ELLEN M. SOLOMONSON
New MEA President

Upper Peninsula Teacher Elected To Head MEA

"Our greatest asset today is education. It is more than ever being encouraged for all. We have been given the challenge not only to meet the education needs at all levels but also to provide educational opportunity for all people. Education will continue to preserve our democratic way of life."

Miss Ellen M. Solomonson makes that firm statement as she enters her term of office as the twenty-eighth president of the Michigan Education Association today, July 1.

Miss Solomonson, who is head of the English department at Sault Ste. Marie Junior High School, succeeds Milburn P. Anderson in the office of MEA president. Anderson is superintendent of schools in Berkley.

Of signal import in connection with Miss Solomonson's taking office as MEA president is that the Sault Sainte Marie board of education volunteered to give her a year's complete release with full compensation to provide her with the greatest freedom for discharging her new duties.

A resident of the Upper Peninsula for all but two years of her lifetime, Miss Solomonson received her BA degree from Michigan State Normal College and has taught in Sault Ste. Marie for the past 28 years. She is the second president of the MEA which the Upper Peninsula has provided and the sixth woman attaining the Association's presidency.

Affiliations and achievements in Miss Solomonson's career include life memberships in the National Education Association and the Michigan Education Association; she served as the second president of the MEA department of classroom teachers in 1946-47; and she has held offices including presidency of both local and state Business and Professional Women's Club.

INSIDE THE CAPITOL

By Clair L. Taylor
Supt. of Public Instruction

Comparatively, Michigan is a young state. From the standpoint of the discovery of America, we are less than 600 years old and only slightly over 300 years since the landing of the Pilgrims.

We have just recently celebrated the first Michigan Week, when all schools had special programs reviewing the recorded facts of our development.

During the early economic development stages, the Michigan territory became a part of the great Northwest Territory and was governed by the Ordinance of 1787, which provided, "Religion, morality, and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged."

In 1837, Michigan became one of the states of the United States with its own constitution. This constitution provided for schools and the means of education. The Legislature of the state has wisely given authority to communities for the carrying out of an educational program designed to meet the needs of each local community through a school district system, each with its own elected board of education.

As the needs for education in the early days developed, a number of school districts were organized, until in 1911 the state had 7,333 local districts. These all were organized around natural pioneer communities which represented the economy and society of that time.

As time has passed, the economy and society changed, we note that the number of school districts has declined. Districts have changed only when the people within the community have decided the change is necessary.

This process has been moving forward slowly and at the present time has reached a more rapid pace than previously. The number of districts currently within Michigan is 4,345. All communities are concerned with education for their children and they best can meet the needs of the day when the community as a whole has an understanding of the educational conditions and needs of the day and realizes that as conditions within the world change it is necessary for our schools to change so that the graduates of our schools will be not only citizens of their community but will be enlightened citizens of the state, the nation and the world.

We are faced with many problems to produce citizens of this kind. These problems are in general those dealing with finance, teacher shortage, increasing enrollments, and additional facilities. There is no magic formula that can be developed to solve any of those immediately. We can, however, see improvements and improvements come in direct proportion to the understanding that the public has of all these problems. I have faith that the people will find the solution for each problem as it arises and hope that as each generation solves a problem it realizes that the solution is not for all time. Education always has changed and it always will. We always will be a young nation and a young state so long as we are willing to accept change and adjust our educational program to meet changing conditions and needs.

Extension of Unemployment Benefit Period Causes Administrative Snags

Application and individual explanations of the new law which raises unemployment benefits to a maximum of $42 a week for 26 weeks is expected to create administrative difficulties for the Michigan Employment Security Commission since it became effective next Sunday, June 27, Rex Nottingham, Ann Arbor branch office manager said Saturday.

"Added to our already heavy claim load, we expect a big increase in claimants for additional benefits," with the duration of claims extended from 20 to 26 weeks on that date. Everybody whose claim is in good shape, whose benefit year has not expired, and who has not yet drawn his 20th check, will be able to request the extended benefits. Those who have 39 credit weeks (calendar weeks of unemployment in covered establishments during each of which they earned in excess of $15) if they are qualified in all other respects may be eligible for an additional six payments.

"Exhaustions of benefits have fallen off 50 per cent in the past few weeks. This is attributed to claimants who are waiting to draw their 20th payment after June 27th," Nottingham said.

"There have been many unofficial explanations of this Act and particularly of this provision, which have resulted in misunderstandings which will have to be ironed out, individually."

As a result, there may be slow processing of claims for the first few days. We have new employees on the Commission staff, and they and our older employees as well, are being trained in the technical aspects of the most complicated law in the Michigan statute books. They are also being instructed to be patient, tactful, and polite to claimants and employers as well.

"In return," we are asking the public's consideration and cooperation during this interim period which may be extremely trying to both of us until we get the gears meshing smoothly.

