Petition Asks Wilkinson Area Drain

Request Supported
By 28 Residents of Affected Area

John Flock, Washtenaw county drain commissioner, announced this week that a petition has been received in his office to lay out the Wilkinson drain in Sylvan township and Chelsea.

The general route of the drain as petitioned for requests starting at Letts Creek south under Middle street, down Wilkinson to Chandler street, northeast on Chandler to Grant street, and south on Grant to Pierce street.

It is for the purpose of draining the above streets, including the South Elementary school grounds, by use of combined open ditch and tile.

The petition was signed by 28 residents of the area.

Drain Commissioner Flock mentioned that Maxwell G Sweet, Chelsea Village president, has indicated interest in possibly extending coverage of the drain as petitioned. As yet, however, nothing definite has been planned.

As soon as the petition is cleared through the proper channels, Flock said, he plans to get engineers, reports and estimates on the requested Wilkinson drain project in preparation for future action. This includes a second petition as to construction of the drain and a public hearing before a board of determination.

Gudeman Plant Picketed by Women Who Left Jobs

Nineteen women employees of the Gudeman plant on Old US-12, who walked off the job in the middle of an afternoon early last week were still out yesterday and picketing the plant in what has been described as a "unauthorized and unrecognized action" by UAW-CIO spokesmen. There is no union at the plant.

Elmore C. Ayer, manager of the Chelsea Division of the company, authorized a statement yesterday in which it was pointed out that no demands or grievances had yet been submitted, orally or otherwise, to company officials by the picketing women.

Ayer's statement, released by his assistant, William Hartman, stated that the plant is not on strike and is on a full production schedule.

The company manufactures electronic capacitors for the radio and television industry and employs 120 workers, mostly women.

Hartman stated that Ayer said he had been told by telephone that teamsters of AFL Local 164 at Jackson had been instructed to continue deliveries and pick-ups at the local plant regardless of picket lines, since the plant is not considered on strike.

State School Official Special Lenten Supports Provision Services Planned at Of Proposal III Assembly of God

Proposal No. 3 on the April 4 Life convention conducted at the Assembly of God chapel by Rev. J. H. Meppelink, brother of the incumbent, beginning April 5, and continuing to Easter Sunday, April 10. Meetings will be held at 7:30 p.m. in every district of the state where it is necessary to borrow funds to construct new classrooms.

He points out that the $100,000, 600 state funds involved will probably never be entirely used and the cost to the taxpayers will be negligible.

This provision of proposal No. 3 will help districts where there are emergencies due to a tremendous influx of population or districts which do not have the ability to construct buildings for their children.

Taylor says the important features are that of providing state backing for the bonds and by lengthening the bonding period. If this passes, it is altogether possible that no school district will need to pay more than 2 per cent interest. This will even help the districts that have already bonded, since most of the bond issues can be refunded at a lower rate.

MSC Gives Trees To State Groups

Michigan State College is giving white pine trees to schools, churches and civic groups as a part of the institution's Centennial Year observance. The white pine has been named by the legislature and governor as the official state tree.

Dr. Paul A. Herbert, director of conservation at MSC, said about 1,500 groups have requested one of the trees. The young plants average 18 inches high and are accompanied by a small plastic marker.

He indicated that the trees are to be planted on public sites such as parks, school grounds and courthouse squares. The white pine will grow on more soil types than any other Michigan tree.

Early State History Sparkles With Human Interest Stories

Ann Arbor—Human-interest anecdotes lend sparkle to some of the items in the exhibit, "Materials for Research in Michigan History," currently being shown in the display cases of the University of Michigan Historical Collections.

In a letter to his mother at Owosso, Private George W. Chase of the Fourth Michigan Cavalry, writes on Sept. 6, 1863: "A few days ago our battery was down at the river to feel out the position of the Rebs on the south side of the river at Blye Ferry, but they didn't make out anything. The next day our band was ordered out with about 30 men. We went down to the ferry, presented a flag of truce and commenced playing. Not a Reb was in sight. While playing the second piece a flag was presented on the other bank and a boat with three men and an officer started across.

"The officer wished to know our business there and was told by Captain Grant that we came down to have a little fun and serenade them. He said they were much delighted with the music and that they had not heard any in a long time. A conversation was held on other matters of small importance and he then got into the boat and went back while we played them another tune.

"After they got back they dropped their white flag and raised a red one. 'Holla' was heard from the Rebs. 'Holla' was the response. 'Play Home Sweet Home' was heard but we didn't—the music and told them so. 'Play Dixie' was then heard again and we had to tell them we had not the music. Then play Yankee Doodle.

