The HERB CORNER Flavor, Fragrance, Beauty.

Through the centuries herbs have been highly regarded by kings and nobility. The Roman ruler, Tiberius I, liked the anise-like flavor of skirrets so well he had them brought for him from Germany. Skirret (Sium sisarum), a pot herb of the parsley family, has a root that is eaten like parsnips and used to be recommended to stir up the appetite.

Charlemagne sent to Ireland for the learned monk, Alcuin to come to France to teach him what he knew about herbs. It is said that they used the question and answer method; and to Alcuin's question, "What is an herb?" Charlemagne answered, "The friend of the Physician and the praise of cooks." He supported this belief by having 74 varieties of herbs planted in the imperial gardens. He was partial to anise and sweet fennel and ordered them planted in all gardens, which account for their wide-spread distribution in Europe.

Lavender, a garden favorite of so many from time immemorial, was a favorite, too, in the garden of Queen Henrietta Maria. Rosemary, which was first sent to England by Queen Philippa's French courtiers of Hainault, was entwined in the bridal wreath of Anne of Cleves and a ribbon-tied sprig of it was given to each guest at her wedding with King Henry VIII. He, too, was a fancier of herbs, as well as of women, and is reported always to have chewed peppermint leaves when he wished to make a favorable impression on the ladies.

Michigan Salt Mine

This picture was made 1100 feet beneath the city of Detroit in one of the world's largest salt mines, the only such mine in Michigan. This state leads the nation in salt production and is one of the world's most important salt reservoirs.

Single Salt Mine Beneath Detroit Yields One-Fourth of State's Total Production

Lansing—Michigan, the nation's leading salt producer, also boasts one of the largest single salt mines in the world—beneath the city of Detroit. From a maze of tunnels and caverns more than 1,100 feet below the city comes one-fourth of the state's salt production. A number of brine wells in other parts of the state account for the remaining output.

Detroit's subterranean mine has been in operation since 1910 and is the only one of its type in Michigan.

In addition to table use, which takes up only two per cent of U. S. salt production, various grades and sizes of salt find their way into some 14,000 uses, including food processing, industrial chemicals, refrigeration, and ice and dust control on highways.

In the Detroit mine, salt is blasted loose and the lumps are hauled to underground crushers where it is processed and stockpiled to await orders from the surface.

In the brine wells, underground salt deposits are melted loose with hot water and the resulting solution is pumped to the surface where the salt is settled out and processed.

For many years, Michigan has been first nationally in salt production, averaging about 5,000,000 tons per year, or about 23 per cent of the U. S. market. New York, Ohio, Texas, Louisiana, and Utah are other leading salt-producing states.

Most of lower Michigan is underlain by thick beds of salt in the form of "rock salt" layers. Geologically, southern Michigan's rock formations are shaped somewhat like a stack of saucers. Thus, the salt layers are found at shallower depths on the edges of the peninsula and at deeper depths near the center.

State Spends Less Than Half National Average on Parks

(Monetary needs of Michigan state parks promise to be a major topic of the current Legislative session. The following is the third of four articles dealing with our state's parks and park problems and suggested possibilities for gaining additional park funds.)

For several years now Michigan's state park system has been ending up in dire straits. Signals, inadequate in space and poorly maintained, the state parks are suffering from a familiar ill—lack of money.

Alarmed at complaints received from members, Automobile Club of Michigan last summer investigated the state's 59 parks and recreation areas and found that complaints of overcrowding, rundown facilities and general inadequacies were justified.

Of prime concern has been the effect a deteriorating park system will doubtless have on the state's $600 million annual tourist industry. Of the top 10 tourist states, Michigan runs in last place in expenditures per state park visitor. The parks have been hailed for years as prime tourist attractions with hundreds of thousands of dollars sent to lure out-of-state visitors to Michigan.

The $600 million spent by tourists each year (a conservative estimate; some put it as high as $850 million) affects the paycheck of every Michigander. It vies with agriculture for the title of second largest industry in the state. Michigan's financial outlay for its state parks is inconsistent with its reputation as an outstanding tourist state. Even when expenditures for all the nation's state parks are averaged out on a cost-per-visitor basis, Michigan spends less than half the national average.

