Bulldogs Tied For Top Spot In League

Win over Roosevelt Deadlocks Saline, Dundee, Chelsea

Chelsea High school's basketball team, winning from Ypsilanti Roosevelt Saturday night when Neil Bucher and Bob White came through in the last 30 seconds of the game to score two baskets, regained its first-place position in the Huron Valley League. The top position is a three-way tie with Dundee and Saline.

Saturday's game, played in Edmondson gymnasium, ended with a score of 57-56, with Chelsea Bulldogs ahead for the first and only time during the entire game.

Trailing behind all through the first three quarters and until the last minute of the fourth, a full court press gave Chelsea a chance to pick up a few quick baskets while Roosevelt was unable to get the ball.

Chelsea was hampered throughout the game by having Bruce Hoffman collect four quick personal fouls and Bob White playing with a bad "charley-horse."

This was not to take away credit from Roosevelt, a team that much improved over the last Roosevelt-Chelsea game.

Roosevelt led with the scoring of Paul O'Dea, the 6-foot 9-inch senior who gave Chelsea considerable trouble.

Chelsea plays U-High on the home court Friday night. In the drawing for district tournament play, Chelsea drew a bye and will play the winner of Tuesday's U-High-St. Thomas game Thursday, March 3. The tournament games are to be played at Ypsilanti High school.

Roosevelt also drew a bye and will play the winner of Tuesday's tilt between Dexter and Lincoln in a March 3 tournament game.

Winners of both March 3 contests will battle it out for the championship Saturday, March 5. The March 3 games begin at 7 p.m. while the championship game March 5 begins at 7:30 p.m.

This is the first full-term slate of officers of the local Community Chest, the three re-elected men, together with Mrs. Warren Daniels as secretary, having served as temporary officers for the first campaign following its formation here last fall.

Standing committees for the year also were appointed at Wednesday's meeting and the third Wednesday of the month was retained as the date for the monthly meetings.

Meetings of the board of directors are held in the Council room in the Municipal building. The first permanent executive committee of the Community Chest is composed of the newly-elected officers of the corporation. This executive committee is to appoint the budget committee which is chaired by E. W. Eaton.

Hunters from these organizations will join the local group, meeting at the Municipal building here at 10:30 a.m.

In this type of hunt, the hunters use no dogs but form a ring around a square-mile section of land and close in toward the center, flushing and shooting any foxes inside. Only shotguns are to be used and No. 2 shot is the maximum size permitted. Rifles may not be used for the hunt.

The sponsoring clubs have announced that it is planned to drive four sections during the day. Following the hunt mulligan stew will be served at Lyndon Town Hall.

Q. Will city government cause us to expand our water distribution and sewage systems?

A. No. These utilities are inadequate at the present time and will have to be expanded soon, regardless of whether there is a change to city government or not.

Q. Do the voters have an opportunity to decide what form city government would take?

Yes. A charter commission is elected at the same time city government is adopted and this charter commission decides what form the government would take.

Annual World Day Of Prayer Set for Friday Afternoon

Alvin P. W. Schiller Dies Friday of Heart Ailment

Alvin P. W. Schiller who, with Raymond Canine, had operated the Central Market here since 1947, died at St. Joseph's Mercy hospital, Ann Arbor, Friday afternoon.

He had suffered from a heart ailment which was first discovered when he took a physical examination for athletics while he was in high school. He became seriously ill last October and was confined to the hospital until Dec. 24. He had been at home since then until he was returned to the hospital Friday noon. His home was at 309 South Main street.

He was a member of the Chelsea Rod and Gun club and the Ann Arbor Loyal Order of Moose.

Born June 28, 1912, in Lyndon township, he was a son of John and Marie Weterich Schiller.

He graduated from Chelsea High school in 1931 and before going into business was employed in the same market by Fred Loeffler & Son.

He was married Dec. 18, 1939, to Faye Bagge, who survives, together with five children, Lois, Linda, Glen, Patricia and Barbara. Another son, David, died July 9, 1945.

Other survivors are two sisters, Mrs. John Warren and Miss Norma Schiller, and two brothers, Edward and Elmer Schiller. Another brother and sister, Lloyd and Mrs. E. Martin, preceded him in death.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the St. Francis Funeral home and burial took place in Oak Grove cemetery. Rev. Thomas Toy was the officiating clergyman.

Interdenominational projects in this country supported by the offering include a Christian education program in fourteen government Indian schools, a training program for American Indian Christian leaders at Cook Training School, Phoenix, Ariz., and church and community work among Indians in industrial centers. Money also goes to aid programs in low-income farm communities and to the National Council's ministry to migrants. It also supports the work of the committee on Friendly Relations Among Foreign Students which provides services to an estimated 30,000 students each year.

Abroad, the money is used for providing a program of Christian literature and literacy for women and children in India, Burma, Japan, Egypt, Africa and Latin America. It is used also to help support the educational program for Christian leaders in many of the world-famous interdenominational Christian colleges in the Orient.

Women of the three sponsoring churches will take part in the service.

Arrangements for the program here have been made by Mrs. Lewis Bernath and Mrs. Otto Hinders of the Congregational church; Mrs. Walter Mohrlock and Mrs. John Fischer of the Methodist church, and Mrs. William Blass and Mrs. Oscar Lindauer of St. Paul's church.

Protestant Women Unite for Service at St. Paul's Church

Tomorrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock Protestant women of the community will unite for the annual World Day of Prayer service, being held this year in St. Paul's Evangelical and Reformed church. The service will be followed by a tea in the church hall.

An estimated 20,000 communities in 125 countries of the world will join with fellow Christians in similar services throughout the day. The service, this year marking its 68th anniversary, is traditionally held on the first Friday in Lent.

Theme for this year's service is "Abide in Me" as mentioned in the Bible in John 15, verse 4.

Observances in the United States are sponsored by the Department of United Church Women—a general department of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. The offering taken at services in this country is divided equally between the Division of Foreign Missions and the Division of Home Missions of the National Council and is used for interdenominational mission projects.

