Supervisors To Accept Courthouse

Official acceptance of the new Washenaw county Courthouse is scheduled for noon today. The Board of Supervisors voted at a meeting last week to accept the building as "substantially complete" at this time.

Mrs. Luella M. Smith, county clerk, said yesterday that no special plans had been made for today's event other than that the supervisors would go through the formality of accepting the building.

Plans for formal dedication of the new Courthouse are still indefinite and may not take place before next spring, Mrs. Smith said.

Sept. 25, Gold Star Mothers are planning to dedicate a plaque inscribed with names of men of the county who died in service and Oct. 2, Mothers of Men in Service (MOMS), expect to have dedication ceremonies for the $1,200 drinking fountain the organization has placed in the main lobby of the new building.

Building Superintendent William Day, of Augusta township, hired last week at a salary of $6,000 per year, to take over his duties today. He will be working under County Administrator Carl G. Johnson who also begins his duties today.

FFA Boys Tour Top Iowa Farms

Highlight of the annual summer trip of the Chelsea High school FFA chapter was the visit to the 8,000-acre farm property of James Cooper at Marshalltown, Ia., according to Philip Smith, agriculture teacher and FFA advisor.

The group returned home Sunday night after stopping Sunday morning to attend church services at Indian River. The Catholic chapel in the group attended services at the Indian River shrine where recently a wooden cross, said to be the largest in the world, was erected. Protestant boys attended services at the Methodist church.

It had been planned to start the trip at 5 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 21, but a slight delay (approximately 30 minutes) occurred when three of the boys had to be called by telephone and were discovered to be still sound asleep in their beds. The Community Fair, which ended the night before, and in which many of the boys had participated, had evidently proved too much for them, Smith said.

The group reached LaPorte, Ind., in time for church services in Catholic and Protestant churches. They reached their scheduled camping spot at Wild Cat Den state park, near Davenport, Ia., Sunday night and the next day visited several farms at points nearby.

At the Hugh Morris farm at Ansonia, Ind. the boys were very much interested to see San Gertrudis steers which come from the famed King ranch in Texas.

Oil Well Drilling Operations Start On Mohrlock Farm

Supported by Ohio Oil and Sun Oil companies, drilling for oil began at midnight Friday on a well to be known as Mohrlock-Shears No. 1. Located on the farm of Mrs. Herman Mohrlock on Old US-12, west of Chelsea, the project is being carried out under a plan which utilizes the two farm properties.

John W. Johnson and Howard C. Fox, exploration and development operators, of Mt. Pleasant, are drilling the new well and expect to take the first oil to reach the Trenton strata for testing. They also expect some oil to show in the Traverse strata, approximately 1,800 feet down, the Dundee at 1,900 feet and the Salina strata at 2,500 feet.

Few said gas may be struck in the Niagara strata at 3,500 feet. Normal chance of striking oil in paying quantities on a nation-wide average for wildcat wells is about 1 to 15, Fox explained.

The drilling apparatus is set up on a hill some distance north of the road and west of the Mohrlock house, near the woods on the farm. The Gordon company of Mt. Pleasant, drilling for Sun Oil company south of Chelsea, moved its equipment away last Thursday after trying for more than two months to pump up paying quantities of oil. June 22 the driller had announced that oil was struck. At the time the well would turn out to be a "pretty good" property.

The test well was a good one which would have benefited three farm owners, Elmer Haab, Clarence Buss and Alton Grau.

The well on the Henry Nicholas farm which is the only one in the area that has continued to produce a moderate quantity of oil, is shut down at present for pump repairs.

Interest Shown in Variety of Adult Education Classes

John Griffin, principal of Chelsea High school, suggesting that all people interested in adult education classes at the school contact him as soon as possible, said interest has already been expressed in at least ten different subjects.

These subjects are driver training, china painting, cake decorating, flower arrangement and holiday centerpieces, stock analysis for investment purposes, lessons in bridge playing, furniture refinishing, farm income tax instruction, bookkeeping and physical education.

The driver training course has for its sole purpose, the teaching of the proper way to drive a car. In the china painting class people have the opportunity to learn to hand decorate dishes. The size of the class will this year be limited to six people, Griffin said.