"This is the first time such drastic changes have been made in the benefit structure since the law was first enacted in 1936. Secondly, there will be an addition of nearly $400 to the total benefits available to families of claimants who qualify for them. Furthermore, there is a knotty problem which probably will be solved in the courts and that is the Attorney General's ruling that a spouse may not be claimed as a dependent by a claimant."

"This is also the first time that any dependents other than children have been allowable. Brothers, sisters, or parents over 65 who have been dependent upon the claimant for 90 days now will be eligible for dependencies, but not spouses, unless the courts rule otherwise.

"Benefit rates have been raised from a minimum of $6 to $10 weekly and maximum from $27 to $30 for single men without dependents and from $35 to $42 for family men effective June 27," Nottingham said.

WHITE-TAILED SQUIRRELS REPORTED IN VILLAGE

A number of people in the eastern part of the village have been reporting that they have seen white-tailed squirrels in the vicinity.

Saturday, Miss Lillian Foster called to say she had seen one that day near her home on Park street.

The animals appear to be the common fox squirrel species except for their white tails.

Conservation Officer Donley Boyer, when questioned about the squirrels, said he had received no reports of white-tailed squirrels and no recent reports of albinos.

The problem of economizing—of making one's paycheck go around—is one that constantly bothers almost all of us. After we get through paying food, housing, medical, dental, and clothing expenses, then we come up against telephone bills, automobile expenses, insurance payments, overdue bills of various sorts, and the thousand and one other things that offer themselves in exchange for our limited income. All this is quite aside from our need to save for possible future emergencies, for sending the children through college, and for our own old age.

There are several possible solutions to this problem, none of which can be said to be entirely satisfactory.

One possibility is to ignore the problem by borrowing any extra cash you may need. Banks and small loan companies are doing a flourishing lending business today as testimony to the many millions who are using this device to solve the difficulty. You can borrow without collateral, without co-signers, without endorers. And without seeing the consequences that inevitably ensue when you have to start repaying the loan, you then find that the problem is worse than it ever was, with more and more of your paycheck going to repay past debts and less and less left for the current expenses which are as great as ever.

A second possibility is sharply to curtail one or more of your major expenses, such as those associated with clothing, your car, or your food bill. But this solution would involve such a severe change in most peoples' habit patterns that it can hardly be considered as more than a laughable suggestion.

The last solution is to try to live within your paycheck by the traditional method of budgeting—listing all of your various expenses, comparing them with your paycheck, cutting down on luxuries and things you need less than other things, keeping a record of how each penny is spent, and seeing how and where you can economize more next month than you did the one just ended.

This method has definite possibilities, but if you start it you might as well resign yourself really to doing without some things you now enjoy. You will find out how much you really can afford to spend on various items and find out surprisingly how much you actually are spending on them. Unless you are prepared to do some cutting down where you find it really counts, you might as well not waste time doing all the bothersome paper work. Just keeping the records, in itself, won't solve the problem.

Progress Reported in Basic Cancer Research

By Harry M. Nelson, M. D.
Immediate Past President
American Cancer Society

EDITOR'S NOTE: When Dr. Nelson gave a brief report at the annual meeting of the American Cancer Society, he presented such an encouraging picture of progress being made in cancer research that we felt every one should hear it. He agreed to send us some of these facts for publication in case we are pleased to present them.

In general, it may be said that the life of a cancer patient is in the hands of the first physician he sees. Certainly, this is a challenge to every general practitioner. Because of such newer developments in treating the patient with cancer—radical surgical procedures, more precise radiation therapy techniques, recent advances in medical treatment, the practicing physician has a greater responsibility than ever before to recognize cancer earlier in his patient and to promptly institute proper treatment.

Cancer is more curable today than it ever has been. There are few cancer cases no matter how advanced, in which there is nothing to be done. No disease of comparable magnitude in terms of mortality, long-term invalidism, economic loss and social burden is so susceptible of immediate and substantial relief as cancer. The latest data on the diagnosis and treatment of cancer is being made available to all physicians. This is being done through bulletins, a cancer journal, brochures and booklets which cover the latest detection, diagnostic and treatment information on cancer.

The latest in the series of films for doctors released by the National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society has been released and is available to hospital groups or physicians by applying to the American Cancer Society or the Department of Health. It is the fifth such production and covers "Cancer of the Oral Cavity."

The distribution of cancer monographs to every physician has been continued. The coming year will show even greater increase in the distribution of monographs as there are two more scheduled for editing.

Ten years ago, 187,000 persons died of this disease. Today, cancer is killing about 225,000 Americans shifted to include clinical investigation as well as basic laboratory research.

There is general agreement that in the long-range view, research is the most important part of an all-out cancer control program every year. By 1963, the total may reach more than 270,000. That 270,000 depends to a considerable degree or how energetically and effectively we, of the medical profession, work. Unless the disease is diagnosed earlier and proper treatment instituted at once, unless medical research can find further preventives or cures for this family of deadly diseases, no less than 22 million Americans now living will die of cancer. It is not a disease that strikes only late in life. Many of the victims are in their forties or fifties and more than half are under the age of 65. Nor does cancer spare the very young. It kills more growing children than several infectious diseases together and twice as many as polio.

