Council Approves $160,000 Budget for '55 General Fund

President Sweet Hits Huge Expenditure;
Recommends Full-Time Trained Manager

The Village Council, at a special meeting held Monday evening, approved a budget of $160,000 for the general fund, believed to be the highest in the history of the village. Customarily, the annual figure is approximately $100,000.

After lengthy discussion of the question, Councilman Joseph M. Sweet made motion to accept the budget and Councilman Norman Eisenman seconded it. The motion was passed with two dissenting votes, those of Dr. Glen Hass and Darrell Larson.

Electric Light and Water Department profits of approximately $57,000 will be turned into the general fund to make up the unprecendented amount. Remainder of the $160,000 will include about $40,000 from state diverted taxes, $38,000 from village taxes and $25,000 from miscellaneous revenues including parking meter proceeds. Village taxes will remain at the present 10-mill rate.

Largest area of the village to benefit from the increased budget is the Flinders street section where utilities are to be put in by the village in line with the recent Village Council decision to continue to provide utilities for subdivisions already planned but to require that all new subdivisions be supplied by the subdivider. The subdivider would then spread the cost of such utilities on the cost of the property when it is sold. Other major improvements scheduled under the approved budget are bituminous asphalt pavements on McKinley and Summit streets.

Village President Maxwell G. Sweet, during the discussion prior to approval of the budget, expressed the opinion that such an amount of money should not be spent under the present form of village government. He said, "Any business that gets as large as that requires more than part-time, non-technical people to run it. Since no engineering service is being used for the project, the Council can do no more than housekeeping chores on it."

Continuing, Sweet said, "Together with Electric Light and Water Department expenditures, a total of $300,000 will be handled the coming year, and that's really big business, requiring a trained administrator and city form of government."

Man Hired As Assistant Police Chief

John Curman, sergeant in the police department at Sylvan Lake, near Pontiac, is to be assistant Chelsea chief of police. Action on his appointment to the post was taken at Monday night's special meeting of the Village Council on recommendation of the police committee. Dr. Glen Hass, Claude Spiegelberg and Darrell Larson. They explained that the addition to the police force is in line with their efforts of the past year to provide round-the-clock police protection.

The newly-appointed assistant chief is to serve as an understudy to Police Chief George Doe for a month, it was pointed out. This is in preparation for his eventual appointment as police chief July 1. Cited as factors pointing toward the need of additional police personnel are the new schools which

Auditors OK Wilkinson Area Drain

Will Give Needed
Drainage to West
Part of Village

The Washtenaw county Board of Auditors has approved engineering to be done from Letts Creek south to drain nearby land and the South Elementary school property and playground, according to an announcement by John H. Flook, Washtenaw county drain commissioner.

The board of auditors, composed of J. Martin Kempp of Ann Arbor, Adolph Gross of Dexter, and Herbert Loeffler of Chelsea, met April 27 on the site of the proposed installation, designated as the Wilkinson street drain, to study the situation and come to a decision.

A petition for the drain, circulated by Walter Trinkle and signed by 25 property owners of the area, was filed in the drain commission's office March 22.

Although not included in the petition, Flook said that "another branch of the drain should continue south in the present natural watercourse to drain property in the vicinity of Old US-12."

Commissioner Flook said yesterday that he is consulting with engineers for the purpose of placing the Wilkinson drain job.

Freight Train Strikes Auto Stalled on Tracks

At 11 p.m. Saturday, at the Methodist Home crossing, a west-bound freight train collided with a car which had stalled on the track. Two men and a woman in the car had managed to get out before the collision which pushed the car from the track, severely damaging it. The car was a borrowed one.

Michigan Vacationland Show Opens Sunday at Rotunda

Tourist attractions in Michigan's vacationland, including several realistic outdoor scenes, will go on display in the Ford Rotunda at Dearborn, Sunday, May 15.

The show will continue through the peak summer tourist season until Labor Day. Displays will be changed periodically to feature special events throughout the state.

Start of the Rotunda show, titled "Michigan Vacationland," will coincide with opening of Michigan Week, May 15-22.