Interdenominational projects in this country supported by the offering include a Christian education program in fourteen government Indian schools, a training program for American Indian Christian leaders at Cook Training School, Phoenix, Ariz., and church and community work among Indians in industrial centers. Continued population growth, high consumer incomes and possible increases in milk consumption all point to an expansion in the demand for fluid milk.

Church Council Service Honored Friday at Family Night Supper

Gust Esch, who recently relinquished his office as a member of the church council of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church, Rogers Corners, after 18 years service, was guest of honor at a church family night supper held Friday evening in the gymnasium of the Pleasant Lake school. There were 55 members and guests present.

The after-dinner program included group singing led by Mrs. Frank Mitchell, with Mrs. Herbert Hinderer as accompanist; readings by Jack Niehaus and Herbert Hinderer; and recognition of the retiring official's many years of work for St. John's church by Walter Hinderer, on behalf of the congregation. Mrs. Esch was presented with a Bible as a gift.

Rev. T. R. Schmale and Rev. T. W. Menzel who serve as pastors of St. John's church, spoke briefly, also, in recognition of Mr. Esch's loyalty to the church.

Frank Mitchell was in charge of the program.

Games were played during a social hour which followed and prizes were awarded to Mrs. George Frey and Mrs. Paul Elsemann.

All Persons in Picture Of 1908 Train Wreck Are Now Identified

A picture of a train wreck near here back in 1908, published Jan. 20 in The Chelsea Standard with one man unidentified and another identified only as "a Mr. Faber," now has all the people identified since Arthur Faber's older sister, Mrs. Grover Fry of Ypsilanti, told him Sunday that the "Mr. Faber" was his father, William Faber, who lived for many years on South Main street where Federal Screw Works is now located. Last week Mrs. Henry Everett of Tucson, Ariz., wrote The Standard that an unidentified man at the extreme left in the picture was Ed. Spaulding, father of the late Harold Spaulding and grandfather of Roland Spaulding.

Others in the picture included Dr. J. T. Woods, Wesley Smith, Donald Bacon and Lee Young.

Livestock feeders probably will use the entire 1954 corn crop production and will draw about 200 million bushels out of surplus, MSC agricultural economists predict.

Michigan State College Has Grown Rapidly at Hands of 12 Presidents

East Lansing—Michigan State College, which in 100 years has grown from a foothold in the wilderness to the nation's eighth largest university, owes much of its success to the 12 men who have served as its presidents.

These men have guided Michigan state to its present stature and many of their achievements are noteworthy as MSC celebrates its Centennial in 1955.

When Michigan State was founded in 1855 as Michigan Agricultural College, its objective was "Education for the masses who do the nation's work—to help them do their work better and enjoy more fully the fruits of their labor."

Presidents Joseph R. Williams, Lewis R. Fisk, T. C. Abbot, Edwin Willits, Oscar Clute, Lewis G. Gorton and Jonathan L. Snyder, who served during the first 50 years, were largely responsible that MSC's objective was not abandoned.

In the second 50 years, new leaders came. They included Frank S. Kedzie, David Friday, Kayvon L. Butterfield, Robert S. Shaw, and the present head of Michigan State, John A. Hannah.

These presidents took up the job of building, planning, improving and anticipating the fulfillments of early ambitions.

Williams, the first president, pioneered the school through the earliest years and was widely known for his forcible and eloquent appeals for the application of science to agriculture.

MSC got its second chief in 1859 in Fisk. He successfully battled for seeking to make a school purely a technical institute.

Next came Abbot, who admitted the first female student in 1870, and established the College's now famous agricultural extension service.

Willits assumed office in 1884 and brought about the establishment of a full-fledged engineering course and the College's Experiment Station. Then followed the administration of Clute and Gorton.

The State Board of Agriculture, governing body of MSC, named Snyder to the presidency in 1896 and he held office until 1915.

During his administration, the enrollment of Michigan State grew from 300 to 2,000 students, the long vacation was changed from the winter to the summer months and full courses for young women were established.

Most of the College's growth in this period came after 1901, when the legislature decided MSC should be supported by a special tax.

Also during Snyder's term of office, MSC celebrated the 50th anniversary of its actual opening in 1907. An important addition was made in the same year in the establishment of the veterinary medicine school.

Kedzie, who succeeded Snyder, opened the applied sciences field in 1921. Friday followed him and in 1923, a course in arts leading to the A.B. degree was established. This represented the most radical step from the path of a strictly scientific work since the College was founded.

In 1926, during Butterfield's administration, the name Michigan State College was adopted to replace that of Michigan Agricultural College.

Shaw was advanced to the president's post in 1928, and served until 1941, during which time the college made greater progress than in any previous similar period in its history.

In this period the student body almost trebled. Buildings on the campus were more than doubled in total capacity and the college farm properties were greatly expanded.

Under Hannah's leadership, a multi-million dollar building program ranging from dormitories to power plants has been going on. His tenure as president has coincided with the period of the greatest growth of MSC. Since World War II, the enrollment has been as high as 16,250 and now stands at more than 15,600.

Outstanding achievements of his administration include the establishment of Basic College, a pioneering adventure in general education; the establishment of the Michigan State College Press; development of the graduate school and admission to the Western Conference.

Michigan State has made great progress under the leadership of the 12 men who have held its presidency. It now awaits its second century, exploring and building as the pioneer built in the first hundred years.

Republicans Keep John Feikens as State Chairman

Michigan Republicans Saturday took the lead in endorsing Eisenhower for a second term, at the Republican State Convention in Detroit, the first state convention to do so.

The group also voted to retain John Feikens as State Chairman. Feikens, an Eisenhower stalwart who came in for criticism after the party's defeat in the November election, was opposed by Arthur T. Iverson. Both men are from Wayne county.

Final vote on the issue, tallied after considerable touch-and-go counting on the convention floor, was 994-598 for Feikens. Wash-ton county delegates voted 28-9 for Feikens.

The convention re-nominated Justice Leland W. Carr, of the State Supreme Court, by acclamation, and nominated as his running mate, former state treasurer "D. Hale Brake.