The urgency and extent of the cancer problem in this country requires the coordinated efforts of every physician, the voluntary health agency with its thousands of volunteers and an adequate progressive government program initiated and closely followed by a well-informed Congress. This year, Congress appropriated $20,237,000 for its cancer control program. None of these monies are to be used for construction. This is the greatest sum ever appropriated by Congress for cancer control.

A public health program, integrated closely with the work of the American Cancer Society and supplemented by the efforts of private foundations and medical schools, has made possible a united attack on the disease on all fronts. To be certain that the public's money, both private and taxed, is spent to the best possible advantage with the least duplication, the National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society work closely together. The Boards are inter-related.

In 1945, there were very few competent scientists interested in the cancer problem. It became necessary then to establish research fellowships and research scholars so that young, promising scientists would go into cancer research. During the past nine years, the American Cancer Society has sponsored 1,773 grants-in-aid. There were 240 institutional research grants as well as 452 research fellowships and scholar grants; 75 young doctors are being financed for a continuing training in the diagnosis and treatment of cancer. Since 1948, 277 young physicians have been so trained. About 1,800 scientists are devoting all or part of their time to cancer research.

It may be said, then, that a truly national research attack is going forward in this field, including in its scope, the major scientific institutions, schools of medicine, research hospitals and hundreds of individual investigators. For the past five or six years alone, between 25 and 30 new cancer research centers have been constructed.

The build-up in physical plants is by no means the only feature of cancer research. Significant changes in the scientific approach have occurred. The most noteworthy trend is that emphasis has been placed on the study of the causes of cancer. It is not likely that more than one-half of its victims can be cured. Only a better understanding of the fundamental causes of cancer and the discovery of more effective treatment methods can achieve the ultimate goal.

We who have seen the federal appropriations grow from year to year, are grateful to this important source of funds to fight cancer in the laboratories, and I can add, candidly, that the people in the National Cancer Institute appreciate it, too. We realize that much of the initiative to have these appropriations increased stems from the vigorous efforts of the American Cancer Society. I think that we can be satisfied with the progress in our laboratories. We can feel that we are providing much of the support that is needed. We must continue to look to the needs of these people because somewhere in the mind of man is the answer that will spell freedom from fear of cancer for all time.

Clinical research, which of course leans heavily on knowledge gained by basic scientists, embraces three main fields of interest—prevention, diagnosis, and therapy. Public health and industrial groups are giving more attention than ever before to the prevention of cancer. Even though the concerted effort along this approach is relatively new, undoubtedly some cancers are being prevented. Evidence is clear that a few types of cancer are being averted in certain types of occupational groups where known hazards have been eliminated. Early recognition and adequate handling of precancerous lesions are warding off some tumors too.

A large amount of information useful in further prevention is expected to come out of the extensive studies on environmental cancer-causing hazards being carried out by state, university and laboratory groups.

Of the small number of different types of cancer that have a known or suspected cause, most appear to be the result of exposure to certain physical, chemical or biological agents of the environment. The most important of them is lung cancer. Several possible causes for the increase in lung cancer exist. Among them are air pollution, automobile fumes, dust from asphalt roads, and smoking.

It is not the number of deaths this year from lung cancer, as bad as it is, that is causing us so much concern as it is the fact that each year about 1,400 more Americans die of lung cancer than in the preceding year. This is an increase of 5 per cent each year. This increase, then, is quite likely the consequence of an environmental exposure recently become quite prevalent.

Statistics show the annual toll of lung cancer deaths among men rose from 6,600 in 1942 to 16,400 in 1952. It was estimated that 18,400 would die in 1953. The increase among women was from 2,200 in 1942 to 3,800 in 1952. Deaths from lung cancer are far higher in the urban areas than in the rural areas. The majority of victims are between 55 and 65 years of age.

The chemical attack on cancer continues to be the subject of intensive research. Many cancer damaging drugs have been developed and tested. Although no drug has achieved the status of a cancer cure, it can now be said that chemotherapy has been established as a valuable adjunct to surgery and radiation. This is shown by recent clinical demonstrations and growth-restraining properties of a number of hormonal and chemotherapeutic compounds, natural and synthetic, in advanced cancer of the prostate, breast cancer, malignant lymphomas, acute leukemia and multiple myeloma.

The list of these agents is not long. Their range of therapeutic activity is limited, their effects are transitory in short, the ideal anti-cancer drug is yet in sight; furthermore, it is unlikely that a single drug will be found which will control all the major types of cancer.

Among the drugs that have found a place in modern cancer therapeutics are nitrogen mustard, folic acid antagonists, triethylene melamine (TEM), sex hormones and several radioisotopes. Considerable effort is being devoted to attempts in devising a practical, general diagnostic test for cancer. Over the years, hundreds of such tests have been proposed, and since 1948 several university groups have been engaged in studies to evaluate old tests and to develop new ones. None of the diagnostic tests have proven to be sensitive or specific enough for clinical use. However, there are indications that significant changes occur in the body of the cancer patient which may be measurable in a diagnostic procedure.