J. G. Mullaly, special events manager for Ford Motor Company, estimated approximately 400,000 tourists will see the exhibit. During 1954, the Rotunda was visited by 1,503,136 persons, representing every state and U. S. possession and more than 80 foreign countries.

Highlight of the "Michigan Vacationland" show will be a camping scene, complete with a running stream. The display, typical of a family tent camp in a state park, will occupy approximately 6,500 square feet in the exhibition building's center court.

Also featured in life-like exhibits will be other Michigan outdoor activities, including bathing, picnicking and golfing, and its wild life.

Other displays will show visitors the food specialties of various cities and sections of the state and such Michigan vacation accessories as wearing apparel, fishing gear, and boating and photography equipment.

Throughout the show, the Rotunda theater will present special films on Michigan recreation, a calendar of special events of tourist interest throughout the state will be on display, and literature, including maps, will be available on all sections of the state.

The show will be presented by Ford Motor Company in cooperation with the state conservation and highway departments, Michigan, Southeast, Eastern, Western and Upper Peninsula tourist councils.

During the summer months, the Rotunda will be open, free to the public, from 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Mondays through Saturdays and from 1 to 9 p.m. on Sundays.

require additional traffic supervision, parking meters and control of parking facilities; general increase of population; and steady increase of the size of the community by development of outlying areas.

Carman will take over his duties here June 1.

A veteran of six years service in the Counter-Intelligence Service in the Pacific, (1941 until 1947), he has been in police work since his discharge. He is 32 years old, married and the father of two children, a boy 8 years old and a girl 3 years old.

He is one of 12 applicants who took the final tests for the position. The tests are those prepared by the Michigan Municipal League and are similar in content to civil service examinations.

Salary of the new assistant police chief is to be $4,000 a year for 48-hour-a-week duty.

Increases of $25 per month were also voted on present salaries of other Chelsea police officers bringing them to $3,600 per year.

Under the new plan, Chief Doe will be working 40 hours per week instead of the 10 and 11 hours per day which have been necessary in order to maintain round-the-clock police protection. He will continue on the personnel of the police department after Carman's appointment as chief.

Michigan boasts nearly 30 percent of the nation's total salt production. Its output of four million tons of salt annually is almost twice that of any other state. Production centers near Detroit and Saginaw.

Regional Track Meet Scheduled For Saturday

Two meets are scheduled during the coming week-end for Chelsea High school track men—the regional meet Saturday, May 14, and a Huron Valley League meet Wednesday, May 18. Both will be held at Michigan State Normal College, in Ypsilanti.

Winners of Saturday's regional meet will go to the state meet.

Participating Saturday will be Dennis Gary in the one-mile event; Jerry Sluiter in the 800-yard run; Jim Hibbs, high and low hurdles; John Jones, 100-yard dash; and Bob White, broad jump.

The regional meet is principally for individual competition rather than school honors.

At the May 18 meet Chelsea High's team will be pushing to beat Saline and Dundee who are ahead so far in Huron Valley League competition. If the Chelsea team succeeds in moving up to finish as one of the top three in the league they have a good chance of winning the Huron Valley League all sports trophy.

Competing Wednesday in the league meet will be Chelsea's undefeated 880-yard relay team—Eddie Walker, John Jones, Bud Nixon and Jim Hough.

Also prepared to enter competition is the medley relay team composed of Don Mahar, Jim McLaughlin, Jim Hough and Ted Nixon.

Frost Damage . . .

level being hit or missed the same as those on slopes. Tops of trees, as well as the bottoms suffered damage in some instances and the same was true on the areas of non-damage to trees.

All kinds of fruit trees were included, but Bailey was encouraging in his comments on the peach crop. Although many blossoms were damaged, he said, it is still possible that a good peach crop may be had since trees were loaded with blossoms this year.

Strawberries seem to have been hit hardest while grapes were given a fair chance to recover to some extent.

In one report from the Birmingham area, temperature checks showed that the low of 27 and 28 degrees lasted only a short time during the early morning.

