Some Will Hold Special Christmas Eve Programs

A number of Chelsea area churches open Christmas Eve services with special Sunday school programs Sunday, Dec. 18. Others are planning their young people's programs for Christmas Eve.

The Methodist church has scheduled the children's Christmas program for 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The primary and nursery departments are to present a play as well as recitations and songs and the junior department is preparing a play. Following the program, a lunch will be served to all who attend and Santa Claus will distribute gifts.

St. Barnabas Episcopal Mission church school children, as a vested choir, will sing carols at the 11 a.m. Sunday service with "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing," as the seasonal number.

Yesterday and today, teachers and other employees of Chelsea area schools are voting on the proposal of combining Michigan Public School Employees' retirement with Social Security.

Chelsea is one of 12 school districts of the county employing a superintendent which have set up an election district, with Julius W. Hahn, Washington county superintendent of schools, as county chairman of the referendum.

In Chelsea, Superintendent Charles Cameron is in charge of the election district. The election took place from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. yesterday and is being concluded today during the same hours. Voting is being done in Superintendent Cameron's office.

Polio Vaccine Supply Is Exhausted

The Washtenaw county Health Department announced yesterday that it is completely out of Salk polio vaccine and has had no assurance as to when a sufficient amount will be available to continue the vaccine program on a general scale.

State Health Department sources have stated that a limited supply of the vaccine is expected either late this week or early next week. The amount would be so small, however, that Washtenaw county's share would be negligible.

Under the system set up where physicians, not people whose cards were processed through Monday will be put on file on a "first come first served" basis and will receive attention as soon as more vaccine is available.

Eligible to receive the vaccine under the present plan are all children through 14 years of age and pregnant women, or an estimated 33,000 individuals in the county.

Of this number, 10,000 or approximately one-third, had previously received the vaccine through Monday of this week when the supply was exhausted.

Cagers Take Victory from Lincoln Squad

Lincoln Consolidated High school basketball team was defeated by Chelsea High's quintet in a game played on-the-home floor here Friday.

Chelsea, bouncing back from a defeat at Saline last week, played inspired basketball in Friday's game, showing evidence from the start that they were not to be defeated a victory.

Chelsea's advantage proved to be a good team but Chelsea players completely dominated the backboards, permitting Lincoln to get only one shot at a time at their baskets.

Turning in a fine job in rebounding and also sharing the majority of Chelsea's scoring were Rob DeFaut, Don Mahar and Bill Roberts, credited with 22, 20 and 13 points respectively.

Only trouble Chelsea seemed to experience in the game was the fact that a number of players appeared to be in danger of fouling out of the game.

Eventually John Jones, Bill Roberts and Bob DeFaut did foul out but were able to hang on until the game was out of reach for Lincoln.

Fans agreed that Friday's play was a fine game by the entire team.

TEXT OF CONVENTION ADDRESS:

Farmers' Guild President Hits Government Controls

By Julian Lemon, President National Farmers' Guild, Inc.

America leads the world in the production of a great many farm crops, measured in bushels, bales, tons or by money value, calories of food or garments of raiment. We have spread plants and animals of the known world from the sub-tropic to the sub-arctic regions of our geography. We have multiplied their volume and continued their varieties in a pattern of agriculture which gives us the highest per man production in the history of all the world.

Therefore, the American farmer enjoys the highest standard of living in all agricultural history for the simple reason that we translate our abilities and available resources into production, not per hour or per day or per acre, but per man, which is the only true measure of efficiency.

It has been said that an old-world family could live on what an American family wastes. The American farmer is but little less prodigal than his urban brother. He still has more than any other farmer in the world simply because he creates more. Is it because he is smarter than his old-world brothers? The answer is no, because the American farmer is a composite of all the European races, and many of the scientific discoveries and inventions which make our remarkable production possible come from other lands contributed by other men of the old world.

American agriculture comprises approximately 12 per cent of our population and for less per cent of the effective manpower it feeds and clothes our nation and supplies a great, great surplus. Is this done by our government? No, for agriculture for several generations was treated as a stepchild by the government of our country, and not until after financial and law-grunts of economic advantages has agriculture been looked upon as a basic industry.

How then has agriculture achieved so much? How has it even survived the natural economic disadvantages which pertain to the production of raw materials and the many artificial handicaps that have been thrown in its path by other interests and by government policies? It is because until recently the American farmer was free to scratch his own back to the full limit of his own ambition and his managerial capacity, to exercise the initiative of free enterprise, to utilize his meager resources and the labor of himself and family according to his own judgment, hindered only by his own physical and intellectual capacities.