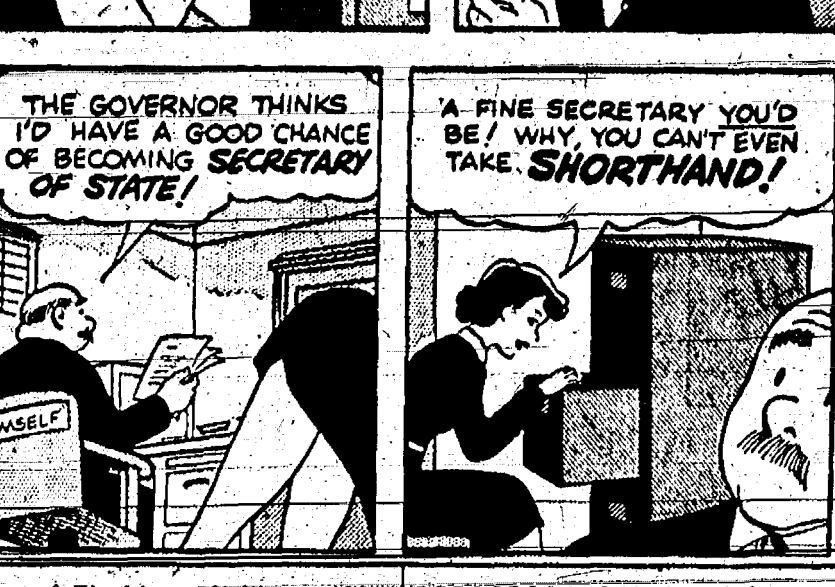

"Well that we played and a few other pieces and then came back to camp. On the whole, we had a very pleasant time of it. They said they expected we had come for the purpose of firing on them and were much surprised at our flag of truce."

A diary kept by Charles M. Cleveland, storekeeper in Adrian from 1854 to 1893 gives a vivid account of an early balloon ascension, which took place in that town on Sept. 18. He writes: "Thurston and Bannister ascended with the balloon at 8 a.m., descended 15 miles southeast and inverted the balloon to allow gas to escape through the mouth. The balloon ascended with Mr. Thurston on the valve board, with his arms around the silk. He is undoubtedly killed." Next morning Thurston's remains were found in a field just over the boundary of Ohio.

A student letter from James Lamb, Medical School Class of 1853, dated Jan. 15, 1853, tells the recipient, Sarah, of his boundless enthusiasm for his work in the dissecting room. "You want to know how I stand it. That appears to me a very strange question, but to be candid, I never was any place that was so exceedingly interesting as the dissecting room. And if I could only have the time and the means, I would spend six months in it. I have just come from the dissecting room where I spent the day and it may sound strange for me to say that it is interesting for me to be where there is an arm one place, a leg in another, and a skull in another."

No. 51 WATCH FOR A PEDESTRIAN STEPPING FROM A PARKED CAR

The trouble with driving a car is you have to park and go on foot to your destination. So when you park you should slide all the way across the front seat in spite of packages, papers and other passengers, and get out on the sidewalk side.

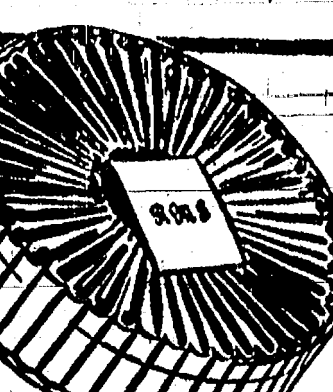

So, watch out for that parked car when its front door begins to open. You may have a four-foot door and a thoughtless pedestrian right in front of you. Failing to see this coming is as stupid as failing to expect a train when railway flashing lights come on. Stop down — you may not be able to dodge.

Landscape Architecture Professor Gives Hints on Care for Rose Bushes

Ann Arbor—Trailing, climbing and pillar roses, trained to grow on buildings, arbors, pergolas, fences, walls and rocky slopes, can lay claim to versatility as well as to beauty, according to Harlow O. Whittemore, professor of landscape architecture at the University of Michigan.

Just remember two things in selecting the support material, he says:

(1) "Roses do not take kindly to drastic changes in temperature. They dislike a metal surface, and to a lesser extent, a stone or brick wall, because these do not retain an even temperature. Wood is the best and unpainted wood preferable.

(2) "Because of the danger of mildew, roses require free circulation of air through their foliage. Therefore, if the rose is to be trained on a wall, it should be fastened to supports set away from the wall so that there is foliage between the wall and the rose. The south side of the building is preferable to the north, since a southern exposure will aid in the rapid drying of the rose after rain.

"The climbing rose, covering a high, screening fence or trellis, is especially suitable for downtown properties where you wish to hide a taller building. A fence well covered with roses, can sometimes be made as high as twelve feet," according to the landscape architect.

Most vigorous of the commonly known climbers is the Dr. Van Fleet rose. Also well known are Silver Moon and Marechal Niel.

He suggests that pillar roses be supported in one of two ways: (1) "Tie the rose to the wooden posts or arms of a post, which has been set three feet in the ground preferably on a cement foundation and braced to prevent decay. The post should be between six and ten feet high—the normal length of the canes of the plant—(2) or set the rose plant in the midst of four slender poles placed an inch and one-half apart, and tie the tops of the poles together. The poles need to be removed every year.