The check showed 30 degrees at midnight; 27 at 4 a.m., and then a quick rise to 36 degrees at 6 a.m., Bailey said.

"I'm glad I live in Michigan," he said.

"I got kind of nervous myself, thinking of what I had to tell you."

"Another idea?" she said, hating the sarcasm in her tone.

"The same idea. I suppose they do sound shopworn, but when you get a good idea you can't afford to let it go by the board. I've got the money."

By RICHARD HILL WILKINSON

THEY WERE WATCHING a movie the night that Alice came to her decision. They had been engaged two years then. They would have been married 12 months ago, but Jud didn't feel that they could get along on the commissions he made selling tours for the travel agency which employed him. He had ideas that he was working on that he had expected to materialize long since. He wanted to establish a freight line to haul lumber down from Maine under sail. Money in it. But he gave that up for an exclusive summer cruise idea, also involving sailing vessels. Alice liked anything having to do with the water, and both ideas appealed to her. It had been Jud's idea, his dreams of adventure, that had drawn her to him in the first place.

The summer cruise plans had gone by the board in favor of a travel agency of his own. He was working on that plan now.

In the dim light of the theatre she looked at him. He had a strong profile. The movie enthralled him. His title was "Mutiny on the Bounty."

Presently she looked away and Jud stirred. "O. K., let's get out of here."

If that wasn't like him! He never finished anything. Couldn't even wait to see the movie through.

They crossed the Common and Charles street and found a bench in the Public Garden. It was a warm night, moonless. Tremont street's electric signs winked at them through the trees.

"I must tell him," Alice thought. "I can't let this go on. Marriage would mean unhappiness for both of us. Never finishing anything."

"I'm glad you wanted to leave the show," Jud said.

"Glad I?"

His arm went about her shoulder. "I got kind of nervous myself, thinking of what I had to tell you."

"Another idea?" she said, hating the sarcasm in her tone.

"The same idea. I suppose they do sound shopworn, but when you get a good idea you can't afford to let it go by the board. I've got the money."

"What money?"

"Why, the money to begin operations."

She stared at him. "I didn't know you needed money to begin."

"HE LAUGHED. "You can't very well buy sailing vessels without the plans. It's the biggest I went to with the idea. He thinks as I do. We're buying four ships right away. Three of them will be in condition

THE LETTER BOX

Honorable G. Mennen Williams
Michigan State Capitol
Lansing, Michigan

Dear Governor Williams:

This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of April 11, 1955, urging my endorsement of rigid farm price support legislation.

Your letter would seem to imply a thorough study of the subject matter before taking your position on this matter of controversial national policy.

Because your conclusions and some of your statistics seem to differ from the understanding I have of the farm price support problem, I investigated the matter in some detail. I am satisfied either that you were misinformed by your advisors or that your study must necessarily have been somewhat superficial.

Since your interest in this problem seems to be a serious one, I offer the results of my study. You assert that the drop in farm prices resulted from the adoption of the flexible farm price support program advocated by Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

You apparently are unaware that the program is not yet in effect. Therefore, it could not be responsible for the drop in farm prices. The drop occurred under the rigid 90 per cent of parity law which has been responsible for the building up of the huge surpluses which have depressed the market.

You also ignore the effect of the build-up of farm production during the Korean War and the slackening of demand after the war. The drop in farm prices and income began before the Eisenhower Administration took office and has not been affected by the flexible price support policy which will become effective only with the 1955 crop which has not yet been harvested.

You write of the decline in farm income. The administration's present flexible support system has, in my opinion, been one of the major factors in this decline. Our Michigan dairy industry was the first to feel the effects of the Administration program and the results are quite apparent. In 1952 the rate to the farmer per hour of labor in dairy production was $1.86 an hour. By 1954 it had dropped to 90 cents an hour. In 1952 the net profit to the farmer per hundred-weight of milk was 55 cents. In 1954 it was minus 30 cents. Quite obviously no producing segment of our economy can continue when it is losing money on a basic commodity.