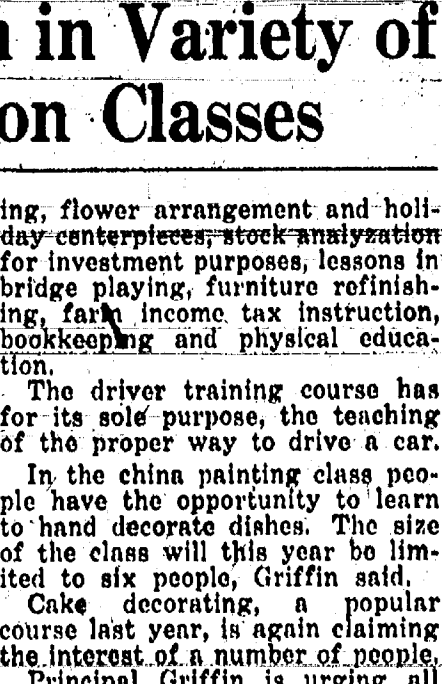

Cake decorating, a popular course last year, is again claiming the interest of a number of people.

Principal Griffin is urging all people interested in any of the above-named courses, or in any others, to fill in the adult education blank on page 7 of this issue of The Standard and send it to his office immediately in order that classes may be organized and ready to begin as soon as possible.

The Pritchards are experienced in operating this type of entertainment, having formerly operated the roller rink at Pleasant Lake in Jackson county.

Electric organ music played by Goldy Worden is a featured attraction.

Letters have been mailed to last year's beneficiaries stating the date and time the committee will meet with them but any new agencies who wish to be included in the 1956 drive are requested to make application to the budget committee at the Sept. 6 or 8 meetings.

It was pointed out that the local Community Chest would like to consolidate all drives for funds into one united campaign and is making every effort to give all requests careful consideration.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Reid visited Monday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Lantis, of Michigan Center. Mr. Lantis has been ill.

Mrs. Bernice Smysor, fourth grade teacher, began work in the Chelsea schools last year after classes had been in session some weeks and it was discovered more teachers were needed. 47 Grid Candidates Report Monday For First Practice

A total of 47 Chelsea High school football candidates were out for the first practice session Monday, according to Coach Alan Conklin.

Included in the number are eight returning lettermen—Captain Ted Nixon, Jim McLaughlin, Don Mahar, Jay Ferguson, Joe Bauer, Glen Weir, Tim Schulze and Hugh Weinberg.

Chelsea's first game of the season is scheduled for Sept. 16, the opposing team to be Chelsea's traditional rival, Dexter.

Some Bus Schedules Still To Be Worked Out in First Week

Chelsea schools, including the public schools and St. Mary's school, are set to open Tuesday, Sept. 6.

As announced by Superintendent Charles S. Cameron last week, Rogers Corners, Jerusalem and Lima Center schools will be operated in addition to the Chelsea schools.

Faculty meetings are being held today and tomorrow in preparation for Monday's opening of schools. The bus schedules as operated last year will be followed for the first week of school. Bus schedules for pupils in the recently annexed districts are not yet arranged and pupils in those areas will be notified by telephone when the schedule is ready.

All elementary children living north of the railroad tracks in town will be going to the North Elementary school this year while those living south of the tracks will go to the South Elementary school. They will walk to school since the town bus run for these groups is being eliminated.

It was pointed out by Superintendent Cameron that all children who attended North school last year will go there this year and those who attended South school will go to South school unless otherwise assigned. The children from the newly-annexed districts will leave the school buses at South school for assignment to class sections.

Only those children who ride buses to school will be permitted to eat noon lunch at school.

Rural kindergarten pupils will attend the morning sessions, including Jerusalem and Lima Center, and the town kindergarten pupils will attend the afternoon sessions. All kindergarten classes, except those in Rogers Corners and Lima Center schools, will be held in South Elementary school. Transportation of the kindergarten pupils in morning sessions and in Jerusalem and Lima Center schools will have to be furnished by the parents for the first week of school.

The bus schedules for these pupils will be established during the first week of school when it is known where the children live. All afternoon kindergarten pupils will be picked up at noon and returned home at 3 p.m.

Jaycees To Assist In Recruiting Local Auxiliary Police

Chelsea Junior Chamber of Commerce held the regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Vince Burg, the meeting having been postponed from the regular date because of the Community Fair.

Discussion topics during the evening included the matter of Civil Defense, the JCC group planning to help the Civil Defense director in obtaining applicants for the Auxiliary Police force in Chelsea.

Also discussed was the fall color tour instituted last year by the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce. Henry Orbring and Homer Kuhl were appointed as a committee to contact the Chamber of Commerce and learn what part the JCC's might take in the project.

Plans are underway for a dinner meeting the coming month.

