of Rhode Island stepped 43-year-old William E. Powers, inaugurated for his second term. Conventionally enough, Powers ascribed his success to his wife, said she had helped him through law school by reading 3,000 cases to him. Not so conventional was her reason: Powers is blind.

They Like it a Million!

Last week Buick set a proud record. The millionth Dynaflo Drive* was delivered to a happy owner.

That's a new peak in popularity for modern drives which take you from a standing start to any cruising speed desired with a smooth, unfaltering swoop of power.

"The biggest advance since the self-starter" is what the motorwise press called this Buick development back in 1948—and now a million owners can tell you how right that proved to be.

Here, they found, was a basically different way of delivering power. It was the first drive to get completely away from any gears which function in a series of fixed stages—the first to apply supercharging principles that did new tricks with spinning oil.

And how folks loved it!

They loved the freedom from strain in traffic. And the new "sweetness" of ride which every passenger could enjoy.

They loved the command it gives them of every traffic situation—and the relaxation it contributes to a long day's drive.

They loved its extra safety in slippery going, and the improved control in mud and snow.

As they pited up experience, they loved the unexpected savings of rear tire wear and the reduced strain on all driving parts, from engine to differential.

And finally—they loved what it does for the value of a Buick, as reflected in the extra dollars that Dynaflo* adds to the resale price of a car.

Have you sampled this driving sensation?

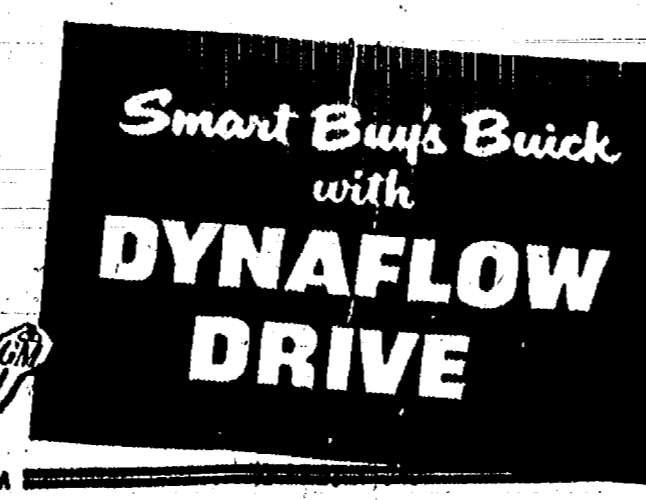

There's no time like the present for discovering the thrills that more than a million Buick owners already know.

Report from Washington

By Congressman George Meader

Washington, D. C.—Laws cannot administer themselves. When we depart from natural economic controls and operate under man-made controls, it is essential that the administration of those controls be as near perfect as possible if the controls are to be effective. The failure to halt inflation is not because the Congress passed a bad control law a year ago. It is because of the manner in which that law has been administered. That administration should be efficient, business-like, prompt, sympathetic to those who are subject to the controls, and no more onerous than is absolutely necessary. Instead, it has been inept, inefficient and ineffective.

The proof of that condition is contained in the experiences of many persons in the Second District of Michigan who have sought my aid after encountering red-tape and procrastination by the bureaucrats when their businesses were threatened by unworkable, ununderstandable and unnecessary, complicated and involved regulations and procedures.

Early in January, one small civilian goods manufacturer learned he would be forced out of business March 1 by an order controlling the use of copper. On January 10, he came to Washington and asked the National Production Authority for a copper allotment to keep his plant operating until he could locate some defense work. He stressed that closing of the plant would seriously disrupt the economy of the small community in which it is located. Although he had only 75 employees, this concern was the largest in the community.

On January 17, his request was denied, but almost immediately the National Production Authority reported it had reconsidered, because of the community hardship involved, and said it would allocate some copper to keep the plant operating.

The manufacturer was instructed to file a formal request for reconsideration, which he did. On February 21, the manufacturer reported no action had resulted. Inquiry brought out that his reconsideration request never had been received. Promptly, he filed a duplicate request, and on February 23, the National Production Authority reported again that he would be supplied.

On April 23, the manufacturer reported the agreement had been altered, and he again was in danger of shutdown. This time he came to Washington and a conference with National Production Authority officials brought a new promise of relief. Meanwhile, he had spent three months of constant uncertainty as to whether he would be able to stay in business, and had suffered the loss of time, effort and expense of repeated letter-writing, telephoning and trips to Washington. And his position still is just as uncertain.

A manufacturer doing defense work went through much the same procedure to keep from closing down his plant because critical materials supposedly assured to him under National Production Authority defense orders were being siphoned off to civilian goods industries.

Obviously there is a serious lack of coordination and planning when defense contractors cannot be assured of supply on the one hand, while, on the other, plants making civilian goods supposedly assured to them cannot obtain defense contracts.

The same loose direction in defense contract issuance is evidenced by the experience of one fairly large manufacturer. Despite the fact that this firm had an excellent record of military production in World War II, it has been seeking defense work since before the first of the year, and now is virtually idle; it still has no government contract. Meanwhile, work which this plant is equipped to do is being let in large volume to a competitor who has received millions of dollars worth of certificates of necessity for plant expansions in which to produce defense goods.