The American farmer learned to stand on his own feet, think for himself and to kill his own snakes. For many years the man with the hoe was looked upon as a dumb driven ox, but this was never true for the American farmer never thought as peasants thought, and the American farmer was never content with a peasant's lot. As time passed he substituted head work for leg work and grasped every new scientific discovery and mechanical invention and applied it to his productive enterprises as seemed best to his needs.

Freedom of opportunity and responsibility of the individual for man's own use of opportunity is the very essence of democracy. All while the farmer was producing the various products of the soil in quantities that astonished the world and almost wrecked agriculture itself, why? Because our government failed to provide the mechanics of distribution which should have placed our surplus some place in the world where it was needed. Democracy is of the soil, not of city pavements and factory machines. Every basic concept of democracy was generated from the soil under the sun and rain that make the land fruitful and reminds mankind of a higher power and his daily responsibility to that power.

Every doctrine adverse to democracy from kingship to Marxism has stemmed from and is the product of urbanization not agrarianism. You can find many definitions of democracy in the dictionary, but we are concerned only with that social and economic system in which humanity can attain its highest potential satisfaction as an individual or collectively.

Democracy is a pattern of life in which each individual counts as one. For that reason true democracy in the collective sense is actually individualism at the bottom, and in this democracy and Christianity stand upon the same ground, and there can be no proxies in a Christian democracy.

For a great many years now we have been hearing self-styled liberals decry individualism as something sinister and antagonistic to democracy, and as a matter of fact every experiment in collectivism during the past century has shown that the efficiency and intelligence of the individual units is the key to success. The deficiencies of the individual are the rocks upon which collective experiments are wrecked. This is also true of idealistic socialism. It is also true of the godless Marxism, the pagan tyranny, Fascism and Nazism and it will be true of Socialism which seems to know better what is good for us than we ourselves know and want to direct our daily lives by regulations and directives.

It was the agrarian outlook of Thomas Jefferson that framed the Declaration of Independence. It was the rural pattern of Virginia life and its concept of true freedom, the freedom of the individual from arbitrary acts by even a government created by him that George Mason expressed in the Virginia resolutions which in 1776 became the Bill of Rights, the first ten amendments to the Constitution.

When the founding fathers wrote "We the people" in the constitution, they meant just that—the individual citizens. Certainly this is clear enough. It is in complete harmony with Jefferson's dictum that all just powers of government are derived from the consent of the governed.

Within a generation after the adoption of the Constitution it became clear that interests, class knits and powerful, well-cured advantages for themselves at the expense of the country as a whole. The resurgence of democracy enabled Andrew Jackson to break up the monopolistic trend and wrest the economic welfare of the country from the greedy hands of special privilege.

Our forefathers asked only of the government that they be protected from exploitation by finance and industry. That the government should do for anyone only what he should do for himself was a creed foreign in the thoughts of the frontiersman who attacked the wilderness with an ax and a gun. With his axe he hewed the logs for his house and called in his neighbors only for the house raising. He planted his fields with his gun strapped to the plow and fought off Indians with bullets molded at his own fireside. That sort of self-reliance made this country great and it will remain great only by nurturing it by the same spirit which is our American.

Grover Cleveland made this remark, "It is the duty of the people to support their government, not the duty of the government to support the people." Our citizens need to be retold that over and over on every occasion for we have back to Jefferson and Jackson's democracy before it was polluted by the idea that society owes everyone a living regardless of his contributions to his own and the public welfare. It is implicit that every man kill his own snakes and should use his own hands and his own intelligence in winning his share of the world's goods.

There are three essentials for the perpetuity of democracy. A sense of individual responsibility, opportunity, and a full measure of freedom to exercise one's abilities. It is the function of government to keep open the gates of opportunity to protect the people against oppression by either private agencies, or the government itself.

Beyond that, the obligation is on the man to enter into the field of opportunity in his own choice and fulfill his responsibilities as a unit of society to the extent of his mental and physical powers. To do less is inviting others to control his life and believe me there are plenty of others looking for that chance. They are waiting to do for us and do to us what ever we do not do for ourselves. A cultivated mind is the guardian genius of democracy. It is the only dictator that free men want and the only security free men desire.