Survival Is Not All

Tremendous gains have been made over the years in the skill and knowledge of the medical profession. Curing disease, accomplishing surgical miracles, and the discovery of new drugs can be classed as one of the wonders of the world. But survival is not all! Even though broken bodies can be mended and diseases cured, what about the broken spirits and mental anguish caused by financial strain due to accident and illness? You and I have seen it time and again. My Company, Woodmen Accident, has been furnishing protection against financial losses due to accident and sickness for 64 years. Such protection for you or your family costs only pennies a day! Let's talk it over—

Fire from Smoking in Hotel Bed Brings Fine, Jail Sentence
John Belavotz, whose address was given as the Sylvan Hotel, was sentenced to five days in jail and ordered to pay fine and costs totaling $20, when he appeared before Judge Francis O'Brien in Municipal Court, Ann Arbor, Monday morning on a charge of starting a fire in the hotel at 3 a.m. Saturday.

According to police reports of the incident, Belavotz fell asleep while smoking and the mattress caught fire.

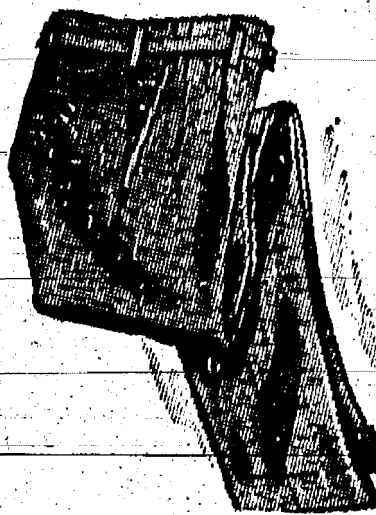

In passing sentence, the judge cited the danger to large numbers of people in hotels when careless smoking results in starting fires. If fine and costs are not paid Belavotz is to serve an additional 10 days in jail, according to police records.

Conference Opens Tomorrow at U. of M. Scout Executives National Training

Boy Scouts of America will on Jan. 1, launch a four-year program known as "Onward for God and My Country" to help prepare America's boyhood to live in today's world and to prepare them to carry their full share in the days ahead. It was announced by Joe A. Juncker, Scout Executive of the Portage Trails Council of the organization.

Juncker and two men on his staff will attend the Tenth National Training Conference of more than 2,700 Boy Scout executives, full-time professional leaders of the organization, to be held at the University of Michigan, Sept. 2-8. Attending the Conference with Mr. Juncker from this area are: Verle W. Kins, Field Executive, Ypsilanti, and John Richard Duke, Field Executive, Whitmore Lake.

Before starting for the Conference, Scout Executives throughout the nation have been evaluating successful methods and techniques to make effective the new program. There are six major study areas in the fields of Administration, Program Enrichment, Finanacial Support, Membership, Manpower and Planning and Use of Tools. Each major subject has been developed by 90 local Boy Scout Councils among all of the twelve Scout regions into which the nation is divided.

Throughout the Conference there will be elective subjects, discussion groups, guest speakers, exhibits and special programs. The elective alone cover 94 subjects. Among them are Cub Scouting, Boy Scouting, Exploring, all types of outdoor and indoor activities, finance, relationships with other agencies and local Council procedures in administration.

Dr. Arthur A. Schuck, Chief Scout Executive of the Boy Scouts of America and chairman of the conference, will present the opening challenge during the first formal session Friday evening, Sept. 2 in the Hill Auditorium. He has been active in Scouting for 42 years both as a volunteer and professional leader. Representatives of 50 nations having Scout Associations will attend the conference.

"We have received scores of letters from men of position and importance throughout America," wrote Dr. Schuck, "congratulating us on our 'Onward for God and My Country' four-year program. Many have expressed the belief that the National Training Conference will contribute much to further the value of our program in the life of America."

"This will be a great conference dedicated to enrichment and preservation of our democracy through more adequately training its youth."

District and Council Scouters are invited to come to the presentations.

Research Shows Best Ways To Keep Cottage Cheese Fresh

Cottage cheese can stay in grocers' display cabinets for almost three weeks if it has the right acid content and the temperature is kept low enough.

That was the conclusion of Dairy Market Researcher Larry G. Harmon after several months of study under Michigan State University's marketing program.

Purpose of the study indirectly is to boost the sale of cottage cheese to make the housewife a repeat customer.

Harmon purchased 48 samples of cottage cheese from retail stores and got 35 samples directly from plants. And he stored all the cheese at 42 degrees F.

The retailed cheese varied in shelf life from five to 19 days. Cheese direct from the plants ranged from six to 23 days without spoilage.