This occurred in spite of the requirement that no certificates of necessity shall be issued until it has been determined that there are no available existing facilities to do the job for which the certificates of necessity is asked. The result is economic disruption in one community and an unnecessary use of critical construction materials and loss in defense production time in another part of the country.

And there is the further contrast of the Hazelton Steel Corporation, with a capital of $600, which was specially granted a defense loan of nearly $3,000,000 and certificates of necessity for 85 per cent of that amount, even before those who granted these unusual favors had received the reports of the technicians who investigated the application. The technicians recommended denial because the applicants had nothing at risk and no

Rochester — Life guard Arthur Cox used a new type of artificial respiration to revive a 12-year-old boy, who was hauled unconscious from the Salt Water Swimming Pool on Rochester road, Troy township, Saturday afternoon.

Arthur Courville, 108 Cherry street, Troy township was notified lying on the floor beneath six feet of water by some of the other bathers; Cox was summoned and brought the boy up. The life guard, age 22, of Detroit, applied a respiration method he had just learned recently. He grabbed the victim under the lowest rib lifting him four to six inches and then letting him drop. The system revived Arthur in a few minutes according to Richard Mosher, pool owner.—Rochester Clarion.

Manchester—Mrs. V. W. Downing, graduated Thursday, Aug. 2 with an A. B. degree from Western Michigan College and on Friday night and Mrs. Downing left on a vacation, part of which will be spent in Thessalon, Ontario.—Manchester Enterprise.

Buchanan—The gypsy tribe may be commercialized, but they're still pure gypsy under worthy skins, reports Mrs. John Topash, who had a Roman caravan of eight traveling carnies, heading for the Erie area, last week that came to an end Tuesday morning.

Fact was, only four of the trailers stayed in her tourist camp, the rest at a nearby neighbor's place. But the trailer of Pappy Mitchell, who was in the caravan, was at Topash's so that was head-quarters. All of the families there were Mitchell's either by birth or marriage for they travel in patriarchal clans. And Pappy was a king with a regular traveling palace—a trailer 82 feet long, only three weeks in use.

Where did they get the where-withal? Not from telling fortunes or stealing chickens. The modern gypsy has a business which is not a racket. In the caravan were three trucks carrying ladders and pressure painting equipment. Every day while they were at the camp they were busy fulfilling painting contracts, spraying aluminum, painting iron and steel, painting, or spraying asphalt on old asphalt shingles.—Berrien County Record.

Standish Closing of the Commercial Bank of Telfree, Livingstonsville, Pa., at West Branch, Pa. Friday gave this section of the country its greatest financial jolt since the bank holiday in 1932.

First indication of the closing came Saturday morning when bank patrons found the door closed and the receiver's notice posted Saturday morning. The bank, one of the oldest in northeastern Michigan, has played an important part in the development of the Ogemaw community. D. Eugene Telfree was president and principal stockholder.

All assets of the bank will be used to pay off outstanding obligations to depositors and Federal credit creditors. Without Federal deposit insurance, however, depositors are not guaranteed full restoration of their accounts.—Armenac County Independent.

Dexter—The new parsonage at St. Andrew's Evangelical and Reformed Church in Dexter is almost ready for the rock laid and plastered, after coming along ahead of schedule in construction.

While some work has been hired, most of the labor has been donated by members and friends of the church. Electrical wiring was done and was a considerable amount of lumber in the form of trees.

The trees were cut, seasoned and then taken to a sawmill where they were cut up into boards. Some of this lumber is oak for inside trim, willow for panelling in the study and black walnut for fireplace trim.

Rev. Herbert H. Schowe, pastor of the church, stated this week that everything that has been used and some materials that still have not been used, and all labor bills are paid for so the parsonage, as it stands is all paid for. Dexter Leader.

In the Putney Corners neighborhood a short time ago. The first report of seeing the large cats came out about two years ago.

Early this spring the residents of the Putney Corners area again began seeing the cats and their tracks.

Three weeks ago William Corby shot at one of the big cats and knocked several big tufts of tawny colored hair from its back.

On one occasion the cats were tracked to a small fox colony where their trail ended but the ground was covered with the bones of small foxes which had apparently been caught and eaten.

As the matter now stands Conservation Officer Joslin stated that he would like to wait until fall and then import a pack of specially trained cat hounds and hunt the animals down.—Benzie County Patriot.

Northville — Northville had a part in the big 250th birthday celebration in Detroit. Through the courtesy of Conrad E. Langfield, Northville entered a float which carried the slogan "The Little Switzerland of Wayne County." The float held a replica of the Northville Spring, and a picnic table with green grass surrounding it. Picnickers who enjoyed nibbling on fried chicken as they moved down Woodward avenue were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Carrington, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carrington and daughter, Ruth Ellen, and Neil and Peter Locke.—Northville Record.

Northville—The Northville State Hospital was visited Friday by members of the joint legislative committee on mental health.

The group was headed by Dr. P. N. Brown, who will be the medical superintendent of the institution. They inspected the six-story power house and the eight-story central unit which is said to be the model of all state institutions. The unit is expected to be ready for occupancy of 600 patients by March 1, 1952.

Committee members who inspected the unit were Senators G. Elwood Bonine, Don VanderWerp and Feliz Flynn and Representatives Gerald L. Murphy and Joseph Warner of Ypsilanti.—Northville Record.