We are the most literate nation on earth and an informed people can never be enslaved. Yet we are told by university trained economists that any system or practice that works successfully is economically sound. That is bunk! This cynical doctrine is out of the same goods from which Hitler fashioned Mein Kampf, and means simply that the end justifies the means. It completely ignores the eternal principle between man and man, between group and group and between nation and nation.

I insist that no transaction or practice is economically sound in which both parties do not benefit to approximately the same degree. We can remember this during the twenties and thirties when all other segments of our economy except agriculture prospered. This vicious cycle came to an end when agriculture used up its reserves and ceased buying for lack of means and for once in our history all other segments of society were forced to recognize their dependence on the basic industry of agriculture.

Let us not forget that labor and industry, no matter how they fight each other, are sleeping in the same bed, and every law-made privilege they now enjoy is rooted in the monopoly principle, and monopoly is NOT compatible with democracy. It is infantile to close the doors of opportunity except on terms dictated by the monopolistic group to limit the freedom of the individual. We must face this fact if we place ourselves in the same legal status as other minorities. We will submit to a red apple with control of those minorities acting together as a majority. May God forbid this.

Labor, industry, and finance are interested in agriculture only to the extent of what they can get out of it.

Rural life and occupations require independent thinking, independent action and individual resourcefulness of a high order.

The facilities that are called in to play in rural life to meet the changing conditions from day to day and year to year are those of a capitalist, a manufacturer, a laborer, and a consumer all in one. Since individualism is the very heart of democracy, we must look to rural America for leadership in order to save democracy in our land, for it is the greatest crop that we can cultivate.

Looking for a good apple to use for pie or sauce? Food specialists at Michigan State University suggest Northern Spys and Stayman Winesaps. Spys are in abundance now; their season runs from September to December. It is a light, striped red apple with a clear pale yellow skin which is nearly concealed with bright pinkish-red, mottled and splashed with carmine. The Stayman Winesap, which has a season from November to February, is excellent for baking. It is a dark, mixed red rather indistinctly striped with dull carmine. Often, the Stayman Winesap is covered with light gray and russet dots.

We know of a chap who thinks he has had wonderful luck. He lost a leg in a train wreck in 1930, and has an artificial one. Recently, he was changing a tire on his car, the jack slipped and the car came down on his artificial leg.

That reminds of a farmer, after lightning had set fire to his house and barn, destroying all his livestock, feed, equipment and furniture, said, "Well, I still have my land, fences, and a plow. We need more optimists like these two fellows."

MICHIGAN BELL

TELEPHONE Lines

OLD MAN SUN powers rural telephone system! That's the news from Americus, Ga., where successful experiments using the Bell Solar Battery were recently conducted. The Solar Battery, an invention of Bell Telephone Laboratories, is the first successful device to convert the sun's energy directly into a substantial amount of electricity. While it is still too early to predict the future role of the Solar Battery, its development is part of continuing research to help bring more and better telephone service to rural areas.

DID YOU KNOW that Michigan Bell is the largest single taxpayer to the State primary school fund? This year over 8 million dollars was paid by Michigan Bell to the fund. The fund is allocated to school districts throughout Michigan in proportion to the number of pupils in each.

TRYING TO SOLVE that Christmas shopping question, "What can I give that's different?"—How's this for an answer—EXTENSION TELEPHONES. They make a unique gift—not likely to be duplicated by others. And they'll be appreciated every day of the year—save countless hours—take the "run" out of running the home. The cost—just $1.21 a month, including tax, plus a one-time installation charge. Order your gift telephones from our business office today—gift-wrapped free to be installed after Christmas.

Classes Set To Teach Incapacitated Homemakers How To Conserve Energy

Free Heart of the Home classes in work-simplification techniques to teach Washenaw county homemakers to do their daily housework easier and with less strain on their hearts, will be offered in Ann Arbor, starting Wednesday, Jan. 11. The series will be financed and sponsored by the Michigan Heart Association working in cooperation with the Washenaw County Cooperative Extension Service, according to L. Paul Ralph, M.D., President of the Heart Association.

The announcement is of special importance to all women who are incapacitated or disabled by heart disease, high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, coronary heart, varicose veins, rheumatic heart, etc.

"Most homemakers can enjoy the luxury of extra time and energy that results from finding better and easier ways of doing things," Dr. Ralph stated, "but for the time-strapped, heart-strained, the saving of time and energy is an absolute necessity."