Another reason some cottage cheese spoiled while other samples retained quality, Harmon found as much as 14 degrees difference between the lower and upper portions of the display cabinets.

Blaess Elevator Is Installing New Shelling Equipment

Blaess Elevator at Four Mile Lake is in the process of installing a new grain pit and large capacity corn sheller. The installation is expected to be completed and ready for use by the time this year's new crop of corn is harvested.

The pit, 10' by 10 feet in size and 12 feet deep will hold the equivalent of 2,400 crates of ear corn. New conveying equipment will carry the corn to the new sheller which has a capacity of 1,200 bushels an hour.

The new storage bin is located directly behind the present corn pit and more than doubles the space available for corn.

Custom shelling of corn will continue to be done with the company's present sheller which has a capacity of 250 bushels per hour.

The new installation is part of the company's improvement program, started last summer with the installation of a 50-ton truck scale which speeds the process of weighing loads of grain as they arrive at the plant. Weight of the contents of the truck may be computed quickly by weighing the truck after it passes over the scale after unloading.

The Blaess brothers, William and Julius, own and operate the elevator.

FFA Tour...

At Amana, Ia., they were on hand at milking time in one of the modern barns of the Amana Society, where 120 cows were being milked. The barn features an 8-stall milking parlor with bulk tanks. The modern barn has the latest sanitary equipment.

At Amana, also, the local boys were taken through the woolen mills and saw the huge swine-raising project. Approximately 2,600 hogs a year are produced.

The visit to the Cooper estates at Marshalltown took place Tuesday. Here they learned that the 8,000-acre estate was composed of 13 different farms in three states, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas. The estate is 350 miles from one end to the other at its widest point. Cooper flies his own airplane to oversee the work on the estate each week.

The FFA boys were told that Cooper raises a ton of beef per acre of pasture with $180 of additional feed. He feeds 17,000 steers which he markets in lots of two to three hundred.

Wednesday, at the Bernard Collins farm at Clarion, Ia., they saw 1,200 fall pigs Collins had on hand. He raises 2,000 hogs a year and the Chelsea group was told confidentially that Collins had been selected to receive Swift & Company's master swine raiser award for the state of Iowa. The award is to be a surprise to Collins and will be made early this month.

The Chelsea group was very much interested in the 4-H and FFA Fair at Eagle Grove, oldest youth fair project in the country. They were enticed to see 300 fat steers and 300 fat barrows sold at the fat stock sale at the fair.

At Owatonna, Minn., the school bus in which the trip was made, had a break-down because of a broken universal joint and the Chelsea boys were housed overnight Thursday in a 4-H club building which served as a modern barracks with kitchen facilities. No tents needed to be set up that night. The boys enjoyed electric lights, gas stoves for cooking and indoor toilet facilities and had time for a swim in a nearby gravel pit.

Thursday afternoon they had been royally entertained by the Gordon Hosfield family, an outstanding farm family east of Medford.

The family has 70 head of registered jersey cattle on its 84-acre farm. There are two daughters and a son, all very active in 4-H club work. One of the girls in the family had the grand champion cow at the Minnesota State Fair.

The family served lemonade and cookies to the Chelsea group on the lawn at the family home and explained the rotation pasture system which has proved so successful for them.

In Duluth, Friday, the FFA group toured the city as guests of the Chamber of Commerce and camped that night at Chester Sports Bowl.

Saturday, the busload of Chelsea boys traveled across the Upper Peninsula and camped at Straits state park at St. Ignace before starting for home Sunday.

The group was divided into work groups as follows: advisory committee—Philip Smith, Tom Klobuchar, Llewellyn Lehman; buying and cooking food—Ken Haist, Reuben Lesser, Jr., Jim Klobuchar, Jim Grau, Eugene Seitz; equipment—Bill Hoppe, David Wolfgang, Tim Schulte, Reggie Blough; lanterns and stoves—Orson Boeman; dishwashers—Leverne Walz, Melvin Seitz, Dean Fowler, Dick Fowler, Douglas Stark, Tom Dault, Jack Williams and Jim Heydlauff. Finns Case accompanied the group as an adult advisor.

Jack Winans Tells Kiwanis Club of His Camp Experience

Jack Winans, counselor-administrator at the Muskegon YMCA camp, last summer, was the speaker at the Kiwanis club meeting Monday evening. Introduced by William Rademacher, he explained the work of counseling and administering the work of YMCA camps in general and the Muskegon camp in particular.

Winans advocated camping experience for all boys, stating it is his belief that summer camping is as important as formal schooling. He illustrated his talk with slide pictures.