Your figures on the drop in farm labor hourly rates and profits in Michigan's dairy industry do not support your conclusion that the reduction in dairy price supports was at fault. The price support reduction from 90 per cent to 75 per cent of parity on dairy products, as required by the price support law before it was amended, was ordered February 15, 1954. The drop in price and farm labor rates you cite occurred before the effective date of that order during the period when dairy product prices were supported at 90 per cent of parity.

Your statement that Michigan dairy farmers are suffering from lower price supports is not correct. The records show that the blend price of all milk in the Detroit area for March, 1955, was 11 cents per hundred higher with government price supports at 75 per cent of parity, than it was in March, 1954, with supports at 90 per cent of parity. Reports from eight major milk condenseries in the State of Michigan show that the price paid to farmers for milk in the month of March, 1955, with 75 per cent supports was 16 cents per hundred higher than in 1954 with the support price at 90 per cent of parity.

Your facts and mine condemn the rigid price support policy you urge me to accept.

I might point out that your letter is wholly deficient in discussing the policy question involved in this legislation, namely, whether you favor a free economy or a pseudo-socialistic economy. That question should receive your careful thought since many Michigan voters—and if you seek national office, the American public—would very much like to have a clearcut statement from you as to whether you favor measures tending toward Socialism or whether you have a sincere and steadfast faith in the ability of the American people to make their own economic decisions to the maximum possible extent under modern conditions.

Many farmers, as you must know, believe they are capable of running their own farms and resent autocratic dictation from Washington which needlessly flows from a government rigid price support and allocation system.

Since you have undertaken to instruct the Michigan Congressional Delegation on this important federal problem, I suggest that you take the additional time from your difficult and manifold duties as Michigan's Governor to make the necessary factual inquiries and policy decisions which would render your advice helpful rather than misleading.

Sincerely,
George Meador.

EVEN IN HOMES where laundry is done regularly, there are always some small items which get individual attention in the wash bowl. These may be very fragile articles of clothing, or those which are subject to "wash days."

Wash bowl laundry can be successful only if you give the clothing proper cleaning and attention, not just the soap or detergent and water treatment.

With hard water, use a softener or a conditioner, as dirt always comes out more speedily in soft water. Add these before soap or detergent so you'll get proper results. Clothing dried indoors and quickly will yellow much faster than those dried out in air and sunshine. For this reason it's advisable to use a bluing, even if slight, as it will counteract yellowness.

Bleach should be added to the white cottons when washing so they do not turn gray. Always use the amount directed on the package or bottle, as too much may prove too strong and thus cause the clothes to fall apart.

Quick starches are valuable, too. In making the clothes crisp. Use a bottled type which is always ready or an instant type which just needs stirring into the water.

Michigan's attractions are being broadcast over the nation from Interlochen.

It is the National Music Camp from which advanced students cut tapes, make recordings and broadcast directly. They make music and, in addition, advertise the state.

Dr. Joseph E. Maddy, director of the camp, said that more than 6,000 broadcasts a year are beamed directly and indirectly from the camp.

For the legislature, Maddy listed 182 stations carrying programs from Interlochen.

In addition, Dr. Maddy described the new motion picture, "Grand Canyon," featuring music students but also including promotional material on Michigan's "Water Wonderland."

Dr. Maddy asked the legislature for $16,000 for the next year to help with the programs "to help carry on this well-established promotional campaign which brings more and more people to Michigan each year."

Michigan State College will become Michigan State University July 1. The change, made by the legislature and signed into law by Lt. Gov. Philip A. Hart, comes as the college celebrates its 100th year of service to the state.

Through the years, the college has grown to No. 7 in enrollment in the country and, everyone agreed, "is a university in fact."

The name change was opposed by the University of Michigan grounds that it would lead to confusion; that the new name was an "infringement" on the name of the University of Michigan.

As the name was changed, effective July 1, the University of Michigan Board of Regents was considering an appeal to the Michigan Supreme Court.

Dr. John A. Hannah, president of the college-soon-to-be-university, pledged to the legislature that there would be no attempt to start professional schools to duplicate those at the University of Michigan.

There has been speculation in the legislature that, when the name was changed, the new MSU would ask for a dental school, one for doctors of medicine and a law school.