Michigan last year spent 14 cents per visitor—six cents for operation and maintenance, eight cents for capital improvements. Most leading tourist states spend much more than the national average of 30 cents per visitor. California leads with 74 cents per visitor, New York, 44 cents, and Florida, 42 cents.

Michigan does lead in one comparison of park statistics but is none the better for it. Our State Parks hosted almost 100 persons for each acre of land in 1956, about three times the national average. The past year saw nearly 16 million visitors enter Michigan's parks, a figure second only to 1956's record 18 million visitors. Twenty-three of Michigan's 59 parks each counted over 250,000 visitors in 1956. Three of the parks each had over a million visitors.

Many Michigan organizations interested in the state's tourist economy have become convinced of the need for quick financial aid. Among them are the Michigan Tourist Council, Michigan United Conservation Clubs, the Michigan State Grange and the four Tourist and Resort Associations.

All facts concerning the parks point to one need—money. But where to find it? With a deficit budget already facing them, legislators are casting about for new sources of revenue. The parks, though traditionally free, remain one of the few state agencies able to be partly self-sustaining.

CROP SUPPORTS.

Speaking before the Senate Agriculture Committee recently, Ezra Taft Benson, Secretary of Agriculture, made the suggestion that mandatory Federal farm price supports be killed once surplus production and other agricultural problems are solved. Mr. Benson cited recent Department of Agriculture reports to back up his contention that high price-supports and Federal controls had set the stage for accumulation of surpluses.

SYNTHETIC FIBERS

The production of man-made fibers in the United States last year declined 4 per cent from the record 1955 level. Production totaled 1,444,700,000 pounds compared with 1,716,800,000 pounds a year earlier. The decline in production of rayon and acetate was partially offset by increased output of textile glass fiber and non-cellulosic fibers.

Michigan borders on four of the five Great Lakes. No place in Michigan is more than 85 miles from an inexhaustible supply of fresh water for industry, recreation, and sanitation.

There are more than 100 different trades and occupations that a man can learn while in the Marine Corps.

A Marine Corps Recruiting Sergeant will be at the Post Office in Chelsea from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Monday or he may be contacted by telephone by calling Ypsilanti HU 2-4200.

Senator Wayne Morse Will Be Speaker at Detroit Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner

Democrats have chosen Jack C. Carr, Ann Arbor attorney, as Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner Committee chairman for Washtenaw county, according to William P. Hull, general chairman of the Democratic fund raising affair.

Senator Wayne Morse, one of the nation's most prominent Democratic Senators, will be the main speaker at the annual Jefferson-Jackson Day event sponsored by the Democratic State Central Committee, Neil Stuebner, Democratic State Chairman, announced.

The dinner will be held May 19 in Detroit's Masonic Temple. Tickets are $25 single and $35 for husband and wife with the net proceeds shared equally by the State and National Democratic Committees, to be used to finance party activities for the remainder of 1967.

The 1966 dinner broke previous records when 2,700 persons overflowed into the dining rooms to hear Adlai E. Stevenson, the principal speaker.

The spring election success of the Democrats made party officials hopeful of reaching close to that attendance figure this year.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams, Sen. Patrick V. McNamara, Democratic members of the administrative Board, congressmen and Legislators will be featured at the speaker's table.

Senator Morse, one of the earliest critics of the Eisenhower Administration, is expected to keynote the Party's view on current National issues as a preface to the 1968 election campaign when the Senate seat held by Republican Sen. Charles Potter will be up for election.

Teen-age group is very slow to get protection of Salk vaccine, despite fact they make up 15 per cent of all polio patients. In California this fall (1966), only 7 out of every 100 in the age group 15 through 19 had received any vaccine at all. In New York City fewer than 10 of every 100 had received it.

You thought that going to trial was the only legal means of settling disputes.

But a trial is not the only permissible way to reach agreement on disputed issues. Actually, there are other methods.