Guests at Monday's meeting included Harold Koolman of Ann Arbor, Eastern Kiwanis club, George Elliott of Ypsilanti, and John L. Anderson of Manistee.

It was announced that delegations from the Chelsea club would attend Tuesday night Kiwanis meetings at Dexter and at Pinckney.

Davy Crockett may not have shot an Indian, killed a bear, or saved the Alamo—but in 1955 he sure did wipe the spacemen off the map.

Most forest fires now are caused by smokers and trash burners, says Linton Carter of the forestry department at Michigan State University.

Early Michigan Copper Country History Related in Current U. of M. Exhibit

Ann Arbor—Three Michigan newspaper editors—named Blue Ink, Silk Paper and Quinquinn Quill—had a lot of fun on the job way back in 1846.

Actually the men with the fancy names were soldiers stationed at Fort Wilkins near Copper Harbor and their carefully penned manuscript, "The Agate," is part of the current exhibit on "Michigan's Northern Peninsula" at the University of Michigan's Historical Collections.

The facsimile sheet, whose subjects range from politics to bears and wild cats, is headed by a small water color of Fort Wilkins, showing the barracks on a strip of land between Lake Fanny Hoos and Lake Superior.

Among noteworthy early documents included in the display is the diary of William W. Spalding who lived in the Copper Country when it was first being developed in 1844-46. Entries of late July and early August, 1845, tell of his visits to Copper Harbor at the tip of the Keweenaw Peninsula.

Mineralogy of the district is related in the 1841 and 1842 reports of Dr. Douglas Houghton, pioneer geologist of Michigan, and one of the first to thoroughly explore the vast region of the north, then a wilderness, disclosing to the world the secret of the copper deposits on Lake Superior's south shore. A city and county in the copper region bear his name. A monument at Eagle Harbor commemorates his death by drowning in 1845 at the age of 38.

Other cases contain photographs illustrating Upper Michigan's logging operations, early lumber camps and iron and copper mining. A case spotlighting the Sault Locks contains a diary kept by Richard Bury in 1853, on a boat trip from Detroit to Lake Superior. He wrote when at Sault Ste. Marie, "Visited the work on the canal which is rapidly progressing and will undoubtedly be in position to pass vessels before the close of another season."

Tourist attractions are the subject of many of the items on display. Material in a case on rocks and minerals of Michigan assures us that although no precious stones have as yet been found in Michigan, some of the minerals found in the Keweenaw Peninsula and Isle Royale are attractive enough to be classed as gem minerals. Rock and fossil "hounds" might consider a vacation spent looking for agates which are often found on the shores of Lake Superior along the Keweenaw Peninsula and Isle Royale.

Your Child and Reading

By Dr. Byron H. Van Roekel
Assistant Professor of Education
Michigan State College

One of the best ways to find out something about the activities in which youngsters participate in school is to examine the materials that are used. I have just finished a little study in which I compared beginning reading books used in our schools 30 and 40 years ago with those being used today.

One of the very noticeable differences is the large number of attractively colored pictures in recent books, especially at the lower elementary school level. Where once upon a time only five to ten per cent of the total space in a book was devoted to pictures (most of them being black and white), now well over fifty per cent of the pre-primers are colored pictures.

Furthermore, children now have a much greater variety of materials to work with than we did when we were in elementary school. Almost every recent basic reading series has a number of workbooks which are used for seat work. Among other things, children color the pictures in the workbooks and in the kindergarten quite some time is devoted to this activity. If you have children in the lower elementary grades, you probably have seen some of this when they bring home their seat work.

The reason for the emphasis on color in this discussion is that you can help your child prepare for school activities by helping him learn to recognize colors.

Mohrlock-Wortley Quitting Service Station-Business

Mohrlock and Wortley who have operated a service station at 137 Park street as partners the past 15 years, are going out of business as of today, it was announced this week.

David Mohrlock has been in business at that location the past 37 years, formerly operating a garage, also. Charles Wortley, a partner in the firm since 1935, was an employee there from 1928 until going into partnership. From 1935 until 1940, he was in charge of a second station operated by the firm at the southeast corner of South Main and Orchard streets.

W. J. Grossman, who operates a garage in the basement of the building, has reportedly rented the entire building.

Mohrlock has made no announcement of his future plans. Wortley has accepted employment as a bus driver for the Chelsea Agricultural Schools school district.