Other nominations for the April 4 election include: J. Joseph Herbert, Manistique attorney; and William B. Cudlip, Detroit attorney, for Regents of the University of Michigan.

For the State Board of Agriculture, Sarah Van Heesen Johns, incumbent, and Dale Stafford, Greenville publisher and former Detroit Free Press managing editor.

For State Board of Education, incumbent Stephen S. Nesbet, of Fremont.

Incumbent Clair L. Taylor, Lansing, for superintendent of public instruction.

In addition to the Eisenhower endorsement, the Resolutions committee, under chairman John B. Martin, of Grand Rapids, recommended a Fair Employment Practice law for Michigan, and a pay-as-you-go highway program.

The highway resolution backed the legislature's stand in the current highway controversy in Lansing, supporting roads financed by an increase in gasoline and weight taxes rather than by Governor Williams' suggested five hundred million dollar bond issue.

The FEP law was recommended subject to the approval of the legislature. A former convention endorsement of such a program was later turned down by the legislature.

Temporary chairman of the convention was, for the first time, a woman — Mrs. Helen Dean, of Grosse Pointe.

Business, Education Popular Courses in Colleges of Today

Ann Arbor—Today only eight per cent of the new college graduates have prepared for careers in law, medicine or dentistry, the most popular fields 50 years ago, according to studies recently completed by the Commission on Human Resources and Advanced Training, of which two University of Michigan deans were members.

Dean Charles E. Odgaard of the literary college, and Dean Ralph A. Sawyer of the Rackham School of Graduate Studies served on the commission which was set up in 1949 under a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation, to make a broad study of the present and potential supply of highly trained personnel.

The need for such a study was demonstrated by the shortage discovered during World War II, of highly-specialized workers in all fields.

Fifty years ago professional schools for business and education were practically unknown, but now more graduates have specialized in these fields than in any others, the commission reports.

The part of the study dealing with college graduation trends indicates that sweeping changes have taken place in American higher education during the last century. In 1900 only one out of 50 persons had graduated from college; today one out of every eight has earned his Bachelor of Arts degree or its equivalent. Two-thirds of the graduates were men in 1900, but today's ratio is six men to four women, according to the study.

Because the population is larger and because a higher fraction of this population attends college, the actual number of degrees in all fields is greater than it was 50 years ago, but "in relation to other fields in which they can major, a much smaller proportion of college students concentrate in the natural sciences or the humanities now than in 1900," says the report.

For example, at the beginning of the century one graduate in eight specialized in a foreign language; now only one in 80 has majored in a foreign language.

Education and commerce have had the biggest boom, with the social sciences and psychology close behind. Undergraduate degrees in engineering, too, have increased greatly.

Although there has been this vast change in the type of bachelor's degrees, advanced degrees in the different fields have had a stable distribution throughout the years, this phase of the study concludes.

Tips Given for Making Good Pork Sausage

Know the best way to make your own pork sausage?

Lyman Bratzler, a Michigan State College meats specialist, offers this advice:

Use three-fourths lean meat to one-fourth fat. Cut the trimmings into one-inch cubes then weigh the result. For each 25 pounds add these ingredients:

Nine tablespoons of salt, 4 tablespoons of black pepper, 2 tablespoons of ground sage and 1 tablespoon of ground nutmeg, or cloves, or any of the spice your family likes. But mix it well with the one-inch cubes of pork trimmings.

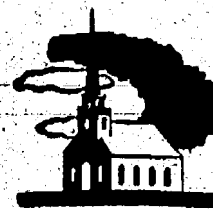

Then you're ready to put the seasoned meat through the grinder. Don't hold the sausage more than four to six weeks in the frozen food locker, Bratzler advises. The salt makes sausage rancid after that long.

Professor's House Became First U. of M. Hospital in 1868

Ann Arbor—With all the talk and plans about enlarging the medical center at the University of Michigan with the University Hospital as a sort of focus point, persons probably are forgetting that the first U-M Hospital once was a professor's residence.

One of the earliest buildings on campus, the house was converted into a hospital in 1868. Nine years later a new frame pavilion hospital was built to accommodate 60 patients, primarily in large wards. Several other changes took place before the present hospital was erected in 1925.

When MSC was established in 1855, 87 per cent of Michigan's labor force was in agriculture. Now the figure is less than 12 per cent.

Background Space Suggested To Add To Home Beauty

Picture two clothing store display windows—one looking like a forest with as many manikins as there is floor space and the other carrying out one theme with one or two costumes displayed.

Certainly the latter is much more effective in attracting customers because the window designer has made use of background space. Marion Beveridge of the textiles, clothing and related arts department at Michigan State College, explains background space as negative space. One of its big functions, she says, is to give the onlooker a feeling of rest and relaxation as in the case of the second store window.

Background space, claims Mrs. Beveridge, can be put to use in our homes in almost anything we create. In arranging furniture, centerpieces, table settings, wall pictures or placing scatter rugs—background space should be given thought and planned for just as we do the objects in the foreground.

Mrs. Beveridge cites the example of the wall space over a mantle. Years ago this space was filled with a neatly centered picture with a margin of background space all around it. A contemporary artist might completely eliminate the margin by placing a mirror or picture to fill the whole area. Or he might hang the picture in one corner of the space in order to give the background a pleasing shape to relate to the shape of the picture.

Whether we eliminate it or change its shape, Mrs. Beveridge suggests relating the background space to the arrangement of the object.

Because copper destroys vitamin C, foods should not be prepared in utensils made from this metal. However, the contact does not result in food poisoning.

When you cook eggs, MSC home economists suggest using low heat to insure the best flavor and texture. Fast cooking tends to make eggs tough and leathery.

Wilma Harste, Ralph Dingle Wed Friday in Detroit

Wilma Harste and Ralph Dingle, both of Detroit, were married at 8 o'clock Friday evening in Mt. Zion Lutheran church, Detroit, with Dr. W. H. Nies officiating.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Harste of Toledo, Ohio, and is a registered nurse employed as supervisor of nurses aides at Henry Ford hospital. She is a graduate of the hospital's school of nursing.