For instance, the parties to the dispute can, by themselves or through counsel, negotiate a settlement. And that settlement, if properly handled, is binding on the parties.

Arbitration is another effective method of putting an end to disputes. You all read of labor-management contracts which provide for arbitration machinery to settle differences that otherwise would reach the courts. It works out particularly well in such disputes.

An arbitration decision of fact takes into account factors and testimony that might not be admissible evidence in a lawsuit.

Arbitration is particularly useful where the problem is specialized and the arbitrator chosen is a person who is equipped with specialized knowledge. If the arbitration is properly conducted, the award arising out of such arbitration becomes final, complete and certain. Usually, there is no appeal from the arbitrator's decision.

In this respect, arbitration differs from the settlement of a dispute by a lawsuit in a trial court. The judgment of a trial court is appealable to a higher court. The appeal, however, is not limited in scope and should not be thought of as a retrial which it is not. The appeal is designed to test whether the trial was conducted according to law and whether the decision is legally correct. The appellate court can decide "judgment affirmed" which means that the trial court's judgment stands or "judgment reversed," which means the party who lost is now the winner.

Sometimes, where the appellate court determines that there was prejudicial error during the trial, it will send the case back for a new trial.

AUTO SALES.
Plymouth is said to have regained third place in automobile sales, replacing Buick. The front runners are still Chevrolet and Ford, according to automobile sales reports. From Jan. 1 to Feb. 20, Plymouth had captured 10.2 per cent of the auto market, with 85,591 deliveries. Plymouth rated only 8.1 per cent of the market last year.

Parents Urged To Prepare Children For Start in School

Parents of children who will enter school for the first time should make certain this spring that their children are ready for enrollment, the Michigan Department of Health said today.

Future pupils should receive thorough medical and dental examinations, and immunizations against contagious diseases should be brought up to date. At the age of five years, most youngsters need booster shots against diphtheria and tetanus and a repeat smallpox vaccination.

The state health department urged parents to make sure that their children have acquired the basic personal health habits by next fall. These include holding a handkerchief over the mouth when coughing or sneezing, washing the hands with warm water and soap before eating and after going to the toilet, brushing the teeth regularly, and sleeping at least eight hours every night.

Parents were reminded that pupils do better in school if they also have mastered a number of skills that will help both the child and his teacher. The five-year-old should know his name, home address and telephone number; he should be able to dress himself including tying his shoelaces and putting on and removing his boots; he also should be able to recognize his name on clothing tags.

Children just starting to school also should be taught to cross a street properly and how to take part in school playground activities with safety. The health department pointed out that accidents are the leading cause of death and injury in children.

Burning Fields Proved To Be Wasteful Practice

Burning off fields to get rid of dead plant material is like pouring part of your wealth down three drains.

You waste decaying plant life that supplies humus to your soil; you destroy wildlife; and you make it easier for rain-run-off to get away from your land.

It has been proven that burning off grasses can reduce regrowth yields by as much as 50 to 70 per cent—not enhance the new year's growth, claims Charles Shick, game management specialist at Michigan State University.

Burning may be easy. It may get rid of last year's dead plant material. But, it also removes humus that supplies plant food for your crops as it decays.

Allowed to grow back naturally, or plowed down, vegetation gives back to the soil some of the elements that have been removed. And, it increases moisture holding qualities of the soil.

Many farmers feel burning helps to control weeds. This is not always true, says Shick. The results may be just the opposite—burning under some situation would develop a good seed bed for weed growth.

Burning on steep hillsides is also a bad practice. When this is done, conditions are set-up for the beginning or accentuating of soil erosion.

Spring fires, set to remove dead vegetation, often get out of control and cause damage to fence posts and wire fencing. Each spring fire destroys wildlife food and cover, as well as wildlife itself.

Further, burning requires a permit by law. Any time there is no snow cover on the ground, a permit must be secured from a conservation officer.

With or without a permit, should the fire get out of control the person starting the fire is legally responsible for any damage caused by the fire.