One problem that disturbs many people is the claims made for methods of treatment that the medical profession has not accepted. As public knowledge grows of cancer and its seriousness, it is perhaps natural that press and reports of new methods of treatment should interest the public and be eagerly grasped by cancer patients and their families. The conscientious physician will seldom employ or advise the use of such therapy until scientific evidence has been accumulated by informed investigators. The thought that a useful agent or treatment might be unrecognized because of its unscientific presentation has disturbed many people. So, the American Medical Association, the American Cancer Society and the Food and Drug Administration co-sponsor a committee on cancer diagnosis and therapy. This committee is appointed by the National Research Council.

The Committee has met frequently to draft policies, procedures and criteria. It has assembled a large amount of information and has accepted several requests to evaluate specific drugs. We have, then, the assurance that physicians and scientists are ready and eager to receive and examine new responsible methods of diagnosis and treatment from any source.

While suitable general diagnostic tests appear to be still in the future, several specific tests are available in which some cancers can be identified in the early stages when the opportunity for control is greater. The most widely applicable of these is cytologic examination developed by Papanicolaou. The test is particularly useful as an aid in the diagnosis of cancer of the uterus and lungs.

The combination of this technique with palpation, adequate visualization and biopsy confirmation should result in definite progress in early detection of cervical cancer. With early discovery in the physician's office, followed by prompt adequate therapy, control of cervical cancer should be achieved within the foreseeable future.

Cytologic technique is useful also as an aid in the discovery of early cancer of the lung. The combination of this method with X-ray techniques and other diagnostic procedures affords a better opportunity for discovery of early lung cancer than ever before.

Variations of the original cytologic methods, such as the abrasive balloon technique, have been developed for the diagnosis of cancer of other sites. The abrasive balloon technique, applied with the X-ray examination, promises considerable improvement in the detection of gastric cancer.

At the Yates Clinic, where we are accumulating statistical data on cancer on the public at large, and evaluating various screening tests for cancer, and where we are acting as a teaching center for instructing interested physicians in the technique of cancer detection, 15,000 patients have undergone a complete history and physical examination. A pelvic examination with cervical-vaginal Papanicolaou smears, a sigmoidoscopic inspection, a complete blood count and urinalysis is part of the examination. Indirect laryngoscopy is done and appropriate X-rays are taken when symptoms warrant it.

The use of biopsy as a diagnostic tool is encouraged, as indicated by the fact that 10 per cent of all patients examined have a biopsy performed. The incidence of proven malignancy found approximate 2.3 per cent, while an additional 5 per cent are suspicious of malignancies.

Of the 12,015 women who have been examined, there have been 137 positive vaginal cervical smears or 1.14 per cent. Biopsies were positive in 90 per cent of the patients who had positive vaginal smears.

It is improbable that cancer control will be gained quickly. In the meantime, there are lives to be saved. We must control this disease to the fullest extent now. All the advances of modern medicine are useless unless they can be applied to the localized disease. Dividends of early diagnosis have been increased considerably by recent improvements in cancer therapy, namely, the heroic extensions of surgery, advances in radiation therapy and the introduction of new agents such as anticancer drugs, hormones and radioisotopes.

The remarkable refinements in cancer surgery are too well known to be repeated here. More radical surgery, made practical by advances in pre-operative and post-operative care, has expanded the concepts of operability. As a result, many operations once regarded as maximum procedures, have become commonplace, and some safety.

never seriously considered before, are being done with reasonable safety.

Effect of New Labor Savers Is Explained

Babson Park, Mass., July 7.—Readers wonder why I am optimistic as to the balance of the year. There are many reasons which I gave in my last week's Outlook. I now wish to emphasize the probable 1954 expenditures for new equipment and labor-saving machinery.

Office Workers Getting Scarcer
Although there is some reduction in the total income of wage-workers, it is mostly from reduction of hours and loss of overtime. This results in more leisure time and more money being spent on Do-It-Yourself improvements. This will stimulate retail sales.

There is not letup in the demand for office workers. They are being offered harder to get even at higher wages. Probably the demand from the various engineering sub-contractors is causing most of this; but the desire of present women workers to get married and have babies is a great factor.

Capital Expenditures Increasing
Expenditures for labor-saving devices are increasing, even though wages have stopped advancing. Companies are also enlarging their plants to make working conditions more pleasant and efficient. The attitude of employers is changing. It's not now a question of paying more wages; but of making the work lighter and the working environment more pleasant. I forecast continued large capital expenditures.