Each homemaker attends four two-hour lecture-demonstration classes which will be held on Jan. 11, 13, 15, 20 from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and will meet in the Michigan Consolidated Gas Company auditorium, East Huron street, Ann Arbor.

The work-simplification classes, which are a free community service of the Michigan Heart Association, are designed to "take it easy" by showing the homemaker how to save as much as 75 per cent of her walking, 75 per cent of her movements and 60 per cent of her reaching. This tremendous saving of time and energy means lessening the strain placed on the heart by reducing the physical effort expended by the homemaker.

Mrs. Ruth C. Kettunen, of the Michigan State University home management staff, conducts the classes. She emphasized that the classes are designed to benefit an economic level and that it is not necessary to remodel a home in order to conserve the homemaker's time and energy.

"Any homemaker can learn to "take it easy" while doing her various household tasks," Mrs. Kettunen said, "by merely following the work-simplification techniques, principles, and ideas taught in the Heart of the Home Classes."

The course is available to every woman in the county, although those with an ailment of the heart or blood vessels will be given first listing. Homemakers in this area may register for the free classes by calling or writing Mrs. Anna B. Brown, Home Demonstration Agent, Washenaw County Building, Normal 3-2401, Extension 28.

Homemakers are urged to register this week in order that they may attend the first class on Jan. 11. No medical advice, diagnosis, treatment or examination is given in the Heart of the Home Classes. The Washenaw County Medical Society has endorsed the entire program and doctors of medicine are urged to refer their patients to the classes.

The Heart of the Home Program is made possible by the Michigan Heart Association through funds received from the Community Chest affiliated with the Michigan United Fund.

Educators have launched a campaign to remove the last state-level tinge of politics from the Michigan system of public schools. They are going about it with the encouragement and the support of the man whose job they want to abolish.

He is Dr. Clair L. Taylor, superintendent of public instruction, who, along with his last two predecessors, wants to make the post appointive by an expanded state board of education.

Spurheading the latest attempt is the powerful Michigan Education Association and its executive director, Dr. A. J. Phillips.

"I think we can do it this time," he said. The plan is to put before the voters in November, 1956, proposals to change the Michigan Constitution to create an eight-member state board of education (from the present six members) which would then appoint the superintendent.

Dr. Phillips said details are being worked out to elect the board on a nonpartisan basis. At present, the board controls Michigan's teacher colleges and fixes policy for the superintendent's office, works on curricula and other matters.

The superintendent, himself, is a schoolman first, then, of necessity, a politician. He is nominated by political conventions and must campaign like the rest.

"I am in full support of this movement to take the job out of politics," said Taylor.

The reform has arisen and vanished several times in the past decade. One of its latter-day advocates was the "Little Hoover" commission which also wanted to abolish the auditor-general's post.

School districts already are working out the details of distribution for the $13,500,000 bonanza of sales tax moneys earmarked for salaries and wages by the legislature a month ago.

How the plans are finally developed will be a gauge of political battles yet to come.

Gov. Williams lost his fight for the legislature to specify that each of Michigan's 51,000 teachers get a flat $200 increase, when Republicans turned the money over to local school boards with that recommendation.

Taylor made a special plea to local officials to keep the per teacher increase as near $200 as possible. First reports indicated they would.

Detroit, adding money of its own, said each teacher would get $200, the same went for Muskegon Heights and Berkley.

"When the final reports are in, I am confident people will be pleased with the distribution," Taylor said.

The extra money came from increased sales tax collections which are earmarked for the schools—two of every three cents. The release of the funds pushed the $184,000,000 school aid bill to $197,500,000, the most ever turned over to schools in one year.

Movies are going to patrol Michigan highways.

That was the promise of State Police Commissioner Joseph A. Childs as he planned a "saturation patrol" of the high-accident areas in the state.

Officers already are working on an inexpensive camera mount for police cars and determining whether the operation can be handled by one trooper alone or will need two men.

At the same time Childs said he would assign his 200 new troopers to the high-accident areas for the "saturation patrol"—which he defined as one police car every 10 miles around the clock.

"A speeder just gets out of the range of one of our cars when he gets into the range of another," he said.

All this will happen before next Memorial Day when the extra troopers are graduated. Schools in the winter and spring will train the troopers in patrol duties and they will be sent on the road immediately. They will go back to school next fall to finish.