"Pillar roses make an arresting accent when used to punctuate a border of other flowers. They can also be ingeniously used to form a sort of avenue of roses, or be placed on either side of a pathway. You can vary the effect of the pathway by interspersing, at intervals, wooden arches, which the more vigorous climbers, or even ramblers, may be trained. Good pillar roses are the Paul Scarlet climber and the new Giant Sentinel."

Professor Whittemore points out that roses can be used to cover an arbor or pergola, although they are not particularly effective for shade. "You could, however, train the vines on the supporting framework, and employ some other vine as shade for the top of the arbor," he says.

"This brings up the question of a fence. A low fence (four feet high) of wood or wire is particularly suitable for growing the more delicate types of climbers so trained as to produce a rose hedge. The roses should be planted close together so that they form a completely solid hedge.

"A tall fence (seven to ten feet high) of either wood or wire, screening the edge of the property, is well adapted to the climbing type of rose." Since only the upper part of the fence would be well covered with roses, he suggests that some evergreen vine, such as wintercreeper, be used to cover the lower part of it.

Professor Whittemore suggests that trailing roses make an excellent groundcover. Used on a slope, they also prevent soil erosion. For best results, choose a sunny bank with a south, southeast or southwest exposure, and preferably one with a good, loamy soil—part clay and humus, and enriched.

"Especially adapted to this treatment are all the Dorothy Perkins type roses, and some of the small-flowered cluster roses with rapidly growing stems. They will also trail over stone piles, stumps, or natural rock formations.

"Once started, these should be left alone and no attempt should be made to remove the old canes," the landscape architect advises.

MSC dairymen found that cows stay cleaner in loose housing when they are bedded after the evening milking—that's when they use the lounge the most.

Michigan reforested more than 38,702 acres in 1954 to lead all north-central states in the planting of trees, according to Michigan State College foresters.

When pruning trees this spring, remember that pruning wounds heal best when cuts are smooth and close to the branch or trunk. Any stubs left may rot later and weaken the tree, warn MSC horticulturists.

Clean Potato Seed Is Best Assurance Of Good Crop

Thinking about treating your seed potatoes before spring planting? Remember, nothing takes the place of clean seed.

Dennie L. Clanan, Michigan State College extension potato specialist points out that the old formaldehyde treatment for potato seed is not recommended any more.

He says the old system was cumbersome and needed too exacting conditions to be effective—if the seed wasn't treated long enough it did no good. Over-treatment often burned the eyes of the potatoes.

The MSC farm cropsman tested the formaldehyde treatment several years ago and found that it was fairly effective for scab prevention, but found that most of the scab disease was in the ground, not in the tuber.

The researchers found that acid soil is needed for potatoes. If the land contains too much lime—it might be a better idea to give up the idea of planting spuds.

Right now researchers are working on a treatment for seedpiece decay and a treatment to control blackleg in the early stages. Many times the decay of out seed before getting the plant started ruins the stand.

MSC farm cropsman will test the new treating materials on Experiment Station plots during the 1955 growing season.

So, until the results are available from the tests, you can save yourself a lot of work and worry by getting clean seed and putting it in clean ground.

To eliminate some common safety hazards in your home, try using some luminescent paint on the edges of the steps in a dark stairway, on door knobs, key plates and light bulbs.

Teen-Age Musicians To Join in Detroit Symphony Concert

The very best teen-age musical talent in this part of the state will be heard when the Southern Michigan Youth Symphony plays its annual spring concert in Detroit, April 6, at 8:30 p.m. in the Raskin Educational Memorial with Orien Dalley as conductor. This unique group of 119 youngsters, representing 28 communities and 46 schools, is selected from within a radius of about 150 miles of Ann Arbor, although this year one student comes from Traverse City.

Max M. Ziegler of Dexter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Ziegler, plays with the orchestra. Mrs. Ziegler is the former Elsie Koenig, formerly of Chelsea.

Sponsored by the University of Michigan Extension Service and the School of Music, the Michigan Youth Symphony was organized by Dalley in 1950. Purpose of the group was to provide talented teen-agers with the opportunity of playing great symphonic music.

Each year several tuition scholarships to the National Music Camp are made available by the James Foster Foundation of Ann Arbor to members who show unusual growth in the field of orchestral ensemble, in individual study, and in loyalty to their school organizations. Six such scholarships will be awarded at the concert.

(A Short Story)

By RICHARD HILL WILKINSON

IT WAS WHILE she was on the boat coming back from Europe that Fanchon gave some serious thought to Craig. This was queer, because an ordinary girl who was engaged to marry a man and was returning to his arms after a half-year spent abroad, would likely have been all-a-twitter. Fanchon wasn't. Fanchon rather dreaded the prospect that lay ahead. Craig she knew, would be a problem. She sighed. How could she ever make him understand that she had changed? That a year on the continent does things to one, gives one a new and more sophisticated slant on life.