Many Industrial Firms Moving to Small Towns

A national weekly newspaper recently reported on the trend of big businesses to move its new plants into smaller towns. The report was very interesting.

One firm which had operated in a large metropolitan area for half a century, has recently erected plants in two small communities and the company head reports that the concern is delighted with the results.

In the first place, he said, the business had been virtually unknown in the large city and workers were not in touch with the needs of people in the smaller towns who were the principal users of the product manufactured by this particular firm. In the small towns, where the two new plants were opened, citizens were eager to have the new plants locate in their community and helped raise money for the building, on a loan basis, and took a great interest in the business enterprise. They were happy, contented, good workers and had the interest of the business at heart, the executive reported.

Labor relations in such a plant, and in a community which appreciates the location of such a plant, are of the best.

These are some of the reasons, in brief, why so many big corporations are building plants in the nation's smaller communities. This is good for the nation and produces good management-labor relations, and for these reasons the trend will probably accelerate in the coming years.

Russians Have A Solution to Drunk Driver Problem

There is one remedy which might curtail the amount of drunken driving on U. S. highways although we are still a bit reluctant to recommend it. This method was used recently in Russia and it certainly eliminates the possibility of a recurrence of this offense by the same party.

Not long ago a driver in Russia was hurrying along on an icy road, attempted to pass another vehicle, skidded and struck four pedestrians. One of the pedestrians was killed.

The driver was held and tried by a Soviet court and found guilty of reckless driving and homicide, and sentenced to death. A death for a death, so to speak, was the Russian justice dispensed.

Although we do not propose such a penalty in the United States, the fact that one unintentionally kills, rather than intentionally, nevertheless fails to be of any value to the victim, death being quite a permanent affair. It might be that a suitable penalty for reckless driving under the influence, which takes a life, should include a bar from possession of a driver's license for a good many years—if and when the court's punishment is served.

And, while we do not favor the death penalty for accidents, even if they are the result of negligence or driving under the influence, the taking of other lives on the highways, because of excesses by the driver, is perhaps as reprehensible as killing another person in a fit of rage in any unpremeditated manner.

Since one's conscience, usually is a harder judge than the courts, thought along this line is not out of order.

Cerebral Palsy Group Conducting Fundless Campaign

A well-known educator, in discussing disabled and physically handicapped persons, once said there is no rehabilitation like a paycheck, no matter how small it may be.

Nothing could be more true, for being employed gives such persons a sense of independence, a feeling of belonging and what is equally important, confidence.

There are thousands of cerebral palsy victims who can be trained for work compatible to their condition if such training is made available for them. They want the opportunity to prove themselves and are deserving of it.

You can help such a program by supporting the Golden Deed Crusade for public education which the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Washtenaw county is launching on May 1.

By contributing generously to the Community Chest in the fall you are supporting a local as well as a national program which makes it possible for the Cerebral Palsied to help themselves and research to stop this crippling condition.

Washington Report

By Senator Charles F. Potter
The latest news from Washington of special interest to Michigan.

THE BATTLE OF THE BUDGET continues on Capitol Hill. All government departments are trying some new tactics to see that their segment of the budget isn't the one to be cut. From my own mail and that of my colleagues here on Capitol Hill the American public is very much in this budget skirmish too.

And I assure you I'm in there pitching!

As a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee I am doing all in my power to get a substantial cut in the budget. And from my action spot in the battle, it looks now as if some tax relief is probable before too long.

LET THE MAIL USERS PAY is my recommendation for a cut in the postal budget. Some taxpayers use the mails infrequently, some private citizens use only first-class mail. Yet these citizens pay the high taxes which support the intricate post office system and its annual deficit. Why not get rid of the antiquated mail system which permits the taxpayer to bear the burden, instead of the individuals who really use the mails?

SENATOR VANDENBERG'S painting may still reach the Senate's Hall of Fame!