Childs, asked the purpose of the movie picture cameras, said that the films could be used in cases in which motorists contest tickets in court.

"Besides, if a driver believes he is being watched by a camera, he's going to be more careful," Childs said. "It's psychological but we're ready to try anything to cut down accidents."

Planning money for two new state office buildings—one to house the Michigan Supreme Court and another to house state agencies still renting from private landlords—has been released.

The $105,000 for plans for the buildings was delayed for months when Atty. Gen. Thomas M. Kavanagh objected to placing the law library in another building, away from the law books in the same building.

The new arrangement keeps Kavanagh and the law books in the same building.

Rice is offered in the grocery stores in many forms. Regular white rice has the hull, bran and germ removed. Brown rice has a nutty flavor and more nutrients than white rice. With only the hull removed, brown rice doesn't keep as well and needs longer cooking time. Converted rice is regular white rice with B vitamins and minerals. Instant rice is partially cooked before packaging, thus saving home cooking time.

Air Force Again Takes Applications For Cadet Training

According to a recent announcement from T/Sgt. Archie Adams, local Air Force Recruiter, the United States Air Force is again accepting applications for Aviation Cadet training. This marks the first time that eligible persons have been able to apply since early June, 1955.

Applications for Aviation Cadet Training must be from United States male citizens between the ages of 19 to 20 1/2 years at the time of application. Applicants must be single and with a high school education, and must meet rigid physical and mental standards. Selected applicants must be enrolled in a specific flying training class prior to their 27th birthday. Also, all persons under 21 years of age must secure the written consent of their parents or guardian.

Through its Aviation Cadet Program the U. S. Air Force trains qualified young men to become Aircraft Observers and Pilots. The Cadet Program has become a major source of the Air Force leadership by providing commissioned officers for active duty. It also enables the Air Force to maintain a sizable reserve in the lower age bracket.

Classes begin every two weeks. The training program takes approximately one year for aircraft observers and 14 months for pilots. Young men are urged to contact T/Sgt. Adams for more details on the Aviation Cadet program. The Air Force recruiting office is located at 100 1/2 East Washington street, Ann Arbor.

Medical Research At U-M Delayed By Lack of Funds

Ann Arbor—At least 60 research projects at the University of Michigan Medical School have been stymied for lack of funds. These projects include investigations of leukemia, heart disease, alcoholism, high blood pressure, cancer, and many others, Dean A. C. Furstenberg reports.

However, the U-M medical dean noted that these projects have not been developed beyond the drawing board stage, largely because medical research depends upon the unpredictable donations of wealthy sponsors.

"Medical research is too essential to be dependent solely on support from public spirited citizens or private foundations," declared Dean Furstenberg.

He estimated that at least $800,000 was needed annually to sustain a complete research program at the U-M Medical Center, and he declared that this sum was above and beyond present contributions to the program.

Commenting on the report, Dean Furstenberg said he believed that the public, although keenly interested in medical and health problems, does not fully appreciate what is involved financially in medical investigations. He said, for example, that a single, typical medical project costs approximately $7,000 to $10,000 a year.

"Actually," said Dean Furstenberg, "we medical people have been more at fault in not using opportunities to explain what medical research really involves."

The resources and personnel for at least 60 medical projects are currently available at the Medical Center, but they have not been able to proceed for lack of funds for other essentials required for these projects. For example, the dean declared that for approximately $3,000 oxygen studies could be made in the Pediatrics department on children who suffer from congenital heart disease.

"Research is more than a matter of physical determination and moral conviction," said Dean Furstenberg. "It involves technical assistants, apparatus, equipment, experimental animals, and overhead."

Some of the projects which have been planned at the U-M Medical Center but which have been deferred due to lack of funds are:

(1) A thorough investigation of the action of ACTH and cortisone, muscle compounds which appear to work but no one yet actually knows why.

(2) A project of special interest to Michigan residents who live in the "goiter district," who often suffer eye disturbances, sometimes blindness.

(3) The apparent increase in "cancer of the blood," which could be more thoroughly investigated at the U-M Simpson Memorial Institute.

(4) Infant diarrhea, which continues to baffle pediatricians.

(5) And, the connection of hormone deficiency with virus infections.

Dean Furstenberg concluded, "It should not be necessary to have to go out and sell good health to the public. Yet it is sad to note that so much effort goes into raising for medical research that the investigator has little time and energy left for the more important work."