She would, of course, have to tell Craig the whole thing, including the facts about Darrell Urban, who was following her to America on the next boat. Craig would probably be difficult. That was what living in a small town all of one's life did to one. It made one difficult--stubborn and narrow.

Craig was not at the station to meet her when she reached Hope-dale.

She called his house. Craig answered. "Hello," she said in her best affected continental accent.

"Hello," said Craig. "Oh, is that you, honey? You're back, eh? Fine. Look, I have to run to Chicago tonight on business. Catching the 11 o'clock plane. Suppose we get together tomorrow?"

"Tomorrow," said Fanchon icily. "I'm going to be busy."

"O.K. Make it the next day then. Be better for me anyhow. I'm rushed to death."

Fanchon was furious. The impudence of him! In the next minute, however, she was glad. This would give her an opening, and excuse to be cruel and stiff. However, first she'd teach him a lesson. She wouldn't see him when he returned from Chicago the day after tomorrow.

She didn't either. She didn't get the chance. For Craig didn't return.

Fanchon opened and closed her mouth. A curious ecstatic sensation surged from her toes to her red-doned eyelids. Two big tears welled up into her eyes. She hunted for a handkerchief. Craig grinned and produced one big enough to last an hour or more. By that time they had reached the J. P.'s office and there was no further need for handkerchiefs.

Tourist, Resort Institute Planned At East Lansing

All resort, motel, and food service operators in Michigan will have an unusual opportunity to have an on-the-job training course in the latest techniques of serving vacationists, Don Johnson, director of the Michigan State College, East Lansing, said today.

This unique school, which will be held on the campus of the Michigan State College, East Lansing, April 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8, is an excellent opportunity for those who are concerned with the future of the Michigan resort industry.

The school will be conducted largely by people in the business who have been particularly adept at solving certain problems. Other discussion leaders will be specialists in their fields.

Anyone who is interested in attending can get further details from the county agent or home demonstration agent. Inquiries can also be sent to Tourist and Resort Service, 409 Agricultural Hall, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

JERRY PIATT PROMOTED TO CORPORAL

Jerry Piatt, son of Mrs. Harriet Piatt, now stationed with the U. S. Marines in South Korea, has been promoted from private first class to corporal, according to word received here.

In recent letters to his mother, Corporal Piatt has mentioned his interest in the work of his outfit in providing a Protestant orphanage for approximately 120 children nearby. Seabees put up the building and the Marine outfit has purchased two rice paddies to provide the children's staple food.

Corporal Piatt said the servicemen provide treats of candy, etc., for the orphans each week-end. Older children in the group assist the three adults who are in charge of the orphanage.

Corporal Piatt said Catholic men of the outfit have put up a similar orphanage for children of their faith and are maintaining it on the same basis.

Platt's address is now: Cpl. Jerry Piatt, 1377340, MAB-33 B&G, MAG-33 FMAW, co. FPO, San Francisco, Calif.

Model Railroad Fair Sponsored By Jackson Group

The second annual Model Railroad Fair is to be held in Jackson April 1, 2 and 3, according to an announcement by George DeCrocker and Robert Preston, co-chairmen of the event for the sponsoring Jackson Model Railroad club.

Friday, April 1, the fair will be open from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m. Saturday, April 2, the house will be open from 1 p.m. until 9 p.m.; and Sunday, April 3, from 1 p.m. until 7 p.m.

The exhibits will be housed on the second floor of the Agricultural building at the Jackson county fair grounds.

One of the exhibits is 35 x 70 feet in size and includes a turntable and roundhouse as well as all the many types of railroad engines, cars and equipment, all perfectly scaled.

DeCrocker said this week that the club's exhibit is attracting model railroad enthusiasts from many points in Michigan as well as neighboring states and will prove interesting to anyone who cares to attend.