Headed by Senator John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.), a Senate Committee asked to select the five greatest Senators for a permanent statue in the Senate's Hall of Fame. The past, if it is far enough away, has a tendency to shed party politics, so Senator Webster and Henry Clay will easily make the grade. But Senators who belong to the Twentieth Century have not yet had their political garments dissolved. Right now Senator Vandenberg's painting is running neck to neck with other Senatorial greats done in oils. . . . George W. Norris, Nebraska's independent and liberal Senator Robert A. Taft, Ohio's gift to the conservatives; Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin; Robert F. Wagner of New York; William E. Borah of Idaho and Hiram Johnson of California.

But I'm still on the bandwagon for Michigan's Vandenberg!

developments in the onion industry.

Upon notice of the opening of the hearings, I immediately sent a statement to the House Committee commending them for their further investigations into this situation. With my own bill on the subject slated for early action in the Senate, we should be able to lick this situation before too long.

APRIL IN WASHINGTON continues to bring floods of tourists into the city. Every morning when I arrive at the Capitol building, I meet groups of high school and college students armed with youth cameras and a curiosity about the hallowed halls of their government. Professional photographers are asking the girls and boys to smile or sit down on the grass or group themselves closer together. . . . so that 20 or 30 years from now these boys and girls may open their albums to show their class of 1957, and the way Washington looked then and the amusing dress-sportsmen wore. Some charming Michigan students turned up April 24 from Southeastern High School in Detroit, and I was glad to find the day bright with sun and blossoms when I emerged from my work to greet them on the Capitol steps.

SMALL BUSINESS MEN are not getting their fair share of government contracts. I've kept an eye on the situation and noticed that in 1932 small enter-

MICHIGAN MIRROR

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

An aggressive policy of stimulating Michigan's tourist business will get underway July 1.

The new program, an active plan of "going to the people," will replace the present system of state-operated information offices in Detroit and Chicago, says Robert J. Furlong, of the Michigan Tourist Council.

"Vacation salesmen" are key figures in the program. Plans call for hiring two men to actively sell the idea of Michigan vacations. Members of industry, labor groups, transportation and travel agencies, and all others who can enjoy or sell the state's tourist advantages are prime prospects.

The new approach will not cost Michigan taxpayers additional money. Funds saved from the closing of the Detroit and Chicago offices will cover costs of the new plan.

"Instead of waiting for potential tourists to come to us, we will go to them," Furlong commented.

"Experience has shown that the Chicago and Detroit offices don't reach all the people we consider as prospects. Because of many limitations of our present operation, many persons who take yearly vacations never hear about the advantages of a Michigan outing. For example the large number of steel and gas company workers around Gary, Ind., are not exposed to our sales ideas. But their unions or personnel offices have vacation committees that recommend and prepare plans for members. With our proposed system we can go directly to these people and add many new prospects."

The "personal touch" is expected to play an important role in the program. In addition to going out to the potential tourist, the new vacation salesmen will contact radio and TV stations and resort editors throughout the state promoting the use of Michigan during their travels on state-wide tourist travel. Department stores with trip-planning facilities and travel agencies will also receive individual visits.

"We are convinced," said Furlong, "that a large part of our tourist potential is made up of people living in Michigan who want to visit other parts of our state."

Tourist officials have high hopes that the new plans will increase both the numbers of tourists and the length of Michigan's vacation season.

Color comes to the voting booth. Ballots of many colors will adorn Michigan polls next year if final approval is given a house bill for changes in the state election code. Ballots will be printed in a different color for each type of election. The house-approved color system lists white ballots for partisan races; blue for non-partisan candidates; red ones for Constitutional amendments and other state-wide issues; green for county and township issues; and yellow for local propositions.

prices received 19.3 per cent of military contracts, a drop of almost two per cent from the preceding year. Last week I introduced a bill which would encourage more federal contracts for the little fellow. It would make the Small Business Administration a permanent agency and spell out the intent of Congress that small business obtain a fair share of Government business. Besides, it would expand SBA's lending power. I can remember two occasions when their funds were entirely depleted and vital loans to small business were delayed for months. The bill also authorizes more efficient service to disaster victims and would permit SBA to make studies and recommendations on matters relating to the competitive strength of small business.