Dr. Hannah also said that the new university would continue its long tradition of service to Michigan agriculture through its county agents over the state.

Troubled children have won half of their five-year campaign for a "master plan" which will legally keep round pegs out of square holes.

Foster care versus state institutions has been the issue for years.

The rule of thumb for probate judges has been to provide foster care for youngsters on a local level if they were not delinquent enough to be sent to a state institution.

"Actually, however, we have had cases of children being sent to state training schools who could have been better cared for in local foster homes," said Robert H. Scott, youth expert in the corrections department.

For five years, alarmed legislators have sought an answer. It passed the Senate in a package of five bills.

The bills would require the state to pay half the cost of local foster care programs and require the counties to pay half the cost of keeping the youths they send to state institutions.

"There would then be less of a tendency to send children to the state," said Congressman R. Coleman (R-Battle Creek).

The proposals would benefit those counties with good foster care programs and, in some instances, penalize those who prefer to send their wayward youths to state institutions.

The state training schools—Boys Vocational School at Lansing, Girls' Training School at Adrian, and Michigan Children's Institute at a foster care operation—have been overcrowded for years.

Without the bills, W. F. Maxey, state social welfare director, said all three institutions would have to be expanded—at some great cost to the taxpayers.

"An institution is the end of the line for some of these kids," Maxey said. "We could save some of them right now if local government will go along with these bills."

Michigan Democrats are planning great things for Gov. Williams, the state's first four-term chief executive.

Ottawa and Muskegon counties forthrightly urged him to try for the party's nomination for president in 1956 in their Democratic conventions.

They revived the timetable other party faithfuls drafted for Williams in 1952 during a favorite son boom for his nomination at the Democratic convention in Chicago.

At the time, the plan was for Williams to seek the seat in the U. S. Senate, putting him in the 1956 convention with two years left in his senatorial term.

They figured he could either win the nomination or still stay in the public eye as a senator.

But Williams chose to try for a fourth term as governor, and he won, taking in his entire slate with him.

The timetable was altered but only slightly. Williams can now be placed in the 1956 convention at the end of his fourth term as governor. His record of being chief executive eight years in a Republican state is a valuable sales point.

Democrats will look at the 1954 election results and disclaim that Michigan is still Republican.

But the idea that Williams, with his bow ties and aplomb when crowning queens and calling square dances, is the man who tipped the state over politically will carry weight next year.

While his supporters are ready to move into the ranks as cheerleaders, Williams is quiet about the future—letting each day take care of itself, with his help.

Political seers, however, are finding significance in Williams' willingness to make speeches in Topeka, Kan., Chicago, and other spots north, south, east and west.

Who will be Williams' successor, if and when?

Insiders are watching Lt. Gov. Philip A. Hart, the personable former U. S. District Attorney in Detroit, later legal advisor to Williams.

Hart proved last fall he is an energetic campaigner and is getting his feet firmly planted in state issues as president of the Senate.

Drug addicts are getting special attention from the state these days. Three years ago, after the legislature set up stringent new laws against dope peddlers and addicts, law enforcement officers said the move drove big operations out of the state.

But there remains a debris of victims, 5,000 when the Detroit-area alone; hundreds of others spread throughout Michigan.

A legislative investigating committee has asked for a supplemental law passed last year which would send addicts as sick persons rather than criminals.

Senator Harold M. Ryan (D-Detroit), chairman of the committee, made public findings which recommended that the state establish a hospital for narcotics addicts. He said: "We recognize alcoholism as a problem with a special commission. This is the least we can do for drug addicts. The commission for the drug addicts would be assigned to make plans for getting a hospital to treat these unfortunate."

Milk, the meat of the farm, is big business in Michigan.

F. M. Skiver, chief of the dairying bureau of the Michigan Department of Agriculture, proved it with statistics showing that the state sells 5,000,000,000 pounds a year.

It comes from 105,000 dairy farms, which provide milk for processing into a dozen different milk-derived foods for the nation's table.