The gradual recognition of Cybertics by manufacturers will cause a further scarcity of bookkeepers, stenographers, and other white-collar help. High school graduates have not heretofore liked to go into factory work because of the necessity of wearing old clothes and being classed as "common labor." But under the Cybertic system, girls can operate both big and small machines by sitting at a mahogany desk in a silk dress, occasionally pushing a control button. This is easier and more interesting work than hitting a typewriter all day; and has a higher social rating.

Air-Conditioning and Coffee Hours
Expenditures for these and other so-called "benefits" appear unnecessary, if not foolish, to the old-time employer; but we may well have to come to these and other attractions. Some concerns now have music playing all day for their employees, while many have television during the lunch hour. These "extras" are not necessarily supplied by socially-minded employers; but rather by hard-boiled, old-fashioned employers who must "loosen up" to hold their workers.

All these "extras" help general business. Retail sales have fallen off, but I forecast that labor-saving devices and these new expenditures for making working conditions more attractive will increase from now on. Profits in some lines of business will decline; but in other lines profits will increase. The entire picture is changing. People continue to have money to spend; but they are not spending it so freely for the same old things. Live manufacturers and progressive merchants should waken to this. Watch the coming change in advertising copy.

Warning to Wage-workers
No employer can long spend more than he takes in, whether it is in wages or fringes. Cybertics appeal to the few fair-haired girls who get the jobs to control a factory by push-buttons, but only a few such people will be needed in some factories and stores. It is okay for wage-workers to be well dressed; but they must work hard, just the same. Business cannot stand much longer. Sooner or later the present "easy days" will be over. Machines can compensate for shorter hours and more pay; but those who tend these machines must give 100 per cent in attention and worry in order to hold their new jobs.

The rise in the price of equipment stocks and labor-saving device stocks should be a warning to wage-workers. These companies are now getting huge orders; but the rising price of their stocks and bonds is a sure sign that many factories and offices are now approaching great changes. The new machines may not be delivered for a year or two years; but they are coming. This means that those who now have jobs—whether in offices or factories—had better hold on to them by doing good work. Don't be pushed into a temporary "glush job" at higher wages. You will regret it.

You and Your Money CHARGE IT!

By Dr. Lawrence S. Ritter
Assistant Professor of Economics
Michigan State College

The easiest way to buy something is merely to say "charge it!" The only real difficulty with this method is that the first of the following month finds the mail-box crammed with charge account bills. Except for this one rather disillusioning element, there is nothing that one can find with a faster buying thing with a charge account.

In fact, the method has everything to recommend it. In the first place, you can buy something without using any money. This in itself is a fascinating experience. There once was a time when only the rich, the social blue-bloods, the elite, could walk into a store, look around, select what they wished, and say "Bill me," with a nice flick of the wrist.

Now anyone can do it. This is truly democracy at work! In older days only the elite got bills the first of every month. But with democracy in action, now everyone gets bills the first of the month! Charge accounts, as well as other forms of credit for consumers, have risen greatly since the end of World War II. Total charge account credit outstanding in the U. S. at the end of 1945 was a little over one and one-half billion dollars. At the end of 1953 it was close to three and one-half billion dollars. This does not count other types of consumer loans, such as those to purchase automobiles, which is the largest item of this sort, totaling over ten billion dollars as of the end of 1953.

Of course, there are some who object to the good old American institution of easy-to-get charge accounts. But these dissatisfied souls are easily dismissed. The chances are great that they are perennial malcontents who grouse at everything and believe in nothing. They are likely to be either Communists, who basic aim is to overthrow the social order anyway, or husbands, who keep thinking of that one fly in the ointment—the first of the following month.

In either case we cannot take them very seriously. There are always a few who never appreciate the finer things in life and object to true progress. The best thing to do is to assume that they had unhappy childhoods and not get angry at them. We can therefore recommend

In a three-car crash near the Weinberg farm Thursday night

34 Years Ago ...

Thursday, June 24, 1920—

H. S. Osler, county farm agent, was in this vicinity inspecting a number of orchards to discover the ravages of the canker worm.

If you should see Sunday as you tour some of Washenaw county roads that farmers are breaking the Sabbath hoeing gardens or cultivating corn it may be a case of "helping the oxen out of the ditch," in other words a case of necessity, since county farms are short 2,000 men.

A Detroit man who had been making regular trips to Chelsea disguised as an electrician and carrying an electrician's kit with innocent-appearing wires hanging out of it, was discovered to be a bootlegger carrying two gallons of whiskey for delivery to Chelsea parties and is now languishing in the county jail.

Michigan State College bulletin, "Freezing Foods for Michigan Homes," first issued in 1950, has been revised and is now available.

The 48-page guide to the successful freezing of foods includes easy to understand directions along with a number of illustrations and helpful charts and tables.

Sections on fruits, vegetables, meats, poultry products and prepared and precooked foods are included in the bulletin. There is a separate section telling how to prepare frozen foods for the table.

Several pages are devoted to a discussion of proper freezing equipment, such as cartons and wrappings.