NEWS

"Sheep Man," by James Edward Grant, who wrote "Boon Town," which starred Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy and Claudette Colbert some years ago, will be filmed with Glenn Ford in the title role. It will be shot, not in Australia, but on Metro's back lot.

Tommy Sands is really going places. After singing at the Oscar-Wards and appearing with Jack Benny in "Shower of Stars" recently, he'll make another TV show before making a picture at Twentieth Century-Fox.

While Clark Gable has a big percentage of the profits of "The King and Four Queens," he probably wishes he had a percentage in "Gone With The Wind." This production has made $48,000,000 up to this time.

Bill Wellman Jr., left Duke University temporarily to act in his father's "Lafayette Escadrille." Now, he has the acting fever so bad he probably won't return to college. Following his first film, he went into Josh Logan's "Bent," and is now playing with Ted Hunter in "Darby's Rangers."

Beverly Garland will play a lady scientist when she and Don Taylor co-star in "The Amazon" for Curt Siodmak at Universal-International.

Yul Brynner, marlon Brando, Carroll Baker and Richard Basehart will have the leading roles in "Brothers Karamazov."

Everyone is wondering how Jerry Wood will be able to bring "Payton Place" to the screen. The book has been condemned and banned, although, in the meantime, it has remained on top of the fiction best-seller list month after month. Wood says he has a script which he thinks will pass censorship while retaining at least a speaker's acquaintance with the original.

While the people who crowd onto lots to gaze awe-struck at the actors and actresses, are often termed "movie-struck," it seems that most of the studio themselves, these days are "movie-struck." On the set of the Twentieth Century-Fox production in Beverly Hills, on Columbia studio's 17-acre tract, situated in the heart of Hollywood and rumors have it that an oil company has signed up Paramount and the deserted R.K.O. studio lots, 2 miles south of Columbia.

While Natalie Wood is being kept pretty busy these days, she would just love to have the title role in "Marjorie Morningstar." It could not happen to someone nicer.

Cary Grant may have Susan Parker, one of the highest paid fashion models, as his co-star in "Kiss Them For Me."

Children Warned
Not To Play with Blasting Caps

Blasting caps cap maim, blind and kill.

With that grim note, Sheriff Edwin L. Klager of Washtenaw county today issued a warning about the danger of blasting caps to all youngsters and their parents. Every year scores of boys and girls are hurt in blasting cap accidents, the sheriff pointed out.

He sternly warns children: "If you find a blasting cap leave it where it is and call me or your other grownup. Don't pick it up. Don't touch it—not even with a ten-foot pole."

The sheriff described caps as being small, metallic cylinders about as big around as a lead pencil and varying in length from one inch to five and one-half inches. One type has an open end and is fired by flame from a fuse. Another has two covered wires coming out of one end and is fired by electric current. Both kinds are DANGEROUS. Shock, heat or careless handling of the caps which are loaded with a sensitive explosive.

Blasting caps are needed to explode dynamite to build roads, dams and skyscrapers, and to mine coal and metals. They are vital, too, in laying pipelines, and farmers use them frequently in clearing fields and removing boulders. But only an experienced person knows how to handle the caps safely. When one explodes, hundreds of small pieces of sharp metal fly out in all directions, sometimes as far as 200 feet; and even at that distance they can cause serious injuries.

Sheriff Klager, who is pressing this safety drive at the request of the National Sheriff's Association and the Institute of Makers of Explosives, has this safe and sound advice for parents: "Teach your children to know a blasting cap at sight. Inset they shun a cap as they would a rattlesnake. That's the only way to play safe with a blasting cap."

Read Labels When Purchasing Seed

When buying lawn seed or field seed take a long look at the tag if you would have the finished crop later this year be the realization of your springtime hopes.

This is the advice of G. S. McIntyre, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture, which annually checks thousands of samples of seed at its seed testing laboratory in Lansing. Chief seed analyst is John Garver.