Mrs. Jack Warren is convalescing at her home after submitting to surgery at Foote hospital, Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Neal and family returned Wednesday of last week from a vacation trip to Niagara Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kline of Orlando, Fla., and Mrs. Martin Gottschling spent the week-end in Chicago.

34 Years Ago ...

Thursday, Aug. 25, 1921—

Approximately 150 former Chelseaites now living in Detroit, held a picnic Sunday at Palmer park there.

Later reports of the Aug. 17 storm mentioned last week show extensive damage to the corn crop, orchards, timber, shade trees and many small buildings on farms. Buildings blown down were on the B. C. Whitaker farm and on the Lewis Mayer farm. Telephone lines and poles were down west of Chelsea for approximately one mile.

Residents of Chelsea and vicinity had an opportunity today to view the "DeWitt-Clinton" passenger train which is considered the ancestor of the modern express trains. The old relic, on tour on flat cars, stopped in Chelsea for ten minutes.

National Guard Will Aid Police In Traffic Patrol

More than 450 National Guardsmen, ordered out by Governor C. Merriam, will team up with State Police and sheriffs to patrol what is expected to be the heaviest traffic in history on Michigan's highways over the Labor day week-end.

State Police will use 243 Guardsmen, of whom four will be pilots, and 206 are being assigned to sheriffs. There also will be eight Guard-supervisory officers.

Pass days of all State Police officers have been cancelled to further increase patrols and special attention will be given to high accident sections on state trunk lines.

In addition, State Police will use 10 planes for aerial observation, including two which belong to the department, three from the department of aeronautics, one from the conservation department and four from the National Guard.

A special warning to drivers to be unusually alert and cautious was issued by State Police-Commissioner Joseph A. Childs.

"Hundreds of thousands will take advantage of this last long week-end for their final trip of the summer," he said. "Depending on the way they drive, we will have a bad accident record or a good one."

We can have a good one if drivers do what they should.

The figures show we are heading for more than 3,000 traffic deaths in Michigan this year compared to 1,735 in 1954, but, conversely, our holiday week-end death toll has been less than on the average summer week-end with more than 20 and is under that of a year ago. There were 18 killed over Memorial day week-end and 10 over the Fourth of July. This indicates drivers can do better when they want to and over this Labor day week-end they should determine to do the very best they can.

To be safe just use common sense and courtesy. And don't be in such a hurry. Slow down and live.

The National Guard was first ordered out by Governor Williams to help patrol traffic over the Labor day week-end a year ago and he again authorized their use over the Memorial day, Fourth of July and Labor day week-ends this year.

HUNTING NOTES

From all reports at this writing there will be little or no change in Michigan's fall hunting seasons and regulations this year as compared to last, with the single and important exception of confining deer hunters to shooting of antlered deer only. (Bow hunters, however, will continue to have their choice of antlered or antlerless deer.)

Grouse Unchanged

Despite a cyclic drop in grouse populations in almost every part of the state the season and bag limits remain the same—because, according to game biologists, grouse has little or no effect on the numbers of this upland game birds anyway.

Deer Herd Slightly Larger

Some 400,000 hunters who go for big game every fall will be interested to hear that natives of northern counties say they're seeing quite a few more deer than at the same time last year. The fall crop seems pretty well distributed—with no single county showing an excessive increase.

However, if you're thinking in terms of deer per square mile the northeastern corner of the lower peninsula probably continues to hold the most animals—too many, as a matter of fact. Much of the land is under private where the harvest has been below good biological requirements.

Large quantity cookie and punch recipes come in handy when serving teas or community gatherings. A leaflet, "Cookie and Punch Recipes," contains 20 large quantity cookie recipes and eight large quantity punch recipes. It is available by writing to the Tourist and Resort Program, Quantity Food Service, Michigan State University, East Lansing.

A frosted edge on drinking glasses can make its contents of fruit punch just that much more inviting. To frost the rim, turn the glass up-side down in about 1/4 inch of fruit juice, and then dip the edge in sugar.

"Continue, Milton! What else would you do if you were running this business for just one day?"

"You've heard you're entitled to your 'day in court'—and you hope to heaven such a day never comes!"

I usually think of our courts in about the same way I think of parachutes. I'm very thankful we have them, and in certain situations I wouldn't want to be without one. They're reasonably efficient and almost foolproof. But I've never got into one if I didn't have to.

I certainly mean no disrespect to our courts. It's just that I prefer to watch a court in action from the spectator's side of the courtroom rail, and I'll bet you're much the same way.