Single copies of this bulletin may be obtained at no charge by writing the Bulletin Office, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Interpreting the News

The Michigan Legislature will take a new look at chain store taxes in 1955.

A Senate Judiciary committee appointed through their state organization to inquire into alleged inequities and to bring punitive tax measures into focus will hold hearings in the fall. The committee consists of Senators Carlton Morris of Kalamazoo; Harry F. Hittie, Lansing; Charles T. Prescott, Prescott; Clyde C. Gillingham, Detroit; and Robert Magarity of Detroit.

A similar committee one year ago recommended elimination of certain nuisance taxes.

Among those who will ask to be heard are chain stores through their state organization, the Michigan Chain Stores Bureau. Briefs and arguments are in process of preparation to substantiate their claim that the chain store tax is not only punitive, but costly to the state, unsound economically and detrimental to a large segment of the retail business.

"Our industry feels and rightly so that chain store retailing is of sufficient importance to the economy of Michigan that any punitive tax constitutes a backwash to the state's economy," said W. F. Doyle, chain store spokesman.

He pointed to the facts that chains last year did in excess of one billion dollars of retail business in Michigan, and also returned to the state's economy a like amount. "They paid $64,750,000 in 1951 state, federal and local taxes," said Doyle. "They bought $12,750,000 of merchandise from Michigan manufacturers, processors and farmers and paid out $81,000,000 to Michigan landlords. They spent in excess of $20,000,000 advertising their wares in newspapers and other media."

Chain stores pay the state handsomely under the new "business receipts tax," currently producing $33,000,000 in state revenue. The revised corporation franchise tax which yielded $8,500,000 in 1947 now brings in $38,000,000 to the general fund.

Major chains are sizeable taxpayers by virtue of their interstate operations. Because of this fact, they believe the time is ripe for the legislature to give serious consideration to elimination of the chain store tax. Also affected are 7,736 retail stores, many of which store companies in all parts of Michigan.

Under Michigan tax law any retailer with more than one outlet is defined as a chain. It is by no means a "big business" tax as evidenced by the fact that 95 per cent of all the companies paying the chain store tax operate less than 10 stores. So the "little fellow" as well as the "giant" is affected. Among them are 352 automobile retailers, motion picture theatre concessions, cigar stands and tombstone retailers, only to mention a few. The tax ranges from $10 per store for the small store to $250 per store for all over 25 in one chain.

Michigan, like the rest of the nation, need not worry about domination of big business when it learns that in 1929 big corporations got 5.1 per cent of the national income and only 5.3 per cent in 1949. Brookings Institute in Washington reports that unincorporated business enjoyed 15.9 per cent of the nation's business in 1929 and 17.8 per cent in 1949.

The history of chain store taxation is revealing. The whole subject came to life in the early 30's when many small retailers entertained the fear that chains would run them out of business. It didn't happen. Whereas the chains did 24.8 per cent of the national retail business in 1935, they did only 20.7 per cent in 1950.

Selling techniques of chain and independents are much alike today. Both strive to please the consumer in price and money-saving devices.

In the field of food retailing, Michigan chains and independents find much in common. As early as 1940 under the inspiration of the Michigan Press Association the Michigan Retail Food Dealers Association and the Michigan Chain Stores Bureau established high marks in harmonious trade relations.

The three groups formed the Michigan Food Council. An immediate achievement was the successful sponsorship of "Michigan Days" to promote sale of Michigan-grown food. The campaign made national history.

Times have changed radically in the relations of chains and independents here in the past 20 years. Little or no bickering any longer exists. Neither seeks punitive action against the other.

Statistics show the small operator is more than holding his own. That is one of the reasons the Michigan legislature will take a new look at chain store taxes in 1955.

The right sauce or relish is important to complement fish flavor. Fat fish requires a sauce or relish that helps to "cut" the fat in the fish, say home economists at MSC. A lean fish needs a rich sauce. Fish that are deep fat-fried, pan-fried or larded during baking need a tart contrast.

"You can expect the most raiding in the best melon patch"

You can bet your bottom dollar on it. Come next year, or year after that, you'll be seeing on other cars... one of the styling features you see in Buick today.

We expect it. It has happened before. And there is good reason for it—popular appeal.

Take, for example, the car model shown here. We call it a Riviera. Most people call it a "hardtop."

When Buick introduced this body type in 1949, it was a completely new thing. And it was an instant hit.

Today, Buick "hardtops" outsell all other models in the line. It's the styling America has taken to its heart.

So today you find that every major car maker has his own version of this Buick original. (And we can't blame them a bit. They know a good thing when they see it.)

Maybe you've noticed other such borrowings from Buick.

The diagrammatic sketch shown here lists some of the Buick advances that are now reflected in styling of other cars—or will be soon.

For you can be sure that the great panoramic windshield first shown by Buick this year will be copied. It's too good to pass up.

And you can be sure that the full rear-wheel cutout now on every 1954 Buick Riviera and Convertible will show up elsewhere in the future. It's a sports-car touch that hits a really popular note.