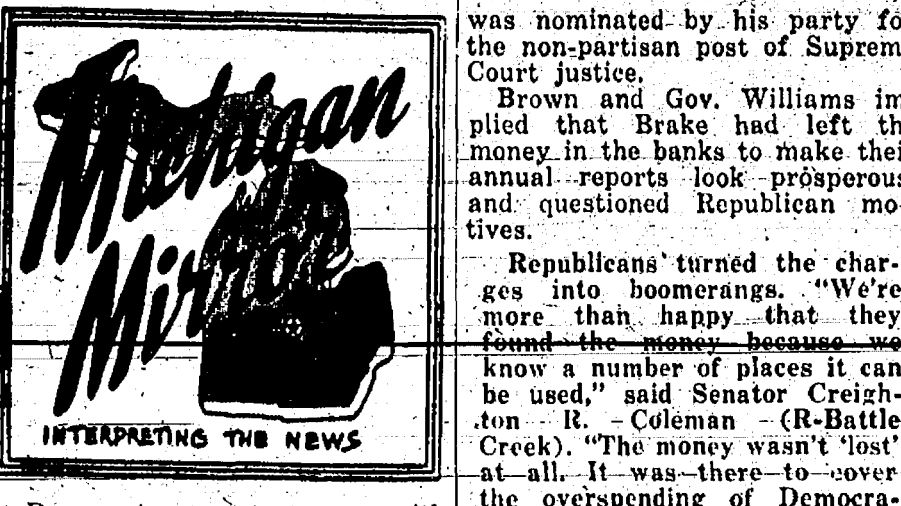

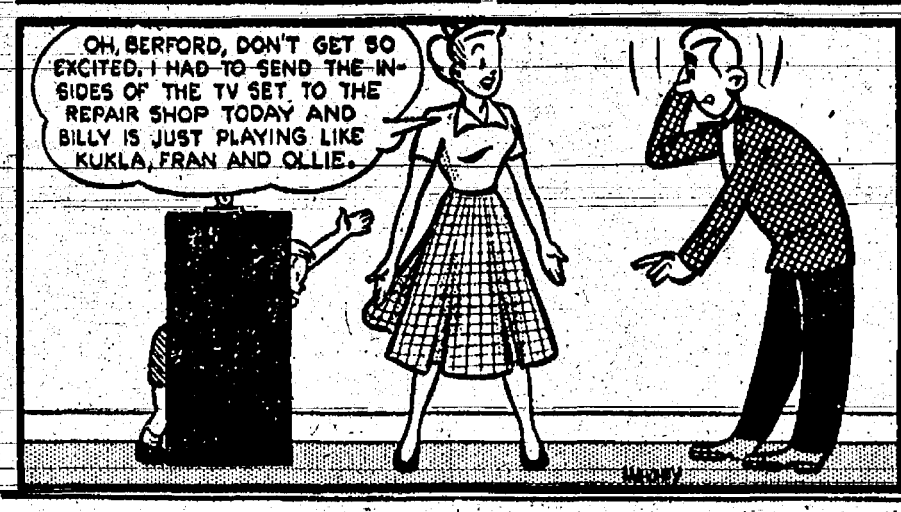

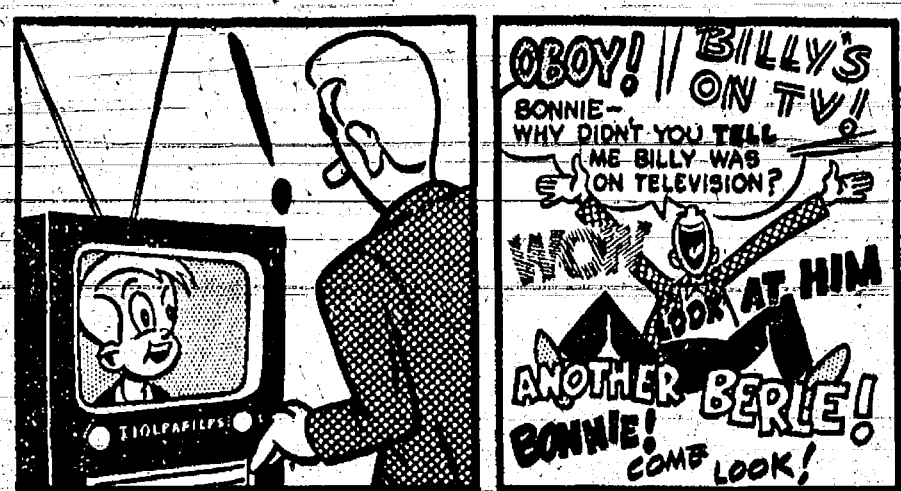

There is no charge and everyone is welcome, DeCrocker stated.

He said "Anyone who enjoys the youngsters' Christmas toy trains will surely enjoy seeing this huge exhibit of a model train system in operation."

Transit carriers in the United States carry 65,000,000 riders every weekday, equal to the combined populations of Canada and Great Britain.

THE BAFFLES

By Mahoney

Democrats came a cropper with their latest attempt to torment Republicans in and out of office.

The two-day shambles ended in a draw with both sides claiming victory. It happened this way:

Treasurer Sanford A. Brown came up with the discovery of $1,000,000 in dormant state bank accounts left in 80 state banks for the use of state agencies in emergencies.

He ordered the accounts recovered for investment in short-term government notes to bear interest for the greater affluence of the Michigan treasury.

Asked why the accounts were left dormant in bank accounts which drew no interest and "cost the state thousands of dollars in interest," Brown said, "You'll have to ask my predecessor."

Brown's predecessor is D. Hale Brake, a Republican, who later

The battle started weeks ago when the Republicans kicked off their spring campaign with charges that the unions were trying to "dominate" education and the Michigan Supreme Court.

Felkens displayed union-authored pamphlets showing instructions to local union leaders. They stressed the importance of both fields and urged the locals to get out the Democratic vote.

Republicans charge that the CIO is violating the law. Democrats are retorting that Republicans are getting backing from big business and industry. The GOP caucus did nothing "officially" but toyed again with starting a top-to-bottom investigation.