It gives you a good feeling, though, when you stop to think how important the courts are to you and me, even though we might never stand before a judge or jury in our whole lifetime. They're like an insurance policy against being pushed around, or being cheated, or losing your house and property because another guy's bigger than you, or being tossed in jail for keeps because somebody says he thinks maybe you've done something wrong.

Lots of the time we think of a court as a place that deals mostly with people who are accused of a crime, and are liable to go to prison or pay a fine. Probably that's because criminal cases are more dramatic than other kinds, and because we've heard more about our own personal rights that we're entitled to be represented by a lawyer of our own choice; that the court must present a formal charge against us—that no one can force us to plead guilty—and that if we plead "not guilty," we're entitled to a trial by jury.

In Washington lately the fifth amendment has attracted much attention at congressional hearings, which are far different from court trials but which operate under some of the general rules of evidence. At least almost anyone who reads a newspaper or watches TV knows that you don't have to give testimony in your own behalf which "tends to incriminate" you. In court, if you plead "not guilty" you are considered innocent until you are proven guilty by evidence presented in open hearings, and you don't have to testify at your own trial if you don't want to.

The nice thing about this is that the judge and jury hold nothing against you if you decide not to testify.

When you stop to think all this over, though, it would be mighty tough trying to decide all by yourself how to plead and whether to get on the witness stand to answer questions. That's why our laws say that in a criminal case the court must appoint a lawyer to defend you if you tell the judge under oath that you are unable to obtain one.

Just because the court selected him for you doesn't mean that this lawyer isn't right in your corner, ready to back you up with everything he's got. Every lawyer is duty-bound to see that every client is given a proper defense and that you enjoy the advantage of all your legal rights.

If you're held for a really serious charge, the court offers a number of safeguards to see that you get a square deal, but it takes time and a lot of serious thought to decide what's the best course to follow.

If you are accused of breaking a state law you'd quickly have an appearance in a lower court conducted by a justice of the peace or municipal judge. Later there would be a preliminary hearing in a higher court, like a circuit court, where you would enter your plea. After that would come the trial in the same court, if you said you were "not guilty."

On a federal charge you would do about the same thing only in a different court system set up by the United States government.

Actually, though, most courts handle lots fewer criminal matters than cases in other fields of law. That's because courts also enforce the rules of law, and settle the differences between individuals in every kind of personal and business activity. These are the cases which make up your personal property isn't taken away, from you unlawfully, that you've repaid the money which you loan; that you got proper compensation for damages or personal injury, and hundreds of other things that are a part of living securely under the protection of American Law.

BLUE RIBBON FLORISTS

Blue Ribbon Florists 4-H club held the annual tour of members' gardens Friday. At the conclusion of the tour members enjoyed a movie.

Charles Koenig, reporter.

Success is just a good idea coupled with hard work.

Politicians are already getting that oily feeling about 1956 and their fates in Michigan.

Presidential and state ballots, separated years ago, are joined again, a situation of much importance in close elections.

Republicans were behind the separation move long ago when Democratic candidates were riding high on the popularity of Franklin D. Roosevelt. They denied politics in the maneuver, however. So did Democrats who fought the change while cashing in on FDR's appeal.

"We honestly felt that it would be fairer if each candidate stood on his own feet," said Senator Clyde H. Goering (R-Holland).

Again the Republicans took over the national administration behind the popular President Eisenhower, the ballots in Michigan were again merged.

Again Republicans, many of whom supported the merger, denied political motives and the advantages of a popular president were the reasons. Some said it would be more economical to print the merged ballot.

Democrats, finding the political shoe on the other foot, are loath in some quarters and downright suspicious in others. They are working hard for a return to the White House in 1956 and would like to hold the state capital.

But they are asking themselves what will happen if a popular GOP president carries the state, piling up votes for a Republican candidate for governor and the rest of his slate. Williams held his own four years ago despite the national sweep for Eisenhower.

Still no word from Williams on his personal plans for 1956 and the signs are still vague.

Two years ago, when the speculation was he would run for the U. S. Senate, the governor waited until the last minute, then announced that his "job as governor is not completed."

It cleared the air, but some seem to say it was irritating to have to wait so long for other potential Democratic candidates.

As it turned out, Williams won again, carrying with him the entire slate of candidates, including Senator Patrick V. McNamara, the second-choice candidate after Blair Moody's death.

If Williams waits that long again to decide to go for a national office, he may face trouble with the state organization. But after eight years, maybe the philosophy is, as one party leader stated: "The chump can do no wrong."

Judicial reform is in the air.

Organized attorneys in statewide and Detroit groups are plotting for the Michigan modification of the "Missouri Plan" for selecting judges.