Half the milk, he said, is sold as fresh milk and cream. Other products are 10 per cent to condensed or evaporated milk; 7 per cent to cheese, mostly American style; and 8 per cent to the manufacture of ice cream and sherbet.

Skiver, always ready to improve the product that provides one of the largest items in farm income, said he was proud of a Michigan "first." The state was the first in the nation to adopt a compulsory milk pasteurization law.

Look About You . . .

The State of Michigan's motto—If you seek a beautiful peninsula, look about you—has special meaning as we observe "Michigan Week."

Look about you and see the beauty Michigan holds for vacationers who visit our "Water-Wonderland." They come each year in increasing numbers to enjoy our lakes and streams, our forests and parks; to renew themselves in the freshness of our out-of-doors. Many come for a vacation and stay to build a home.

Look about you and see the beauty of our home sites. "Home owners," to paraphrase Lincoln, "must love Michigan, because there are so many of them." Our state has the largest percentage of people owning their own single-family dwelling—64 per cent.

We are leaders, too, in products of the forest, mine and field.

Largest producers of sawed lumber, we are first in the production of sour cherries, navy beans, cantaloupes, celery, cucumber pickles and strawberries. We are second in iron ore and rank high in gypsum, limestone, salt and copper.

All this in spite of the fact that much of our land is now devoted to industry.

Here in Michigan, industrial workers enjoy the highest annual wage of any state in the union. Here the working man can find employment in his trade, whatever it may be. For, famous as our automotive production is, we also lead in such diversified products as pharmaceuticals and furniture, adding machines and heavy chemicals, paints and baby foods.

Skilled manpower is one of many reasons why industry and business find Michigan attractive. The great abundance of water available for industrial processes and the plentiful supply of power supplied by the nine electric utilities serving this state are other assets that interest business and industrial firms.

They like the excellent transportation facilities of our highways and the 200 trucking firms that travel them, the 13 class A railroads and the fleet of modern ships that ply the nation's longest shoreline.

There are even tax advantages in Michigan. For instance, only Michigan allows a manufacturer to base personal property taxes on inventory value at the end of the year or on average inventory throughout the year, whichever he chooses.

No matter through whose eyes we look, the plain facts engender a justifiable pride in our state. "Michigan Week" gives us an opportunity to hold up a mirror to the greatness of Michigan to our friends and relatives in other states may see the beauty we see.

We do this with every confidence, for when Michigan looks into the mirror, the mirror must reply in complete honesty, "You are fairest of them all."

Skunk Cabbage or Spiderwort Make Delicious Dishes, Says U-M Professor

Ann Arbor—How about some skunkwort, pickered weed, sheep's sorrel, or pigweed for your next meal?

No fooling, says Felix G. Gustafson, professor of botany at the University of Michigan, there are many Michigan wild plants that when properly cooked can make delicious—and adventuresome—eating.

Many of these were standard items in days gone by, but have disappeared in favor of foods that lend themselves to mass production.

All those mentioned so far are potterba. Suitable for greens when young and tender, they may be cooked like spinach and served with butter and vinegar. Other substitutes for spinach include such plants as bracken fern, lambquarters, purslane, shepherd's purse, mustard, mallow and fireweed.

A second group of potterba or greens is too strong flavored or bitter for most palates; and so must be cooked in two or more changes of water to extract the unpleasant taste. With such treatment, wild onions, marsh marigold, winter cross, milkweed and burdock become edible. Even the disagreeable and offensive skunk cabbage yields a pleasant surprise!

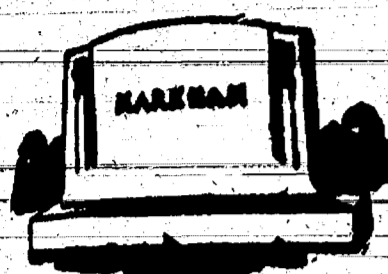

Just collect the young leaves, change the water two or three times in the boiling process, cook till tender, and then season with butter, popper and salt.

Offering more solid nourishment are some plants which produce tubers or enlarged bases. The common cattail, which fills acres of marshland, has edible and highly nutritious stem bases. These may be eaten raw in salad; and the fruited spikes may be roasted.