Toll roads have become a red hot issue among southeastern Michigan cities. Dearborn started the hassle with the complaint that the proposed $184,000 turnpike between Flat Rock and Saginaw would split the city in half. We want to develop that area for parks and keep the city intact, said Senator Patrick J. O'Brien, of Dearborn. William B. Slaughter, Jr., of Birmingham, the Michigan Turnpike Authority chairman, snapped back that the proposed route was only tentative and Dearborn had nothing to fear.

The controversy raised a few eyebrows in the legislature.

Senator William S. Broomfield (R-Royal Oak) and others asked that the turnpike law be repealed because Michigan is launching a highway program with increased gasoline and weight taxes.

"We don't want toll roads and free superhighways side by side," he said.

Broomfield agreed to wait until April 15 for a public hearing on the repeal of the law. The authority has promised to disclose its route before moving ahead.

Lt. Gov. Philip A. Hart is passing out free matches these days.

When Hart, a Democrat, took over the office from former Lt. Gov. Clarence A. Reid, a Republican, he fell heir to a carton of Reid's campaign matches stuffed in a bottom desk drawer.

Hart, making the most of the situation, passed them out to friends and anyone else interested in lighting a cigarette or burning a barn.

LEARNING BY DOING 4-H CLUB

Twenty members of the Learning By Doing 4-H club took part in the club's dress revue held Saturday night at the home of Marjorie Bradbury. Mothers of members and members of the Lima Center Extension club were invited to be present.

The girls modeled their clothing, knitting and personal grooming projects, the occasion serving as a practice session in preparation for the county contest at Ann Arbor High school next Tuesday and Wednesday.

FLYING FINGERS

The "Flying Fingers" 4-H club entertained their mothers and friends at a style show and tea, at the home of Elva Willoughby at Cavanaugh Lake, on Saturday afternoon, March 26 from 2 to 4. About 30 guests were present.

On Feb. 12 the girls met at the Sexton home for their annual valentine's dinner. They planned the menu and served the meal.

In November the "Live Wires" 4-H boy's club invited the girls to an ice skating party at the lake. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Willoughby at her home, later in the evening.

The projects are all finished and girls are looking forward to the spring achievement day in Ann Arbor on April 6.

J. Wayne Green, eminent Trichologist, demonstrates causes of baldness and how it can be prevented.

How To Have Hair For A Lifetime
To Be Demonstrated Here By Famous Trichologist
Offers Written Guarantee

(An exclusive interview by Steven Bright)

WICHITA (Special). J. Wayne Green, Director of Rogers, Inc., not state that any person must be bald before baldness exists in the family. "What it does say is that in some families, a tendency exists toward an undernourished scalp." The purpose of the Rogers Hair and Scalp Clinic is to teach the methods of strengthening the weak scalp and nourishing it to a healthy, vigorous condition. "A healthy scalp will grow hair if it is not already completely bald," assures Green.

Is There Hope For The Completely Bald?
In his travels throughout the United States and Canada, Green has collected hundreds of testimonials of his ability to develop weak, fuzzy into healthy, mature hair. All of his clients have started with a private examination, hair and scalp analysis, and a diagnosis of the disorder. Green is quick however, to tell a hopeless case that he cannot help. "We pluggingly advise," says Green, "that no person who is completely bald hold any hope whatsoever of regrowing hair. If there is any fuzz at all, we can restore a healthy scalp condition and the hair will grow normally again as nature intended."

Offers A Guarantee
"Rogers, Inc., America's Foremost Hair and Scalp Specialists, offer a guarantee to any client who enrolls for treatment. If he or she is not completely delighted with results at the end of 30 days, the money invested will be graciously refunded," pledged Green. We must have satisfied clients. We must grow hair. After all, it is our best advertisement."

Is Your Hair Healthy?
If you have a scalp disorder, or if you are worried about your hair, call Trichologist C. T. Matlock at the Sylvan Hotel in Chelsea, Michigan, Thursday, April 7 ONLY, from 12 noon to 9:00 p.m. The public is invited. The examinations are private and open to men and women. You do not need an appointment, and you will not be embarrassed or obligated in any way.

Bulletin Available On Concentrate Spraying Techniques

East Lansing—"Concentrate spraying" will be used more and more this summer when Michigan orchardists begin chemical warfare to protect their crops from insects and diseases. Orchard men in the state are using chemical concentrate sprays for two reasons: To reduce the cost of pest control and improve the quality of fruit by spray injury, report Michigan State College researchers.

In order to use the concentrate sprays the orchardists will need airblast machines. When working with such a small amount of spray per tree, the fruit growers have to watch closely the amount of spray delivered into the tree and the speed of the sprayer as it passes the tree.

The Michigan State College horticulture department, with the cooperation of the departments of entomology, plant pathology and botany, has published the 1955 spray calendar.

The calendar, in the form of an extension bulletin—No. 154—is available from the county extension office and the MSC bulletin office.

Because of the expanding small fruit industry in Michigan, the spraying schedules for blueberry, currant, gooseberry, blackberry, dewberry, raspberry, and strawberry have been included. These in addition to the spraying schedules for tree fruits and grapes which are a basic part of the bulletin.