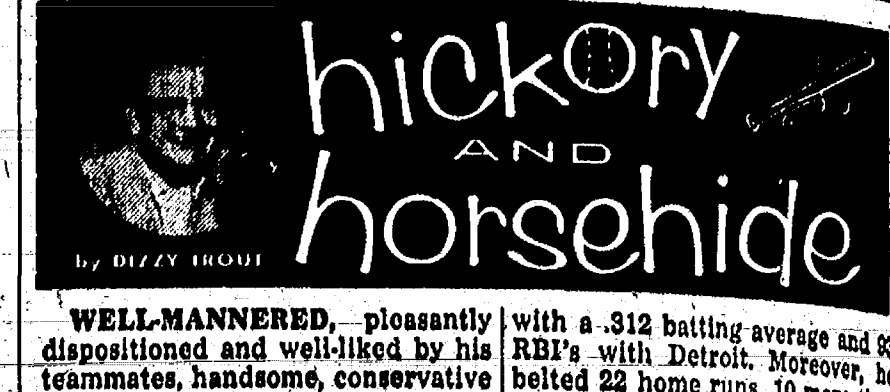

It works this way: A committee composed of three lawyers, three laymen and one justice of the Michigan Supreme Court, would submit a list of three candidates to the governor. He would pick one for each vacancy.

At the end of a judge's term—six years for circuit and eight for Supreme Court—he would run against his record, with the question put to voters whether he should be retained.

A group in Detroit is already working on a petition to place the issue on the ballot.

The groups cite the obvious political implications of nominating a Supreme Court candidate at state political conventions and the pressures that may or may not follow a man into office.

On the circuit court level, they claim it would be easier to "retire"

WELL-MANNERED, pleasantly dispositioned and well-liked by his teammates, handsome, conservative Raymond Otis Boone is as much the "bread-and-butter" man of the Tigers today as he was right after he was traded to Detroit during those bleak early days of 1953.

"I always figured I was good for at least 20 homers a year," Ray said.

Changed Direction

Last year he hit an even 20 and this season, with 16 as of this writing, he's hoping to repeat again. In addition, his 90 RBIs as I write this tops anything he's ever done in the majors and he stands a good chance of breaking 100.

Boone's explanation for his remarkable increase in batting ability is his change in hitting direction coupled with the friendlier reception of Detroit fans. Where formerly his long ball was to center field for a simple out, the right-handed hitter now pulls the ball into left field for doubles down the foul line and homers into closer-in stands.

Ray considers the trade that brought him to Detroit one of the best breaks of his baseball career. He classifies it in importance with his conversion from a catcher to a shortstop by the Cleveland management because of a shortage of infielders in the Indians' farm system.

Ray had been going nowhere as a catcher, but in his first year as an infielder with Oklahoma City, he batted .333 and was called up by the Indians near the end of the '48 season.

When Ray came to as Manager Fred Hutchinson moved him to third only because a fellow named Kuenn was doing pretty good with the Hickory and Horsehide at shortstop.

As a consequence, his hitting suffered and he dropped from a high of .301 and 58 runs batted in in 1950 to .241 and 21 RBIs at the time of his trade in 1953.

Showing just how much a change of climate can mean to a player, Boone wound up the 1953 season with an aging circuit judge under the plan.

Whatever the benefits or drawbacks, the experts foresee a day when the long-sought program will be adopted in Michigan.

Debt managers will be investigated by a three-member senate committee this fall. The move for greater controls over one of the relatively new phases of modern finance developed in the legislature during the 1955 session.

Senator William S. Broomfield (R-Royal Oak) was one of the leaders in the campaign.

His idea was that a few out-of-state loan sharks were giving legitimate agencies a bad name by charging exorbitant interest and in some cases, running out with their clients' money.

Debt managers offer to jump the debts of their clients into one sum, enabling the client to pay to only one creditor. It has the attraction of convenience.

Three senators are doing the spadework and promise to come up with new legal controls for the function next year when the legislature convenes.

Committee members are Broomfield and Senators John B. Swainson (D-Detroit) and Lynn O. Francis (R-Midland).

Mrs. H. T. Moore, president of the Chelsea Needlework Guild, reported yesterday that $25 had been sent Monday for flood relief in the northeastern part of the United States in response to a request for help. The cash is preferred, she was told, since it is more economical to purchase needed bedding nearer to the location where it is to be distributed.

The money sent is part of last year's ingathering here. All items and cash received in the ingathering are designated for local use or national emergencies, the flood relief being considered in the latter category.