One of our very best wild foods is the groundnut—or wild bean—twining vine with milky juice. The tubers, which are sweet and edible, may be eaten raw but are better boiled or roasted.

However, in the midst of plenty there are several precautions, commends the botanist. Some of the Michigan plants are poisonous. The most important to beware of are iris, pokeweed, may-apple, except the fruit, which is edible, bloodroot, water hemlock and cowbane.

How to know which are which? Before you go "shopping" in the countryside, get a good book on edible wild plants from your local library, the professor suggests.

Industry is ready to strut its stuff in the annual Michigan Week celebration May 15-21.

Resort people, the state's agricultural industry and most important facets of the economy have marshalled their forces for the event.

Now, the busy factories have been urged to stage open houses and educational programs during the week. Harry Hirsch, president of the C. M. Hall Lamp Co., Detroit, is chairman.

Hirsch, calling upon "full cooperation from Michigan's 13,000 manufacturing plants," said: "We want the citizens of Michigan to know not only what is produced in our great industrial state, but how it is produced and what it means to each of us."

"A favorable economic climate is the best asset for expanding payrolls that a community can offer."

Factories have been asked to organize tours and open houses for employees and their families as well as the general public.

Politicians looked with awe at the spectacle of a man practicing to be governor of Michigan.

It has been a week now since the return of Gov. Williams from a tour of the Near East and the insiders are assessing the performance of Lt. Gov. Philip A. Hart who was "acting chief executive" for three weeks.

Hart never missed a motion in taking over, though he insisted quite properly that he was just filling in. Democrats didn't want Michigan to love Hart to the point of forgetting Williams.

Hart presided over the Michigan Senate as lieutenant governor and, in spare moments, slipped into Williams' office for staff meetings, press conferences and other duties of office.

As acting governor, Hart signed legislative acts into law, but always in the shadow of Paul W. Weber, the Williams press secretary and Lawrence L. Farrell, executive secretary.

He got his share of publicity

U-M Has Rare 'How-To-Do-It' Paint Book on File

Ann Arbor—The "how-to-do-it" craze is nothing new if a recent acquisition of the University of Michigan's Clements Library is any guide to the 1800's.

Entitled "The Art of Colouring and Painting Landscapes" this book gives tips to the last detail on selection and preparation of materials and how to produce India ink drawings as well as water colors.

One of the book's common-sense cautions to the beginner: "In your first attempts from nature let your own discretion be your guide."

These old technical manuals are rare today because they were considered expendable and weren't preserved as family heirlooms, according to Howard H. Feckham, director of Clements Library, which is noted for its collection of Americana.

from signing the bill changing the name of Michigan State College to Michigan State University—all amid the clamor of reporters and the buzz of television cameras.

Hart also got his name in headlines with a message to the legislature—from the governor, once removed—asking for a $2,000,000 appropriation to buy polio vaccine for all children under 10. That one bore the Williams trademark, with a few touches of Weber and Farrell.

If the legislature cut the appropriation for any reason or held back because the vaccine would not be available in sufficient quantity for six months, Democrats could say the GOP hates children.

If the legislature came through with the $2,000,000 and bought all the vaccine in sight, Williams and Hart could say he and or they asked for it.

Hart also turned away the political wrath of the Senate, exerting every caution to be impartial. He was bawled out on the floor once by Senator Elmer R. Porter (R-Elisfield)—who charged bitterly that Hart refused to recognize him so he could make a speech.

Hart, taking the full charge without blinking, said: "The only way I can soften the blow is to say that if it happened, it wasn't intentional."

Everyone agrees that Hart is gaining stature in the public eye, is getting political savvy from his native intelligence and help from Williams.

Said one Republican Senator, enviously: "This boy is going to be around a long time, I'm afraid."

Labor Leaders: assessed a Republican promise that the legislature would try to preserve union-management peace during the 1955 season.

They looked back five months to the opening day when Senator Robert E. Faulkner (R-Coloma) promised he would open his committee room to both sides and keep controversy to a minimum.