Mr. Dingle is a former Chelsea resident. He graduated from Chelsea High school and from the University of Detroit and is now employed as an architectural engineer with Giffels & Vallet, Inc., in Detroit.

For her wedding, the bride chose a waist-length gown of Chantilly lace fashioned with a bouffant skirt, a strapless bodice and a long-sleeved matching jacket. Her double veil, in fingertip length, was attached to a halo-style headpiece and she carried an arrangement of white carnations centered with a corsage of orchids.

Betty Knight of Detroit, a former classmate of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing for the occasion a pastel green taffeta waist-length gown. Fastened in her hair was a cluster of yellow rosebuds and she carried a bouquet of matching rosebuds.

Stuart Dingle served his brother as best man and David Beryus of Detroit, seated the guests.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception for 60 guests was held in the church dining room and later the couple left by plane for Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

After Feb. 27 the new Mr. and Mrs. Dingle will be at home at 1205 Pauline street, Detroit.

They are building a home at Cavanaugh Lake and when it is completed will be living there.

Displaying Child's Art Work at Home Builds Proud Feeling

Your children are proud of their accomplishments in their art class at school. But they will be doubly proud if their parents show an interest in their creations.

Marion Beveridge, staff member in related arts at Michigan State College, believes it is important that parents display their children's art work. She says it gives them a feeling of importance in the family. Then, too, children's art is held in high esteem because it is fresh and uninhibited. A child is not hedged in with conventions as are many adults, and often he shows a refreshing approach to old ideas.

Mrs. Beveridge suggests several ways to use child art in the home. Perhaps you will want to make place mats for the breakfast table. Place a finger painting of your pre-schooler between two transparent plastic place mats. They can be held together with colorful masking tape. Because the tape can easily be removed the drawings can be changed from time to time.

Another suggestion is to group several drawings together on a large mat such as grass cloth. The whole arrangement could be hung on the wall in the children's bedroom. Or maybe you will want to post the art work on the kitchen bulletin board. You may even want to put it under the glass on the coffee table or living room desk.

No matter where it is put, your children will be happy to see you take an interest in their art work, asserts Mrs. Beveridge.

A. The hiring and firing of a city manager would be the responsibility of the Council.

Q. Will zoning be considered in the city form of government?

A. In all probability the charter commission would consider this favorably in order to prevent and control an otherwise "uncontrollable" mushrooming of residential areas and industry similar to a "Willow Village" without regard to the beauty of existing homes and facilities.

Q. Who is behind the move to change to a city form of government?

A large group of village residents, both young and old, from business, industry and the professions—especially those men serving in the village government now and who have served in the past. This latter group recognizes the need for more efficient spending of the taxpayers' money from the standpoint of technical know-how since our community, like all others, is expanding whether we wish it or not, due to the ever-increasing population which is estimated to reach 221 million in the United States by 1975.

Your Child and Reading

(Editor's Note—This is the third in a series of articles on the subject of your child and reading. This series is being written by Dr. Byron H. VanRoekel, assistant professor of education at Michigan State College.)

By Dr. Byron H. VanRoekel
Assistant Professor of Education
Michigan State College

Perhaps nothing contributes as much to preparing a child for reading as does a rich background in children's literature. It is suggested that you read to your child and you read many types of books.

There are many things that a child can learn about reading when you read aloud to him. For example, the typical pre-school child does not actually represent the words we say. He has to learn that there is some relationship between the printed text and the story. When you read to your child he slowly learns that you get your cue from the page as to what to say. You can hasten this process by pointing to a word and saying, "This says Sally," or whatever the word may be.

As you read to your child you can also help to establish the habit of left to right progression which is fundamental in learning to read. We adults have been reading so long that we forget we had to learn this and that it is not instinct. All nationalities do not read as we do. The Japanese read down and from right to left. Therefore, as you read to your child or look at picture-books or look at calendars, put careful emphasis on left to right movement. You can do this by occasionally pointing your finger and moving it from left to right or pointing at pictures as you discuss the story in picture books.

Establishing the habit of left to right movement can do much to eliminate the reversal tendency. Some people refer to this as "mirror reading." What it means is that some children say "on" for "no" and "saw" for "was" etc. Most children who reverse words do so because they have not established correct eye movements.

Your pre-school child can also learn that you can find out things from books. If he asks a question, especially one you cannot answer, why not say, "Let's look it up." This is a grand opportunity to explain in simple terms how the index or table of contents is used. Even though he doesn't know the alphabet he will probably absorb more of these mechanics of reading than you think. If your child has had these experiences he will have an advantage in beginning reading instruction.

Although these remarks have been directed primarily to parents of pre-school children they also have application for parents of children who are learning to read. Don't stop reading to your child just because he has learned to read. Children can appreciate books far beyond their reading level for several years after learning to read.

Court Fines Returned To School Libraries

County Treasurer William F. Vernor has announced that $63,263.92, collected in fines in circuit and Justice of the Peace courts in Washtenaw county in 1954, has been returned to school library funds throughout the county. All fines levied in county courts are returned, intact, to school libraries, minus only $1,500 which the law requires must go to the law library in the courthouse.

Because eggs are so cheap farmers are sending some of their hens to market. So the U. S. Department of Agriculture says stewing hens are very plentiful, which is unusual for this time of year. Because many of these hens are young birds, they are more tender than most stewing hens and prices are generally lower than usual.

Public Education Program Starts on Driver Licensing

Village Police Chief George W. Doe today announced that the Chelsea Police Department is cooperating with the Michigan State Safety Commission, under the leadership of the Department of State, in a state-wide public education program on driver licensing.

According to Chief Doe, the new driver license examination for beginning drivers recently put into effect, is much more comprehensive than the previous one and is a far better measure of a person's ability to drive safely. He urged all new applicants for a driver's license to study harder on the Michigan Traffic Law and safe driving practices, and to practice more on their driving before taking the road test.