We're sure of such things.

We're sure because the tomorrow-styled Buick of today seems to be just what people want. Because Buick sales are soaring. Because Buick now outsells every other car in America except two of the so-called "low-price three."

So to you we say—why wait another day to see and drive a new Buick? It's the beauty of the year. It's the buy of the times. And it's a wonderful way to head up the parade.

Drop in this week for a demonstration, won't you?

We're Ready For Tomorrow

Yesterday's railroads made today's America possible.

Without today's railroads tomorrow's America hardly would be possible.

Yesterday's railroads enabled America to become a single nation spanning a continent—our amazing America of today.

Tomorrow's America will be as dependent upon railroads as it was yesterday. A greater America is unlikely without railroads capable of caring for its vast, vital, growing traffic needs.

Today these railroads are preparing for tomorrow's task. They have poured billions into their plant—no adaptable mechanical, technical or scientific detail that can make them adequate for the nation they must serve has been left out.

America and its railroads are marching hand-in-hand to meet tomorrow.

AUDIT REPORT

June 21, 1954

June 28, 1954

Board of Education,
Chelsea Agricultural Schools,
Chelsea, Michigan

We have examined the receipts and disbursements of the General Fund, Building and Site Fund, Debt Retirement Funds, and High School Student Funds of the Sylvan Township School District No. 1 Fractional, known as the Chelsea Agricultural Schools, for the period from June 17, 1953 to June 21, 1954. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing procedures, and accordingly included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances. The accounting records are maintained for cash receipts and disbursements only, no balance sheet accounting being undertaken. Our examination did not include any tests of the child accounting records or state enrollment reports based on these records. In our opinion, the accompanying receipts and disbursements statements present fairly the cash transactions of the Chelsea Agricultural Schools and the High School Student Funds for the period from June 17, 1953 to June 21, 1954.

Very truly yours,
Iceman, Johnson & Hoffman

BIRTHDAY HONORED

Lloyd Grau was surprised with an observance of his 18th birthday when he returned home after playing in a ball game at Manchester Thursday evening. The eight friends present played cards with Reuben Lesser, Jr., winning high prize and Edson Whitaker, low.

Lloyd was presented with a gift from the group and refreshments were served by his mother, Mrs. Arthur Grau.

LIMANEERS
Members of the Limaneers, with 14 members, three guests and several children present, enjoyed a picnic dinner at Pierce park Thursday noon.

The dinner was followed by an hour of visiting and later the group inspected the flower bed at the park which is the club's annual community project.

They decided to add more petunia plants and the committee returned to the park Friday to set out the plants.

Aug. 5 the Limaneers will meet at the home of Mrs. Nina Wahl for a pot-luck dinner at 12:30 p.m.

BIRTHDAY HONORED

Emanuel Elismann, whose 77th birthday occurred Friday, was surprised with a celebration of the event in the form of a family party held at his home on East street Friday evening.

Present for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Elismann and Mr. and Mrs. William Elismann.

of Ann Arbor, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hanselman and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hanselman and their families, of Whitmore Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Vail and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Elismann and children.

Mrs. Robert V. Strieter

Jean Reagan, Robert Strieter Speak Vows at Oxford

Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Strieter, who were married in Immanuel Congregational church at Oxford, June 24, have returned from a ten-day wedding trip to New York City and the New England States and are now at home in St. Clair Shores.

The bride is the former Jean Reagan, daughter of Mrs. Edmund R. Reagan of Oxford and the late Mr. Reagan. She is a teacher of commercial subjects in Lakeview High school, St. Clair Shores. She graduated from Oxford High school and Michigan State College.

Mr. Strieter, who teaches history at Lakeview High school, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Strieter. A graduate of Chelsea High school where he was prominent in sports, he graduated from Western Michigan College of Education and received a master's degree from the University of Michigan.

Rev. Laurence D. Graves, pastor of the Oxford church, officiated at the wedding at 7 p.m. in the presence of 150 guests.

Before the ceremony, Mrs. Lee Valentine, accompanied by Mrs. Elva Willow of Oxford, sang "The Pledge" and "I Love Thee," and Peter Cartwright recited an appropriate poem.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of white Chantilly lace and nylon net over satin. The lace was used for the long-sleeved, fitted bodice while the nylon net fashioned the full skirt which extended into a short train. Her fingertip-length veil was edged with pearls. She carried a bouquet of white gladioli, carnations and stephanotis.

Margaret Cartwright of Ferndale, was maid of honor and Mrs. Donald Johnston of Grand Rapids, was bridesmaid. Patricia Reagan of Oak Park, bridesmaid and the bridegroom's niece, Sally Strieter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Strieter, was flower girl. All but the flower girl wore waltz-length gowns of dotted swiss.

The maid of honor was in blue and carried pink carnations while the bridesmaid, in pink, and junior bridesmaid, in yellow, carried green and blue carnations, respectively. All wore matching flower headbands.

