

CONTINUED HIGH BUSINESS LEVEL SEEN

First Half of 1954 To Continue at Near Present Standards

By Roger W. Babson I do not now believe in the theory of most economists—that business will fall off 10 per cent in 1954, with a greater decline in net earnings. My feeling is that everyone will unite forces to hold up business, at least during the first half, to its approximate 1953 average. This can be done by expanding research, increasing advertising appropriations, extending further credits, and obtaining labor's cooperation.

The regular work of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis must continue to be provided for together with the research toward prevention and for this reason, Mrs. Sorensen pointed out, additional funds must be secured, wherever possible.

Oil Strike Made South of Manchester

First Successful Drilling Attempt in Washtenaw County

Washtenaw county gained considerable attention all over the state during the past week when oil was discovered on the Charles H. Curtis farm on Clinton-Manchester road two days before Christmas.

This part of the state has never been recommended by geologists as possible major oil producing territory but various companies have nevertheless tried to locate the valuable commodity here anyway.

During the fall, the Sun Oil company sank an unsuccessful well on the Edwin Horning farm on Waldo road and approximately ten years ago test wells were drilled on the Joe Merkel property, now almost in the center of the Chrysler Proving Ground. At that time other drilling took place in several locations in this area, all unsuccessful.

The human mind is a funny thing. It is not so preoccupied with one problem and forgets about another. A good example is a person carrying a bunch of packages and crossing the street. Maybe they are groceries — too many piled into bags that are tall and awkward to carry. Perhaps they are Christmas packages carefully gift wrapped. Keeping them properly balanced and not dropping them in the street seems important — more important than the fact that you can't see over them and that you are walking in the traffic stream. When you see a shopper crossing the street keep this in mind: Do that person's traffic thinking for them. Be prepared to make an emergency stop or turn.

Before Revolution Russians Welcomed New Year Heartily

The revolutionary Russia welcomed the New Year with booming cannon—a hundred shots fired at midnight.

The observance of the New Year on January 1, according to the Gregorian calendar, was instituted by Peter the Great in 1700. The evening of December 31, known as St. Sylvester's Eve, was the time for great fun and enjoyment.

In Petrograd (later St. Petersburg, and now Leningrad) the streets were gayly decorated with flags and lanterns, and thronged with merry-makers. After the booming cannon ushered in the New Year, the Czar formally received the good wishes of his subjects.

On New Year's Day the Winter Palace was opened to society. Festively reigned throughout the city, hospitality and charity were the watchwords from palace to cottage, at least, at New Year's time.

The mythical Oxen was supposed to be around about this time. He was usually depicted astride a bear, symbolically associated with the pork served for New Year dinner and the symbolism of Aryan descent.

Oxen's name (so like the French words for oats) suggests his influence over matters pertaining to the harvest. Since earliest times, Russian boys were accustomed to go from house to house, encouraging everyone 'across' the gulf between the Past and Future Year, while scattering oats and other grains in petition for a bountiful harvest.