"Traffic authorities are determined to be doubly sure that persons awarded the privilege of driving are able to demonstrate this ability by passing a more thorough examination. Many motorists who do not prepare for it carefully will fail this test on the first try, but the Chief pointed out that passing the driver's license examination and obtaining a license merely launches the beginning motorist on his driving career. He emphasized the fact that the motorist must continually practice his right to retain this privilege by obeying traffic laws. If he causes a traffic accident or commits serious hazardous moving violations he will have his license suspended. Only in that way can the state protect other drivers on the highway.

The Chief called upon all motorists to cooperate in living up to the obligations of their license. "Remember," he said, "last year 23,164 Michigan motorists did have their licenses suspended or revoked."

Chief microfilm operator Russell Smith, of the Washtenaw county Register of Deeds office, has finished the difficult job of microfilming more than 150 original land patents issued to Washtenaw county residents by Presidents John Quincy Adams, Andrew Jackson and Martin Van Buren.

Original Land Patents Microfilmed for Permanent Record

The land grants, printed on genuine sheepskin, were a complicated microfilming job, Smith said, because sheepskin wants to pople over the roller on the microfilm camera and refused to flatten out. Sample deed, issued in 1827 by President John Quincy Adams, bears the President's own signature—J. Q. Adams—and granted 80 acres to Jacob Aray, of Washtenaw county.

Mrs. Patricia Newkirk Hardy, Register of Deeds, has stated that while many records are destroyed after microfilming, these will certainly be preserved because of their historical significance, and will be offered to state and county historical societies.

Cold Can Harm Farm Chemicals

Be sure to store your liquid chemical weed killers and insecticides where the temperature stays above freezing.

That's advice from Michigan State College specialists. Even though the chemicals won't freeze, they say, some of the ingredients may crystallize. And there's a good chance those important parts of the chemical may not go back into the solution when the materials are used next spring.

The specialists also add this caution: Don't store weed killers near seed.

Farm Economist Says Profit on Oats Can Be Increased

Like to boost your labor income on an oat crop by $1.80 per hour? How about increasing your wheat yield by 14 bushels per acre?

It can be done if you use the right amount of fertilizer and follow practices that have been recommended by the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station. That was the gist of a talk by C. R. (Ray) Hoglund before a Farmers' Week audience at Michigan State college Wednesday, Feb. 9.

Hoglund, a U. S. Department of Agriculture researcher at MSC, contended that the average farmer will have to double the amount of fertilizer he uses at planting time to make oats a paying crop. And the farmer would have to make increased use of improved varieties, better tillage and weed control practices and he would have to tiller poorly drained fields, the farm economist insisted. The average farmer now, he said, only makes 30 cents per hour for labor income on oats. He suggested the figure can be $2.

"Although farmers are doing a more efficient job producing wheat than oats," Hoglund noted, "recommended practices could double the net returns per acre." These facts are important, Hoglund insisted, especially since production costs continue high and prices for farm products are getting lower. His figures for increased yields were based on research in cooperation with Dr. Ray Cook of the soil science department.

Careful management in livestock feeding this year may mean the difference between profit and loss, MSC agricultural economists believe.

Activities . . .

ART
Art I classes are now finishing up their figure drawings by painting them with water colors. Art II classes are continuing to work on their projects such as model houses, cars, etc.

MOVIES

The following movies were shown last week: "Women's Choir" was shown to the Band on Monday. "American Square Dance" to the Girls Phys. Ed. class on Tuesday. The Home Ec. classes saw "Making Fine China" and "Date Etiquette" on Wednesday. On Thursday, "The Development of Transportation" was seen by the World History class. On Friday, the Biology classes saw "Mechanisms of Breathing."

LIBRARY

Not too long ago the library was visited by H. C. Waller, from the Chrysler Proving Grounds. With him he brought a gift of reference booklets and pamphlets (about 30 in all) containing data on such things as power steering, tires and wheels, power steering, and almost anything else you can name, that pertains to an automobile.

The library has received other leaflets from various sources. Everyone is enjoying them, which isn't in the least unusual, considering how interested most people (especially boys) can be in cars and how they work. One of them, "Motor Trends," has been taken out a record of five times in one day!

The high school students are now finding their favorite magazines displayed on a new rack given to the school by the Public Library.

Organizations . . .

STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council has approved plans for the purchase of two chess sets as noon hour entertainment. They had previously gotten two checker sets.

They also approved H-Y's plans for a dance Feb. 25, after the game with U High.

Plans for further noon entertainment such as volleyball, ping-pong, and movies were discussed.

CHORUS

Permission of the school board has been granted to the High School Chorus to attend a vocal festival in Kalamazoo on April 27. They are working on music for that festival. The Junior High Chorus is making plans for competing songs.

JOURNALISM CLUB

A discussion was held in the Journalism Club meeting pertaining to having an hour course in Journalism next year.

The problem of awards for this year was brought up. It was decided that the ordering of pins should take place.

In English the seventh graders have been giving two-minute speeches on true short stories.

EIGHTH GRADE

The eighth grade girls in Mrs. Bulstad's room challenged the girls in Mr. Davis' room to play a game of basketball.

New Book Published by U-M Press Is Biography of Former President Angell

Ann Arbor—Farmer, hotel boy, student, librarian, editor, teacher, engineer, college professor, world traveler, university president, diplomat—these were the pursuits of James Burrill Angell, one of the most remarkable men of his time, who for 38 years, 1871 to 1909, served as president of the University of Michigan.

The full story of this man who had such a profound effect upon the University and the nation is told in a new book, "James Burrill Angell: An American Influence," which is just off the U-M Press.

Penned by Shirley W. Smith, who for 16 years served as Angell's secretary and himself rose to a University vice-presidency, this 380-page biography provides a rare look at the statesman and scholar to whom the University owes so much for its present status and reputation.

Angell came to the University when many thought it at the crossroads. Numerous members of the legislature were indifferent toward higher education, a number of the newspapers were unfriendly, there were serious disagreements among the relatively few who had an interest in the institution and student hazing was "all too common."