Tired of buying oats at today's prices, a Somerville, Tenn., sorghum mill operator decided it was cheaper to buy gasoline, hooked his new tractor up to replace the mule on the end of the long pole which made the mill go around.

Pickling Cucumbers Make Good Farm Crop in Michigan

Want to grow pickling cucumbers this year?

Horticulturists at Michigan State College say that cucumbers are a good cash crop for the general farmer. They take little investment, bring quick returns.

A farmer doesn't have to have additional machinery—except for a sprayer or duster—and the harvest comes during the slack season on most farms. The horticulturists point out that the short growing season of cucumbers—45 to 60 days after planting—makes it possible for most farmers in the Lower Peninsula to grow the crop.

The MSC horticulturists tell how to get started with the crop in a new publication. It's available at the county extension office. Ask for Extension Folder F-191, "Growing Pickling Cucumbers in Michigan."

A heating and ventilating device which mediates the air circulating in public buildings was recently demonstrated in Chicago.

Band Seeding Conversion Cost Quickly Saved

You can convert your small grain drill into a band seeder this spring, and you'll pay for it by the seed it saves—if you seed from 10 to 20 acres of alfalfa or red clover in spring grain.

Milo B. Tesar, farm crops specialist at Michigan State, claims you can save $1.42 an acre by reducing the seeding rate from eight to six pounds per acre.

Experiments at MSC show you can save an average of one-fourth in seed costs. And you can have stronger and surer stands than if you broadcast the seed with a drill. The band seeder attachment will last from five to 10 years.

The attachment drops the legume seed in a narrow band—12 inches behind the drill shoe—on top of the soil. That puts the seed directly over the fertilizer and grain which is drilled from one to two and a half inches deep. Cultivating or rain will make a shallow covering for the seed.

Why does band seeding save seed? Tesar explains it this way: The phosphorus in the fertilizer under the seed gives the seedling a "shot in the arm" for a quick start. The small plants have a better chance to survive grain competition, insects, weeds, diseases and drought.

You can buy kits now to adapt a regular grain drill into a band seeder. Prices vary from $15 to $30 for a 13-hole drill.

Program To Finance College Educations Proposed at MSC

East Lansing—A plan to permit parents to finance the college education of their youngsters starting from birth has been proposed at Michigan State College.

The proposal for the plan was made by MSC Treasurer Philip J. May before a recent meeting of the State Board of Agriculture. The board authorized May to prepare detailed plans for such a program for presentation at a future meeting.

Tentative plans would have parents start making monthly payments from the birth of the child or later if desired.

According to May, if parents paid any $15 a month, the fund would amount to enough to cover college expenses of around $1,200 a year for four years when the child reached college age.

May said the plan would call for interest to be paid on the account and that withdrawals would be authorized at any time.

History Shows Irish First Settlers of Mill Lake Area

In a history of the Mill Lake Camp area, north and west of Chelsea, contributed by Germaine Easter, and brought to the office of The Chelsea Standard by J. A. Dumouchel, there are a number of interesting facts about the past 120 years since Irish settlers first made their home there.

The history begins with the statement that the first permanent settlers of Mill Lake Camp area were people who left Ireland because of the great potato famine there in the 1840's, chasing America as their destination because it offered them spacious fields of rich, fertile land.

Continuing, the narrative states "It is difficult for one to visualize why the Irish chose Mill Lake Camp area, which, as we know it today, is an area of land too poor and rough for farming, not productive enough for grazing, and its best use is for recreation and the growing of timber. Perhaps the best answer that can be given is that since this area contained some land of relatively high relief it could be cleared and made ready for crops the first year the settlers arrived. Much of the best farm land in Michigan at the present time was at that time swamp land. All through Washtenaw county there were vast areas of swampy land. In fact, the village of Lima Center, located on Michigan avenue (U.S. 12) not far from Mill Lake Camp, was once a swamp. These swamps were known as the 'Break of Day' swamps."

Years ago the Mill Lake Camp site on Mill Creek and Mill Lake was the location of a logging mill and grist mill with the area near the road being a mill pond.

Many choice trees in the area supplied the logging mill and the story of the early days contained the notation, "It is interesting to note that the area around Mill Lake is in the latitude where the trees characteristic of colder climates meet the trees characteristic of warmer climates. One's attention is focused on this fact when he sees a southern tulip tree and a northern evergreen growing side by side, flourishing equally well with nature's care."

Other trees mentioned included oak, birch, maple and pine, many of these furnishing the lumber for homes in the area.

Before the grist mill was located at Mill Lake, according to a story often told in the area, John Cassidy, one of the first settlers, carried the first bag of wheat raised there over his shoulder to Detroit—60 miles away, to have it ground into flour.

Also mentioned in the history is a blacksmith shop operated by Morris Welch who made the many traps used to supply settlers with the needed meat and fur of muskrats and beaver. It was pointed out that the meat of these animals found special favor with the Irish Catholics because it was considered in the same category as fish and could be eaten on fast days.