August Scholle, president of the Michigan CIO council, said Faulkner's follow through was a shallow performance, that he became a co-sponsor of at least one anti-union bill. He said that the public hearings granted labor were "meaningless."

Clinton M. Fair, of the UAW-AFL of L., said that Faulkner was "fair" and that he "is growing in the knowledge of union-management relations."

George M. Dean, president of the Michigan Federation of Labor said he would wait until the end of the session before going on the record about the promises. "This is only the seventh inning," he said.

Faulkner figures he has kept his promise to the letter, calling public hearings on labor matters when the result could injure his own party politically. He said: "It's my policy to open the doors on a public hearing whenever anybody wants to be heard. That way we get both sides of the issue and if we're wrong, that gives us a chance to get right."

Your Child and Reading

By Dr. Byron H. VanRoekel
Assistant Professor of Education
Michigan State College

If you have helped your pre-school child to enjoy reading you have continued reading to him even after he has mastered some of the reading skills and is now able to enjoy books on his own. But there is something else you can do for your young child that will better prepare him for these first few years in school.

I have suggested that a child does not know that words are combinations of letters which have meaning. This is something he has to learn. Therefore, a knowledge of the letters of the alphabet is advantageous in the beginning reading experience. This does not necessarily imply that reading should be taught by the ABC method as was done quite some time ago. It merely means that a child who can recognize the letters of the alphabet and understands that words are made up of letters will probably learn to read somewhat more readily than a child who does not have this information.

There are many ways that a child can gain familiarity with the alphabet through experiences in the home. Anagram sets offer opportunity for many types of games.

Children like to have mother spell out the names of the members of the family and of playmates. Your child will probably be quite enthusiastic about spelling his own name. Anagrams can be used for construction games. The "E's" make good foundations for pyramids since there are so many of them in a set. The "Q's" make excellent windows because they are round. And when playing these games be alert for opportunities to point out the distinguishing characteristics of letters. For example, "E's" and "F's" are very similar but the "E" has an additional bar at the bottom, the letter "Q" has a little tail at the bottom and the letter "O" does not. You will be amazed how quickly children can learn to recognize the letters.

Inexpensive alphabet dictionaries with very attractive pictures and captions are available in many drug stores and almost all book stores. These are an excellent pastime for rainy days and for those few minutes preceding the rest time.

Building blocks usually carry the letters of the alphabet and offer opportunity for worthwhile experiences.

The important thing to remember is that this must be fun for your child. Nothing will be gained by forcing children to participate in activities in which they lack interest.

One final word. The purpose of the activities suggested above is to help children learn to identify the letters of the alphabet. It is not important to learn them in the proper sequence. Alphabetical order is not important until we have a vast index-dictionary, or other source of information. Usually this comes after the second or third year in school and children can develop this skill when it is needed.

Nitrogen applied in the fall on fall-sown grains, pasture and hayland will bring just as good results as a spring application, MSC soil scientists point out.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLDTIMERS

From Mrs. George N. Fairbank,

East Chicago, Ind.: I remember the little red brick country school.

For drinking water we had an outside pump, and the boys would take turns bringing in a bucket of water. In it was a huge dipper, from which everyone drank. I can also remember when mother put some water on wood ashes to make lye for soft soap for washing clothes and lye for removing hulls from corn for hominy.

From Elizabeth Greene, Scranton,

Pa.: I remember when the rural mailman used to get to our house about noon. He would put the feed bag on the horse and come inside to have a cup of coffee with us.

From E. E. Meredith, Fairmont,

W. Va.: I remember when railroad trains were referred to as

"the cars," when salaried men, politicians and gamblers wore black plug hats; when Little Eva would pass through the audience at "Uncle Tom's Cabin" selling her photographs; when lovely brown biscuits were baked in iron skillets with iron lids which were placed under the grate with red hot coals under and above.

From Bill (Scotty) Hunsaker, Padu-

ck, Ky.: Pa used to whitewash splinters every winter night in the kitchen so he would have something with which to start the kitchen fire quickly the next morning.

You can afford a Buick if you can

That's a major reason for the phe-