And as if these problems were not enough, he was faced through the years with such difficulties as the resignation en masse of all the hemophiliac professors, a University-wide controversy over alleged misbehavior of funds by a professor, and ebbing University monies.

But Angell was equal to the task. The hazing, for instance, was brought to an abrupt halt in 1874 with the suspension of 30 sophomores and 45 freshmen.

This was done in a typically masterful way by Angell who not only wrote an explanatory letter to the students' parents but also was experienced enough to immediately inform the newspapers of his action. This kept the students to the punch, for it had been their custom to release statements of their own when in conflict with the faculty or administration.

His knowledge of the value of newspapers had been gained previously while serving as the editor of the Providence, R. I. Journal. He had been equally adept at that time, too, for he was one of few to publicly acclaim the greatness of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.

During his tenure, Angell was four times appointed by U. S. presidents to serve on important international assignments. He went to China as minister plenipotentiary to work out the problem caused by Chinese immigration to America; he was on the Elgin Commission and the Deep Waterways Commission, both intended to work out problems with the Canadians; and he was minister to Turkey.

The University grew steadily under Angell's administration, even though he served for 23 years without a secretary and had to write all his letters himself by hand.

University worked out an efficient means of admitting high school graduates without entrance examinations, provided their schools met certain requirements; co-education proved itself; the number of courses rose from 57

JUNIORS

The class is very busy getting ready for the Junior Supper to be held from 5-6 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The class is also rehearsing the play "The Night of January 16th" each evening.

SENIORS

The Annual staff held a meeting Wednesday, Feb. 16, after school. The staff decided that a light blue cover with the statue of liberty silhouette in dark blue would be striking for the cover. The theme of the year will be "A Trip to New York City."

It was decided that everyone would start working now to make this annual the best ever.

to almost 400; and enrollment climbed to 5,233.

This latter development was both a joy and a sorrow to President Angell. It had been his practice to personally enroll each student who came to study in the Literary Department and so came to know them all and often their parents. But he had to forego this pleasure as the institution grew and his work increased.

Smith's book will long prove of value to those interested in how the University of Michigan became a leading educational institution under the guidance of a man who was an intense worker, yet warmly human.

This is admirably summed up by the author in the preface: "The standing that Michigan achieved under his presidency is proof of his status as an educational leader. But he had, also, to a degree unmatched by any of his great contemporaries the personal, the common touch, and the unique influence that emanates from such a personality."

Road Commission Officials Attend State Discussion Meeting

James Hendley, chairman of the board of the Washtenaw County Road Commission, and Howard Minier, Road Commission superintendent-manager, were in Lansing recently to attend a meeting of the legislative committee of the Michigan County Road Association of which Hendley is president. Twenty-five representatives of county road commissions all over the state were present.

Purpose of the meeting was to sit in on discussions of legislative matters to be brought up in the state legislature during the present term and to study the various proposed plans of finance and operation as they affect road problems at the county level.

Up for discussion at this meeting were Gov. G. Mennen Williams proposed road building program and several that will be introduced in the legislature by others during the present session.

After the meeting Minier said, "I'm certainly glad so many people have found out that we have a real need for funds for highway work and especially glad to see the interest shown in highway problems, not only in Michigan but in the entire country."

County road men from the state who attended the meeting Tuesday indicated their interest in the new road plans at state level stem from their desire to protect their counties' interests. Knowing the needs in their own counties they said they "want to make certain that the proposed programs don't take away more than we get."

The committee in charge of the remodeling project displayed blueprints of tentative plans for possible ways to remodel the building. Action on the matter was tabled until the next meeting to be held at the Reuben Staebler home, March 13.

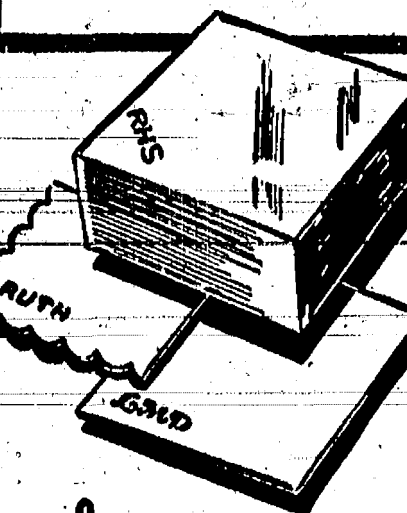

John Miller led the discussion on the month's topic and conducted a quiz contest which ended in a tie for the two sides participating. Mrs. Miller reported on the recent Farm Bureau Women's Committee meeting at Salem Town Hall which she attended with Mrs. Harold Eisenman and Mrs. Edwin Horning.

THE CHELSEA STANDARD

Michigan's 1955 Legislature is getting off to one of the roughest starts in years, beset by the ghosts of old issues and the birth of new problems.

Taxpayers and the cost of government combine the ingredients of the biggest issue: Money. The state ended the fiscal year with a $3,000,000 surplus in the treasury, not counting the deficiencies of over-spent public agencies. The road ahead will be rocky.

Gov. Williams checked in with a budget which forecasts a $46,000,000 deficit next year unless another source of revenue can be tapped. Then comes the rest of his program, a multi-million dollar bill for education on all levels, a highway bond issue to cost initially $500 million; expansions of services elsewhere.

"The big problem, which nobody has discussed yet, is where to get the money for these things," said Senator Creighton R. Coleman (R-Battle Creek).

Tax plans are popping up in every corner of the legislature. Some legislators favor a new batch of "nuisance taxes" on motels, hotel rooms, soft drinks and other goods and services. Williams would like to have his corporation profits tax.

Nobody doubts that the controversial Business Activities Tax will be extended beyond its March 15 expiration date. Both Democrats and Republicans want to avoid another direct assault on consumers.

Senator Carlton H. Morris (R-Kalamazoo), new tax committee chairman in the Senate, said: "Whatever kind of tax is enacted, we all know that in some way the consumer is going to have to pay it. It's a question whether we can afford these expansions at this time."