Under Michigan law each container of field or lawn seed must bear a tag or label stating the purity, germination and recent date of test of the seed it contains. Purity means the seed's freedom from inert matter and the seeds of weeds and other crops. Often impure seed introduces weeds that contaminate the soil for years to come, according to Garver.

Germination is the ability of the seed to produce a good plant in the field. The higher the percentage of germination, the greater the chance of getting a good stand of plants. Seed with a high germination test is preferred if purity also is high.

Lawn seeding mixtures are made up of combinations of different seeds in varying proportions to meet the various needs of lawn planting. In general fine leaf permanent turf grasses are recommended in most parts of Michigan. These are Kentucky Bluegrass, Merion Kentucky Bluegrass, Cowslip's Paspalum, Creeping Red Fescue and Poa trivialis.

Patrolman Michael Regan sees his friend, Harry Sharp, getting into a parked car and taps him on the shoulder.

"What did I do?" asks Harry. "I think maybe you stole this new Ford," Mike grins—"don't you always drive a medium-priced car?" "I bought this Ford Fairlane 500," Harry replies, "and it's the BEST car I ever bought. I got this big, good-looking automobile, plus automatic transmission, radio, heater, whitewalls, two-tone—the works—for lots less than I'd have paid for a stripped-down medium-priced car." "Sure and you're not as dumb as you look—I'll have to let you go," says Mike. "You'll get a Ford Fairlane 500, too, unless you're as dumb as you look," Harry tells him.

Llewellyn Lehman Explains MSU Courses to CHS Agriculture Students

The high school student is at a crossroads. He should seriously consider college before going to work at a factory, sitting down on the farm, or entering the armed services.

This was pointed out to the senior class in vocational agriculture at Chelsea High school by Llewellyn Lehman, a student in the College of Agriculture at Michigan State University. He spoke here at 10:30 a.m. yesterday.

Lehman is a 1956 graduate of Chelsea High school and is majoring in Agricultural Education at MSU. He is spending his spring vacation at his home with his mother, Mrs. Alta Lehman.

Agriculture offers many rich vocational opportunities, he pointed out. It has a place for persons interested in people and machinery as well as crops and livestock.

About 11 per cent of mature agricultural graduates go into actual farming.

Starting salaries for MSU College of Agriculture graduates ranged from $8,800 to $6,500 in 1956.

Philip Barels is member of Western Michigan Varsity Baseball Team

Kalamazoo—Philip Barels, a graduate of Chelsea High school, and now a sophomore at Western Michigan University, is a member of the Broncos varsity baseball team. He is a left-handed pitcher and is expected to see action as the season progresses.

The schedule will include 12 games with teams in the Mid-American Conference, 12 games with teams in the Big Ten, and a home series with Notre Dame.

Phil is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Barels of 1721 Danvers road. He is 19 years old, 6'7" tall, and weighs 160 lbs. in high school he was an end on the football team for four years, played forward on the basketball team for four years, and was a pitcher on the baseball team for four years.

He was coached in high school by Ray Louthen, a graduate of the University of Michigan, and Alan Conklin, a graduate of Eastern Michigan College.

Michigan Bell Is Largest Single Taxpayer in State

Michigan Bell Telephone Company—payment to the state. Primary School Tax was the largest in the company's history and Michigan Bell remained the largest single contributor, in 1956.

The amount was $9,792,322, in state property taxes. Michigan Bell, in common with railroads, Pullman, railway express, telephone, and other telephone companies, pays such a tax earmarked for the Primary Fund in lieu of other property taxes.

Nicholas J. Prakken, Ann Arbor district manager for the company, reported that $7,920 of the total tax payment was allocated to the public school system of Chelsea.

Schools throughout Washtenaw county, including the village of Chelsea, received a total of $171,921 from Michigan Bell's tax payment.

Prakken said the payments were based on a school census of 1,476 in Chelsea and 32,015 in Washtenaw county.

Divided by the state school census of 1,628,080, based on 1955 figures, the tax amounted to $6.31 for each of the youngsters in the state between the ages of 5 and 19.