The late Father Savage, pastor of Most Holy Trinity church in Corktown, Detroit, is buried in the spot where the altar of the first Catholic church stood, on the hill a few yards from the location of the blacksmith shop. The spot is marked with a huge monument surrounded by a cement foundation which encloses the area where the first church stood.

Tombstones bear mute evidence, by ages inscribed, that smallpox and malaria epidemics, common 100 years ago, took the lives of many of the young people.

The more tasks we leave for tomorrow the quicker the future becomes the past.

New Civil Defense Leaflet Tells Facts About H-Bomb

No longer can any American avoid the responsibility for learning everything possible about personal and community survival.

This is the key admonition in an illustrated leaflet published by the Federal Civil Defense Administration, entitled "Facts About the H-Bomb."

One million of the leaflets, designed to tell Americans how they can survive a superbomb attack and the accompanying peril of radioactive fallout, are being distributed throughout the country through regional, state and local civil defense agencies, schools, churches, industries, national organizations and other channels.

"The H-bomb," the leaflet points out, "is bigger than the A-bomb—but it is still a bomb. It has its limits, as does any other weapon. It makes the civil defense problem larger, but not different."

Demonstrating that there are practical limits to the amount of destruction that can be caused by a single bomb of any kind, the following statistics are cited:

A bomb 1,000 times as powerful as the Hiroshima bomb will not cause damage 1,000 times as far away—only 10 times as far. It will harm an area only 100 times as large—not 1,000 times as large.

You live well beyond any likely target area; you still need to know first aid, how to feed the hungry, shelter the homeless, and aid others less fortunate than yourself. And you should plan adequate cover against radioactive fallout.

Emphasizing that the best means of protection from the immediate effects of atomic or hydrogen bombs are distance from the center of the explosion and the protection of suitable shelter, the leaflet urges all citizens to "cooperate fully with your local civil defense authorities. They want to help you learn how to survive, if we are attacked. What you do before the explosion can save your life. What you do after the explosion can also save lives, including your own."

It continues: "All 160 million Americans at home must accept an active part in civil defense preparedness," the leaflet continues. "Organized civil defense is both a shield and a sword. It can reduce appreciably the loss of lives and property under enemy attack, help us get back on our feet faster, maintain our will to win. But a sound civil defense, coupled with a strong military defense, can also help deter an enemy from starting a war by making aggression unprofitable."

A good pruning job now will help get old or neglected apple trees back into production, point out MSC horticulturists.

VOTE!

Too often people place a small value upon their vote with such statements as "What good will my one vote do?" or "I do not know enough about the issues in this campaign to vote so I'll just not bother."

The value of one vote has been proven to mean the election or defeat of a particular candidate.

Thomas Jefferson was elected President of the United States by one vote in the Electoral College.

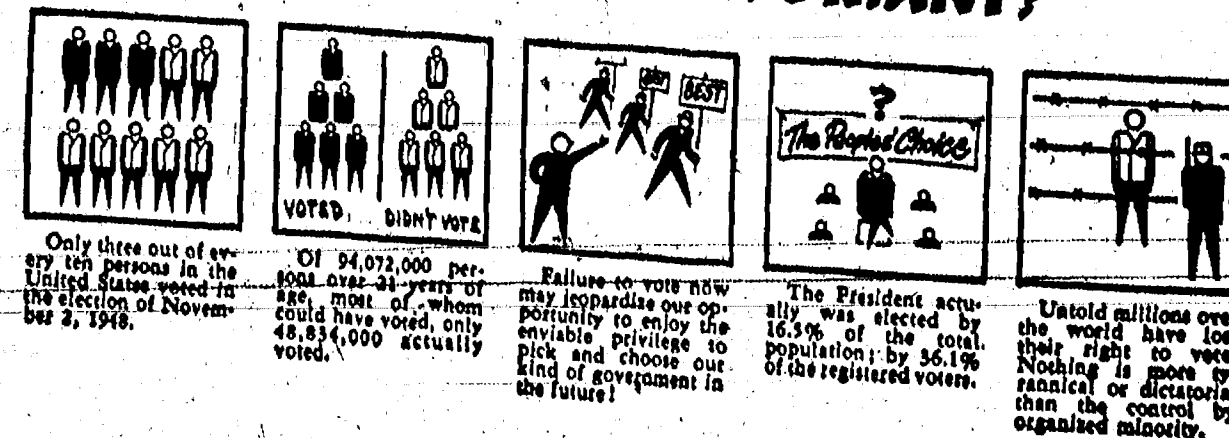

John Quincy Adams rose to the highest seat in the land because of one vote.

Rutherford B. Hayes was elected by one vote. His election was contested, and referred to an Electoral Commission. Again his margin of victory was one vote.

The States of California, Idaho, Oregon, Texas and Washington joined the Union by virtue of a single vote.

The Draft Act of World War II passed the House of Representatives by one vote.