Highway speed limits will be an issue again, with State Police Commissioner Joseph A. Childs, for the first time, in support of a ceiling. The bills came pouring in for a 65-mile-an-hour daytime limit and 55 at night.

Childs cites surveys showing that motorists cannot stop in the distance covered by their headlights at night if they are traveling more than 55.

"The increases in the number of accidents in which drivers lose control of their cars is another indication that speed kills and that a limit is necessary if it cannot be self-imposed."

Prosperity continues in Michigan. Banking Commissioner Maurice C. Eveland said that the 1954 total resources of state banks reached $3,757,000,000 during the first peacetime boom, a gain of $137 million.

Nearly half the deposits in state banks are in time and savings accounts with the thriftiness of Michigan's citizens being characterized by an increase of nearly $80,000,000 in savings deposits.

"The records should be gratifying to every citizen," showing a healthy economic situation highlighted by a substantial gain in savings deposits," Eveland said.

Social legislation will get a big play in the 1955 session. Democrats have recruited Republican cosponsors for the oft-tried and oft-defeated Fair Employment Practices Commission bill and the usual liberalizations in workmen's benefits have been proposed.

The FEPC bill sets up machinery barring employers from firing or refusing to hire a worker on the basis of race, creed, color or national origin.

Senator Harry F. Hittle (R-Lansing) and Rep. Louis J. Cramton (R-Lapeer) are on two of the bills, neither of which contain the "right-to-work" clause pushed as a counter-proposal last year.

The "right to work" clause would enable a man to work in a factory whether or not he joined a union—a fact of discrimination Republicans feel is as important as FEPC.

Senator Philip Rahoi (D-Iron Mountain) introduced a bill to extend the 20-week coverage of unemployment compensation to 52 weeks, a broad hint at the guaranteed annual wage.

"That one will never even get out of committee," said one Republican member of the Senate health and welfare committee.

Other bills call for unlimited benefits for disabled workers, medical care as long as necessary beyond the present ceiling of 18 months, and lifetime assistance if permanently disabled.

The GHO is after further liberalizations of the unemployment and workmen's compensation laws and Republicans indicate they may go along—but not all the way.

The slow, tortuous pace of the first few weeks of the session, the issues already causing controversy and other straws in the winds point to a windup in June—and maybe later.

Oat yields in Michigan were increased from 24 to 70 bushels per acre in 1954 by using ample phosphorus and potash fertilizer at planting time and top dressing with nitrogen.

Sugar beets do best when seed is planted in loose soil and then pressed firmly into the soil by weighted packer wheels, MSC researchers say.

UNWRITTEN LAWS

There is no more natural human instinct than to dodge or duck when something threatens to hit you. So want out for that pedestrian who may step back to keep from being hit by one car—and move right in front of you.

Smart drivers have to learn a lot about "cause and effect" in traffic. It's as natural for a threatened pedestrian to jump away from the threat as for a man to get up suddenly if he sits down on a tack.

To keep from hitting a pedestrian on the "rebound" you not only have to keep your eye on the pedestrian but you have to spot any car that may scare him in front of you.

Survey Shows Cost of Different Silo Constructions

How much does a silo cost? Karl T. Wright, a Michigan State farm economist, told a Farmers' Week audience Tuesday that a cost survey showed this:

An unlined trench silo with a 150-ton capacity would cost about $70.

A bunker silo of the same capacity would cost about $800.

An upright concrete stave silo, nearly $1,600.

Estimates of total cost for storage, spoilage and feeding of grass silage was the lowest for the bunker silo—$1.63 a ton. The figure was $2.25 for the upright silo and for the unlined trench silo, when the silage was fed in bunks—or $2.75 if fed in the barn.

But Wright also pointed out this: If you're short of money and have the proper site, you can have satisfactory storage with the unlined trench silo. While a bunker silo costs more, you can self-feed livestock.

And the upright silo, while costing still more, does cut spoilage losses—the feeding is done inside and the silo adds to the appearance of the farmstead.

Sheep can stand a lot of cold weather if they have a dry shelter, MSC sheep specialists say.

Phosphate Tops Lime For Dairy Barn Use

Superphosphate fertilizer is better than lime for use in the dairy stanchion barn.

Extension dairyman J. G. Hays of Michigan State College offers that tip. He advised a half pound of phosphate fertilizer per cow per day, spread in the gutter and for a short distance behind the gutter.

The reason phosphate is better than lime, Hays says, is that lime releases nitrogen and makes the stanchion floor slippery. Phosphate ties up nitrogen and helps give the cows more sure footing. And besides, the manure from the stanchion barn will be more valuable.

Place a clear glass over your open cookbook; this will keep your place and protect the book too.

For a standard double bed, MSC home economists recommend using an 81-inch width and 108-inch length sheet.

Local delivered price of the 2-door, 6-passenger Buick SPECIAL Sedan, Model 48, illustrated. Optional equipment, accessories, state and local taxes. If any, additional. Prices may vary slightly in adjoining communities. Even the factory-installed extras you may want are bargain, such as Heater & Defroster . . . $81.70; Radio & Antenna . . . $72.50.

CHANCES are, you'll be way over if you guess at the local delivered price of a 1955 Buick. Most people are.

And that's easy to understand when you look at a Buick. It's big, broad, roomy—powered for thrilling action. In prestige alone, it would seem to carry a high price tag.

But when you check into things, you discover this surprising fact: Buick is in the nation's top three when it comes to sales volume—and when it comes to low prices that make such huge popularity possible.

The price we show here is one proof of that. And an even bigger one is the soaring success of the 1955 Buick—the hottest car in all Buick sales history.

So why miss out on Buick style and power and room and ride when you can have it all if you can afford any new car?

Why do yourself out of the fun and pride and deep satisfaction of bossing a big and brawny beauty like the one pictured here, when the dollars you pay for this Buick buy you so much more sheer automobile?

And why pay extra for things like direction signals, oil-bath air cleaner, full-flow oil filter, automatic lighting in the glove compartment—when such things, and more, are yours in every new Buick as standard equipment at no extra cost?