Sally Strieter, in her role as flower girl, wore a short dress of orchid dotted swiss and a headband of matching colored flowers. She carried a basket of flower petals which she scattered in the aisle as she preceded the bride to take her place with the wedding party before the altar.

David Strieter was his brother's best man while Luther Kusterer, his cousin, and Richard Kern and George Winans were ushers. Immediately after the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, 1760 Lakeview Boulevard. Assisting at the tea table were Mrs. James Robinson of Franklin Village, Mrs. Frank Cartwright and Mrs. Russell Walters, of Ferndale, and Mrs. Harmon Fritch of Oxford.

When the couple left for their honeymoon, the bride was wearing a brown and white two-piece cotton dress with white accessories.

Attending the wedding from Chelsea, in addition to the attendants were Mrs. Luther Kusterer, Mrs. David Strieter, Mrs. Richard Kern, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kusterer and Katherine Merkel. The bridegroom's parents were unable to be present because of illness.

Survival Is Not All

Tremendous gains have been made over the years in the skill and knowledge of the medical profession. Curing disease, accomplishing surgical miracles, and the discovery of new drugs can be classed as one of the wonders of the world.

But survival is not all! Even though broken bodies can be mended and broken spirits and mental anguish caused by financial strain due to accident and illness? You and I have seen it time and again.

My Company, Woodmen Accident, has been furnishing protection against financial losses due to accident and sickness for 64 years. Such protection for you or your family costs only pennies a day! Let's talk it over—

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Quigley

Shirley Marie Skow, Robert Quigley Wed Saturday Afternoon

Shirley Marie Skow became the bride of Robert Dale Quigley in a ceremony performed in the Methodist church at 7 o'clock Saturday afternoon by Rev. S. D. Kinda, pastor of the church. Fifty guests were present for the ceremony and for a reception which followed in the church social center.

For the wedding the bride wore a ballerina-length gown of white nylon tulle and net over satin which featured a strapless bodice of shirred tulle covered with a bolero of rosepointe lace. The bolero had long, fitted sleeves and a tiny stand-up collar. The double layers of net and tulle over the satin skirt were covered over the hips with a lace peplum which extended into a deep point at the back. Her veil, of fingertip length, was fastened to a coronation-style crown of matching lace entwined with pearls. She carried a spray of pink roses.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, David Heinig.

Mr. Stephen Aschenbrenner of Pinckney, the bride's sister, was her only attendant. She was gown in white nylon tulle over satin, fashioned with a shirred bodice, net bolero and ballerina-length skirt finished with a bustle at the back. Her flowers were pink roses.

Stephen Aschenbrenner, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man.

for the bridegroom who is a son of Theodore Quigley and the late Mrs. Quigley.

Assisting as ushers were Donald Cook and the bridegroom's brother-in-law, Roland Egeler.

Mrs. Harley Hatt and Mrs. Allen Alber, sisters of the bridegroom, were hostesses at the reception in the church social center. Mrs. Howard Bergman, another sister, poured, while Mrs. Burton Browning, sister of the bride, presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Roland Egeler, also a sister of the bridegroom, was in charge of the guest book.

Following their return from a week's trip to Niagara Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Quigley will make their home on Sylvan road.

For going away the bride wore a nylon floral print dress with a pink hat, white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The bride, who is employed at the Gudeman company, graduated from Howell High school.

Mr. Quigley attended Chelsea High school and is now a stone and brick mason with the Davis & Armstrong company, of Detroit.

MESC Booklet Tells Workers Procedure To Receive Benefits

The Michigan Employment Security Commission this week started distributing to claimants the first of 300,000 copies of a pamphlet entitled "Information for Workers on their rights to receive unemployment benefits," Rex Nottingham, manager of the Ann Arbor branch of the Commission said. The new pamphlet describes every step a worker must take in order to receive benefits, what his rights and what his responsibilities are. It also points out how he may have trouble with his claim if he doesn't follow out the exact routine prescribed by the Commission after his experience in handling millions of claims every year.

Survivors are his widow, two sons, Richard and Lawrence; and a daughter, Donna Jo, all at home; and his mother, Mrs. George Sherman, of Pontiac.

salary ceiling set by supervisors for a port director was so low, said commissioners, that competitive offers were expected to lure best men to other cities.

Other Michigan cities face similar problems. Although they are smaller in dollars and cents, they are just as big proportionally. The Alpena News, for instance, felt it necessary to point out editorially that more foresight should be shown where the seaway is concerned when planning in suburban areas. It urged that city fathers do some serious thinking at this time, and to set zoning areas that will make for maximum efficiency in developing city property and adjoining areas.

Improved docks are needed almost everywhere. Beukema predicted year-round lake traffic between Detroit and ports of Lakes Erie, Huron and Michigan. The St. Lawrence, he thinks, will be open only about seven and one-half months each year.

If conclusions of this man, who has studied for years the significance of the seaway, turn out to be accurate, Michigan will develop into an even more prosperous state.