Drop in for a visit this week and start checking things.

We believe that when you look into this great car—when you see what you get for the low price you pay—and when you discover what happens when you nudge that gas pedal—you'll say it's gospel that Buick's the thrill and the buy of the year, hands down.

Thrill of the year is Buick

Michigan beckoned tourists and tossed a bouquet at its resort operators in the same motion.

Both gestures came as the U. S. Department of the Interior warned that drought conditions are prevailing over two-thirds of the nation.

But the report made Michigan look like an oasis, with its more than 11,000 inland lakes and resort areas catering to both the summer and winter trade. It said: "Michigan is immune to drought. The Great Lakes waters are clear, cool and soft, and no part of the state is more than 95 miles from one of the Great Lakes."

The Michigan Department of Economic Development took the cue to remind everybody with a mailing address that the state has 2,242 miles of Great Lakes shoreline.

It praised the resorts for taking advantage of the gifts of nature and asked other states to send its weary and worn, restless and thirsty citizens up to Michigan for a vacation.

The letter to other states said: "Michigan is a good place to live. Come to Michigan."

Democrats who hold six of the state's top offices are hurrying to join Gov. Williams' campaign to scorch Republicans who hold the other two. The first rally came when five of them joined Williams at their first Democrat dominated administrative board meeting. Where Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler had only Williams to fight with before November, he now faced six.

He was criticized for coming to the meeting with less information about project bids than Democrats wanted. Next day he was blasted again for trying to pay a damage claim on the advice of an assistant attorney general.

As the legislature gets into the highway problem, he will again be a target of the Democrats—and some Republicans who, rightly or wrongly, figure him as a partisan liability.

Ziegler remains calm through it all with three years still to run in his present term.

He stated that he has built as many roads as possible with the available funds and that he needs up to $5,000,000 to bring all the state's trunklines, roads and streets up to standards.

Imprisoned youngsters have stirred the sympathy—and ire of the Michigan Corrections Commission. Officials said there are 400 youths behind bars between the ages of 15 and 17 and that facilities to handle the tough adult convict are "a reach" to the state when applied to youths.

That was the estimate of Commissioner Talbot Smith as he bowed out of the system to become a Supreme Court Justice. He asked for a complete reform of the youthful-offender policies. He said: "Putting these youngsters in with hardened criminals is just plain murder."

First, he asked that a separate reception center be created for youths and that the penal code be changed to soften the procedures of arrest, prosecution and preliminary sentences.

Then, as a long-range program he suggested a separate set of facilities for youths which feature education, training and reform.

"We can salvage some of these youngsters and we should have some temporary arrangement established immediately," he said.

The next step will be conferences between corrections officials and the Michigan Youth Commission in an effort to work out a program to present to the legislature.

Michigan State College, which pioneered services to farmers for education, will be 100 years old in 1955. First students were instructed to "bring your own axes" and a college was started.

the first under the Morrill Act creating land-grant colleges. Since that early beginning, the college has grown to enrollments up to 16,000 students. It has trained men for war and educated them to follow peace-time pursuits.

Hundreds of farmers throughout the state send regularly for information from the college on how they can increase their profits and field agents in every county lend a hand.

The college also has become a liberal arts university, offering degrees in education, the languages, engineering, English, home economics and dozens of other courses.

For its centennial year, the college has arranged national conferences of a number of distinguished scientific and cultural organizations and a sparkling array of other events.

It will all start Feb. 12 with "Founders Day."

University Extension Music Program Proves Popular with Southern Children

JACKSON, Miss. — Violin playing is beginning to rival football as a he-man sport in Mississippi elementary schools, the American Music Conference reports.

In just three years, the number of string instrument students in the public schools of the state has shot from almost none to more than 1,000, and the amazing progress can be credited mostly to a unique "pilot" program instituted through the University of Mississippi extension department.

Three years ago the University put a "circuit riding" teacher to work in three north Mississippi cities, offering string instruction in small classes. That first teacher, Frank Crockett, set out to make string instrument playing just as respectable for a boy as beating a drum in a band.

The first efforts were so successful that each of the three schools hired a full-time instructor for the next season.

Next year Crockett moved on to three schools near Jackson, and more instructors were added for other schools in the state. Again the pilot program paid off. All those schools have regular teachers this year.

At the beginning of this school year, Crockett moved on to Mississippi Southern College, where he is working on a similar effort.

His successor in the Jackson area, Marvin Zoschke, instituted string work in seven elementary schools of the large Jackson city school system, besides one at Brookhaven, 60 miles to the south. Interest was so intense in Jackson that Zoschke had 207 applicants, far too many to handle in the small classes the program demands. Finally he cut the list down to 115.

Another teacher is working in Gulfport schools in south Mississippi. Meanwhile previously installed string departments are at work in 10 other Mississippi cities.

Zoschke believes the most important part of the string instruction is providing an outlet of expression for the students.

"Kids want to feel important, and they should find a suitable outlet, whether it be music or sports," he says.

He is careful to point out that the main object is not the training of musicians. All students who want to take the classes are accepted if there is room for them.

"We do believe everybody can play the violin," he observes.

Lessons are free, but students furnish their own instruments. This they have done willingly to take part in a program that has proved exceptionally popular with both boys and girls.

All of the newer synthetic fibers are similar to nylon in that they are strong and not easily worn by rubbing, are warm, yet light, are non-absorbent, need little pressing and are moth and mildew resistant.

All pockets in or on wool clothing should be reinforced with wig-an or muslin to ease the strain on the fabric.

Survival Is Not All

Tremendous gains have been made over the years in the skill and knowledge of the medical profession. Curing disease, accomplishing surgical miracles, and the discovery of new drugs can be classed as one of the wonders of the world.

But survival is not all! Even though broken bodies can be mended and diseases cured, what about the broken spirits and mental anguish caused by financial strain due to accident and illness? You and I have seen it time and again.

My Company, Woodmen Accident, has been furnishing protection against financial losses due to accident and sickness for 64 years. Such protection for you or your family costs only pennies a day! Let's talk it over—
